JOHN ROBINSON'S CIRCUS COMING TO DEARBORN.

John Robinson's circus pioneer "king top" of the world is coming to Dearborn for afternoon and night performances May 27th, and circus lovers of this vicinity, are looking forward with great interest to the appearance in this community of this famous old show.

From the Far East Europe, South America and practically every country and some performers and animals have been imported. Now as always John Robinson will give the best circus performance that money and brains can assemble.

Such noted trainers of the steel arena as Capt. Theodore Neltje Rotte, Leo Stoen and Leon Carle, Bert Kelly, Margaret Thompson, Carl Dancer, E. L. Deiter, will send their jungle charges through remarkable routines in another special attraction will be Gaylor Carson's contingent of wild west champions, including cowboys, cowgirls and a tribe of Sioux Indians from the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

Regular circus features and acts will also have prominent places on the program.

Dinner will be served by the Methodist Episcopal church ladies in Wayne at noon.

Cheerful alleys will have a combination of the hotel acts.

WHY NOT HONOR THE OLD PIONEERS?

There are buried in Oakwood cemetery in this village a great many of the old pioneer residents of this community men and women to whom we owe a great deal of gratitude. Through their efforts and their sacrifices many of the splendid, worthwhile things we enjoy today were established our churches, our schools, our beautiful shade trees, orchards, and expanding farm area. They laid out our streets, established a trading place which has grown and developed into the handsome Northville we enjoy today, and as a community ought we not to pay a tribute to their memory?

Why would it not be a good plan for some one to search out the grave of one of our oldest pioneers and on Memorial Day place a wreath or remembrance above the hollowed spot? The afternoon talk will be given up to a short preliminary entertainment put on by local groups followed by summaries of clothing and criticism of the speakers Miss Sorenson and Miss Hunter who have had charge of these projects in the village during the past year.

Mrs Bertha Doert from the Educational department of the Victor Talking Machine Company will take us on a musical trip around the world. Miss Edna Smith, household management specialist, and Miss Julia Brinkley, assistant state demonstrator, will also be with us fitting contributions to the day's program.

Dinner will be served by the Methodist Episcopal church ladies in Wayne at noon.

The object of the theatrical exercises is to divide Wayne county into sections where the audience may more thoroughly appreciate the various acts.

Having arranged with the amateur dramatic clubs of the Wayne County chapters of the National Service League to have their services available throughout the day, we may find the best seat in the house.

ANNUAL CLEAN-UP WEEK

May 17 to 22

LET'S MAKE NORTHVILLE CLEAN

EVERYBODY IN WITH RAKE AND HOE AND BRUSH.

Next week, from Monday morning until Saturday night, has been designated "Clean-Up Week" in Northville and it is the desire of the Village Health Department as it should be of all our citizens, to give the old home town a thorough cleaning during that period.

Rubbish, of all kinds—except ashes—will be carted away if placed in boxes or barrels at the street curbs. Gather up all the old cans, bottles and other accumulations of the winter months and have them carted away.

Clean the front yards and the back yards and do not forget the cellars.

Cleanliness insures good health both for yourself and your neighbors.

Let it be said of Northville that we have no old unclean or unsightly places this year.

Remember next week and do not wait until the last of the week. Start to clean Monday and keep at the job until your premises are cleaned up.

One unsightly spot will detract from all the attractive ones, so let us make this a real community effort—everybody clean their premises, whether they own them or rent them.

Place your rubbish at the curbly Friday morning, when wagons will be provided by the Village to cart it away. We ask your hearty co-operation.

VILLAGE HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Dr. R. Schuyler, Health Officer.

LOCAL BOYS HAVE CHANCE FOR TRIP TO ALASKA.

A bachelor physician, 10 boys of his own, his wife and great father already have to go to Alaska. George R. Buchanan, a wealthy coal merchant of Detroit, who has espoused much the idea that a trip to Alaska is a normal wide-awake boy's a literal education for that boy—an experience that will be of great value to him in private life. Mr. Buchanan has already helped 120 or such boys to go to Alaska, and there is enough Spartan and Spartan in him to know that a trip like the Alaskan trip should be earned. In order to make it fairly easy for ambitious boys, Mr. Buchanan, in Detroit and elsewhere, offers to pay one-third of their expenses; one-third is to be earned by the boy, and the remaining one-third is to be paid by the parents, who, of course, must consent to the trip. Each trip is carefully arranged and supervised by the god-father of the boys and the idea he tells them how to earn the money.

About 50 boys are working for the July trip to Alaska, selling coal, coal baskets, pencils, etc. Most of them earn their money in Detroit, but last year, when the so-called iron was personally conducted by Mr. Buchanan, his brother and Jack Miner, noted Canadian naturalist upon whom the wild, unusual, without fear at his home in Ontario, one boy was from Alabama, one was from Kentucky, two from Ohio, and seven from Canada. The others, 61 in number were from Detroit and vicinity.

George E. Buchanan makes no claim to being a philanthropist. His idea is that if a boy wants this wonderful trip to Alaska, he will pay off more and get more out of it if he actually earns one-third of the money for the trip $125. Buchanan advances another $125, the parent-outs up a similar amount and the boy may pay Buchanan at his leisure. Last year the youngest boy on the trip was Lawrence Kelly, aged 11, who failed to know who "Whitefish" is or "Gadwall" or "Pekins," but said his bird life is sole-mate. This year, however, the youngest boy is 10-year-old James L. Lanning, son of Ruth Lanning in Rockwood, Michigan, and born in 1916. He is now in the fourth grade.

Mr. Buchanan, however, is not the only one to benefit from the trip. The boy himself gains greatly. And that is Buchanan's real intent behind the whole affair. He wants the boy to learn character, health, and education by experiencing life in Alaska.

Buchanan will be in the Leland Park Young People's Saturday, June 25, at 10 a.m., when everybody does well be expected. And he has arranged in this trip to set aside the above date as an opportunity that should not be missed.

COURTESY, ALMAYNE PAYNE, Harry car witnesses an accident in mobile traffic. There will be vehicles on the highways of Michigan like never before. The means that the chances of dying in an accident will be greater than during the past two years when only 100,000 Americans lost their lives in automobile accidents. Considering averages we can expect more people will be killed and maimed than last, unless we see ourselfs to the task of eliminating some of the wholesale and most fatal offenders—sluggish drivers of farm-hands. On the road routes, pays big dividends. Proper regard for the other fellow right his own road, a serious accident. There is a man a year in the village of Ardenne, that man the remains of that tragic driver who died while making the right-of-way. It is always better to give the other driver the benefit of the situation than to dash recklessly into a dangerous situation just because anything happens. Be decent, be considerate, be courteous, pay big dividends.

LET'S ADOPT THIS CREDO: The people of Denver, Colo., have adopted the following creed which can also be adopted by the people of Northville with profit to the whole community. Let's make this our slogan for a few weeks.

I believe in the trinity of cleaniness—beauty, health and safety. For I know that refuse and rubbish piles stain the beauty of my home and city; but they are the breeding places of flies and vermin; that, as potential starting points for fire, they menace my property and threaten my neighbors with death—both my own and my neighbors'.

Therefore, I am a good neighbor, I take pride in my home, my yard, my alley, and my street. I keep my premises painted, my lawn trimmed, and green. The passersby on the sidewalk pauses to gaze at my brilliant-hued porch boxes and flower beds.

I am proud of the cleanliness of my home, both inside and out. There are no junk piles in my valley or on my property, nor any basement or attic room where trash is stored.

The Suspicious Characters

By H. IRVING KING

THEY met on the steamer going to over. J. Percy was tall, robust, athletic, closely-eyed, clean-shaven; he was a good thing to look at—and the woman set down his age at about five years older than Penelope.

J. Percy was down on the passenger list as a hailing from New Orleans; Miss Woffenden as coming from New York. None of the New Yorkers on board knew her, or had ever heard of her, but then New York is a big place and, as Penelope casually remarked at tea one day, she really knew but very little about New York, though she claimed her residence there, having spent most of her time since the death of her parents on a ranch she had in the West, or in traveling abroad. She spoke familiarly, but not obtrusively, though of the very best people in the very highest circles of American and European society.

If the smoking room J. Percy could talk familiarly of yachting and steeples, of tennis and golf, and, if he was drawn out, would admit acquaintanceship with exceedingly well-known and important persons. But Percy was not in the smoking room much—he was generally in attendance upon Miss Woffenden. They had maneuvered their steamer chairs side-by-side and used to sit and talk and gaze upon the horizon sea.

So matters went on until the steamer was in mid-ocean. Then came a wireless message, over the seas, and through the night, to the captain of the ship, informing him, that a notorious swindler was thought to have sailed in his vessel under an assumed name and with a "faked" passport. So much leaked out. When the news spread through the ship Winters was sitting as usual beside Miss Woffenden. One of the ship's telegraphers came to where he was sitting and said, "The captain would like to speak with you in my cabin, sir."

There was a sensation. The telegrapher had to wait to tell the captain—the girl was too near that J. Percy had been summoned to the captain's cabin. But he was the only one who was in his room. Percy rang about the upper deck of the cabin, then took a seat in a chair, and the two girls, by instinct, moved away from him. Percy, however, by instinct, followed him as he walked up and down, and was afraid of what he might say. Now, however, he sat down in the Captain's cabin, telling the girl what it made and difference to his friend J. Percy.

"They don't press me and I'm free," said the detective, Mr. Winters, "I may as well confide to you that I am not exactly what you have been told about me." He then changed the subject and sat down in a chair across from the girl.

He then said, "Rev. Caledonian got his money from the Caledonian. His wife does not seem to appreciate his increased prosperity."

"What was the scandal in the connection of Miss Woffenden?" he continued. "It was said that she was in a certain place when he had her, and that they would both be arrested upon the arrival of the ship at Boston." When the girl arrived at New York she came off shore, sure enough.

There was a sergeant of marines, and two or his men on the deck. All the girls crowded around to see the adventure put in practice, making a wide open space in which Percy and the police stood alone. But the sergeant went right up to them and snapped the "bracelets" on the wrists of Rev. Caledonian, causing him to drop his clothes—his shirt, vest, tie, coat, belt and trousers. He was then taken to the law office of the ship's attorney when the girl arrived at New York and the lawyer said, "Miss Woffenden," said Percy a little later at the hotel, "why was it that you took it for granted I was not the fugitive from justice everybody supposed me?"

"Oh, simply enough," replied Percy. "As soon as I became interested in you I was blessed by New Orleans and found out all about you. You see I am in the customs service and make my bread and butter by taking trips abroad to look after ladies with smuggling tendencies."

"But weren't you curious to know why the captain called me into his cabin?" he asked. "Yes," she replied, "and I asked him, and he told me. You had a business appointment to keep in Paris and before you sailed the captain assured you you would get in time for you to keep it. He called you in to tell you that, because of unforeseen delays, you would not be able to make it."

Miss Penelope Woffenden, whose real name was Mary Robinson, visited Europe's capitals in the discharge of her duties, and at every capital she visited she was sure to run against Percy Winters. She is no longer in the customs service, but as Mrs. J. Percy Winters lives in the South, where her husband is a prominent cotton broker.

The G-Boy

Scores a Genuine Triumph

The enthusiastic welcome given the G-BOY, Graham Brothers new one-ton truck, has established this fact:

It is recognized at once as a real—a major—contribution to commercial haulage.

So great was the need for a light truck to transport the average load swiftly, easily, safely—yet at lower cost than ever before—that Graham Brothers newest product has scored an immediate triumph.

The revolutionary improvement in balance effected by a new system of weight distribution profoundly impresses every man who has ever had experience with the haulage problem.

The compact wheel base, ease of handling, generous body capacity, the advantages of the ever-dependable and always economical Dodge Brothers engine—all these important factors enter into the G-BOY'S marked success.

And then the price! So low that only Graham Brothers, the largest exclusive truck makers, with huge buying and building capacity, could possibly achieve it.

For the average load there is nothing like the G-BOY. We are eager to show you this latest contribution to commercial haulage.

MICHIGAN GIVEN SPLENDID PUBLICITY BY CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

The Christian Science Monitor of Boston, Mass., issued a Michigan supplement in connection with its regular edition of last Friday and the Wolverine state was given a lot of splendid publicity. Among the many industries of the state mentioned were those of the Ford Motor Company along the river-Rouge, and the plants at Northville, Waterford, Phoenix, Plymouth, Nankin Mills were shown. Accompanying the illustration was the following:

"In three places near Detroit, Henry Ford is making sluggish streams and wooded brooks furnish power which in turn furnishes employment to city wages during the slack time. Such places are found at Phoenix, Plymouth and Nankin Mills where there small manufacturing plants and that he proves that he was in earnest when he advocated rural factories along little streams."

"One of Mr. Ford's policies is to use the energy of small streams to generate electricity and build small factories where farm folk can find employment at city wages during the slack time. Such places are found at Phoenix, Plymouth and Nankin Mills where there small manufacturing plants and that he proves that he was in earnest when he advocated rural factories along little streams."

"An example of the manner in which the decentralized manufacturing fits into the rural life of the community is found at Phoenix. This plant is almost hidden from the highway by a clump of trees and all day motorists pass by without realizing that they are passing an industrial experiment and object lesson that may have a profound influence in changing the industrial fabric of America."

"Other interesting angles of the Ford enterprise are located in other sections of the state. At Iron Mountain is the center of the Ford lumbering activity, which depicts the inauguration of all-steel bodies, reaches huge proportions each year. Probably even more impressive than the production of wood body-parts however, is the extensive reclamation development by means of which scores of by-products are reclaimed from all wood scrap and the highest potential value of the forests is realized. The Iron Mountain plant is just the probability to represent the decentralized part of the right Ford idea."

"At Waterford, in the middle of a farm district, there is a small lumber mill which is

run by a single man, and

the products are

shipped to the market by rail.

"The third place is near Detroit, where a lumber mill is

run by a single man, and

the products are

shipped to the market by rail.

"The fourth place is near De-
