WM. MAYBURY STINSON CO. LAUDS SPIRIT OF NORTHLIVE TO BE ONE OF THE LARGEST

Community Benefactor

About Fair

President rumors that through a consolidation that is now being considered by the Stinson Aircraft Corporation, the former Northville aircraft corporation will become one of the largest in the country seems to have borne out by steps that have already been taken. While no positive information has been gained it is understood that there will be another in his addition to that at the plant in Wayne where engines will be manufactured and other expansion plans are being considered.

The same officials who have guided the business interests of many Edward Stinson, William Mara and Bert Jacobson and their various executive department heads, it is understood, will remain in complete control of the great business they have worked up.

Directors of the Stinson Aircraft Corp. have approved a proposal for the purchase of Stinson Corp. by the Cord Corp. William A. Mara, secretary of the Stinson Corp., said today:

"Northville has every reason in the world to feel proud. It takes a lot of public spirit and pride to make successful such a fair as was held here a few days ago," declared William H. Maybury, loyal friend and booster for Northville in a talk before members of the Northville Rotary Club Monday.

Mr. Maybury, the main speaker of the day, was not at all sparing in his good words for Northville. "It is a beautiful community. You have been blessed with many natural advantages and that is something you want to make the most of. The fair is a wonderful thing for this town. It should have the backing of every business man. People same may say that it doesn't help business at all. But I tell you it is good advertising for your town and anything that helps your town helps every business man in the town," he said.

He paid particular tribute to Marvin Sloan, who conducted the race meet this year, and Harry Clark, who had charge of the horse show. Mr. Maybury declared that you couldn't see any better races at any state or county fair in Michigan; and you couldn't see any better horse show in the country than those held during the Northville fair. He praised the generous spirit of Phil Grennan and said, it was acts of this that made for progressive communities.

The poultry show was something entirely different. No other place in the country ever attempted anything like it. It is something that we can all be proud of," he said.

He declared that it was a pleasure for him to do what he had done as Northville had during the eleven years he had been directing the affairs of the William H. Maybury sanatorium had more than once displayed its friendship for him.

"I have wanted to do something for the community in return. I want you to know that I appreciate this friendship and that it means everything to me. To the Northville means almost as much as does my birthplace and home—the place where I have always lived and expect to remain until my days are over—Detroit."

Dr. Richard Bailey gave a brief but interesting report of the work of the crippled children's committee, of which he is chairman, and Edward Langford talked briefly on the meaning of Rotary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simmons expect to leave Saturday for their annual winter stay in Florida. This is the sixteenth time that Mr. and Mrs. Simmons have escaped the winters of Michigan. Mr. Simmons states that once in a while he has a desire to remain here and see how a little zero weather seems. Their winter home is at Clermont, one of the beautiful little communities of Florida.

Charles Hinman is moving from Northville to Plymouth, where he expects to make his one with his son in the future.

JUDGE THROWS HANNA CASE OUT

After hearing evidence presented by Edward Perrin, Bert Crouch and others in the charge brought by Margaret Leaver, an employee of the Wayne County Training School against John Hanna, an employee of the village street department, Judge Richter threw the case out of court, declaring that he had heard enough of it and that there was no cause for action.

The young woman, charged that she had engaged Hanna to drive her out to the training school, and that before they reached the place that he had robbed her, the charge preferred being larceny by trick.

When the case came to trial in circuit court, attorneys from the law offices of George B. Yerkes, waived a jury trial and stated that they would be satisfied to have the judge hear the case.

The judge took the testimony of most of the witnesses for the prosecution and heard three or four witnesses that Hanna had with him. It was during the testimony of Leonard Pouch, a bus driver for the Detroit Motor Company, that Judge Richter stopped the case, said he had heard enough of it, and dismissed the charges without further consideration. At the time the girl claimed the robbery took place, witnesses testified that Hanna was out on the Seven Mile road, when a bus accident had happened.

At the time of the alleged robbery the young woman claims that she did not know Hanna, but later someone pointed him out to her on the streets here in Northville and suggested to her that probably he was the man who committed the

SUPERVISORS MAKE ANNUAL INSPECTION

All High in Praise of Work of Dr. Haskell at Training School

Members of the Wayne county board of supervisors Tuesday made their annual inspection of the Wayne County Training School following a luncheon served to the hundred or so of official visitors.

Many of the new members of the board who had never before visited the institution were amazed at its extensiveness and the improvement that has been made, all within two or three years.

Dr. Robert Haskell was given high words of praise by members of the board who have direct charge of the institution in their talks that were made before the various buildings were visited.

The training school an institution created by the board of supervisors a few years ago is not one of the most important institutions of its kind in the country, and is regarded by social workers and others as one of the outstanding in America.

Commissioner of Schools, Post, Tracy McGregor and Milton Alexander, prominent in Michigan civic and welfare work and interested in the direct management of the training school in minute talks made it clear that they were delighted with the success of the institution and lauded the supervisors for having created it.

Members of the Wayne county board of supervisors, in session at Detroit, have voted without a dissenting vote $5,000 towards the support of the Northville-Wayne County fair for the present year.

The matter brought before the board by Supervisor Willard Ely of Northville township, was placed, in the budget by the finance committee of which Mayor John Lodge of Detroit is chairman, was passed by the committee without any question and when submitted to the board, it was quickly adopted.

The Northville-Wayne County fair is the only place that farms and the big institutions of Detroit and the county of Wayne which are located outside the city limits of Detroit have to make a competitive display of their stock, fruit and produce. Not only that, but it is the only time that the people of Michigan's greatest county have to see just what the institutions supported by their tax money do towards supporting themselves by products from the orchards and fields.

Some of the Wayne county institutions have dairy herds that rank among the best in the country. Not only do the herds produce practically all the milk used at these institutions, but the farms and gardens raise a very large part of the table supplies.

Prize products raised through the labor of inmates, patients and training school boys and girls constitute a very large part of the wonderful displays made every year at the Northville-Wayne County fair.

Many of the supervisors from about the county who were invited to visit the fair this year by Supervisor Ely were surprised at the great display they saw. They said the fair was one of the best they had seen—but why shouldn't the fair of Michigan's biggest county be the best fair in the state?

Supervisor Ely has never lost an opportunity to work for the benefit of the fair, while attending board sessions and as a result there is a very kindly feeling towards Michigan's best fair, if not the largest.

late news received by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Boddy from England relative to the condition of Mr. Boddy's health, but that his condition was exceedingly critical. He was injured in an automobile accident the day before he had planned to sail for home.

An announcement of the essay contest has already been made in the schools and children have begun their search for data. The Northville Library has some data on Mr. Edison and the Detroit Library is filled with it. The local librarian may possibly be able to secure some books from the state or Detroit library, but application should be made early as there is but a few days left to secure the data and write the essays.

The essays are to be turned in to the teachers of the various grades and delivered to Supt. William Gordon of the schools on or before the close of school Tuesday afternoon, October 15. That gives each boy and girl considerable more than a week to try for a prize and to do much of the life and works of probably the greatest inventors of all time. Today is the time to start work on your essay if you have not already done so.

PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

The second meeting of the P.T.A. will be held in the gymnasium at 3:00 o'clock Thursday, October 10th.

Miss Cawell will have charge of the meeting and will talk on "What Training Should A Child Receive From Kindergarten." A general discussion will follow.

Every mother is urged to be present. If you have never attended a meeting, this is a good time to start. Come and meet your child's teacher and the mothers of your community. We need every home represented in our organization.

Want to Play Good Game of Bridge? Then Read Record

Through arrangements completed with Wynne Ferguson, widely known bridge teacher, lecturer and writer the Northville Record is able to offer a series of thirty-six articles on bridge. These articles will be released weekly under the heading of "Easy Lessons in Auction Bridge." This feature will appear exclusively in this territory in this paper, beginning with this week.

More bridge is being played than ever before and in order to master the greatest of all games it is necessary to learn the bidding and play properly, and it is essential that a recognized authority be followed. If you are a beginner the lessons will prove a great help and if you are already familiar with the bridge game the problems and solutions will afford much wholesome entertainment and recreation.

Don't miss an issue of the Record. The first lesson is released in this issue.

PENNIMAN-ALLEN THEATRE WILL OPEN SUNDAY NIGHT WITH TALKING PICTURES

GOVERNOR WILL SPEAK AT SALEM ON OCTOBER 15

Fred W. Green to Open
This Year's Church
Night Program

The Northville Penniman Allen will open Sunday evening at 7:00 o'clock with talking pictures, the management having just installed one of the best talking and sound equipments that could be purchased.

The improvement gives to Northville just as high class of amusement as can be found anywhere and places this community far in advance of most other places of similar size in the country. The installation of the talking pictures at a time when nearly only the theaters and large cities are putting this equipment in, is in keeping with the general policy of the Penniman Allen theater to rank at all times with the best and lead in places of this size.

The equipment, a product of the R. C. A. Photophone company, is regarded as the best there is manufactured. Preliminary tests show that it works out exceedingly well in the local theater. With the sound pictures also comes the music specially played for the presentation of the picture being thrown on the screen.

The first show that has been booked for the opening Sunday night is one of the big hits of the year. In fact all the pictures announced this week are among the best, it always being the practice of the Penniman Allen to present the best there is among the new pictures. There will be two shows each night.

Rev. Halliday expects to make an announcement as to additional meetings of the church night meetings that has ever been held in Salem.

AUTO COLLISION RUINS FRONT YARD

Death Removes Prominent and Life Long Northville Resident

Northville this week mourns the passing of one of its life-long and substantial citizens, Byron G. Filkins, expiring Monday, forenoon about 9:00 o'clock, after an illness of over six months. Not until a few days before his death did he give up and go to bed. It was seemly but a week or so before his death when he told some of his friends that he thought he was getting along fairly well.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Filkins, pioneer residents of Northville, he had always called Northville his home and except for a short time, when he was employed in Detroit, his entire life was spent there. Everyone knew him as "Tom" and everyone liked him. While never an applicant for any public office, he took an active and keen interest in everything which had to do with the improvement of the community he loved so well.

In business it was his golden rule to meet an obligation immediately and this steadfast practice followed to the very end of his life.

He attended school in Northville and when a young man he worked for the old Globe Furniture company as a moulder. Later he took a position with the government, and for 26 years was employed as foreman at the fish hatchery.

He was born in the old Filkins home on East Main street, September 5, 1867. It was on January 27th, 33 years ago, that he was wed to Miss May, Boeve, a daughter of another prominent pioneer family of this locality.

He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Knights Templar.

Besides Mrs. Filkins, an older brother, Mayor Charles Filkins, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Murphy and Mrs. Charles Doherty, survive.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at the Schrader funeral parlors, where associates of a lifetime and friends of more recent years paid tribute to his memory.

The services were conducted by Rev. William Richards, pastor of the First Methodist church. His remains were placed in the mausoleum at Rural Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Flint, who reside on a big fruit farm just north of Northville, are recovering from severe bruises received Tuesday while en route to Detroit. Just west of Farmington the steering gear of their car broke and threw the machine off the road and into a power line pole. Mr. Flint was buried from the car and badly bruised. Mrs. Flint was also injured, although she received no cuts as did Mr. Flint. They were given immediate attention and taken to their home in bed upon the suggestion of her physician. No bones were broken and they were fortunate in escaping more serious injuries. The car was badly wrecked.

VILLAGE COMMISSION
HOLDS NO MEETING

Members of the village commission did not meet this week because of the death of Byron Filkins, a brother of the mayor. The meeting will probably take place next Monday night, when there are several matters of importance to come before the members.

CHAMPIONS OF THE
1929 BABY SHOW

Ronald Floyd Salow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Salow of Northville is the boy champion of the 1929 Northville Wayne County fair. In the baby clinic he scored 554 points.

Little Miss Elsie May Mackey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mackey, 5559 Van Wormer avenue, is the champion baby girl. She scored .99 points. The full list of prize winners in the baby show are published on another page.

The mileage in Oakland county is approximately 20 miles; in Wayne county 25 miles and in Monroe county approximately 5 miles, states Mr. Hines.

The present Trunk Line No. 55 in Wayne county is to become a county road from New Boston to Romulus, Belleville and Sheldon.

While the activities of the County Road Commission in the construction of concrete highways are rapidly drawing to a close because of prospective weather conditions, the acquisition of wider widths of right-of-way is a continuous performance.

NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1929

FIRE HAZARDS.

The serious fire loss suffered last week in our neighboring little community of Milford brings forcibly to our attention conditions in Northville. Fortunate indeed is Northville because it has a splendid fire fighting equipment and an excellent fire fighting force. But that does not mean that there are no fire hazards within the very heart of the community. Every rubbish heap, every frame structure, every heating plant constitutes a fire risk. Let every one be careful, especially so, so that Northville will not suffer the similar disaster as Milford.

In this connection it might be well to call the attention of Northville to the fact that the week of October 5 to October 12 has been set aside by a governorship proclamation, as fire prevention week. It would be an excellent thing if Northville made a very careful check of its fire hazards and removed as far as possible all fire dangers. The governor's proclamation says:

"The work which will be accomplished during that period will result in a great saving of life and property; therefore it is essential that it be given the cooperation which movement deserves. It should be observed in cities, villages and rural communities to the fullest extent."

Herefore there has been a lack of extending fire prevention week activities into the rural districts where it is so much needed. A scattered population, numerous buildings grouped and no means or apparatus for fighting fire, the farmer is quite helpless in case his buildings take fire, facing the complete destruction of his accumulation of years. Therefore, it is hoped that the work may this year be extended into the rural districts.

"Great benefits would follow in the years to come if teachers in rural schools would instill in the minds of the growing pupils the most common dangers of fire on the farm and how to combat them with the suggestion that they closely watch for fire hazards, that their parents be advised and the property made safe.

"With the near approach of time for the starting of heating plants furnaces, stoves, pipes, chimneys, etc., should be placed in safe condition, rubbish removed and burned, all combustibles, gasoline, oils, paints, varnishes, etc. should be safely stored.

"The marked interest shown by the Michigan Fire Chief's Association in their efforts to make Michigan safe from fire furnishes an example of what may be accomplished by other similar organizations.

"Through the united action of the citizens of our state it is hoped that we may be able to continue to decrease the great unnecessary fire waste."

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Senator Charles Sink of Ann Arbor has been frequently mentioned in news dispatches and in political gossip as a prospective candidate for Lieutenant Governor in the next Republican primaries. We note that the report is more than mere political gossip and that it will be fact. Senator Sink has served the state over a long period of years both in the house and senate of the legislature. His public career has been marked by conscientious service to the end that warrants political advancement. If Senator Sink desires to be the Lieutenant Governor of Michigan the voters should see to it that he has the place without even a contest. He is a worthy citizen, an ideal public official, just the kind of man that is needed to assist in directing state affairs.

GOOD LUCK TO YOU

The many friends of Rev. Frank Knowles will be glad to know that he is not going a great way away from Northville. The news that he has accepted the pastorate of the church at Garden City, some fifteen miles from here, is pleasing to his many Northville friends. He has the best wishes of every one. May his future years be as beneficial as has been the past.

TOO MUCH NIGHT LIFE?

A banker in a middle western city was asked a few days ago what the effect of the enormous number of automobiles is on the country life in his section.

"Well," he said, "of course we consider that it is necessary for a farmer to have an automobile in these times, and most of them own cars. But many of them do not know how to use them beneficially."

"That is particularly true of the younger men," he went on. "There are many of them who will come into our city after doing a day's work and spend the evening at theaters or hotels."

"Then after they get through they have to drive an hour or so to their farm, and it is long after midnight before they get to bed. The result is that they are tired the next day. Many of them do that very frequently, and they do not work with the energy that they used to."

Perhaps this gentleman was too pessimistic, and imagined that what was true of a few of the people of his section was true of most of them. But the possession of an automobile is a temptation to people to spend a lot of time in night life. The young farmers are not the only ones who succumb to it.

EATING FOR EFFICIENCY.

Eat the proper foods slowly and carefully and you will avoid many ills that mankind is heir to; for the man who said that more people died from over-eating than from starvation was absolutely correct.

This does not mean that you must be a faddist and immediately drop meat, fish eggs and bread from your diet. These are acid-producing foods but they are healthful foods and should be continued. Reduce the portions, however, and substitute large quantities of green vegetables, milk and fresh fruit—practically all of which will be found listed among the "alkalines". Even oranges and lemons, so often thought of as acid, are decidedly alkaline in their ultimate reaction, and are now given freely as preventives or cures for acidosis.

Eat your breakfast orange, drink lemonade, eat plenty of salads and fruit cups, drink milk, milk, and get up from the table before you feel overloaded. Do these things and you will soon begin to feel the benefit of sane dieting.

ANOTHER GONE.

Business men of Williamson have at last induced the two newspaper publishers of that place to consolidate their papers and publish but one newspaper for the community. Williamson is one of the few communities in the state that had supported two newspapers, not either one of them representative of the excellent community in which they existed. The business men of Williamson, like those in Howell, Charlotte and many other places have found that it is to their distinct disadvantage to have two papers and they have been able to bring about consolidations which in every case have proven beneficial to the community.

One of the Greatest Pictures of the Present Season, has been booked for the Opening Sunday and Monday Nights.

Straight from the gay boulevards and the famous Folies Bergere of Paris he comes to you—the man whom millions have hailed as The World's Greatest Entertainer!

New York raved about him when he dazzled packed houses at Ziegfeld's famous Midnight Frolic. "For the first time the show was stopped dead still by a performer—Chevalier! What a debut" said The New York Telegraph. "Chevalier is the greatest entertainer the public has ever seen!" declared The New York Evening Post. "Charming personality, delightful voice and a dynamic quality like Jolson at his most electric best!"

Hear him sing "Louise"—especially written for Chevalier in this picture and already a popular song hit. Hear him put across other big song numbers as only he can.

SEVENTH GRADERS WRITE OF IMAGINARY LIFE IN HOLLAND

The seventh grade geography classes have been studying Holland and wrote stories describing their imaginary experiences in that country. Two of the best papers, one from each section are published below.

I Live in Holland

By David Martin

I live in Holland and my mother has a lot of goats which I take to pasture every morning. We have a great number of goats—large and small. As goats climb a lot, my main task is to see that they will not fall and be injured or killed.

One afternoon a little goat got on a high steep cliff and before I could get there to aid him, he fell into the rocks below and lay very still. A hurried down and saw his foot was bleeding. He could not walk so I carried him home immediately and cared for him until he was well again.

The little goats have very running ways which one soon notices

while watching them at play.

They enjoy knocking one another over and play a game similar to our "Follow the Leader."

I carry my lunch with me which usually consists of cheese, sandwiches and a bottle of milk or buttermilk. Sometimes my brother accompanies me; then we have a picnic.

When I get the goats home, mother and father milk them, and they are put in the barn for the night.

In the evening, after we have our supper my dad will sit for hours smoking his pipe and telling us very interesting stories.

Do you think this is a very interesting, healthy life for a young boy?

My Trip to Holland

By Violet Johnson

I live in Holland, which is a very picturesque country. The houses are whitewashed and are very neat.

I think it is a very interesting country, though I haven't lived here long. But I know quite a little about it. I love to see the windmills go around. Do you know what the windmills are for? They are to keep the sea out, if they did not keep jumping all the time then they would be up water again.

I went for a walk yesterday and I saw many tulips—they were the prettiest colors. The people are very busy. The dogs even work. The Dutch make good cheese and butter. I have had some of it.

But they don't very often eat it themselves. They are always trading

Canada and everywhere because they need all the money they can get.

I saw the Rhine river. I think it is very big. I saw cities from Germany, France, Belgium and Holland. That is why they call the Rhine the gateway of travel because so many countries use it.

I saw some men cutting old diamonds. They look just like stones.

I think it is wonderful how they can change them so. I was in Amsterdam most of the time. That is the place they cut out the diamonds. I like Holland a lot, but I think I will be glad to get back home to America. I am coming home in two weeks.

The first practice took place Tuesday, October 1st, at 4:00 o'clock. Mrs. Stalker intends to select at least three teams. The exact method of choosing the teams has not yet been decided upon, but classification according to gym classes seems to be the most popular.

When the teams are organized, there will be a series of contests on the elimination plan, and the losing teams will entertain the winners.

Mr. Ralph Johnson, English instructor at the University of Michigan, will give a lecture recital of Charles Reade's "Knock, Knock."

It was a fine experience being in the stadium as the Michigan band marched along the field playing "The Victors" and the high school students appreciate the University's sending them tickets.

DEBATING SQUAD HOLDS MEETING

The Debating Club held an important meeting Monday evening in Miss Mitchell's room.

The purpose of the meeting was to appoint committees for reception to be given after the lecture recital by Ralph Johnson. The following committees were appointed:

decorating committee: Warner Neal and Bernice Clark. After the committee met, Professor G. E. Densmore who has charge of the Michigan High School Debating League

He was interested in knowing the squad's opinion of the subject for debate and whether or not they had expressed any preference for either side of the question.

Education's Value
It has been estimated that the daily value of education in an elementary school is $9; in a high school, $10, and in a college, $100. This study was based upon a survey of less than a thousand people, and for that reason it is subject to inaccuracy.

DOUBT IS RAISED ABOUT "BUTCH" AND FISH STORY

Mio Committee Says
Something is Wrong
Somewhere

The Northville Record has received the following communication with a request that it be published without any alterations or any omissions being made. Accompanying the letter is a sort of semi-threat of great bodily damage to the Record editor if it is not all used. Rather than run a chance here goes:

Northville, U. S. A.

Dear Record—

The Mio Mo boys have all read the article written for last weeks Record by Ray Richardson and Ernest Miller pertaining to that fish that Butch Baldwin didn't catch up at Big Star lake. The only part that we regard as true about the article is the fact that Butch didn't catch the fish. But when it says that he cut the line and let the fish go—well that's something different, so much different that we are prone to let the real truth be known.

In the first place there is no fish west of Mio that will weigh as much as Butch. We know that. In the next place, we know Samuel Moses Washington Lincoln and we know him to have never told the truth from the time he left Alabama and located on the shores of Big Star, and we know that he is unable to distinguish the difference between a fish and a braying mule. Possibly Butch caught one of the brayards, but we know he never caught a fish even if Ernest Miller and Ray Richardson say he did.

As to that bark eating vegetarian from Battle Creek, we know others like him. We know that if he ever saw anyone as big as Butch he would think maybe it was a whale, why a meat dealer should depend on the word of any vegetarian to bolster up his tony is more than we can tell. Of course you can't blame Butch so much as you can the fellows that have tried to make folks in Northville think that Butch really did at one time in his life have a fish on the end of his line.

We have known Butch for years and years and years. We have fished with him and fished around him and we know that as far as any man knows Butch never caught anything bigger than a minnow out of a minnow pall.

You have heard about his spearing a fish up at Walled Lake at one time? Well, all you have got to do is ask Bob Brown of Mt. Clemens about it. It seems that Butch, who has never been able to catch a fish thought maybe he might spear one of the of the Northville fishing sharks have a habit of lying a little now down in the water to attract big fish up under the ice hole that they are presiding over, then spear the big ones. All the boys except Butch had been bringing in some nice big pike.

"I got one, boys," yelled Butch. Everybody ran to his fishing hole. What did he have? Nothing more than a minnow that Bob Brown let him take to fish with. Butch had put the minnow on the ice and when nobody was looking speared it through the gizzard and then yelled "I got one."

There is another reason we don't want anybody to get fooled on this business. When we fish, we fish at Mio. There's where the fish are. Our own Nelson Schrader caught one up there one time that was nine feet and three inches long. He brought back to Northville the head of that fish so folks knew he told the truth about it.

Now Butch didn't even bring a scale home to show us. All he brought home was a lot of hot fair from a bark eater, a southern colored gentleman and a fellow who admits that his name is part har. We want to be honest, something more, than not an acre a picture of a man with one foot in the mouth of a dog fish. We know from the looks of the picture, that it was a specially posed one just like those that you see down in Florida where they have stuffed alligators and fish for you to set on, then send pictures back north to your friends showing what you are doing down there.

Sometimes we are going to take the time to investigate that Miami fish story. There's something fishy about that, we know. We know it must be fishy because Butch had his picture taken with a fish down there. It seems that whatever he does gets some fish dead alive or stuffed to have his picture taken with it. That's fine business for the fish and photographers.

Knowing Butch as we do and knowing the habits of fish that he tries to catch, we are asking you to set this matter straight. We are asking it in behalf of Mio and the fishermen who fish there—and we are asking it in behalf of truthful fish stories.

Signed,

Dr. E. V. Gayell

Though Bermuda grass is an extremely persistent plant, it may be eradicated when the land is wanted for other purposes by taking advantage of its peculiarities. Bermuda grass will bear almost unlimited heat, drought or sunshine, but it cannot live where shaded. To clear a field of Bermuda grass, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, plow in September and plant oats, rye, barley or some other winter crop. When that crop is harvested the ground should be disked or plowed at once and then planted to peas or velvet beans. When the pea or bean crop is removed there should be little or no Bermuda grass left. This gives two profitable crops during the year and leaves the ground in prime condition for corn or cotton the following season.

A recent report of the Better

Breed Stock Campaign conducted by the Bureau of Animal

Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, shows 47 states and more than 17,000 members enrolled in this work. In the eradication of undesirable bulls, Kentucky heads the list with three counties free from all grade and scrap bulls.

So all praise to Northville folks,

Almost any combination may be used for fruit cup or fruit salad, but there should be included, if possible, something pleasantly酸, such as orange or grapefruit, or tart sliced apple. Some of the best fruits to include in such a mixture are pineapples of peaches, fresh or canned, cantaloupe, cherries, fresh or canned, apricots, dates, prunes, figs and grapes with seeds removed. Almond meats are an agreeable addition, and also berries, in season. The fruits should be cut in small attractive pieces, and they should not be stirred about or they will look mushy and shapeless. Fruits for salad are not sweetened, those for fruit cup generally need a little sugar sprinkled over them before serving time.

Grape juice can be used for fruit gelatine, either pure or diluted to taste.

To make a quart of gelatin soak one envelope of gelatin in half a cup of cold juice for a few minutes.

Put one cupful of juice on the fire with half a cup of sugar and when boiling dissolve the softened gelatin in it. Add the rest of the quart of grape juice, one tablespoon of lemon juice and strain into a mold. Serve with plain or whipped cream when set.

Try baking sweet potatoes and apples together. First boil the sweet potatoes in their skins.

Peel and slice. Arrange with alternate layers of sliced apples.

Sprinkle each layer with brown sugar and dots of butter. Put about half a cup of water in the bottom of the baking dish. Finish the dish with a layer of sweet potatoes, over which brown sugar and buttered crumbs should be spread. Bake until the apples are done and the top is brown.

Many growers of common vetch

in the Southern and Pacific states have found that early fall seeding of this plant which is less hardy than hairy vetch reduces the damage from winter killing. Some growers make heavy seedings to reduce injury from winter killing, but where the winters are mild the resulting thick stands are detrimental to the yield of seed.

A fair outlook for the sheep industry for next year, due partly to high prices for competing meats and to the fact that the 1929 lamb crop is smaller than that of 1928, as indicated in a recent sheep and wool outlook report issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The East Window of the Ghost Room

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"GOOD night, my dear," said Miss Carow, with a final glance about the large dining room with its fine old four-poster bed and other mahogany furniture. "Ah, don't open the east window. Esther, the shutters are fastened securely." Open the south window, it looks out on the garden.

Esther looked over her shoulder. "Oh, Aunt Fannie, I would like to open both windows!"

"I would rather you did not," Esther said. "The shutters are solid wood and cannot be opened."

"Very well, auntie, but have been just longing to go to bed with the sound of little waves lulling me to sleep."

"I know, my dear—perhaps you can hear the waves in the inlet from the garden window." In her bedroom the smile died from Miss Carow's lips and she shook her head doubtfully.

"I should have made Esther come in here with me if the wind is in the east tonight and she might be frightened!" Softly she stole down the hall and tapped on Esther's door. Esther was leaning from the open window, as if basking in the fragrance of the moonlit garden.

She turned quickly at Miss Carow's high touch.

"Auntie, it is glorious!"

"The scent of roses is always delicious at night," sighed Miss Carow, who looked a dead ringer for Esther in her warm heart.

"Come back to tell you not to be frightened for the night—come to my room if you cannot sleep."

"No sleep? I shall sleep like a baby on that inviting bed," laughed Esther, and when the door closed she put out the light and prepared for bed.

The next morning she met Ida Graham, a distant cousin. "Sleeping in the east room?" The haunted room, Esther?

"Hnnnn."

"Of course Aunt Esther wouldn't tell you, but no one wants to sleep there."

"Nonsense," laughed Esther. "I shall love it all the more."

But at night it was different.

alone in her room she regarded the closely shuttered east window with expectant eyes. A last glance into the garden revealed it to be a mysterious place of shadow forms and scented darkness.

"Br-r-r-r!" shivered Esther, as she snuggled under a blanket.

When she awoke a clock somewhere was striking two, and on the blurred murmur of the last stroke came the sound of a hollow groan.

Esther sat upright in bed, again she heard the groan, as of some one in agony, and immediately afterward she heard a sound somewhere close at hand, a movement and a little thump. Then silence. Then groan, repeated again and again.

It seemed to come from the corner near the east window.

"What is the noise?" asked Esther.

"Keep it closed tightly," shuddered Esther, and just then someone rang softly on her door.

"Aunt Fannie," thought Esther. "She is afraid I have heard it."

"What is it?" asked Esther.

Petham, on his tramp through the woods, but they did not talk through the window, as if basking in the fragrance of the moonlit garden.

"It is the wind," assured Esther.

"I am not afraid of ghosts," replied Esther, smiling.

"That day," Esther said, "the wind was blowing through the disturbance of the night. Miss Carow had never believed in ghosts till the mystery of the haunted room came to confound all her past theories."

The next day Esther said nothing of the strange sounds she had heard, although one of the paying guests, a young artist, who was painting the lovely Long Island shore, talked a great deal about a sleepless night due to the moon.

That day Esther accompanied Petham on his tramp through the woods, but they did not talk through the window, as if basking in the fragrance of the moonlit garden.

"Esther," Esther was not sure whether she really cared for John Petham; she had met him last year for the first time, and this renewal of their friendship had brought a most disturbing flutter to her heart.

A few days after this tramp in the woods the wind came out of the east and howled around the house all night, and the restless ghost came to haunt the east room once more. Toward morning Esther went to the window, as if basking in the moonlight, and the ghost was not there. Esther was not sure whether she really cared for John Petham; she had met

The Freshness of a Youthful Skin

THE surest aid to the attainment of a lovely, youthful complexion is the proper use of that face powder best suited to your particular type of beauty.

Among these five popular favorites—Shari, Georgia Rose, Jonteel, Cara Nome and Duska—you will surely find the delicate shade that will impart to your skin the satiny smoothness and enduring charm which all desire. Each of these exquisite powders is delightfully scented with an alluring fragrance that is all its own.

But remember this—face powder should never be used without first applying a foundation of vanishing cream, preferably the companion product of your favorite face powder. Otherwise the powder will enter the pores and remain there to cause enlarged pores and possibly blackheads.

And again—don't apply face powder haphazardly. Merely slapping the powder on your face does absolutely no good. The wise user always gently and carefully rubs the powder into the skin with a chamois or powder puff until it becomes quite invisible.

If you have not already used one or the other of these really wonderful face powders, you should visit your Rexall Drug Store and make your choice.

Valuable Lives

Mexican News Good, Bad All About Strange Man

Intellectual Americans paid $100 to see Mr. Tom Loughran fight Mr. Jack Sharkey, a Lithuanian who borrowed his fighting name.

The gendemen, who are "heavyweights" in more sense than one, fought three rounds. Sharkey won. Mr. Loughran technically knocked out.

The same crowd will pay $300, 600 more later to see them fight three more rounds, with Mr. Loughran winning.

After that will come the deciding match. Sad, dull days for those who crave brutality.

Of all big business, life insurance biggest. Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, predicts an increase in life insurance from one hundred to two hundred billions by 1930, while discussing problems involved in the investment of four thousand million dollars held in trust for policy holders.

Two hundred billion dollars' insurance on the people of the United States seems farfetched. But it averages less than $200 per inhabitant. It's a poor American that isn't worth more than that.

Two pieces of Mexican news—one good, one bad—for Mexico's people. With excellent intention, Mexico plans to let Mexican labor raise itself by its own bootstraps. That is the bad news.

Employers hiring more than twenty workers must make collective contracts with all. An employer for any reason letting men go, even closing down for lack of business, must continue paying wages for three months.

Such laws if established, would drive capital and prosperity out of Mexico.

It would expel the only automobile factory in Mexico, which belongs to Henry Ford.

Mexico's good news tells that the number of her schools has doubled within a year. The government plans public school education for every child in the American plan.

Man is a strange animal. David Bernstein, Brooklyn tailor, deliberately killed 3 men against whom he did no grudge, passing him off as a shot at railroad platform in Brooklyn. No one saw him. He confessed to the police.

Insane, probably.

The immigrant machinery of New York decided to kill Frank Pilla in the electric chair. At one appointment they threatened the electric chair program.

A good surgeon, hired at public expense, restored Pilla to the death house. Out of kindness he is allowed to play cards with his partner in crime, Michael Scuff, a van separating them.

Strange uses of science, killing men by electric, saving their lives by surgery, that the electricity may kill them, treating them kindly while waiting for the chair. A cat does no worse with its mouse.

Earth's 1,500,000,000 people are not QUITE CIVILIZED YET.

Further details concerning the massacre of 4,000 Mohammedans by Chinese in Kansu province show that the human race has still some distance to travel.

Of late Mohammedans had been murdering Chinese. Then came famine, most desperate, among the Mohammedans, who were invited by Chinese officials to come to Luchow for a conference with promises of roasted barley.

When they came, men from fifteen to fifty were separated from the women, taken outside the walls and "2,000 of them hatched like sheep." When they saw that they were to be killed the Mohammedans asked no mercy.

After the famine the Mohammedans as well as the Chinese, for each Mohammedan killed in the massacre.

So it goes among human beings, most cruel and blood thirsty of all unissons.

Senator Borah says that President Hoover must go through to the end and assume responsibility for the tariff. That new view of the President's duty interests Mr. Hoover and the people.

The old idea was that Congress should write the laws, the President approve or veto them, the Supreme Court interpret them.

Mr. Mussolini would agree with Senator Borah's suggestion.

Uncle Sam collected from his nephews this year $200,000,000 more than he needs. President Hoover and Secretary Mellon are said to agree that income taxes can safely be cut.

It is said that collecting the income tax is costing the government $500,000,000 a year, which seems a great deal. It should be possible to find a better system.

Violent earthquakes in western Hawaii indicate to scientists approaching volcanic activity. Doctor Jagger, government volcano expert, fears that the great volcanoes, Kilauea, Mauna Loa and Hualalai, will erupt simultaneously.

"THE MIRACLE" TO BE PRESENTED IN DETROIT 4 WEEKS

Dramatic Spectacle to Dearborn Plans Greatest Open Oef. 7 in Olympic on Grand River

October 21st

"The Miracle" that Detroit will see for four weeks beginning Oct. 7, is the world's greatest dramatic spectacle. Its appeal is unique. Harvey S. Firestone, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Henry Ford, and a host of other notables will step from passenger coaches used in the history of American railroading onto the platform of the Smith Creek depot within the grounds of the American Museum, on the morning of October 21st, Dearborn.

Coming to Dearborn from Michigan Central station, in Detroit, the actors are the exits and entrances of the theater. The processions with their lighted tapers, images and banners move through the audience. The music and choruses burst from all quarters when his experiments in a coach.

The six or seven hundred actors went away, causing an explosion. And from the time the guests of honor arrive in Dearborn until their feet will touch for the first time upon landing in this city, the spectators up the audience, and makes it a part of the play. It would be scattered around the fifth floor, the same if it were presented outside, as indeed it has been presented abroad. The stars, the trees and all nature then would be a part of it. That is the genius of "The Miracle."

At this vast in production scale, the universal in theme, all of human strength and human weakness, there is the lure of the world's compelling drama of heaven, the quiet of the cloister, the revelry of royal courts, the grandness and wisdom of ordained governors, the beauty and madness of the mob. The "Miracle" though based on an ancient Christian legend, and medieval in structure, must always be contemporary, as human nature is. What "The Miracle" shows us is what takes places every day in the age of long conflict between the powers of god and evil—all other dramatic themes in the world, from the Greek stage to the Shakespearean and ours.

Major Clyde M. Ford of Dearborn one that "The Miracle" presents is a pageant, pantomime and music again, that is its genius.

The construction is so solid that the management has no embarrassment in inviting patrons of the play to inspect it. The lighting effects are beyond praise. The light filters through stained and leaded glass.

The house is dark save for the lights thrown from high above and in the rear which pick out the delicate tracery of pillars and arches and the glistening figures before the altar. The mechanics of the production are such as no theater audience has seen employed. The United States has an auditorium or arena that lends itself so completely as Olympia in Detroit, the only city in Michigan in which this gigantic spectacular drama will ever be played. It is ideal in height, width and length. Its acoustical properties are excellent for the music of the symphony orchestra, the organ and for the choir. And every seat is a good seat and can be reserved now by mail.

Councilman E. Hubbard introduced a resolution calling upon the mayor to declare October 21 a civic holiday and to issue a proclamation to that effect.

Councilman Clarence Ford, chairman of the committee appointed by the mayor to work with the Board of Commerce, made his report of the meeting with the Commerce group. He stated that elaborate plans were under way to decorate the city in

When "The Miracle" opens in Detroit next month it will be definitely presentation in its fifth American season. It has been seen in seventeen European capitals and in this country in New York, Cleveland, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Kansas City. No other city has been seen now by mail.

OLD TIME ENGINE TO BRING HOOVER, EDISON TO TOWN

DECLARES COURT ROOM ONE OF MOST BEAUTIFUL KNOWN

Mrs. J. B. Watts Has Found Out Much About Federal Justice Hall

A piece of iron heads surround the room, no two faces alike. There are said to be thirty-six on a side.

There are two pillars, one at either end of the bench. These came from Italy. Five times pil-ars were sent before two were readmitted in perfect condition.

The black marble comes from Italy and is very rare. The me-dalions are of Mexican onyx, as are some of the borders around the arches. This is very difficult to do.

The globe, which hangs over the bench, represents the Ten Virgins, denoting the purity of justice.

The gavel used by Judge Tuttle was made from the oak rolling pin of His Honor's mother.

Back of the bench, on the wall,

the old Roman hatchets at either end of the arch, calling to mind the old Roman custom of carrying the hatchet into court by factors whose functions were to attend a magistrate in order that they might meet with the committee from the city council: Clarence Ford, E. G. Muller and E. B. Hubbard represented the council at the meeting.

The carvings in marble, Greek

Key and other designs are all embolic of some phase or branch of the law. There are beautiful wood carvings, particularly on arches. Over doors, mosaic designs in door and entrance.

The pictures in the colored glass over windows represent, first, the department of justice (the scales), second, the post office (postman on horse-back); third, the treasury department (the shield). The Americian flag is also in the middle back of and over the bench. There are pictures on the wall of Stanley

Mathews, assistant justice of the supreme court, 1881-1883; Halmoe

H. Emmons, assistant justice of the supreme court, 1870-1878; John Mc-

Lean, assistant justice of the supreme court, 1829-1831; Noah H.

Swaine, assistant justice of the supreme court, 1832-1833. The Detroit post office occupies the site from which in 1796 was founded the bastions of old Fort

Shelby.

The plans of the committee are to light the city hall, and the public library for the week preceding October 21st and to have a continuous row of American flags on both sides of Michigan avenue from Wyoming avenue to Telegraph road planned.

A City of New Telephone Buildings

IN 1926, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company entered upon the largest expansion program in its history. The intervening three years have witnessed the engineering and construction of 25 new telephone buildings and major building additions throughout the state.

Grouped together, these structures, housing thousands of telephone workers and millions of dollars' worth of equipment, would make an imposing "business city."

But this building construction represents only a portion of the extension of telephone plant by this Company during that period. Total expenditures for telephone plant expansion in Michigan the past three years were $72,000,000, greatly increasing facilities and improving the service. This is a continuing program, for as business and social activities increase, demand for still greater telephone expansion develops.

This plant expansion and improvement would be meaningless if it were not translated into terms of service and a desire to afford increasing telephone comfort, convenience and satisfaction, and to meet the growing needs of the state.

Our policy—"To continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety."

ARTICLE No. 1

"Bridge," Baer, the well-known humorist, doubled by his partner, has assigned lots of his own ideas of the game to his opponents. This player is given to illustrate the fact that every Bridge player is really playing three people, his two opponents and his partner.

The present game of Bridge is derived from the ancient Persian game of Caturanga. It is played by four people, two on a side, and eight pieces, who act as the bishops. The most important part of Bridge is the feature known as the convention. This idea was derived from the Signal Corps of the United States Army. The conventions inform your partner what cards you hold in your hand.

Having bid one club, the bidder looks at his partner like a mouse in a barrel. The convention means that he wants to be taken out.

"His partner takes him out by bidding three spades. This takes his partner out, but puts them both in deeper. The opponents glare at each other. The dealer then bids five diamonds and is

The mistakes that most players will make with this hand are as follows:

(1) Allowing A to win the first trick. In this case, if the ace of spades is played from Dummy on the second round A can defeat the contract if he refuses to win the first trick in hearts.

(2) A great number of players after winning the first trick with the ace of spades in Dummy would make Dummy lead a club, which, according to

COMING ATTRACTIONS at the PENNIMAN ALLEN

CHEVALIER'S ART STARS ALL WHO SEE, HEAR HIM

A perfect stage presence is credited to Maurice Chevalier, Parisian movie star, and leading man in the Paramount all-talking and singing picture, "Innocents of Paris," which will be at the Penniman Allen theatre Sunday and Monday, October 6 and 7.

Chevalier, misinterpreted as Europe's greatest entertainer and for many years has been the reigning king of the Folies Bergere, Femina, and the Casino de Paris. For a time he was featured at the Palace Musical Hall celebrated London theatre, where he played with the beloved Elsie Janis of "A. E. F. and musical comedy" fame.

Chevalier's methods are entirely his own. Seldom does he do the same things in two successive performances, as his audiences will learn when they see "Innocents of Paris." In this production, he sings "Valentine," a French number, several different ways, with impersonations of such masters that even a child who knows no French can get a laugh and a thrill out of them.

MUSICAL SHOW FAVORITE DIRECTS SCREEN COMEDY

Joseph Stanley, who collaborated with Robert Moore in directing "The Cocoanuts," the talking screen's first musical comedy, which will show at Penniman Allen theatre October 8 and 9, was one of the favorites of the musical comedy stage before turning to moving pictures.

Stanley is an expert in stage musical comedy, having been connected with many outstanding hits both as star and director. During the four months previous to starting work on "The Cocoanuts," he studied and directed talking film at the Paramount Long Island studio.

The Cocoanuts, starring the Marx Brothers and featuring Oscar Shaw and Mary Eaton, in the romantic leads is the first picture to bring the methods of musical comedy to the screen. The story is subordinated to the music, singing, dancing and humor and the plot weaves in and out among a series of bright, laughing episodes which never for a moment become serious.

We applaud the effort and the art in its setting an old mansion, located on the East River, New York, in mid-winter, and near the shore the water is frozen in great blocks. It is the sound of these blocks smashing against one another with the movement of the tides that the audience will hear.

AUSTIN KIMMIS HIGHLY PLEASED AT CARD SHOWER

Former Northville Resident Has Many Friends in Kalamazoo

The following interesting letter has been received from Austin N. Kimmis, 1534 Morada Place, Pasadena, California, for many years a prominent resident of this vicinity.

Editor Record:

In writing this letter in bed,

where I have been most of the time for many weeks past, I trust you will make due allowance.

When the shower of cards came to me from Brother Knights, I resolved to send each of them a personal message. At about that time I was stricken with a fever which baffled my doctor. It put me to bed and has persisted until about a week ago. I am sentenced to a long period of recuperation. Will not trouble you with further details.

I was particularly pleased to receive your message. You know edge of me being limited to hearing. I was the more impressed with your greeting and good wishes.

In a letter to the Commandery I tried to tell something of the boy I had seen at the shower of good wishes and friendly expressions. However, I suppose not many Knights were present when it was read before the Commandery. I had before the Commandery. I

When I was a young man I spent two years at Kalamazoo College at that time Will Eaton was editor of one of the papers. I knew him well. Kendall Brooks was another, and Frank Haskell and Hodge were among the instructors. The Gibson Girls,

Gerrude and Edith now Mrs. Has-call and Mrs. Hodge were classmates. Frank Orcutt was one of my chums. Fred Britton, who has attained prominence as a newspaper man, was another chum with me. I still have close communication with all of these whom I have mentioned. Many other close friends now reside in Kalamazoo.

I look back at the time I spent there with very happy memories, although I was punished by the college faculty because I assisted in making some improvements to the college property, which did not meet their approval. Of those who took part I was the only one punished and it made me quite prominent among the students.

Please accept my letting my memory run back over the years. It came about because you are a member of Kalamazoo Commandery. Please accept my sincere thanks for your greeting and allow me to state that I enjoy the Record very much.

I congratulate you on making it a thorough modern paper.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

Austin N. Kimmis.

HUNT PARTRIDGE FROM OCTOBER 16 TO OCTOBER 20

Northville Hunters, However, Must Go North to Find Them

For the first time in three years on October 16th Michigan hunters will have a chance to hunt partridge.

The season of five days which opens October 16th and closes with the evening of October 20th applies to the Lower Peninsula only. The birds are still protected in the Upper Peninsula.

The partridge season was closed during 1927 and 1928. During several years for reasons not well accounted for, the bird had been diminishing in numbers not only in Michigan, but throughout the whole country. About 1925 the birds were at their lowest ebb. The following year there was some improvement, and in 1927 the birds were coming back in many places. A year ago and again this year, there was a marked increase sufficient to warrant a short open season in the Lower Peninsula this fall.

A real but rather weak beginning of recovery is reported from the Upper Peninsula, but not enough to justify opening the season in that section of the state.

Michigan was not alone in losing grouse. Every other state in which grouse are found has been experiencing the same thing. Almost every northern state has been carrying on investigations of the grouse scarcity and grouse diseases, but to date no factor has been proved to be the cause of these periodic decreases of birds.

In different localities conditions are not necessarily the same at the same time, as shown by the variance between the conditions in the Upper and Lower Peninsulas of Michigan. It is possible that the birds in the returning companies in the country, Frank Orcutt has long been the assistant postmaster at Kalamazoo and is still serving in that capacity.

Fred Britton is an editorial writer on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Violette's Second Proposal

By CORONA REMINGTON

IT'S dreadful not to be the least bit in love; not even to have anything hanging around to fall in love with. On every side, my fiance, my girl, my husband, my wife. Everybody had somebody—except Violette Frimstone. Then came John Hodges. He walked into her life as easily and unexpectedly as well, as most lovers do. The minute she saw him she knew he was going to propose to her.

"I'm mighty glad to meet you," he said, grasping her hand warmly. "There was something so spontaneous and outgoing about his nature that no one could help liking him, nor feeling liked by him."

"And so, your name is Violette? Has I use it?" he asked as they parted.

"I—I did you like it," she said, after a moment. "Yes, you may call me that."

For the girl at once had changed. The sun seemed to shine with a new significance. Her flowers bloomed just for her. Life was so important now, so real, yet so unreal. Could she be the same girl?

Surely not.

Hodges took her here, there, and everywhere. Each evening they were together, and often lunch time, found them seated across the table from each other in some quiet little restaurant. He wooed her impetuously, sent her flowers and bought her candy.

"You're so good to me," she said gratefully one evening as he was rising to go.

"How could anyone help being good to you?" he asked.

Violette flushed and stammered. He was going to propose, she knew. What would she say? What should she do?

"Violette, I—I love you."

He was drawing her into his arms, his eyes looked big and almost started wide to hers. "You lovely thing" he said reverently, kissing her.

Later in going over his every word for the fourth time it occurred to her that after all, he had not really proposed that he had not actually said the words, but of course he meant it; what he meant it? The rest of the night was not so pleasant, and by the time she finally fell asleep she was glad that she had only to live two little kisses.

The next morning she was dead tired and still remissful now a slight feeling not exactly of distrust but perhaps more a feeling of complete trust that she had always had when the w's with him. But it was so sweet to be told, and she had been so lonely.

"What makes you so quiet and solemn?" he'd asked her employer, "The last time you don't seem a bit like your happy little self."

Violetta quailed and looked down at her thermometer.

"I don't believe it's anything," she said at last.

"Well, you need my help or advice. Let me remember Jim Ross to straighten things out."

She wished him a grateful look and went to the ringing telephone.

"This is John Quinn," came the voice over the wire. "I'm so sorry I have a business engagement and can't down to take you to lunch today. So, so sorry dear."

So she went alone at noon and clowned to go to a delicate little tea room a few blocks down the street. She would not go to any of their favorite haunts. It would make her feel old.

She had been sitting there a few minutes when she recognized the back in front of her as James' own well tailored back. He was leaning across the table talking to a pretty girl.

"You know I love you," she heard him say in a low tone, and in her tortured mind Violette could see his eyes glowing as they had when he had kissed her the night before. She jumped up and hurried out of the tea room unobserved.

"Why, what's the matter, Violette?" her employer asked as she rushed into the office. "You haven't been gone ten minutes, and you look as if you'd seen a ghost."

"Oh, nothing, nothing, nothing!" she wailed, bursting into tears.

"Well, there's only one place for you to cry, and that's right here." He held her quietly in his arms and stroked her soft hair.

"You know," he was saying gently, "you need a man like me to shoulder your woes, and when you are tired or running around with that heavy load I'm going to propose to you, dear. I've been watching you, though, and I believe in letting a girl have it out. Sooner or later I'd find out he's not the kind for you, else I'm very much mistaken in him or you."

It was not romantic, this second proposal of hers—but it was so comfortable and safe and good.

"I'm through," she answered meekly a moment later. "I've found out but I would have had to have that first experience to be able to appreciate you. I know how there's a big difference between love and romance. There's some love that's romantic, but there is a whole lot of romance that isn't love."

"Right you are, but ours shall be both," he promised happily.
