A Prosperous Country

Ramsay MacDonald, elected head of the British Empire by the Labor party, is here, the first British Prime Minister to visit the United States while in office.

The Prime Minister is the most powerful man in England. The King, addressing his lords and commons, says: "I do not know what the Prime Minister tells him to say."

Miss "Usher" MacDonald, here with her father, will seem hopelessly old-fashioned to many of our rising female generation.

She does not smoke or drink alcoholic liquors and does not paint or powder her face.

And, most old-fashioned of all, she does look after her father and take a serious interest in public affairs.

If you see Ramsay MacDonald, Labor Prime Minister of Great Britain, you may also see Miss Rosie Rosenberg, vivacious, able young woman, the Prime Minister's private secretary.

Miss Rosenberg joined the Socialist party in London eleven years ago and has been MacDonald's secretary nine years.

Observe the differences between "democratic" America, and "representative" Great Britain. Here, if you join the Socialist party, and talk "that way," you stand a fair chance of being locked up in Great Britain you may become secretary to the Prime Minister.

The tragic rebellion of convicts in the Colorado state prison ended with 150 convicts walking out, hands raised above their heads, in surrender.

Four leaders of the rebellion and killed themselves. The convicts, at intervals, had thrown out of an upper window the bodies of guards captured and murdered by them, the warden having on each occasion refused to let them go free.

Once a prison inmate was a poor and miserable creature, with poor and miserable friends, if any.

Some women, said to be might come to see the man in the big log here, come to see him through the bars, saying, "Hello, my dear," a few cents' worth of tobacco.

That is all changed in these hooded days. Convicts have, outside the prison walls, gangster friends that control money unlimited and who can afford to buy privileges including drugs, even in the black brick cages in prison walls.

That drugs played a part in the Colorado rebellion, with its pitiless disregard for death and its unrelenting, deadly, deadly.

Quarrels will lead from the Colorado roads tragically to the prison, and especially to the jail, or other person in need in the prison, drug trade.

While our country is prospering, in spite of the fact that we are in the midst of a depression, the laborer collects more than the laborer in the United States in the same time, with one strike and another in a year as much as the United States used to spend before the war.

ABOUT NORTHVILLE

A couple of up-state editors dropped into Northville the other day and spent between six and seven minutes in this locality, maybe it wasn't quite so long. It might have been three. In the bird's-eye view of this section gleaned as they soared over it, Record readers might be interested in what the visitors had to say about Northville in their own papers after their return home from the night.

Editor Muri DeFoe, one time state senator, now postmaster at Charlotte as well as editor of the Charlotte-Republican-Tribune, wrote the following:

Northville, September 29.—The tremendous industrial expansion and corresponding prosperity of Detroit in the last dozen years is apparent to the traveler as he reaches Ann Arbor, Howell and even Port Huron to the north. But the first official notice of the great growth and wealth of this now fourth city in American leadership is picked up in Northville township in the northwestern corner of Wayne county. Detroit is using nearly 5000 acres of land in this corner of the county to handle three great philanthropic and social enterprises. The city's health plant—known as the Wm. H. Maybury Sanatorium, is immediate notice of health problems of a great city; the Wayne County Training School under the supervision of Dr. Robert H. Haskell, formerly head of the asylum for criminal insane at Topeka, already has seven hundred mentally underprivileged children and is one of the best schools of its kind in America; close by is the new Detroit House of Correction with the woman's unit carrying for a present population of 1400, only just completed. The west section of the prison across the road will not be ready for several months, and its size will rival the new Jackson state prison with its nearly sixty acres within the walls. These plants represent a startling outlay in taxes and calls attention to the fact that cities like individuals pay a heavy tribute for material success. Fame and wealth impose added responsibilities. This trio of official institutions represent after all the penalty the social order imposes upon human mass production. This writer, at a later date is going to tell of these marvelous institutions, each one a model to the best in the science it serves, in a series of editorial correspondence, but for this story the institutions can only be mentioned collectively.

Detroit is now at work on a parkway system extending from Warren avenue down through the River Rouge valley to Northville that will compare with the famous Westchester parkway system in New York. Already a swimming pool and bath house in keeping with the dignity of the enterprise has been built about midway between the cities. At the edge of Northville is the C. S. DeWitt park part of the county park system presented to the county by Mr. DeWitt who in his life time was a prominent and influential political figure. These park pavilions are heated and kept open the year around. It is twenty-four miles from Northville to the Detroit city hall with overhead electric light, telephone, gas, water and sewerage. Another equally new and grand item of public expense.

Henry Ford has three plants in the Northville district and is the largest individual taxpayer in the township. One of Dearborn's big factories is up towards a million dollar a year which explains much of the municipal progress there. Ford owns are making in schools, churches, etc. Ford is a big part of Dearborn by contribution.

Northville is in Northville again to mention the star is told that in a grand meet of his type over at John's Finigan's where the house kept like to listen to John's story. He plays the old-time and Henry got a big kick out of his big old John who is a doublet and a doublet.

John J. Burdick former Detroit politician and congressman, a leader in Detroit the state politics back towards the early thirties, got his job at the Maybury Sanatorium at Charlotte, Charlotte, Mich. He is now in Northville and he is a big old friend Sam Robinson, L. A. Fik, A. D. Baughman and the closest De on. What a flood of memory these names bring up to me, I remember that I had old time political leader, John J. Burdick, and Sam J. Campbell in old rival camps. Except that he is a good looking fellow, but he is carefully groomed and his fine hair is a good gray. He recalled to me at these political meetings he addressed in Charlotte and said he was grateful for an introduction that brought back such pleasant memories. Wm. H. Maybury, to whom the Sanatorium gets its name is another old school Democrat and has been very generous in both time and money for the institution. He is a bachelor well around seventy surely, and a cousin of Wm. C. Maybury, a popular Detroit mayor for several terms whose memory is perpetuated by a monument opposite the Hazen S. Pmgree monument in downtown Detroit.

Detroit is again in the throes of a mayoralty primary campaign. Mayor John C. Lodge is following his policy of two years ago, saying nothing. Judge Charles Bowles and former mayor John W. Smith former primary rivals, are conducting active campaigns. Large billboards call Bowles "a man of action" and for Smith. Let's have a live mayor, which slogan represents the differences in the two campaigns judging by local interest. Lodge has shown little interest in state affairs but the election of Bowles or Smith means that the influence of the mayor's office will be felt in the state and senatorial campaign next year. Lodge can put over another silent campaign he will be the political marvel of the entire country.

Editor Fred Keister of the Topeka County News, was a bit out of wisp from his great haste when he got home, so he couldn't say so much about as did Editor DeFoe. However, this is what he did write:

Growing Pains
Spend a couple of minutes in the Detroit sector and one witnesses unbelievable sights in the march of modern civilization. Friday noon as luncheon guests of Editor and Mrs. Elton R. Eaton, of Northville, we were taken for a short-sightseeing trip through the northwestern part of Wayne county. At Northville is located three big Detroit institutions, the Wayne County Training school for underprivileged children, the Wm. H. Maybury Sanatorium and Sunshine Hospital, and the Detroit House of Correction for both men and women inmates. To tell of these will take a later story, but in addition are the Ford industries, airplane factories and all the hustle and bustle of a growth that must experience growing pains morning, noon and night.

The Pick of the Men on the Staff

By DUFORD JENNE

MR. DEARBORN looked soberly at the handsome, aristocratic face across his desk. "My boy, this is pretty serious news. It will come close to breaking Doc's heart. Since your engagement she has been happier than I have ever known her to be before. You see, she has no money of her mother, so she has confidence in me, and I know how she feels. And now you want to break the engagement? He added slowly, "I know Mr. Dearborn. The younger man said a bit impatiently, "How you feel, and I am sorry, but surely you would not want to have me go on with this. Dorothy is a lovely girl and—and I thought I was in love with her, but I find out it's not."

Dearborn nodded. "No, you are right, Bradford, I suppose. Only I wish, well, never mind. I merely want to save her as much suffering as I can." He sat in thought for a moment. "Then he turned to an attendant and said, "Give her a week of grace. Do not say anything to her for that time, will you?"

Bradford's carefully-groomed eyebrows lifted. "Certainly, I'll agree to that."

The next day, McMurtry, manager of a division of Dearborn's business, read a letter from his chief in the northern state, whistled, and read it again. Then he called in his secretary.

"I'm sorry, you have been waiting for my answer, but here's the longest assignment I ever gave you," he said smiling, and he went on to explain that she was to choose for him the four men of the staff of the division who could be called upon in case of an emergency.

He told her just enough to aid her, and she went out on her errands.

The Scotchman leaped back and read the letter again. "The old man is playing a wild scheme. It seems to me, but I suppose there is no way had to him that he is willing to try it."

The next afternoon Dearborn looked up from the card his secretary had brought him, and started a bit in front of him stood six solid feet of mahogany. What would Dearborn was not the graceful, thin strength of the man, nor the thick, wavy hair, but the dark eyes; they were cheery, and natural, and gave ample proof of an inner brightness.

After the usual introductory words, Dearborn explained that he was in need of an assistant, and that he had asked Mr. Murray to send him a candidate. And he added, "If you like the work, Mr. Lane, you will be a permanent staff position."

After closing hours Dearborn drove home. On the way they chatted, Dearborn, skilled in handling men, drawing him out and the boy was his.

As they stood in the hall at his home, Dearborn called to Dorothy. Down the stairs she came, a slim figure in a white dress. She paused suddenly. She saw the tall young man beside her father.

That night Dearborn stood at his bedside window looking out into the moon washed garden where his wife once walked with some one he loved.

"My six-year happy heart is worth any price," he vowed to himself.

The hours in the executive offices were not, and one tended to stay in business. Then he crossed and Dearborn, going home, found that Dorothy had vanished for a day. Then they would come in and there was a gay and happy talk of golf and tennis swimming and auto trips.

Friday, the crisis came. First Lane opened his heart, and with three speeches, as was his way, told Dearborn that he had come to love Dorothy, but that she was pledged to another.

Dearborn's old heart skipped a beat. He put one hand on the other's shoulder. "My boy, I know enough of men to know who you are. Do it yours, if you want to."

Lane's sheer happiness at the words hit Dearborn a bit hard. He hurried home. The house was silent, but one of the maids told him Doc was in her room. He went softly upstairs, passing in front of her door, and he reached him that shook him—Dorothy smiling.

He opened the door. She lit huddled in a little heap, but turned as he spoke her name tenderly. "Oh, Dad, Stuart told me that he was going to ask you—and I am engaged to Vincent—I didn't think, you know; I was just happy with Stuart, and Vincent had been so strange last week—I don't know what to do!"

He sat down and gathered her in his arms. "Do you really love Stuart?"

"Oh—I do!" It was a breathlessly spoken word.

"Then he is coming tonight, and I am going to the club," he said gently. "Forget Vincent—your happiness is at stake."

She was quiet with her own dreams. Dearborn smiled, content with his thoughts. His scheme of having McMurtry send the pick of his staff of young men had worked. He'd surprise the canny Scot with a raise in salary next month.

Story of Coffee
Not long ago a young man was bent out to solicit new customers at one house an elderly woman with an ear trumpet came to the door. The solicitor gave his usual sales talk and explained in detail why the coffee he was selling was excellent. The woman went into the house and soon came back with a sandwich in her hand, saying, "I am sorry, young man, that I haven't any coffee I can give you, but here is a sandwich you can have."

The Vikings ran smelters. The remains of a chieftain's house about 1700 years old, have been uncovered on the island of Gotland. The building was about 185 feet long and 40 feet wide. It was found with knives and arrowheads.

LORD KELVIN'S

Scientific British physicist, when asked why no one else had invented so simple a thing as the Feeder system, replied: "The only answer I can think of is that no one else was Edison."

Up to the time of the Pearl Street Station, the arrangement of conductors used for arc lighting was known as the "tree system." When Mr. Edison began calculating the size of the conductors needed for distributing current over a district nearly a square mile in area, he was dismayed to find that the quantity of copper required would be exceedingly costly. Among the criticisms directed against him was that there was not enough copper in the world to supply his demands.

To economize on conductors, Mr. Edison invented a new system of amazing simplicity, called the "feeder" system. The "tree" system was just what its name implied. At the dynamo, the main wire energized the conductors to the customer's premises was of a proportionately large cross-section, like a trunk, and gradually tapered off as branches were fed from it and it approached the farther extremity of the system. Thus, as necessary to prevent the lamp line, rest the generator from becoming overworked because the voltage diminished from the generator to the most distant lamp, but it required an outlay for copper so enormous as to be absolutely prohibitive in modern service of large areas.

The "feeder" system solved this problem by severing the direct connection between the dynamo and the mains which directly served the customer's premises. Instead, current was fed by means of other conductors called "feeders" to selected central points in a network of mains. The feeders were connected directly to the dynamo, and could be made comparatively small in cross section, as much as the mains were laid only along the blocks to be served, and were not required to run all the way to the station, the saving of copper was enormous—seven-eighths, to be exact. The cost of copper per lamp served was reduced from $23.24 (for the "tree" system) to $3.72.

This is the fourth of a series of historical mementos published by The Detroit Edison Company in honor of THOMAS ALVA EDISON reviewing his influence on the development of the Electric Light and Power Industry. The fifth will appear in this paper next week.

Good sportsmanship is a quality of honor that should always be shown at the highest standard. It is very essential and should be brought out every school. Fielding H. Yost, chief athletic director of the University of Michigan, says "Sportsmanship is that quality of honor that desires always to be courteous, fair and respectful, and it is interpreted in the conduct of players, spectators, coaches and school authorities."

A school must set good sportsmanship as its goal if it is looked upon as a school of high standard. The schools of the state have set their level of this quality at a much higher standard. When a football game is held on the same field it always is an act of courtesy to classify the opposing team as visitors. This merely creates a friendly feeling between the two schools.

LONG-WISHED FOR CLOCK FINALLY MATERIALIZES

At last we've got it. Our long months of tedious waiting and hoping are over, and our greatest ambition has been realized. We were pleased with the result. We judge for yourself after hearing the story.

It was this way. For many months everyone has been wondering what kind of a clock would be placed in the geography room. You have never heard of one in this kind of course the students expected that when a clock finally did arrive that it would be a wonderful creation.

And then one day a package arrived, and knowing smiles and triumphant looks were exchanged. For someone had heard that the Geography Club had had an order for a clock, and it had been a long time in coming.

Everyone tried to be the first to see it. "It will be of gold, I suppose," murmured one student.

"At least silver," remarked another.

"One of those seven day clocks, no doubt," said a third.

And so opinions were given, and all finally agreed that the new clock would probably be the only one of its kind in the school. They were right, too, but wait there's more to follow.

With our accord they rushed into Miss Park's room, much to the good schoolman's astonishment, and all finally agreed that the new clock would probably be the only one of its kind in the school. They were right, too, but wait there's more to follow.

MR. COOKE'S CLASS WRITES ON FIRE DRILL

Our Fire Drill (By Tom McLaughlin)
 One afternoon after recess when we were having our history class the fire bell rang. We all stood up and the first row passed and then the second row and so on.

There was a lot of noise in the hallway, and you could see the different grades passing outdoors. We passed down the stairs and went out the back door.

We all stood in line outside the door, waiting for the bell to ring so we could go back to our rooms. Mr. Gordon was looking out of the high school building window, and he saw us come out of the building.

There are 333 children out of the grades, all except the fifth grade. We got out of the building in one minute and three seconds or 63 seconds.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETS TUESDAY

A Student Council meeting was held Tuesday, October 1st, after the dismissal of school.

It was decided to let the Sophomore class have charge of Thanksgiving. It was also voted to motion that the entire school be in the hall for the day of the day. This was done unanimously.

The chief of police appointed the following people to her assistants: Dave McManis, Elmer Bako, Chas. Meinzinger, Wilma Rafter, and the school athletic manager appointed Margaret Bartrum as his assistant.

FIRST PEP MEETING HELD FOR FOOTBALL

Last Thursday, October 3rd the assembly held its first pep meeting of the year. Bread and Joseph McCordie, who are the cheer leaders for this year, led the student body in several yells.

The result was very good, and if everyone can yell like they did then the football players would surely appreciate it.

NATURAL SCIENCE CLUB HAS PICNIC PARTY

Last Monday at four o'clock the Natural Science Club went on their picnic to the Stage Farm. Several of the members drove so there was a way to get to the farm for most of the pupils.

After the members had reached their destination an indoor baseball game was started, while their more ambitious comrades started a fire.

There was plenty to eat and after the lunch was over (excepting Joe McCordie) left the food, and explored the surroundings. When everybody had got as muddy as possible they decided to go home.

Some of the "gang" walked home and all thought that their first "get-together" had been a successful one.

GEOGRAPHY CLASS WRITES "I LIVE IN HOLLAND"

The following stories were among the best written in Miss Park's geography class. They were written by Winifred McCordie and Dorothy Richardson.

I Live in Holland
 (By Dorothy Richardson)
 My name is Katrina and I live in Holland in a wee house by the sea. We have a farm on which we grow hyacinths and tulips. You can't imagine how beautiful they are in bloom.

We send the bulbs to America in great boxes, and our products we make our living. I have my brother Hans and I take the cart and dogs to deliver the milk.

Our motto is "Cleanliness." So I have to help my mother keep the house spotless. I must take off my shoes before I enter the house.

Yes, my shoes are wooden, and I think you would laugh at the creak black noise when I walk. In fact you would think by whole costume queer. I wear a long blue dress with a white apron and a white cap with stars on the side. We do not have such a variety of styles in dress as Americans do.

In winter I skate very much on the frozen canal. The sea by which we live has a fine sound. Our country is so flat that if we did not have a ship we would take possession of our land. That's why we have windmills too. They pump the water off the ground. Our town is built on a hill.

We live in the south is a lucky land and if you live on the coast of our home it is no good but, but if you live away it is bad luck. Sometimes, bad boys chase them away. We think them very naughty. I would like to visit your country and I surely would like you to visit mine.

I Live in Holland
 (By Winifred McCordie)
 I live in Holland I am a little Dutch girl as you know. I live in a school now. First I will tell you about my school. We go to school at 9:00 o'clock. Our shoes are worn in the building. After school we work very hard. Words that the children in America believe. It seems queer but I have a number to answer your letter.

I will go to my father's farm which is one mile out of town. It is now under his milk to the home in town with a little cart and two police dogs. Many people buy milk from my father. He also raises tulips. We have a wonderful farm and acres of beautiful tulips. Many come to see them.

I cannot tell you much more because I am so happy when I received your letter because I didn't know that anyone in America could talk Dutch.

"Oh, yes I forgot to tell you about how I am dressed. I have a blue skirt, white waist, an apron, and wooden shoes."

Please come to see me and our country if you ever have the chance. With love,
 Hilda Brinker.

ORANGE AND BLACK DEFEATED BY WAYNE

On Friday, October 4th Northville was broken by Wayne on the latter field to the tune of 19-9. The first half was played just about even, both teams being about equal strength. Wayne overpowered a punt and they carried the ball over the goal line for a touchdown. The half ended 7-0, in Wayne's favor.

The second half was a series of line plunges for Wayne, and their team began to push heavier and bigger than the Northville team, soon waded the Northville line and they carried the ball down the field almost at ease. They made two more touchdowns in the second half making the score 19-9.

Wayne had a very good team, and they never received a penalty.

SEVENTH GRADERS MAKE HOLLAND IN SAND BOX

The seventh grade geography class have been studying Holland and have made a model Dutch landscape in their sand box. Staring undaunted by the geography students, you can see china made Dutch maidens standing gracefully beside little china windmills boasting up their little blue and white trimmings. There is also a milk cart drawn by a pair of dogs while a little boy stands faithfully by.

Lined up in the harbor there are the sailboats which look as though they were made to sail across the canal.

All in all it is very much like the quaint little Holland across the sea.

COMMERCIAL NEWS

Type I
 There is a new accuracy honor roll in the first year typing class on the "fourteen" names. Each person is given a gold star for typing at least four perfect assignments in each section (covering a week's work). Dorothy Gerge has the most stars but there are several others with almost as many.

Type II
 The advanced typing class have opened a new race track in the type room. The event is called "Typing Sprint" and it has fifteen entrants.

Those wearing blue are: Hazel Cordukes, Lotie Damm, Marian Hamilton, Edna Martins.

Those wearing pink are: Esther Aigers, Margaret Bartrum, Lillian Cassie, Florence Balko.

Those wearing green are: Miriam Richards, Eleanor Westfall, Ernestine Wolfe, Ruth Melow.

Those wearing red are: Mabel Edesman, Esther Lavrance, Mary Modos, Anne Richards.

Each Friday a fifteen-minute speed test is taken and the record made are represented by thumb tacks on the track. Every sprinter is working toward the grand finish—sixty words a minute. Miriam Richards is leading with a record of fifty-two words per minute, with Marian Hamilton a close second with forty-nine words per minute.

Short Hand I

In Short Hand I on Monday afternoon there was an exciting spell-down, only it was not words that were spelled and missed, but shorthand work signs. Margaret Norton and Mary Modos were captains, with eight on each side. On Margaret's side there were six standing, and on Mary's side three were standing. Three cheers for Margaret's team.

Short Hand II
 Every student in the advanced shorthand class is working on the article published in "The Gregg Writer," which may entitle them to become members of the Order of Gregg Artists, which is an international organization open to every student studying Gregg shorthand.

The test is to write the article in the best possible shorthand, send it to the "O. G. A." for examination. If it is well written and correct according to theory, the student is granted a membership. If not it is owner. It is a very important undertaking with several advantages for every shorthand student. It will be several weeks before the results will be known.

DEBATE SQUAD TO SELL HOT DOGS AT HOME GAMES

The debate squad has obtained permission to sell hot dogs at home football games this season. Hot dogs will be on sale at Friday's game with Belleville here. Don't forget that the debaters need your support, as well as the football players.

DEBATING TEAM IS CHOSEN

At the debate try-outs held Thursday afternoon, October 3rd, members for this year's team were selected. Mrs. Chapman, Miss Van Viet, Miss Bainbridge, Miss Parks and Miss Mitchell acted as judges. Catherine Stalter and Elmer Parrin were unanimously chosen, while Jane Lawrence and Robert Cousins tied for the place as third member of the team.

SOPHOMORES PLAN PARTY FOR FRESHMAN CLASS

The Sophomore class held a meeting Monday night after school in Miss Bainbridge's room. The plan was to plan a party for the freshmen, October 24th was decided upon for the party. Marvin Tibble, appointed the chairman of several committees, which were as follows: General chairman, Jane Lawrence; invitation committee, Herbert Brendt; decorating committee, Arthur Hills; entertainment committee, Catherine Stalter; refreshment committee, Arline Richardson.

These chairmen are to choose four students to help them. It was also decided to have class dues of twenty-five cents, which can be used for parties. After voting on class dues the meeting adjourned.

BEWARE OF THE BLUE DOT
 The Blue Dot has not yet brought terror to any worried typists here. But it is, watching for some forgetful student to commit the very crime that he has told them to beware of. If the Blue Dot should see a nervous student look at his hands while typing, he will pounce upon them and brand them with the awful sign—The Blue Dot.

The Blue Dot has been originated by Mrs. Taylor, the commercial teacher. It is to prevent beginning students from acquiring the habit of washing their hands while typing. Every time a typist is caught committing this offense, a blue dot is pasted on a chart, on which appear all the names of the students.

The first debate takes place November 15th. Northville is placed in a class of other Michigan High schools of approximately the same size, but because the schedule has not yet been published the first opponent is unknown.

There will be four preliminary debates—two affirmative and two negative, followed by a series of elimination contests. The subject for debate, "Resolved that the jury system be abolished," promises to be of interest to everyone.

The business girl spends about one-fourth of her income on clothes, it is shown by a survey of the budgets of 164 for the woman's exposition of arts and industries.

A COMMUNCIATION

Editor Record: We note in the last issue of your paper what the Mio boys had to say about Butch Balden and that fish story. We see no reason to carry on this needless discussion of a needless dispute over the ability or questioned ability of Butch Balden to catch fish.

We presented our evidence. We told you what we had found, but now because some fellows who chase up to Mio every week in a white and say they go up there to fish while as a matter of fact we know that Mio is a place out in the woods where there are no fish and not even water in which fish might live if there were fish there, question the veracity of some of our star witnesses we can see no reason why you should give them space in your paper.

We will have nothing further to say about this affair which is rapidly becoming almost a public scandal. We hope for the sake of respectability that the Mio boys will keep quiet from now on. We urge this because we know that if continued controversy continues there may something be revealed, said or done, that might shock the whole state of Michigan.

We wish to just drop the little bit of a hint if these Mio boys don't keep quiet from now on we are going to send a famous detective up to Mio and we are going to investigate some of the many deeds that are supposed to have happened up there and were buried in the silence of the woods, and we are going to bring all of these back to Northville and expose a lot of things these fellows will be sorry about. Now will you stop talking about Butch and his big star fish?

HOW TO LIVE LONGER... By John Clarence Funk

SOFT BUT NOT SENSIBLE

LIVING as we do in an age of luxury and mechanical refinement much of the drudgery has been removed from our daily activities. Gas now propels us, whereas formerly legs did the job. Machines of wonderful complexity and intricate power now replace the energies expended by hundreds of thousands of hands. Science has even invaded the home where we are to be found the electrical sweepers, washers, mangles and ironers.

In short, service, reducing physical energy to a minimum, can be purchased. And as the richest nation on earth, that service is bought in a fair proportion of humanity rests more or less continuously in consequence thereof.

To live in the lap of even comparative luxury is gratifying to the senses; and if the human being were all brain the idea would be a magnificent one. But the fact remains that, despite our vaunted civilization, and its labor-saving devices, man's body remains the same as it always was. Merely to clothe it, overfeed it, underexercise it as thousands are doing daily, is to shut one's eyes to the fixed law that the body requires real physical work and exercise quite as much as the stomach demands sufficient food if it is to give the best service, and last the longest possible time.

Too many people absolutely disregard the work which every creature does if we can't have some machine or some person do it for us? They argue, but the point is that all the logic in the world will not overcome nature's necessity. It demands, and if it does not get it flops. That is all there is to it— which is quite enough.

If you should lift the body of every car in Buick's field—and compare the chassis—then you too would choose The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vitally important details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis: Lovjoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers—front and rear. Combining to check both bound and rebound, and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere. And, finally, such established Buick superiorities as the famous double-drop frame of toughest steel... the massive side and cross-members, reinforced at points of stress to insure greatest long life... the celebrated torque-tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering... and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f. o. b. factory... what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!

Michigan Registers 88% increase in EIGHTS As proof of the tremendous growth in public preference for eight cylinder cars registration figures in this state for the first seven months of 1929 tell their own story. Eights above $1000 showed an increase of 88 per cent, while sixes in the same price field decreased 17 per cent. The tendency is the same over the 45 states. Eights are up $1000, or 94 per cent. Sixes decreased 18 per cent. Nobody can doubt the evidence. We are passing into an eight cylinder era! Studebaker today takes the world in the manufacture of Eights—Eights that are champions—holders of 11 world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined—Eights which are remarkably economical—smooth, flexible, brilliant. Drive a smart new Studebaker Eight—President, Commander or Dictator—each backed by Studebaker's 27 years of manufacturing integrity. How to Play BRIDGE Series 1929-30 by Wynne Ferguson Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 2 One of the best ways to learn how to play better Auction is by a study of other players' mistakes. To avoid that is one way to play well. Here are two examples: Example Hand No. 1 Hearts—K, J, 6, 3 Clubs—K, J, 10, 8, 3, 2 Diamonds—10, 8, 3, 2 Spades—7, 5

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no trump and A doubled. Y passed. B bid two clubs. Z passed and A bid two spades. What is Y's proper bid? It would seem inconceivable that any player would do anything with this hand but pass, but Y was a player of little experience. He decided that his proper bid was a double of two spades. With only 150 tricks as a maximum, Y should not make a double. To double under such conditions the player should hold at least three tricks. Y, however, was just inexperienced enough to be rash. The next point to consider with this hand is the proper opening. If you were rash enough to double, what would you bid? The proper opening with this hand is undoubtedly the free of hearts. Y's partner has bid one no trump so should have at least one honor in hearts. It is Y's duty to tell Z as soon as possible of the strength in his hand and what suit to play for. Hence the duty to open the heart suit. The fourth bid is the proper opening in any suit unless it contains two or more honors in sequence. In that case, open the higher honor. In this particular hand, Y made a sound mistake. He opened the heart suit but led the jack instead of the ace. Never open an interval with honor unless holding two in sequence. As a result of Y's bad opening, A B made their two odd in spades and, as it was doubled, they also scored a game in rubber. Thus Y's two mistakes, first, the bid double and then the bad lead, gave his opponents a game and rubber to which they were not entitled.

Example Hand No. 2 Hearts—9, 5, 2 Clubs—10, 9, 3 Diamonds—A, J, 5 Spades—A, Q, 10, 7

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one heart and all passed. If A opened the deuce of spades, how should Z plan the play of the hand? Z should endeavor to play the hand so that he will stand the best chance to make game. Z can lose one heart, one club and one diamond trick and still score game, so he should plan the play with that idea in mind. There are three finesses that are possible: First, he can finesse the queen of spades in the hope that if it holds, he can discard the losing diamond on the ace of spades. Or, if it does not hold, he can play the ace of diamonds on the ace of spades and so has lost nothing by the finesse. Second, he can play the ace of spades on trick one and then prepare to finesse the diamond. This can be done by leading the king of diamonds from the dummy and winning the trick with the king in his own hand. He should then lead the ace of diamonds from his hand and finesse the jack in the dummy. Played in this way Z must win three diamond tricks. If A holds the queen of diamonds. Third, Z must arrange to finesse the heart before he leads the deuce of hearts from Y's hand and if B also plays a low heart, Z should play the ten of hearts. If B holds the queen, the ten will force the ace and when Y next obtains the lead, Z can again lead the deuce of hearts, and so can win the trick with the ace in his own hand. If A holds the queen or ace, queen, Z must lose two heart tricks, but if B holds the queen, Z can prevent it from making by finessing in the inner sixes. It is a complete result, Z should be content to let the dummy so that he can be led from Y's hand at least twice. In the actual hand, Z decided to finesse the spade and B won the trick with the king. If he had a club which Z won. Here is where Z made a mistake. Instead of leading a diamond and playing the ace of diamonds from the dummy, taking a discard on the ace of spades, Z instead led the jack of diamonds which B won. B led another club which Z won. Z then led another diamond, winning the trick in Y's hand which he then led a low heart from the dummy and played the ten from his own hand, forcing A to win the trick with the ace. A then led a diamond which Z won in his own hand with the king. Z had no entry in dummy so was forced to lead the hearts from his own hand, thus having B win a heart trick with the queen. Played in this way, Z made only two odd, losing two heart tricks, one club, one diamond and one spade trick.

See how easy it is to make game by avoiding two finesses when only one is necessary, and by preparing a sufficient number of re-entries in dummy. There are only two sure re-entries in dummy, the ace of spades and the ace of diamonds. That fact should decide Z not to finesse the queen of spades, for if it loses and the jack of diamonds also loses, there will be only one re-entry in Y's hand and there must be two. Therefore, trick one should be won by the ace of spades in Y's hand and if the low heart led at trick two, Z should play the ten which forces A's ace. Now, no matter how the cards lie, Z should make game. He has a sure re-entry in diamonds and can lead the ten of hearts. This plan of play will pick up B's queen, even if guarded three times. All Z should lose is one heart, one diamond and one club trick. Even if there are four or more clubs to the queen jack in one hand, Z should make game by throwing the lead. Played correctly, the hand should score four odd, game and rubber—quite a difference. Study these two example hands very carefully for the principles involved are extremely important and come up frequently.

Answers to Problem No. 1 Hearts—3, 2 Clubs—none Diamonds—10, 9, 8, 7 Spades—5, 2 Hearts—J, 10, 9 Clubs—7, 6 Diamonds—none Spades—J, 10, 9 Hearts—A, 4 Clubs—A, 4, 3, 2 Diamonds—none Spades—A, 4 Solution: Z should lead the deuce of clubs and trump in Y's hand with the seven of diamonds. Y should now lead the ten of diamonds. B cannot discard a club for, if he does, Z with two re-entries can set up a club trick. B is, therefore, obliged to discard either a heart or a spade. It makes no difference which of these two suits is discarded as the holding happens to be the same in both hands. Suppose B discards the queen of hearts. Z should discard the same suit that B discards, so he should discard the four of hearts. A's discard at this stage is immaterial. Suppose he discards the nine of spades. Y should now lead the suit B discarded, A B discarded hearts. Y should lead the deuce of hearts, Z winning the trick with the ace. Z should then lead the ace of clubs and Y should discard the deuce of spades. Or, if it does not hold, he can play the ace of diamonds on the ace of spades and so has lost nothing by the finesse. Second, he can play the ace of spades on trick one and then prepare to finesse the diamond. This can be done by leading the king of diamonds from the dummy and winning the trick with the king in his own hand. He should then lead the ace of diamonds from his hand and finesse the jack in the dummy. Played in this way Z must win three diamond tricks. If A holds the queen of diamonds. BURKURA TREATMENT BROUGHT AMAZINGLY QUICK RELIEF TO MY STOMACH TROUBLE. Burton Man Had Given up Hope. Stomach Fine Now. Tried Other Medicines but All Failed.

MR CHARLES VOSBURG For many years I was the victim of constipation, stomach, kidney and liver trouble, said Mr. Charles Vosburg, P. O. Box 13, Burton, Mich. "Gas pains and a stuffy crooked feeling were features of my indigestion. After eating peaches and certain kinds of fruit, I would spit up a hot liquid and particles of undigested food. I was troubled with dizzy spells from a disarranged liver and have been subject to backache and spasms across my kidneys. Burkura Treatment proved to be just the medicine I needed, because it went right to the spot. The first treatment, cleaned out my system and corrected my stomach disorders. In a week's time I felt myself again, found my features of my indigestion, no more dizzy spells and my kidney trouble disappeared. I cannot praise this marvelous treatment highly enough and gladly recommend it to anyone." Burkura is sold by Northville Drug Company—Adv.

START WORK ON GAS PLANT ADDITION

Work was started Monday morning on an addition to the refort house at the local gas plant. As soon as the building is completed, the Parker Russell Mining and Engineering company will start the erection of two new coal gas ovens. These benches will increase the present coal gas production by 50 per cent.

Due to the increased demand for gas for industrial uses, it has been necessary for the Michigan Federated Utilities to make many changes and additions during the past summer. Early this spring one new coal gas oven was erected. This was followed by the erection of a new complete water gas set, a new double purifying box, a new compressor house and new compressor.

Additional storage was necessary, so a new 45-foot Hoffmann sphere was erected.

When the two new benches are put into service, the local plant will have a capacity of over 1,000,000 cubic feet per day with both coal and water gas departments in operation. Plymouth, Mich.

HOW THIS DOCTOR DROVE PESTS OUT OF NEIGHBORHOOD

However if You are Troubled in Same Way, Use Another Plan

When you see Dr. Paul Alexander, just don't think there is anything the matter, no, not at all. Just say, "Hello, Doctor," as usual and let it go at that. If you go into details, it might take a lot of explaining.

It seems that the doctor lives in a very thickly settled portion of Northville, where polecats are almost as numerous as human beings.

The doctor can tolerate the humans alright, but he doesn't like the other residents of his neighborhood.

"I'm going to drive 'em out of the neighborhood," he said to a friend the other day.

He jumped into his trusty automobile, drove over to Doctor Gavell's and brought the ugliest dog the doctor had.

"I'll fix the pests," declared the doctor, "and I'll get 'em out of the neighborhood."

The polecats have mightily played possum in the doctor's garage.

"I guess this place to put Bruno will be in the garage," the doctor told a neighbor.

He put Bruno in the garage in which the polecats have sort of used as a rest room for many weeks past.

Yesterday morning Bruno wanted to come in the house, and of course, the doctor let him in as he does friends and strangers alike.

Immediately the family had to move out. He started for the garage to get his automobile, but when the door was reached he suddenly turned, left the car inside and walked down town. No, folks, the tears don't come from tear gas tubes.

CUTS OUT OF LINE OF TRAFFIC, KILLS WOMAN AND GIRL

Others Terribly Injured in Wreck Near Plymouth Saturday

When a car driven by Alva Harris of Detroit, pulled out of line of traffic Saturday afternoon, while on the way to Ann Arbor, in an effort to pass a string of machines ahead, Mrs. Geradine Levy of Jackson, was killed, a daughter, 13, died Sunday from her injuries, and the husband and another child were so badly hurt they may die.

With Harris was a boy he had picked up and was taking to the football game. He too was so badly injured that he is not expected to live.

The Levy family were enroute to Detroit to spend the Jewish New Year with friends. The accident happened on the Ann Arbor road about three blocks west of the Mill street intersection.

Because of the large number of machines on the road, there was an immediate traffic jam. The Schrader ambulance from Northville, as well as the one from Plymouth, were called to take the four injured people to the University hospital in Ann Arbor. Both cars were demolished. Harris escaped with few injuries. He was questioned by Chief of Police George Springer of Plymouth, but was released.

THREE MILES MORE WILL BE PAVED SAYS THE ROAD COMMISSIONER

The State highway department has recently let a contract to the A. Meier Company for the construction of the Base Line 204-foot superhighway from Greenfield to Fisher roads, a distance of three miles, at a cost of $1,732,768.

The amount involved in the contract is $1,732,768. The contract is for the construction of a continuous good concrete road from Mack superhighway to Greenfield road. On four miles of Base Line superhighway between John R. and VanDyke roads, the 204-foot concrete has been completed on both sides.

During the past week 11,402 feet of frontage for wider widths of superhighway has been acquired by the State. This frontage has been acquired on Base Line, Fort Northwestern, Schoolcraft and Seven Mile 204-foot superhighways, and on West Chicago, Allen and Pelham roads.

This frontage has been acquired either by dedication, purchase, or condemnation. Two concrete mixers are now laying the paving takeoff and taxi strips at the County Airport on Goddard and Middle Belt roads.

Seventy-five percent of the 200 miles of drainage tile is now being laid. It is expected to have the drainage tiles completed in their entirety not later than November 15th.

BUSINESS MEN TO ATTEND BANQUET OVER AT PLYMOUTH

MANY FROM NORTHVILLE WILL ATTEND WHOLESALERS' CONFERENCE

Announcement has been made by Ernest E. Price, secretary, Wholesale Merchants' Bureau of Detroit, to Reg. D. M. E. secretary of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, that the Detroit Wholesalers will be hosts to the merchants of Plymouth and Northville at a banquet to be held in the Crystal dining room of the Hotel Mayflower, Thursday evening, October 10th at 6:30 o'clock.

The purpose of the visit of the Detroit wholesalers and the banquet is to discuss modern merchandising methods and to create a better understanding between the retailer and the wholesaler on the problems of merchandising, with which they are confronted every day. This get-together meeting will tend to create a friendly feeling between the merchants of Plymouth and Northville.

The Detroit group will furnish two speakers, one of whom will be Harvey Campbell, secretary of the Detroit Board of Commerce, and the other speaker from the group of visiting wholesalers. Mr. Campbell is a very able speaker, and he will bring a message that will be of interest to every business man who is present. It has been requested that a speaker from Plymouth and Northville also be provided to represent these two communities.

The local Chamber of Commerce will cooperate in making this occasion a success in every particular. The Chamber of Commerce has a committee to assist with the local arrangements. Albert Gayde, Chairman, Harold Julliffe and Carl Sheaz.

It is hoped that every business man who can possibly do so, will be present at this get-together meeting of Plymouth and Northville business men and Detroit wholesalers—Plymouth Mail.
