THEY FOUND A BOOMERANG

Some of the Republican politicians have found out that "they who take the sword will perish by it."

Some of the "big shots" of the party thought it would be a fine idea to "knife" Governor Wilbur M. Brucker and yet push through the rest of the state ticket. So instead of staying by our efficient, high-minded and courageous governor, as loyal Republicans should have done, they got out their hatchets and went up and down Michigan to defeat Brucker and yet elect the rest of the Republican ticket. Well, the racket failed to work and the whole state ticket, with one possible exception, was defeated. It was defeated by disloyalty of men who have been honored by their party. It was defeated by selfish men who sought power for themselves. We feel sorry for some of the good men who have been removed from office, but we have no pity—only contempt—for those selfish men who accomplished their aim to push one man out who is so doing harm to the state.

We have observed this in all the towns (18—count them) in which we have lived. The most consistent adherents to the best business and are the most successful. They are the exceptions, of course, but they simply prove the rule.

THANKSGIVING OF 1932

With thousands of men out of work in Michigan, including men in our own Northville community, many not having enough to eat (and there are some of those here in our own town); with depression on every hand, what shall we here in this little suburban Detroit have to say about Thanksgiving day?

Certainly we cannot approach this day of gratitude with the old-time complacency and tell of "bursting granaries" and a prosperity that has "reached out to every corner of the land, no matter how humble." The granaries are indeed full but many there are—in almost every corner of the land—many who should have more to eat. There is indeed prosperity for many but there is another army from whom about every material possession has been taken. Ten million men are out of work—and who can tell the complete story of the ramifications of that appalling fact?

For what then, shall we be thankful? For material blessings? Yes, for with all the unfair distribution of our amazing wealth, with all the want and woe, we are still a favored people. We still have a wealth of material things which our grandparents never knew. The radios are heard in every block and on every country road; the automobiles throng the streets and roads; the average home is one that has many material blessings.

But for us all—those who have little left of material stuff and for those who have suffered little from the past three years of leveling—there is a vaster need than to give thanks to Divine Providence for material blessings. We need to thank God that "Life is more than meat" and that we have spiritual values that no depression and no man can take from us. With material values falling like a house of cards all around us, we still have these eternal things: The laughter of little children; the love of our family (who would trade that for all the money that could be piled up?); the loyalty of friends (and what would life be if you had millions of money and no friends?); the sunshine of a Michigan sky and the inspiring winds of a Michigan winter; the comfort of good books; health and strength—we all have a certain measure of it, no matter what our frailties; the self-respect that we build by living in a fine, wholesome way.

Yes, we have everything for which to be thankful. The past three years have shown us what money and wealth won't do and better still, they have shown us that no person can be bankrupt when he clings to the eternal values of life that are all around him if he will only seize them. We need to say: "Lord, God of Hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget," lest we forget that life can be as rich as we make it. That is the spirit of Thanksgiving of 1932.

WANDERING THOUGHTS

Is there any satisfaction that beats that of paying a bill?

Got any extra clothes around the house? Why not pass them on to some deserving ones?

It is reported that a local bootlegging place has girl visitors. If that is the case, someone can get ready for trouble—and maybe more trouble than the bootlegger expects.

Northville can be proud of the fine school page, "The Orange and Black," that is being run in The Record. Give the high school folks a lot of credit—they are working hard at it.

What a fine thing it would be for Northville if every one spent as much of his or her Christmas money as possible, right here with our home merchants who make it possible to have a "main street."

Speaking about beer, here is one little resolve we have just made, getting ready for the deluge: The family automobile is going to do just as little running around as possible on week-ends and nights. We want to live a few years more.

THE POT OF GOLD

(C. H. Hemingway, in The Ann Arbor Tribune)

The pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow at present appears to be booze. The revenue from its manufacture and sale is to pay our taxes. It is expected to rent our vacant stores and give employment where now there is none. It is also to promote temperance. Out of the grove of things that the return of booze is expected to do, there arise several seeming inconsistencies.

A very short time ago it was stated that beer would be taxed three cents a glass which would produce a billion dollars of revenue, and the government could use a billion dollars. But to produce that revenue the people of the United States would have to drink thirty-three and a third billion glasses of beer. Beer taxed at three cents a glass, at the brewery would mean 10 cents a glass to the ultimate consumer—and gone is our dream of a schooner of beer for a nickel—so to get the one billion dollars the people would have to spend three and a third billion dollars, or nearly thirty dollars for every man, woman and sucking babe in the United States or nearly $50 per family. Does that look like temperance?

The latest suggestion is that it is to be taxed $6 a barrel or less than a cent a glass. Therefore to get the billion revenue it would be necessary for the "public" to consume three times as many glasses or one hundred and thirty billion glasses. In other words every one of the 120 million men, women and children will have to drink almost a thousand glasses of beer annually. Does that seem possible and consistent with true temperance? Would the average family of five be able to spend between $450 and $500 a year for beer? What would the family be willing to do without in order to spend this amount on beer?

The conclusion seems to be that we can not expect the revenue that has been so glibly promised, that we will have to revise our idea of revenue downward or our ideas of consumption upward.

Don't forget the lonely folks on Thanksgiving day.

"THE HOOVER TRAGEDY"

(Editorial in New York Times, Independent Democrat Paper)

For the President personally, his defeat there will be a feeling of kindness touched by the pathos of the political misfortunes against which he has struggled in vain. The strong god Circumstance was too powerful for him. He was held responsible for the sins of others. Upon his individual head was wreaked the spirit of resentment and of vengeance for events which neither he nor any other man in public office could control. It is true that he partly exposed himself to such attack by identifying himself with the wrong policies and foolish promises of his party four years ago; but to single him out as if he were the sole man accountable, the only one to bear the burden, the fitting target for the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, was no doubt inevitable, as human nature goes—especially as the nature of the political animal goes—but distinctly and grossly unfair. Mr. Hoover was deserted by his friends as well as assaulted by his enemies. The campaign was going against him almost by default, until he stepped forward to assume the whole load of it. To the end he presented the pathetic spectacle of a man exerting all of his strength against formidable and insurmountable obstacles. It was a clear case of an individual made to suffer unjustly for the mistakes and crimes of others.

Herbert Hoover ought to be remembered for his abilities, his successes, as well as his failures. Through all the great crisis he certainly displayed great qualities. No President ever worked harder in the hope of helping the people to escape from their troubles. Mr. Hoover also worked with rare intelligence. His grasp of facts was phenomenal. His adherence to what he believed sound principles was heroic. For fully three years he was compelled to pass through the furnace of political affliction, and came out of it, to be sure, with certain defects and flaws revealed, yet with a large amount of the pure gold of statesmanlike talent, along with an undoubted and unsparring devotion to the public good.

Into his coming retirement the American people will follow him

Severely to eighty horses and bugles were tied to the hitching posts along Main and Center streets while folks took time to trade and gossip?

A show was an uncommon occurrence, but was well patronized when one did find its way to the old opera house at Center and Dunlap streets?

PARASITES

It is much regretted that there are around Northville a gang of boys, both in school and out, who make themselves not only pests and nuisances, but parasites as well. These boys hang around the school, follow the athletic teams, as seagulls follow ships at sea, keep their eyes open, and when opportunity offers, swoop down and steal! They not only sponge off the school, taking athletic equipment, but rob the team members themselves of clothes and other personal property. As the year goes on their offenses seem to mount, and by June, as a result, the school will be much in debt.

This group of underhanded individuals are parasites! They are worse than parasites. They are "the scum of Northville," a disgrace to our school and town! They rob; they steal; they sponge off from every source. They show, besides this, sublime ignorance. They have no sense of the meaning of the word private. They do not know enough to respect public property. They show extreme egotism in believing they own or have a right to everything. They are in short, just about the worst possible form of humanity.

And what is to be done about this gang? Are they to be allowed to go rampant over the school? Is law and order going to fall before a bunch of persons who practice thievery and underhanded sneaking. We believe not.

Means for the prevention of this sort of thing have been devised. School authorities are taking a hand. Every student is being warned to be on the lookout for these parasites, and urged to do everything possible to apprehend them. A closer tab is being kept on athletic equipment.

It is certain that the names of a few of these undesirable individuals are in the hands of school officials. It is believed they have proof. If more is needed, measures have been provided whereby it can be obtained.

Let the parasites beware!

ROUND THE SCHOOL

THANKSGIVING

What should Thanksgiving mean to the students of Northville high school? Some would say, "eating lots of turkey." Others, "giving a good time." And still others, we suppose would answer, "just what the word means, giving thanks."

We grant you all three of these, and naturally the broad minded persons will agree that the third answer is really the best: giving thanks.

This is all very well and good, giving thanks is the proper thing. But to whom do you give thanks, and for what? To God? Yes. To your parents? Yes. To the school officials? Yes. To your friends? Again yes.

And now for what do you give thanks?

Of course, for your parents, friends, for being alive, but we mean in connection with the school alone.

Times are hard, no need for a reminder. The banks are still closed. The school started late. And yet you most certainly should be thankful. Thankful that you are able to go to school—many children aren't. Thankful that you have a school to go to—many children haven't. Thankful that you have such good and competent instructors to teach you—many children don't have. And thankful finally, that the students of Northville are of the type that they are: liberal, fun-loving, sociable, intelligent, thankful that your associates and friends are the best that can be found anywhere, the true American boys and girls.

Help the Welfare

A great opportunity has come to the students of this high school. They have a chance to help clothe some poor and ill-fed child. It is taken as a matter of course that all high school students will respond to this call for food and clothes promptly. The quicker the better as some little boy or girl may be cold and unable to attend school on account of the lack of the proper clothing.

Everyone is urged to bring as much as possible to school at once and do their part in helping Northville's needy.

We Agree With Lincoln

The great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, is quoted as giving the following bit of advice, and we heartily agree with him:

"Do not worry! eat three square meals a day, be courteous to your creditors; keep your digestion, exercise; go slow and easy. Maybe there are some other things, that your special case requires to make you happy, but my friend, these I reckon will give you a good lift."

Harry Newman's paper, the Detroit News, says that he alone is responsible for Michigan's football victories. The News should profit from our example as we did not say that any one man was so influential in our victory.

We hear that in teacher's meetings, the contestants or rather we should say faculty, not only eat candy and apples, but chew gum as well. Their gathering is still, however, more dignified than a senior class meeting.

Definition goalposts—two sticks of wood with cross bars for the purpose of building a bonfire, also sometimes used in football games. The Coach could get football material by being present at the cloakroom rush after one of the senior dances.

Where we mistaken or did everyone attend Jack Miner's interesting lecture Tuesday to hear the lecture.

Lincoln's above reference to three square meals a day shows a very optimistic side of his character.

We observe from experience that staying after school is dangerous.

SENIORS TO SELL BAKED GOODS, CARDS

Bake Sale Dec. 10; Will Present Play After Holidays

The senior class in its infinite drive to make money for a trip in the spring, has a wide and varied program for the immediate future.

In addition to their bi-weekly dances, which will reach a climax with the senior prom, the seniors plan to put on a play shortly after the holidays. They will class officials say, but on another dramatic production later in the year, probably sometime in April.

A play will be definitely selected at the first of the week and a cast will probably be chosen very soon. Everything is being done so that the practicing may start as soon as possible.

To Give Bake Sale

The class will give a bake sale very soon, probably December 10, said President Richard Shipley. The place is not yet known but will be made public later. The president urged everyone to try to patronize the senior class at this activity. During the year the class, according to the present program, plans to give many other bake sales.

The class every afternoon, after school, is selling candy and this activity appears to be quite profitable.

Selling Christmas Cards

In addition to these things, the seniors are selling Christmas cards. A committee has been appointed to handle this task and it is believed that they plan to canvass the town quite thoroughly. The cards they have range through different prices and are of various designs and materials.

The senior program is very complex. It is no easy task to try putting on four or five various activities at once, especially and have them successful. The seniors may not make enough money to carry them to their objective, but they are putting up a stiff battle.

STUDENTS URGED TO HELP WELFARE

"The clothing promised by the Northville high school students though coming in fairly well, is not nearly what I expected," said Coach Harold L. Ruggles, who is in charge of the relief work done by the school.

Mr. Ruggles met the students in the assembly last week and urged them to bring any of their old and cast off clothing to school, and that it would help to clothe some boy or girl, who, due to being so ill-clothed, is staying away from school. He cited several instances where in the grades, children had come to school on a cold morning very scantily clad and with only goggles on their feet.

A large majority promised to bring the proper objects and put them on the stage in front of the auditorium. Though nothing much has yet been brought, much time still remains. Coach Ruggles, however, urged everyone to bring their contribution as soon as possible, saying that the sooner it is given, the sooner some poor child will be relieved of suffering. The school will co-operate with the city in the relief work.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Cobb entertained her father from Howell over the week-end.

Kenneth Eichen attended an indoor polo game at the Detroit Riding and Hunt club Saturday night.

Madeline Haystead spent Sunday in Farmington with Mary Jane Schroeder.

DON BRAY HOST TO GRID SQUAD

Tuesday evening, Donald Bray entertained the Northville high school football team, of which he was a member, at a dinner party. The following boys were present: Nelson Schrader, Jr., Eddie Bender, Leo Kohler, Kenneth Kerr, Don Bray, Irvin Ware, Essie Niford, Robert Reed, Warner Neal, Richard Shipley, John Steenchen, Lynn Mathews, Louis Campbell, Paul Baldwin, Albert Vandenburg, Dayton Deal, Junior Dundas, Charles Straditz, Howard Latta, and Melvin Mitchell.

The team reported that all had a "swell time" and Mrs. Bray, who is our school nurse, says that she almost had a chance to practice her profession on several of the boys when they had finished eating Indigestion?

CLASS FOR VIOLIN BEGINNERS STARTED

BY LESLIE G. LEE

If you should happen to pass Mr. Lee's room some Wednesday or Friday afternoon, about three fifteen you might witness what was causing all of the giggles and snickers.

If you were to look in you would see sixteen boys and girls ranging from the fifth to the ninth grades "sawing" away on their violins.

These boys and girls are learning to play violin in the class method. "The Universal Teacher" by Maddy and Giddings, which is used makes it possible for a group of pupils to learn to play together.

The young violinists are very enthusiastic about the course, and all are striving to make the orchestra before school is out.

The only cost in connection with the lessons is a book which costs seventy-five cents.

SENIOR'S WHO'S WHO

Wilma Rattenbury

The last two class officers' who's who are given this week. They are Wilma Rattenbury and Howard Latta.

Wilma Rattenbury was born in Veneta township on Dec. 27, 1914. She has always attended Northville schools.

Wilma won the dictionary given by the Detroit News for three consecutive years—the 6-7-8 grades. She was also runner-up for the school championship several years.

When she was in the ninth grade she won the prize offered for the best essay on the life of Thomas A. Edison.

Wilma was a member of the debating team during the years 1929-30-31-32.

Last year Wilma was a member of the Dramatics club.

Bilbe (as her friends call her) won a Woodstock award for typing and an O. G. A. award for shorthand.

Bilbe has served on many committees. Among them: the invitation and program committee for the J-Hop, the photograph committee for the senior pictures, and she represents her class on the committee to arrange the assembly programs for this year.

Last but not the less important, Wilma is treasurer of the senior class of 1933.

Wilma's hobbies are living, being happy and having a good time.

Howard Latta

Howard Roy Latta was born in Battle Creek Mich., August 7, 1915. Howard has rather done the schools of Michigan.

He received his first three years of schooling in Battle Creek. He received his third and fourth grade education in the Estabrook school in Detroit. The next three years he spent in the Harding school in Brightmore. Then he attended Cooley high for his freshman and sophomore years. In the year 1928 he was a member of the Cooley high football squad. After finishing the 10th grade Howard was out of school for a year. Then he came to Northville.

Howard was a member of the Boys' Glee Club last year, and had one of the leading parts in the operetta.

BASKETBALL PRACTICE IS HELD IN GYM

Many Candidates Present at Initial Practice; Game Dec. 16

With the call to basketball candidates issued this week Northville basketball practice definitely started. Though a large number of boys answered this call, when the Orange and Black went to press it was not known who they were. However, it was thought that besides the old team members the following would be present at the initial practice: Last year's team—Capt. Ray Westphal, Leo Kohler, Henry Hoffman, Louis Campbell, Dayton Deal and Irvin Ware; others who have not played on the varsity—Bray, Marburger, Latta, Meyers, Moffitt, Moose Baldwin, and presumably many others.

Opinions vary about the Northville chances this year, Coach Ruggles says. "Our material does not seem to be as good as last year's, and I would say our chances were slim."

Quizzed on the same question, Capt. Westphal is quoted as saying, "We have a fighting chance for an even break."

Leo Kohler was even more optimistic, saying "Our chances of winning are as good as anyone's."

First Game Dec. 16

As the schedule was given last week, Coach Ruggles has been trying to fill these with games with Flat Rock, Detroit, Country Day School, and Ypsilanti Consolidated. It was expected that he would be able to secure games with at least two of these schools. As the schedule stands now the first game is Friday, December 16, with Farmington. The Coach says, however, that he would like to get a game for Dec. 9 which date at the present time stands open.

GRADE NOTES

Miss Leonardson's first grade pupils have composed the following poem about their miniature farm.

We have a nice farm.

With a big red barn.

And silos and corn cribs and all.

And horses and cows and chickens and pigs.

And a windmill very tall.

The children of Miss Wilson's third grade have made "book plants," in honor of book week. They say they hope to have fruit from them before Christmas. The committees for making the farm posters have finished their work and the posters are completed. Harold Schindler, Dorothy Van Valkenburg, and Bonnie Ranck have made individual posters at home and brought them to school.

Yvonne Taylor, Bonnie Ranck, Mary Holts, Margaret Moore, and Helen Dixon have not missed one word in spelling since school began.

Mrs. Conger's pupils have made notebooks about North America containing stories and maps.

Marion Larson a seventh grade pupil of Mrs. Cooke's is confined to her home with scarlet fever.

In Miss Hawkins' sixth grade, there were twenty-six "100's" in spelling this week. In the lesson there were over fifty words of sixth grade difficulty. The lowest mark was ninety.

STUDENTS COMPLETE BUYING OF TEXT BOOKS

A report from the textbook division of the main high school library states that nearly all students have bought their necessary text books this year.

The buying of books this year has been extremely conservative and only in a few cases have books been returned. One example of this is in the physics classes where several students are doubling up on books and two use the same one.

"Dear Teacher," wrote an indignant mother, "you must not whip my Tommy. He is a delicate boy and isn't used to it. We never hit him at home except in self defense."

Howard was a member of the Orange and Black staff of last year. He was also a member of the Dramatics club.

This year Howard was manager of the football team.

The class of '33 elected Howard as their class alderman.

After graduating Howard says he is going to join the marines.

PALLADIUM STAFF HAS DUTIES FOR YEAR EXPLAINED

The newly appointed Palladium staff held their initial meeting last Friday afternoon. The object of the meeting was to explain to the various members their duties in the publication of the Annual.

These duties as outlined by the Editor, Warner Neal, were first of all, those of the business manager, John Steenchen, and his assistant, Merle Fraser. Their principal task will be to solicit advertising and other matters pertaining to the financial part of the work. Next, the job of the assistant Editor, Peggy Blake will be mostly concerned with the editing of news matter and general overseeing as will be that of the editor himself. The athletic reporters, Leo Kohler and Marie Humphries, will have to acquaint themselves with the two departments of athletics and in the end write reports on that subject. The society editor, Mary Bennett, will deal principally with social events and affairs of the school in general. The art editor, Robert Reed, will make drawings and sketches for cuts. The joke editor, Richard Shipley will, of course, take care of the humor end of the Palladium while the four class reporters, Wilma Rattenbury, Paul Beard, Bill Black, and Frances Alexander, will have to report the various news and activities of their respective classes.

LARGE CROWD IS PRESENT AT SENIOR DANCE LAST FRIDAY

Last Friday evening over a hundred people enjoyed the delightful music of Patterson's orchestra at the third Senior dance of the year given at the Northville high school gymnasium.

The gym was pleasantly decorated in black and white completely around the sides, with the orchestra pit gayly draped in orange and blue. The orange crepe paper on the high helped to complete the illusion.

Due to the low price of only 50¢ a couple the school was well represented and a surprising number of undergraduates attended the dance as well as many faces familiar to days gone by. But young or old a good time was had by all.

COUNCIL MEETS IN IMPORTANT SESSION ON LAST WEDNESDAY

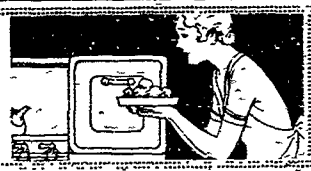

Mr. Amerman and Mr. Ruggles met with the Student Council Wednesday after school at a meeting at which Robert Christensen presided.

Homemaker's Corner

By MRS. EDITOR

"Absence Makes the Heart"

"We've never been separated a day since we've been married," and the middle-aged wife of a rather worried-looking husband cast her eyes wistfully upward. Inwardly she groaned, "Well, poor folks, what you've missed!"

It's a beautiful theory this constantly walking hand in hand through the pathway of life—and if marriage does not mean happy companionship at isn't worth the trouble—but frankly we believe a man likes to stretch his stride and go his own pace now and then and comes back happier for the change.

A wise attorney friend said once to us, "I believe marriages would be more successful if husbands and wives would take a few weeks apart each year. No man loves his wife more than I do but sometimes it's a real test to do exactly as I please without having to adjust my habits to someone else's convenience."

Often, he continued, I come home very tired at night. I have heard people's troubles all day and I want nothing more than just to lie down. I don't even want to talk. To cheer me up, my wife perches on the arm of my easy chair and strokes my head affectionately. Tired? No! Silence. The stroking continues. "Are you sure you're feeling well?" (in a motherly tone). Yes, I just want to be left alone. O-oh, and she goes off with an injured air and I feel like kicking myself. She meant to be so kind.

"Perhaps a walk would help me relax. I rise to put on my overcoat. Where are you going?" "Just for a walk." "Where?" "Oh, just for a walk." "Want me to go with you?" "No, dear. I really would rather go alone."

"The door closes on a very puzzled, worried little woman who sighs. Now I wonder where he is going?" We laughed together as he told this story. It all sounded so simple now.

He continued, I like to read in bed to quiet my nerves before I go to sleep. The light annoys my wife so I turn it off and toss restlessly trying to sleep.

Another friend was a care-free bachelor when he assumed family responsibility. He happens to have a wife with many brothers who understands men and when he hushes him off for a few days at their mountain cabin she does not question him but does some extra housecleaning or gives a women's party without him "under foot." And they are as peaceful as turtle doves.

A busy surgeon friend goes off to the far north in Canada moose hunting each year with a party of just men who love to "rough it." And comes back with a steady hand while he is gone his wife does the things she loves to do which are not possible in his irregular regime.

Some folks take each other for granted and never realize how tedious and tasteless the hours would be without each other. Let's go and spend a few days with Aunt Mary and see how warmly we're welcomed back.

in a "hall" on D. A. R. Memorial in Michigan.

Few of her hearers had realized how strategic a point was Michigan in her early history nor how fierce was the struggle for possession of this territory so rich in resources. First between the French and English and later between the English and the United States. It was twelve years following the close of the Revolution before England finally relinquished her hold upon Michigan.

It is to keep alive all the spots of unusual historical interest that the D. A. R. is placing memorials in various parts of the state. These memorials were reviewed in most interesting manner by Mrs. Yerkes. Among these was the Zimmerman home in Owosso which was "Station No. 2" of the underground railway during the civil war, the spot, an Marshall, where the Michigan public school system was planned by Isaac C. Cary and Rev. John D. Pierce in 1834, the placing of 1,000 elm along the highway No. 16 called the "Road of Remembrance," in commemoration of the men of Kent county, who lost their lives in the World War.

Another step taken by these women was to appeal to change the name of the street called "Congress" in Ypsilanti to "Michigan" so that the old Indian trail through southern Michigan might be one continuous street, the longest in the world, 288 miles in length.

An old tavern in the Irish Hills the Walker Tavern is preserved by the D. A. R. as a place of interest in the past by men of note. Visitors are shown the four post-where slept the famous Daniel Webster. It was here J. Fenimore Cooper wrote "Oak Henge." Toll gates, the graves of Revolutionary soldiers, trading posts, the landing of LaSalle, old Fort Detroit, these and hosts of others are marked and preserved by this society of women who are bound that posterity shall better appreciate the price paid for this state, Michigan.

These memorials are said to be "Symbols of the continuity of ideals inherited from the past, dwelling in the present and projected to the future."

Mackinaw Island was voted by the D. A. R. to be the most historical spot in the state, rivaling Old Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie.

Mrs. Yerkes is a member of the Sarah Ann Cochran Chapter, comprised of both Northville and Plymouth Daughters of the American Revolution. It was named for the state at their meeting last Friday afternoon.

Verdict of Judge Will Permit Farmington State Savings Bank To Declare a Second Dividend

(From the Farmington Enterprise)

A second dividend will be distributed soon by Howard C. Knickerbocker, receiver of Farmington State Savings Bank, to depositors of that institution, unless an appeal is taken by officials of the government units from a Circuit Court decree. The verdict, which has just been handed down, holds that deposits of the government units are not preferred claims, but must be regarded as general claims and share with other depositors in dividends.

Unless an appeal is taken, the verdict will release many thousands of dollars for distribution to the community. The money has been ready for months, but declaring of the dividend has been held up because of the claim preference.

The dividend cannot be distributed at once, because in all circuit court cases, twenty days is allowed for appeal. However, Earl L. Phillips, attorney for the receiver, immediately began communication with attorneys for the government units, with the view of making the dividend distribution possible without waiting the full 20 days. The opposing attorneys may waive appeal and if they are willing to do so, the dividend could be distributed at once.

The verdict, handed down by Judge Frank J. Covert, represents a signal legal victory for Mr. Phillips in a lengthy battle over the public money for deposits. Had the decision been otherwise, the extent of the preferred claims would have had a serious bearing on the distribution of dividends in the near future.

The decree also marks the end of a long period of anxious waiting on the part of the receiver, Mr. Knickerbocker, who, with thousands of dollars on hand gathered through energetic work in realization of the bank's assets, has been unable to make a move toward distributing the money to depositors until the legal question was decided.

It is believed unlikely that an appeal will be taken by attorneys for the government units. It is pointed out that to large extent the people represented are the same, that is, the bank's depositors are largely people of the community, represented by the government units having money or deposits. A considerable portion of the citizens of these units.

are depositors of the bank, and vice versa.

Eleven governmental units of this area had money on deposit in the bank not covered by bonds. Their deposits are as follows:

School District No. 1, Novi Township, $17,511.
City of Farmington, $4,560.32.
Novi Township, $6,498.16.
School District No. 2, Farmington Township, $697.76.
School District No. 4, Farmington Township, $133.93.
School District No. 2, Livonia Township, $119.4.
School District No. 5, Farmington Township, $6,145.03.
School District No. 6, Farmington Township, $4,049.54.
Township of Farmington, $686.73.
Walled Lake Consolidated School District No. 1, $645.64.
Livonia Township, $2,069.00.
Total, $25,505.51.

The fact that these deposits were not covered by bonds made them trust funds.

In the case before the court, there was on hand $23,900. Public money claims totaled $25,505.51, but five of the government units, School District No. 6, Prichard, No. 6 and No. 4, Prichard, of Farmington Township, No. 2, of Livonia, and the Township of Farmington had advanced their deposits as set-offs to unpaid indebtedness to the bank. The total of these set-offs was $5,579.25, leaving a total of a little less than $20,000 in public money claims. Against this was the $23,900 "on hand" at the closing.

Deposit Impounded.

However, $10,864.80 of the amount "on hand" was on deposit with the Federal Reserve, which impounded it immediately on notification of closing of the bank. Decision of the case by Judge Covert turned on the question whether the Federal Reserve bank had the right to impound this deposit to apply against obligations of the Farmington bank. It had this right, the Farmington bank cash on hand was immediately reduced by the amount of its Federal Reserve deposit, leaving about $13,000, as against public money deposits of nearly $20,000.

If Mr. Phillips is successful in getting waivers of appeals promptly, Mr. Knickerbocker said, it will take but a few days thereafter to issue the dividend checks to depositors, and it will be one with all possible speed.

LOCAL NEWS

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Don P. Yerkes will gather at the home of their daughter, Mrs. W. L. Holden, in Roseale Gardens on Thanksgiving day.

A woman made famous for her remarkable work in classifying old collections of books. She was the daughter of the well-known Rev. Sylvester Cochran, founder of the "Young Woman's Academy," which name might still be seen under the painted surface of the front of the old home now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Timham, on Randolph street.

An interesting discussion followed freely after Mrs. Yerkes had concluded when suggestions were made for the preservation of local places of historical interest.

In closing this last meeting before Thanksgiving, the president, Mrs. C. M. Chase, read a poem especially appropriate at this season which appears on the first page of this issue.

FAMOUS CHARACTERS

A TEST FOR ACTORS

Impersonating characters made familiar to the wide world through novels read by the millions as "The easiest assignment for an actor, as any actor will tell you on a moment's notice. One of the most difficult jobs along this line faced the cast assembled for "The Sign of Four," the feature attraction at the Penman-Alan theatre, Saturday, Nov. 26.

Here is a case in which the interpreter of Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson, Jonathan Small and others, must realize the utmost from the dramatic content and conviction of his part and at the same time adhere to a popular conception of the character as built up in the public mind by the widely-read Conan Doyle stories.

The choice of Arthur Wontner for Sherlock Holmes has been widely applauded, for the actor endows his impersonation with an appearance and demeanor that is remarkably faithful to the traditional ideal.

REV. G. H. WHITFIELD - SPEAKS AT ROTARY

Every member, except one, was present at the Northville Rotary club meeting Tuesday noon in the Presbyterian church, when Jack Miner, the celebrated naturalist, coming in unexpectedly, spoke most inspiringly on "being thankful that there was a still small voice called God, that still controlled men in moments of distress and great temptation."

The theme of the Rotary meeting for the day was "What the other fellow should be thankful for," with Joe Spagnuolo leading the discussion.

Following this, Rev. G. H. Whitfield gave a talk outlining the idea of how fine it was to have the capacity for thanksgiving and gratitude, and that we should be thankful for the things we have escaped.

It was at this moment Mr. Miner appeared and electrified his listeners with his recital of self-control when listening to the inner voice of the God of Nature.

"Will Thanksgiving day be spent even partly in giving thanks? There must be someone to whom we are to give these thanks. Who are they? Do we usually on this day make an array of these benefactors and place our appreciation before them? Why is this day named so and set aside if no one is going to use it for that purpose? If it is only to be a "fill-up day" and a "free-lunch day" let us give it its rightful name and thus more fully celebrate it.

Holy Communion will be given on Thanksgiving day at 7:30 a. m., and a High Mass of Thanksgiving will be celebrated at 8:30 a. m. followed by Benediction.

The Season of Advent. In but a few days we will have entered into that festival of the Church year known as Advent. The season of Advent, which begins next Sunday, continues until Christmas, included in which are the four Sundays in Advent.

The word Advent means coming, and in the religious sense it has to do with the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ before the Savior made His public appearance as the Redeemer. His forerunner John the Baptist, sounded forth the message, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord."

We celebrate the birth of Christ at Christmas; and during this Advent season we prepare ourselves for that might be a gracious coming of Christ into our hearts. It is, therefore, a season of earnest preparation on the part of the Christian Church. Christ is coming to us now in a gracious manner through His word of sacraments. He comes seeking admission into every heart. So, during this Advent season, the Christian turns with a new devotion to His Savior, His Word, His Church, and looks forward also to the second coming of Christ, when He will gather His true believers unto Himself in that Kingdom of eternal glory.

What then, dear friend, will this season of Advent mean to you? Will there be a gracious coming of Christ into your heart and life? May it be a season of repentance, of faith, of godly service. And then will Christmas be a season of joy and blessing as you celebrate His coming into the world to be your Savior.
