HAPPY NEW YEAR

GOODFELLOWS PLAY "SANTA" TO CHILDREN

Toys, Candy, and Christmas
Baskets Given to Poor

Santa Claus tried not to miss a child in Northville. Bringing Christmas to the poor children of the Goodfellows, the community distributed candy, toys, during the Saturday preceding the holiday and the welfare association gave the adults of the family a plentiful supply of food with which to grace the Christmas dinner-table. The distribution was made at the welfare headquarters at the corner of Main and Center streets.

Handing out over 100 bags of candy, a large orange with each bag and also an appropriate toy, the Goodfellows, composed of village employees and the American Legion representatives, received as much pleasure in giving the gifts as did the recipients.

Over 70 dolls, both large and small, beautifully dressed, brought squeals of delight from the girls; 54 trucks were joyfully reached for by as many pairs of boys; bands, Scout knives and miscellaneous toys contributed their share toward making Christmas happy and everyone had a grand time giving and receiving.

Making Christmas a reality instead of a myth for children whose parents are on the welfare rolls will become an annual custom, sponsors of the event say.

All during the day, Saturday, the following women stood by faithfully to see that the baskets were properly packed and sent off to the right families on the waiting truck. Mrs. E. B. Cavell, Mrs. John Walker, Mrs. W. H. Safford and Mrs. Archie Kerr. Aiding and abetting these women in their task were these men: Chairman Merrill Sweet, Chief W. H. Safford, Joe Vroman, and Township supervisor, W. A. Ely.

Each legions brought a little friend, and some of them brought four or five. Scrubbed and dressed in their Sunday best these youngsters behaved themselves well and showed their appreciation of the chicken dinner with all its accompaniments clear through to the climax of ice cream and homemade cakes. The "vets" looked on with a keen interest and kept on passing more good things.

When none could eat any more the tables were cleared and a brilliant Christmas tree was the attraction. From its branches were picked a nice warm pair of mittens for each child and a box of candy and nuts.

The children were gallantly escorted to their homes by members of the legion.

Behind the scenes the Legion auxiliary cooked and prepared this fine treat for the children.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE SENDS BACK MONEY

When John Boyd opened a letter from his sister the other day out fell a small sum of money he had not expected.

Thirty-five years is a long time to chafe under the pricking of a guilty conscience thought John as he read the letter from a man in Bernese. This man found a sum of money years ago when Mr. Boyd's father Jesse Boyd, was hauling freight from Portland to Pennville. With the old standard that "finders are keepers" he put it in his pocket and for over thirty years tried to quiet the voice that bade him return it.

The letter, poorly written and unsigned, is as follows:

Bernese, Ind., Dec. 5, 1932

"Well, I no you will be surprised to get this but it has bin on my mind several days. I found some thing on the road and felt like it belonged to your father. I thought well its mine until he calls for it and he didn't and he didn't and I thought again well its mine. But it come to force tle that it is not mine so he is gone and next best is to send you the money and prayfully ask god and you to forgive me."

METHODIST CHILDREN CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS

The members of the Methodist Sunday school gathered in a good number at the church Friday evening preceding Christmas for their annual program and Christmas tree. Songs and a varied program of recitations, some voluntary and impromptu, made a happy evening for children and parents who joined on occasion. At its close Santa Claus descended in and presented all present.

HEADS TOY FUND

Chief of Police
WM. H. SAFFORD

Chief Safford was chairman of the toy fund, composed of contributions made by village employees. He personally supervised the purchase of the toys which were given to poor children of the village. He was assisted in the work by street commissioner, Earl Montgomery.

LEGIONNAIRES PLAY SANTA TO CHILDREN

Thirty-seven little boys and girls were made happy Thursday evening when they proudly accompanied an equally happy bunch of legionnaires to their house to be their guests at a Christmas dinner.

The Lloyd H. Greig post did its very best that evening to play host royally to its young visitors, who would otherwise have a very doubtful Christmas.

Each legionnaire brought a little friend, and some of them brought four or five. Scrubbed and dressed in their Sunday best these youngsters behaved themselves well and showed their appreciation of the chicken dinner with all its accompaniments clear through to the climax of ice cream and homemade cakes. The "vets" looked on with a keen interest and kept on passing more good things.

H. L. NEWMAN WRITES

H. L. Newman, frequent visitor here, now on the coast, writes that all they do there is "try to sell you real estate and sunshine."

Newman will play in the annual East-West football game there.

Red Cross Chapter Here Gets 4,000 Yards of Material to Make Winter Clothing For Needy Persons

The Red Cross movement is now well launched in Northville. For the first time in the history of the village have authorities felt the need of allying themselves with this great "Mother of the World."

So far the Baby Clinic has been the only benefit derived locally from the National Red Cross. Now, however, with numbers of people within the boundaries of our village actually suffering for want of warm clothing, it has been thought advisable to join forces with this strong organization for mutual assistance.

As a nucleus there are at present fifteen members of this newly organized chapter in Northville. Mrs. Eliza Wagenschütz is the committee chairman and Mrs. Ada Bloom is secretary-treasurer.

THE YEAR 1932 PASSES IN REVIEW

Throughout a year that has made history because of its adversity Northville has held on and is at the threshold of the new year as eager and as ready to carry on as any town on the map.

Just look back at some of the events of the past year, now rapidly fading, 1932, and see it, after all, you might not enjoy living it, all over in spite of its hard times.

Jan. 2—Professor Orrin L. Palmer, who was superintendent of Northville schools about 1885, dies at Romeo at the age of 74.

Jan. 3—Three masked men hold up Charles Van Valkenburg and robbed him of fifty cents, failing to get about $25 hidden in Mr. Van Valkenburg's tobacco pouch.

Jan. 3—Funeral services for Beech A. Northrop, who died on Dec. 29, at Lakeland, Florida, are held at the home of his son, Floyd.

Jan. 4—Council votes to pay $5,000 on $17,600 pavement debt.

Jan. 6—Combined meeting of Exchange and Rotary clubs to hear plans for reopening a new bank.

Jan. 6—Thieves break into the Casterline Service station and get $15 in cash besides some auto accessories and cigarettes.

Jan. 11—Northville Wayne County Fair association elects officers for ensuing year. Nelson C. Schrader and Floyd Northrop are re-elected president and secretary respectively. Thomas Murdock is elected vice-president and E. E. Miller, treasurer.

Jan. 16—Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McCullough reach the 64th year of their wedded life.

Jan. 16-17—High school seniors present Booth Tarkington's famous story "Seventeen" on the stage of the school auditorium.

Jan. 18—500 depositors of Northville's banks, meet in the Penniman-Alten theatre to hear Judge Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit present two plans for reopening a financial institution in this community. A committee is named from the assemblage to investigate the plans and to determine which is the better to follow.

Jan. 22—Village Treasurer John Litsenberger announced a total of $13,638.83 unpaid taxes for 1931 as compared with $5,656.57 for 1930.

Jan. 22—High school debaters win three out of four debates at Ypsilanti meet.

Jan. 24—Eddie A. Sinson, famous diar and former head of the Sinson Aircraft company in Northville, is killed in crash at Chicago.

Jan. 29—Kenneth Rathbun opens Chevrolet salesroom in Recreation Building.

OLD NORTHVILLE PASSES ON IN EAST

Notice of the death of Frederick E. Wood at Gilmanston, New Hampshire, Dec. 24, was announced in the Detroit Free Press Sunday.

Mr. Wood was a resident of Northville for a number of years occupying a house on Beal Ave. formerly owned by his brother.

Mr. Wood was the son of the late Granville Wood, eminent pipe organ builder.

Mr. Wood was an artist of considerable ability and did the illustrating for many of the various catalogues of Detroit companies. He was a first class wood engraver.

His brother, William D. Wood, was long connected with the Farrand & Votey organ Co. and a sister, Mrs. Mary D. Mackaye of Detroit is author of the noted march "The Antlers."

Mr. Wood leaves his widow and a daughter.

TWO ARE QUIZZED ON PLYMOUTH FIRE

A disastrous $60,000 fire of unknown origin swept through the Catholic church at Plymouth, Friday morning, Dec. 23. Two Detroit boys, who assisted in rescuing furniture and valuables from the building, were placed under arrest in Detroit Wednesday for questioning by Deputy Fire Marshal Peter Karens.

Plymouth authorities stated that they have no evidence that the fire was of incendiary origin.

No lives were lost and no one was seriously injured in the blaze.

Rev. F. C. Letevre stated that the building was insured to the extent of $36,000 and the policy did not expire until Wednesday, Dec. 28. This will aid materially in repairing the wrecked interior of the building.

DEPUTY SHERIFFS NOT YET APPOINTED

As yet no Wayne county deputy sheriffs have been appointed from this community.

The office is more an honorary position than a practical job but is eagerly sought for.

PING PONG TABLE IS CONSTRUCTED FOR BOY SCOUTS

Due to the efforts of three Boy Scout officials, a pleasant addition has been made to the Northville Boy Scout's hall in the form of a home-made ping-pong table.

It was constructed by Ward Van Alta, Wayne Thompson, and Martin Summers. The table is of standard size five feet by nine and three inches high. It has a smooth lacquered finish and is made of white pine with a reinforced plywood top.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS ROUNDS ON SAFETY

"Safety first" was the theme of a live talk by H. O. Rounds, representative of the Michigan Auto Club, before the Rotary club at their luncheon-meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Rounds was heard by the club two or three years ago and was welcomed back heartily. In education the speaker sees the only hope of safety in the increasing dangers in auto traffic. Pamphlets are sent out to 80 per cent of the schools of the state, teachers are having their pupils repeat over and over the slogan, "Use your eyes, use your ears, and then use your feet, and safety patrols are guarding the crossings of streets in school zones."

As a result there were 213 fewer deaths by auto accidents in 1930 than in the previous year.

Lynn Felton of Plymouth was also a guest of the club.

STRANGE DOG BITES CHILD

While playing in her yard Sunday, little Pauline Dickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dickerson, was attacked by a brown retriever dog and dragged by the arm a few feet. The child was reaching her hand out to pet the dog when it sprang suddenly upon her. Deep teeth marks were made in the little girl's flesh and it was necessary to take her immediately to a physician for treatment. So far the child has shown no ill effects although she is carrying her arm in a sling.

Pauline and her three sisters, are making their home with Mr. and Mrs. Gene DeCamp, on Fairbrook ave., near the far ground entrance. Their parents are employed at the Maybury Sanatorium.

The dog will be watched carefully for signs of rabies. It belongs to a transient who is caring for horses here.

The W. H. Yerkes home on the Griswold road has been rented by a family employed at the Maybury sanatorium.

EXCHANGITES ELECT NEW CLUB HEADS

The Exchange Club selected officers for the ensuing six months when they met Wednesday noon.

They are: President, Chas. F. Murphy, 1st vice-president, Dr. Bryce Douglas, 2nd vice-president, Dr. H. I. Sparring, 3rd vice president, Robert C. Yeakes, secretary, Sherrell W. Angier, treasurer, Ad Schwenger, marshal, D. B. Bunn.

The board of control consists of the officers, three last past presidents and Frank L. Snipes and Maurice Lapham.

A full discussion of all problems which confront the club was participated in by the members and a plan of operation decided upon.

Reports of activities and finances will be given next week.

SCHRADER SALE TO LAST THRU JANUARY

Marked success during the Pre-Christmas sale has influenced the management of Schrader Bros. Furniture store to continue the sale as a January Clearance event.

Customers from Milford, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Wixom, Novi, have come to the store, states Ray Casterline, salesman, to obtain some of the bargains available.

MECHANIC MARCHES "BAD MAN" TO JAIL

Howard Angur, sentenced by Justice Wellington Roberts to a chance of ten days in jail or pay a fine of $15, for being drunk and disorderly will not pick any more fights around Nolan's garage.

Angur came into the Nolan garage one day last week full of fight and bad humor. George (Nolan) promptly seized him by the scuff of the neck marched him down to the jail in the firehall where the "bad man" spent the night and paid the $15 fine the next morning.

NOTED SPEAKER AT SALEM

Shirley Kinde, of Kinde, Mich., a student of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, will preach at the Salem church, Salem, on New Year's day at the morning service beginning at 10:30.

Although he is young in years, Mr. Kinde has attained an enviable reputation as a speaker among his fellow students. His addresses usually contain a well thought out message and his manner of delivery is interesting.

Residents of Salem, and those of Northville who are able to attend, are urged to make every effort to be on hand when the services begin.

TWO-THIRDS OF WELFARE FUND IS SUBSCRIBED

Drive for Money Is Met
With Generous
Response

Northville's Community fund is making splendid progress, its sponsors stated this week over two-thirds of the needed amount having been already subscribed.

The "feather party" for the benefit of welfare contributed $60.00 net profit to the coffers of the Northville Welfare association which is supervising the distribution of funds, and it appears that the needy folk of this community will be taken care of for the next few months at least.

The appeal for funds met with a generous response from the employed here and even in the Ford factory where employment is not at a high level at the present, approximately $100 was raised in a short time. Workers dug down in their pockets to give money which they themselves sorely needed during these adverse conditions.

The Gordon Page company workers gave $22.50; Eastlawn sanatorium (Dr. A. B. Wickham) donated $25.00; and the Northville Laundry workers contributed $18.75. These were some of the larger donors.

Many others who helped swell the total having requested that their names not be published.

The Red Rose Dairy gave over 160 quarts of milk to the Welfare fund for their Christmas dinners.

It is impossible to canvass everyone personally, declared Sidney Frid, chairman of the drive, and anyone who wants to make a contribution should see either him or Dr. L. J. Snow or Merrill Sweet, who are assisting in making the collections.

Reports on the progress of the drive will appear in The Record weekly.

BAKE SALE JAN. 7 WILL RAISE MONEY FOR BASEBALL CLUB

In order to raise money for baseball equipment and new uniforms, the Northville Braves will hold a bake sale at the Palace Meat Market on Main street early Saturday morning, Jan. 7.

The sale is under the supervision of Alex Johnson, Jr., and Arthur Sessions. The boys are broadcasting an urgent appeal to help them raise some money to carry on their sport activities next summer.

FORD LEADS IN SALES, SAYS MARZ

Despite virtual absence from the market for several months early in 1932 due to the introduction of many new models, Ford led all competitors during the first ten months of the year in sales of commercial cars and trucks, according to announcement today by Arthur Marz, local Ford dealer.

The statement, which was based upon official figures reported by R. L. Polk & Co., showed that Ford, during this period had registered a total of 57,991 units, or 36.1 per cent of the total of 160,582 units of all makes. This compared with 55,754, or 34.7 per cent of the total for the next make.

CAROLERS BRING JOY TO SHUT-INS AT CHRISTMAS

Upon the stillness of the winter evening Northville residents were made glad by the voices of carolers just before Christmas. Some who had retired early were awakened as from a Christmas dream and, going to their windows, saw a whole bevy of young folks crowded into a large truck with an overflow load following in another car, all singing with all their hearts.

It was the a capella choros of the high school with their leader, Leslie G. Lee, to keep them in time. "Silent Night" and other old familiar and well-loved carols they sang and at each stop as they made their way about the village, they were greeted with appreciative applause.

As the door of many a shut-in they stopped and gladdened the hearts of those who were sad and lonely. A real Christmas spirit was. Perhaps at no place were these carols more gladly received than at the Maybury Sanatorium, where many patients of usual joys of Christmas at home.

At the close of their musical round the singers stopped at the Grosvenor home on South Wing, where they enjoyed refreshments.

GAS LEAK PERILS FAMILY OF FIVE

A break in the gas main in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Junod on the Northville road Friday, Dec. 23, causing seepage into the house nearly cost the lives of five people.

Early Friday morning when the family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Junod, their daughter Mary Jane, and two sons, Richard and Sidney, arose they smelled the gas in the house. They believed it to be coming from an open jet in the range and tightened the faucets.

Suddenly Sidney fainted and was brought too in the open air and a little later Richard succumbed to the effects of the gas. Mr. Junod complained of a splitting headache and after examination of the range making certain that there were no open jets a representative from the gas company office in Plymouth was called.

Investigation disclosed that gas was seeping in underground from a break in the main directly in front of the house. Workers wearing gas masks dug a trench alongside the house to divert the path of the gas.

Had Mr. Junod lighted a match for any reason on Friday morning company officials stated, the entire house would have exploded into a mass of flames and wreckage.

SESSIONS HOSPITAL

D. P. Saxton of Northville underwent appendectomy, Wednesday.

Mrs. Helen Parcells is making good recovery from her accident and will be able to return home soon.

Royal Johnson, father of the late Mrs. Phil Grennan, has been discharged from the hospital and returned home.

NORTHVILLE MAN ROBBED

Wm. Black, Meadowbrook employee, was held up Tuesday night in downtown Detroit by two burly negroes and robbed of approximately $2.00.

The men seized him as he walked by an alley, frisked him, missing $6.00 which he had secreted in an inner pocket, and let him go.

Infectious "Flu" Issues Warning To Townpeople To Call a Doctor When Chills and Coughs Threaten

(By Chas. A. Dolph)

I am the Flu—that bug with the rapid moving ability to reach the rich and poor, the high and low, the lush and the root in their wind pipe scower or later.

I am the great pest remover—the strength taker and the extractor of joy. I spread my victims on chairs, couches or beds less all their energy.

I am the creator of chills, coughs and congestions and will give you that inward feeling of outward all-overishness which ends in nothingness of the merest value.

I am the meanest of the germ family. The doctors have a merry chase to get me and when they seem to conquer I appear in a new way. I am the demander of pills, pellets and potions and the more the joints ache and the muscles creak the greater is my joy.

I am a rider on cough breaths, nasal currents and snorts and sneezes. When I get into a crowded room what a perfectly infectious time is mine.

I am the flu and when I get you it would be best for you to send for the pill man without delay and do as he tells you. You cannot get rid of me by "working it off" for I am a leech, a burr and a blight.

I am the Flu—to make bleary eyes, red noses and fickle appetites. Believe it or not I am your hateful enemy—so beware.

NEW BANK TO OPEN HERE BY JANUARY 10

"Depositors' State Bank" Is Corporate Name of Institution

Northville gets its new bank not later than Tuesday, Jan. 10. This was the definite news which fell from the lips of John A. Boyce, chairman of the Depositors' committee, Thursday. The new bank will be located in the building formerly occupied by the Northville State Savings bank.

Both court orders approving the new bank plans have been signed. Circuit Judge DeWitt Merriam, III, for the past week, placing his signature on the order Wednesday afternoon. These orders direct the receivers to render their final accounts to the banking department.

The banking department will hold another examination for the purpose of inspecting the setup and the book-keeping system which is being installed this week. Stationary for the new institution is being printed as present and the stage is set for the opening.

Another stockholders meeting will be held within the next ten days for the purpose of electing the board of directors which will elect the new bank officers the same day.

The day the bank opens every depositor will be entitled to draw against his account to the extent of $10.00.

Personnel of the new bank will not definitely be selected until representatives of the Depositors' committee have had an opportunity to discuss the situation with state banking officials at Lansing. This will be done either today or tomorrow, Mr. Boyce affirmed.

KEEP WALKS CLEAR SAY VILLAGE HEADS

The village of Northville, in enforcing the ordinance regarding the clearing of snow from the sidewalks, does not wish to inflict hardships on any of its citizens. It has given ample warning that sidewalks must be properly cleared of snow within 24 hours after the snowfall.

If any property owner is physically or financially unable to do this or have it done, it will be taken care of at village expense. Otherwise the cost will be charged against the abutting property owner.

WELCOME TO 1933

A little bruised and battered from the experiences that 1932 has brought us but yet rich beyond measure in the blessings that are still left to us, this column greets the new year with a smile and a real welcome. We are all ready for 1933. "Bring her on."

We still—despite the cynic's advice—shall do a little resolving as the new year comes in. We have always done that—and it has helped.

Resolve No. 1—We are going to quit pitying ourself so much. We have all done enough of that in 1932 and what good has it done? We can find plenty to be mighty grateful for and can be glad that life is still what we make it.

Resolve No. 2—We are going to try to take more time for family and friends, that is, pay the real price for friends and loved ones. As we look back, how futile has been a lot of the striving after just "business!" Wouldn't it be "smarter" to take more time for the things that cost the least and endure the longest?

Resolve No. 3—We hope during 1933 to find more good in everyone—to be less critical of the frailties of our fellowmen. There are too many on our own doorstep.

Resolve No. 4—Read more. Travel a bit if we can—what wouldn't we give to be able to go to California to see our sister at Aradia and our friends at Upland, where we lived a year!

So we might go on—but aren't four good resolves enough to put at work in 1933?

We hope for you all the best-year you ever had. We believe you will find 1933 the best twelve-months of your life—if you just resolve to do it. Good luck to you!

DIARY OF A "FLU" PATIENT

Friday, Dec. 23, 1932

Well, here it is the third day that we have been home with this ungracious "cold in the head"—or shall we say the "flu,"—for that is what a lot of folks seem to be having.

It has been hard to stick here at home when all kinds of work are calling at the office. Yet how helpless folks are when the cold germ gets to working in earnest. We notice in the daily paper that nearly a whole basketball team in some Detroit school was laid out with the popular epidemic. And strong men here in Northville have been laid low with this "flu bug". So there is no use trying to fight influenza by staying at work—you just endanger your own head and the health of those around you.

Tuesday night we knew we were in for this blooming cold. The book keeper had gone home with this "flu" business for a week, another Record worker went home with it for a short time and our son Paul—husky six feet lad of 165 pounds—took to his bed with a ripping cold in the head. So came Wednesday morning and time to get up. But we lay there with that expected cold—and our ambition just naturally sank low. Our head was in a swim, the old nose was stuffed like an ice jam in the spring and we just wanted to stay right there between the blankets. So we said to ourself: "That Record office can take care of itself—they're a loyal gang there anyway and they work better anyway when 'Blood and Thunder' is away!" So in bed we stayed.

Now here it is Friday and we are sticking to the house, though the cold in the head is on the run and the "old ambition" is waking up once more. Our faithful Ruth Mary is there at the typewriter getting out the January 1st statements—say, if we get all that's on those books we can quit dodging the sheriff. It has been pretty hard going the past few months—hard for every one who had to meet bills. But we have all tried to be patient and sympathetic with each other and that has helped mightily. Maybe a dose of the "flu" is a good thing so one can meditate on his blessings.

Here comes good old "Ad" with the office mail—and those Christmas cards from friends everywhere. What a wonderful thing is Christmas anyway—the one time that we let folks a thousand miles away know that we love them still!

Well, goodbye, "Old Man Flu"—or what have you? You have given us three days of rest we hadn't planned for and presented the chance to see how frail is man when his head stuffs up with a good Michigan cold. You have given us the chance to think a little along a new line—and so we thank you. But don't hurry back. We want to go another two years without going to bed.

PRESIDENT HOOVER AND GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT

President Hoover, according to his statement, is unable to get any co-operation from President-Elect Roosevelt in the matter of meeting the war debt problem and is therefore abandoning his effort to make progress on the very serious international situation.

It seems to a mere layman that this is very unfortunate.

After the first meeting with President Hoover, a few weeks ago when the president called his successor to confer about the debt problem, Governor Roosevelt apparently refused to co-operate with the chief executive and is quoted by one of the press associations as saying: "It (the debt problem) is not my baby." We have nowhere seen this unstatesmanlike remark denied.

Anyone who has the slightest knowledge of world affairs certainly realizes that President Hoover, because of his vast experience—in the World War, as a member of the Cabinet for eight years and as president for four years—is perhaps the best qualified figure in the whole world to discuss the difficult situation of world debts and international complications. And certainly even Hoover's most caustic critics will grant his marvelous sincerity and deep desire to serve his nation and the world. In view of all this, what can we make of Governor Roosevelt's attitude that he cannot accept any "apparent joint responsibility" for working with the president to meet the present desperate situation? After the stand the president-elect has taken what else could President Hoover do but give up his effort to meet the problem in the short time that he has left in office?

It is to be deplored that our system of inaugurating presidents dates from the horse and buggy times and when a change of administrations comes, as now faces us, it is four months after the election. Right now, the world's problems are so terrific that a two-months' delay may be very costly to all the nations. Inasmuch as we have to wait for months for the new administration, what a pity that the outgoing and incoming presidents could not work together for a common world cause!

History has been made the past few days at Washington. The high purpose of President Hoover is known to all—even such a prominent democrat and world figure as Owen D. Young is said to have favored the stand of Mr. Hoover—and although his efforts at making progress in world affairs have been nullified, historians will write it down that he did all that he could in a time of international distress to bring about a new prosperity.

As for President-elect Roosevelt, good Americans can only wish that as the days move along he will be given the strength, the vision, the courage and the ability to meet a world situation that is staggering the nations. He may be as all-sufficient as he appears, to meet the problems on which he has not co-operated with Hoover—we profoundly hope so, though our faith in his statesmanship is much shaken by his attitude since election.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

BUT WILL THEY DRINK IT?

(W. S. Kennedy in Albion Evening Recorder)

Well, congress passed the beer, and now all that remains is for the Senate to vote it through, the President to sign it, the Supreme Court to pass on its legality, and then we can turn our attention to getting the people to drink beer declared by law to be non-intoxicating. We suspect that will be the hardest job of all.

SOLVING THE HANDBILL NUISANCE

(Joe Haas in Holly Herald)

A Holly lady has solved the nuisance of having her front porch all cluttered up with handbills. She has a waste basket in a convenient place, with a card, "Throw handbills here." A few days ago over 100 bills of one kind were thrown into the basket in a bunch.

HIGH SCHOOL COSTS

(W. H. Berkey in Cassopolis Vigilant)

Attorney Humphrey S. Gray of Benton Harbor, declares it is his belief that we had gone too far in the matter of high school education at the expense of the taxpayers. We cannot agree with all that Mr. Gray says but we can agree with him in part.

We believe in a high school education for just as many boys and girls as possible, but we could easily advocate such changes in the high school courses as would best equip those boys and girls for the best type of citizenship rather than sticking to courses that fit them to enter the University of Michigan without examination when only a very small percentage of the graduates ever go to the University.

The primary object of our public schools is to fit for future citizenship and this should never be lost sight of in a desire to remain on the University list, and the taxpayer of moderate means who does not desire to send his children to the University should not be taxed to fit someone else's children to go there. Those who would do away with free high schools would only add hundreds of thousands of young men and women to the army of unemployed.

WANDERING THOUGHTS

"And many of them!"

It will be the year 1933 that brings the new bank to Northville. That's more history for you. We thank the many folks who helped make it possible—and try to be charitable to those who for selfish reasons tried to block its coming.

Beer is coming. But don't get ready for the millennium. As a high school student we worked for two summers right next to a brewery and know a little of the results of beer drinking. They are not what they are "cracked up" to be.

Be glad that you are not governor of Michigan or a member of the incoming legislature. They have a tough time ahead as they face the problem of balancing the budget. Governor-elect Comstock says that he favors a sales tax. We think he is right.

Why can't these modern youths who think it smart to drink and carouse around see that it is a dangerous path to follow? On Dec. 12 four men in a Detroit speakeasy killed a man and just eight days after they were headed for prison for life. Does it pay?

A Northville woman stops her Record because she didn't think much of our "stand on the bank issue." She thought she was "spitting" us. Poor woman! Every time some one gets angry and stops this paper we get two or three new ones. Every editor will tell you that the weakest kind of boycotting is "stopping the paper." It hurts the subscriber a hundred times more than it does the newspaper. And it makes a lot of trouble for the former subscriber. She (or he) has to borrow the neighbor's paper to see what is going on.

AND THEY CALL IT ADVERTISING

A very keen and successful business man once told us that he would not stand for a "miscellaneous" column in his expense sheet. The reason was obvious. Many items would go into it that should be classified and thus be more effective and in difference. We are reminded of this in talking with people who frequently say to charge this or that to "advertising." They use advertising for an excuse for all sorts of foolish expenditures. Bakers by the score make a soft living because of this. Many of the things sold, as advertising are really insults to intelligence. Every healthy business needs effective and honest advertising. It is not an expense—it is an investment. No business, no matter how profitable, can afford to foot away money on the fake schemes. People will pay for a good advertising medium. By the same token they resent many of the other nuisances which parade as advertising. In this day and under present conditions we doubt if anyone has money to throw away to the itinerants who will churn an easy living out of the public with worthless schemes.

At the end of her first day the green clerk had 39 "No Sales" registered on her cash drawer. The floor manager, tipped off by watch her, found that whenever she made a sale she headed straight for the cash drawer to ring up the amount sold. But whenever she found an individual who was "just looking around," she made a bee-line for the cash register and faithfully rang up "No Sale."

So at the end of the day she had 39 customers who were only "looking around."

Out of the turmoil of Christmas shopping comes this side-splitting tale.

A large 5 and 10 cent store in Redford has an iron-clad rule barring "No-Sale" ringups on the cash register so that the girl clerks don't waste time making change for too many customers. This same store hired an extra girl for the holiday business.

At the end of her first day the green clerk had 39 "No Sales" registered on her cash drawer. The floor manager, tipped off by watch her, found that whenever she made a sale she headed straight for the cash drawer to ring up the amount sold.

WHAT ABOUT HONESTY

(E. J. Hanna in Harbor Springs Graphic)

As a nation we are in need of a complete change in our manner of thinking. No matter how severely critical it may sound the fact is, we have been paying too much homage to the easy money fellow—the grafter.

We watched his apparent prosperity until we began to believe that perhaps he was the best way after all. Now we find we have been following after a wrong God a God that promised us wealth without effort, but which has been rapidly undermining our national structure.

This country was founded upon rigid honesty. Our ancestors may have lacked in some of the cultural things, but they were honest—to the last degree. When we departed from the standards they set up we began tearing away at the very foundation of government.

If this nation is to survive it must be honest. If we are to remain as good citizens we must be honest. Not only must we be honest in our own business affairs but we must demand honesty in others and above all we must think honest. Graft in any form cannot be condoned. When we find men cheating their fellowmen, or their government, it is our duty to point them out as public enemies. Only strict adherence to such a policy will give us the stability this nation needs to endure.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ault have returned from a pleasant visit with the latter's mother, Mrs. Sheets, of Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gerge were visitors of Mrs. Palmer Chilson of Northville, Sunday. Mrs. Chilson was a resident of this district many years.

At The Theatre

"LAUGHTER IN HELL"

"Laughter In Hell," a motion picture based on the chain gang system of punishment which operates in the southern states, will be shown at the Penmanian Allen theatre here on Wednesday, Jan. 4.

Picturing the terrors of working in chains subject to the blows, curses, and brutal guards the hero of the film may be seen as another Robert Elliot Burns, the fugitive from the chain gangs of Georgia whose recent apprehension aroused nation-wide interest in the case.

Running as a thread through the drama is a story of love and romance with Norma Kennedy and Gloria Stuart taking the feminine leads and Pat O'Brien as the convict.

Money went out of circulation and honest and honorable business men crumbled because men were bringing restoration. Men are bringing restoration. Men are bringing restoration. Men are bringing restoration.

THIS WEEK

By H. R. WHITE

It has often been said that in the pursuit of happiness if only the external circumstances are favorable the internal phases of man's life will adjust itself successfully. And this in the main may be true. I am inclined to agree with the Aristotelian conception of happiness that it is due to virtue, and that virtue is a mean between two extremes. For instance between rashness and cowardice, between courage, or between empty boasting and little-mindedness in magnanimity.

And being virtuous has its rewards and does produce happiness, at least to the idealist, and from happiness should come a relative amount of strength to meet the difficulties that we have to overcome in order to obtain happiness and keep it.

For to me we can bring back from the land of difficulty a strength we cannot acquire elsewhere.

But here is the best example of happiness that I have come across or read about in a long time. There is a man named Dean Van Clute, in Greenhich, Village, N. Y. City, who started out to be a ball player and had to give it up on account of becoming hopelessly paralyzed.

He then turned to reading despite his meager education, and was just beginning to enjoy real good literature when he became blind. At this time his wife and child died. He wanted to end his own life, and was only prevented from doing so because of his utter helplessness as a paraplegic. He could only move the muscles of his throat and face.

He came to New York with the expectation of being cured, ending his charitable institution, where he remained several years, with the last of being incurable. While in the institution he did some writing which enabled him to open a bookshop in Greenhich, Village, only to have the lackeaters pillage his place entirely, while he sat helplessly by and listened. He rather prided himself that during all his misfortunes he had not acquired the usual disposition when he suddenly contracted paralysis.

During his career of colossal and almost unbelievable misfortune he developed a philosophy which transcends all the ideas on the philosophy of happiness that I have ever read and just at this season of the year when we are trying to wonder what we can be thankful and happy for, and a good many of us are having difficulty to conjure-up anything to be grateful about and spur us on for the year 1933. I want to put down some of the deductions this man has gained from his de profundis.

"Pain is not, as most people think, something to be avoided, but is the impetus of our progress. It refines our senses. It challenges our mind. It helps us to discover beauty. Out of the suffering leap cathedrals and symphonies. From the grandeur of tragedy springs the sublime poetry of life."

This remarkable man does not ask for pity or sympathy. He only cares to discuss poetry, music or other kindred subjects that interests the cultured mind. He smiles and is pleased when critics drop in to praise anything he has written which is entirely done by dictation.

"Thus whenever your troubles seem to be too much for you, let your mind dwell on Dean Van Clute, and they will suddenly vanish into insignificance."

Homemaker's Corner

By MRS. EDITOR

The Family Dining Room. It was suggested by a preacher, this thought, which is worth passing on to other mothers of growing families.

"The dining room," said he "should be the most important room of the house. In it should be those suggestions of beautiful thoughts while the family is together."

"Together?" When is the modern family all together except at times to eat? Even then (we blush to admit) many of our meals are eaten as it were "on the wing."

Breakfast, in a household of school children is always a hurried affair when the children kiss us goodbye hastily with their mouths full of toast—and off they go. In a dizzy daze we finish our own toast and coffee and in the sudden quietness we "wow" that tomorrow will be a most breakfast with a calm and wholesome forgetting of the family for the tasks of the day.

Noon. That hectic noon with its minutes for the kiddies to come home, eat and get back to school. (Far too short a time all of us mothers believe, yet none of us do a thing about it.) Noon lunch is a cafeteria in most households. No chance for family life there.

But supper! Good old fashioned supper. Lucky the family that can corral all its members for the evening meal.

Too often Bud comes in late with dripping hair after a post-basket ball shower, and Sister has a date and Dad is detained at the office. Struggle as a mother may to hang on tenaciously to the coat tails of dilapidated ideals they too away in the whirlwind of modern demands.

Let's look back at the dining table of our youth. Softened by time the picture looks perfect to us now. The glow of a kerosene lamp on the tablecloth (sometimes a red-checked one), father, mother, two boys and two girls. Perhaps the meal was simple, but how good it tasted to hearty young appetites! That home-made bread (with "chew to it"), applesauce and gingerbread, baked in a big dripping pan. These things stand out in memory.

Our father (always, to a person of sweet dignity, mixed with keen humor) "asked the blessing" before we ate. No formal, set, rite, but natural outpouring of gratitude as one would thank a friend.

Then, each plate was filled. He would look about beneficently, and say "Children, the family meal should be an occasion for the family's social occasion. Let's not hurry. Meal time is a time not only to eat but to share with each other what the day has brought. Now, Mary, what did you learn in school today?" And the conversation was started, not at all stilted but better than "the table" and we left the table filled with something more than gingerbread.

Miss Violet Sheppard is spending a few days at the home of her grandmother in West Branch.

Cass Benton Park was the scene of a number of picnicks on Christmas day. The weather was more like April.

Mrs. Emma Shoemaker and granddaughter, Miss "Dolores" Morlan, spent Sunday with the former's brother, John Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Dehne and daughters, Mary, Jane and June, enjoyed Christmas day with Mrs. Dehne's mother in Detroit.

And then that other family table when we shyly joined the ranks of a typical big family where a rather stern looking father looked down the table at mother at the other end with a merry twinkle in his eye when one of the offspring, Richard, Robert, Mary, Ben, Howard, Paul or Joe, made some "smart" remark in jolly encounter—Instructive debates they were. No one's feelings were spared. Sharp shot they rode but always with the feeling that Father and Mother were the interested impartial referees and from it developed the ability to stand alone and think straight
