NORTHVILLE'S HANDSOME NEW BANK BUILDING WAS OPENED SATURDAY

A GREAT MANY PEOPLE VISITED THE NEW BANKING OFFICES DURING THE DAY AND EVENING—A CREDIT TO ITS BUILDERS AND THE COMMUNITY—MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES PRESENTED.

The new banking offices of the Northville State Savings Bank were formally opened to the public last Saturday, and during the day and evening nearly 2,000 persons visited the new building and viewed with great pleasure and pride its spaciousness and beauty. The visitors were cordially received by the officers and directors of the bank, and were shown through the entire building from the president's desk to the directors' room, and from the marble check desks to the main cash room, lock safe, the door of which weighs seven tons. And every visitor was delighted with the new structure, and they rejoiced with its builders because of its substantiality and completeness. A close inspection of the building and its equipment revealed nothing that had been left unprovided for or incomplete, and every citizen of this community can well feel proud of the completed structure. It is a distinct credit to its builders and reflects the growth and prosperity of this section to a marked degree. But few towns can boast of a more modern or complete banking building, and the officers and directors of the institution are to be congratulated upon their enterprise and vision for having erected in Northville this splendid structure which will stand as a monument to their wise planning and to the manner in which the affairs of the bank have been conducted during all the years of its existence.

A great many handsome floral tributes were presented to the officers and directors during the day, and the spacious lobby resembled a great conservatory with its huge baskets of fairest blooms. They came from private citizens and from local and neighboring banking institutions, and bore their messages of heart and good wishes and congratulation.

only to completion. The complete contract for the designing, building and equipping was awarded to Bond-Hubbard Company of Chicago, and the work has been carried on under the very capable supervision of Anton Klaeser, as superintendent for the company.

Upon entering the building, one is impressed with the beautiful well-lighted, airy and commodious bank room. The room is lighted with large front windows, reaching nearly to the ceiling, and a large skylight glazed with soft-tinted, light-diffusing art glass, so there is not a dark spot in the banking room. The ceiling, which is twenty-two feet high, is ornamented with plaster beams and a cornice extends around the entire room. The walls and ceiling have pilaster and panel treatments. The entire room is beautifully decorated with harmonizing tints that set off the American wainscoting and the rich marble work. The specially designed lighting fixtures and full length drapes further enrich this beautiful banking room.

Entrance to the main lobby is through a large vestibule into the public lobby. This is of ample size to accommodate the business of the bank and to provide for future growth. It is one of the very attractive features of the building. Besides its beautiful decorations and drapery, it has a combination of marble, bronze, etched plate glass, and American banking fixtures that cannot be excelled.

The height of the fixtures to a height of three feet above the floor level, so that there is no glare with the use of the fixtures and a well lighted lobby. The marble also forms a waist of the lobby and the lobby and vestibule floor are also of

To the ladies visiting the new building during the day, roses were given and the gentlemen were treated to cigars and a number of baskets of choice apples were also handed out to the admiring throngs which passed in and out of the building during the entire day and evening.

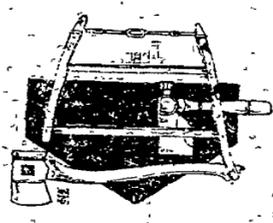

The new building is situated on the site of the old structure on Main street. The front is old Col. Springs pale pink granite with polished base columns, pilasters and doorways. This is probably the only bank in Michigan with a full granite front. The style of architecture is Doric. The front door is of copper, and the name of the bank is in bronze letters. This combination of materials and architecture makes one of the most imposing and artistic bank buildings in the country. The bank may well be proud of this new home. It is a credit to its owners, to the community in which it is built, and to the contractors who designed and carried out its erection.

Active work was started about April 1st, and has been carried on continu-

Tennessee marble blocks. Two check desks and a marble seat are provided for the use of customers.

Above the ledge on the fixtures is the main bank counter screen of American walnut, with bronze wickets, and etched plate glass filling the openings of the screen. Behind the main screen is a twenty-four inch counter, covered with battleship linoleum with plenty of drawers and cupboard space below. A very large work space back of the main banking fixtures gives ample room for the employees of the bank. The floor of this working space is covered with gray Jasper floor covering, similar to battleship linoleum and is very easy and noiseless. At the front, as one enters the main lobby, is the "offices" space. This low rail space makes the active head of the bank easily accessible to the public. At the rear of the lobby are the entrance to the mezzanine floor, stairway, the customer's room and the coupon booth. The coupon booth is for the use of safe deposit box customers; the large well-lighted cus-

WOLVERINES LOST LAST SUNDAY

In a fast game, hard fought throughout, the Wolverines lost to the fast Park Clothes team from Highland Park.

The fast backs of the visiting team gained persistently on their end runs featured by their wonderful interference. The Wolverines showed very good fighting spirit, holding the visitors to one touchdown in the first three-quarters of the game, and forcing them back on three different occasions when they were within fifteen yards of their goal. On one occasion they had the ball on the Wolverine's one-foot line but the boys met their smash in the middle of the line with such force that the visitors' line carrier and all were thrown back for a yard and the Wolverine's recovering the ball and pushing to safety.

The visitors were secured on the breaks in the game. In the second quarter they recovered at the line and ran the ball to the Wolverine's yard line. After failing to cross the line for yards they ran the ball around the end for a touchdown in the last quarter they intercepted a forward pass and made another touchdown, making the final score 14 to 0, in favor of the visiting team.

The Park Clothes team has been undefeated for three years and were state champions in their class two years ago.

BLESSING OF WATERS AN ANCIENT CUSTOM

English Ceremony Dates Back to Days of Romans.

London.—Large numbers of invalids and convalescents come every year to the noted medicinal springs at Buxton, in Derbyshire, England, where the blessing of the waters was recently celebrated. This blessing of the waters is accompanied by the ceremony of well-dressing, an ancient practice common all over Derbyshire, which certainly goes back to the Roman period.

The Romans were very skilled in finding healing waters, and it is quite possible that the tradition of their celebration of the festival continued the festival of the springs, may have lingered on after they left Britain.

The custom of blessing the waters in Derbyshire is said to be in the Mediterranean area, and in the Balkans. It is performed regularly by the Greek church over the waters of the Eosphoras in Rumania at Bucharest and it was an important part of such Russian spring ritual.

May Pledge Roman Days.

It is possible, however, that in Britain it goes much farther back than Roman times. Holy wells are common in Britain and in the west and they are very frequent in Ireland. If they have any personal association it is usually with some saint, but there is no doubt that this saint is a pagan deity or spirit which has been Christianized.

Offerings are still made at these wells to obtain the fulfillment of a wish, and it is common to find pins and other small objects lying at the bottom of the well or spring, where rags and bits of ribbon or lace are to be seen fastened to bushes growing around or near the well.

The well dressing practiced annually at Buxton and in other parts of Derbyshire is now elaborate now that it is performed under the patronage of the church and the municipal authorities. Elaborate processions are conducted in a colored array of dresses, ribbons and flower petals represent some ribbon is cut with a knife and the words of Scripture are recited with the legend "Give us a well which was one of the springs of the world."

Elk Leads Man to Safety After 5 Days in Forest

Port Angeles, Wash.—Lost for five days in the Olympic mountain wilderness, without food or shelter, W. B. Wilson, sixty-five, is safe, through the graces of a bull elk which led him finally within sight of civilization. Hungry, tired, clothing torn by rocks and countless falls in a network of salt brush he tramped wearily along. His only companion the "elk" kept within thirty feet of him, apparently unafraid, going to frighten away cougars and wolves at night.

In final sleep the fourth night Wilson dreamed of his family and awoke to write his wife of the stock of the company. The next day following the loss of the elk, he stumbled into a valley known as "The Forest of Famous Men." Here he read of the name Roosevelt and that of "Harding" which forestry officials had united up. This was a half mile from a highway and a tavern. The elk then left Wilson, seemingly satisfied with his escort work.

SOCIETY TO AID CRIPPLED CHILDREN SEEKS MEMBERS

About five years ago a group of business and professional men, charitably for their own success in life, and desirous of showing their gratitude in a practical way, became inspired with the idea of doing something for the unfortunate children at the University of Michigan hospital. The first step was to organize a society to aid the children who were suffering from various forms of physical defects. The society has since that time been working for the benefit of these children, and has been successful in many ways. It has secured the services of a physician, and has been able to provide for the medical and surgical needs of these children. It has also been able to provide for the educational needs of these children, and has been able to provide for the social and recreational needs of these children. The society is now seeking members to help it in its work.

At any rate from this beginning has grown the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, an organization which has done wonders toward helping the lot of many of these little ones. For with proper care the majority of these seemingly hopeless cripples are able to become self-sufficient citizens. It has also done much in providing recreational facilities, working in conjunction with the Rotary Club, and the Y. M. C. A.

The society is now seeking members to help it in its work. It is a non-profit organization, and its work is entirely for the benefit of the children. It is a very interesting and profitable work, and it is a very important one. It is a work that is worth the time and money of every person who is interested in the welfare of the children. It is a work that is worth the time and money of every person who is interested in the welfare of the children. Northville School Notes

On Thursday, November 4th, the Freshmen and Sophomores had a debate. The members of the Freshmen team were Marjorie Schoultz, Foster Van Atta, James Haff. The subject was "Resolved, that the government shall own the coal mines." The Sophomores won the debate. One day last week, the Eighth grade history class listened to Webster's reply to Haman, and Washington's Farewell Address. One of the pupils asked, "Did Washington and Webster dictate their speeches for the 'Victory Talking Machine'?" Miss Lyke's division of the Seventh grade English is having monthly spelling contests. The losing team must treat the winners. As a result, the "Queens" gave the "Queen Reds" a party Tuesday afternoon. Miss Marsden's division of the Seventh and Eighth grade English classes have been working on a school play.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES

The attendance at all services last Sunday was above the average. The church Sunday-school. The pastor appreciates the many compliments he received on the Sunday evening sermon, but knows some of the members of the church.

Our young people's society which meets every Sunday at 6:30 is growing in interest, but not as fast in attendance as it should. Whose fault is this? Next Sunday morning, the pastor's subject will be "What a King Said Was Good for Him," and the subject of the evening sermon will be "Excuses." The last part of this sermon will be illustrated with organ music.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES

Hutchinson says, "If any religion is to command itself to the people of another world, it must have distinctive elements of eternal value, which they will not find in the ordinary Christian religion." The church is now seeking members to help it in its work.

On Sunday evening, at 8:00 in important meeting of the voting members of the congregation will be held in the church. Every member who has the welfare of his church at heart should make it a point to be there on time.

These lectures are a fine opportunity for Lutherans to rehearse the teachings of their church, and for non-Lutherans to become acquainted with the doctrinal position of the Lutheran church. WHAT JOB WILL YOU TACKLE AT EIGHTY FIVE?

What ventures of faith will you make as the years come along? You will have some answer to this challenge of the future. Experience should have its contribution to your result getting ability and there is certainly room for all the work you can possibly do. When it came to dividing the new land of Canaan among the twelve tribes of Israel Caleb, eighty years old, asked for toughest section for his allotment. He chose Hebron—the hill country—the dwelling place of the Anakim or giants—as his spot for pioneering. These giants had put a scare into ten of that famous committee who were sent out to look Canaan over. Caleb—the optimist—the cool headed planner—the common sense worker was not afraid of failure. He did not THINK he was going to lose. He saw his goal and made for it. Caleb obeyed God fully. The record of his life shows what he gained by this handling of his line. We of today have the chance to show our faith—obedience—love.

Each part of him deserves equal care and development, but too often the soul is neglected, although it is the only part of him that lives forever.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Babbitt gave a very enjoyable dancing party to about fifty of their friends at the library, Wednesday evening.

Professor J. Henry Smith has been engaged as music instructor in the Northville schools, devoting two afternoons each week to the teaching of vocal and instrumental music. Mr. Smith's well known ability as a teacher insures the best possible work for benefit of the pupils.

Mrs. Bert Stark was called to Adrian this week on account of the illness of her mother.

Charlie Blackburn and Fred Smith have returned from the "Kiddie" regions and will spend the winter in Northville. Before leaving they enjoyed the novelty of a sleigh ride.

FRUIT MEN WILL HOLD ANNUAL STATE MEETING

Horticultural leaders of the state will meet at Grand Rapids, November 30th to December 3rd, for discussion of the problems of the fruit growing industry at the fifty-sixth annual meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural society.

The forty-third annual meeting of the American Pomological society will be held in conjunction with the Horticultural society meeting. This will be the first meeting in 41 years of the Pomological organization to be held in Michigan. Charles A. Garfield of Grand Rapids was secretary of the Pomological society at the time of their last meeting in the state. Mr. Garfield, who is now over 80 years of age, will be one of the speakers on the program this year.

Cash prizes will be offered to the best in the state show, in addition to special premiums offered by many of the exhibitors. The program will be a most interesting one and will include a number of addresses by prominent horticulturists. The meeting will be held at the Grand Rapids Hotel, and will be one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

THEATRE'S INFLUENCE ON FERRIS

The Gloria Gavito will remain for a short season at the Grand Theatre, Detroit, where it has met with much enthusiasm among theatre-goers.

"A Last Castle in the Air" has forsaken Chicago, where it ran for 47 straight weeks at the Olympic Theatre. With Donald Brian, Roy Cropper and Virginia O'Brien, at the head of the Chicago organization, this enormous musical comedy success has established itself at the Lafayette Theatre, Detroit.

Seldom a week passes without somebody or other telling you that more flies can be caught with molasses than vinegar. It is the same philosophy that dominates the theme of the new play, "Applesauce," which will be next week's offering by the Bonstelle Company at the Bonstelle Playhouse, for two weeks beginning Monday, November 15th.

FERRY FIELD PASSES INTO HISTORY

When the pistol was fired at the conclusion of the football game between Wisconsin and Michigan at Ferry Field, last Saturday afternoon, the proud history of that famous and popular playing field came to a happy close. It was the last home game of the season for Michigan, and consequently, was the last game to be played there. Next fall the new stadium will be completed in time for the football season.

When football was first introduced at Michigan the games were played on the old fair grounds and were attended by a few hundred people. Last Saturday's game was witnessed by upwards of 70,000 fans and many were unable to obtain tickets.

Michigan will play Ohio State at Columbus Saturday, and Minnesota at Minneapolis, a week from Saturday.

As We Thought

A New York man has invented a hat which is secured to the head by means of suction. Judging by the films, the American detective has always worn this sort of hat; he is the only man who doesn't uncover when the body is found. London, Ontario.

The Resources of Diplomacy

By H. IRVING KING

ISRAEL VANDERBURG and Philip Scarsdale, were highly respectable gentlemen of good financial standing. They cherished a thorough detestation of each other. It had sprung from a trifling disagreement ten years before and had reached its present proportions.

Israel had a daughter, Gladys, and Philip had a son, Thomas; and the loving couple were so far from putting any of the paternal animosities that they considered each other about as nearly perfect as it is given to mortals to be. Both parents got wind of the fact and determined to do their utmost upon the subject to their respective children.

"I had an awful row with dad about you," said Gladys one evening to Tom when they met upon the neutral ground of one of Mrs. Stuyvesant-Mungrove's dinner dances.

"Having them often than usual lately?" inquired Tom.

"Yes, I think so," replied Gladys, "and I'm tired of them. Yet I'm awfully fond of dad, too."

"I had a bit of a row with the governor, myself, yesterday about you," replied Tom. "The governor said an old tramp in other respects but when it comes to the question of getting married he's the limit. What say, Gladys, let's go off and get married anyway. Neither of our respected parents shows any symptoms of recovering from what ails them."

Gladys was silent and thoughtful for fifty two minutes—then she said:

"We are going to be married, of course—that is settled. But it would be so much nicer if we could do so with the consent of our parents. Before we take the step I think we should exhaust all the resources of diplomacy. It sounds humorous, I know, but the easiest way to rule a man is through his pet chickens. Now you just listen to me—and she proceeded to formulate a plan of attack."

"I'll go to Mr. Scarsdale's office and talk to him first next morning. I'll go to get the thing off the ground. I'll go to the office of that old thief, Israel Vanderburg."

A New Silk Dress — for only 17¢

"I quit wearing this dress weeks ago thinking it could not be cleaned. A neighbor told me about a wonderful dry cleaning soap called Solvite so I tried it on this dress and here it is, bright as new, and the whole thing cost only seventeen cents."

Solvite is an amazing new kind of dry cleaning soap. Dissolve it in gasoline and you can save many dollars by dry cleaning dresses, suits, coats, gloves, uppers, curtains, everything that would be ruined by ordinary soap and water. Get a large jar of Solvite from any drug store. It never becomes yellow or sticky. It is the only dry cleaning soap that is safe for all fabrics.

SOLVITE

Entanglement

BY CLARISSA MACKIE

"WHERE are you going?" asked Mr. Freer in his comfortable chair in the dining room. "To the church and to the office," Bob is coming tonight and I am going across the garden to meet him. Do you object, father?" "Yes, in a way, he is coming on a business trip, too. He is bringing out some bonds from the office. I had to rush off without them and he said he was coming out anyway. I would like to bring the bonds first, before anything happens to them. After that—"

"I suppose there is danger—he will be alone," said Mrs. Freer, looking up. "None at all—none at all," reassured her husband, and both women felt easier about Robert Blair, who was manager of Mr. Freer's office, and future husband of Mr. Freer's daughter. "That was at eight o'clock—an hour passed and Robert did not come."

"The nine-ten is in, I will ring up and inquire if anyone has seen him, get off the train, were isn't another one until the midnight," said Mr. Freer, going to the telephone.

"After a while he returned to his wife and daughter. "No," he said heavily. "No passengers came in on the nine-ten evening Joe Laan."

"You must be sure that he started for Blye before you begin to worry about him," said practical Mrs. Freer. "I am sure he started," said Lena. "You know, father, that if Bob says he will do a thing, he does it—it is business first with him, isn't it?"

"It always has been," observed Mr. Freer cautiously. "How much were the bonds worth?" asked his wife.

"About sixty thousand dollars." "They came into Lena's brown eyes. "Oh, father, you speak as though there must be a suspicion that Robert had been tempted by the value of the bonds and—"

"There, there, dear, I don't suspect Robert, only it's reasonable, after your conduct of all nights he should have missed coming on time."

"I thought you were going to telephone again," prompted Mrs. Freer. "I am— you know his office number, don't you?" Lena gave out, and also the name of the large where Robert Freer had his car.

Lena listened in agonized suspense as her father telephoned. She finally told her that something had happened to her lover.

"Let the house lat seven thirty?" repeated Mr. Freer on the telephone. "And told you he was coming down here for the evening? You I see, then the car was waiting at the garage at eight o'clock, and I drove down here to bring you, Mrs. Smith, he has probably had a blowup or something." He hung up and faced them for the first time exhibiting real concern.

"Robert left his boarding house at seven thirty in his car," told Mrs. Smith that he was coming to Blye and to bring him up here if any danger to see him. Somewhere, he was in town and late."

Lena had run out of the room, and they heard the screen door slam as she went out.

"Poor child, she is frightened about him. Horace, you don't think for a moment that Robert would—"

"Of course not—something has happened to him. She's either had an accident or been held up."

"If it had been an accident, so he one would have telephoned by this time."

"That's so. I'll get the car out and run back along the road. I'll take Lena with me."

"When the car was ready Lena could not be found. "She must be out in the grounds somewhere."

The Freer place was the old homestead that had belonged to Mr. Freer's family for generations. The grounds were extensive and occupied several acres in what was now a suburban town. There were two entrances—the front one, and then the garden entrance on the side street. The garden gate led through the beautiful modern gardens, and also the old-fashioned garden that had survived for 70 years. The garden gate was always locked, but Robert had a key. When Lena went out she fled to the scene of so many happy hours, the rose garden. Here Robert had proposed to her, and here they often met for a few minutes together when he came down to Blye.

"Something has happened—I can hear some one calling," exclaimed Mr. Freer. "Lena!"

"It is from the rose garden—two voices, a man's and another. I recognized Lena's call—getting she has found him."

The Freers went running. Lena came to meet them.

"Father—mother—he is here—I am going to get James and Martha to help."

The Freers stared at the sight before them. The famous rose garden was plainly visible and caught in the very midst of the well-known maze of rose bushes was Robert Blair, hatless, disheveled.

"I had a bad cold and couldn't call very loud," he whispered when at last the men had slashed a path to the heart of the maze and had freed him.

"What happened?" asked Mr. Freer. "I was waiting for the bonds, but they didn't come. I was waiting for the bonds, but they didn't come. I was waiting for the bonds, but they didn't come."

WHEELERS START ON FORD'S

The dam will be a great thing. The tremendous volume of water it will contain will make the electricity that will run the great fabric mill to be built immediately.

Approximately $3,000,000 will be required for the construction of the building and the construction of the building depends on the time for their electric power.

FORD ROADSTER BREAKS RECORDS

On September 15th, Cannonball Baker in a Ford roadster presented himself before Mayor Dorsey of Perth Amboy, New Jersey, who obligingly seated the Ford in high gear. Cannonball previously removed the top and reverse gears from the transmission.

On September 20th five days, five hours and twenty minutes he made the trip in at the Western Union Telegraph office at 108 Argyle street. Driver 3266 miles without relief at the wheel.

Eleven days, four and three-quarters hours were thereby clipped from the best previous record, time for an "all high gear" transmission race (previously held by a six cylinder car). Two days, thirteen and three-quarter hours were removed from the best coast-to-coast time ever made by one driver, unrelieved, which ever the motor cycle record for the same run was beaten by sixteen hours. In other words 127.500,000 is the fastest time ever made by one man in one kind of motor. The daily average was more than 613 miles at the fuel rate over the entire trip was one and one-tenth cents a mile.

BEEF QUALITY TESTED IN M. S. C. FEED LOTS

Is there a good reason for the fact that "heifer beef" brings a lower price than steers when the farmer contains a shipment to market? An answer to this question is being sought in a special beef production experiment being carried on in the feed lots at the Michigan State College, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the college cooperating in the tests.

The almost universal custom of a "row" or "scale" for beefers on the new market has come under fire and criticism at M. S. C. are out to prove the right or wrong of the practice. Complete scientific data will be kept all through the experiment, ending in a careful chemical analysis of the meat after the animals are finally slaughtered.

Thirty head of calves which lay on feed were separated into lots according to sex, and their lots into sections in various rooms used in the test. The analysis when the beef is dressed out will show the difference between the three rationed and cattle men are not to be especially anxious to determine whether or not such a system affects the quality of the meat.

The calves, ready, Shorthorn and Angus, were purchased on the Chicago market according to Prof. G. A. Buchanan, of the M. S. C. Animal Husbandry department, who is conducting the experiment.

SEEKS "LOST LEAD" FOR HALF CENTURY

Taylor One of Last of Old-Time Prospectors.

Hillsboro, N. M.—After 50 years of search for a "lost lead" or "red ore" said to have assayed $2,000 gold to the ton, Manuel Taylor, aged but active American-Mexican, who says he is a descendant of Gen. Zachary Taylor, still pokes about this section of the Southwest with two burros, confident that he yet will "strike" or "hit" his life and the fortune that goes with it. His life and the fortune that goes with it stamp him as one of the last of the picturesque type—the old-west gold prospector.

Taylor now is going out a living and saving toward some more grubstake by prospecting and placer mining near Gold Dust, N. M., with a primitive machine he calls "the poor man's concentrator." But he is reputed to have mined on a vast scale at various times in his life and to have made at least six big mineral strikes and spent as many fortunes.

For instance, in 1906-07, when an epidemic of influenza struck this part of the country, Taylor is credited with having bought 150 coffins and paid the funeral expenses of as many of the poor of his community. Early in the '20's an Indian friend told young Taylor he could lead him to "best much gold." They ventured into the mountains country. They reached a spot from where the Red skin pointed to a streak of red earth, much like brick dust and grained drab.

"Here beap much gold!" Taylor was disappointed to see no trace of gold in it. He was then ignorant of metallurgy. However, he wrapped some of the stuff in a handkerchief and threw it into one of his pack bags. They returned to Silver City, N. M.

One day, months later, Taylor was cleaning his legs and found some of the red dust. He rubbed it between his palms he suddenly noticed many particles of fine gold, appearing in the coarsest grains broke up. He went to an assayer to learn the dust assayed $2,000 gold to the ton. In the meantime his Indian guide had died. And for 20 years Taylor has failed to locate the treasure spot.

Bouncing Radio Wave Gives Military Secrecy. San Pedro, Calif.—Development of a radio system for naval communication which eliminates the danger of interception of signals and which has value in commercial work was announced here by Maj. Francis E. Pierce, radio officer of the United States marine corps.

Tests have demonstrated, he said, that a device invented by him is capable of transmitting radio signals so that they can be ricocheted over intervening spaces. In one test a ship transmitted radio signals to a distant ship while a vessel which steamed between the two was unable to pick up the signal.

The Borrowed Shoes

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"(Copy right.) "DO think you might" Felicia whined. "Seeing you're not going nor even invited, besides, the shoes are too long for you." "All which, though, true, has nothing to do with the case," Sandy retorted. "But her nose, very high. I would have been invited but for you. He you told the Clark I didn't dance."

"Felicia cried weakly, her voice betraying terror. "All I said was your mother never wanted you to dance." "But not a word that she died five years back, and told me at the very last how sorry she was she'd been so hard and narrow. Poor dear. She couldn't help it, an orphan ward in your family, that thought wickedness into every pleasant thing, and ate up half she had, after eating up all their own. Finding them out I do believe hurt her worse than being so plundered."

Sandy burst out, sparks in her eyes. "But we're wasting breath that can be better spent. Mine is saying you shall wear my Luck-satin pumps—now, nor ever—burn 'em up first." Sandy's neighbor, Alexandra Semmes, was very private secretary to Banker Lawrence, going in and out eight miles daily by help of the trolley. She loved to dance better than to dream of marriage. Prince Charming, and she often allowed things by a neighbor's radio, in the back of her big room with all the windows wide, if she had said so, folks would have looked askance—even without that they were given to saying behind the hand how queer she was. How very queer. Yet, oddly, she was better liked than Felicia, who by influence, not generally named out loud—being a Christianist of political—fed in public postures, speaking always the most money in the lead word.

In their small parlour, Sandy had looked her neighbor, now that they were riding to town, a single, and then she had said as usual, "The affair of the dance and the shoes was private—she happened to wear the shoes to go to a party at a friend's house. Sandy had written a letter to her, but she had not written a letter to her. "Too long, I know, but Sandy had to say and say, they deserve to be so on your best friend."

That went to the party in her lower shoes, and then in a fit of pique, to be sure, but her shoes were too long by their slipping up. But that didn't hurt her, so much as the fact that they slipped up and down the middle, which meant putting on new pairs in place of them. Three dollars was an awful price to pay, and for nothing with all the best partners. Sandy should pay much more than that—she would know the reason why she had been so busy to cultivate Mrs. Lawrence, who was as good as she was beautiful, and gentle to the edge of intellect. Privately she was hearing of course told regretfully—the tale of Sandy's wickedness. Did Mrs. Lawrence feel it right to have her husband subjected to such influences? Mrs. Lawrence sighed deeply, blue-eyes and said vaguely she trusted Elbridge as she did her dog. But next week Felicia danced for joy—for Sandy's desk in the bank had a new occupant—and Sandy herself had vanished.

Also and further, Mrs. Lawrence had been more than a tad-raking (let's in her ear all about the country, on her speaking tours Sandy wasn't mentioned.

So time, nibbling with her, brought another holiday imminent. Felicia somehow felt that the feast would mark a climax in her affairs. Banker Lawrence had said rather pointedly that there needed to be changes in "city affairs." She had never managed to get really acquainted with him—but his wife's kindness, pure than any up for that. Of course they might ask her to the holiday dinner—Mrs. Lawrence had spoken vaguely of a possible absence. But nothing was settled—it was a happy, hopeful Felicia that breezed into the country offices bright but not too early the Monday morning of Day week. She found the men there twittering the women zapping. The friendliest of them fought with the unfriendliest to tell the news. Willard Lawrence, sole heir to the banker, was telephoning home a wife—and who should that wife be but Sandy Semmes.

"Luck! Pure blind, bull luck! Nothing else. Son Willard had a scientific complex—a very robust one—he had tried his eyes till blindness threatened just when there was required, the most accurate, the most accurate. The most tedious calculation for which his father had chosen Sandy, sending them away to a sea-de, home where, in a darkened room young Willard could listen to the results. Sandy read him. Outside, a noted mathematician checked them—and found never a flaw. She had made the tedious job a labor of love—in result, she had won the love of her employer. They had been married a month, with full parental approval—of course she'd never go back to the bank—but think of her queening it here at the Lawrence house. Felicia wanted to hear no more. Instead she made haste to write her resignation, and an invitation to visit in distant town—and there to decide that her "city" state and county gave better hope for her abilities—a decision she was challenged by those she left behind.

Requires Constant Publicity

In former days goods were expected to sell themselves. Oftentimes they were carried from door to door. Otherwise, they were displayed on the shelves and counters of the merchant. The public was supposed to know of these sources of supply and depend on themselves for the knowledge of what was to be sold. Modern business could neither have been created nor can it be maintained on any such system. It constantly requires publicity. It is not enough that goods are made a demand for them must also be made. It is on this foundation of enlarging production through the demands created by advertising that very much of the success of the American industrial system rests.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE IN PEDDLERS.

When this newspaper waits around the peddler, we do not wish to be considered as indulging our own lowly, periodic fastidiousness, the peddler, who may wish to peddle a business that necessitates a long time to make. Neither should we be so kind to the man who wishes to peddle his products in the remotest of places. The people who are peddling their goods are not the same as the peddler who is peddling his goods. The peddler who is peddling his goods is not the same as the peddler who is peddling his goods. The peddler who is peddling his goods is not the same as the peddler who is peddling his goods.

THREE HOUR SERVICE ON THE D. U. R.

Three hour service is now in operation on the D. U. R. lines running out of Northville. The first car out of Northville for Redford and Detroit now leaves at 4:16, and makes the trip every three hours during the day. The next car to leave for Wayne now departs at 7:05, while the last car to leave Wayne for Northville leaves at 5:03. These cars also run on the three-hour schedule throughout the day. This is not very good service, to be sure, but there is not a great deal of travel over the lines either.

ANN ARBOR MAN HEADS LEGION

William Toumey of Ann Arbor, District Association of the American Legion was elected president of the Second District Association of the American Legion at its convention in Jackson, last week Thursday. A. C. Simpson, also of Ann Arbor, was elected secretary. Approximately fifty delegates from Jackson, Washtenaw, Lenawee, Monroe and Wayne counties were present at the district meetings of the Legion and its auxiliary.

Whyain They Differed

"What's the matter with Grumble and his wife? I hear there is talk of separation." "He's a fundamentalist, and she's a modernist, and they always are scrapping over who is right." "I didn't know they were so interested in church doctrines." "Oh, it has nothing to do with the church. He thinks it takes skeletons pots and pans, flour and such things to get a meal, while she is just as sure that it doesn't take anything but a coarser."—C. C. and F. F. Hughes.

Railroads Use Trees

Railroads use about 1,000,000 new wood ties every year. There are 2,000 ties under every mile of track. We have to cut 5,000,000 trees every year to maintain telephone and telegraph wires, says the American Tree Association of Washington. You know the size of the telegraph pole, and you know that it has taken the tree that provided it a long time to grow.

FINDS OCEAN FLOOR SHIFTED OFF ALASKA

Sponges and Coral Discovered in Warm Current.

Seattle, Wash.—Discovery of tropical sponges and coral growths on the ocean floor off the southeastern Alaska coast has convinced Capt. Charles S. Huckins, veteran deep-sea diver of Seattle, that the climate of Alaska has undergone a marked change within the last year. Captain Huckins' theory is that there has been a violent disturbance in the Gulf of Alaska, probably of a volcanic nature, possibly caused by a series of earthquake shocks which has diverted warm currents of water into new channels. Earlier this year Captain Huckins wore thick, heavy woolen clothing under his diving suit while exploring that mysterious world below the surface of the sea. In the season just closed he wore much lighter clothing and discarded mittens altogether.

Means Record Mild Winter. The increase in the temperature of the water set Captain Huckins to thinking. Then came the discovery of the sponges and coral and the conclusion that southeastern Alaska's seas are, despite its northern latitude, probably will enjoy the mildest winter in its history. Every summer Captain Huckins goes north to survey underwater locations for the big wire-walled traps in which the fish canneries capture salmon. He also repairs the breaks in these traps. He works in depths ranging from 70 to 120 feet day after day and has an opportunity to explore the bottom of the ocean such as is given to few men.

It was in Yes Bay, not far from Ketchikan, center of the fishing industry, that Captain Huckins first saw sponges. Plooding along in his lead-lined diving suit, 100 feet below the surface, he saw a "beautiful red flower."

"The color of the marine plant first attracted my attention," said Captain Huckins. "From a stalk about three and a half feet long and resembling a Myrica cactus in some respects, blood red fleshy appendages were growing. I picked several of them to show my companion on the surface. Upon close examination he looked so much like a sponge that I brought some down to Seattle. Here it proved that indeed they were sponges."

"I was not alone in making this discovery," said Captain Huckins. "I was accompanied by a diver named John, who was with me when I discovered the sponges. He also saw them and was very much interested. He told me that he had seen similar plants in other parts of the Gulf of Alaska. This was the first time I had ever seen them."

Wolf Fish Dangerous Foe. "The wolf fish is a very dangerous creature," said Captain Huckins. "It looks like a shark but is much larger. It is about six feet long and weighs about 100 pounds. It is very voracious and will eat anything that it can get its mouth on. This was the first one I had ever seen."

"I looked at the wolf fish and he looked at me. If he had attacked me I never would have seen the surface again. He remained motionless for minutes, and I slowly backed away and then promptly gave the signal which brought me to the surface and safety."

Deep-sea diving is hazardous, to say the least. Sometimes a devilish creature will come out of a cavern and bite his tentacles around my legs. Then I wield my knife. Mud sharks are another enemy or divers. Giant ling cods, with mouths fourteen inches wide and three rows of teeth like carpet tacks, frequently show fight. "My leaden shoes are covered with marks made by these teeth. Of course the real danger lies in the chance that your diving suit may be punctured. That would mean a watery grave."

Identify Police Dog as Milk Bottle Thief

Mywauggee—A handsome police dog was arrested here and identified as the "milk bottle thief" who has been the despair of housewives. The animal languished today in a prisoner in the kennels of the Wisconsin Humane society. For many weeks women of one section of the city have dashed out to the back porch for the morning milk to be disappointed. MB men were concerned and dairy companies flooded with complaints. Then the other morning a woman dashed out of the back window just as the milk arrived. The dog turned his head, grasped the bottle in his teeth and leaped away. The woman gave officers information that led to the dog's capture. Under a box were a dozen empty milk bottles. The dog pattered them from porches together at the caps until they were loosened and then lapped up the milk as it flowed out.

Still Gushing

FARMINGTON MAN SENT TO JACKSON.

Isaac Weinberg of Farmington township stood before Judge F. L. Covert, Monday afternoon, to receive sentence for violating the prohibition law. The court had warned him on a previous appearance that the next time he would be sent to prison. He drew from one to two years in Jackson with recommendation he serve the minimum.

GREAT YEARS IN THE NATION'S HISTORY.

Interesting things have happened in 1926. Commander Byrd in a Fokker triplane, circled the North Pole. Photographs taken in Europe were transmitted on radio waves to America and published in newspapers a few hours later. Gertrude Ederle, daughter of a New York butcher, swam the English Channel one hour faster than any of the five men who had swum it before her.

Is anything interesting going to happen in 1927? For one thing the Youth's Companion will celebrate its hundredth birthday. During 1927 the Companion will contain more interesting reading than ever before during its century of successful life. Consider what you will get for $2.00: 52 issues containing 9 book-length serials, 200 short stories by the most popular authors, more than 100 special articles, a weekly section for ingenious boys, called the "Y. C. Lab" in thorough girls' department, and 52 pages for children. Also in each issue, an extensive survey of current events, making it easy for you to follow the affairs of this busy world.

Sunday.

But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and the Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly. For your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.—Matt. 6:6, 8.

Monday.

How excellent is Thy loving kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of Thy wings. They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of Thy house; and Thou shalt make them drink of the river of Thy pleasures.—Ps. 36:7, 8.

Tuesday.

Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die.—John 11:25.

Wednesday.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.—Ps. 23:1, 6.

Thursday.

For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten son; that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

Friday.

Better is a dry morsel, and quietness therewith, than an house full of sacrifices with strife.—Prov. 17:1.

Saturday.

Thou art a God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness.—Neh. 9:17.

NOTTOWITTE'S NEW BANK BUILDING OPENED LAST SATURDAY

ers' room at the rear as for the use of customers and the public at large for conversations, etc. The stairway leads to the large, cheerful directors' room on the mezzanine floor. On this floor are wardrobes, a toilet, and other conveniences, and a storage room for the bank's supplies. At the rear of the main lobby, in full view of all is the large vault. This vault is eight by fifteen feet inside, and is built of concrete with walls, floor and roof eighteen inches thick, reinforced with chrome steel bars, placed six inches apart, in both directions, with a special hardening concrete mixture. The vault is protected by a huge seven-inch "cast-iron" door of the latest Diebold construction. The locking system of the door is controlled by a triple time lock. Across the inside of the vault is a metal plated grill, with gravity gate, dividing the bank's cash vault from the safe deposit box department. This arrangement of the vault gives safe deposit box customers the same protection for their valuable papers, etc., as is given the bank for its cash and securities. The building is provided with a full plumbing and ventilating system. The heating is supplied by a vapor vacuum system controlled by a kerosene oil burner guaranteed to heat the building to 72 degrees in the coldest winter weather. Jewell Blitch & McCordle had the contract for the plumbing and heating, and W. T. Jones applied the electrical equipment.

AUTO THIEVES WERE BUSY SATURDAY NIGHT

Automobile thieves were pretty active in this section last Saturday night. S. B. Stevens' Ford touring car was stolen from its parking place on South Center Street and was to be seen parked in the rear of the Park Hotel. A two-door Ford coach was stolen from the Spaulding Hill Saratoga grounds and driven away and stripped of everything. The thieves abandoned the car on the back road, after they had removed everything they could take away.

BROWNELL COOK GIVEN THIRTY DAYS TO LEAVE NORTHVILLE

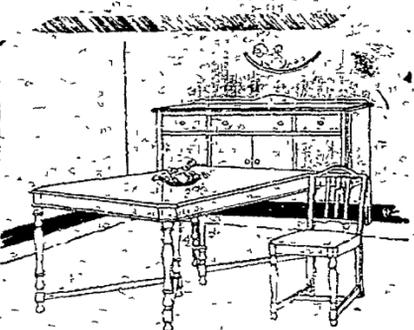

Brownell Cook, against whom the officers had several charges for selling booze at his home on South Wing street, was arraigned in circuit court last Friday. He pleaded guilty to the charges against him and in passing sentence Judge Dingeman gave him thirty days to leave Northville, with the positive assurance that unless he did so he would be sent where he could not get back for some time. The judge told Cook, he was a common nuisance out here and that nobody wanted him to remain in this community. Cook promised to move but he must report to the court on that day and give assurance that he has moved from this section.

This is a case of good riddance to bad rubbish, and the members of the sheriff's staff and local officers are to be commended for their efforts to drive the trouble from Northville.

The 28th annual convention of the Michigan State Osteopathic Association was held at the Book Cadillac Hotel, Detroit, Wednesday and Thursday, November 3 and 4, over 120 Osteopathic physicians and surgeons from all parts of the state attending. The president Dr. Beatrice N. Phillips of Kalamazoo presided at all sessions.

Read the special announcement in behalf of crippled children which appears in today's Record over the signature of R. A. Brooks. Plan to attend today's meeting at the Hotel Statler if possible, but if you cannot go, make your plans to contribute liberally toward the membership drive to be made here the week of November 22nd.
