THE TENTH ANNUAL FAIR THE BEST YET

Bad Weather Greatly Interfered with the Attendance—People Were Happy in Spite of the Rain and Mud—Fine Displays, Good Attractions, But it Rained and Rained.

Rain, rain, go away, come again some other day. This child's complaint was repeated by a whole lot of people who attended Northville's tenth fair last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, but the gods had but little effect upon the weather man. For the first time in the ten years of its existence the society drew a rainy check, with the result, of course, that attendance records were shattered, receipts from concessions were reduced, and many of the appointments and displays were marred by those who had labored for weeks and months in preparation of the fair. But in spite of the unfavorable conditions under which the fair was held it can be said to have been a fair of contrast to the previous ones in that the displays in all the various departments were the best ever shown. The vegetable department was crowded full, all the displays were attractively arranged and fair visitors were enthusiastic in their praise.

Rain came in on Thursday morning early and again on Friday afternoon to the detriment of the fair. The grounds were flooded, some exhibits were under water, the Baptist church room had to be abandoned Saturday and for the first time in the ten years of its existence the fair was held in a hall. The fair was held in the hall of the Northville High School, which was crowded to the limit. The fair was held in the hall of the Northville High School, which was crowded to the limit. The fair was held in the hall of the Northville High School, which was crowded to the limit.

The fair association carried rain insurance and for Thursday and Friday will receive some compensation from that source, which will help swell the gate receipts. In former years the association has made some money, but this year there will undoubtedly be a loss. Nevertheless, this set-back all premiums will be paid in full and all current bills will be met. Just as rapidly as the secretary can make out the checks. The unfortunate turn of affairs was very discouraging to Secretary Northrop who had labored so hard to make a success of the fair. The bad weather made him a lot of extra work, but he met the situation in a very creditable manner. Every officer and superintendent and director deserve the praise and commendation of the community for the service they rendered.

The club and community exhibits in the new vegetable building were very attractive this year. The Triangles Club of the Plymouth High school was awarded first premium, the Plymouth Orange second, the Canton Center Community Club third, the Dearborn Garden Club and the Brighton Junior Club fourth. The institutional exhibits in the Detroit House of Correction. For a year and a half the fair has been held in the hall of the Northville High School, which was crowded to the limit.

MASONRY HAD NOTABLE MEETING MONDAY NIGHT.

Northville Lodge, P. & A. M. held its regular meeting of Monday night, October 1st. It was an unusual business meeting, but the officers who presided over the affair of the lodge during the year of the Masonic year of 1926 were in the chairs and conferred the second degree upon four candidates.

Dinner was enjoyed at 7:30 and nearly one hundred brothers gathered to the banquet feast prepared after dinner cigars were enjoyed and at 8:30 lodge was called to order. Northville Lodge, P. & A. NO MORE MONDAY NIGHT PIC- TURES FOR NORTHVILLE.

A change of policy has been inaugurated at the Paramount-Alex Theatre of this place and in the future here will be no shows on Monday night. Each Tuesday night, there will be a western feature show, but the Monday night shows will be discontinued. For next Tuesday night, Paramount will be at the theatre and this is regarded as one of the seasons' request pictures. This picture will not be shown at Paramount.

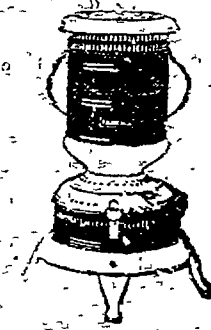

A WISE CHOICE.

The many friends of S. Haggerty in this section are pleased to learn that he was unanimously nominated for secretary of state at the republican convention held in Detroit on Tuesday. He is in every way qualified for that important office and his nomination is a worthy recognition of his service to the party in Wayne county for many years. He will make a worthy successor to Charles J. DeLoaf.

For Farm second These displays were carefully arranged and accord great credit to the attractiveness of the vegetable department, which was the best one yet.

One of the best "free acts" of the entire week was the football game between the Plymouth and Northville High schools played and the contest was witnessed by an immense crowd. Of course it rained during the progress of the game, but that did not matter. It was a happy crowd especially along the Northville lines. Northville team put up a snappy battle all through both halves and won easily to the tune of 13 to 0.

The report for the baby health clinic will be published next week. Let us hope that we shall be able to select a better week for next year.

MICHIGAN WHEAT WINS A FEELING CONTEST.

A grand batch of Michigan wheat was entered by G. P. Phillips of Hartsville of the wheat championship at the Central States Exposition at Astoria, Oregon, held in September, according to H. C. Rabe of M. S. C.

NEED CORN PROBLEM UP IN STATE AGAIN.

The problem of a shortage of good seed corn, with which Michigan farmers have wrestled for the past three years, threatens to prove serious again this season, according to H. C. Rabe, crops specialist at M. S. C.

Delayed plantings last spring and the recent prolonged siege of wet weather have delayed the maturity of the crop. Even the corn which is practically ripe contains excessive moisture and will not keep well unless every precaution is taken to dry the supply intended for seed before freezing injury or mold ruins its vitality.

THE PEDDLER.

The days when the "Frogs" is on the pumpkin" will soon be waa us; the mellow October days when the final harvest of the year are being gathered in of the farms, whose evenings are occupied by the husbandman who sits down to total up the tribute Mother Earth has rendered unto him out of her bountiful share.

But the farmer is not the only individual that looks forward to this season of the year as his harvest. There is another—the peddler—who comes into every community exclaiming his toil and helping to delay that day of real community progress. He comes smiling and smirking, bowing and scraping, and under the hypnotic spell of his blandishments many a dollar is taken out of the home that should have found its way into the coffers of the home town merchant, where better values and better service can invariably be found.

Michigan is still largely an agricultural state, and as such ready money is generally more in evidence during this period of the year than at any other time during the twelve months. That's why the tribe of doorbell ringers flourish in greater numbers now than at any other time and we want you to scan well every position they have to offer if you will save yourself many a hard hour that you have to spend at home. TRACES BULLETS

BY THEIR MARKS

Expert Says Each Tells Its Own Story.

New Haven, Conn.—Bullets which kill or wound human beings tell their own story. Often they give more evidence as to the assassin because of the marks they bear than the assassin themselves. No two bullets are alike after they are fired, each has its characteristics.
These are assertions of Merton A.
Robinson, firearms expert and ballistic engineer of the Winchester Repeating Arms company, who examined the bullets that figured in the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton (Ohio) publisher.

With increase in crime and the taking of human life, police authorities have turned to their ballistic engineer for assistance, especially where the gun is missing.

A common idea that bullets after being discharged are shapeless bits of metal is incorrect, he said. Unless disintegrated, the missile may tell its source and career by the markings upon it. In the case of the Canton bullet brought to Mr. Robinson by Coroner T. C. McQuane, the opinion was given that the guns were ordinary revolvers and not automatic pistols and that the revolvers were of certain makes.

Each of the three bullets, one taken from Mellett's head, one from woodwork of a garage near which he was killed and the third from a brick wall were weighed. They corresponded closely with the standard 158-grain weight and appearance of Smith & Wesson .38-caliber bullets. Marks on one showed left-handed rifling, a characteristic of Colt revolvers. Rifling on another revealed a rare lands-high surface, in rifling and grooves, a mark inherent to Harrington and Richardson guns.

Identification of bullets as well as recognition of bullets in other murder cases submitted to him from time to time is a part of the ballistic engineer's laboratory work. Mr. Robnson said bullets carry the peculiar characteristics of the gun from which they are fired, and no two guns are alike. Each has certain individual characteristics which can be found out by the expert.

The ballistic engineer first tries to determine the diameter of the bore of the gun the number of grooves in the rifling, the angle of the groove, the width of the groove and the direction of the twist. Then he finds the bullet is measured for diameter and weight by delicate instruments. The results are compared with laboratory records which contain samples of data about every cartridge shell and bullet, fired out in the world.

LIFE A JOURNEY - WHO IS YOUR GUIDE?

The span of life is short - 50-60-70 years. The selections of life are for centuries - eons - millenniums - eternities. Who is helping you to make right choices? Who is your guide in matters of everyday education of heart and mind?

The Hebrews were guided by a pillar of cloud and the call of the silver trumpet. The cloud lifted and they moved forward when it stopped they remained where they were.

The way of life is narrow. It goes to great depths. It rises to great heights. A guide is needed.

There is One who knows the way - who has been through the labyrinth of life - who knows where the danger spots are. He wants to help.

THE WORM TURNS.

Thursday last, was one of the greatest days of the fall for that day the Northville High although the team was somewhat crippled by the temporary loss of the players, was able to trip Plymouth to the tune of 13 to 0.

The game which was called at 1:00 o'clock was played on a wet field during a rain which continued throughout the day. Before the whistle blew for the quarter the score stood Northville 7, Plymouth 0.

In the second quarter Northville was able to hold her opponents at a safe distance from the goal line. The score for the half still stood 7-0.

In the third quarter it seemed as if Plymouth was going to score for they progressed down the field to Northville's eight yard line, but a fumble recovered by Northville man allowed them to punt out of danger.

This was Plymouth's nearest approach to the goal. The fourth quarter appeared as if about even until Charles LeFevre, the Northville center, recovered a fumble by Plymouth and ran thirty yards for a touchdown. After a few more fumbles to play the game ended. The score was 13-0 in favor of Northville.

The Spoiling of Henry

By JANE OSBORN

WHY, now days, even divorced people remain friendly after they have separated, Marjorie argued, sitting in the secluded bench in the park with Henry on her side. "I know plenty of girls who remain great friends with men they have been engaged to. I thought when I promised to marry you, that we'd find each other congenial. Now I find we aren't—that is not congenial enough to be married."

"Marjorie," said Henry, "I can't sit here and let you talk like that. It's torture, Marjorie. If you mean what you say, finally, why then—good-by, Marjorie."

"Good-by," said Marjorie. "But, Henry," she added, "you know your aunts asked me to spend a week-end with them, and I accepted. I think I shall go. I accepted because they were the aunts of a very good friend of mine—and I still want to be your friend, Henry, so I shall go."

"If you're going," said Henry, somewhat amazed, "then I shall have excuse to be away from home."

So Marjorie went to the large, old-fashioned mansion on the edge of the city where Henry made his home, with his mother, a spinster, and a childless widow—both of whom adored and always had adored their precious Henry.

Marjorie had meant to talk them at once of her broken engagement with Henry. But she found no immediate opportunity for such an announcement. After tea drinking Aunt Gloria found opportunity to get down an album containing snapshots she had taken of precious Henry from the time he had come a four-year-old orphan to live with her.

"Here is a picture of Henry on his hobby horse, and here he is before we lost his hair cut short. And here he is in his first sailor suit and here he is with his dog. I'll never forget how happy Henry was that Christmas when we gave him a dog."

Aunt Martha took up the thread of the story. She told a string of the highlights of this Christmas. Then she told these memories of his first days in school. She told Marjorie how he had quarreled with each other for opposition to the other side. The boys were so occupied.

Later they went up to Miss Gloria's room. She produced a little silver cabinet from which she took a carefully labeled packet of blue paper containing three or four short and long curls of hair.

"These were Henry's," she said, and then looking with moist eyes at the guest added, "I have them, thinking that, perhaps I ought to let you have one if you would ever think of giving me one in return."

Marjorie flushed and, remembering something that was intended to hurt, she said she had no place to keep such a treasure in reality her foot box was one of the most, almost of contempt. These women had no right to stir such sentimental feelings toward Henry in this way.

It was enough to disgust any girl—and Marjorie felt in a measure relieved that it didn't really matter what the reaction might be upon herself because she wasn't going to marry Henry anyway.

Marjorie staved her visit out, but she welcomed Monday morning with much the feeling of a convict looking forward to the day of his release. Monday night Henry would be home and there in that luxurious old house he would be the paragon nephew, the priceless Henry.

MICHIGAN IS DRY. The growing suspicion in some localities that Michigan was swinging back into the wet column was dissipated at the recent primary, when Congressman Grant M. Hudson was nominated by an overwhelming majority over Pennsylvania. of Flint, who had the endorsement, and active assistance of the wet.

Hudson's victory is all the more emphatic when it is known that his district embraces the large industrial city of Flint, as well as several townships in Wayne county.

Another indication that the state is still in the dry column is seen in the record run made by Loren D. Dickinson for lieutenant governor. By common consent Dickinson has for years represented the bone dry vote in Michigan, and the fact that he was nominated over Welsh and Knapell, who had wet support, without even making a campaign for the office shows the preponderance of dry sentiment that exists in the state, especially in the rural sections.

QUEEN MARIE of Rumania insists that she is going to leave Bucharest for a visit to the United States about October 20. She has had her hair bobbed in preparation for the trip. The Rumanian press office some time ago denied the queen was going to make the journey, but it now declares it has approved of her plan. King Ferdinand, who is ill, says nothing about it for publication. Court circles are criticizing her as a lady who is past fifty, for cutting off her golden hair.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has given his approval to the selection of Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall as the next chief of staff of the army, to succeed Maj. Gen. John L. Hines in December. General Summerall entered the war as a colonel and made a brilliant record in France, where he commanded the artillery brigades and afterward the First Division. He is considered a stern but just disciplinarian highly respected by his subordinates for his forcefulness and his ability to get things done.

ONLY PRIZE-WINNERS COME TO DAIRY SHOW. Kings and queens of dairy land, blue ribbon winners at state and sectional fairs throughout the United States and Canada, will compete at the "court of last resort" for the premier dairy honors of the world when the National Dairy Exposition opens at the Michigan State Fair grounds on October 6th.

When entries closed on September 15th, fifteen hundred of the world's leading dairy cattle from twenty states, were registered. They comprise the greatest dairy herd ever assembled, according to J. E. Bennett, superintendent of cattle exhibits.

Grade-cattle classes are receiving considerable emphasis this year. Nearly $5,000 in premiums is given, which compares very favorably with the pure bred cattle awards. All cows must be sired by pure bred bulls and the sire's name and number given with the entry. Individual and group awards are made.

The National Dairy Association encourages the development of grade herds because in a great many cases the association realizes that the grade cow opens up the avenue to profitable dairy production.
