WHAT HAS HAPPENED?

A bunch of Northvillians stood last Friday afternoon, watching the last timbers of the old Record building being carted away. "They tell me," said one man, "that the building is at least one hundred years old." That set us to thinking about what had happened in the hundred years. It sent the cold chills running up and down our back—this last century has been such a tremendous thing.

From the days of one hundred years ago, when the old Record home was in a different location, when horses (and maybe oxen) were hitched to hitching posts, on a steep street of a mere four corners, what has happened? Well we couldn't help but it in a personal way. The old timbers of the building are as rugged and solid as when they went into the frame work, yet where are the men and women of those early days? From the Monroe County, Michigan farms which they helped settle in those pioneer days, the grandparents of the writer, on both sides of the family, have passed on to the Great Beyond. They have been gone so long that with the exception of our maternal grandmother, their memories to us are misty and vague.

The old building could have remained another hundred years had not fire attacked it. Yet not a single human being who saw those walls go up from timbers taken from the nearby woods, is alive today to see those same timbers hauled away to give place to steel and concrete. That is something to think about.

What has happened since 1831? Well, if these walls that have just been torn down could speak and tell of what they have seen, what would they say? Something like this:

"We have seen the wild foxes disappear from the woods all around and to take their place, we have seen strange mechanical devices called automobiles, in which men travel like mad up and down roads that are made of something hard."

"We have looked across the street into the Bell Telephone Exchange and we have heard men and women putting strange things to their ears and then telling us that they have talked on wires across hundreds and thousands of miles. One woman even told us that she could hear the voice of her son in California talking to her? Do you believe that?"

"We have gotten frightened in the past few years when strange things like giant birds have whizzed over our heads. Sometimes they came so close to us that we could see the figures of men in them. What are they anyway? They can't be birds, for they didn't come and perch on our roof like the wild pigeons did when we were first built a hundred years ago."

"When we were young, men used to work at night with us, but the only lights they had were candles and oil burners. But for years past, someone just touches something and the whole inside of us shines like the noon-day sun. Night is turned into day."

Yes, the old building could write a history of the greatest century of progress the world ever saw.

Linking the rugged days when it was born and the final time, when fire and the contractor's sledge and axe have ended its career, this old building could contrast the Northville of a hundred years ago, when women made their own dresses (and men went to mill on horseback) with the present Northville—Detroit's most picturesque suburb—when our two banks have footings of nearly a million and a half dollars, when men, women and school kids play golf, when men work night and day to help manufacture automobiles, when folks at the Penniman-Allen theatre not only see moving figures taken thousands of miles distant but even hear them talk.

The two Northvilles—of 1831 and 1931—how different they would seem, could they be put down side by side? Yet this old building that is now gone was friends of them both.

So, good by, old Record building. You have served your day and generation well. We just have a feeling that the building that is to stand where you stood won't be here a hundred years from now. But if it does not live as long, be sure of this: It will live a lot faster.

EDITOR ANDERSON'S PROPHECIES

A. L. Anderson, editor of The Stethoscope, published by the Eastlawn Sanatorium, had a few idle minutes while waiting for proofs of his paper at the Record office the other day. "Can't I help you in some way?" he said to the writer.

"There isn't much you can do, unless you write an editorial for us," we replied. "Well, I'll do that," came back "Andy." "Just give me a topic."

"Well, try this, 'The Future of Northville,'" we replied, thinking that would be enough to quiet the "San" editor. Not so, he promptly sat down at a typewriter and in half an hour handed us the masterpiece below. It is just that good that it gets a place in this column—in fact so much better than we could do that we feel grateful. Here it is:

The future of any town, whatever its size, is a thing to occupy the mind of its best citizens. But first of all there must be something to which to attach this dream about the future. There must be something within the town's limits which portends development and increase. It must possess a certain number of industries, it must be in a location favorable to easy commerce, but above all it must contain energetic, progressive, patriotic citizens.

Here, then, is where Northville "shines". It possesses all of these civic qualities which are so essential to growth, to that elusive, potential thing called "future". Its industries are such that they can be made larger and more far reaching; its location is decidedly favorable to commercial communication, and then it has that greatest of all factors, fine citizens.

We who are so recently come to this city of Northville are not entering this editorial merely as a "puff", rather are we saying these things because we have surveyed the town and have met its citizens. Po paraphrase a famous saying, "We have met Northville and it is ours."

First, last and all the time we have faith in its FUTURE.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

What kind of signs can you suggest for the outskirts of Northville to tell visitors what town they are entering?

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

FLYING IS SAFE

(Delta Co. Glendale Reporter)

The flying accident which cost the life of Rockne, along with seven others, will cause many people to shy away from aviation as a practical means of travel. There is something about an air tragedy that impresses the public mind. One accident serves to discount the effectiveness of the system as a whole. As a matter of record, our mail planes are flying more than 30,000 miles every day of the year. Accidents in the service are unusual enough to be treated as a matter of news. Day and night through storm and tempest, these pilots of the air deliver Uncle Sam's mail to all points on the continent, and right on the minute of schedule.

THE ISSUE OF CRIME

(Birmingham Excelsior)

Now that a majority of Michigan citizens have decided that they do not want capital punishment restored to the statute books, it is up to those in authority to provide a satisfactory measure to bring about swift and certain punishment as a means of deterring major crime. There is no greater issue before the Governor, Brucker, and the present legislature than a responsible solution to the problem of crime. The people of Michigan will scrutinize the present Administration's efforts to solve the problem and upon their findings will hang the political future of more than one public official.

DO YOU EVER GET MAD?

(Geo. English in the Huron County Tribune)

"A newspaper which doesn't make you mad once in a while isn't worth the subscription price," says an old time reader.

We have noticed that those who do get mad at the paper usually keep on reading it, even the supervisor and old county officer who stopped their Tribunes last fall. They both borrow the paper from their neighbors and still read it every week.

When a subscriber gets mad at his Tribune and stops it, two new ones usually take his place. Anyway, the paper keeps coming out every week, just the same.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

With a fine family spirit over a hundred Presbyterians enjoyed together a co-operative supper at their church house the evening of April 9. The supper was in charge of the Woman's Union and nothing was lacking to make it most delightful in every way.

The occasion was the annual meeting of the church and following the supper the session was called together for the business meeting. The pastor, Rev. H. C. Wainfield, presided over the meeting of the church membership when routine business was conducted.

In the meeting of the congregation Ray Van Valkenburgh, chairman of the Board of Trustees, presided. Re-elected to the board of trustees were Elders Ross Dusenbury and Chas. Dusenbury. Reports were given by the various church groups including the Woman's Union, the Nellie Yerkes Auxiliary, the Young Peoples' society and the Junior Young Peoples' society. All of these reports showed good progress made by each and were very encouraging. Altogether the gathering was a real success.

WALLED LAKE GIRL HELPS TO ORGANIZE NEW CO-EDS' LEAGUE

Miss Alice German, of Walled Lake, has been identified as influential in organizing the Spartan Women's League, a new group of Michigan State campus that promises to set a precedent in co-ordinating all phases of co-ed activity, by virtue of her keen interest in promoting the projects undertaken by that body during the past months.

Miss German is one of the 250 co-eds to become affiliated with the League since its existence this term. Outstanding among the activities of the group has been an active participation in co-ed athletics, where many prizes were won, and a formal dance which was a decided success. Other undertakings of the League have been a membership drive and several social gatherings.

The primary purpose of the organization as set down by the leaders of the movement is to create leadership among unorganized girls, to encourage in competitive athletic sports, to develop a strong bond of friendship among college women, and to provide a common meeting place for sorority and non-sorority co-eds.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS NOTES

The Women's Relief Corps celebrated their 40th anniversary Wednesday evening, April 8, at the home of Elizabeth Cobb on Grace avenue. After a brief business session the evening was spent in games and reminiscences. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess. During the last year they elected a boulder in front of the city hall, gave 6 flags to schools and churches, 15 baskets of fruit to old comrades and shut-ins, made 150 sick calls, decorated with flags and flowers 185 graves and sent donations and clothing to the Otter Lake Billet and the Soldier Home in Grand Rapids. Truly the wives and daughters of the Boys in Blue of 1865 are still doing a wonderful work. There are only 3 old comrades left in Northville, Geo. Goodell, Mr. Cornwell and Mr. Raymond.

NORTHVILLE TEAM GUESTS OF NORMAL AT OPENING GAME

Coach Harold Ruggies and his Northville high school baseball team will be guests of Michigan Normal at the Hurons' opening game on Alumni Field, Ypsilanti, April 25.

Northville high is one of seven neighboring schools which have been invited by the Normal athletic association to witness the Hurons' initial home appearance of the season, against Assumption college of Sandwich, Ont. The other schools are Plymouth, Wayne, Belleville, Milan, Saline and Clinton.

REV. W. C. S. PELLOWE SHOWS MOVIES AT METHODIST CHURCH

Family night at the Methodist church house last Friday evening was well attended by members and friends of the church. Whole families sat down at the long tables are friendly unity. A fine co-operative supper was served by an efficient committee and a well-satisfied group enjoyed a social time following.

The guests of the evening were Rev. and Mrs. W. C. S. Pellowe of Detroit. Mr. Pellowe has been a friend of Mr. and Mrs. Richards since their youth in old England. With moving pictures Mr. Pellowe illustrated a talk on his recent trip to Europe and the Holy land which was full of interest to his audience.

Be Ready To Sleep In Peace

The man whose household goods are uninsured or under-insured always has his night's rest spoiled when the fire engines come into his neighborhood.

At such times he resolves to take out adequate insurance the very next day—and then promptly forgets it.

This is just a reminder that there is no time like the present to attend to this very important matter. We are at your service.

WOMEN STUDY NUTRITION

A group of alert home keepers met in the high school cafeteria Tuesday afternoon to take advantage of the fourth lesson in a course of five demonstrations in "Food in Relation to Health," conducted by Miss Emma Du Bord, who is the county demonstration agent sent out by the Michigan State college.

It will be of interest to know that throughout the county there are 33 classes in all conducted by Miss Du Bord. Some of these are in Child Care, eleven of them in Nutrition. All are well attended, showing the increasing appreciation of the chance to learn the art of right care of the family.

The lesson Tuesday was "Meat Extenders," that is, methods of using meat in combination with other materials. Vegetables, cereals or bread crumbs to make them go farther. She advised the more sparing use of meat in the diet, especially for children.

The two dishes prepared before the class by Miss Du Bord Tuesday were a casserole of potatoes, carrots and peas with liver and "Texas hash." With deft hands Miss Du Bord worked and at the same time explained food values to the class. Both dishes were sampled by the women and pronounced very delicious. Each was a complete meal and very economical. Mrs. F. A. Hauver, assistant Miss Du Bord.

The advantage of meeting thus in classes, Miss Du Bord explained, is in coming in contact with other interested in like matters. One startling statement made by this food expert was that most social luncheons are usually poorly balanced meals.

All women are welcome at these lessons and and them well worth the date of the next class will be announced later.

STANLEY POWELL TO SPEAK AT FEDERATED CHURCH AT SALEM

A church night, to be held to-night by the Salem Federated church, will be featured by a talk to be given by Stanley Powell, a regular weekly contributor to the Michigan Farmer and a representative in the Michigan legislature from Tonia county.

The program starts at 8 o'clock and there will be special music and a splendid supper, which will be served at 6:30. Tickets will be 50c for adults and 25c for children under 12.

BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Throughout the northern states last Sunday hundreds and thousands of Baptist churches, observed, by professional pageant, scripture and prayer, the relation of their love to Christ and giving to the support of His Gospel at home and abroad.

Here in Northville Sunday morning important parts were taken by old and young. In the pageant showing the different fields of service, we wish to mention especially the beautiful representations of three large mission fields by three young ladies India, by Miss Helen Zayt, Japan, Miss Marie Lemmon, China, by Miss Myrtle Lemmon. Many other phases of the work were shown and thus we were made to feel more in vital touch with it.

FACULTY WHO'S WHO

INTRODUCTION

We are going to begin a new item in the Orange and Black which we think will interest nearly everyone. It is to be called "Faculty Who's Who."

In this column we shall endeavor to disclose several small bits of gossip which are unknown to most of us.

For instance, "Where did Mr. So and So come from?" "When did he come?" "Why did he go?" "Where will he go when he leaves here?" "What other words: WHO IS HE?"

Many of us pretend to be acquainted with our faculty members, but when it comes to answering these questions, we find that we know them not.

Each week a different member will appear on the list.

Our first victim is Mr. Knapp, superintendent of schools.

Save these for the family scrap-book!

Thank you,
Audre L. Taylor

Thad Johnson Knapp was born in Northville, Michigan, on the 23rd day of April, 1876.

He studied (was a student) at the University of Michigan.

He has taught at Reed City, Michigan; Joliet, Illinois; Kearney and Newark, New Jersey.

Mr. Knapp was superintendent of schools at Highland Park, Michigan, for fifteen years, and principal of the high school at Kearney, New Jersey.

He is a member of the "Ingle-side club of Detroit, of which he was president in the years 1921-1923, and from 1923 to 1927.

He is accredited with having built up a notable educational system at Highland Park, and having advanced the cause of teachers' salaries in Michigan.

Mr. Knapp married Miss Adaline Spaulding, who was born and raised in Northville. At the time of her marriage she was living at Cadillac.

Mr. Knapp has recently written a book, entitled "Educational Insurance."

GOOD ADVICE

Set your goal post and then work toward it, but never have this goal set in your mind that you will commit blunders on your way. Often in working to reach the goal you have set, you will find a goal that is better suited for you than the one you are trying to reach. Never say "Nothing can stop me. I am going to reach that goal no matter what is in my way," because you are liable to run into a mountain which is in plain sight, but you were so determined that nothing would stop you that you forgot to look all that you could see was the goal you had set. Use care and never rush, because if you rush you will leave little necessities along the way that you will regret after you have reached your goal. To illustrate this I will tell you a story. Two men set out to reach the same light house in different row boats. One of these two men was a fellow that had his mind set on reaching the light house that he forgot to look. He never reached the light house, because a steamer hit his rowboat and killed him. The other man reached the light house because he watched along the way and when he saw the steamer he rowed his boat aside and let the steamer pass, and then continued on his way. You cannot always follow the path you have set without being made to step aside at some narrow point to let someone pass.

—George Greenlee

"How do I look?"
"Sweet!"
"Gosh, this is a heck of a picture."
"Why, no, it looks just like you."
"Did you ever believe in evolution?"
"Look at So and So's picture!" All this occurred when proofs of the pictures taken of seniors were distributed Monday.

AFTER SPRING VACATION

The spring vacation period is over. Once again we return to our school duties, for the long seige between April and June.

There isn't much time left to accomplish any special goal. Most of the school year is over. Yet, if we set ourselves to the task, we may still accomplish something worthwhile to show for our year's effort.

There is no use in regretting past mistakes. The past is over, and we must look to the future, keeping in mind a resolve to do better.

For some time, the last chance they will graduate in June and will have no other opportunity to prove what they can do in high school.

Others will be returning next year. Nevertheless our past is a background for the present, and it is well not to let opportunity slip by too often.

Our wisest plan is to settle down with a firm resolve to do our best the remainder of the year.

BACK TO WORK

Monday came and with it a beautiful day. All of the Northville high school students were awake at seven o'clock, because vacation was over and school has begun after a week of spring vacation.

When we arrived at school, what do you think happened while we were gone? You couldn't guess. The school house was cleaned from top to bottom.

The floors were scrubbed, all the windows were washed, the black boards were washed and polished. There is a row of new chairs in Mrs. Cobb's room.

We are all glad to come back to school and find it so clean. The students should be proud of Northville high school.

DID YOU NOTICE

How clean the building looked Monday morning?

All the bobbed-haired girls at school? Alas, for women's crowning glory.

The seniors looking puzzled? Oh, Algebra, where is thy charm?

The oops, sporting, rolled up shirt sleeves? That's a sure sign spring is here.

Everyone looking so happy Monday? No, not for being back at school. The "Easter Bunny" visited them.

What the well-dressed man is wearing? Look at Ned Junod Gray sweater, white shirt, green suspenders, and yellow neck tie.

Did you notice all those things? We did.

GRADE NOTES

Nancy McLoughlin of Miss Remke's room has been quarantined with scarlet fever.

The people of Mrs. Eaton's room made Easter baskets. They went for a walk and while they were gone the Easter bunny visited their room and put Easter eggs in their baskets.

SENIOR WHO'S WHO

Eunice Cousins, one of our fine seniors, was born in Detroit and attended a grade school there for three years, then she attended the Northville grad. school and later high school.

During her junior year she was elected treasurer of the student council. This year she ably assisted the Junior Girls Glee club at the piano. Through all her high school career she has assisted the music department.

Eunice plans to teach piano lessons next year and take summer courses at the University of Michigan.

Hazel Cordukes, another fine senior, was also born in Detroit. She attended Northville grade school for two years and then returned again to Detroit to attend the open-air school until her freshman year when she returned to Northville.

She was one of the cast in "Bits of Blarney," the operetta given during her freshman year. She has been in the Girls Glee club for three years. This year she has been typing the articles for the Orange and Black. Also she has been very active in senior activities.

Hazel has taken a commercial and general course and plans to attend the Michigan State Normal college at Ypsilanti and either continue her commercial course or take up the study of library work.

GOLF TRYOUTS HELD

Last Tuesday ten boys reported to tryout for the golf team. Tryouts were held but selections have not yet been made. Those reporting were: Campbell, F. Kerr, K. Kerr, Junod, McLoughlin, Ruffenburg, Hills, Weston, Cook and Beard.

BASKETBALL LETTERS GIVEN

With the 1931 basketball season over the members of the squad were given letters that represent this season's work. Of the large group that started only eight received first team letters and another eight second team letters.

First team letters were given to the following: Greenlee (captain), Beech (captain elect), Johnson, Dusenbury, Ruffenburg, Robinson, Menninger.

Second team letters were given to Campbell, Lemmon, Kohler, Beasley, Thompson, Dickerson, Westfall and Fry.

"Affected" Literature

The term "Precieux" was applied to the affected style which developed in France during the Seventeenth century. It was the outcome of a movement for purity and refinement in language and was fostered in various Parisian salons, notably in that of the Hotel de Rambouillet. It soon became a menace to the language, degenerating into a mere affectation. Under this influence, fantastic terms of speech replaced simple expressions to such a degree that the whole movement acquired a ridiculous character and led Moliere to write his brilliant satire, "Les Precieuses Ridicules," which gave the death blow to the school.

No Haste in Holland

Hustle and hurry seem to be associated with travel everywhere except in Holland where you find more travelers in repose than elsewhere. Instead of the automobile the leisurely bicycle wheels along, instead of the rushing train, the gentle canal boat with its almost noiseless use of wind and water carries for your pilgrimage. Little single-street towns, with gardens dipping into the water, slip quietly into cities whose streets are water, and a network of multi-colored houses, embowered in groups of playing children, lie amid long meadows that have never known the headlong peevish haste of the flying hours.

Whisky of Arabian Origin

Whisky, according to Francis Tate, a British government chemist who has written a work called "Alcoholometry," was distilled first by the Arabians at a time when the inhabitants of Great Britain were clothed chiefly in blue dye.

England's contribution to whisky, he says, was in the Twelfth century, under the name of "Uisgeabagh," 100 years before Scotland sampled it. At first it was used purely as medicine, and the monks, who were the only doctors in those days, also were the founders of the distillery industry. —Detroit News.

Koreans Cling to Old Customs in Marriage

It is the rule in Korea for a newly wedded woman to enter the family of her husband, though in a few cases the man makes his home with her family. Marriage cannot be contracted between near relatives. Monogamy, taught by Confucius, has been observed from ancient times, but as the chief object of marriage was the perpetuation of the family, concubinage was formerly recognized when a marriage proved childless. The marriage of young people is usually arranged by their guardians without regard to their wishes, but there is a tendency to respect the will of the parties themselves. Until the day of marriage the engaged couple do not meet and have probably never before seen each other. A wedding is always conducted at the bride's home and after that the bridegroom takes her to his house. In the days of the Korean government the prescribed age of marriage for males was 15 and for females 14, although many males were married younger. Since 1915 no marriage of a male under 17 or of a female under 15 is legal.

Collegiate

President Hadley of Yale used to answer the question "should everyone go to college?" by saying:

"It isn't the going to college that counts, but what one accomplishes after getting there. For certain people, four years in college would be a grand waste of time; for others, even a single term might be of inestimable value."

"It is sad, but true, that sometimes the polish of a college education seems to show mostly on the shoes and hair."

Largest State Capitol

The Texas statehouse at Austin is said to be the largest state capitol in the United States. It was built between 1881 and 1888 by Chicago capitalists in return for 8,000,000 acres of land. The site of Austin itself was selected by a commission appointed in 1836 by the Republic of Texas to find the most attractive spot within the boundaries of the country for the seat of government. —Pathfinder Magazine.

Welcome Beacon

The palm tree is always a welcome sight to a traveler in the arid-places of the East, for there is always sweet water to be found in its vicinity. If there are no "springing wells," or boiling springs to be seen, all natives know that water is to be found by digging near to its roots. Whenever there is an oasis in the sandy deserts its presence is made known by the tall feathery palms, which promise the wanderer shade, refreshment and in the proper, long extended season, dates, the chief food of the Arabs, as well.

Back to Nature

Many persons have seen the chimpanzees' tea party where they all sit round a table and behave like ladies and gentlemen with their tea cups, saucers and plates. Sometimes nature gets the upper hand of this artificial civilization. A coconut was once thrown to them, and within a minute the cage was in a terrific uproar as the monkeys fought for the treasure. Cups and saucers were used as missiles, and everybody fought indiscriminately. The keepers had to intervene, and the tea party came to a sudden end.

"Trade" and "Profession"

"Trade" applies to any mechanical employment or handicraft except agriculture, which is an occupation. "Profession" is used to denote a learned calling, such as clergyman, lawyer, doctor, civil engineer, teacher. A craft is a trade which requires special skill, such as carpenter, bricklayer and blacksmith. "Craft" and "trade" are often used interchangeably and not infrequently "craft" and "art" are about the same. "Business" is almost exclusively used to describe commercial or mercantile occupations.

PROGRESS

It seems a long time since the first wood burning engine heroically panted its message of the advent of the "Iron Horse." Here to stay, to prosper and succeed through the foresightedness of bankers and investors who saw its possibilities.

This same attitude of progressiveness, with the benefit of years of experience in the financial world, is available here to individuals and business organizations seeking a modern banking affiliation.

NORTHVILLE STATE SAVINGS BANK

A TALE WITH A MORAL

"Even as a high-school boy he knew the kind of girl that he wanted to marry. He aimed high. No girl in school met his ideal. Nor did any girl in his town. Nor later, during his college career, did he find one who measured up to his requirements. But he vowed to stay single until he did."

He entered business. It fascinated him. He gave to it all he had; his time, his energy, his mind. But at cost to his friends. He saw few of his old ones. He made no new ones—only now and then did he make new acquaintances. He became less and less interested in what went on about him. Even the neighborhood around his home changed—though he was hardly aware of it. Sometimes, in the late evening, in his room, he would dream of his home and the wife he wanted in it. Being a bachelor was an empty existence, at best. Some day, certainly, he would have to make a search—even to the ends of the earth—to find his ideal.

For fifteen years this went on. Success came to him in large measure. Suddenly he realized he was tired. He decided to give himself a year abroad. As his ship sailed, he wondered if he would bring home the girl of his dreams—and where he would find her.

It was in Siam, months later, that he found her—traveling, as he was. Instantly they both knew they were meant for each other. And after a while he asked her where her home was. And she told him—and he groaned when he heard.

For ten years she had lived just around the corner from him and he had never known it.

That's the way it goes. How often we go out of our way for the good things that are just around the corner.

So this is to remind you of something just around the corner—a man's shop, full of good bargains, where you can buy in a hurry, pay a fair and square price and be satisfied forever.

"Won't you step in—how that you know it's just around the corner?"

Proof

If Mr. Hoover wants to prove that the cost of living has declined during his administration, he can point out that seats on the stock exchange which sold for $600,000 early in 1929 can now be bought for $250,000.—Judge

ROTARY-EXCHANGE CLUBS TO GATHER IN MONTHLY MEET

Unanimous action to meet each month with the Exchange club, in an interchange of programs, and election of officers who will begin their duties on July 1, were high spots of the program Monday noon at the luncheon session of the Northville Rotary club. The arrangement for a joint meeting for each club to present its program on alternate months.

The Rotarians selected Father Jos. G. Schuler, who has been vice president, as their new president, and Percy Angove was made vice president. Other officers chosen were secretary, Ray Van Valkenburgh; treasurer, E. L. Mills; new director, Chas. Scholtz; John McCully and W. E. Forney.

President Elton R. Eaton was in charge of the session. Next week the club will have the unusual pleasure of hearing Mr. Eaton tell of his recent trip to California.

There will be no session of the Rotarians on April 27, as most of the members plan to attend the district convention at Flint. Ernest Miller is in charge of arrangements.

"QUOITS" PROJECT IS STARTED HERE

The ancient and honorable game of horseshoes, also known as "barnyard golf" and "quoits" will once more come into its own if the plans of a group of Northville business men headed by John Nelson are successful.

Permission has been received from C. R. Horton to use his vacant lot next to the theatre building as a site for the horseshoe pitching activities. There will be five pairs of stakes and accommodations for as many people as will want to play.

The only reservation is that the players must bring their own horseshoes.

Much credit is due the sponsors for their persistence and hard work in putting on this project. All the stakes were put in once, and pits made and everything held in readiness when some vandals pulled up the stakes at night and scattered the sand around the field.

The stakes will all be in by tomorrow and there will be a meeting of the sponsors of the project at the field tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock for the purpose of informal opening exercises.

The public is invited to be present at the opening and anyone living in Northville is eligible to pitch horseshoes. There will be no charge made to anyone for the use of the field.

The sponsors hope to be able to start a horseshoe pitching tournament as soon as sufficient interest is aroused.

The list of sponsors includes the names of John Nelson, D. P. Yerkes, E. C. Allen, Lyke, Wm. Forney, Geo. H. Schuler, Chas. Clayton Walker, Ralph Wood, Les Wood, Orlow, Owen, Don Miller, Fred Forsman and Edward Foreman.

A general invitation is extended to the public to use the field at noon, in the afternoon, or any leisure hour and there are no charges.

HAMMELEFS SPIKE

REMOVAL RUMOR

A recent rumor that Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hammelef are to move from their coffee shop on Main street was discounted when Mrs. Hammelef related how pleased she was with the spring business.

"Northville is a pleasant place to live in," Mrs. Hammelef said, "and besides that our business has prospered exceedingly well with the coming of warm weather. People dislike the chore of preparing a meal over a hot stove and then having to wash a large stack of dishes after the dinner is over."

"Yes," she said in conclusion, "we intend to stay in Northville for quite a while. We like it too well to move."

MAPES' STATEMENT REFUTED BY BRYANT

"I certainly was on my side of the road," declared Freeman Bryant whose wagon was struck and one horse killed by a car driven by Emory Mapes one mile east of Salem on Saturday night, April 4.

"The wagon tracks show clearly that I was on my side of the road, and as for lights, the lantern was still on the harness after the accident. The fact that the right horse of the team was killed shows that Mapes was way over on my side of the road and furthermore, I have a witness who will swear that the car was being driven at close to 65 miles an hour.

"I don't know how they came over on my side of the road and hit me. They must have swerved in the loose gravel into me because it isn't reasonable to suppose that I would be driving a slow moving wagon on the left side of the road at night without lights. The wagon and team belonged to me and not to the Ford Motor company."

Mr. Bryant declared that he would take the matter up with Emory Mapes' father, Frank Mapes, on Cady street, in order to definitely settle the responsibility.

DETROIT BALL CLUB SENDS CHALLENGE

The surest sign of spring anywhere is the appearance of baseball teams, professional, amateur, or just plain "pick-up" teams.

Mr. Braun is looking for games for his team, the Mack Avenue Cartage and Storage men, and if there are any teams in Northville that would like to take up Mr. Braun's challenge, they are invited to communicate with him at the address given.

Mr. Braun would like a single game or a series of games. Having a baseball veteran for mayor it seems unlikely that Northville baseball fans will ignore the challenge.

The famous ride of Paul Revere is a colorful example of early American patriotism. Probably we are no less patriotic today—probably we feel our responsibility to our countrymen just as keenly... but the romantic opportunities to express it are not so conspicuous. This bank believes that in serving the community in a financial and business way daily it is performing a valuable and patriotic service.

Mr. and Mrs. Valued Customer

From Any Place

Dear Friends:

The results gained from Northville's Spring Value Demonstration were far in excess of our expectations and we would like to express our appreciation to our patrons for their wonderful response.

We said that we were out to offer real values and we took our regular merchandise, made large discounts, and marked in plain figures the prices that told you we meant what we said. We've been in Northville for 24 years and it has always been our experience that if we consistently treat our customers right they will continue to trade with us. Our judgment in this has always been vindicated.

Our Value Demonstration was not merely an empty gesture. If you have any doubts as to our sincerity, drop into our store either today or tomorrow, examine the merchandise, and the price tags attached and see if we aren't in earnest.

We have not the slightest doubt that our splendid success this week was due solely to the fact that for nearly a quarter of a century, this store has been known as a place where every buyer will find the highest quality merchandise, priced so as to give the utmost value at a minimum figure.

Remember that you have two more days in which to select your new Spring furniture at a large discount. We have some magnificent "buys" at the store merely awaiting your approval.

Sincerely yours,

SCHRADER BROS.

WHAT ABOUT FATHER'S SIDE OF THE QUESTION?

"I wish my dad would play with me the young growing boy in our family was heard to say the other day. This remark we repeated to a friend, a Detroit attorney, who knows fathers and their problems, who is not only a father of boys himself but who grew up in a family of six brothers. He understands four sides of the problem. This is what he started us by saying: 'What about the father's side of the question? When are boys going to make up and think about making their father's load lighter? All day he works under great strain to provide food, clothes, a car to drive, and college education. Glibly sings the college student: 'And because he is a piff... Father has to pay the bill... and accepts it all as his heaven-born right. Father should be tied to death to slave for his piff...'"

"The high-light of the boy these days 'Father and Son' affairs are too insistent until boys are quite convinced that they are the sole end and aim of their father's life. At the end of a hard day why shouldn't father rest? Why feel obliged to get out and amuse his boy?"

These remarks set us thinking and one of the pet theories that father and son should play together "jumbled" rather weakly. We were reminded of a certain poem by Edgar Guest which is worth quoting at this point: 'Used to wonder just why father never had much time for play, Used to wonder why he'd rather work each minute of the day. Used to wonder why he never loafed along the road and smirked, Can't recall a time whenever father played while others worked.'

All I knew was when I needed shoes I got 'em on the spot; Everything for which I pleaded, Somehow, father always got. Wondered, season after season, Why he never took a rest, And that I might be the reason Then I never even guessed.

Saw his cheeks were getting paler, Didn't understand just why, Saw his body growing frailer, Then at last I saw him die. Rest had come! His tasks were ended, Calm was written on his brow, Father's life was big and splendid, And I understand it now."

MRS. FORD'S PUMPKIN PIE The Exchange had a big piece of Mrs. Amelia Ford's good pumpkin pie recently—so good that we asked her how she made it. This is the way: For two big pies: 2 eggs well beaten 1 cup of sugar 1 1/2 cup of milk 1 can of pumpkin Cinnamon, ginger, cloves and salt to taste. Start in quick oven and finish slowly.

Would you like a rule for the crust that is bound to be good—always the same and so easy to throw together? An expert pie maker gives us this recipe for "Never fail pie crust."

1 cup of lard 2 cup boiling water. Stir until lard is melted and stir into 1 1/2 cups of flour with 1/2 teaspoon each of baking powder and salt. Mix up with stirring spoon and set aside until cool before rolling out. Keep covered in a bowl and it will ready, hang over to pluck off what you need for a pie whenever you want one. This will make 3 double crust pies or 6 single crusts.

CHADWICK TO GIVE PLAN TO COUNCIL

Representatives of L. W. Chadwick, president of the Chadwick manufacturing company, who is the owner of the 65 acres plot of ground adjacent to the Silver Springs company, will go before the village council Monday night with a proposition to bring more manufacturing industries to Northville.

The plan to be presented, according to R. A. Corrigan, Mr. Chadwick's representative, is that they will donate a strip of land adjoining the railroad to manufacturers who come here if the path of the Seven mile road is brought down through the land back of the strip which the representatives wish to subdivide.

Mr. Corrigan states that he has a list of prospective manufacturers whom he thinks can be induced to come to Northville.

"The proposition stands squarely before the people of Northville," said Mr. Corrigan. "If they manifest enough interest and the council is willing to help us, we are convinced that we can bring two or three manufacturers to Northville that would employ approximately 200 men. I would like to see a good turnout of Northville business men at the village commission meeting next Monday night."

Nature

How insipid a thing is the countryside, and what poor company for militant thinking! That calm, that silence, that immobility, those great trees with their leaves whirling in the heat, curling back like webbed feet. It is all a delight for women and children and lawyers' clerks. But does not the thinking man feel ill at ease before the enemy, as before the face of God, making manure and pasture of his philosopher's brain? In the stone of cities you escape these ideas. —Goncourt's Journal, May, 1857.

Mrs. Jennie White Is Honored Tuesday on Her 91st Birthday at Dinner at Mrs. Barron's Home

Mrs. Jennie White reached another milestone in her long life-journey Tuesday and is now ninety-one years old. A year ago quite a public demonstration was made in her honor on her anniversary birthday when a large number of her friends called and brought flowers and gifts to show their love.

This year eight of her very intimate friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Allen Barron at 131 Florence Street, Detroit, to celebrate her 91st birthday. Those present were Mrs. Chas. Dubuay, Mrs. Margaret Yerkes, Mrs. Della Brooks, Miss Inez Bryan, Mrs. Donald Williams and Mrs. D. F. Griswold.

At the close of the delicious dinner a birthday cake was brought on, this time one lighted candle stood in the center, not having room for 91. The guest of honor cut the cake.

Mrs. White has been an outstanding character with her fine friendly personality. No one thinks of her as an old lady, so keen has she kept her mind by reading and contact with the people. The changes which nearly a century have brought to modes of living have found her ready to adapt herself to each as it came. She has always been a welcome guest wherever she went. Few have a more sparkling sense of humor. One instance she still loves to chuckle over was the answering of an advertisement for an assistant to which she replied: "I've been deaf only 10 years so I am not sure it will help. The instrument came and was used."

A year ago the record printed the following story written by Mrs. White. Nothing that we could write would be half so interesting as we repeat:

(By Mrs. Jennie White)
"In 1831, Capt. and Mrs. William Dunlap arrived here from New York, bringing with them two boys, a boy of twelve or thirteen years of age, to give them a home in the new country. One of them, Louis McCormick, fell a victim to malaria, fever and died the first year. His was the first grave in the new place.

The other, David Clarkson, lived with them until he was twenty-one.

Single Copies Scanned by This Book Borrower

As a general rule, book publishers in this country depend mainly on lending libraries for their sales. In Denmark publishers are taking more drastic steps. One firm there is trying to prevent libraries from lending its books unless they pay double the ordinary price for them. Here, as conditions are at the moment, the libraries are the publisher's best friends. There are very few people who want to buy books, and large numbers who want to borrow them. The greatest book-borrower in history, however, lived at a time when people who wanted books had usually to buy them. He was the duke of Somerset, who was lord protector in the reign of Edward VI. He borrowed the whole of the books in the London Guildhall library, leading them into cars and taking them away to read at his leisure. And he never returned a single one. Three years ago a manuscript belonging to this collection was found. It is the only survivor.—London Mail.

When Eggs Were Cheap

The fresh egg, that succulent article which frequently graces the breakfast table, is not usually associated with bridge building, says an article in the Edinburgh Journal. Nevertheless the upper North Water bridge, which spans the river North Esk near Montrose, contains this strange ingredient in its fabric. The bridge was constructed about 1780 and at that period eggs were costing about one penny per dozen of 14, but were not then regarded as of any special food value. Hundreds of dozens were brought from the village of Fettercairn and the surrounding district to the scene of the work and mixed into the mortar, thereby increasing its tenacity and asuring durable workmanship when the bridge was completed.

"Centers of Population" by statisticians, as used by them, is meant the point about which the total population of a district or country is conceived to balance. In other words it is the center of gravity of population, assuming that the district is a plane and that each unit of population has the same weight. Suppose all the people of the United States are conceived as resting on a weightless plane having the size and shape of the United States. The center of population would be the point where the plane would balance on a single support.—Pittsburgh Magazine.

and became a prominent man in the community.

Mr. Dunlap purchased 160 acres of land with a small grist mill and a log house, into which he moved his family and commenced the trials and privations of pioneer life.

There were no hotels nearer than Detroit, and men coming in search of land and those bringing grists from a distance for the mill must be accommodated. Consequently their little log house was always full; the men sleeping in the loft and the family on the ground floor. Then, too, bread had a trick of going out in such families, and when there was no salaratus to be had nearer than Detroit, Mr. Dunlap would turn corn-cobs, using the eye from the ashes to sweeten sour milk, and making a very good biscuit.

The mill on the farm was a very crude affair, but with some improvements furnished flour for the settlers for miles around, until about 1845, when the larger mill was built that was lately torn down and the machinery moved by Mr. Yerkes to his place on the Base Line.

In the spring of 1852, Mr. Dunlap laid out the first plot of the village and sold off lots from his recently purchased farm, which extended from what is now Main Street to the Base Line and from Rogers Street to beyond Rogers Street on the west. In all his plans Mr. Dunlap's first thought seemed to be for the advancement of the village, and privations and hardships were cheerfully borne as they were always the hope of the future.

When the village was thriving and growing up around them where there would only a wilderness.

In the summer of 1857, a new house was built. It was a story and a half house on what is now the Neal Place, and was the first frame dwelling house in the place.

In 1858 the south half of the house which is still standing was built, and when Capt. Gardner bought this place in 1858 the original building was moved to West Randolph Street, and the present addition was built.

Divisions of Poetry

The three principal classes of poetry are epic, dramatic and lyric. An epic poem is a long narrative poem dealing with events in the life of the hero or heroine. For example, "Evangeline" and "The Rime" are epics. A lyric is a brief poem which expresses the sentiment of the poet. As Dr. William A. Wilbur expressed it, "An epic is always the story of some one other than the poet." This is contrary to the lyric. The word "drama" means the deed. A dramatic poem is one the emphasis in which is upon action.

Anthracite and Bituminous
The word "anthracite" is derived directly from the Greek "anthrax" meaning coal. It is a noun and is applied to hard coal, namely, coal composed of nearly pure carbon. Accordingly we should say "supplies anthracite," not "anthracite coal," the latter is tautological and equivalent to "coal-like coal." "Bituminous," on the other hand, is an adjective and should be followed by the word "coal." Bituminous coal is soft coal, namely, coal that yields considerable volatile bituminous matter when heated.

"A MAN'S FEET TELL YOU WHAT KIND OF A CHAP HE IS"

YOU CAN TELL A SMALL GENT IF YOU DON'T SEE ANYTHING BUT HIS FEET!

You oftentimes say "Hello" to a fellow before you see his face; you get a gentle idea of who he is by referring to his footwear or some other article of his apparel. Well-booted character is personality plus. Have your shoes rebuilt.

Obituary

Mrs. Frances Martha Dubuay Horton

Frances Martha Dubuay Horton, at the last, sank into deep sleep and passed into the Eternal silence. Her death took place Thursday morning, April 9th. Her age was 83 years.

The funeral services were held at her home on East Main street, at 2 o'clock, Saturday, April 11th. Rev. Harold G. Whitfield, pastor of the Presbyterian church officiated. The song service was by Ray Van Valkenburgh. Beautiful flowers in appreciation covered the casket. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery beside her departed loved ones.

Mrs. Horton was the second daughter of Rev. James Dubuay and Martha Purdy Dubuay and was born July 27, 1847, at Manchester, Bennington county, Vermont. She came with her parents and other members of the family to Northville in 1851 when her father entered upon his long pastorate of twenty years of the local Presbyterian church. All the years of her life were passed here with the exception of time spent at educational institutions and one winter in Detroit. She was given excellent educational advantages—the local school, at state normal school, Ypsilanti, Mich., and two years at Mount Holyoke seminary, Mass.

She became the bride, July 27th, 1868, of Edward S. Horton, civil war veteran, business man, postmaster 23 years, superintendent of the local telephone exchange. His death occurred in 1908. So they were married four sons, of whom two died in infancy and two at 21 years of age. Their surviving sons are: Charles Horton, local druggist, and two grand-children, Miss Martha and Edward, also her two sisters, Mrs. Emma Johnson and Elizabeth Wheeler and her brother, O. F. Dubuay.

Mrs. Horton took an active interest in affairs of her town, particularly in the Northville Woman's club and the Woman's Relief corps.

Uniting with the Presbyterian church of Northville September 30th, 1865, she continued in membership until her death. It was in her church life that she was so intensely interested and zealous, contributing to all her churches finances and benevolences, attending all its service and devotions. Sincere in heart, pure in spirit, having faith abundant in her Savior, she passed on into the new life.

Provisions for Regular Sessions of Congress

Each congress covers the period from the fourth day of the March following the congressional election in which its members were chosen, to noon the fourth day of March of the second year thereafter, or a period of two years.

According to the Constitution, congress must meet in regular session on the first Monday of December of every year, and special sessions may be held upon the call of the President. The "long session" is the one beginning in the odd-numbered years because it may continue until business is finished. It usually ends, though, in the early summer. The session beginning in December of the even-numbered years is called the "short session" for the reason that it may last only until March 3, owing to the expiration of the terms of the men.

Mythological Belief
The "Delphic Oracle" was the priestess known as Pythia, who sat upon a tripod over a crevice in the rocks of Mount Parnassus. Overpowering vapors, assumed to be the divine breath of Apollo, were supposed to influence the priestess who gave utterance to Apollo's words. Her mutterings were recorded by priests who interpreted them in verse. Delphi, the headquarters of the oracle, was an ancient town in Phocis, Greece, called Pytho in the stories of Homer. It is on the southern slope of Mount Parnassus.
