A pleasant and interesting feature at the Northville Woman's club on Friday last, was the presence of Mrs. W. H. Cattermole of Ypsilanti. Although a non-resident of Northville for several years, Mrs. Cattermole has retained her active membership in the club.

Mrs. M. H. Sloan gave an exceedingly clever and convincing talk on "The Changing Status of Chinese Women." China has long been isolated, said Mrs. Sloan, and the status of women in any country cannot be greater than the nation itself.

It looks as though Brighton was a little behind in this respect. - Brighton Argus.

HOLLY MAN KILLED INSTANTLY. Hugh R. Belford of Holly, road maintenance man on the section of the Holly-Tipton road to the county line north and east on the Oxfordville road to the Dixie highway, was struck by the Pere Marquette northbound passenger train at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning and instantly killed. HAVE YOU BOUGHT YOUR CHRISTMAS SEALS? Officially recognized by the United States Government, the fact that today tuberculosis is yielding to the persistent onslaughts made against it in which the national state and all tuberculosis associations have been successfully united, declared Dr. Richard M. Gill in an interview given last night. A knowledge of the symptoms of the disease and of the methods used for its cure have been almost universally disseminated through these seals.

It has been found that the tuberculosis bacteria that one inhales are against all others in the body, and that comes only with growing good health. The tuberculosis group have turned themselves into a program of health teaching as one of the best means of preventing tuberculosis. They combat tuberculosis by promoting health.

The penny Christmas seals, bearing the device of the double-barred cross, have financed the work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated groups. To all of us is given an opportunity through the purchase of these seals to share in the combat against disease and the promotion of health.

OAKLAND COUNTY PEOPLE RESPONDING GENEROUSLY.

The residents of the various townships in Oakland county are responding to the message of health the tuberculosis Christmas seal carries by buying them and using them on their letters and packages that are being mailed each day by the thousands.

The returns for the sale of Christmas seals have passed the $3,000 mark the committee has reported, and by this early response the association feels confident that the budget for Oakland county will be raised to be used in prevention and educational work.

Three hundred letters of appreciation of the work done by the association the past year have been received at the office of the executive secretary since December 1st, and in many of these letters this expression was used: "We are glad to do our bit in helping to stamp out tuberculosis" and in eleven letters: "We feel honored to be on the mailing list of your association."

Fifteen schools in the county have sold their quota of seals and have asked for more to dispose of. The children appreciate the preventive work being done for them, and in selling the Christmas seals they are broadcasting the message, All for Health and Health for All. From sources that have never before responded money has come this year, and many have entertained new thoughts and sympathies for their friends suffering from tuberculosis.

CLAIMS BUILDING CODE VIOLATED AT WALLED LAKE

Building of an enclosed porch on a house at Walled Lake nearer than 24 feet of the front lot line, was held to be a violation of the building restrictions by Judge Glenn C. Gillespie in circuit court, Friday, in the case of James J. Case and others against Earle D. Riley and others. The court made permanent an injunction directed to Riley, prohibiting him from continuing work on the porch and ordering him to remove the porch to behind the 25 foot line as soon as possible. Peiron & McGee appeared for the plaintiffs, and Patterson & Patterson for the defendants.—Pontiac Press.

LEAWEE TO BUILD FAIR GROUND ROADS

The Leawee County Fair association has decided upon extensive improvements upon the grounds, which were almost ruined by a heavy three-day rain at the annual exhibition held this fall. Officials have decided upon the construction of almost eight miles of gravelled roads and a complete system of drainage. If weather conditions are favorable, the improvements will be started immediately. The action of the county supervisors in appropriating nearly $4,000 for the association made the improvements possible.

WIXOM MAN FOUND DEAD IN HIS AUTO

Newton W. Spermerhorn, 71 years old, resident of Wixom for the last fifteen years, died suddenly Thursday at the wheel of his automobile. Death is believed to have been caused by heart disease.

Funeral services were held Monday (12:30 p. m.) with burial in the East Osceola county cemetery.

Mr. Spermerhorn had been at a Wixom store to trade just prior to his death. He cranked his automobile, stepped into the car and dropped over the wheels.

His wife and five children survive, including three sons and two daughters, besides four grandchildren.—Pontiac Press.

NAVIGABLE STREAMS ARE OPENED TO FISHERMAN

The state supreme court handed down a decision on Wednesday that will make Northville fishermen, in common with all others in the state, satisfied. The decision rules that navigable streams are open to all sportsmen, and is a victory for the Quail-Walton League. The case was brought on appeal from the Cadillac circuit, and resulted in a reversal of the finding of the lower court. Justice McDonald, who wrote the decision, said:

"It is immaterial who owns the soil in the navigable river. The trust remains. From the beginning the title was impressed with this trust for the preservation of the public right of fishing. Pine river is navigable. In its waters the people have the common right of fishing."

Plans have been approved by the Wayne county board of supervisors for the new county jail, bonds for which were voted in November. It is expected bids will be received for the erection of the new building in February, and that work will start in the early spring. The new structure will be six stories in height, and will be a very imposing looking building, modern in every detail.

On Christmas Morn

by Katherine Edelman

THE miracle is wrought again,
The Lamb of God is born,
And angels sing the song of peace
Above the earth this morn.
And echoing round the whole wide world
Their voices fill the air
And bring new hope and faith and love
To mankind everywhere.

In every heart there wakes anew
Sweet yearnings and desires,
In every home new cheer is born
Around the Christmas fires.

All hate and doubt and fear have fled,
All bitterness and greed,
Our joy is now to give and serve,
To fill another's need.

O would that Christmas peace and love
And all its hope and cheer
Could live within our hearts and souls
Through every day and year.

WAYNE LEADS STATE IN ROAD WORK
The proportion of a dollar spent on the Wayne county highways for maintenance and construction, as compared to the similar utility of highway tax appropriations in other states, was recently announced by Edward M. Hines, chairman of the Wayne county road commission. In Wayne county, 71 cents of every dollar appropriated are spent towards new construction, 6.4 cents go towards maintenance, 8.3 cents are used for bond payments, 7.7 cents of the dollar are spent for administration, 4.3 cents provide equipment and machinery while the remaining 2.3 cents of the dollar are accredited to miscellaneous. Other states are found to spend 62.9 cents for every dollar appropriated for their roads for new construction, 17.3 cents for maintenance, 6.4 cents for bonds, 4.8 cents of the dollar for administration, 3.3 cents for equipment and machinery, and 5.3 cents for miscellaneous expenditures. Thus, Wayne county receives 8.1 cents more for new road construction than other counties and other states. Detroit Motor News.

HARTLAND TO HAVE NEW $25,000 LIBRARY
The will of the late J. B. Crouse of Cleveland, remembered his boyhood home in Hartland, and left a nice bequest for a public library. The Tremaine family added to the amount until there is $25,000 available. Friends of the families and the village of Hartland, with the consolidated school district, have worked the matter out, and plans have been prepared for the erection of a building 10x50 feet in size, two stories and basement. It will stand just north of the consolidated school building, and be in symmetry with that building. Contractor Arthur Joy of Howell, has the job, and ground was broken this Wednesday morning for its erection. Howell Republican.

CHRISTMAS OFFER HE DID NOT ACCEPT

GERALD HENRY, who was passing the winter in one of the small countries of southeastern Europe, had only to express the desire to meet some of the young ladies of the capital city when he was immediately invited to a Christmas party given ostensibly for the children, but in reality to make an impression on him. The entire family was there with all their relatives, and thirty children with their parents. A gorgeous Christmas tree had been prepared with decorations from America and imported presents for all the guests.

When Gerald arrived he was ushered into the grand salon, and seated on a divan with Marietta, the daughter of the house. A score of other mothers passed jewelry forgeries to their noses and followed every move he made. Soon it was suggested that he and Marietta step into the garden slope. The air was heavy with the fragrance of tropical flowers; a fountain splashed in its marble basin, and below, the town was like a fairy city in the fading light.

"How beautiful," exclaimed Gerald. To which Marietta replied in her broken English: "Did you say that I am beautiful?"

He turned and looked at her. No under no circumstances could she be termed beautiful unless, at two hundred pound, debauche is beautiful. He led her carefully back to the house.

After a sumptuous dinner, during which the fortunes never ceased to concentrate on Gerald, he was again led aside, but this time by Marietta's brother, who said: "You know you are a lucky chap. My family will be willing to give you Marietta for a wife with a dowry of a thousand dollars as a dowry. Or, perhaps, he added, we could give a little more."

Poor Gerald never knew what he had done, nor how he left the house. All his friends were sure he did the proper thing that night as he strolled alone along the brilliant promenade and listened to the orchestra between the trees; his thoughts turned westward toward to an old-fashioned New England Christmas with driving snow, jingling bells, fuddy cheeks, cheery voices, holly and mistletoe, and girls who married for love and not position.—H. Lucius Cook.

"ONE GIFT" XMAS

"LOYALTY in Love, Law and Law," is the Christ was parcel Jack Reed mailed to himself. It is the only gift he expects to receive, and it will serve him every day in the year. Ever since the advent of the parcel, he has been busy with one affection, but before Christmas time.

It is, truthfully, necessary and wise to invest in gifts in order to bring out the best of the gift in the gift. The gift of Life's Lessons is the only word package in a strong box of courage, wrapped in the will power, bound with perseverance and patience. It was sent in the post office by my friend, building, where it will be delivered to me by a thinking postmaster. Loyalty to God who is Love to myself who is Love to my neighbor as well as all other nations—Law will require all the Power Postage that one mortal can collect.

But Jack Reed feels that he would be unfair to himself, and to others if he mailed this gift to anyone else, when he really is in need of it. He is with loyal anticipation that Jack will open the Christmas package so appropriate to his needs for every day, and thank The Giver of All Gifts at this Yuletide—the Giver of Love, Life and Law. Jack said as several club members searched their heads as though trying to discover what the contents of the package were that

These New Draperies Cost Me Only 35¢

I was about to discard them when my friend told me of a wonderful cleaning soap called Solvite which she said would make them just like new and save me the cost of another pair. They look new to everyone who sees them, but they really cost me only thirty-five cents.

There is no easier way of saving five or ten dollars than by dry cleaning these fabrics around the home which would be ruined by ordinary soap and water. Solvite is the wonder-working cleaning soap, dissolved in gasoline, kerosene and brought through closed windows and cracks and brought like new. Save many dollars by investing a few cents in Solvite at any drug store.

Christmas for Adults

By Mary Graham Bonner

HERE wasn't a single child in the family now and Christmas, they all agreed, was a time for children. At any rate they all said that.

They had scattered as families, sometimes two, and those left in the town were two older families. Yes, it was quite true. There wasn't a single child in the family now.

They themselves would be sensible. They would not give presents to each other. They were grown-up. Why should they go in for something that was distinctly a possession of childhood?

They would have Christmas dinner together. That they had finally decided they could not forego. Oh, the other thing was very sensible, and they all agreed, but—well, it was quite sensible. Children belonged to Christmas, Christmas to children. Let it remain that way.

The family who lived down by the old mill were having the Christmas dinner. The other family were coming to it and were going to bring the turkey and the plum puddings as their part of the Christmas feast. They wanted to do something about a Christmas dinner—there wasn't any special reason for it, but they wanted to do something.

The table was set the night before. There wasn't much to do Christmas morning. Later they would go to church and then begin the turkey dinner. The table was set for the turkey dinner.

But there was a bit in between. The turkey dinner was the main event. The turkey dinner was the main event.

But none of them could quite bring to mind that Christmas presents were something which were opened when there was a certain eager excitement and pleasure in one's own gifts and in the gifts of others.

No one said a word. No one knew what each other was thinking. But early that morning one of the members of the family down by the mill telephoned the other family and asked them to come down early.

"I just fixed up one or two little things," said the one who had telephoned, a little shyly, and to her own family she said the same.

They came. Every one gathered about the old table that had been brought out for Christmas. It was a shaky old table, but it somehow seemed to be a part of Christmas. And in no time it was covered with gifts. Every one had surreptitiously been taking up little presents for each other.

And the table groaned under its weight of packages, tied with gay old ribbons and tissue paper as of yore.

But we agreed we wouldn't give any Christmas presents to each other this year," they murmured from time to time.

"We said we wouldn't have a Christmas celebration now that we were all grown-up."

"Christmas, we said, was entirely a day for children."

Yes, so they had said. But so deep in was the Christmas celebration around the shaky old table, before the big fireplace, roofed in the heart of each, that they couldn't in spite of their resolves do any differently.

"I think," one of them said when every present had been opened and examined.

And how proudly they said to their friends as they met after church. "You must come in and see our presents. We got lovely things. Just what we wanted!"

Christmas wisdom. A foolish man is one who doesn't know what his wife wants, so he goes and gets it—probably a clothes wringer.

A wise man knows his wife needs a pair of arctic, but has wit enough to buy her double-decker jade earrings!—Martha Beatrix Thomas.

Middleton. Middleton when not suspended is regarded by the superstitious as a harbinger of bad luck.—London Tit-Bits.

GRANNY GILLMORE'S CHRISTMAS GIFTS

GRANNY GILLMORE lived close to the little town of Tower. She was almost eighty, but was still able to get around pretty well.

Many reverses had come to Granny in her day, but through all of them she had managed to keep a cheerful, smiling face, and back of that a cheerful heart, too.

She owned a small farm near town and managed to get from it enough of the necessities of life, but few of its luxuries.

But Granny Gillmore was not the type who set much store on luxuries.

She had her romantic turn of mind, too, and loved to listen to the old woman as she told of her girlhood and how she was wooed and won by Grandfather Gillmore.

It was only when Christmas came that Granny Gillmore wished that she had more of the material things of life. She would so like to give freely, generously, largely, as she had done all the long ago when things were different with her.

Every Christmas, however, she did give something. Six lovely plump chickens that were raised on the little farm went to the neediest families in town.

And she made it a point no matter how cold the weather, to drive in with Margaret and deliver them personally. And in each home, in addition to the gift she brought she left some of the love and cheer that was in her heart.

Now she and Margaret had delivered the packages, made the few purchases they needed and were making ready for the homeward journey. Then fate stepped in to change things a bit.

Granny slipped as she was stepping into the old-fashioned buggy. Margaret picked her up, frightened beyond measure. Granny insisted that she was not hurt, but Margaret would have it that they must see the doctor before leaving town.

Still insisting that she was not hurt, Granny allowed herself to be led to the doctor's office. Doctor Stuart was away, but his assistant, Doctor Andrews, examined Granny very carefully. But he could find no hurt. It was just as Granny had said—a bit of jam done.

However, the visit to Doctor Andrews turned out to be a rather long one. Doctor Andrews was very interested in Granny. He had been hearing about her through the two years he had spent at Tower and his heart went out to the poor, old, feeble old woman.

But later events proved that it went out more completely to her pretty young granddaughter, for when the following Christmas came, Granny was preparing for a big wedding feast.

Rather an expedition.

Christmas Trees, Their High Cost

The car was full, beautifully full, almost to the splintering of the ceiling screened up above. They were proud and happy.

Until stopped. At sight of the constable the driver threw up his hands. "All broke," he called facetiously. "Speed fine, trespass fine, and taking some worthless shooting fine. All gone. But what now?"

The owner of the adjoining estate stepped forward. "Come here, Burleson," he said to his gardener. "Look over the trees in this car and tell what they cost."

The man singled the car, and then looked at a notebook in his hand. "Golden fir, rare," he said. "Paid $15."

"Saw," expostulated the man at the wheel. "I won't stand for that! I can buy Christmas trees on the public market for fifty cents to two dollars."

"These are rare trees, stolen from a private estate," sternly "Go on."

"Two English holly, with berries $20; pyramidal box, $10; six small yews, $20. That's all, except limbs chopped off."

Seventy-five and the limbs car hundred. Well, this is the sentence. Three hours work for each of you, and collateral left for the balance.

More Value than the Price Suggests

In the year just drawing to a close the price of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars was materially lowered.

Yet during this period more important improvements were incorporated than in any year in Dodge Brothers history. Advances were made in engineering and body designs. The cars possess a greater degree of smoothness, silence and ease. They are more comfortable, more beautiful.

Current prices—made possible, of course, by constantly mounting sales—are therefore not an obvious measure of value. Prices, in fact, have never told the full story of Dodge Brothers dependability and basic worth.

But now, more than ever before, there is far more value than the price suggests.

O-o-o- Dere He Is Now

his Christmas Dream

by WALTER MARGUSS

NATHAN BERGER knew that the people of Hempstead despised him, and he returned their feelings with interest. It was not altruism, he reasoned, that made them frown when he seized the property of some impoverished individual to liquidate an honest debt. It was nothing more than their envy of his wealth. If the idiots were so careless as to become insolvent, they must be prepared to take the consequences.

Berger never smiled. His appearance betrayed the general estimate of his character.

"This long, sour face was stiffer and more glaring than usual as he took the attorney across the desk. The lawyer shook his head and ventured a bit of advice.

"If you don't mind my saying so, you'd better get out of this town. It's a bad place for you. You're a bad man, and you're a bad lawyer. You're a bad man and a bad lawyer."

"If you don't mind my saying so, you'd better get out of this town. It's a bad place for you. You're a bad man, and you're a bad lawyer. You're a bad man and a bad lawyer."

like a man. He was in the street, shouting down the street. He was shouting down the street. He was shouting down the street.

Berger went to the window and peered out from behind the curtains. There was a mob. A mob of men in the thick shadows. Something bright glinted in the light from the street lamps. "Get back!"

Berger shrank back from the window, white with his fright. He placed at the telephone, he must summon help. But, God! He had ordered the instrument disconnected after a row with the operator. He was always having rows with somebody.

Isolated. He was cut off from the world. A mob howled before his door. A mob with tar and feathers. And he was alone with his wealth. He laughed insanely, then shrieked aloud. A band burst into tune before the house.

Nathan Berger slowly came back to consciousness. He was lying on his back. He was lying on his back. He was lying on his back.

AUNT LIZZIE ANN'S CHRISTMAS LETTER

Now Aunt Lizzie Ann had only written for Christmas, the family agreed as they sat around the big fire that blazed upon the open hearth, everything would have been just perfect. As it was, things were awfully nice and everyone was having such a good time, but Aunt Lizzie Ann's Christmas letter had failed to come—the first miss since they all remembered—and its absence cast a little cloud over them, as they would to hide it.

Aunt Lizzie Ann had always written the dearest Christmas letter—gifts she had none to send since Uncle Ed died several years ago—but always there had been that wonderful letter that breathed so deep the very spirit of Christmas that it had almost become a part of the very time itself for the Dermott family. And although none of the family had yet framed the thought that Aunt Lizzie Ann must be ill, or something dreadful must have happened, it lay heavy upon them all.

So when George announced that he was going down to the telegraph office to wire they all agreed that it was the best thing to do.

A soft, powdery snow was falling as he opened the door to step without. He had been gone only a short time when a shout from him brought them all to the doorway. And there, with the snowflakes falling around her, was the dearest little old lady, laden with bundles, which George tried in vain to help her with.

"It's Aunt Lizzie Ann," they all cried in unison. And sure enough it was Aunt Lizzie Ann, coming this far herself instead of sending her usual letter, and she had the dearest and loveliest gifts for them all.

And when the excitement of her coming had died down and they all sat around the blazing logs again, Aunt Lizzie Ann explained how she had been able to come. Uncle Ed had taken out an employment policy for her several years ago; it had now matured and she was free to do the things she had wanted to do so long.

"You have been going to me for so many years," she said, "it makes me feel real good to be able to make some return at last."

But the family missed her in all sincerity that it was the best thing to do.

THE "SANTA SACK" GAME FOR KIDDIES

SANTA CLAUS is a real problem to some mothers. Shall their children be told the truth about Santa Claus, or shall they think of him as pulling down the chimney with reindeer and sleigh? This, too, may help some mother who is puzzled over this question.

Does our little folks were old enough to understand about the existence of Santa Claus, whenever we saw a picture of the jolly old man, we called him "Santa" or "Squint" or "Santa," because he looked happy. And he looked happy because he was good and kind to everyone. So when the children quarreled or pouted we would try to have them smile and look jolly, like Santa, whose picture we had among others we referred to, as moral or myth pictures.

As the children grew to understand more fully the meaning of the Christmas story we played a game, "Santa Sack," which meant that if they allowed each other or their playmates to play with their toys or gave them of their apples or cookies, they were playing Santa Claus, because Santa Claus was unselfish and divided whatever he had from his sack.

Sometimes when their playmates came, we would say, "You'll want to play 'Santa Sack,' and away they would skip to distribute their toys like Santa. They delighted to play and be called Santa when they ran errands, smiled or did something kind.

"Santa was a make-believe creature, as characters in poems which we read to them, such as 'The Raggedy Man,' 'Children's Hour,' 'Jack Sprate,' 'Hiawatha,' 'Anröne' who gave a gift at any time of year, was a Santa. And whenever Santa Claus distributed gifts at school or at any public place, they were delighted that someone was playing Santa as they played 'bear,' 'doctor' or 'teacher' in the home with their little friends. For anyone who is unselfish and cheerful is to them a Santa Claus to someone else.

As they grew older the Santa sack was woven into a lesson story with the thought that each of us has something in smiles, kind words and deeds, to give to another all the time. For the great Santa gave much—all he had—from his sack of treasures in Bethlehem long ago. So Santa Claus means unselfishness, cheerfulness, kindness—many things that are worth while to our children. —Gertrude Walton.

Toys Best for Children

"Manipulation" toys are best for children between the ages of two and four; "dramatic" playthings best between four and six; and "construction" playthings, such as radio, outfits, games or toys that teach the simpler branches of exact sciences and those which exercise and train the hands and brain in a somewhat advanced way are best. —George Brewell Moran.

On Building

He that alters an old house is tied as a translation to the original and is confined to the fancy of the first builder. Such a man were unwise to pull down good old building to erect, perchance, worse new. But those that raise a new house from the ground are blamelessly if they make it not handsome, seeing to their method and confusion are both at a rate.—Thomas Fuller (1642)

Owned White House Site

Davy Burnes, a Scotchman, owned a farm where the White House and monument now stand. Washington had considerable difficulty in persuading Burnes to sell, and the latter insisted on a proviso that the site of his own cottage should not be taken and that no lots should be sold for private buildings in the vicinity.

Dr. Bruce Douglas, superintendent of Spring Hill Sanatorium, gave a very interesting address before the Rotary Club on Monday, in which he urged the advisability of people striving to keep well, to have themselves "checked over" occasionally by a reputable physician, so that if any physical defects or ailments appear, they can be treated in time. The adoption of such a plan would very often detect some ailment which is frequently not discovered until too late.

THE SONG OF THE CHRISTMAS SEAL

I'm just a little sticker,
Sticking round,
For a chance to get there quicker,
Where I'm bound.
I don't know where I'm going—
That is true—
I have no means of knowing—
Say, have you?
But put me on a letter,
Which you should,
And I'll get there quicker, better,
And do good.
For we must work together,
In all kinds of road and weather—
That's the plan—
To help the sick and weary,
On to healthy life and cheer,
Where we can. — Paul Mason.

PRESIDENT'S BUDGET UP TO $4,014,571,124

Will Require $16,543,728 More for 1927-1928 Than in Current Year.

Washington, Dec. 17.—The United States will require $16,543,728 more to conduct its federal business in the fiscal year of 1927-28 than in the current fiscal year, according to the annual budget estimates submitted to congress by President Coolidge.

The budget calls for total appropriations of $4,014,571,124. The increase is especially accounted for by large provisions for civil and Spanish American war veterans, voted at the summer session; larger appropriations for operating the veterans' medical and hospital services.

Largely offsetting these increases, however, are cuts in estimates, including $30,000,000 in interest on public debt, account $3,230,275 in navy expenses, and $1,100,012 less for the treasury.

Important in the budgetary program is the inauguration of the five-year aviation program for both army and navy, approved by congress at its last session. In this connection a total of $57,400,000 will be expended in national defense over the period.

For maintenance of prohibitions enforcement, $30,000,000 is proposed. In wielding the knife for economy the president slashed with effects on both naval and air estimates. He asked congress to shelve completion of the remaining three of eight light cruisers to have been started before July, 1927, and also made no provision for the two rigid airships authorized by congress to be built at a cost of $8,000,000 prior to July 1, 1928.

The proposed "hold over" for these projects, the President explained, was "advisable in view of the fact that the United States was negotiating with other nations to extend existing treaties for friendly relations and to obtain disarmament."

Expenditure with $399,000,000 all-metal dirigible now being constructed, is recommended by the President before building larger craft of the same type.

Total appropriations for Navy and War departments are given as $870,579,922, provided for a naval and military strength of 610 all ranks, including 122,000 of the $77,773,350 asked for addition of the navy and navy, 200,000 is proposed to be devoted to the construction of new planes.

The navy budget is $478,515,000, including $100,000 surplus carried over from the 1925-26 fiscal year, and reported in the current year. The navy department estimate is for $478,515,000, more than for the current year's estimate.

It is reported in the House that the President's budget estimate for the current year is "a budget that will be a guide to the nation's future."

The budget also calls for a 10 percent increase in the amount to be collected on a permanent footing as to other some permanent policy in this regard.

In reply to the question of the cost of the present program, the President's budget estimate for the current year is $2,400,000, for new costs and general expenses, $2,750,000 more is required for the budget for the current year, $1,100,000 for the Post Office department, and $1,000,000 for the Department of Commerce.

Although the President followed the recommendation of the last congress in authorizing $75,000,000 for road construction in all parts of the country, he recommended that this amount be reduced substantially for the next budget.

Mr. Coolidge emphasized that "the will of the people" would be followed in enforcing the Volstead act.

In considering the question of further tax reductions there are many factors to consider. In the last five fiscal years the treasury has had the benefit of receipts aggregating $970,000,000 representing returns from income taxes, therefore expended in the United States and in addition there has been received $300,000,000 from income taxes for last year in excess of funds. In the current fiscal year net income from these items represents $250,000,000 of anticipated receipts. They are not at an end and in the fiscal year of 1928 it is estimated the net return from this source will be $300,000,000.

This means we have come to the point where we must rely entirely upon the future for current taxes and the yield from current taxes levied by the federal government is measured by the prosperity of the American people. Under these conditions the estimated surplus of $200,000,000 for 1928 is none too large an operating margin in a business involving an annual expenditure of approximately $4,000,000,000.

"Surplus is a factor in debt reduction in addition to the items."

In determining the form such temporary tax reduction should take, if the congress proposes, one I believe we should adopt the simplest practical plan which will do equity. It has seemed to me, therefore, that the most practicable way of preventing the accumulation by the close of this fiscal year of a surplus larger than the congress deems desirable is to authorize a reduction in the taxes which become due in the first six months of the next year."

POTATO FERTILIZER SHOWS BIG RETURN.

Use of fertilizer on the Michigan potato crop has paid a fine profit this year. Results obtained in field fertilizer test plots conducted by Michigan State college, in co-operation with farmers, who special in growing potatoes, show that an average increase of 50 bushels an acre was obtained through the use of fertilizer.

This increase in yield was worth over $50 per acre this year. The cost of the fertilizer used was $12 an acre. The average increase obtained over a 150 year period is only 10 percent bushel, and as the average price which would be obtained for the bushel of fertilizer would be 15 cents, the net gain per year is 35 cents.

It is believed that the quality of the potatoes produced on the fertilized ground is better. The fertilizer makes the tubers have a better color and the skin of the tubers is not broken as easily as that of an unfertilized tuber.

Experiments on the influence of closeness of planting on the yield of potatoes obtained show that close planting increases the yield to a marked degree. The average yield on fields planted 36 by 36 inches was 52.3 bushels per acre. When a portion of the same field was planted 30 by 15 inches, the yield was 149.5 bushels. Close planting also reduces the number of hollow potatoes in the crop. There are not so many oversized potatoes in the closely planted field, but the tubers run a nice average size, which is desired on the market.

STATE TAX PROGRAM STIRS FARM BUREAU

Body Adopts 27 Resolutions for "Pay-as-You-Go" Plan on Improvements

Chicago.—Taxation of state instead of national, caused a stir among the 1,500 farmers at the closing of the eighth annual convention of the American Farm-Bureau Federation held here.

The convention's committee reported on 27 resolutions, each of which had been adopted unanimously.

Then came the last one—Suggested State Tax Program. The resolution, as finally adopted, says that inasmuch as present methods of state taxation are insufficient and that there appears to be no hope of reduction in government costs, sources of revenue other than the property tax must be made available to meet government costs and that ability to pay taxes should be the major consideration in deciding what methods of taxation be adopted.

A state income tax is recommended as well as a reclassification of property. The resolution declares that the state government might well be supported wholly by taxes other than those on real property, leaving such real property for support of purely local governments. This provision remained.

States were urged to adopt the principle of amortization and a "pay-as-you-go" policy on public improvements. Equalization was declared to be of vital importance since it would lessen the rate on farm land and increase the rate on other properties.

Apparently the agricultural interests—the cotton planters of the South and the grain growers of the North—will present a united front in their fight before the present congress for farm relief.

One resolution demanded that this session of congress start immediate work of legislation to deal with the surplus problem.

Point number two in the surplus resolution called for a distribution of the costs of handling surpluses just as broadly as the resultant benefits are distributed, that is, over a broad-based unit of a particular commodity through an equalization fee.

The resolution dealing with the "Moose" sheath question, which was also expected to create more or less argument, went through without any opposition.

The farmers bitterly denounced operation of the government and banks, declaring that the "system" is just operating as efficiently as the farmers have a right to expect.

The resolution recommended that the president of the federation appoint a committee to make a study of the system, its administration and operation and its relation to present credit needs of agriculture, and to recommend necessary legislation and changes in administration.

The farmers insisted that "any excess for years to come of income over expenses should be used in lessening the debt burden of our country rather than refunding it to persons and corporations who paid."

Legislation to preserve the competitive features of price-making at the live stock centers and to permit co-operative live stock marketing associations to deal directly with purchasers of live stock was approved. A law was also urged to permit co-operative marketing associations to obtain seats on boards of trade other than contract markets without sacrificing their co-operative features.

On freight rates the farmers contented themselves with going on record as favoring an equitable revision of the entire freight rate structure.

Other resolutions lauded the Department of Agriculture, called for support of the movement looking to a bettering understanding between agriculture and other groups, reaffirmed the efficacy of co-operative marketing, pledged support to plans for checking the westward march of the corn borer, demanded protection for the American dairy industry against adulterants and substitutes, urged congress to retain ownership and control of storage dam sites as a check on exploitation, expressed opposition to branch banking, supported the restricted immigration policy, favored the continuation of a scientific study of tariff, opposed the child labor amendment to the Constitution and commended highway construction.

MICHIGAN WOMEN TO HAVE NEW FIELD HOUSE

Michigan football dollars were directed to an entirely new avenue of work last Friday when the board of athletic control of the university approved a plan for the spending of about a quarter of a million dollars for the improvement of the facilities for outdoor athletic work for the women of the university.

While the athletic board made the appropriation from money being received for the sale of bonds, the final source will be the earnings of the football team.

The step announced is probably, if not entirely unique as an instance of the earnings of a football team being devoted to the building and equipment of a playground distinctly for university women," says the formal announcement of the board, made by Professor Ralph W. Aigler, its chairman. "This is the fact in the instance because the retirement of the bonds will come out of the football receipts."

Professor Aigler also pointed out that the board considered the funds now available for development were sufficient for the completion of the stadium and also for this improvement in the girls' program.

He also indicated that the board considered it would be possible to break ground for the proposed new intramural sports building in a few months, all of the members of the board being impatient to get the new and larger athletic program under way.

The work on Palmer field, the girls' athletic grounds, contemplates the grading of the field so it may all be used and the erection of a club house that may afford space for lockers, dressing rooms, bathing facilities and lounge room.

The new building will be at the nearest point possible to the proposed woman's league building.
