EVERY DAY

Is Bargain Day at Donovan's

Years ago when Donovan was struggling to meet the public's desire with his first store, he made the startling discovery that by selling "ten" articles for a $1.00 profit, he was farther ahead of the game than had he sold one for the same profit. As besides giving the public the same article for less, and gaining their respect and support, his larger volume of business enabled him to buy in carload lots, ensuring a much lower cost, and as the volume grows, the cost is reduced. Why pay more for the same thing?

HIS IMPRESSION OF PLYMOUTH BACK
IN 1836 REVEALED

Pioneer Settler of Galesburg Wrote Article Just Revealed

While searching records at the Burton Historical Collection in Detroit, K. H. Starkweather, of this village, quite accidentally came upon a few lines of interesting description of the Plymouth of 1836. This was just eleven years after the arrival of the first family here. The man who took the trouble to this, wrote down his impressions of the beginning of Plymouth as a village. He was a transient by the name of A. J. Van Buren. Mr. Van Buren was enroute from Detroit to Kalamazoo, or where he intended to settle. After describing the course from Detroit to Plymouth as "the worst road that mortal ever traveled over," he writes almost poetically in his description of our village. He arrived in Plymouth just before dusk, put up at the Fratrick Tavern, and the next day continued on.

The last partings rays of the sun were touching the tree tops as we came in sight of Plymouth. We do not know why, but we imagined, as we caught the first views of this sparsely settled village, that we had seen it before. Could it have been that some ship of a village from the east had strayed away from home, gone gypsying, and wandering off in the wild woods, had settled here? There was a beautiful, open green lawn in its center. The decent church stood on its western border, a tavern on the eastern side. We heard the ring of the blacksmith's anvil, and in the distance the clack of the mill. The little quiet hamlet had such rustic woodland air, and with so much prettiness that we were decidedly pleased with it. The more so because it was our Mecca of rest at the close of a weary, toilsome journey over bad roads.

At the Fratrick Tavern we met a great many emigrants, and after supper our party had the pleasure of relating our trials and experiences, and talking about our prospects and plans for the future, and listening to others. An acquaintance-making among emigrants was rapid. We soon knew each other's past histories and future plans. Staying here in Michigan was the healthiest, and with one touch of the potent antidote, if I do not err—Plymouth, Mich.

It might be interesting in the Plymouth of 1836 to let another reader to know that Mrs. Van Buren acted in "treating" a passenger with a dose of hibernation, and even though until her death she was of an advanced age when she died. During the latter part of life she performed services of the greatest benefit and rendered great service to residents in that part of the state.

HENRY FORD AND ALEXANDER DOW ATTEND OUTING

Two Laborers of the Past Meet and Talk Over the "Old Times"

The usual annual outing of friends and business associates of our neighbor Henry Haigh, took place at the Haigh homestead on Tuesday afternoon of last week, dinner following at the Dearborn Country Club. About 40 guests were present according to the Dearborn Press.

A rather unique feature of the affair was the presence of two old associates in the Detroit Edison company, Mr. Alexander Dow and Mr. Henry Ford, who have both become most notable characters in the world's history in late years. Mr. Dow, being a very entertaining after dinner speaker kept the company in high merriment with his jokes about the days when he used to "josh" Henry over the "horseless contraption" the latter was forever fussing with in the basement of the building where both were employed, one as superintendent, and the other engineer, and neither dreaming that one would, within twenty years, work a revolution in the transportation of the world and the other become a great national figure in the production of electric current for manifolds, uses by mankind.

Mr. H. L. Clittenden, president of the Peninsular Bank, acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by Frank W. Hubbard, president of the Grosse Pointe Savings Bank, Ovia B. Taylor vice-president of the Wayne County and Home Bank Chas. A. Parcells of Parcells & Company, Investment Bankers, and by Herbert Trux, Director of the Peninsular Bank, whose mother was born in the Haigh mansion when it was owned by his grandfather, the Rev. Ralph Phelps, Sr., who sold it to Mr. Haigh's father over eighty years ago.

Mrs. J. D. Thompson and daughter Barbara, of Detroit, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson at their cottage at Waller Lake.

SPIKE STORY IS CAUSE OF LOTS OF WORRY TO EDITOR

America's Next Biggest Retraction is Hereby Made

Most editors are afraid of libel laws.

For example, we refer you to the events that have happened recently over in our progressive little neighboring town known as Dearborn.

But when the great editor of that town was making peace with lawyers and the famous mercantile race, little did another great editor think that he was face to face with a suit for damages from another distinguished class of people.

But to beat the lawyers to it, this other great editor is going to retract right now before they have a chance to get him into the courts.

Like the Dearborn editor, the Northville editor didn't really know what was being printed in his paper.

He knows that Presbyterians and Methodists are very sensitive people and if he had known about the article, why, of course no retraction would have been necessary, as it would never have been printed.

The whole thing came to light the other day when the official representatives of the Presbyterian baseball team came to the Record office, pulled up a chair and said something about spiked shoes and baseball.

Of course, not knowing the facts in the case, they had to be consulted and there was discovered the cause of the breach between the great newspaper of this community and its greatest baseball team.

The sporting editor had given as the reason for the lead of the Presbyterians in the Twilight League, the fact that some of the players wore spiked shoes. Of course, the editor knew nothing about such a allegation.

The sport writer should have known better than say anything like this even if it was a fact. But don't get the idea that we have any intention of saying it is a fact now, because in this statement that is in dispute.

But to be sure of the facts, a careful investigation has been made on the matter.

The gossips in question have been examined. And we find it is true in retraction, the editor on the shoes are not spikes.

Now that might be disturbing to a lawyer that the leading team of the league, one here, others don't get to know, and at the moment it is an obstruction to the best ball team. If anyone desires we will print another retraction. Another to keep pace with the other retraction, that's the policy of the sports editor.

HIGH CITIZENSHIP AND TOLERANCE IS CLUB'S IDEAL AIM

Allen S. Browne Speaks Before Members of Rotary Club Monday

Allen S. Browne, extension secretary of the Broadcasters of America, Monday, addressed members of the Rotary club and told them the purposes of the organization that he is assisting to bring into active work in every community in the country.

M. J. Murphy of the Globe Furniture company, was a guest of the club and briefly told of the good will movement that the Broadcasters are endeavoring to start in every state.

In brief, Mr. Browne said:

"This is an organization formed for the purpose of spreading or broadcasting through personal contact and by means of organized speakers' bureaus, a knowledge of American History, Americanism, Federal, State and Civic Government and Tolerance.

Its founders hope to arouse and sustain throughout the entire country an interest in the fundamental government to promote tolerance between men of different creeds and principles of the American form of social characteristics to those that are enfranchised voter to the duty of citizenship to help the newcomer become a constructive member of the society and example of interaction.

All active units in each county will operate under the direction of the county speakers' bureau. The speakers' bureaus will receive all addresses from the National Body, will supervise the distribution and the delivery of these addresses to active Broadcasters' Clubs in their county and, in addition, upon request, will supply a speaker (or one of the selected subjects) to any other organization or social club of the county.

In keeping with the ideals and purposes of the Broadcasters, membership is open to Catholics, Protestants, and Jews, in fact to any man interested in the welfare of his community and country.

On April 29, 1926, the President of the United States addressed the Daughters of the American Revolution on the growing and alarming lack of interest of our people in the affairs of their own government, and after discussing the situation, he said:

"If we are to keep our representative form of government and to maintain the principle that the majority shall rule, it behoves us to take drastic action to arouse the voters of this country to a greater interest in their civic duties, chariotism, day. Many remedies have been proposed for disengagement, to examine the most practical. The most practical believe is for all hosts of men and women interested in the welfare of this country to join together under some strong form of organization to correct this evil."

David Builds A New Charter To Govern Life

David, the shepherd lad, is on the way to the throne of Israel, and must take the place of King Saul very soon.

David has learned that a stable social life for his people hinges upon believing in the sacredness of human life.

Keystone was a religious duty according to the thought of the day of the Hebrew people. They and their neighbors were serving their Gods when they punished an enemy severely.

David could see clearly that he and all others must respect their enemies, and not try to exterminate them by premature death. He spared King Saul's life when he could have taken it justly.

Al Ehresole, of Plymouth, was in last week. He has what he believes to be the record-bearing red raspberry patch in Washtenaw County. From seven rows, not more than 150 feet long, he has already taken over $100 worth of berries, cut the bushes, and he thinks that this will be only about half the yield for the year.

Mrs. Ellen M. Sherman, who lives near Northville, was a caller in the village. Yesterday Mrs. Sherman has the bushels of raspberries and so far has cleaned them out of over 1000 quarts from her patch. The crop will be harvested for several days longer. She expects to pick several hundred quarts more before the season ends.

If you have the names of any former residents of Northville or people who would like to invite to attend the homecoming, kindly give them to Mrs. Hugh Baldwin of the invitation committee. The committee plans to send out special invitations to everyone who will be interested in coming to Northville on August 26th and 27th.

The afternoon was spent in the usual reminiscences of old school-friends, songs and readings, and last—but not in any sense least—a most delectable dinner, such as only Grace knows how to serve.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jensen and Mr. and Mrs. Arno, Wili of Union Grove, Wisconsin, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Neilsen last Friday.

Mrs. Wolf is a sister of Mr. Jensen.

The two young couples were married just a few days previous to their visit to Northville—4 number of years ago the Neilsen family lived neighbors to the Jensens in Wisconsin. When Mr. and Mrs. Neilsen moved to Michigan they invited the young Jensen children to visit them where they got married. And that is just what they did last Friday.

IS COLLECTOR OF
POSTAGE STAMPS*R. A. Brooks Now Giving
His Attention to Air
Mail Collection

Every man has a hobby, although it's not that some don't know it.
One of the most popular hobbies for many generations has been that of collecting postage stamps. And Northville has one of these postage stamp collectors.

Robert A. Brooks of the R. A.
Brooks Lumber Company, probably has one of the finest possessions of rare postage stamps in the country.
Just now he is turning his attention to the collection of air mail stamps. And this is what he says about the air mail:

"During the past several weeks practically everyone has had brought to their attention the fact that the airplane is here in the interests of rapid transit. We read of long flights, of its destructive possibilities in war, of contemplated passenger lines,
all of which are deserving of merit,
but how many know that today the United States is a network of air-mail lines, paralleled by the continental roads?"

The United States Post Office departed up to a week ago from one of these air-mail lines, but only recently they have turned most of them over to private interests without making possible the carrying of mail with unusual speed at a cost of less than half cents, which is the old rate letter.

Our own business, heretofore Northville, part of a wholesale lumberman, with no connections in the far western and southern states, feel that the air mail is necessary to the success of our business. Therefore it was necessary to keep in touch with our mill, daily by telegraph. The cost compelled us to be very brief in the obtaining of selling information, and reporting commercial conditions as we found them. That, however, is altered by the air mail. Today for a Club we can get a very few hours by telephone report in, putting in the full office of the far west and south. This has been in effect since the first and easiest approach to the customer and at times requires a long period in the letter by being able to quote promptly downward, told on the mail as to our orders, etc., etc. In this way we keep the customer in formed correctly, we quickly adjust our both in business and service.

Here is an illustration—we had a flight from Elko, California, we ordered in order to have it in Northville February 14, at 2 p.m.
We arrived at Elko on the 13th, at 11:15, a.m., and had to wait until 12:30 p.m. for the plane. The cost of this is too expensive? From Elko, we had to travel to road airport at Deeth, to Quincy where we got into the trans-continent air line, dropped off at Elko, Nevada, then on to destination via Contract Air Line. We have another for Pasco, Washington, this leaves Northville June 18th at 9:00
a.m., leaves Detroit 2:30 p.m., same day and arrives at Pasco next day,
the 19th, at 8:30 a.m., just 25 hours.
Another for Boise, Idaho, leaves Northville June 18th, 9:00 a.m., and arrives at Alexandria next day, the 19th, at 4:00 p.m. We have another for Vancouver, British Columbia, which leaves Northville June 18th at 9:00
a.m., and arrives at destination early in the morning of June 21st. And so they go. Time is gained and business advanced.

The benefits have been so pronounced in our business that intense interest has been created in our own office by reciting of these air-mail covers, each of which contain the trip data in the post mark cancellations.
It is an interesting study indeed, and one that is very familiar to the present day business man, philatelist.
We enjoy checking the activities of the post office department in extending of the old mail lines, and the creating of new ones. Each first trip over these air lines carries a cancellation to identify it as a new venture. Today there are a large number of them. We have obtained most of these first trippers covering the United States and Canada. They are an interesting study and make an interesting collection also. These define the extent of the privileges for the use of the business man today, and with the very excellent record of our townsmen, Eddie Stinson, in every business man must demand a continued broadening out of the air mail service."

According to naturalists, many birds die each year of bronchial pneumonia because of too early migration.
Edmund Kean, the noted English actor, valued the opinion of the common people in the pit more highly than that of aristocrats and dramatic critics.

YOUNG MEN'S TEAM WINS EASY VICTORY OVER OLD FELLOWS

Great Ball Game Played Out
at Cass Benton Park
Last Thursday

Saturday night, Louis Babbin and Charles Dubau star members of the Northville young men's baseball club, made some of the old-timers like Harry Clark, Horace Boyden, Frank Neal, Charles Black and old Edward Lapham step out to test up in the game played last Thursday evening at Cass Benton Park.

The baseball contest was staged just before and just after the picnic dinner served by members of the Woman's Club. The old men's club was able to play a fairly good game previous to the dinner, but after the meal had been served D. R. Lapham, Frank Neal and some of the others might as well have been sent to the bench, for they were absolutely of no value in the contest.

Barker Lapham admitted he ate too much cake, the Postmaster wouldn't admit anything, but everyone knew the cause of his numerous errors in the game, and Harry Clark had difficulty in picking up grounders.

As a result Sam Knapp and some of the younger players ran rings around the heavy-eating old fellows. Sam distinguished himself at first. He took part in numerous double and triple plays.

Louie Babbin, once he got into the game, remained there to the end of the game. He clipped the leaves off the top of most of the trees in the back end of the park, hit a foul ball right into the middle of a picnic group some half mile away, made so many home runs that someone else had to do the running for him, knocked all the star pitchers of the Old Men's Club out of the box and was still going strong at the end of the game.

Horace Boyden of the Old Men's Club proved the star for that outfit although Charles Blackburn ran him a close race for batting honors. Just where to class Barton Wheeler and Rev. Knowles, two star players, is a difficult task. They apparently do not belong in the old men's team, and just whether they should go in the young men's team is a question that possibly the Wayne County jury will have to be called upon to decide. They played stellar games and had much to do with both sides; therefore the impossibility of classification.

The young men's victory like the one in favor of the Young Men's Hall club in the previous year, clinching the match is now open for contests with anyone, and it is expected it would be quite easy to make touch with Al Meyer, Sam Knapp, the young fellows' star high aims being to beat the old half players in such a dramatic way.

INKSTER PLANS TO BECOME REAL
VILLAGE SHORTLY
Has Drafted Charter and Now Waiting for Its Approval

Inkster, over on Michigan Avenue, between Wayne and Dearborn, is similar just like Novi. The little community wants to become a village, and has prepared a charter for the operation of the affairs of the community, and sent it to the governor for approval.

The new charter was prepared by a commission, consisting of five men, namely, W. Van Vleet, Charles T. Kurtzell, Francis R. Fallbach, J. R. Patterson and Albert W. Klink.

J. W. Bollinger of Dearborn, was counsel for the commission. According to the new charter for the village, the governing body will consist of a president and four councilmen. Other elective officers will be treasurer and a clerk. The term of office will be for two years, electing all new offices at the election in the spring of each odd year.

The territory to be included in the new village of Inkster will extend from Gulley road, the western boundary of Dearborn, to Middle Belt road. On the north lines will be Northview Avenue, and on the south, Ann Arbor. The new village will be in two townships, Dearborn and Northville, the main line road dividing the territory.

It is expected that people of Inkster will be given an opportunity to vote upon the new charter early in September. They will also vote for their officials at the same time with their primary. It is expected

WONDERS WHERE
FIRE IS—LEARNS
IT'S HIS OWN HOME

James VanDyne gets a Real Surprise When the Fire Whistle Blows

When the fire whistle blew yesterday evening James VanDyne was sitting in the room at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McClung.

I wonder what the fire is in, asked Mr. and Mrs. Main Street jeweler. "Mrs. VanDyne doesn't know."

The two continued to sit in the porch talking about the weather, drops and the coming rain.

Some one running along the street called out that Mr. VanDyne's house was on fire.

The neighborly call ended more suddenly than most calls of such a nature generally do.

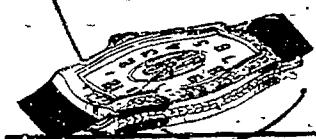

By the time Mr. VanDyne had reached his home on South Center the fire department had found the cause of the trouble and the threatening blaze had been extinguished. A roofer had put some refuse from a waste basket in the furnace to burn, not knowing that the pipe had become disconnected. As a result smoke poured out the cellar windows, resulting in the fire call.

LOOK OUT FOR THE RABBIT DOCTORS FIND NEW DISEASE

Warning Issued by the State Health Department—
Just be Careful

Look out for the rabbit! The Michigan Department of Health has just issued a warning about it. Following, is what the department says: Tularemia, a new disease, with proved dangerous qualities to man, has made its first appearance recently in Michigan. The name Tularemia was given to the disease when, in 1924, Dr. Edward Frances showed that the "rabbit fever," which was fairly common among market men in Washington, D. C., was due to infection by the Tularemia, an organism that had been first described in 1911, when it was found in the blood of squirrels, in California. Since 1921 cases of the disease have been reported from every section of the country, and from almost every state, with Michigan the most recent to be added to the list.

Rabbits, ground squirrels, rats and other species of rodents are especially susceptible to the disease. Most of the cases which have been reported have been due to infection through the handling of rabbits in preparing them for meat or for cooking. The germ is present in the blood of other body fluids of the rabbit and is able to penetrate the unbroken skin of those with whom it comes in contact. In some cases the germ is introduced to the lower part of the eye by merely rubbing or touching the eye with the hand that has been soiled with the body fluids of an infected rabbit. This results in an infectious disease of the eyes, which is the most dangerous phase of any of its various forms.

Within twenty-four to forty-eight hours after exposure, an individual usually comes up with headache, vomiting, chills, fever and prostration. The neighboring lymph glands become swollen and painful, and then go on to abscess formation, and there may be an ulcer on the hand at the place where the germ entered the skin. The acute stage of the disease lasts for two or three weeks, but the patient may continue to have fever and may feel weak and exhausted for several months.

Given Tuamonia has been diagnosed as the "spaling fever" or "acute tularemia." Although very few cases have complicated fatalities, the loss of time and great loss of strength through the disease and death of the animal can easily be imagined.

Despite the recent heavy rains, the sun has spent some time on the job, enabling the farmers hereabouts to get in one of the heaviest harvests for some years past. According to reports the wheat and corn harvest will yield bountifully, and there will be unusually good straw in large quantities. Farm men predict a light crop however, but this promises less work and higher prices, so let's all be optimistic and smile while we work.

On Tuesday of last week a conflagration of unknown origin consumed the barn, the house and contents on the small freight farm owned by Mr. and Mrs. D. Hart on the north side of Grand River, just west of Novi. Although the neighbors responded valiantly to the call for help and worked with courageous zeal, these three buildings and their contents were destroyed. The flames fanned by a strong north wind, seemed bent with diabolical intent on destroying the house as well, but this desire was thwarted by the courageous and heroic measures of the impromptu bucket brigade.

The roof and exposed portions of the dwelling house were copiously splashed with water supplied by pails of water from a convenient pumping station. The Northville fire equipment, called when the fire was at its height, appeared in an incredibly short time, but was too late to give the expected aid as flames had already been extinguished. While the buildings were protected by insurance, the owners suffered complete loss on the contents.

TO SHOW FARMERS HOW TO KEEP FROM GETTING TIRED OUT

Edison Company to Show Labor Saving Methods at Fall Fair

Visitors to the Northville Wayne County fair this year will see for the first time at exhibit by the Edison Electric Power Company arranged especially for the use according to the announcement just made by Edward J. H. a great wayfarer for the company, the goal of which is now how electricity can be applied to every case of farm labor.

We propose to show that it is not only a great labor saver and convenience, but it will pay dividends to the farmer, he can and farm home by the day. The time element enters into the increasing demands probably as much as more than any other occupation and we are going to show the farmers who will visit the fair just how they can save money as well as save themselves from a lot of drudgery," stated Mr. Willis yesterday.

The Edison company has never before exhibited at the Northville Wayne County fair, and an especial effort is going to be put forth by the company to make the display one that will interest the thousands of people who will come to the fair.

DETROIT AMUSEMENTS

"BROADWAY ENTERS FIFTH MONTH AT THE GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT

Entering upon its fifth month in Detroit next Sunday night, "Broadway," the night club class produced by Jed Harris from the script of Philip Dunning and George Abbott, celebrates the 150th performance at the Garrick Theatre, Detroit, next Thursday. The company, which was specially organized for Detroit will actually have played this number of performances Wednesday night when there were four performances at Toledo prior to coming to the Motor City.

While this company was created for Detroit particularly, it has been operating next month, and here is a possibility that the Detroit audience will be asked to buy two tickets. The Garrick offers to hold the entire cast for the first week in October, so as to insure the opening when there are no more engagements elsewhere.

Local girls are available for entertainment, and those who have a desire to rent their evening dress should definitely take the program offered. In view of the final date of the 150th engagement, there is no doubt it will be a good idea to obtain a demand for tickets that will last for the early nights of the engagement here.

The excellent company seen in Detroit include William Fodder, the "shooter," Josephine, the detective, Martha Bradford as the clever hostess, Grace Hall as the veteran contralto, Harriet E. Gibbons as the night-sought "Billie," Guyene Holland as the cabaret proprietress, and a score or more of others who are expertly cast to give a performance that will be the highest entertainment ever seen in a theatre.

"LEAF THAT OFF" NEXT ATTRACTION AT THE BONSTELLE PLAYHOUSE, DETROIT

When Bob McAllan tried his comedy, "Leaf That Off," he threw down a challenge which audiences during a year in New York were unable to ignore, and patrons of the Bonstelle Playhouse will have an opportunity to laugh off for one week, beginning Monday night, August 28th.

"Leaf That Off" is a comedy that commands laughs. The author has overlooked no gag and passed no artifice to extract laughter.

The play deals with the lives of three young bachelors who to beat the high cost of living while each is carving a career for himself are living together in an apartment. Into this place one of them brings a young and beautiful girl whom he met by chance one night. All agree not to make love to the beautiful unknown, but to accept her as their "sister." All promptly fall in love with her him, and complications ensue. The author is to be held responsible for a party at a number of the so-called Broadway type, and for construction that abounds in inconveniences metaphor in "Leaf That Off."

Bonstelle Players have been specifically as to give an interpretation that will make his words bold relief.

"Leaf That Off" is a breezy, refreshingly guaranteed to make goers forget the hot weather.

George Washington, a great lover of fish refused to eat shad that cost three dollars, because he did not want to set an example of luxury and extravagance.

Jerry, blackest of all black sheep, has just betrayed his one-million victim. Trained to lead a procession of sheep through the long runways of the Chicago stock yards, upon reaching a certain pen he sideslips and the rest proceed to their death.

The foot of the modern girl has won the last decade outgrown the size which for generations was the average size of the foot of the American woman. Athletes and dancing are also to be cause.

On a rainy journey the King of England departs full fare for himself and every member of the royal household.

Or on a rainy day the King of England departs full fare for himself and every member of the royal household.
