CLEAN-UP OF TOWN RESULTS IN MUCH GOOD

The Alleys and Backyards Look Neat—Much Refuse Removed

Has Northville cleaned-up and fixed-up?

If you don't think it has just get in your neighbor's automobile and ride up and down every street in town.

Rubbish has been cleared away, many of the vacant lots have been cleared up, 1928 seed patches have been buried over and plowed under—in fact, Northville has become so vain over its attractive appearance that it has sort of gone to her head.

Any real job has been done. Dr. Randall Schuyler, village health officer, conducted a clean-up campaign that counted for something.

But property owners and renters as well started the job weeks ago.

While the bad weather of last week interfered with the work to a considerable extent and caused Health Officer Schuyler to extend the work out into the first of the present week, there has been a general cleaning up everywhere in town.

However, it was barely five minutes after city workers had cleaned out one alley before a clerk from one store was seen dumping rubbish on the very spot that had just been cleaned up.

Health Officer Schuyler urges that when refuse boxes and papers are put in the alleys that they be buried immediately in that way it prevents litter from being blown all over town and keeps the alley-ways clean most of the year.

WATER MAINS TO BE EXTENDED TO SOUTH AND WEST

Lines Will Not be Laid Outside of Limits of Village

Extension of city water main to the village limits on South Center and West Main Street will be ordered Monday night by the village commissioners.

The water mains do not go to the village limits on either of these two streets but because of requests to water companies city officials thought it advisable to run the line to the village limits on South Center street. The line will go almost to the creek. On West Main street, it will go just to the west of what is known as the Harper property, a few property holders who live beyond the village limits do live city water, they must pay the entire cost of putting in the connection as well as the regular water rate.

For instance if you live on First Seven Mile road, your home address may be 346 East Seven Mile road or South Center street road and all other highways leading out of Northville are numbered in this way.

FLOWERS PROVIDE SERMON THEME

Drawing upon his experience in growing flowers and attending gardens in England, Rev. William Richards gave a splendid address Sunday morning in the Methodist church. His text was from the Songs of Solomon, that Hebrew lyric prose poem describing the love and care of God as a garden of beauty and utility. He recalled that his trade was discovered before he made mention of it because the perfume of the flowers was upon his garments. He urged his hearers to catch the fragrance of God and His beauty and exemplify them in daily life.

MOTHER OF MRS. SHERILL AMBLER DIES IN PLYMOUTH

Family Lived in Northville for Years—Many Friends Here

Mrs. Jennie Harland Kenyon, aged 65 years, mother of Mrs. Sherill Ambler of Northville, died Sunday at her home in Plymouth, after an illness of considerable duration. Mrs. Kenyon for nearly 15 years a resident of Northville, moved to Plymouth about 13 years ago, where she made her home continuously since going to that place.

She had an extensive circle of friends who will regret to learn of her death. The funeral was held Wednesday at 3:00 o'clock from the Schrader funeral home in Plymouth, burial taking place in the Plymouth cemetery. Rev. F. A. Lendum of the Methodist church of Plymouth officiated. While a resident of Northville, Mrs. Kenyon was an active worker in the Methodist church of this place. She was born in Clinton Ontario.

Mrs. Kenyon was devoted to her family and gave her entire time to the welfare of her children. Besides Mrs. Ambler of this place, she is survived by her husband, Marcus L. Kenyon of Plymouth; Gertrude Kenyon and Pierre Kenyon of Portland, Oregon, and John H. Kenyon of Detroit.

ISSUE BOOKLET FOR FARMERS ON ELECTRIC USES

Detroit Edison Company Has Prepared Simple Textbook

District managers of the Detroit Edison Company are distributing to the 8000 farmers served by the company a new publication called "Farm Wiring," printed on corn-stalk paper made in Michigan mills. This booklet brings to the attention of the farm family the many labor-saving devices for the farm and the farm home, which so a variety of jobs from detecting burglars to cutting sewage. Non-technical and generously illustrated with actual photographs of farms served by Detroit Edison, it was prepared by the company's farm service division which is experienced in both farm problems and in electric service.

A list of definitions of electrical terms is given in simple language, the booklet is written in a popular vein so that it makes good reading as well as a reference book for the farmer's bookcase.

The farm wife will particularly appreciate the chart on household lighting, and the descriptions of electric household aids such as washers, ironers, ranges, refrigerators, etc.

"Farm Wiring" discusses in simple language such topics as farm lighting, the application of electric power to increase egg yield, to save young pigs at breeding time, water systems for the household, and to increase milk production by providing cows with constant water supply. Individual farm units, also electric operation of feed grinders, grain elevators, silo fillers and bulk-grinding machines.

NUMBER HOUSES IN COUNTRY ALONG ALL THE HIGHWAYS

Detroit Edison Company Finds That It Is of Much Benefit

Every town on every street, by day and night, served by the Detroit Edison Company in this section, is being numbered under the direction of Fred Wilkinson, local manager of the company. The company undertook sometime ago, without complaint, and it is going to prove very difficult to change the numbers. It is predicted to change the entire rural area covered by the circles maintained by the part of the state to run over their banks.

As far as possible, there is no change in the form. Farmers have been greatly delighted because in the wet conditions of the ground where plowing has been done, it has been impossible to get the old numbers.

The idea was originated by Mr. Wilkinson and in some other localities where he has the number, he placed it proved so beneficial to the company that he decided to do the same.

He urged his hearers to catch the fragrance of God and His beauty and exemplify them in daily life.

John D. Franklin Dies at Age of 81

The funeral of John D. Franklin was held last Saturday from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Earl Hamilton, on Orchard Drive, the Rev. William Richards officiating. Mr. Franklin died at the age of 81 years from ailments brought on by his advanced years.

He was born at Redford, August 21, 1848, and died May 2, 1929. In 1871 he was married to Viola Colby. Nine children were born in this union, of whom five are living. Mrs. Alma Hamilton of Northville, Mrs. Grace Corwin of Cherry Hill, three sons, Merrill and Henry of Northville, and Roy of Fowlerville, four preceding him in death with the mother. He married the second time, Anna Waggoner, who also preceded him in death. Twenty-five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren also survive.

Interment took place in Bell Branch cemetery, where his host of friends attended to pay their last respects to an old and honored acquaintance.

COMMISSION CUTS BUDGET FOR NEW YEAR

Finally Approves Smaller Sum Than Expended During 1928

The village budget, providing $89,000 for all purposes during the next fiscal year, was approved Monday night by the village commission at the regular meeting of that body. The budget shows a reduction of several thousand dollars over the previous year, and "necessarily means a slightly reduced village tax."

The city officials have not in any way cut down the activities they have in mind, which means much to the betterment of the community and on the program outlined for the coming year there is much that has been planned.

Major Charles Fultons declares that it has been his intention to keep the village expense down to the lowest point possible, but not to economize to a point where the village would suffer as a result of so-called foolish economy.

"Much has already been done this spring. The driveway to the new cemetery has been fenced and cleaned up. Many street crossings have been repaired and a number of the gravelled streets put in better condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Judd Hicks Are Hurt When Run Into by Car

Mr. and Mrs. Judd Hicks are recovering from severe injuries received last Friday in Detroit. When Mrs. Hicks was crashed into by a Ford roadster that witnesses say was running something like 50 miles per hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks was thrown over a fence, was the crash occurred over 20 feet through the door of their Oakland sedan land ing in a yard.

She was the more severely in judged of the two, having one leg bent and the other badly sprained about the head and body.

Mr. Hicks was driving into Detroit after some plans of a building that was going to build. It was raining and because of this fact he was taking the usual caravans that have characterized his driving before having had an automobile accident.

He approached an intersection and looked to the right, not seeing an automobile in sight. He was nearly across the street when a

Ford roadster crashed into his Oakland sedan, flung the car to the side of the street, turned it around completely and knocked both

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks from the car.

Mrs. Hicks was thrown entirely over the sidewalk and so badly injured that it was necessary to rush her to the Highland Park hospital for immediate treatment. Several stitches were taken to close a severe cut in her head. It was not until Monday that they were able to bring her to her home in this place. Mr.

Hicks was also given first aid treatment at the hospital. He was thrown considerably over the curbing.

The driver of the other car, after being questioned by the police, was taken to a hospital for a slight injury he received. The Hicks car was almost completely demolished in the accident.

IT TELLS US TOO

Editor Babcock in a recent issue of the Redford Record had much to say about the development that is taking place in the immediate vicinity of Redford. We all know that what is happening in Redford is also of benefit to Northville because the growth of that locality is directly reflected here. When Detroit and Redford grows, Northville grows too. Following is what Editor Babcock says of the development about our neighbor to the east.

"This spring the feverish activity of the builder is more in evidence than ever and the sound of the hammer and saw is heard throughout this section of Detroit. And it seems as though our great city is rapidly overflowing into the Outer Grand River area. There are actually thousands of new dwellings in northwestern Detroit and other thousands under construction. Scarcely is there a street bereft of houses to be found but that has its new home, and on many of our streets are rows of new residences. Especially is this true on avenues lateral to the Five and Six Mile roads east of us, while to the west building operations are also in progress, but not so extensively as nearer the denser part of the town. Furthermore it won't be many months now until Grand River avenue, along both sides of the highway will be built up solidly as far out as the Seven Mile road. But a very few years ago there were great open spaces sparsely settled; farmers could be seen at work in their fields in what is now Detroit. What a marvelous transformation! It could only be witnessed in a marvelous city where the throbs of living is at its height."

You know during the past two years we during a sort of depression some of us "enjoyed" there was little residential building outside of River Avenue, but beginning with the first of this year building operations started for new life and now, indeed, the old world looks rosy all over again. Hundreds of families are moving into this section of Detroit and the influx does not seem to be at a standstill. This pushing outward of our city appears as a never ending process, and who can tell where the boundaries of Detroit will be even five short years hence? With sewers and all modern facilities now available, the growth and development here should be more marked than ever. That is a prospect that the present homeowner and local business man alike delight to envision. The day cannot be far distant when the big push will be in full swing away out Grand River Avenue, even beyond the present city limits where the necessity of a sewer system is already being advanced by residents of Redford themselves.

One feature of the new residences that are being constructed here is that as a rule they appear to be more modern and substantial, more brick, tile and concrete than were used "out in the sticks" a few years ago. It is hoped that those more substantial, more modern and more complete dwellings may bring to us the high type of citizenship with which this community is so richly blessed.

"Sell on Detroit and let thy watchword be 'More and better homes, and more and better folks in those homes'."

A THOUGHT FOR MOTHER'S DAY

What would you think of boy who would strike his mother? You hate to think of anything so unchristian don't you? Words cannot express your opinion of one who would intentionally injure his mother.

Now stop a minute. Probably some time in your life you have had a bloody nose or a skinned knee. And probably sometime in your life someone has made an unkind remark that hurt you dreadfully. Which really hurt the most? The nose or the knee was better in a few days, but your injured feelings bothered you for a long time after that unkind remark.

The meaning of all this is this. You have only contempt for one who would strike his mother, but do you realize that an unkind word to her may hurt her feelings more than a blow? Boys—and girls too—are much more curious with their tongues than with their fists. Don't you or me to let your tongue inflict pain?

That's a real thing to think about on Mother's Day.

SPLITTING DIVIDENDS

Play the old slowdown. Careless as you split your stock. Don't think train has passed just because you see its tracks. Necessary to do so has been invented to fit the place of the one fit about the car.

There is no iniquity in cutting down. The place of the knots is to be the door.

Never mind the only machine fit to use.

The rest of your days depend upon the rest of your healths. Be as beautiful, there's no place worse than an amputated limb.

Stick to your steers and count stock round.

Flying said he's placing a trap.

People who look like notes need assistance.

Many a man is so carried away that he is out to work and the wind out to play.

The one may die young times the driver dies but one.

The last page has the sign of way and can generally prove it.

Play safe by taking down during the campaign.

Nothing goes such as dividends.

JUSTICE

We all like to see justice. We like to see the rich the poor and the no-account all treated alike. But really there is something pathetic in the jail of Harry F. Sinclair millionaire oil man. Too bad to see a man who has climbed the ladder of financial success tumbled into an old basement built for housing bums, thieves and bank robbers. However, Mr. Sinclair has no right to ask for any different kind of justice. That's meted out to the poor old Joe who does not have means to stay off the verdict of the court. We condemn our government officials who have seen to it that vast wealth did not defeat the intent of the laws or when we are all governed. At the same time we feel sorry to think that one who has gained such an eminent position in the business affairs of the world as Mr. Sinclair should be forced to spend 90 days in a county jail. But it is right that violators of our statutes be all treated alike—and our greatest hope is that some day they will be. It might be added that the Sinclair case is an exception.

SENATOR RUSHTON

When the editorial was written two or three weeks ago pertaining to Senator Rushton and his assume attack upon the women of the state we didn't know there was a person in this thickly settled corner of Wayne county that ever knew or heard of the statesman from Escanaba. It was somewhat of a surprise the other day when John T. Neham, pioneer and honorable resident of Northville and a personal friend of Henry Ford, stopped the writer on the street and commended him for what was said. It seems that John knows the Escanaba statesmen very well. "We had a horse deal a number of years ago and I know all about Senator Rushton," said John. "We will leave the rest of it to the reader to figure out who was trimmed in the horse transaction."

CONGRESS FROM WITHIN

By
GRANT M. HUDSON, Congressman
Michigan, Sixth District

I have accepted this occasion which committed one felony, and for a frank statement of what I consider the dominate issue before this committee another, such as offering the American people its solution is of our institutions than any other question before us. That is the enforcement and obedience to the laws of the United States, both Federal and State. Thus began President Hoover in his address before the Associated Press in New York City. Further on in the address he said, "that the dry law, only one phase of this great problem.

Here in the city of Washington during the past week, there has occurred an incident the results of which will be of great importance to the future of law enforcement. A car occupied by touring bicyclists attempted to evade arrest by laying a smoke screen before two officers who were pursuing it in police car. One of the pursuing officers tried to maneuver the flight of the liquor car by firing at it from through the smoke screen, but in doing so struck and killed the driver. This act has caused much discussion with the result of ten persons arrested without trial or arraignment without trial or the record officer. Since this has been several policemen have chased cars thought to be carrying liquor which have made their escape by laying a dense smoke screen. In none of these cases have these in pursuit opened fire on the fleeing car. If have never been into the cloud of smoke for a hundred yards and then dropped out of the race.

President Hoover further places himself at the front of the line of battle. He is a soldier and is the commander-in-chief of this great nation of ours, when we say:

It may be said by some that the chief responsibility for the enforcement of laws in this crime rests with state and local authorities and does not concern the Federal government. But it does concern the President of the United States, both as a citizen and as the chief upon whom rests the primary responsibility of leadership for the establishment of standards of law enforcement in this country. "Priority of leadership for the establishment of standards of law enforcement."

Let us then follow the example of our worthy President and place ourselves firmly behind the servants of both state and nation, officers entrusted with the enforcement of our laws, not only by an example of obedience to the laws but by enforcement rightly placed on the side of justice and right.

The only logical conclusion is that our police officers are beginning to feel that the path of least resistance is the safest. Give up the pursuit and no questions are asked. Show the officer faces loss of pay, disgrace and a possible trial as a criminal. This proceeds an editorial in the Washington Star. Start.

Shall we continue to allow sentiment and criticism of this type to hinder an officer in carrying out his duty in the enforcement of law?

My Favorite Stories

by Irvin S. Cobb

BOOK THAT GRANDPA TOOK

SINCE Rex Beach himself laughed at this story when I brought it to him, there is no reason why the general public should be denied the opportunity to laugh at it, too. I had it at first hand from a young lady who figured in it.

This young lady is now engaged in newspaper work. But before she took up journalism she was an assistant at a public library in Pittsburgh.

One day as she sat at her desk a sixteen-year-old girl approached her and told her that she had come to pay for a book which had been lost.

"What was the book?" asked the librarian.

"It was Mr. Rex Beach's 'Going Some.' I took it out four weeks ago to read it, but we had some trouble in our family, and the book was lost and I'm afraid I can't return it; so, under the rules, I suppose I'll have to pay for it."

Judging by the girl's appearance, the librarian figured that she did not belong to a family in particularly affluent circumstances, so sympathetically inquired after her relative further inquiry.

"I would suggest," she said, "that you make another search for the missing volume. Spray is must be somewhere around your home. Perhaps if you run again thoroughly you may find where it is."

"Oh, we know where it is," said the girl. "That's just the trouble."

"Well, you see, grandpa died."

"What has your grandfather's death to do with Mr. Rex Beach's 'Going Some'?"

"Well, ma'am, after he was laid out in his coffin the undertaker passed it to prop my grandfather's chin with. And everybody forgot about it until after the funeral was over, and so the book is out at the cemetery with grandpa."

It's a good plan to whitewash the eaves once or twice a year. Good whitewash may be made with only lime and water. Ordinary hydrated lime may be mixed with water, or lump lime may be slackened with a minimum amount of water and then more water added to bring the whitewash to a proper consistency. Only freshly burned lime should be used, and any that is air slackened should be discarded, as whitewash made from such lime will not stick. If the floor is kept wet while the whitewashing is being done, it will be easier to remove any that has been dropped on the floor.

The Piccadilly Circus

A creation of a Master

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will live forever—so will Kent's immortal Ode on a Grecian Urn. It is a farce from music and poetry to headwear, but the Piccadilly Circus is a hat that is nothing short of a master's creation. Its national popularity is so widespread that we doubt the existence of a correctly-turned-out man without one in his wardrobe.

FAILURE SLIPS ARE

SENT TO PARENTS

At the end of this last six weeks period, the teachers made out the failure slips for those who were failing. The number that were given out exceeds those of any other term, this being about six years out this last time.

Although these slips do not mean that the student is going to fail in the course, they do mean however, that if certain steps are not taken to break the poor work done in that course he is most certain to fail and consequently has to take the subject another year.

The object in sending these slips to the parent, isn't to let them know how poorly the child is getting along, but to release request for them to visit Mr. Gordon. Mr. Gordon believes that in talking to the parents directly the cause for failure can be found and thereby remedied.

He believes that perhaps the student has some peculiar habit or disease which retards him in studying properly. This disease may be in the form of ear trouble or a defect in eyesight or perhaps the student is harboring under the wrong attitude toward his or her teachers. Of course there are numerous other things that may be wrong but can be easily remedied by a complete understanding between parents, teachers and the student themselves.

We urge you to co-operate at the earliest time possible so that the students are given a chance to make up their work and avoid a repetition of the same thing the next six weeks.

TIP YOUR HAT

One phase of life which most of us consider as unimportant is politeness. It doesn't cost us anything to practice it, and yet most people deny themselves the privilege of being able to control their actions.

On the bulletin board in Mr. Gordon's outer office there appeared a few days ago a small unobtrusive scrap of paper with the following words carefully typewritten on it.

How many Senior boys tip their hats to the girls when they meet them on the street?

Now wouldn't that tie you! Out of nine Senior boys but two are habitual hat wearers. The rest believe in aiding the growth of the hair by not covering it. Our boys are politeness itself when they meet someone they are well acquainted with, but, oh, my! the salutations they utter to one another are not quite clear to those who happen to overhear them.

Here are a few examples of those overhead. Two young gentlemen of the Senior class met on the corner down town. First young gentleman: "Hi, Big Shot." Second young gentleman: "Hi, Speed, let's ankle down to the fountain fountains and get a lemon soda!"

Oh, yes, and way for debate was resolved that set back in an obscure corner is a set societies should be abolished tiny automobile. Thus teacher amuses herself by fancying her car "Elmer Westphal, Martin Sommer is a Fools Poyce," and she is about and Elmer Perrin. The affirmative to take a ride in it.

Of course different instructors collect different articles. For instance a certain English teacher, who positively abhors chewing gum, has several packages of gum hidden in her desk. No, she doesn't eat it; she should be exempt from exams.

The affirmative side consisted of a ride in the poor students' side were Rose Chargo, Ellen Hatt and Velma Blake. The score was 8-3 in favor of the negative side.

FRIDAY, May 3rd, the question for debate was: "Resolved that if a gum hidden in her desk. No, she doesn't eat it; she should be exempt from exams."

The affirmative side were Elmer Perrin, Francis Shengen, George Greenlee, the negative, Fred Kerr, Margaret Nos

The question debated on Monday, May 6th, "Resolved that examinations should be abolished." Ah,

Now it's all very well to say these things, but it really is a disgrace to keep one's desk in such a condition.

So here's a suggestion: Some time when the teachers aren't particularly busy, hold a rummage sale and dispose of all things which aren't important. I'm sure they'd bring in quite a sum.

If the instructors hold this sale the time will be announced later. So save your pennies children, you may need them.

Many valuable logs go into crosses when lumber would bring the woodlot owner much more if sold as saw logs. Following the wedding ceremony, the young couple left for San Francisco for a wedding trip, and upon their return they will make Atascadero their future home. Mr. Freydi went to California some two years ago for a brief stay but his plans are now to make that state his permanent home. The bride is a member of a well known and prominent family of the community in which she lives.

TELLS OF MANUAL TRAINING AND ITS START IN EUROPE

Paul Thompson, Director of Department, Writes Article

Paul B. Thompson, manual training director of the Northville schools, has prepared for the Northville Record an excellent article on manual training work and something pertaining to its history. The article is a commendable one and briefly gives a vast amount of detail about manual training. It follows:

"Some of the men who were leaders in this field also have been prominent in other branches of education."

"Gönenius was the first to advocate hand work in the schools."

"Late Gönenius promoted manual training in the schools of Finland."

"The Sloyd system was introduced into the Normal school in Sweden by Abrahamson and Salomon. The Sloyd system gets its name from the Sloyd knife, which was used considerably at this time. Practically all the articles made were carved out by hand with this knife. Most of the articles had a utility value in Russia, Victor Della Vos put theory into practice. The problems were abstract so as to teach only the principle."

"In 1876 manual training was first introduced into the United States by Funkel and Woodward. The American system was a combination of the Sloyd system and the Russian system. Today it is more highly developed due to improvement and development of machines and tools."

"Many people may wonder just what place manual training has in the high school curriculum. In the average high school it is taught more for its educational value in the larger high schools they are able to let the boy specialize in a particular field."

"In the past, manual training has been taught through woodworking. This was justified in that wood was one of the first materials used in the making of things. Today the wood working shop still has its place in the field of manual arts. At the present time wood working is only a branch of manual arts because today the boy meets more problems than did his parents when they were children."

"In this modern age with the automobile, electricity, radio, airplane, industrial machines, metal working, etc., and all these things about us demand a broader education for the boy. This has brought about more and highly specialized courses of study. For example, woodworking, wood finishing, auto shop, machine shop, architectural drafting, marine drafting sheet metal work pattern making, foundry work, radio, aviation, electrical work and many others."

"In the larger high schools it is possible to teach many of the industrial trades so that a boy can select a particular trade and specialize in his field. Then when he finishes high school he is qualified to enter a trade."

"Three Rivers, Grand Rapids, and Lansing are some of the cities of Michigan where the manufacturers are co-operating with their public schools in order that the boys can get actual shop experience by serving as apprentices."

"In the smaller high schools we must try and give the boy a general education in manual arts. A few years ago Mr. Bedell of Detroit, introduced into the schools of that city what is known as household mechanics. This is a very practical course for the smaller school in that it aimed to teach the boy how to do different jobs about his home. For example, fix a leaky water faucet, a doorbell and many other small jobs. Finally this course seemed to broaden out and now we have what is known as general shop."

"This course aims to give the boy an idea of the common industrial trades to teach the boy to meet the common everyday problems that occur in the home, to make him an intelligent buyer and consumer, to appreciate the materials and machines, the use and care of tools and equipment, and also for its trying value or trade tasting."

"Some of the subjects that can be listed under general shop are as follows: Mechanical drawing, pattern making, woodworking, wood finishing, metal work, plumbing, concrete work, glazing, electricity and heating. After completing a few jobs of each subject the boy has a general idea of that line of work and it will help him in the selection of his life work. All these different subjects are studied in the general shop course but the general outfit of shop equipment, etc., is not included."

"The Gossage, superintendent of schools of Portland, Ore., lists the following reasons for teaching manual training:

"1. Develops handiness, initiative and resourcefulness."

"2. Provides means for developing technical skill, aids in discovery of special interests and aptitudes in individual boys."

"3. Mental training and judgment forming."

"4. Offers the boy to do a man-sized job from its beginning to its completion."

"5. Introduces the boy to the common working terms in trade and industry."

"6. Directs and builds upon the natural instinct of the normal boy for making things through problems that are varied, interesting and practical."

"7. Instills the habit of work."

"8. Instructor is sometimes the only positive male influence that the boy meets at school and often becomes a powerful factor in moulding his mental activities during the important adolescent period."

"9. Helps to keep the boy in school."

"10. The attitude that is created in the boy toward his work, his fellow workers and American industry."

"To Adrian, Sunday morning, and spent the day in the Greenleaf Lincoln home."

"Mr. and Mrs. J. Beck and children of Ottawa Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carnian and son and G. J. Leach, all of Petersburg, spent Sunday with Mrs. Edith Burden in the C. W. Payne home."

"Sunday was a busy day at the 'Sail'em Inn.' The guests surely enjoyed the fine chicken dinners and all the home-made eats that go with it."

"Mr. and Mrs. Bert Greer of Brighton, spent Friday with their sister, Mrs. W. H. Tousley."

"Elmer Poccard and family of Northville, were Sunday guests in the Frank Burch's home."

"Mrs. LaVern Lewis spent Monday with her mother, Mrs. Fred Fader, Misses Irma Keeler and Lucille Angell and Mesdames H. Schroeder and E. Finkles were Detroit visitors Saturday afternoon."

"Mrs. Emma and Roy Kehrl spent Yesterdays Monday on business."

"The May meeting of the Thayer school took place Friday evening in the school house. All report having had a very pleasant meeting."

"Charles Manske and family visited his brother, Harry and family, in Straithmoor recently."

"Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Payne and their granddaughter, Evelyn, mo-

"her mother and mother's God more than to go to church. This is the biggest trouble you can give mother, and take her with you if she is living. There will be special features and music in the service next Sunday at 10:30 a.m. for mothers."

"Sunday school each Sunday, 11:45 a.m."

"The pastor has asked to give the address at the mother and daughter banquet in the M. E. church at Dixboro, Saturday evening at 7:00 p.m."

"The Excelsior class will hold their monthly school and business meeting in the church parlor Friday evening at 7:45 p.m."

"Friday, May 11th, the Ladies Auxiliary society will give their annual famous chow suey supper in the town hall, beginning at 5:30 p.m., all will be served. Other meat and vegetables will be served also dessert. All for $0.50. You cannot afford to miss this splendid meal. Come and bring your family."

"Rhubarb and strawberry jam is a good combination for this time of year. Chop up the rhubarb in inch pieces to make two quarts. Cover with about three-fourths quart of sugar and let stand for an hour or so. Crush one quart of strawberries after hulling and washing and mix with another three-fourths quart of sugar. Then combine with the rhubarb. Heat over a low flame until the sugar has dissolved. Increase the heat and cook quickly, stirring frequently to prevent burning. Cook for about 30 minutes or until fairly thick. Pour in hot sterilized jars, cover and seal."

"Cottontail rabbits show remarkable discrimination in selecting certain varieties of crops to eat. In Oregon they have been known to eat Arabian alfalfa down to the ground, but do no damage to other varieties in adjacent plots, and in Tennessee the mammoth yellow variety of soybeans is about the only one to suffer from their depredations. When the field is protected is not too large, it pays to build a rabbit-proof fence of woven wire netting."
