The Extra Large Tub Is What Makes It Speedy

The EASY Washer does not depend upon violent agitation of the water for its speedy action in washing the clothes. Violent agitation is not consistent with the long life of clothes.

The ability of the EASY to get the washing done in a remarkably short time is due to its extra large tub. Instead of washing only a few pounds of clothes to a tubful, as small washers do it washes 14 pounds to a tubful—60 pounds of clothes per hour.

Arrange today for a demonstration of the EASY in your home. Sending for this washer on approval places you under no more obligation than if you came to our store to look at it.

DETROIT COMPANY MAY BUILD THEATRE HERE.

J. A. Brown, representing the Woodward Theatre Company, operated by Henry S. Kopp, of Detroit, was in Plymouth, Wednesday, and negotiated the purchase of the George H. Wilcox property at the corner of Union street and Penniman avenue, for the site of the new theatre which that company proposes to build in Plymouth, a description of which was given in last week's Mail.

The property which was formerly known as the W. F. Markham property, is a splendid site for a building of this kind, because of a large frontage on both Union street and Penniman avenue.

Raymond Bacheldor, Plymouth Realtor, negotiated the deal for the sale of the property.

Mr Brown stated that work on the building of the new theatre, which will also contain several stores and offices, will commence just as soon as the architects plans are ready.

Mr Brown stated that his company will also build a theatre in Northville.—Plymouth Mail.

Northville would welcome a new block of store buildings but there is no occasion for the erection of another theatre building here. We have a good one now, much better than any other town the size of Northville can boast of and is providing good entertainment to our people. What ever do the matter?

DIED AFTER A LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs Strena H Burns died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Levi F. Eaton, Sunday afternoon after a long illness, and her passing brought sweet relief to a patient sufferer. She was born at Romfret, Conn. in 1852. Before coming to Northville to make her home with Mrs. Eaton she resided at Morrison, Ill. [illegible] was taken for burial to Lansing, being accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Eaton. Funeral services were held in the city of many old friends gathered to pay a public tribute of respect.

Her remains were brought to Wayne for burial and the funeral services were held Monday afternoon, being attended by a number of old time friends from this place. Before her marriage to Mr. Dean she was Minnie Hopper. To Mr. Dean is extended the sympathy of his old friends.

COMMANDERY FIELD DAY TO BE HELD HERE.

Northville is to be paid a very great compliment this fall when the Knights Templar of this section of the state will hold a field day here. Grand Commandery officers will be present and all the commanderies in this section of the state will be represented by large delegations. There will be a parade and exhibition drills at the fair grounds.

BROWNELL COOK RELEASED FROM JAIL.

Brownell Cook, who was unable to furnish bail at the time of his last arrest for conducting a blind pig was released from the county jail after a few days' confinement, a bond in the sum of $500 being supplied by Bootlegger Schram, of Redford.

TREMPER FAMILY HELD ANNUAL REUNION SATURDAY.

The members of the Tremper family held their annual reunion at the home of Mrs. Sarah Taylor at Walled Lake last Saturday with about 50 present. Mrs. E. J. The next reunion will be held the first Sunday in August, 1927.

CITIZENS IN MASS MEETING CONSIDER QUESTION OF PAVING.

The mass meeting of citizens called for the High school building last Friday night was well attended in spite of the rain. The meeting was called by the village council to give the people an opportunity to discuss the question of paving and the proposition was considered from all sides. Under our present arrangement the village is expending from $5,000 to $9,000 a year upon its streets with no permanent results, and it was the opinion of those in attendance that a definite program be adopted and that policy continued until all our streets were permanently improved.

No definite action was taken in the matter because that was not the purpose of the meeting, but the sentiment expressed indicated clearly that Northville citizens are in favor of street paving and future councils will, doubtless, be governed by the wishes expressed at the gathering Friday night.

It was the opinion of those present that to decide upon a campaign to improve our streets and that we adopt the pay as we go policy. Doubtless next season will witness the commencement of the paving program.

POTTS REUNION TO BE HELD HERE NEXT YEAR.

Sixty-two members of the Potts family were delightfully entertained at the farm home of Walter Potts at Northville last Saturday. Guests were from Highland, Milford, South Lyon, Northville, Manistee, Lansing, Mason, Lakeland and Edmonton, Oklahoma.

After the business meeting the men went to look at Walter's new farm which they pronounced a fine place. When they returned to the house they found a fine horse race in progress and a lively contest was held between Walter Marshall and Verne Potts. Walter was [illegible] the winner.

The next reunion will be held at the home of Irving Bentley at Novi the last Friday in August, 1927.

COOLIDGE APPROVES HUGE NEW AIR PLAN

President and Secretary Hoover O. K. Routes Spanning the United States.

Paul Smiths, N. Y.—Signalizing the inauguration of an era of vast development of air transport in this country, President Coolidge and Secretary of Commerce Hoover have approved plans for the greatest air program in the history of the world.

Under the provisions of the recent legislation empowering the Department of Commerce to regulate the promotion of civil aeronautics the government, in accord with the program approved by the President, will proceed to establish a multitude of federal airways for the guidance of passenger, express, freight and mail planes thereon.

"We are on the threshold of a general development in civil aeronautics in this country," Secretary Hoover said after his conference with the President. "Within six months we shall have full passenger, express and mail services in operation on transcontinental air routes and the extension of these services as soon as to proceed rapidly thereafter. Eventually we shall have a vast system of commercial air transport which will furnish a reserve of planes and trained pilots for national defense."

The specific action of the President and the commerce secretary was to approve the establishment of the following routes:

1. Transcontinental airway from New York to the Pacific coast via Cleveland, Chicago, Iowa City, Des Moines, Omaha, North Platte, Cheyenne and Salt Lake city, where the route divides, with one branch going to San Francisco, the other to Los Angeles. Another branch to Portland and Seattle will be added later.

2. Southwestern airway from Chicago to Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, via Moline, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

Other routes to be established in the near future are:

1. Atlantic airway from some point above Boston to Miami, via New York city, Philadelphia, Raleigh, Savannah or Atlanta and Jacksonville.

2. Pacific airway from southern California to northern Washington.

3. Great Lakes airway, a branch of the transcontinental from Cleveland via Detroit to Chicago.

4. Northwest airway from Chicago to Minneapolis and St. Paul.

5. Mississippi valley airway from Chicago via St. Louis to New Orleans.

PLAN QUALITY SHOW FOR THE STATE FAIR.

A story of quality production and better farming in general will be told by agricultural departments of the Michigan State College in a big educational exhibit at the State Fair next month.

The college exhibit, which will be in the new Agricultural building on the fair grounds, is being built around the general theme of quality in all agricultural practices. The idea that it is for more crops so much as better crops and more efficient production methods that are needed will be brought out.

More than 200 feet of wall space in the Agricultural building will be given over to the college show which will consist of a series of individual display booths. These booths have been so arranged as to bring out the stories to be told in the most effective way.

Nine teaching departments of the M. S. C. agricultural division are to have booths, each making a separate exhibit, except that all will be tied together by the central theme of quality. Farm crops, soils, horticultural, home economics, dairy, animal husbandry, poultry, marketing and agricultural engineering will be included.

Live chicks just from the incubator will form an active center for the poultry section. White pictures and other features will add interest to the other groups.

"MOURNERS" SOON FORGET THEIR "SORROW."

Detroit, August 17.—The magnetic eye of a policeman plus the guilty conscience of a liquor runner brought to grief the cleverly planned ruse of bootleggers to transport of shipment of liquor under the guise of a funeral procession here Monday.

The purported funeral procession composed of a hearse and mourners cars was moving slowly along an outlying road to the accompaniment of loud lamentations from the pseudo mourners when a squad of state policemen hove into sight.

Attracted by the unusal manifestations of grief the lieutenant in charge of the squad drove to the head of the line and glanced at the driver of the hearse. The latter become nervous then as the officers gaze became more fixed, nervousness turned to panic. The man jammed on the brakes, leaped from the hearse and fled through a field. To the astonishment of the officers the mourners began pouring from the cars and fled in all directions.

An examination of the hearse revealed a cargo of liquor instead of a corpse and the similar load in the mourning cars.

The officers later rounded up two men believed to have participated in the ruse.

Vast Arid Space

The boundaries of the Great American desert are vague. The outer limits are the Rockies and the continuing ranges in New Mexico and Texas on the east; the Sierra Nevadas and Cascade ranges on the west. The north and south limits are British Columbia and the Mexican boundary. Only a part of this area is actually arid waste land, comprising approximately 550,000 square miles.

STATE MOVES FAST TO FINISH NEW BUILDING AT FAIR

Construction of the Agricultural Building at the State Fair Grounds in Detroit is progressing rapidly, and the new building will be ready for occupancy for the Michigan State Fair which will be held from September 5 to September 11.

Practically all of the steel work will be in place by July, as well as a large portion of the brick masonry with which the lower portion of the building will be finished. A force of seventy-five workmen are busily engaged in the construction of this new building which will house the agricultural exhibits of Michigan at the forthcoming State Fair and at future fairs.

The new Agricultural Building is located between the Coliseum and the Dairy Building. Its type of architecture is very similar to that of the two structures on either side, with an arcade between the Dairy Building and the Agricultural Building which will permit visitors at the Fair to pass from one building to the other. In these three buildings will thus be conveniently centered the agricultural interests of the state.

In previous years the farmers of the state have not been given the prominent part in the State Fair which is considered necessary for the complete success of this annual event. Other states have found that a good agricultural display means a successful fair, and under the new management of the State Fair Board, Michigan is to take her rightful place.

Other permits granted were for the Davis Truck company from Port Huron to Ecorse and J. W. Arnold, from Saginaw to Bad Axe.

Lansing—Approximately $1,000,000 must be withdrawn at once from the 200 banks which are state depositories to permit the distribution of the state primary school fund to their various districts. According to Frank D. Mecklem, state treasurer, there is a total of $22,000,000 on deposit including all classes of funds. The withdrawal of the primary school fund will leave a balance of only about $5,000,000, a considerably smaller surplus than was on hand last year and in previous years.

Ypsilanti—Plans are under way here for a celebration Aug. 20 of the opening of the last link in the Ypsilanti-Saline pavement on M-14. The route of M-23 follows the old Chicago turnpike, rich in legend and history which formerly was a muddy road connecting Fort Wayne at Detroit with Fort Dearborn at Chicago. The new road will provide a route from Detroit to Chicago which will be about 35 miles shorter than the present route through Kalamazoo and St. Joseph.

Grand Rapids—Through friends smuggling in his bedside liquor which he concealed in his cast, David Dondaitis, 40 years old, a farmer, managed to stay in an intoxicated condition for a week, according to his attendants. The manner in which he acquired the liquor remained a mystery for several days, it was stated. Finally nurses examined a cast placed upon his hip, which was fractured in an automobile accident and discovered a bottle partly filled with liquor, it is said.

Escanaba—Unable to raise money to buy a license for his automobile, A. G. Brattland, 55 years old, of La Crop, Mich., is said to have manufactured a pair of plates so skillfully that it was not until a mortgage on the car was foreclosed that the forgery was discovered. Brattland was arrested by Dan Vangawter, deputy inspector for the Michigan department of state and bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of counterfeiting. Vanwagner believes the case is the first of its kind in Michigan.

Battle Creek—Declaring he had been the victim of confidence men for a total of $55 00, Philip E. Beltrano, of West Walnut, Pa., a guest at a sanitarium here, appealed to the local police here for aid in locating the swindlers. Beltrano said he was swindled on a horse race betting proposition after two men had gained his confidence by placing small winning wagers. Returns were good for several days, Beltrano said, and then he allowed the swindlers to place large bets for him.

Edmore—Leonard Templer, gasoline truck driver, was perhaps fatally burned when Louis Murphy, who was standing near the truck as it discharged its supply of gasoline at a service station here, is said to have struck a match to light a cigaret. The gasoline was ignited and Templar was surrounded by flames. Murphy, fearing an explosion might cause a disastrous fire, jumped into the driver's seat of the truck and drove the flaming vehicle to the village limits, where the fire was extinguished with chemicals.

Monroe—Marie Call, 17 months old, daughter of Ora Call, living 20 miles west of here in Milan township, fell face downward into a watering trough and was drowned in 7 inches of water.

Pontiac—Erection of a new warehouse and offices for the Whitfield, Walter & Dawson wholesale grocery firm, at an estimated cost of $175,000, will start soon. The firm was burned out two years ago. Its new home will have 50,000 square feet of space, of heavy construction, and will be three stories in height.

Owosso—A squirrel which had gnawed numerous tiny holes in the telephone cables, put more than 400 instruments out of commission here, according to the Union Telephone company officials. During two days of rain, water seeped through the holes, wet the paper insulation, short circuiting the wires.

Coopersville—Strawberries were a valuable crop in Western Michigan this season. Louis W. Perrin, of Coopersville, realized $1,000 from one acre of berries. He sold them on the market at Grand Rapids for top prices throughout the season. From a patch of 12 acres the Roach Canning Co. harvested 3,026 crates.

Benton Harbor—H. D. Arnold, general passenger agent of the Goodrich Transit Company, has confirmed reports of the purchase of the steamer Theodore Roosevelt. The big excursion ship, said to be the fastest on Lake Michigan, is undergoing alterations at Manitowoc and will be used next season on the Benton Harbor-Chicago run.

Howard City—A conference of county agricultural agents, crop and soils specialists, and extension workers to consider problems of sandland farmers will be held here Aug. 27, at the demonstration farm of the Pennsylvania Railroad. This farm has been conducting a series of tests on sandlands with a view to helping farmers who are filling light soils.

Sturgis—No matter which way the political wind blows in St. Joseph county the MacGregor family will be prepared. Mrs. Malcolm MacGregor has announced that she would seek the democratic nomination for register of deeds. Her husband already has announced himself as a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff. The MacGregors live in Florence township.

Flint—Art work believed since he served in the Civil War that his papers showing an honorable discharge entitled him to full citizenship, Thomas Darwin, 80 years old, all crippled farmer, recently made application in Circuit Court here for his first citizenship papers. Darwin said he considered himself a citizen until recently. He said when he left the Civil War and his citizenship papers was questioned. Darwin was born in Ireland.

Saginaw—With the oil development in Saginaw valley only about nine months old, it has been estimated by local oil men that the sum spent so far to finance the production is approximately $500,000. To offset this investment it is estimated that the production now established in the 19 producing wells, will bring about $270,000 annually into the treasuries of the various producing companies. At the present time there are about 25 wells being drilled.

Grand Rapids—The summer apple crop is heavy, according to L. C. Carey, secretary of the Michigan Package Information bureau, which has headquarters here. The grape crop, according to Carey, will equal the 1924 yield, when approximately 4,000 cars were shipped from Michigan. The peach crop will be on a par with the crop of 1920, the last heavy yield in Michigan when about 2,000 cars were shipped from the state. Prices for early small fruits have been above the average.

Dowagiac—Seven Cass County residents poisoned by eating gravy and pie crust made from a mixture of flour and poison at the Levi Hess farm, 10 miles east of here, have been pronounced "fairly well out of danger" by physicians. Mrs. Hess explained that when she discovereed the flour supply low she emptied a sack of poison into the flour bin, believing it was flour. She did not realize her mistake until all became ill. Examination of the sack revealed it had contained poison intended to kill potato bugs.

Hart—Michigan canners, cooperating with the growers and State and Federal officials, are waging a campaign to stamp out the cherry maggot. The maggot has made its appearance in Michigan for the first time, and unless controlled will bring a vast loss to growers. Canners hold that it is up to the growers to drive out the pest by spraying. The cherry crop in this section is about 25 per cent normal, according to the canners. In the Grand Traverse district the yield is much better.

Calumet—A letter mailed from Calumet March 9, 1897, to George Bajuk of Jacobsville, about 20 miles from Calumet, was returned to the Calumet postoffice recently marked, "Improperly held by Postmaster." Judge J. B. Curtis, by whom the letter was written, has been dead for more than 10 years and the addressee has been dead since 1919. The letter was mailed out of Calumet a year before this city had a free delivery service. Jacobsville was a quarry town at that time and today contains but half a dozen residences.

REV. WILLIAM RICHARDS ASKED TO REMAIN ANOTHER YEAR.

The fourth quarterly meeting of the local M. E. church was held last Wednesday evening at the church parlors and the reports submitted were most gratifying, indicating that the past year had been a very prosperous period for the church and the various branches. District Superintendent John Marks was present and officiated. It was unanimously voted to ask Rev. William Richards to return for another year as pastor and the action of the conference will be heartily applauded by Northville people generally, regardless of their church affiliation. Mr. Richards has been offered more attractive charges but prefers to be stationed in Northville, a fact we will be glad to learn. His many friends considered fortunate indeed to have such a man as their pastor, and his return will be hailed with delight by the entire community.

WATER IN PENNIMAN NOT UP TO STANDARD.

An examination of samples of water taken from the several drinking fountains in the village during the first of the week and reported in the Record last week, showed that all except those taken from the fountain in the Penniman building were of a satisfactory standard. Samples taken from the spring were found to be all right and as soon as the water supply has come from the reservoir Engineer Smith and members of the village council are asking all water holders to observe this suggestion.

Workmen are now engaged in cleaning the reservoir thoroughly and everything about the spring and all sources of our water supply will be gone over carefully to insure pure water.

The condition is not alarming and to drink the water might only cause bowel trouble among children but as a measure of safety all are asked to boil their drinking water until final analysis is made and a report received.

MEADOW BROOK CLUB MAY ENTERTAIN OPEN TOURNAMENT.

A Detroit dispatch states that plans for the revival of the Michigan Open Tournament as a separate event were awaiting approval of James D. Standish, president of the Michigan Golf League before the formal announcement of the course and dates are made public.

Offer of the Meadowbrook course in Northville as the place of holding the event and a tentative date of some time during the week of September 13 are to be considered by Mr. Standish. Other plans call for a first prize of $500 for the winner and an additional $750 to go to the next low players of professional with suitable prizes for the amateurs that break into the select class.

Plans for the September date were made to allow the college and university men in the state to take part, especially the players of the University of Michigan who have shown well in tournament play this year.

Is the Auto Traffic Control Effective?

Certainly—help has come to motorists that is beyond expression because this device is used

They who disregard the warning signals are in danger and they make it difficult for others to obey the rules of the road.

The great highway of life is automatically controlled by the Ten Commandments—They point out the danger spots to the progress of humanity.

The first great cautionary signal is to love and honor One God only. Centralize on Jehovah as Creator, preserver and Savior of life.

The red gleam of danger is to keep us mindful from taking God's name in vain. Reverence for deity keeps the pathway clear.

The night warning signal says to remember the Sabbath day—make it contribute to our well being—make it build up life and not defile or desecrate it.

CONSTRUCTION BEGUN AT V. F. W. NATIONAL HOME.

The long anticipated work of construction of the Veterans Foreign Wars National Home began last week Tuesday with work on the Michigan building, for which an appropriation of $20,000 has been made by the legislature. At a recent meeting of trustees of the home which was also attended by Governor Groesbeck it was stated that assurances were given by the governor that an additional sum can be secured if needed in support of this great enterprise.

It is planned to spend about $16,000 on the Michigan building including plumbing and electrical work. It is to be fireproof. There is also a meeting of the trustees at the home on August 31st, also a flag raising.—Eaton Rapids Review.

OAKLAND COUNTY NORMAL SCHOOL TO OPEN SEPT. 7TH.

The Oakland County Normal is a state institution. During the past year over one thousand teachers were graduated and received a three-year certificate with a renewal privilege through the County Normal Department of State Normal Schools.

Some of the advantages to be taken into consideration when girls at this time of the year are deciding on their future career and the preparation for such, are: More individual attention is received in a small group; in the County Normal no tuition is charged; a closer touch is established with the faculty, girls may remain at home, commute, or be within weekly touch of home and home influence; methods and arrangements are practical and can be applied in any type of school, whether rural, village or city, and a year of credit for County Normal work is given at any State Normal. Thus one year and one summer term will give a life certificate.

County School Commissioner C. J. Lederle states that he prefers County Normal trained teachers to those who are graduates of the city schools have an oversupply of teachers, the very demand for teachers is for the rural schools. Oakland County, through its Helping Teachers, is the best teachers in the state in which to grow professionally. Why not grow with the best County Normal trained girls and receive the professional help when you teach that no other county in the state offers.

Oakland County Normal is open to High school graduates. The school year begins on Tuesday, September 7, at the Franklin school, East Howard street, Pontiac. Mr. Lederle will furnish application blanks and information concerning entrance and board.

COOLIDGE URGED TO AID FRUIT GROWERS

Loans on Crops Wanted During Period of Production.

Paul Smiths, N. Y.—There will be an unprecedented fruit crop this fall, particularly apples, peaches and grapes, Arthur R. Rule, general manager of the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, told President Coolidge in the course of a conference on proposed legislation to extend agricultural credit facilities.

The consumer will find fruit this year cheaper than ever before and it would be still cheaper were growers able to market all they grow instead of being compelled by inadequate marketing facilities to leave apples and peaches to rot on the ground.

The legislation Mr. Rule proposes would authorize the intermediate credit banks and agricultural credit associations to make loans to fruit and vegetable growers and general farmers on their crops during the period of production just as loans are made to cattle growers over a period of two and three years on stock they are fattening for market. This aid to stock raisers was given under an act of congress and Mr. Rule would have the benefit extended to all branches of agriculture.

The President did not commit himself to approval of this specific proposal but took it under advisement with the assurance that he favors supplying the farmers with adequate credit facilities.

"It is unfortunate for both consumer and producer," said Mr. Rule, "that the organizations for marketing the fruit crop is inadequate. Only 20 per cent of the growers are in the cooperative organizations or organized at all."

U. S. "Cyclops," World's Largest Bombing Plane

Philadelphia.—The "Cyclops," the mystery plane of the United States army service, was recently christened at the Huff-Deland Airplane company in Bristol, near here.

The plane is said to be the largest bomber in the world and to have the largest engine.

The speed of the "Cyclops" is given as 135 miles an hour and without carrying ammunition it is said to be capable of a 24-hour flight. Many of the features of the new craft are veiled in mystery pursuant to instructions from the War department. A novelty is the arrangement of the two machine guns, one on top and one at the bottom. The lower weapon can be regulated by a movable platform which army flying officers assert will prevent an attack from below.

Weighing 17,000 pounds, the plane has a horsepower of 625 and its designers claim it will be able to cruise for eight hours while carrying 4,000 pounds of bombs.

Trio at Hall Slaying Identified by Woman

Somerville, N. J.—Willie Stevens and Henry Carpender were sent back to jail after being identified during their arraignment as having been on the old Phillips farm the night Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills were killed there.

Stevens is the weak-minded brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, who is also charged with the murders; Carpender, a Wall street broker, is her cousin. Mrs. Gibson had previously identified Mrs. Hall as the woman she saw bending over the bodies.

GLACIER CUTS DOWN MOUNTAIN IN PATH

Vast Alaskan River of Ice Changes Its Course.

Cordova, Alaska.—Henry Glacier has changed its age-old course and is now literally pushing its way over the top of a mountain to reach the sea, declare observers returning from the vicinity of Mile 75.

What was first thought smoke is rising from the top of a peak near here. Later developments show to be great clouds of dust caused by the breakup of the soil under the pressure of the ice river.

Henry Wilkins, sourdough, who has traveled over a large part of the territory investigating geological freaks, visited the scene and inspected the glacier's actions. He heard the tons of rock, pushed by the glacier, falling into canyons below, causing crashings audible for five miles. The mountain side has the appearance of heavy blasting operations.

Due to the tremendous pressure resulting from the slow progress across the mountain, the glacier has buckled and mammoth cracks crosswise are noticeable. The peak of the mountain being slowly disintegrated is about 3,000 feet high but composed of soft shale. Prospectors believe the whole mountain will soon crumble from the pushing of the irresistible force of the ice structure.

King of Yugo-Slavia Has Yearly Income of Million

Belgrade.—King Alexander of Yugo-Slavia is one of the highest-paid monarchs in the world, recent additions to his civil list bringing his yearly income to $1,000,000 a year.

This is forty times greater than the personal allowance made by Bulgaria to King Boris, and about five times in excess of the yearly income of King Ferdinand of Rumania. It is almost fourteen times more than the salary of the President of the United States and is probably exceeded only by the civil list of the King of England.

But out of his stipend King Alexander must maintain a huge palace at Dedinje—another at Lake Bled, near Belgrade, a villa at Biarritz in northern Slovenia, and several smaller villas. The new palace at Dedinje cost the state nearly $5,000,000, which results in the fact that Alexander is the only king who has ever built a palace for himself and lived in it before the roof was on. The young king does not afford many elaborate balls, but he has an extensive number of servants and office attendants to draw pay from the state who have begun.

Girl Rides 140 Miles on "Nonstop" Trip in Persia

Teheran, Persia.—The championship among the world's feminine horseback riders ought to go to Miss Marjorie Hyslop of Watertown, N. Y., an American girl in the Near East Relief orphanage work here.

In order to save a large group of refugees from political intrigues which threatened to deprive them of their homes, she made the nonstop trip of 140 miles on horseback, halting only to change animals. The journey was from Tabriz to Urmia, and she made the distance in 24 hours less than the weekly train requires between these same two points.

The story of her remarkable ride has just been revealed in an official report filed with the American embassy here.

College Park, Md.—Cystidiagellidia—boasting a size in inverse ratio to its name—is the germ which is carpeting the shores of the lower Chesapeake with hundreds of thousands of dead fish, says H. B. Beats Storm by Using Kite for Sea Fishing

Pacific Beach, Wash.—Joseph Phelan deep-sea fisherman, recently devised a method to defeat the heavy surf which often prevents him launching his dory at high tide. He rigged up a large box kite, to which he attached a dozen lines and baited hooks.

Flying the kite in the strong wind accompanying the turn of the tide, it carries out the lines a quarter-mile or more. An easily controlled trip or trigger releases the fishing tackle into the deep water where large cod, flounders and sea-running salmon are promptly hooked. By the time Phelan has the kite hauled back to the beach all the lines are [illegible]

HOW CONGRESSMAN HUDSON IS REGARDED IN HIS HOME CITY.

Grant M. Hudson member of congress from the sixth (Lansing) district is a useful citizen. He has reared to manhood and womanhood a family of children who reflect honor upon his name. His contributions to our civic thought and effort always have been directed toward making Lansing a better city in which to live—a more wholesome place here for men and women who are rearing families.

He is opposed in this campaign by a somewhat brilliant but erratic and apparently irresponsible young man [illegible] J. Bradford Pengelly who came to the sixth Hudson holds was elected for the ministry. He has numerous evidences of talents which have been developed by the opportunities of education. But the many well educated men who enter politics [illegible] have so well developed [illegible] character.

Some of the best men known in the state of Michigan have declared the league opposes Pengelly in Detroit politically. The candidate charges that he made a dry speech in a wet town. In explaining away what the newspapers reported of his speech he asserts that he was misquoted and misreported. That hardly can be true since virtually all the newspaper and press accounts of his speech agreed.

The truth of the matter is that Pengelly is trying to be all things to all men in his effort to reach a seat in congress. This hardly becomes a man of his vaunted high attainments.

Mr. Pengelly is a new comer to the United States. He only has been in the United States long enough to qualify for public office after the primary election. He has much to learn. One of the first things that he must know is that no public man can last long in the United States unless he meets issues squarely. He is not doing it.

He has not chosen to make a clean campaign. When he made the charge here last week that Grant Hudson was a bootlegger candidate for the sixth district he made himself ridiculous and proved his mental irresponsibility.

Congressman Hudson is more or less of a crusader for the prohibition cause. We must confess that we do not feel that such activity fits in with the duties and responsibilities of a member of congress. But he is a gentleman and in matters of right and wrong always on the side of right, a bulwark of strength and fights for any decent cause. He is our neighbor and our friend. His work in congress has been characterized by a high sense of public morality. Lansing can do nothing in honor than give him wholehearted support.—Lansing Capitol News.

WOMAN KILLED AT LANDING FIELD.

Mrs. Leona Masker, 50 years old of Saginaw was killed late Sunday afternoon when she was struck by an airplane which made an unexpected landing at the Beech and Plymouth roads. The pilot of the plane, Jack Litwak, 671 Simson avenue, Detroit, was released by the sheriff's office pending an investigation to be conducted by the coroner.

Litwak had trouble with his plane and in making a forced landing the machine struck Mrs. Masker. She was rushed to a doctor's office but died soon afterward. Her remains were taken to the Schrader Brothers' funeral parlors at Plymouth and prepared for shipment to her home in Saginaw. No blame is attached to the pilot of the plane.

Their Ideas on Matrimony

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

CHARLOTTE was not decided whether she would marry a soldier or a poet. One or the other she was determined on. Her parents, worthy but rather commonplace, Mr. and Mrs. Landers, wanted her to marry a successful business man. Soldiers and poets are picturesque, but seldom overburdened with this world's goods, and the fond parents desired, above all things, that Charlotte should be surrounded with all the comforts and little elegancies after her marriage to which she had been accustomed before it.

There were many young men of irreproachable character and good standing in Bradstreet's who might have proposed to Charlotte if she had given them any encouragement—but she didn't. This was distressing to Father and Mother Landers, but what can you do with a romancing young lady to whom the twanging of Apollo's lyre, or the clash of the sword of Mars is sweeter music than the sound of the cash register's bell? So Mr. and Mrs. Landers gave it up and took Charlotte to a winter resort where the girl was very sure she could either snare among the orange groves a poet, or lure into her net a commissioned demigod of war from the neighboring army station.

After all Mr. Landers was exceedingly well to do, so he decided to let the girl have her way. He rather hoped that the victim would be a soldier. He had an idea that poets cost more to support than soldiers; but he didn't know. Charlotte had not been in the place a week when she made her catch. And it was a poet! He was a good-looking poet, too; none of your long-haired sort with frayed collars and fringes on the bottoms of their trousers legs, but a healthy, vigorous young man who played tennis and golf, smoked and shot and stood six feet as straight as an arrow. She was introduced to him at a hop at the hotel, and the woman who did the introducing whispered: "He writes beautiful poetry." And his name was all that could be wished—it was Reginald Ridgeway. Charlotte introduced the question of poetry at once and they had a most delightful talk on that subject between the dances. The next night they took a stroll beneath the palms and palmettoes and Reggie recited to her some of his own verses. Next day he gave her a little volume of his own poetic works beautifully bound in gilded leather, and Charlotte got some of the pieces by heart and recited them to him—and this seemed to rejoice him greatly. Then one day she heard a newcomer at the hotel address him as Major.

"Why did that man call you Major?" asked Charlotte.

"Oh, it was a major during the World war," replied Reggie. "I'll show you some of the decorations I got, if you are interested in such things."

"Interested? Well, rather! And for the next two days she kept shutting him off when he tried to talk poetry and made him talk war. Could anything be more perfect? A poet and soldier! Not a regular soldier, to be sure, but still a soldier—he told Charlotte he was still in the reserve. And besides she was actually in love with him—and he, apparently, with her. She shuddered as she thought of what might have been had she yielded to her parents' wishes and married a common business man. Charlotte did not fail to express to Reggie her detestation of "tradesmen" and "business men"—whereat Reggie made no remark; from his Olympian heights of war and poetry he could afford to ignore such creatures. Then came the day at last when Reginald intimated that it was time he was getting back to New York. That night, as the full moon shed its light over sea and land and the orange blossoms flung abroad their perfumes upon the gentle winds, Reginald opened his heart to Charlotte, said a lot of poetic things and got permission to "see father." Mr. Landers received the young man with a rather mournful if resigned countenance, but after a few moments' conversation with him appeared to Charlotte all smiles and chuckles and hurried out. "Ridgeway has been to see me and it's all right. You are a sensible girl, after all. That young man has got money. I take it that the firm of Ridgeway & Ridgeway is about the biggest wholesale firm of cheesemongers on Little Old New York."

"Oh, Reginald," said Charlotte about an hour after, as she sat with her head reclining on her lover's broad shoulder, "you deceived me—I thought you were a poet and a soldier."

"So I am a poet," replied he, "and a blamed good one too—though the critics won't admit it, and as for soldiering—my record speaks for that."

"True, true," said Charlotte, "and to me you will always be my poet, my soldier. It's too bad cheese pays better than poetry—isn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied Reggie; "poetry pays pretty well since it has brought me you."

INTRODUCING
The Improved Packard Six

TODAY'S Packard Six will outperform, in traffic and in speed, any Packard car ever built with one exception.

The exception is today's Packard Eight—The Boss of the Road.

The Packard Six has long excelled in beauty, in comfort and in distinction. In simplicity and in economy. Greater than ever in all of these, it now also excels in performance.

Those who drive the improved Packard Six will let others pass as a matter of courtesy, never of necessity.

In car beauty contest or contest on the open road it will more than hold its own against any Six, or any Eight, excepting cars of racing type.

Most useful and most appreciated of all, however, will be the car's agility and ease of control in crowded traffic.

For more than six years the Packard Six has been an inspiration to engineers.

It has been the most copied car in the world, mechanically and in body lines.

Now the industry has something new to inspire it—the most brilliant performance of any Six, or any Eight, light or heavy.

If you would know the finest in motor cars permit us to demonstrate the improved Packard Six.

We give you the word of one of the oldest and most conservative companies that you will experience the greatest thrill of your motoring life.

Despite the fact that the glory of all previous Packards has been surpassed, Packard Six prices have not been increased.

You are cordially invited to ride in and drive the improved Packard Six, whether you intend to buy a new car or not.

We shall be more than repaid in seeing you get your thrill and in the story you will tell your friends.

Our next advertisement will tell of the improved Packard Eight—

Why I'm going to the Greater

MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

By Losjisin Joe

WHEN YOUTH FLAMED HIGH

Last Sunday when we were all over to my wife's cousin Cherry Whipple's for dinner, I got bantering with Cherry about our romancing together in the old days before we both got married (to somebody else) and Cherry said: "Joe, seems to me you're looking kind of old this year!" "That so," I snorts, "tell you what I'll do, Cherry, I'll take you to the State Fair in September and show you the best time of your young life. Midway, horse show, auto races and we'll have a bottle of pop all by ourselves." Course I wasn't very serious about it, but just then my wife comes up. "What's this—what's this, taking Cherry to the Fair?" "I accept," cuts in Cherry. "Joe invited me." Now I've got to take 'em both!

The President's decision followed extended conferences with the government legal authorities

Washington—The State department has refused to act on the request of the Knights of Columbus that diplomatic relations with Mexico be severed as a result of the church war

Secretary of State Kellogg, it was learned, replied that this government must still consider the Mexican religious controversy a strictly internal affair and must continue a policy of hands off

It also was learned that any action taken by the United States will be based upon Mexico's anti-alien laws which are the subject of many American protests and are again reaching a critical stage. It is this matter and not the church issue which is bringing Ambassador Sheffield back to the United States to urge a stronger Mexican policy.

The Knights of Columbus protest was presented by Supreme Knight James A Flaherty of Philadelphia. He was accompanied by Treasurer Dan J. Callahan of Washington. The protest was based on a resolution adopted at the Philadelphia convention August 8.

The resolution advocated immediate severance of diplomatic relations, lifting of the embargo on arms and a move to eradicate bolshevism next door to America."

It was said the department thus far has received none of the reports of outrages against American citizens on which the Knights of Columbus protest was based

There are several official protests already lodged with the Mexican government on the subject of her anti-alien laws. The latest was delivered last week.

Ambassador Sheffield's conferences with President Coolidge will mark the most critical point in determining the course of American policy in Mexico

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

The shipping board has decided not to offer for sale at this time the American Palmetto line, operating between southern and European ports

Regulations designed to prevent import of live stock suffering from disease have been published The regulations which affect the United States and Mexico chiefly, were drafted by representatives of the two nations

United States treasury officials, it was reported are preparing to resume negotiations with Greece for the settlement of her $15,000,000 war debt to this country. Previous negotiations were broken off about three months ago

Policewomen of the nation's capital are too rough. That was the conclusion of a police trial board, which fined two of them $25 each on charges of false arrest and rough handling brought by Mrs. Loretta Mara.

Rev. Dr. Walder Meyer, canon of the Washington cathedral, is dead at Gloucester, Mass., where he was spending the summer. A native of Washington, Doctor Meyer was a graduate of Harvard and Oxford.

Illinois Primary Law Is Held to Be Invalid

Dixon, Ill.—The Illinois primary election laws were held invalid and unconstitutional by three judges sitting en banc in the Lee Circuit court here. Their decision, if sustained by the Supreme court, will wipe out the entire system of making party nominations by direct primaries in Illinois.

The basis of the suit and of the decision is that equal representation in county conventions, and consequently in state and judicial conventions, is impossible under the existing law.

The case will go to the state Supreme court in October on an appeal by State's Attorney Mark C. Keller of Lee county. George C Dixon, country lawyer and grandson of the founder of the town of Dixon, says he is confident the Supreme court will sweep the primary laws from the statute books

Dixon's attack is the first comprehensive effort that has been made to knock out the general and legislative primary acts of 1910, successors to the nominating laws of 1905 1906 and 1908, which were nullified one by one by the Supreme court of Illinois shortly after their passage.

SUTHERLAND REUNION HELD AT SALEM.

The nineteenth annual reunion of the Southerland family was held this week at the farm home of Mr and Mrs. Judson Taylor one mile west of Salem, Washtenaw County.

After spending some time in renewing the past year and renewing old family friendships, all sat down to tables placed on the lawn

After dinner, under a beautiful tree on the lawn a business session and program was held

The meeting was called to order by the president, J. C Sutherland of Oxford.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and the treasurer gave his report

The historian read interesting letters from absent members and also reported births deaths and marriages that had taken place during the past year She paid a very beautiful tribute to the memory of Maude J. Sutherland, wife of D. C. J. Sutherland of Clarkston and read a poem written by Mrs Sutherland on the subject of "The Sutherland Reunion"

A period of silent tribute for those who have gone was held.

A very interesting history of Robert Sutherland's family was read.

As the historian, Miss Emily Freeman of Armada is 86 years old her work in preparing such treats for the reunion was much appreciated. All officers were re-elected as follows

President, J C Sutherland, Oxford; secretary, Mrs Nina Hempsted, Pontiac; treasurer, Robert Crawford, Armada; historian, Mrs Emily Freeman, Armada.

An invitation was extended by Mr and Mrs. Charles Doshon of Oxford, for the next reunion to be held at their home, which was accepted

A fine musical program was presented consisting of solos, duets, quartets and piano solos by members of the family.

Rev. Halliday of Salem gave an interesting talk as did Rev F B Cutler of Orion

HORTICULTURE IS GIVEN STRONGER FAIR CLASSES.

Michigan's horticultural interests will have revised and strengthened premium classes in the competitive events at the State Fair, September 5th to 11th

Now apportionment of the $7,000 premiums on the fruit section is expected by horticultural authorities to result in a better balance of show than has been possible in the past

Many of the old unimportant fruit varieties have been eliminated for this year's list with the premium money thus released added to the awards in the more standard varieties. This general change was made at the request of the state Horticultural society in order to emphasize the best commercial fruits for Michigan

Fruit displays for the first time recently have finally been made up for the 1926 fair, include plate classes for apples, pears, peaches, plums, and grapes with prizes of five, three and two dollars in most varieties. Exhibition tray classes, including apple and pears with prizes carrying seven dollars for first place, and five, three and one for the other places

Retail market or roadside stand displays will make up a featured exhibit, the premiums here starting at $200 for first place County exhibits from individuals or organizations will compete for more than $1,600 of prize money, $400 being up for first in this important class

An Upper Peninsula class, special sweepstakes in different sections, basket classes for grapes and other premium sections are included in the revised list, which is attracting the interest of fruit men all over the state

POTATO GROWERS TO TOUR TWO SECTION OF STATE.

A potato tour for the northern counties of the lower peninsula thru the heart of the certified seed district will be conducted August 24th and 25th under the auspices of the Michigan Potato Producers' Association, according to H C Moore extension specialist at M S C. Arrangements are being made for growers from the southern counties to attend the northern tour.

There will also be a potato tour in Oakland county August 26th and 27th, in which the Oakland County Farm Bureau, Boys' and Girls' Potato Clubs, and the Kiwanis Club of Pontiac will participate A special feature of this tour will be a visit to the Percy King farm where nearly 200 sources of seed potatoes are under observation.

Michigan has been offered $700,000 for its cement plant at Chelsea. The opponents of the present administration have been charging that the price paid for the plant, $500,000, was a great deal more than it was worth. The fact that Michigan owns and operates its own cement plant has saved the state many thousands of dollars in the purchase of cement for highway construction.

CHESAPEAKE REGION A MAGNIFIED VENICE

Section Full of Charm and Historic Interest.

Washington.—Agitation to save Fort Hunt and Fort Washington as historic sites turned attention to the lower Potomac, an historic region which seldom makes any considerable ripple in the world's news, says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"School histories tell how tobacco planters of colonial Virginia depended on rivers for transportation; and, in 1926, the lower Potomac and Chesapeake bay country still is in the river transportation stage.

"Representative of the numerous tiny steamers that carry both passengers and freight in this region is one line which plies from Washington to Baltimore. It makes a trip 360 miles by water in 63 hours, which can be covered in 45 minutes on a railroad train.

Salute to Mt. Vernon.

"The standard bay steamer is a screw propelled boat, 100 to 150 feet long. It carries one or two decks of cabins and draws from 8 to 12 feet of water.

"On its leisurely way down the Potomac on the way to Baltimore, the steamer touches history nearly every time it puts in at a landing in Maryland or Virginia. Soon after leaving Alexandria, where General Braddock landed on his way to meet the French and defeat near Pittsburgh, the steamer passes under the guns of Fort Hunt and Fort Washington. Then the passengers hear the whistle blast the traditional salute to stately Mount Vernon. Across the river is Marshall hall and in Gunston Cove is brown brick Gunston hall, manor of Washington's close friend George Mason. Pope Tobacco cannot be poached, its fresh leaves dry but Colonial Beach, on the mouth of Monroe bay, is now a summer resort. Colonial Beach is now a summer resort. Colonial Beach is now a summer resort. Wakefield, birthplace of George Washington, is within sight from the deck. [illegible] Virginia creeper vine [illegible] Angel and [illegible] gathering [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] the steamer [illegible] Northern neck is the [illegible] ridge of Presidents and Statesmen. Northern neck is the home of Washington, Lees, Monroe, Robert E. Lee, Thomas Lafitte, Richard Henry Lee, and the father of John Marshall. Near the tip of it was born James Madison.

Northern neck is the [illegible] strip of a great [illegible] piece of land between the [illegible] rivers of the Potomac and James. If you scrub the map closely you will see that this block is sliced into three major sections by tidal rivers. On the big side there are five wide river mouths on a 70 mile front separating and isolating broad headlands almost as effectively as would mountain ranges. On the opposite Maryland shore there are five headlands in 50 miles. In the Chesapeake one goes visiting in a motor boat. Light signals are more applicable than the telephone.

Rivers Too Wide to Bridge.

"There are numerous villages in tidewater Virginia that are three and four times farther from a railroad than any town in Illinois, Iowa or Ohio. Even modern auto truck service cannot help them much, because a trucker would have to spend much of his time in this large-scale rural ferries, ferrying rivers too wide to bridge economically.

"One of the most historic of the Potomac landings is St. Mary's. The steamer winds up between the narrowing banks of the St. Inigoes creek, a spoked creek mouth like all the Chesapeake bay rivers. Then as the boat makes the first turn among the crescent beaches, green fields and blotches of dark pine, a pier comes in view at the foot of a high green bank. Among the trees is the white shaft of a monument to Leonard Calvert, who founded the Palatinate of Maryland on this site in 1634. For many years St. Mary's was the capital of Maryland, and the bricks of the old statehouse are now incorporated in the close-covered Episcopal church set in the ancient graveyard.

"The charge that America is cursed by the speed of modern life cannot be made to include the Chesapeake bay country. Life there takes its pace from the soft sunny climate and the [illegible] wants at each landing waited, the arrival and departure of their 'Atlases' to the Outside World will impart serenity of spirit. Since there are no hills the tree-clotted headlands and islands and jutting piers, seem to be some peaceful and pastoral design embossed upon a limitless blue sheet of water.

"A Chesapeake bay voyager soon realizes that fine seamanship is not confined to the high seas. Taking a river steamer up the turns and twists between narrow banks and turning the 100 foot boat around in a space which appears to be 100 feet, calls for careful navigation.

"The visitor's growing conception of river traffic's importance to this region is enforced at places like Coan's Landing, which is about 200 feet from the next stop, Bundick's wharf. Yet to go by road from Coan to Bundick's is a 24-mile journey.

It Was a Good Turn

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

JESSAMY knew well the inner emotional seedings and writhings that made James Dawson so inarticulate. He had learned to propose now for all but a full year. Always she had laughed away his carefully-planned opportunities. This largely from feminine cussedness—until the era of Los Duval. Delos Duval was so entirely all he shouldn't be, naturally half the girls in Berrybrook fell for him hard.

Briefly, he was all Jimmy Dawson was not—calm, idle, a waster, inclined to boast, with a hair-trigger temper, only partly made up for by quick contritions, and lavish generosity. Add that he was good to look at, and knew how to wear everything fit for a gentleman, and it appears his captivations were not wholly without reason. Jimmy, contrariwise, wore the best of clothes, yet very ill. He was tall and broad, yet inclined to the lanky. To dance with him demanded courage bordering on heroism. Rhythm had been left wholly out of him, possibly to leave room for excess courage, chivalry and courtesy.

Jessamy's mind was made up to marry him, but not until she was good and ready. Jimmy needed a wife, almost as badly as he wanted character. All alone on that big place with a house so well stocked it simply cried aloud for a hospitable mistress. She would love queening it there—after awhile, but first she must have her fill of dancing and flirting and taking beaux from the other girls, and making busybodies gossip over her pretty, wilful ways.

Ripe Indian peaches brought the fruit season to its climax. It follows on the bustle of mass-marketing. Indian peaches are, in resort, orchard arbutus—utterly, hopeless as market proposition in that they will not travel save upon the tree, and until ripe are wholly useless even to eat. Varying in size, shape and color from [illegible] green to [illegible] they ripen [illegible] ripeness, a process until the appointed time [illegible] Magic is no word for the change. Reddish green turns to [illegible] dark tea rose in the [illegible] of [illegible]

[illegible] Northern orchardists scouted Indian plantings—some even had never heard of them at all. Why should they? Hadn't Diagonally's had enough of every [illegible] for [illegible] packing [illegible] and [illegible] going well. The Kings said it would be eight years [illegible] to cease [illegible] good nothing again. They [illegible] up the Duval idea easily [illegible] Jessamy. A good [illegible] for Delos if they were close as the bark to a tree. They were also honest as days go. Right paying 60 cents in the last penny [illegible] where there was a fraction, letting it fall in their own scale. So when Delos, lasting Indian peach seed, demanded gallons or kallons [illegible] such datames, he was told he'd have to pay extra for sugar and trouble—the fruit wouldn't cost a ruling.

Two days later he came upon Jessamy popples in her cheeks, lightning in her eyes berating poor Jimmy Dawson, right in the middle of the big road. It ran straight from Ash Lee's plantation, past Sweet Briar Jessamine's cozy place, then on to [illegible] village Delos had just left. Gay finish his own place, lay farther along, held in a sweeping bend of the road.

Jessamy and her fiance were mounted. Evidently a ride had been in prospect. As evidently a storm had checked it—by actual but emotional—Delos knew the signs.

"What's up? Who's in bad now?" he demanded gaily, checking his horse at Jessamy's elbow. She wheeled upon him, saying low and savagely: "You are—unless you send away those robbers, the Kings. I've been bred to believe a receiver as bad as a thief."

Delos sat straighter, saying low and hard. "Explain right off—"

"She shan't—I mean she mustn't," Jimmy interposed.

"But I will—you can't stop me," Jessamy cried. Before either man could speak she ran on. "Nothing but a trifle—one of those that mean everything. Hear the first of it. Five years back I gave Jimmy two Indian peach seedlings from under our best tree—we planted them together—and named them for each other—all in fun. All their fruit has been mine—they've been bearing now three years. This was the first full crop—I was going tomorrow to gather it—with Jimmy's leave and help, of course. When he got home from town at noon ago, he found both trees stripped—by the Kings, under your orders—"

"Stop!" Right there Jimmy broke in master-fully trying to put his hand over Jessamy's lips. She cut in sharply with her whip, crying through it brokenly: "Even that isn't the worst—they left word with Uncle Solomon, if he wanted pay for his fruit to send his bill to Mr. Duval—"

"Fair enough," cried Delos breaking into wild laughter. "Lord! Lord why wasn't I there to hear. Of course I'll pay—any amount you name, Dawson—"

"What?" Jessamy cried. "You dare repeat their insult to a gentleman? Go! And never dare speak to me, even to look at me, again." Delos would have protested—Jimmy's face warned him against speech—so he galloped away, but paused at the bend of the road to look back and see two figures riding hand in hand into the small distance.

Sent the Wrong Letter

By CLARISSA MACKIE

ELEANOR SMITH took the letters from the postman and distributed them among her family, just leaving the breakfast table.

"And one for me," smiled Eleanor happily, flying out of the door to read it in her own room. As she settled down among the cushions of her big chair she scanned the envelope amusedly.

"Mel was in a terrible hurry to get this off," she commented tearing it open. "He has used his business stationery, and calls me 'Miss Nelly Smith'—why such haste, young man?" opening the single sheet of paper which bore Melville Allen's embossed letter-head.

Eleanor's bright face clouded as she read the brief formal words, and when she had finished she sat there pale and still, her dark eyes puzzled and full of trouble.

"My Dear Madam:—the letter read. Your note of the third inst. is before me, and after due consideration, I have decided that the matter of your property rights should be brought before my colleague, Judge Henry Parks, who is now out of the city. Upon his return he will write to you immediately.

"Very truly yours,
MELVILLE ALLEN."

That was all—every bit of the letter he had written in reply to her warm little note reproaching him for not coming to see her—she had even suggested, playfully, that their engagement invested her with some right to a portion of his time—and she had said some very loving things about the past present and future and was his "always, Eleanor."

"And this is his answer," stuttered Eleanor suddenly breaking into a little sobbing storm. "The horrid, horrid thing! To refer me to Judge Parks—crusty old man—what does he know? I'll find out for myself, because the indignant Miss Smith proposes and her most becoming salt and pepper dress with vicious [illegible] the object of Mel Allen's [illegible] because I wrap his ring [illegible] and send him an important note. It is [illegible] Darling, I see you're [illegible] But I'll get even with [illegible] Just you wait and see!"

Another passenger was waiting for the elevator, and [illegible] daily warmup who had come [illegible] a handsome motor car [illegible] to attend the "Horse Parade." They ascended in the elevator two very [illegible] women, and it seems a coincidence that they both left the car at the eleventh floor and entered the [illegible] of Parks & Allen together, and [illegible] they ushered the other woman [illegible] Judge Parks' private office and Eleanor was led to Melville's door.

She knocked softly and in answer to his voice she turned the knob and entered, closing the door after her.

Melville, looking immaculate as usual, jumped up to greet her.

"Eleanor—you darling!" This is a surprise," he cried, then drawing back as she withheld her hand, and stood coldly aloof, "What has happened?"

"Nothing has happened except that I have received your—letter," she said with cold emphasis on every word.

Mel reddened. "I thought that was a pretty good letter."

"It was very clear," said Eleanor bringing out the missive.

"What is the matter with this letter?" he wanted to know as he pulled it out of the envelope and began to read. It is very probable that Mel discovered the trouble at once for his face changed from red to white and back again to red, his expression became grim.

"This is the wrong letter," he announced stiffly. "It is intended for one of our clients."

Eleanor looked relieved and still doubtful, but just then the door opened and Judge Parks appeared with the severe lady.

"Excuse me, Allen," said the judge after he had greeted Eleanor warmly, "Miss Nelly Smith is here complaining about some letter that you have written to her—I have explained to her that the letter was probably intended for another lady—little Miss Eleanor, here—eh?"

"Eleanor has received the note intended for Miss Nelly Smith—and she doesn't understand it," said Mel with a sickly grin.

The judge roared and Miss Nelly Smith smiled.

"It was addressed to me," faltered Eleanor, "and so I thought—"

At that moment Miss Nelly Smith put into Eleanor's hand a very fat envelope. "It made me feel quite young again, dear," she whispered. "You are a lucky girl."

As the two whispered there, the judge was poking his young partner with a pudgy forefinger. "See here, Mel, Miss Nelly has promised to marry me—yes, we're going the rest of the road together, and you've set me an example in writing love letters that I cannot follow—and at first I think she believed I had written it."

After all explanations had been made and the engagement of Miss Nelly and the judge had been formally announced, Melville and Eleanor found themselves alone. Mel held out his hands. "I've been a careless idiot, Eleanor, will you forgive me?"

Eleanor eyed him appealingly. "I've got to get out of this brambleblush," she murmured guiltily.

"Jump," he teased with a tender note in his voice.

And the "jump" landed her in Mel's arms.

Tom Was Not a Loafer

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright)

"YOU don't mean Tom Sackett from over Bayview way," queried Rodney scornfully, and even more scornfully—"That loafer!"

Alice Harlowe flushed with indignation and embarrassment—in the first place, a younger brother, not quite twenty, had no right to discuss his sister's friends in such a manner. A few minutes before as they sat, resting after a strenuous half hour together on the tennis court, Rodney had asked his sister with whom she intended going to the country club dance the following week. Alice had said as nonchalantly as she could, Mr. Sackett, and then had followed Rodney's scornful comment.

"I don't see why you call him a loafer," said Alice. "Besides, being a loafer doesn't prevent his dancing very nicely and being a perfectly charming escort."

"No," said Rodney with some excitement, "but being a loafer who never has done a lick of work in his life makes a man undesirable as a suitor of yours."

"Silly," said Alice, with big sisterly patronage. "But what makes you say Tom Sackett is a loafer? If he doesn't have any business it is doubtless because he has a lot of money. He's a keen golfer, reads everything worthwhile and knows everything anyone needs to know about farm management."

"All I know is that he hasn't a cent to his name. He borrowed money to get through college and instead of going ahead with some sort of profession or business he's just dumped himself down here on his rich old aunt who supports him in luxury, while he goes around acting like a millionaire."

"It seems to me you know quite a lot about Tom Sackett," said the sister. "But really, I'm not interested."

But Alice really was concerned. For since she had consented to go to the Manor club dance with Tom Sackett she had had several very tender letters from him and had received on numerous occasions enormous boxes of flowers fresh cut from the Sackett greenhouses.

After had no plans for the remainder of the day and could not be positive as to when home left but to go back to his house she found [illegible] to take possession of the family car for the afternoon and started forthwith on an amateur detective expedition.

She stopped to talk on the middle aged spinsters whose house stood across the highway from the Sackett estate. Who knew that no great love affair just between these genial ladies and their most opulent neighbor.

As she sat for a while with them she deftly led the conversation to the Sacketts.

"Strange that a man like Tom Sackett, said she, "should be willing to live on his aunt's bounty."

"Just waiting around till he lands his heiress," sniffed one of the hostesses. "Well, whoever gets him, is welcome to him."

"I imagine he's pleasant enough," said the other sister in an effort to soften a harsh speech, "but he does seem to be dreadful lazy."

As soon as she could politely do so Alice left and went on to the rectory, and from the rather gossipy young clergyman and his wife gathered a little more opinion of the same general tenor. Later she hailed one of her brother's friends walking along the highway and asked to give him a lift.

"Rodney was telling me about Tom Sackett," she began. "Imagine being willing to give up all idea of work just because your aunt has money."

"Yeah," quoth the young man. "Tom's a nice chap. Don't know as I blame him. Think I'd do the same if I had a chance. That's a swell place his aunt has." And that was all the satisfaction that Alice got from that source.

As she drove up the roadway that led to her own comfortable home Alice spied Tom Sackett sitting in his own—or his aunt's roadster at one side of the driveway, apparently waiting for her return. He jumped from the car and stood to help her to alight. Alice tried to be well-bred enough not to show her sentiments toward him. But the look of disappointment in Tom's handsome face showed her that something in her manner had warned him of her feeling.

He led her to a secluded spot in her own garden and there asked her to marry him. But before she could accept or refuse or put him off he explained his position.

"I borrowed money to finish college," he said; "—borrowed it from outside, because my aunt wouldn't lend it—she would have insisted on giving it. Then when I was through my aunt made me a fair proposition. She offered me a position to come and work for her for a year—to manage her estate, and the rest of the time to do just what she wanted me to. In return I was to have my keep and a certain salary. Well, I accepted because I knew she needed me and I needed the money. After I have paid back what I borrowed I shall have a thousand dollars left, which is just the capital I need to start in on that irrigation plan, my room-mate and I doped out. So, you see—"

"You are certainly not a loafer," said Alice. "And I think I would have said yes, even though you were.

Outsize in Bookworms

The accustomed serenity of the Durban public library was disturbed recently by the discovery of a giant python curled up in a corner below a case containing the Encyclopedia Britannica. How the reptile got in is a mystery. No harm was done, however the intruder allowing itself to be transferred to a sack without protest. It was 10 feet long and 9 inches in girth.

Early Protective Device

Pliny the elder, Roman naturalist and author, writing in the First century, is perhaps the first to make mention of the use of protective devices for the lungs of workers in dusty trades. He said: "Those employed in the works preparing vermilion cover their faces with a bladder skin, that they may not inhale the pernicious powder; yet they can see through the skin."

REST TENT AT ANN ARBOR FAIR.

Ann Arbor Public Health Service has volunteered to serve the women and children fair visitors in several ways. Mothers may leave their babies in the rest tent, which will be centrally located between the merchants and office buildings, thus giving the mothers a chance to enjoy the fair without having to carry their infants.

Miss Virginia Hartwell, supervisor of Ann Arbor Public Health Service, and her assistant, Mrs. Edna Franklin, and Miss Eunice Fahrn and numerous nurses in training have offered their services, thus any mother who wishes to leave her child in rest tent is assured it will be well cared for.

The committee in charge for the baby rest room will operate a free station and they say: "Any high school girl who happens to be a proper size to wear our uniform will be welcome to call for it."

DO YOU WANT TO OPERATE A FREE FARM.

United States Senator James Couzens believes in solving the farm problem at its source and as a result some enterprising young Michigan farmer has an unusual opportunity to take charge of the Senator's beautiful Wabeek farm under terms which are unique.

He will turn over the farm to the most promising young farmer I can find," Senator Couzens told The Daily Press Saturday. "I will continue to pay the taxes on it and will charge no rental. I want to see if the right sort of young man can tackle the job and make a go of it."

Wabeek used to be a dairy farm and the beautiful dairy barn, ivy covered and decorated with window boxes never fails to attract comment from visitors or passengers along the Long Lake road some five miles south of Pontiac.—Pontiac Press.

THE SHAME OF IT.

That the initiative, a thing prostituted for political and personal gain is apparent in all sections of our country. An instrument intended to be used by the people in voluntary signature, has been so abused that it no longer attracts public interest or support. Why not make it unlawful for any signatures to petitions to remove the seat of government? The San Francisco Daily News.

FORD BUILDING 100 PLANES.

Ford Motor Company is engaged on a rush order of 100 of the company's new three-engine planes, having an aggregate value of $3,700,000. Production on the first ten has already been started. Three Wright whirlwind motors, each costing $15,000 are used on each plane of the present type. Improvements would materially reduce the market price of the product.

When asked at a meeting prior to the start of the Commercial Reliability Tour last week why he did not intend to accompany one of the planes farther than St. Paul, William B. Stout, general manager of the Ford aviation division said: "Our new factory is nearly done. Five companies are pressing us for these planes. I've got to get back on the job and start construction of two of these new machines for delivery just as quickly as they can be turned out."—Michigan Manufacturer.

As a matter of public safety Northville citizens are urged to boil their drinking water.

The reservoir is being cleaned out this week and samples of water will be taken from all our sources of supply and given test to determine their condition.

In the meantime be careful. The condition is not in the least alarming but it is well to observe these suggestions—BOIL YOUR DRINKING WATER.

Later in the afternoon some of the party went fishing and about 7:30 came in with a fine string of blue gills, nearly reaching the 50 mark. At 8:30 the members started for their various homes well satisfied and with many thanks to our host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Buckley.
