Warning to Arabs

To Love Marriage

Pittsburgh's Big Day

Wise Young Dinosaurs

Britain has made the Arabs understand that murder is not a safe pastime under a British mandate.

At least three Arabs were sentenced to death by Chief Justice Sir Michael MacDonnell for causing the death of Isaac Mamani.

The men convicted and Arabs witnessing the trial called upon Allah to resent it.

Allah didn't say anything.

He was missing from the same as angels were missing in Constantinople. Christians had been assured that at the last judgment if the Turks took Constantinople angels would appear in the square before the Church of St. Sophia and smile them.

Turks took Constantinople, have held the city through all the centuries since. No angels have appeared.

Morit! If you want anything done, don't depend on Allah.

Great Britain proposed to bar from marriage the "mentally unfit." That might include the human race, if you could identify the mentally unfit with certainty.

Some will be exempt from matrimonial ostracism because they possess fortunes or important titles or names.

Others mentally unfit will escape because they are only dull, belonging to the negative class that Dante put into one of hell's disagreeable compartments.

Pittsburgh held a big celebration and for good reasons.

Fifty years ago you could wade across the Ohio river in many places with water no higher than your knees.

Now, the government has built fifty dams, costing $15,000,000, giving at least nine feet of water enough for large boats all year round throughout the 1,000 miles of stream between Pittsburgh and the Mississippi.

Ohio river traffic has increased in twenty years from 4,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons.

The river now carries 10,000 a day in freight charges.

Overwork is not so dangerous but violent emotion is extremely dangerous, says Dr. C. P. Larson learned student of the human body. "A strong emotion can inflict a physical injury, just as truly as cut a knife," says the doctor.

However, a life that amounts to nothing is made up of strong emotions.

A giant strides on top. Glimmering Islands never bear strong emotions and lives live for its hundred years. But who would be a glimmering tortoise? Better be Keats, Alexander, or Napoleon.

Samuel Insull, Jr., following in his father's industrial dinosaur tracks as president of the Midland United Company of Chicago, tells the American Gas Association that to boom the gas industry and increase sales they must cut prices, and use "persuasive advertising and proper salesmanship."

If young Mr. Insull follows out those ideas, he will be a big industrial dinosaur some day.

Mr. Lamont, "the" Mr. Lamont, says business is good and will continue good. Gerard Swope, president of General Electric, says, "Amen!" and means it. Orders received by his company for the three months ending September 30 were $116,088,011 against $90,323,668 in the same period last year. That increase of 28 per cent has prevailed throughout the entire year.

Madame Curie, who helped the discovery of radium, comes here to accept for the new Radium Institute at Warsaw, one grain of radium, costing $50,000, paid for by American women.

"You could put in a small vase radium worth more than all the wealth of Rockefeller, Ford, Secretary Mellon and George F. Baker combined, if such a radium quantity existed."

Our sun, with its source of terrific energy, only guessed at by science, may contain millions of tons of radium.

We can't get at that. But we might give more poor children the benefit of the sun's light, which is accessible and costs nothing.

Dr. Frederick Tilney, professor of neurology at Columbus university, warns you that a headache is a serious thing. There are sixteen different kinds of headaches, all requiring particular care and understanding.

Headaches often come from anxiety, and you should be cautious about taking medicine to kill a headache.

It may kill the headache, while the forces that cause the headache continue working to kill it.

In Canada, Ramsay MacDonald, member of the Socialist party, addressing labor unions, tells them that changes must be made by evolution, not by revolution. That's how they have been made in the past.

Divisions of Travels

Before "Age of Speed"

In the middle of the last century there were four kinds of tours into which traveling at that time was sometimes divided:

"Tour de Force" was a trip to such places as Algiers, Botany Bay or some other penal colony and was usually made in handcuffs.

"Tour de Gascon" was an imaginary tour like the travels of Baron Munchausen, and received its name from the well-known inventive proclivities of the Gascons.

The third class was "The Tour de Nesle," so called because everything was paid for on the spot, "on the nail," a play on the English word.

Last, but most important, was "The Grand Tour," as it was sometimes called. This was supposed to be performed by every young gentleman of good family before he was considered fit to live at home. It gave him an opportunity to sow his wild oats away from the restraining influence of home and parents. When the bills came in fathers usually flew into a rage. Hence the name—New York Times.

OUR CONGRATULATIONS

The new city of Dearborn Monday entertained probably one of the most distinguished group of citizens ever before gathered together at any one time in Michigan. It was all due to the efforts of Mr. Ford, the President's visit to Michigan, the royal honors paid to that glorious citizen, Thomas Edison; and all the other features that entered into the affair. Truly it must have been—not only a wonderful day for Mr. Edison, but for Mr. Ford as well. The city officials and others in Dearborn who aided in making the affair so successful are entitled to much commendation. It was a great day not only for Dearborn, but all of Michigan as well.

GET THE GRAFTERS

It is with considerable pleasure that we have read in various newspapers that the Detroit Automobile Club has again started a campaign to get rid of those legalized thieves who hold up automobile owners and pick their pockets under the guise of punishing the driver for some fake traffic violation charge.

Of all the contemptible kinds of thievery this thing tolerated under the laws of the state is the most vicious. Constables, town marshals and justices of the peace who profit by it are not entitled to as much respect as are the hard boiled bandits of Detroit who make no pretense of being anything besides crooked.

A case is recalled of a few years ago when a New York tourist was arrested in Michigan, subjected to all the iniquities of dark age cruelty, his family so badly frightened by the treatment accorded him that the mother and daughters suffered from nervous shock, and he was fined a big sum on a trumped up charge. Of course like all people who are traveling through the country, rather than be delayed for several days or weeks away from home, he pleaded guilty to the charge and PAID to the legalized grafters the fees they so earnestly served "Justice" to secure.

If the state legislature wants to hit this form of grafting right squarely between the eyes, it will do away with ALL fees in traffic violation cases and it will prevent village officials from passing ordinances that make possible the collection of fees in traffic cases. The state constitution of course gives the legislature power to see that justice is done the citizens of the state and the so-called "home rule" wall of grafting officers should not be given the slightest consideration.

There is not the least doubt but what the supreme court would rule that under modern day conditions the state does and should have the right to control traffic on all state trunk roads. Of all the absurd "rules" under the sun is the practice of permitting any group of officers in Pontiac, Toad Hollow, Grafton, Lazypburg or any other place in the state to group themselves together interfere with through traffic and pick the pockets of motorists, they think might have a few dollars extra change with them.

It is a notorious fact that in one community, only arrests have been made where officers thought that the drivers of cars had money in their pockets.

The time has come when Michigan should clean out this traffic grafting business. Kill it, just like you would a rattlesnake. Just some of these "legalized" grafting officials for picking pockets and then when the next legislature comes, pass a law placing all control of trunk line traffic under the state highway department. The present system is a disgrace to the state and Michigan is too important a commonwealth in this union to have its name smeared with the fingerprints of honest officials who lay in wait along the roadside in order to pick the pockets of passing automobile drivers.

CANDIDATES

The city of Kalamazoo is run by a commission, similar to the one that conducts the affairs of Northville. The only difference between the governments of the two municipalities is the fact that in Kalamazoo the commissioner getting the highest number of votes is the mayor. Election is near over in the fiery-paper city and in looking over the list of candidates for places on the commission we are impressed by the highclass of business men who are willing to give a portion of their time to the conduct of affairs of the city in which they live. With but one or two exceptions, all are high grade citizens, men with extensive business interests. Kalamazoo has been fortunate in nearly always having at the head of its city government worth-while business men. We can recall but one brief time the city affairs were in the hands of hatred agitators and self-seeking politicians, and their administration was of short duration. Kalamazoo's progress can to a very large extent be credited to the care the city has always used in the selection of its city officials. Except for a brief year or so, Kalamazoo has never been afflicted with meal-ticket parasites at the head of its affairs. Kalamazoo is and has been over a long period of years, with the one exception, probably the best governed city in Michigan and the caliber of candidates now seeking places on the commission indicate that that city has no idea of changing its established practice of selecting worth-while men to conduct its business.

YOU CAN'T BLAME THEM

During the past few days the Record office has sold a large number of "No Hunting" signs. Farmers and property owners have come after the cards, some with considerable hesitation. One said that he hated to buy them but hunters from Detroit had cut his wire fences and done so much other damage around his place that he had found it necessary to post his place against hunters. Others state that they have even killed chickens and shot at live stock in the fields.

It is too bad in a way. There are a lot of decent fellows who like to hunt, who like to get out and tramp through the fields and woods whether they shoot any game or not. Hunting gives them a good excuse to get into the open and secure some real exercise. A very large per cent of these fellows would even stop to fix up a fence if they found it down.

On the other hand they have got to suffer for the misdeeds of others. A lot of "rough-necks" to use a proper term to describe them, think that a license to hunt gives them a right to tramp over a man's farm, cut his fences, steal his chickens, carry away fruit and vegetables and in other ways conduct himself as a brazen law violator.

In fact some have even refused to leave a posted farm after having been warned by the owner to get off the property. Is it any wonder that so many farms in this part of the state are being posted against hunters? You can't blame the farmers. They have got to do something to protect themselves against these hunting hyenas.

Shocking is one of the best ways to save a crop of "soft" corn. Under ordinary conditions in the Corn Belt, normally mature corn can stay in the shock safely until the ears are dry enough to crib, even if it takes all winter. In fact, the ears will be safer in a small, well-made shock than in a crib. Forage from very mature corn when properly cured has about the same feeding value as timothy hay.

The trouble with labor-saving machinery is that it compels so many young men to seek a livelihood playing in jazz orchestras and peddling silk stockings.

"For that they served His world"

Kipling

NO T by luck, not by accident were Thomas Edison's inventions successful. Each experiment was the logical outgrowth of previous observations. His method depended but little upon theory. Having satisfied himself that there was a market for a certain invention like the electric light, he would exhaust the literature on all allied subjects before beginning his experiments. A gas expert once said that Mr. Edison knew more about gas lighting than any other man living. When he had begun his research, he and his assistants tried everything that showed any promise. If an experiment failed, he learned why, then went about eliminating defects. His fifty-thousand storage battery experiments are illustrative of his method.

As a boy, Edison had an insatiable appetite for books, and in this trait he was encouraged by his mother, with whose help he read—before the age of twelve—Gibbons' "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and other historical and scientific works of equally lofty content. His father also stimulated these literary tastes, by piling up a small sum for each book mastered. He even attempted to read every book in the Detroit Public Library, and had promised through several long shelves of volumes before he was discovered and guided into more profitable channels.

After his turn on the rack, the animal was exposed to the gallows. It snarled through a pig or a wolf, the executioner would occasionally dig it up in men's clothing, pants, vest and undershirt, probably to make him jump more like a human being. Then the rope was placed around the neck and the poor animal swung out over the heads of the cheering crowd.

Ivy Unpopular

Ivy has long been used as a symbol of cleaving and uniting after that it is uncomfortable to find a controversy going on as to how to kill and exterminate this "pestiferous plant." It is a beautiful thing, but its leaves are exquisitely sharp, its color is satisfying. Yet we are told now to look upon it as an enemy both to buildings and trees. At the same time, I know walls covered thick with ivy where I used to hang birds' nests, which I shall always regard with affection. And I have known trees smothered by ivy which were far less pleasant to look upon than the creeper, which deprives them of life.

Erratic, but Spectacular

Avalanches are erratic, but spectacular phenomena that puzzle scientists. There is every gradation from the loosening and falling of a small piece of rock from a cliff to a huge landslide involving hundreds of cubic yards of rock and earth. Glaciologists state that an aral inch displacing 1,000,000 cubic yards of rocks and debris is in the giant class. The Monte Arino avalanche is understood to have displaced 30,000,000 cubic yards of loose earth. This occurred last year, but it was predicted many years before and that is probably the reason why no lives were lost.

Divisions of Poetry

The three principal classes of poetry are epic, dramatic and lyric. An epic poem is a long narrative poem dealing with events in the life of the hero or heroine. For example, "Iliad" and "The Epic of Gilgamesh" are epics. A lyric is a brief poem which expresses the sentiment of the poet. As Dr. William A. Wilbur expressed it, "An epic is always the story of some one other than the poet." This is contrary to the lyric. The word "drama" means the deed. A dramatic poem is one the emphasis in which is upon action.

Built to Defy Time

Many of the buildings of the Middle Ages, after a lapse of 600 or 700 years, have shown no greater symptoms of age and decay than an alteration in the colors of the materials, while many edifices of more recent date afford the most melancholy examples of too general disregard of solidity. Architectural association journal.

Avoid Pessimism

Pessimism is that cloud of distrust and doubt that prevents one getting a proper perspective on life. Things are never as bad as they seem, and a distorted vision will not make them so. It isn't natural to wear a long face—Grit.

Long List of Beliefs Based on Superstition*Elephant Herd "Bound" by Black Man's Magic

Major Court-Treaty of the Cape-Cairo motor expedition was the first white man who hunted and killed elephants on foot with a spear. Saturday was too late. That superstition is still life. It is somewhat proven by the fact that hundreds of thousands of people still consider that it is unlucky to walk under ladders. It is that it is unlikely to spill salt. That three candles on a table bring bad luck. That crossed knives spell unhappiness. That to cross one's path on a Friday is to court disaster. That the new moon seen through glass is an evil portent. That it is unwise to walk in the house means misfortune.

Similarly, how many Londoners do not believe that it is lucky for a black cat to cross one's path, or that to fall upstairs spells a wedlock. There are probably several million people in England today who exclaim "Touch wood" on the slightest provocation. In the country villages of England the inhabitants firmly believe that to see a white horse means the presence in the vicinity of a red-headed girl. While a cross-eyed village is still an object of suspicion to be avoided by crossed fingers and a whispered incantation. Sailors and fishermen are unanimously agreed that the bridge of place among beliefs in superstitions, nevertheless the Londoner is hard to beat. London Mail.

Not to Be Purchased
The mouth is a photograph of the disposition. Some one has said that we are not responsible for the disposition we are born with, but we are responsible for the one that we die with. It's the same with the mouth. The sweetness and kissableness and dearness of a baby's mouth are not dependent on the shape or size. Baby's mouth is sweet because his soul is sweet. No brand or slick, no any art in its use, can camouflage a sour mouth and make even a casual observer believe it is sweet. Then there is the eye, which the contents of the vanity case cannot change. "The eye is the window of the soul." You can buy something that will lengthen the fringe on the curtains to your soul windows; you can change the cut of the lambrequins above; but if you can't keep people from looking in sometimes, unless you pull the shades down altogether and put yourself in darkness. No vanity case, nor even a whole drug store or beauty shop, can make attractive the windows out of which looks a quarrelsome, envious soul. Keep sweet within if you want to get full value from your vanity case.—Nellie S. Russell in the Farm Journal.

Need of Present Day
It would seem fitting that the exhortations of the weather which so much concerned the religion of ancient time should find its corollary in modern industrial life. In the problem of unemployment—in this day of social worship, of a special interpretation of the Gospel we would paraphrase Elijah and cry: "The Lord hath answered by telling me let him be God!" And with a new consciousness of belonging to one another, make our prayers and deeds concern themselves more directly with the intimate life problem of our own day, with the problem that concerns the great majority of men and women. It is not enough that economic conditions point the way out. "If to labor is to pray," as the old monks said, then an active operation of heart and mind directed toward such a great social end is the direct obligation and the immediate concern of the churches. In the present trend of social enlightenment upon this human issue.—The Churchman.

Refugee Churches

There is another refugee church besides the one at Austin-Favers, London. A chapel in the crypt of Canterbury cathedral has been used by the Huguenots ever since Queen Elizabeth granted them a charter. The weavers who were among the refugees were allowed to set up their looms and they used it for that purpose for many years. From time to three attempts have been made by the cathedral authorities to have the Huguenots removed from the precincts of the cathedral; but they have always failed to do so. The service is conducted in the French language by a minister in a quinque medieval gown.

The Faithful Heart

He was a patient, low-slunging young man, and he was very much in love. But when at last she arrived in the room where they had arranged to meet he ventured to remonstrate a little.

"Darling," he said, after he had kissed her, "surely you're rather late?"

She glanced at her watch.

"Only a few minutes," she protested.

"I said I'd be here at six o'clock and it's just a quarter past now."

"Oh," signed the young man,

"then you must have made a mistake about the date? I've been here since five."

Cormina Lady Relates How Bon-Kura Restored Health.

All Other Medicines Failed

MRS. EFFIE MITCHELL

"Berkura is the medicine I should have had in the first place," exclaimed Mrs. Effie Mitchell, Misner St., Corunna, Mich. For years I suffered with stomach disorders, gas, belching and bloating after meals. The gas crowded my heart so that I could hardly breathe. I had neuritis pains so bad that I could not do my work. Many medicines failed and I almost lost hope of regaining health.

A friend of mine convinced me to try Berkura, because it had done wonders for her. The results of the first treatment were so remarkable that it almost relieved me completely of my old ailments, but I kept on using it and now feel like a new person. Soon after all the poison and waste had been removed, my bowels functioned properly, the gas belching and bloating left me and the neuritis pains were gone. The splendid Berkura Tonic gave me back my lost strength and I wish to tell everyone, that it feels wonderful to have health again."

Berkura is sold by Northville Drug Company.

Give a Thought to Upkeep*Cost When You Buy*Your New Car

The new Ford is a good car to own and drive because of its low up-keep cost. It has been built to endure—to stand up under thousands of miles of steady running over all kinds of roads.

Reports of its reliability come not only from Ford owners, but from experienced garage men and mechanics, large industrial companies, and officials of Drive-It-Yourself concerns which keep definite day-by-day cost figures. As a matter of fact, the economy of the new Ford is as unusual as its beauty, speed, safety and comfort. The quality that has been built into every part will save you many dollars each year in repair bills.

In other words, you save money when you buy the new Ford and you save money every mile you drive. That's something to think about when you are buying a motor car.

Cigarette Paper

Practically all the cigarette papers in this country come from Prince, which makes the cigarette paper for almost the entire world. These papers are so thin and light that it takes several hundreds of the little sheets that go around the cigarette to make a ounce. While commonly known as rice paper, this paper is not made from rice, but from flax and hemp trimmings, only new material being used. The flax and hemp is cut into small particles, thoroughly mixed and ground almost to a dust. Then it is put through a washing process, crushed into pulp and rolled out into paper.

Pat Squirrel in Church

The strains of Lohengrin resounded through a Kansas City church just as the last act was repeated at the blossomed altar, a bit of the dropped "highly to the skin of a nearby window." A flash of gray and Perky, the bride's pet squirrel, landed squarely on his mistress' head. He sat bolt upright on his throne of orange blossoms and lace, his bushy tail curled over his back, and gave the audience stare for stare. After a slight pause the bridegroom gravely removed Perky from his seat and unceremoniously dropped him out the window.

His Classification

He was a good-tempered little thing and very chatty and it was unfortunate that he should have got into so dull a carriageful of passengers. He perched upon them all and tried to start a conversation in two or three directions, but without success. Silence reigns; the interest in newspapers was intense. The shabbled one, too, sank into silence, but at the first stopping place he got out and before slamming the carriage door, witteringly remarked, "Watworks, or gum?"

Mary Louise Baydon and John Spenger write themes

Two of the best themes in Miss Van Velt's Seventh Grade English Class are published below.

By John Spenger

About five years ago my brother, the neighbor boy Marvin, and I used to play together. We used to invent our own outdoor games.

One of them was this. There were from three to five players. One would be it, and he was called the hunter. The others were known as hawks or some other fowl. The hunter took corn cobs and threw them at the hawks. The one that was to be the hunter. In this game I was hunter and I was after Marvin. I ran around the barn to get ahead of him. I stepped on a board with a nail in it and it went deep into my foot. I was frightened because I thought I would get blood poisoning if I didn't tell my mother because I knew she would tell me I ought to have better sense than to step on a rusty nail. I also knew she would put something on it that would hurt.

Two days later however, there was still no sign of poison, and I heaved a sigh of relief.

The Purse

By Mary Louise Baydon
One day Dorothy, a friend of mine, came over to play. When she went home, she forgot to take her purse home with her.

The next day I saw it lying on the table. "So I thought to myself, "I might as well take it, if I'm going to lay it on my books, anyway." So I laid it on my books, and I thought I did. Then I started off to school. As there was nobody on the playground I thought the bell had rung. I started to run, but when I saw the children in front of the school I stopped running.

When I got in the room I sat down on the desk and thought of the purse. I went to the door and went back to find it. On the way met Dorothy. "Hi," she said, "I missed a boat that would take me home." So I gave her the bus fare.

"My what a relief to know that Dorothy's purse was not lost." When I first meant to bring it, I thought I just put my books to bring it in again. I must say I have done that at all but left it on the bus.

No score, rubber game. Z deals and bid one no trump. All passed and A opened the deuce of clubs. Y played the three of clubs and the three of diamonds. B bid two clubs and Z won the trick.

for the "Simple Life." The tidiest village in England bears six names—Wiston, Wissington, Wisson, Wisseton and Whiston—and one motor cycle, one wireless set, one inn and one dark board.

This village surrounded by corn fields and towering trees, has hardly changed since the old cottages were built hundreds of years ago. The village was in existence in 1066.

It has no electric light, gas or water supply, shop, telephone or meeting hall. There is not even a village green. It shares a policeman with three neighboring villages.

Many of the inhabitants have never been more than ten miles from home, and the majority of the old farmers and laborers have never been inside a cinema or theater, some have never ridden in a train or heard a wireless broadcast.

The villagers work from sunrise till sunset, and take their relaxation in the taproom of old Fox Inn, where the youngsters get excited over a "needle game" of darts.

Sees Napoleon at One.

Napoleon's Supermen
Napoleon believed in no religion; he advocated "compassionate" marriage; he suffered terribly from defeat, but never from remorse; he regarded friends, family and women without any affection (having his early inclination for Josephine) to shoot, he was a superman. He had enough energy for 100 men.

How different it is even now to escape from the glamor of his name! Although I know he was one of the most cold-blooded scoundrels that ever lived, and all Enrope had to choose between peace and him, that no country, no people, and no civilization were safe while he was in charge—although I am aware of all this—if he should appear on earth now and say "It is the emperor!" I might leave all and follow him. William Lyon Phelps in Scribner's.

Conceiving Fans

Customs of Mankind say that "Fans have an interesting history." The first fan was probably a palm leaf or some other natural object appropriated by man to keep away flies of gnats, perhaps even to cool the favored broid in tropical climates. We know that in Egypt, 2,000 years ago, rich nobles had special servants to stand by their dinner guests and fan them with large paper fans to impress the diners, the height of its development under Louis XIV. We read that fans are beautiful, we confounding, or in vulgar costume, and that they are of rare beauty, especially painted and mounted on sticks of carved or inlaid wood, mother of pearl, carven ivory or gold. There are over 600 makers of fans in Paris and they enjoy special privileges according to their by the king.

Normality Tested

"None of my patients here are twelve," said a psychologist in response to a question, "I replied, and a cold sweat dampened Strange, I murmured. "Absolutely abnormal" he snapped. It appears that if one is perfectly normal the replies are "Seven" and "Blue." I found that out of 20 people, including clerks, actresses, journalists and hostesses, 16 of them gave normal responses—"Seven" and "Blue." The reasons for this are said to be that most people believe seven to be a lucky number and blue is a favorite color. Try it on your friends.

Just Like a Boy

He was spending his first term at a boarding school, and his parents anxiously awaited the arrival of his first letter. It was not received for more than a week, and it was short and to the point: "Dear People, I don't think I shall be able to send you many letters while I'm here. You see, when things are happening I haven't time to write, and when they aren't happening I haven't anything to tell you. Wish love to all, Harry—London Tit-Bits."

Library Problem Solved
The owner of a home library of considerable size has solved every private librarian's problem of book borrowers who do not return books. He doesn't lend any. Of course, his method isn't quite as simple as that, but at least he doesn't have to worry about stray books. Whenever anyone becomes particularly fond of a book of mine," he explains, "I give it to him. This may seem foolish at first, but it works out for the best in the long run. He saves me a lot of grief!" —Detroit News.

Utopia
When it shall be said in any country in the world, "My poor are happy; neither ignorance nor distress is to be found among them; my jails are empty of prisoners, my streets of beggars; the aged are not in want; the taxes are not oppressive; the rational world is my friend, because I am a friend of its happiness"—when these things can be said, then may that country boast of its constitution and its government.—Thomas Payne.

Uselessness of Worry
Worry will put more lines in a human countenance than work will ever etch. It is the most useless mental exercise we engage in, the greatest waste on our finely attuned brains. And us downright wasteful of human energy.

The Grade School Winners In Edison Essay Contest

First Prize
Fifth and Sixth Grades. By Eva Robinson, member of the Fifth Grade Residence, Thayer Boulevard, Milan, Ohio. Edison was born in 1847. From his boyhood he was the most busiest, happiest, most interested boy in the village of Milan, Ohio. He was too busy to play much with other boys and at school he spent only a few months. He passed for a time, his mother understood her little sturdy, sober-sides, for she was very wise and he earned the most valuable education ever. Through following the prompting uncheckered curiosity

At ten years of age his best study was chemistry. For he was fond of books. The phonograph long communication between persons at distance telephone, facsimile, remained for Thomas A. Edison to lamp, megaphone, system of quadruplex and sextuplex telegraph, moving picture machine, and project our street cars. Many incandescent lamp made him rich experiments had to be made along but cost him and vast expense, the times—but it was well worth it. It was in 1880 that Menlo Park's inventions come to perfection. It was in 1880 that Menlo Park was first illuminated with the power for civilization as it now is, incandescent lamp. In 1886 Menlo Park was outgrown and an immense plant was then built at Orange, New Jersey.

Honors came to Edison in such numbers that he counted his medals by the quart, as he once jokingly said. Wealth and fame however, did not bring his pleasure to his mother, a Scotch woman. He had the little opportunity to go to school as he was somewhat frail as a small boy. Thomas Alva Edison worked eighteen and nineteen hours a day as a rule—he had as much fun in work as boys have in a ball game. Thomas A. Edison is called the Wizard, or the "Electrical World." His father was a farmer and also a grain and lumber dealer. You have heard what Thomas Alva Edison has done for us. We should be very grateful to him, and if it had not been for him this world would not be what it is now. For it was he that discovered electricity and has done great deed for the people of today. We thank many things in our homes that are from electricity we could not get along very well without if it had not been for Thomas Alva Edison. We look on to Edison with great thanks and full of joy at the thought of what he has done for us. Many papers give short stories of what Thomas Edison did for humanity. His picture has been in the paper, and below it is the word "To There Be A Light." For when you look at that picture and think of what a great deed he has done.

Second Prize
Fifth and Sixth Grades. By Ruth Vroman of the Sixth Grade. I have heard my grand-mother tell how her mother made candles when she was a little girl. She still has one of the candle molds which were used at that time. Her mother would think it strange or水上craft if she could be here now and see us put a little black button in the wall and just only have every corner of the room flooded with light.

Wouldn't she be surprised? However, has to do with what she considered "in the days-work?" Electricity has been one of the greatest helps to us all of the present day wonderful inventions.

Think how many tasks our grandmothers had to do in the darkest way imaginable. They did all the baking for a large family on a large cook stove which had to be kept going even on the hottest day. They had to be tried out on the same made their candies out of rations which had to be tried out on the same cook stove. They washed their homespun garments by hand and

He was successful and made six hundred dollars in a single year but he was not satisfied yet he was interested in this outlandish idea and so permission to entirely by Henry Ford to his Edison set up a laboratory in the same car Memorial at Dearborn. It was in the field of telegraph paper that Edison attained some of his and his chemicals fell to the floor, little while to do the cutting by the light of a sputtering candle and a flame from an open fireplace. He went from the Grand Trunk. This made the conductor so to the Lakeshore and Michigan angry he gave him a box on the ear, which made him deaf; he has not recovered his hearing yet.

To wash a quilt make suds of soap and warm water and allow the quilt to soak in it for half an hour. Soak and squeeze in other fresh suds to remove the rest of the dirt. Quilts should not be rubbed. For rinsing use two waters of the same temperature as the suds. Do not try to wring the quilt. Hang it to dry, spreading it between two lines.

and shaking it often. Cotton and down quilts may all be washed in this way. Those with silk or satin covers may be pressed with warm iron.

A single fact will often spoil an interesting argument.

"I forget" may go to court but it won't when a woman is cross-examining her husband.

Works made the first dynamo, weighed about 30 tons because it was so large the people of New York called it Jumbo after a very large elephant at the Zoological Gardens.

After this invention was made he tried to light homes with the same dynamo; he spent several months in the building night and day making experiments and tests.

After months of experiments he perfected the lighting system, or to day.

There is hardly a home which doesn't use electricity in many ways.

Humanity thanks Thomas Edison in this Golden Jubilee for the wonderful inventions he has made.

Live poultry for market should be shipped so that it reaches the market early enough to be weighed the day it arrives, as some shrinkage is bound to occur. The amount varies from 2 to 15 per cent depending on conditions.

Shipments received late on Saturday usually have a heavy shrinkage as they are held over until Monday to be weighed.

Where parasites interfere with successful sheep raising, it is advantageous to breed ewes in time for them to lamb early in the spring. The early lambs will come before the parasites "wake up" from their winter sleep and the lambs can be marketed before the parasites get a share of the profits.

One reason why part of the world is same is that it can't afford to be anything else.

Harmony and Business

Vandals in the Home Park at Hampton Court are said to have been started by bearing the gang of workmen employed in renovating its gates and gates, breaking into song. How far have we strayed from Merrie England, when even highwaymen and bandits sang at their work! We may well pine for a return to the days of Peachum and Macbeth. Today errand boys whistle gaily through their teeth and taxi-drivers groan, but only sailors, soldiers, on the march and Welsh miners sing at their work! The rest of us confine ourselves to the piftoot of our baths behind locked doors. We outcast, I suppose, but the presence of one fellow creature is enough to reduce us to numbness.

It was not considered strange that the old-time milkmaid crooned at her task. Who expects the modern trout to follow her example?

It is frequently complained that noise is the curse of civilization. Why not turn it into a blessing by making it harmonious? When every man sings do din of traffic will be heard. "It's a sure sign work goes on merrily," said Isaac Bickerstaff, "when folks sing at it." It is high time that we forsook the idea that work is a penance to be performed in silence in a black coat.

Razing of Babylon Not

Completed by Darius

Babylon was never entirely destroyed after the conquest by Darius, described in the Book of Daniel. That conquest took place in the year 532 B.C., but except that part of the walls was razed during a rebellion in 514, Darius did not destroy systematically. His son, Xerxes, destroyed part of the great temple of Bel, or Baal, called E-Sagila, which was also a fortress. The rebellion of Darius, however, was monotheistic, monotheism, and because of this many temples fell into disrepair. About 312 B.C., a dynasty arose called the Seleucids, founded by a general of Alexander the Great. He conquered Babylon in 332. When the Seleucids found the new capital Seleucia near Babylon they used the ancient city as a quarry and there is a record that in 275 B.C. all the inhabitants of Babylon were transported to the new town, though it is known that religious services were still held in the old temple of Bel a century later. — Montreal Daily Herald.

Death for Selling Tobacco

China was introduced to tobacco only in the seventeenth century but it was not long before its use was prohibited by imperial edict and decapitation prescribed as a penalty for anyone who clabbeth thereby. In 1913, writes Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at Field Museum of Natural History.

The edict proved unenforceable and soon was rescinded, because of the general disregard accorded it by the nobles and commoners alike, and because tobacco had been adopted as a remedy for colds in the army, unexcelled by any other remedy with which the Chinese then were acquainted. — Detroit News.

Originator of Income Tax

It is a curious fact that income tax was "invented" by an Oxford don, Dr. Henry Beeke, a fellow of Oriel College, who afterwards became dean of Bristol. Beeke was professor of modern history at Oxford although his real forte was finance and he frequently assisted Vansittart with the budget, during that statesman's long tenure of the chancellorship of the exchequer. Disgruntled taxpayers will learn with grim satisfaction that Doctor Beeke came to a sad end. He died in exile at Torquay whither he fled for refuge from the "Bristol riots" at the time of the first Reform bill. — London Times.

For Boys' Uplift

The Catholic Boys' Brigade of the United States is a nationwide union of individual branches guided by national and regional heads, quarreling in doing preventive work among all types of boys by means of organized recreation and modern social work. Its organization is semi-military, but not militaristic. Its recreational and social meetings are not religious and are open to all boys without distinction as to creed or color. Although operated by Catholics, according to its own principles, it is not sectarian in its social work. — Washington Star.

Master of the Angels

There was once a sculptor who lived so long ago that "every one has forgotten his name, but he would not mind, for artists and critics have given him a new one; he is the Master of the Angels. He had a magic gift for turning dead stone into gracious faces and fluttering wings, and critics say his angels are different from all others."

The angels in the central and southern doorways of the west portal of Chartres cathedral, which dates from the middle of the Twelfth century, are said to be his work.

But what he said when he reached the dining room was:

"Mah-jong, muumie!"

The seaside has been a real pleasure to us with its great breezes turning up to the shore and the bright sunshine always gleaming on the water. One sad sight we saw was that of a foul mast schooner, a victim of the storm, helpless on the beach, broken in two and settling in the sand. The masts still stand.

During the day the temperature is 84° yet the moist atmosphere from the sea cools the hot air. We have had many kind friends here to take us to every spot in reach.

What is this man that the whole world should pay him homage? He is Thomas A. Edison, the greatest inventor of all time. Edison is a great inventor but he is more than that. He is an outstanding example of the working hours of the morning that you hear rain falling off the eaves, its only the heavy dew. His life shows his boy through perseverance and hard work can reach the very top. He had little formal education but early showed a marked constructive ability when he was scarcely seventeen years old. He was a proficient telegraph operator, but because his invention could not endure the fire without work. At the age of twenty-one he sold his first valuable invention, the stock-ticker, for the sum of forty thousand dollars and set up his first laboratory in New Jersey.

Edison has done more for the advancement of civilization than any other man of science. It is true that others have made discoveries and expanded theories that were necessary to many of his inventions, but were not for a man like Edison these discoveries and theories would not have been put to practical use.

Most men are great for only one thing, but Edison has devoted his life to a wide field of activities. One day, in talking to a friend about his work he said, "None of things haven't I?" This may be regarded as a rather modest admission when one considers that from June first, eighteen years ago, he applied for thirty-nine patents in twenty-eight distinct fields which he left many of his inventions unpatented and gave them to the world.

Edison often undertook the impossible and seldom failed to accomplish it. Let us take for example the electric light. When Edison first became interested in it, it was no new thing. Away back at the beginning of the nineteenth century a form of electric lighting had been produced between that time and Edison's many advancements, had been made, but the system was still very crude and impractical. Of the several systems previously used, Edison chose the incandescent type which had never been made to work successfully. Before beginning his work, she spent many hours of research carefully studying the experiences of other scientists in this field.

Finally, after two years of continuous hard work, the incandescent lamp, an outstanding example of Edison's genius and untiring labor was perfected.

In giving us the many practical luxuries of everyday life, Edison has done more for humanity than the greatest soldier or statesman. Let us never forget this man who has given his whole life for us.

It is no longer a matter of choice whether or not one shall become acquainted with the general facts and principles of electrical science. Such an acquaintance has become a matter of necessity. So intimately does electricity enter into our everyday life that to know nothing of its peculiar properties or applications is to say the least, to be severely handicapped in the struggle for existence. Today one can not converse intelligently on almost any current topic without either employing some electrical term or referring to some electrical fact or principle. Therefore, I believe, the many inventions of Edison has contributed for the benefit of humanity.

One of the many contributions of Thomas A. Edison was the storage battery. The general fact upon which all storage batteries are based was first observed in 1801 by a Frenchman named Gauthier. This scientist noticed that the silver or platinum wires possessed the power of giving an electric current after being completely disconnected from the battery itself. This battery was improved in later years by other famous men but Edison still improved upon it and put it into practical use. There are many advantages in the Edison storage battery and it will always be remembered as one of his greatest achievements.

The Edison storage battery produces a voltage of 1.5 volts. The great advantage claimed for the battery lies in the fact that its weight is far less than that of the ordinary lead battery, thus rendering it better suited for the driving of automobiles. In the ordinary lead batteries the weight of the solution is equal to about 44 per cent of its weight while the weight of the Edison battery is only 20 per cent of the weight of the active material.

Storage batteries can be applied to a great variety of purposes. Perhaps one of the most common uses is in central lighting and power stations. Here they are used to supplement the dynamos and generators in the supply of current during those intervals of the twenty-four hours of the day when an unusual demand is made on the output of the station. In the New-York Edison Electric Lighting Company's sub stations on Manhattan Island, a very large installation of storage batteries is employed.

Sometimes, powerful storage batteries are installed on electric locomotives for the purpose of either reinforcing the regular current on the trolley wire, or at time of operating the trains independently.

Such an application has been made on electric locomotives that are employed in many railroads. Chiefly among them is the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad where they are used for hauling the trains and locomotives through the Baltimore tunnel.

The storage battery has made it possible for self-starters and lighting systems on automobiles and airplanes to be employed.

This is, indeed, a great achievement and took Edison many long hours of serious study before he attempted to carry out his experiments.

Although it took him many years to bring the storage battery to its present efficiency it will always be remembered by mankind.

Every invention in this world has a history, that is a story telling how it was developed and how it is used.

Some of these stories are more wonderful than all the fiction you have ever heard.

Perhaps we think there is nothing very wonderful in being where we are; perhaps we think that the things we have and enjoy have always been possessed and enjoyed by other people, perhaps we think that from the very beginning man could cook his own food, dress himself well, take a jaunt to the city in his car, or travel around in his airplane assisted by the searchlights we have illuminating the heavens today.

But in heedlessly thinking this, we are very wrong. Man was placed on the earth wild and naked. It was many years before he devised clothing and set about to find shelter.

The first homes of man were caves and trees and we need only to look about us to see the progress that has been made.

After a short period of time man discovered that he could not do everything by hand, so he set about to find useful implements.

His glance fell upon a stone. He picked up one, then another, and with human skill developed them into tools. With these he started to dig into the earth—here he found the metals that today we use so much.

After learning to use tools, progress advanced quite rapidly. It was not long until men were building houses, domesticating animals, and tilling the soil. Man has overcome his environment to a certain extent.

One great difficulty that could not be solved was the light problem.

These people, maybe our grandfathers, could not carry on their activities after the sun had gone down on their corner of the world. Inoculation is necessary for the successful growth of vetches where they are grown for the first time. Many failures of this crop are due to lack of inoculation. In the Pacific Northwest, where vetches are nearly always used.

Midwest, like all other towns, was having a light difficulty, but this village was to produce a solution to the problem because here Thomas Edison was born. He took his place alongside the other men, endeavoring to produce light in Edison's experiments with the incandescent lamp. Many years of hard work and research went by before Edison snapped the switch that turned on the first successful incandescent lamp.

Try to feature life today without this lamp. Try to imagine just what percentage of our activities would stop if we would be suddenly without lights. Life would indeed be quite dull, but it not been for Edison's wonderful discovery of the incandescent lamp. Still more dull without some of his other inventions.

Try to run a modern and successful office without a telephone. At least catch the words of a telephone, imagine yourself living a party without the use of a phone.

Try to be happy without an occasional movie or talkie. Had it not been for Edison's untiring efforts we would be without these seeming necessities of everyday life.

Edison cannot be thanked enough for the benefits he has bestowed upon us, but we can offer a little benediction of thanks from the present generation and the future generation who will also be benefited.

WEST POINT PARK

(Too Late of Last Week.)
The Swiss watch that was lost on the West Point Park diamond and was reported through the Northville Record, and the West Point Park reporter of that paper, Mary Jordan of Northville, was the finder and brought it to Earl Wolfe's office. We commend Miss Jordan for her honesty. The owner will receive the watch when she comes for it and the reward will be given.

Mrs Berlie Bannfield, Mrs Emersons' Mrs Marion Addis and Ethel Middlewood of this place, and Mrs Harrison and others of Farmington attended the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star last week which was held in Detroit.

Miss Shirley Zwahlen was a visitor with friends in Toledo last Sunday.

Andrew Jones, husband and father of the six boys of the mother that died suddenly on Harry Wolfe's farm was a resident of West Point for a number of years. He won the respect of the people in this district by his kind and willing way to serve or do for the community in which he lived. He was janitor and bus driver for the school. He was not forgotten in the time of his bereavement and sorrow, but showed him and children by acts of kindness he had it all coming to him may he be comforted.

Mrs John Hill returned to her daughter's, Mrs. Stas Gilmore's Wednesday after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Jervin Bollinger of West Branch.

Great preparations are being made for the Inaugural Halloween Dance on the 25th of this month. A five piece orchestra will be on hand and nothing will be spared to make this one of the most enjoyable evenings we have had in the West Point Park Community Hall.

Mrs. John Hill left Thursday for Marine City where she will take care of her mother, Mrs. W. J. Hurst, who is seriously sick.

Celia Rybkin of Redford was the lady that lost the Swiss watch on the diamond here. She had it returned Monday.

The funeral of Mrs. Andrew Jones was held in West Point Park Community Hall Friday. A large crowd of relatives, friends and sympathizing neighbors followed the remains. She leaves a husband and six sons, Alvin, Juniver, Bohly, Elmer, Gerald and Wesley Herathier stepmother, brother Dr. H. H. Leeson, pastor of Farmington Methodist church, was a very sympathetic talk both in the home and church. The burial took place in Oakwood cemetery. Mr. Jones has the sympathy of his West Point friends and neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bond called on the latter's mother, Mr. C. Wolfe, and brothers Sunday.

The boys and girls are having a contest in spelling and other subjects.

A number of friends from here and North Farmington gave a surprise and shower Saturday evening.

Konjola Brings Amazing Relief To Sufferer

Entirely Free of Stomach Trouble After A Year of Intense Suffering.

MR. IVAN RICHARDS
Indigestion pains and gas bloatings were a daily occurrence and after every meal there was always a heavy feeling in the pit of my stomach," said Mr. Ivan Richards, 6305 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. "These gas pains would often center in the upper part of my back and I would suffer dreadfully for more than a half hour. Sharp pains would also strike me under the short ribs on both sides."

"The first relief I had in over a year came when I started on the second bottle of Konjola and from then on I improved rapidly every day. My appetite increased and everything I ate digested perfectly. I no longer suffer from the gas pains in back and sides and that heavy feeling in my stomach disappeared. I am free from headaches and dizzy spells, and my strength is considerably stronger. I am now a regular in Northville at the Red Indian Oil Company, and by the way, sell oil in all towns throughout the entire section."

ing to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson who have moved in to their home at Oakland Heights. The surprise was genuine. The presents were numerous and useful. The entertainment was music, singing and pedro. The relatives and friends and neighbors report a lovely time. Mrs. Wilson was Mildred Bond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bond and granddaughter of Mr. C. Wolfe. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Wilson a long and happy life together.

Mr. Davy and Mr. and Mrs. Andy Hahn were Sunday visitors in West Point Park Sunday.

There are different people hunting houses to live in. There is a great scarcity.

The second baseball game between the Down River champions and West Point Park Champion, that was to be fought out at Alkalai Park did not materialize on account of the weather and the diamond was not suitable for a good game.

Dr. Thomas and Frank Bradley tried to catch some fish at Houghton Lake, they succeeded.

Down River League was determined to play the third game of the series so it was arranged that a double game be played, one at 1:00 o'clock and the other at 3:00 o'clock. The last game proved disastrous for the River Rouge ball team the score being 7-0 for West Point Park.

Battery was Shiebel and John Jowkow. The fans and all connected were well pleased with the success of their team. A big banquet will be given in West Point Community Hall.

The ball game between the River Rouge champions of the Down River League and West Point Park the second and third games of the series was played today on the diamond here. A double decision on account of the weather and condition of the diamond at Alkalai Park, Wyandotte. The two teams then agreed to play on the diamond here.

Score for the first game was five for River Rouge and eight for West Point Park. Earl Goers and Hirschmidt were the battery and both were in good shape to win the championship for their own team.

Profitable beef production depends on the grade cow herd and the use of a good pure-bred bull, managed so that each generation is an improvement over the preceding one. The best heifer calves should be kept each year to take the place of barren or shy-breeding cows.

Coockroaches, fortunately, are easily killed. A liberal use of sodium fluoride or sodium fluosilicate, dusted wherever the coockroaches are troublesome, will quickly eradicate them. Only rarely and in extreme cases where instant relief is essential is it necessary to resort to fumigation.
