COURT LAST ADDRESS

President Herbert Hoover's address in Lincoln, Nebraska, was the subject of a letter to the editor of the Northville Record. The letter, signed "A. J. Smith," stated that the president's address in Lincoln was "the most beautiful and most interesting place I have ever seen." The letter also mentioned that the president's address in Lincoln was "the most beautiful and most interesting place I have ever seen." The letter also mentioned that the president's address in Lincoln was "the most beautiful and most interesting place I have ever seen."

GLEANINGS

A Northville woman recently 796 pieces of things she had gathered together. For many years she had been gathering things together, and she had gathered together 796 pieces of things. She had gathered together 796 pieces of things, and she had gathered together 796 pieces of things. She had gathered together 796 pieces of things, and she had gathered together 796 pieces of things.

At a believer in hobbies for everyone we will have to admit that pig-saw puzzles take their place along with crossword puzzles as developers of the mind and heart. After all, a lot that counts is the fun you get out of a thing as you go along. A one-track mind is right in its glory in putting a pig-saw puzzle together. For the two-track mind it must be glorious discipline to win against the pig-saw.

OUR FUTURE LEISURE TIME

Thoughtful men seem to be agreed that when our new economic system is in place, everyone is going to have more leisure time. The reason is that it will take only about a quarter of the total actual working time of everyone to manufacture everything that we all need.

Well, here is a picture to contemplate. Our production system has reached the point where it can make enough goods for everyone if all work only a part of the week. If we can distribute these goods so that everyone has his fair share, then obviously there will be lots of time left for the workers. What shall we do with the spare time? Some one suggests that adults will start going to school again. Why isn't that wise? Education should go on all through the years. Even at the close of a long life we should have only "touched the hem of the garment" of all there is for mankind to learn. Indeed, this matter of adult education is already with us. Here in Northville we have been reading about a manual training class for men. In the schools of Detroit there are night classes of many kinds. We know of a man and wife, now in their forties, who have been getting a real "kick" out of a class in philosophy taught in an extension course by a University of Michigan professor.

How else shall we use the leisure time that the future may soon bring us? One great avenue is the outdoors. With more time on their hands, why can't the whole countryside be built up so that men and women may have homes surrounded by flowers and shrubs for which they can care in their new-found time? Both summer and winter we should all be better off if we got in closer touch with nature. Let the workers learn the joy of having the hobby of raising sunflowers, peonies, summer squash, of becoming fruit experts and of breeding a new kind of dairy cows.

If we are going to be able to "lay off afternoons" in the next five or ten years personally we want nothing better than 20 or 30 acres of land where we can fool away our leisure time, learning a little more of the great world of nature around us.

WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN?

When Governor Wm. A. Comstock, at the request of the bankers of the state, closed the banks of Michigan for eight days, he brought to a focus a question that many have had in their minds, viz., "What is going to happen to this country?" To paralyze the banking system of a great state for over a week is an indication that the simplest minded can read that all is not well.

With twelve millions of men unemployed in the United States, with farmers on the verge of bankruptcy, with thousands of worthy people who never knew money trouble before now "on the welfare," with industrial smokestacks smokeless for months and months, with our governments unable to meet their budgets—certainly the situation is serious and we are no longer fooling ourselves that prosperity is "just around the corner." Things are bad. Are they going to get worse? What is going to happen, anyway? This is the staggering question that faces us all.

Our own idea is that most anything might happen but that the dire things that some of the prophets of gloom have been predicting simply won't happen. We believe that the problem of economic recovery will in some unknown and inexplicable way work itself out. We are too great a nation and have too much sense, too much education, and too much resourcefulness not to pull ourselves out of the most disastrous crisis since the Civil war. We read quite a lot of what the so-called experts say and notice that no two groups of them agree. Look at what a lot of undue panic and fear the discredited technocrats kicked up!

Our best leaders have faith that things will come out all right. For example, we just read today this from Prof. Thos. H. Reed, of the political science department of the University of Michigan: "I believe that the problem will work itself out through a process of gradual liquidation and adjustment. . . . We are walking through darkness with terrors on every hand. But if we remain true to fundamental principles we will come through again to the light. That is our faith. Better days are ahead and with the right kind of cooperation they may not be as far away as some think."

WANDERING THOUGHTS

You can't see Northville with any bank holiday. Governor Comstock didn't look very impressive in his many statements and counter statements.

A song of a bird came to us across the ravine as we went home the other evening after work. There was one thing the bird seemed to take away from us, we thought, and this also goes for the coming spring which is just around the corner.

We are going to take a little scrip at a two-cent loss per dollar paid us. If the next fellow will take it off our hands. But if we are to have scrips, let's not let just the grocer and coal man pay the tax of two cents on every dollar. Circulate the scrip everywhere.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

ISN'T IT SO?

(Lincoln Times)

A search in a neighboring city carries the following on its bulletin board: "I have not as much to live on, but I have just as much to live for."

FORD AND COUZENS

(Ingham County News)

Ed was the principal speaker at a convention Wednesday. Most people seemed to be in agreement that Ford had no responsibility to the bank that he was merely a depositor and that Senator Couzens tried to put the motor magnate on the spot to squate an ancient grudge.

TAXING OURSELVES

(Search Ingham in Galesburg argues)

It occurred to us yesterday at church that in these days of no work for twelve to fifteen million we might all find time to add "ship" to "work."

A little "worship" on the part of all might be good for American citizenship. It might teach us to put first things first. Why complain about taxes when we spend more for tobacco and cosmetics than we do for education and religion?

WHAT OF THE SALES TAX?

(W. H. Berkey in Cassopolis)

In view of the bill that is before the legislature for a sales tax, we wish to repeat what we said recently, that a sales tax is not a sales tax but a buyer's tax. Any tax imposed upon the sale of merchandise, the manufacture of goods, or upon professional service, is purely a buyer's tax, for in the end the consumer pays the tax. No one buying a taxed article should kid himself into thinking that the seller pays the tax, for the seller must make a profit in order to stay in business, and the tax must be added to save the profit. This being true, it is essential that any sales tax be worked out with great care. A flat rate of three per cent on gross sales of merchandise would automatically add three per cent to the living expenses of everyone. Property holders might reap a benefit in decreased taxes on property, but the worker who doesn't own property would have no offset. We have believed, and still believe, that a sales tax should cover less of the staple necessities of life and more of those luxuries which are not necessities, but which are bought freely by people who have the means to buy them.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH A STEIN?

(Mr. Chas. S. Speed in the Rochester Clarion)

Governor Comstock is reported as still keeping his beer stein on his desk. That isn't making a lot of any kind with a lot of people who are wondering what the governor and the legislature are going to do about the tax situation in Michigan. This appears to be a pretty cheap politics at a time when people are desperate for bread.

The above article was clipped from the Northville Record. The editor shouldn't have spoken his thoughts so soon for after the grand move the Democrats made last week on the moratorium on tax sales, this little article seems ridiculous.

In the first place, what is the harm in having a beer stein sitting on a desk? It's empty. The majority of taxpayers wouldn't care now after this great step has been taken to relieve the taxpayer's burden if the Governor used a keg of beer for a paper weight.

The Democrats mean alright, but some head strong Republicans can't

It was encouraging to hear Owen A. Emmons, principal of Detroit's biggest high school, tell Northville sons and fathers that the boys and girls of today are not "going to the devil." We have believed that right along, although sometimes there have been happenings that made us wonder.

Out of the bank holiday and its developments will come great good. Even if the holiday were precipitated by the bitter fight between two multi-millionaires, yet there was enough in the Detroit bank situation that needed stabilizing to justify the emergency action. No other American city has suffered more from inflation than Detroit and if the adjustment had to be made, let's get it over with. After we all get "shaken down" things will move along better.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

What does it cost to feed a family of five people on good nourishing food?

Give them time to put forth their party standards before they start criticizing. At least a year of peace means a lot more than a year of war. People don't mean to be misled and attend bank lectures and follow their leaders. Now we need to be a little common sense and to be a little more practical.

THEY ARE LOOKING TOWARD SMALLER TOWNS

(Schuyler Marshall in Clinton County Republican News)
The small towns of the country are looking toward the big cities for relief from the economic crisis. The small towns are looking toward the big cities for relief from the economic crisis. The small towns are looking toward the big cities for relief from the economic crisis.

Girl Scouts Enjoy Day in the Open

Thirteen Girl Scouts in the juvenile age, enjoyed an all-day outdoor camp Saturday accompanied by their guardian Mrs. Orloff G. Owen. Fred Hoffman had promised these girls an old-fashioned "bob" ride but the snow did not last long enough for him to carry out this plan. Mrs. Hoffman generously invited the girls to spend a day around their campfire at their home on River street.

At noon the girls gathered around this fire and roasted wieners and after an afternoon of hiking and exploring over the hills they returned hungrily to roast hamburgers around the same embers. The day was perfect for such an event and the girls store this away among their happiest memories.

Mr. and Mrs. Schultz Will Entertain Friends Saturday Evening

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Schultz will welcome to their home on West Cady street a company of congenial friends who compose a small club. From Northville there will be as guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Rural Clark. Woman's Club Hears Plea for Peace

Filled with enthusiastic zeal in the cause of world peace, Mrs. Chas. Shain of Birmingham addressed the Northville Woman's club at their regular meeting Friday afternoon. Mrs. Shain has recently returned as one of two delegates who represented Michigan at a conference on the "Cause and Cure of War" in Washington, D. C.

At this conference were the country's best thinkers on problems of national interest and their "findings" after much research and deep study were brought to her hearers by Mrs. Shain. The dreadful danger of future war was pressed home to her listeners who were made to realize that through the greed of its citizens the nation may again be thrown into warfare for the profiteering of its manufacturers of munitions and the 7600 other war items.

History shows, said the speaker, that every depression has been followed by war. It is only by the spreading of intelligent information that war can be averted.

Other points strongly emphasized were: (1) We can not have as our slogan "Buy American." Nations are interdependent both socially and commercially. (2) The United States is not "atrocious." It lags behind other nations in its stand for peace. (3) The only possibility of abolishing war is for the women of the nation to "form a phalanx" and insist that their congressmen and senators stand for peace.

Summing up, Mrs. Shain quoted from an authority, Mary Moore, who said, "Women must have interest, influence, information and impact."

Nellie Ferkels Elects New Officers

The Nellie Ferkels Auxiliary held its annual meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Gladys Clark when the election of officers resulted as follows: President, Miss Elizabeth Beard; vice-president, Mrs. Helen Sweet; secretary, Mrs. Mary Ayers; treasurer, Mrs. Lynn Lee. An instructive lesson in Christian stewardship was conducted by Mrs. Tessa Baker and a pleasant social time concluded the evening when refreshments were served by Mrs. Clark and the assisting hostess, Mrs. E. E. Larson.

Mrs. Washburn Is Hostess to Two Groups of Friends

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. L. H. Washburn entertained delightfully at luncheon at her home in Oakwood, honoring three friends from Detroit, Mrs. Ora H. Hawes, Mrs. W. H. Austin and Miss Anna McKinley. In keeping with the anniversary of "the father of his country" the patriotic motif was carried out prettily throughout the decorations and menu. A centerpiece of red and white snapdragons was flanked by tall red tapers. Molded loaves were served with a "George Washington" cake.

Besides the games of bridge played following luncheon, an additional novelty of fortune-telling was presented by Mrs. Wm. Duguid. Mrs. Washburn welcomed a second group of guests to her hospitality on Thursday when the same motif was carried out and an equally pleasant time was enjoyed. At this second luncheon Mrs. Gertrude Stahl of Lansing was the honored guest.

The D. A. R. Honors Two Presidents

The members of Sarah Ann Cochran chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met at the home of Mrs. Glenn Jewell on Northville Road Monday afternoon, February 20th.

During the business meeting, over which the regent, Mrs. Chauncey E. Baker presided, Mrs. Charles Root, chairman of the "Flag committee," read what the salute to the flag really means, and Mrs. Henry Baker read letters of thanks for the boxes sent to Ellis Island and for the fruits and jellies sent by the chapter to the American Legion hospital at Battle Creek.

Mrs. J. Merle Bennett reminded the members that the tree recently planted in Kellogg Park by the chapter as a Washington Bicentennial memorial will be marked at some later date.

Plans were made also for marking the graves of a Real Daughter and for the placing of a boulder, marking the grave of a Revolutionary soldier.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Carl Bryan of Northville who, in honor of the birthday anniversary of George Washington and of Abraham Lincoln, called upon Miss Mabel Spicer who read some anecdotes of the life of George Washington and on Mrs. Royal B. Larkins of Northville who read Lincoln's second inaugural address.

Mrs. Charles L. Dubuar of Northville then reviewed two books, "Uncle Sam's Army" and "We are Alaskans," by Mrs. Mary Lee Davis.

Mrs. Dubuar, a master of book reviewing, held the close attention of her audience while telling of the history of this vast territory, Alaska, from before its purchase by the U. S. from Russia down to the present times, weaving through the history a bit of romance, a touch of climatic conditions, also social and governmental and a light on the general condition of the natives as well as those who have chosen Alaska for their homes.

The next meeting of the chapter will be at the home of Mrs. Robert H. Peck on Penniman ave., Plymouth, March 20.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Not every series of meetings makes a revival. At this writing the meetings at the Baptist church, which have already shown the character of revivals and, although only two services have been held, definite results have been secured. This should be only the beginning of a great spiritual wave through the community. Nothing can possibly help or ever has helped, to the extent that a return to God and sobriety can and has helped. This paragraph is frankly an exhortation to do your part. The town has been billed with a very modest little bill containing a poor picture of Mr. Stucky and information about this short campaign. Won't you pay heed to this announcement, gird up your spiritual loins and be present as often as you can between now and March 5th. Tonight (Friday) the message will be especially to young people and their needs, and a special invitation is extended to students in the high school. Let us build a barrier at the edge of the precipice rather than a hospital or jail at the bottom.

A delegation from Novi is scheduled for next Monday evening and other groups from Detroit are expected.

Rev. W. Rosche Barbour.

MRS. CAROLINE DEARING

Mrs. Caroline Dearing of New Hudson was the victim of a fatal accident last Friday when a passing motorist struck her and hurled her without identifying himself.

Mrs. Dearing passed away Friday night.

She was united in marriage to Michael Dearing in 1870, and they made their home in Detroit for several years. Since the death of her husband 29 years ago, she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Fuller, and her husband, who have lived in New Hudson for the past 11 years.

For many years Mrs. Dearing was a member of the Evangelistic Christ church in Detroit for many years. Her surviving relatives are: one daughter, Mrs. Minnie Fuller; one step-daughter, Mrs. Ida Plant; one step-son, Emil Dearing; one grand-son and six step-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fuller Monday afternoon at two o'clock, and interment was made in Woodmere cemetery, Detroit. Rev. D. C. Stubbs of South Lyon officiated.

MISS EMMA E. HARDING

The death on Feb. 15 of Miss Emma Harding, daughter of Rev. Brent Harding, a former pastor of the Baptist church in Novi about 25 years ago ended a remarkable career of achievement as a real friend to girls.

Emma Harding was born in Greenwich, England, Dec. 12, 1865, and came with her parents to America in 1870. She completed her school work and teacher training in Bay City where she taught for 12 years following being one of the first teachers of the foreign born while in Bay City she was one of the organizers of the Young Woman's Christian Association in which she was active for many years and at the same time active in the Baptist church and Sunday school.

For two subsequent periods Miss Harding was general secretary of Y. W. C. A. in Lansing and in Scranton, Pa. One very active period of her life was during the World's fair in St. Louis when she occupied a government position as director of the Emmaus home, a rescue home for girls.

After a period of study in the Moody Institute in Chicago Miss Harding became assistant to Rev. Best of the Bethesda church of that city.

Assuming this position, she came home to Novi to care for her mother during illness and spent nearly three years following in Northville. One winter she spent with her father in California. When her father held the pastorate in Breckenridge, Mich. she accompanied him and after his death she took up the torch and finished his year's work.

Her last activity was in St. Louis Mo., as associate general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., directing the religious and employment departments, and mothering these girls to whom she had endeared herself in her Sunday school class, which she taught for 20 years there were enrolled 200 girls. At her funeral service 165 of these girls joined in singing "In the Sweet By and By."

The remains were brought to Novi for interment and a brief service was held in the Baptist church Friday, Feb. 17.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Burton Munro Novi, a brother, John Harding and several nephews and nieces, all of Los Angeles and Novi.

H. F. Wagenschutz has been away from work with the Detroit Edison company for nearly four weeks suffering with a malady which is as yet somewhat uncertain. At present he is improving.

neering insight to treat the new problems of welfare, social and old age insurance, and their ramifications; to adjust production to capacity. These have been mere spectres so far but they are realities today. We must grapple more scientifically, which is to say with more common sense.

"We are in truth, engaged in a struggle for economic freedom."

Mr. Matthews spoke in defense of men in the bread lines, saying that they were not "reds" but merely hunters of bread who are finding stones.

Between the conservative group of thinkers and the radical party lies the large body of steady people, he declared, who have become increasingly aware of the changes of the last 10 and 20 years. This body, he explained, is aiming toward a more equitable distribution of wealth. Out of this fundamental group of thinkers, stated Mr. Matthews, will come a new social mindedness—an economic freedom gained not through any ruthlessness or lawlessness but from tradition, principles inherent within the American people.

The new, he said, will be formed from the steel of the old. Because of the vast investment enterprises, of the United States in every country in the world, said Mr. Matthews, these countries must be dominated by the two great American principles handed down by Washington.

The two principles, he said, are: no taxation without representation and no foreign entanglements. The eyes of the world, he affirmed, are on the United States.

Guests present at the meeting were Russell Davis, Exchange Officer of Toledo, J. P. Lyons, Northville Edison office, Lee Taylor, Edison lighting expert of Detroit, and Sterling Eaton, Plymouth.

U. OF M. WILL COUNT WORK OF POSTGRADS

Students Unable To Attend University May Start Credits Here

Due to the fact that during the depression many high school graduates who plan to go to college have been compelled to temporarily change their plans, the University of Michigan has provided an extension course whereby post graduate work in the high school may be applied on college credit. There is also a plan under way for the University to offer elementary home study courses. This plan has not been completely developed as yet.

In a letter to Principal R. H. Amernman, the University of Michigan Department of Extension courses says that anyone planning to re-enter high school for post graduate work and later transfer to the University should correspond with the registrar of the University concerning the program he should follow.

Advance credit is granted only for studies equivalent to courses offered in the University and in accordance with the following conditions: Each of the applicant must during the first year of residence in the University, creditably complete, in the department of study concerned, a course presupposing a satisfactory knowledge of the work for which the credit is asked, or he must pass a satisfactory examination in the work presented. For example, a foreign language begun in the post-graduate high school course could be validated for college credit by successful continuation work in that language in the University.

No college credit is granted for subjects studied in the high school unless the student has taken a post-graduate course of at least one semester. Such students may apply for advanced standing by presenting to the Registrar on October 16 (or if they enter at the beginning of the second semester on March 3) a statement showing the amount of work done in the subject in which credit is asked.

'ROUND THE SCHOOL

On Remedial Classes

Remedial classes, those in penmanship, spelling, citizenship, etc., are very fine. Every student should learn to write to spell, and to act properly. But on the other hand, why are these classes necessary in high school?

There are several explanations, no doubt. However, in view of the large number of students taking them this, and in other years, and in view of the large number of students we know who have not taken them and still spell, write, talk, and act improperly, it would seem that there has been a slip somewhere. And that somewhere is in the only possible place, in the grades where the pupil is supposed to get elementary training in such subjects.

It may be the fault of the student, entirely, and it often is. Or it may be the fault of the teacher, or of the system. And what it is to be done about it? Certainly it is useless to pay out money teaching a student things in his younger years, if when in high school, those same things have to be taught again.

Of course it may be that the particular group of students in high school at the present time are unusually unintelligent. It may be that the grade teachers are all wrong, but since we know them we cast aside this also. There is left only the system of teaching to be at the bottom of the matter.

There is, however, another factor, that of the parents. Many times when a teacher would not pass a pupil because he did not get the fundamentals, the parents object and force the teacher to promote their child. Then when Johnny and Mary reach high school, the only thing for them is remedial classes.

Unusual Sportsmanship

We were proud and surprised to find out the other day that we have in our school a nearly perfect sportsman. And she is a girl at that.

In the past two years we have witnessed many "disgruntled" athletes. Peevish either because they did not play or because they did not play long enough. Another case of "came up within the last two

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Do you favor the Palladium for N. H. S. this year? Why?

Saveria Leone—I favor this because it lets us think of school days when we were seniors, etc.

Melvin Sterner—Yes because a lot of the seniors like to have them for memory of the high-school life.

Eleanor Booth—I favor it because I think it is a very nice thing to remember your school days by.

Clarence Roberts—Yes, I do favor it because it always has been the custom, and why not keep it up?

Irvin Marburger—I think we should try to have the Palladium this year because we have always had it before.

David Martens—I favor the Palladium because it not only refreshes up your memory in later days, but gives you a reminder of who your first friend was when you were in high school.

Robert Reed, Northville High School's Versatile Artist, Molds The Life Mask of His Friend

"In addition to being an ingenious artist from the point of drawing and painting, Northville high school has on its enrollment a person who is also a sculptor. Of course there is no need to mention that the person in question is Robert Reed, less dignifiedly known as Bob.

The artistic background on the orchestra pit at the senior prom was largely due to his efforts. He has drawn sketches of two-thirds of the people in school, and is art editor of the Palladium, where he is expected to improve that book with his talent. Then Monday afternoon, he turns up with a life mask he made of his friend, Albert Vradenburg.

The likeness, made out of plaster paris, was almost perfectly exact. It had the exact shaped lips, nose, forehead, and face of Albert. In fact weeks. And in the midst of all this it is certainly refreshing to know there is at least one person who is above such actions.

This girl, we are withholding her name, (though all high school students will undoubtedly recognize her,) probably out of modesty objects to our using this article. But we feel that she should get some recognition and honor for all she has done.

The modest and unusual young senior in question has always gone out for girls' basketball. She has always been willing to try to improve the team. Until this year she has never played, to speak of, at all. During that time, she did not grumble a word. She has been the perfect substitute and has done much, through her patience to improve the team of which she was member. This year, in the last three or four games, she has played regularly and did a good job too.

We hope that more Northville students take her attitude. Boys in particular, as they are more concerned with athletics, but girls as well. If we had more of that type, more of those who work for an organization, for the school, we would be farther along and in a happier state of mind. When athletics teaches that quality which the girl in question has, then it has been successful, and its participant has been successful. To this patient and successful senior girl, we bow and wish we had more like her.

Who knows? Maybe the writers of last week's unfinished article on examination grades will become famous. There is the "unfinished symphony," you know.

We're afraid Mrs. Chapman gives too much importance to the rather verbose Howard, when she tells us to devote a whole column to him.

"What's wrong with this Teacher—you haven't got your lesson? Well, that's all right, just be sure you hand it in tomorrow morning."

To get a permit from some teachers, you'd almost think it hurts maybe it does.

Kenneth Wood—I favor the Palladium because in years to come it will refresh your mind of your high school career.

Donna Ferguson—Yes, I am very much in favor of the Palladium for this year because it is a very good way to remember your school days.

Vera Horsfall—I think we should try to have the Palladium for N. H. S. this year, because that is one means of remembering high school days.

Herbert Ware—Yes, I think they should as it has been a tradition for years and also because it would refresh your memory of your school days in later years.

Madeline Haystead—I favor it because it is such an old custom, and should be continued this year, if possible. It is one of those things that just seem to belong with the school.

Try the "want column" if you have something to sell.

PALLADIUM AD PRICES TO BE CUT ONE-THIRD

Neal Says Book Will Be Best Ever, as Work Gets Started

Announcement was made public Monday by John Steencken, business manager of the Palladium, that the advertising rates for the Northville high school annual book this year had been cut one-third.

This reduction will make the cheapest price $2 for the liner ads, which formerly sold for $3. The quarter page advertisements, formerly $3, will sell for $3.50. The half page space has been reduced from $10 to $7, and a full page has been cut from $20 to $14. "This reduction will greatly curtail our income," says Mr. Steencken, who is in charge of all advertising, "but we need cooperation and support from those concerned."

Several meetings of the Palladium staff have been held within the past two weeks and much progress has been made. The senior pictures are to be photographed on either February 28 or March first and the group pictures will probably be taken within a month of that time. Advertising contracts have been printed and Business Manager Steencken and his assistant, Merle Fraser, expect to get busy on their part of the publication immediately. Editor Warner Neal says, "in cutting the advertising we will have to make drastic economies elsewhere in the book. However, we still feel that we can put out a better annual than has been the average in past years. We have several plans under way for the purpose of stimulating sales, and they will be made public soon."

The Palladium staff is as follows: Editor-in-Chief, Warner Neal; assistant editor, Peggy Blake; business manager, John Steencken; assistant business manager, Merle Fraser; joke editor, Richard Shipley; boys' athletic editor, Leo Kohler; girls' athletic editor, Marie Humphreys; society editor, Mary Bennett; art editor, Robert Reed; senior reporter, Wilma Rattenbury; junior reporter, Catherine McKenna; sophomore reporter, Bill Black; freshman reporter, Frances Alexander; faculty advisor, Leslie G. Lee.

The junior reporter, Miss Catherine McKenna, was recently appointed to fill the vacancy made by Paul Beard, out on the account of severe illness.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT HAS WIDE PROGRAM FOR NEW SEMESTER

With the new semester, the Northville high school music department, under the direction of Leslie G. Lee, is starting out with renewed vigor. In addition to putting on several activities at the present and in the immediate future, the music room has been moved and completely redecorated.

The new music room is very attractively arranged. On one wall there is a group of pictures composed of two nature scenes and "The Appeal to the Great Spirit." There is also a picture of "St. Gahan" and one of "George Washington." As well as two Glee Club group pictures and a panel of great musicians.

On the bulletin board is a group of the past programs given by the Glee Clubs in the past three years, including the operetta "Riding Down the Sky" and the play, "What Anne Brought Home."

For example, to show what progress has been made the Girls Glee club has changed from "Santa Lucia" in two parts to the "Lord Is My Shepherd" by Schubert, in four parts.

The schedule of events planned for the second semester is:

March 10—Baseball benefit.

April 7—Orchestra and vocal solo concert.

May 5—Choir and Glee Club concert.

June 12—Operetta "Lalawala."

Due to complications which arose preventing rehearsals, the senior play, which was scheduled to be presented at the Maybury Sanatorium Feb. 20, and at the First Methodist Episcopal church of Plymouth, has been postponed.

Next Monday, Feb. 27, the play will be presented at the Plymouth church. Though not definitely arranged as yet, the play, "Attorney for the Defense," will probably be given at the Maybury Sanatorium. Thursday, March 2, said Leslie G. Lee, director.

Cast-one will present the play in Plymouth and cast two will perform at the sanatorium.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS GO HIKING; PRESENT PROGRAM FOR LADIES

The Niska Camp Fire group went on a hike last Monday. The sponsor, Mrs. E. H. Douglas, led the group and they studied trees for the day's project.

The other Camp Fire group under the direction of Mr. Orlov G. Owen is giving an Indian pageant for the Women's Club today. The following girls are taking part: Vivian Grosvenor, Louise Alexander, Betty Armstrong, Marjorie Chase and Patsy McLaughlin.

DO YOU REMEMBER WHEN?

The wooden Indian adorned cigar store fronts? The fine hand painted poles designated the place for tonsorial attention?

You could identify the jeweler by the big watch hung in front of his shop?

The long, well shaped boot was the sign for the builder of custom made boots and shoes?

The sign "Board by the Day or Week" was prominently displayed in many places about town?

Will Yerkes pounded out letters on that old Caligraph—one of the first typewriting machines in Northville?

Northville Noses Out Strong Melvindale Team In Last League Game

In one of the most spectacular games of the year, Northville evened accounts with Melvindale by nosing out a 25-24 victory, in the high school gymnasium Friday evening.

The second team was defeated in an overtime game, 23-20.

As a result of this victory in the last league game of the season, it is believed that Northville is now assured of a tie for second place in the Suburban league. The local five now has five victories and three defeats to their credit. Farmington and Melvindale are tied for first place, with five victories and two defeats each, and will play it out in a game tonight, the loser to be tied with Northville for second position.

The outstanding feature of the game was the excellent teamwork of the two evenly matched teams.

The entire contest was "hip" and "tuck" with neither side gaining a large lead.

The first half started and ended fast. The Northville five took an early lead which was overtaken and regained several times before the half ended with the Orange and Black team in the lead by one small point, 12-11.

Almost five minutes elapsed before either team tallied in the third quarter. The Tigers' defense weakened slightly and Melvindale again overcame Northville's small lead and managed to hold it until the fourth and final periods.

Fourth Period Exciting.

The fourth period started with the visiting team leading by one point. The scoring began with a Melvindale foul shot. Northville's defense tightened, and a determined offensive broke into the enemy's territory with neat passing and footwork and enabled Northville to rush in two baskets, putting them in the lead again. After a foul shot by Melvindale, Baldwin took the ball from a mix-up under his own basket and dribbling down the clear floor sank an easy dog-shot. Marburger finished the scoring for Northville, with the score 25 to 20.

With only a few minutes to play, a frantic drive of Melvindale almost spelled disaster for the home team. By slick passing two baskets were obtained by them in quick succession to make the score 25 to 24. After a few frenzied shots, all of which missed their mark, the game ended with the Orange and Black team leading by one point, 25-24.

Reserves Lose.

The second team game was equally as exciting, but disappointing to the Northville fans. After holding the lead for three quarters, a rally by the Melvindale "B" team tied the score when the final whistle blew, 19 to 19. In the three minutes overtime play, the Melvindale team sank a basket and a foul shot ending the game in their favor, 23-20.

WELSH SINGERS ARE HEARD BY A CROWD SUNDAY EVENING

In spite of the rain, last Sunday evening a large audience completely filling the Methodist church, gathered to enjoy a fine concert of songs by a chorus of over forty Welsh voices from Detroit. These singers were obtained through the courtesy of Clarence Davis and true Welsh music it was, sung with their customary fervor.

The charm of their music was that these singers so thoroughly enjoyed singing and entered into their art with hearty spirit. The chorus was directed by R. M. Williams, and the accompanist was T. Trevor Jones. Especially appreciated by the audience were the Welsh hymn, sung heartily in their native language and the final number, "Radiant Morn."

The sermon, delivered by Rev. H. G. Whitfield, rang with an optimism that was genuine and founded on realities. Speaking from the text "We see not yet all things subject unto him, but we see Jesus" the preacher pointed out the fact that more had been accomplished than the church realized.

Altogether this was a very helpful union service.
