

A. V. JACOBSON
CONFESSES TO
RUSSIAN PLOTFormer Northville Teacher
Admits Role As Spy

Arvid V. Jacobson, former Northville high school mathematics teacher, confessed Nov. 1 at Helsingfors, Finland, for espionage activities, made a full confession, according to an Associated Press dispatch, dated Friday, Nov. 10.

The wire states that Chief of Secret Service Rieckel said that his case was "complete" and that Mrs. Jacobson had undertaken an important part in the alleged espionage. The secret service said: Russian agents were recruiting unemployed men and women in the United States and sending them as spies into Roumania, Poland, Finland, and other European countries giving them advances of $500, said the report.

Mr. Jacobson graduated from the University of Michigan in 1923, after earning his way through school where he was a brilliant student.

After his graduation he was a teacher here for three years where he became well-known and liked by his colleagues and townspeople.

No international complications were expected to result from Jacobson's confession, although he is a United States citizen, having been born in Watton, Baraga county, upper peninsula.

Detroit police, when asked about his activities, disclosed that he had been registered with them as a member of the Communist party and that he had been a speaker at several Communist rallies in Detroit.

McNITT, WHO GOT
START HERE, WINS
PLACE ON "TODAY"

V. V. McNitt, former Northville boy, who is now a nationally known journalist associated with Vincent Astor and Professor Raymond Moley in their new monthly magazine, "Today," was a very interested visitor at the University Press club meeting last week in Ann Arbor, Nov. 10.

Mr. McNitt got his start in journalism back in 1909 when the late Frank S. Neal, then editor of the Northville Record, gave him his first job. Under Editor Neal, he became acquainted with both the mechanical and editorial end of the newspaper. From here he went to the University of Michigan where he spent two years. He then went East where he speedily built a reputation for himself as a journalist.

Two years ago, Mr. McNitt purchased the Southbridge (Mass.) Evening News of which he is still editor and publisher. Recently when Prof. Moley, who edits Vincent Astor's new monthly, "Today," wanted the most capable newspaperman he could find to run his magazine, he picked Mr. McNitt.

"Stealing" two days away from his business, he responded to an invitation to attend the press club. In a reminiscent mood, Mr. McNitt recalled the Northville of his youth, asked about many people, including the Neals, the Yerkes, and the Laphams. He said that he occasionally saw a copy of the Record and "liked it very much." He expressed a desire to visit Northville and see "the many improvements" that he knew were there.

FORD HELPS "KIDS"
GET SKATING POND

"Certainly, go right ahead," said Henry Ford when William T. Gregory, village commissioner, phoned Michigan's best known citizen Tuesday and asked permission to use the mill-pond for a skating rink.

The idea was conceived by Frank Brown and John Raymond that the old mill-pond would make an ideal skating rink for the youngsters of the town. As it is they have to go way up to the fishery ponds, or to Waterford. This way they will have a place closer to home, just in case they fall through, but they won't be in much danger of getting wet as the pond will not be over six feet deep at any place, since the channel will be the deepest part.

The weeds that have grown up in the pond during the time it has been dried up, will have to be cut down in order to make it a really good place to skate. Frank Brown and John Raymond, along with a number of volunteers will do the work.

The pond is on Hutton avenue opposite Alexander's greenhouse, and according to present plans it is to be flooded sometime next week.

EXCHANGITES TAKE
TRIP TO ANN ARBOR
MONDAY EVENING

Nine Exchangers and two guests journeyed to Ann Arbor Monday evening to visit members of the Exchange club there and to spend the evening bowling.

Despite the breakdown of one car, which caused four of the party to arrive late, all of the Northvillians were there in time to enjoy the delicious steak dinner served in one of the many lunch rooms of the University of Michigan Union building. Following a talk by Professor Doctor James of the University law department on the careless practice of making out checks that are easily raised forged, etc., which was intensely followed by the listeners, the entire assembly adjourned to the bowling alleys.

Northville's bowlers were beaten two out of three games but managed to give the professors some close competition. Sam Stalter, the Northville ace, won high score honors for the evening.

Those who went to Ann Arbor on the trip were: Robert Yerkes, Chas. Dolph, Sam Withnison, Sherrill Ambler, Dayton Ruhl, Sam Stalter, Kenneth Rathbun, Ad. Schwenger, Dr. H. I. Sparling, Roy Crowe, and James R. Lyons.

The regular Wednesday noon meeting of the Exchange club was not held owing to the Ann Arbor trip taking its place.

MEADOWBROOK INN

A large crowd enjoyed the Legion dance given at the Meadowbrook Inn on the Ten Mile road last Saturday evening. It was one of the largest crowds that have gathered to help the Legion celebrate, in recent years. The few tables were crowded all of the time and the dance floor was alive with merry couples dancing away the minutes and greeting old friends they hadn't seen since the last Legion bust. The orchestra was a peppy bunch of boys that are heard at the Inn every evening. Everyone says that they are all set to go on the next party the local Legion has, only they want a bigger place so that all their friends will be able to come.

McCLOUD DIES
WHEN HIT BY
FALLING TREENovi Farm Worker Meets
Death In Woods
Wednesday

Jack McCloud, farm laborer, was killed Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by a falling tree, while he and his partner were cutting wood on the Sangarek farm about three miles west of Novi on Grand River avenue.

Mr. McCloud, who has been a farm hand on several of the farms around the vicinity of Novi, was killed instantly when the tree split unexpectedly and jumped sideways, falling on him and crushing his chest. Harry Berowski, who was working with McCloud, tried to pull the tree off McCloud but it was too heavy. He went for help getting two of the nearby farmers, L. N. Bogart and Loren Bezzari, and with their combined efforts they succeeded in extricating him.

The roads were so badly drifted that it was impossible to get a car to the woods and it was necessary to carry him across a field to Grand River avenue where Bogart's car was waiting.

McCloud was taken to the Walter Sangarek farm where he had been staying, and his body remained there until officials from the coroner's office came and removed it to Portage. An inquest will be held.

McCloud was single and made his home with various farmers for whom he has worked in the past ten years. He came to Michigan from Illinois and he is said to have a sister in Chicago.

ALUMNI TO DANCE
TO SYNCOPATIONS
OF STRASSEN'S SAX

"Old Timer" Calls For Loyalty To

(By Old Timer)

The Alumni have decided to have Strassen's orchestra play at the Alumni dance to be held at the Northville high gym Nov. 24. They are a new group of boys who have played for several dances in the community and everyone has enjoyed them immensely, they seem to have no name but Strassen's Schilling Society Syncopators. The high school floor is a good dance floor, and it won't break you either to come and dance for dear old Alumni, because the tickets are only 25 cents apiece, or fifty cents a couple. So come on up to the high school on Friday night, Nov. 24, and help the Alumni get out of the red—you see there is a slight deficit from last year. The Northville colors are orange and black, so let's do away with the red. Bring a girl and come on up and trade a dance with me. "Sure I'm going and I have a partner. Thank it over, two bits a ticket, or four bits a couple. And all you high school students, be sure and come—will give you a chance to bump into a few of those distinguished people of whom you will someday be one. Here's a tip. If you help out the Alumni now, maybe you'll get more to eat at the Alumni banquet next year. See you up at the gym next Friday. Your can dance from 8:30 until 12:30.

SENIOR MOTHERS GIVE

ZERO WEATHER ARRIVES

Three above zero gripped Northville and vicinity in its icy grasp this week. A host of stalled cars, frozen radiators, and other motor trouble brought a rush of business to garagemen.

A white mantle of snow covered the streets, houses and countryside and weathermen predicted that more snow would arrive before the cold spell had spent itself.

AUXILIARY MEMBERS
BRING CHEER TO THE
VETERANS AT SAN

Six members of the American Legion Auxiliary, with two busy helpers in the persons of Claude Ely and Ralph Altenburg, enacted roles of Santa Claus last week.

Friday afternoon, Nov. 10, this group, armed with Armistice Day boxes, made its way to the William H. Keeney sanatorium where many eager veterans awaited their coming. The boxes were filled with members of the Auxiliary and contained fruit, homemade cookies, candy and cigarettes. Each box was attractively wrapped in white tissue paper and tied with blue and red ribbons.

Mary Jones presented the Auxiliary with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums and a piousness was put through the bow on each package. Needless to say, the men were delighted.

This same group also called on the needy wife of one of its veterans at the Maybury sanatorium and presented her with a box and a complete outfit of clothing.

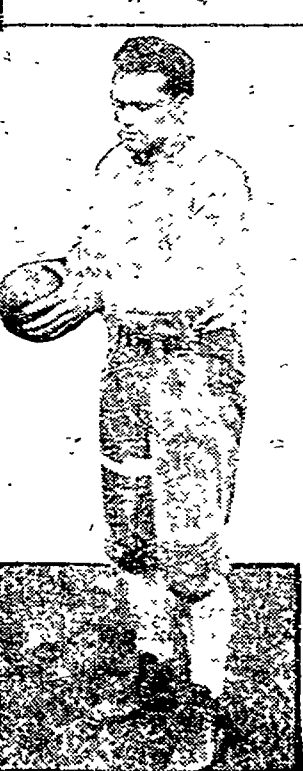

Those who delivered these gifts were: Helen Dalton, President Anna Casterton, Lydia Ely, Helen Belter, Mabel Wilkinson, Frances Wilkinson and their helpers, Claude Ely and Ralph Altenburg.

COACH WATTS ENDS FIRST YEAR AS FOOTBALL COACH

The game between Northville high school's football team and Plymouth high school's team, to be played at the Plymouth Riverside Park this afternoon at 3:30 will conclude the first year of coaching at Northville for "Ted" Watts, former M. I. A. A. star.

After an outstanding football career at Northville high school, Coach Watts attended Albion college where for three straight years his spectacular quarterbacking proved the sensation of the conference.

At the conclusion of his college career he returned to Northville to take up the duties of a mathematics teacher and to coach the local football team so far to four victories and two defeats. Coach Watts has the united backing of the students and townspeople and it is believed that with a very few years Northville will again be able to put a team of championship caliber in the field.

Northville has beaten the high schools of Van Dyke, Berkley, Clawson, and Farmington. They have been defeated by Melvindale and Trenton high schools.

Congratulations, Coach Watts, on the conclusion of a successful season!

STEALING GAS GETS TWO IN TROUBLE HEREOne Is Fined and Placed On Probation; Other Is Warned

A Northville man was convicted Tuesday afternoon in the Plymouth police court of the unlawful use of gas that had not been previously registered through a meter. He was fined and placed on probation for six months.

Another man has been apprehended by the Michigan Federated Utilities officials and warned that a repetition of the offense would result in a jail sentence for him.

The Michigan Federated Utilities company, according to L. L. Price, manager, states that in the past it has been the practice of the company to be lenient with cases involving the theft of gas due to the unusually stringent period through which the country is now passing.

This practice, says Mr. Price, has been abandoned and any future cases such as the one just prosecuted will be drastically handled and the full penalty provided by the state, involving a penitentiary sentence, will be insisted upon.

Because both of the gas thieves have families, leniency has been shown, it is said, but future cases will not be so easily disposed of.

160 SEE BIG FAIR

APPEAL TO HELP
UNDERFED PUPILS

Neen Lunches Can Be Served
At Average Cost
Of Six Cents

An appeal for aid comes to provide lunch-day lunches for undernourished children was brought by Supt. Russell H. Anderson to the Northville Rotary club meeting Tuesday noon at the Presbyterian church.

Let your stated Superintendents know if you are deliriously happy, or if you are not, and often many more. The able direction of Mrs. Claude Zimmerman, with the cooperation of the home economics class, these nourishing meals were served at an average cost of six cents per meal. This year the need is even greater and several agencies may be called on to help. The teachers themselves hope to be able to take over one month's cost of the meals.

"If you could see these children come in to school, showing that they have not had enough to eat, and yet not complaining, your heart would be touched," said Supt. Anderson.

In the absence of the president and vice president, E. L. Mills was in charge of the Rotary session.

COUNTERFEIT
$5 BILL IS FOUND HERECurrency Passed On Local Merchant On Exhibit
At Bank

One of the spurious five dollar bills which has flooded Detroit metropolitan area for the past few weeks was discovered by a local merchant and taken to the Depositors State bank where the merchant's suspicions were confirmed.

Approximately $10,000 worth of the counterfeit money is floating around and the 14 members of the ring which made and passed it were jailed Wednesday by Federal secret service detectives.

Floyd Lanning, of the Depositors bank, took the bill to the First National bank in Detroit where it was positively identified as counterfeit. It is said to be the best imitation of a genuine five dollar bill that officials there have ever seen. Officers say that all of the bills start off with the series number of K-51979 followed by fictitious numbers.

The number of the bill now on exhibit in the Depositors State bank is K-51979222A.

THOS. MOSS DRAWS
PLAN FOR HILLTOP
NURSERY SCHOOL

Hilltop Nursery School, which is in its third year of operation, has outgrown its present quarters and a new school is being built at 400 Beck road, near Plymouth.

Architect Thomas Moss of Northville, before drawing up the plans, visited the Elementary Nursery School in Ann Arbor, which is a model of its kind, and Hilltop is being patterned after it as much as possible. Only a part of the plan is being built now. When completed there will be two large play rooms, one for children up to 3½ years of age, and one for children 2½ to 5 years old. All of each play room will be an open-ended room where both new and used toys will be for the children to play and not be seen by them. There will also be a kitchen and reception room, with sleeping rooms above.

The dinner menus followed were planned by a dietitian especially for children under five years of age. At present there are 18 enrolled in the day school from Northville and Plymouth. Four other children are in the Hilltop for the winter and spring, while almost every day other children are left while their parents are away.

DAVE MIENZINGER IS FACTOR IN STATE'S
POLO GAME VICTORY

Word comes from Michigan State college at East Lansing that another one of Northville high school's graduates is starring on the athletic field.

This time it's in a sport well-known to Northville and vicinity polo—the star is Dave Mienzinger, captain of the Spartans' squad.

Following is an account of a recent game in which the Northville boy counted heavily.

"State's polo team came back from Wednesday (Nov. 8) to swamp the 1934 Field Artillery team 20 to 5 after training his teammates for five periods. Dave Mienzinger, captain of the squad, came back to take the lead and be high point man for the night. The scoring stood: Capt. Mienzinger 8, Scherer 7, and Decker 7 for the Field Artillery. Cardoff 3 for State."

The play of Decker in crooking sticks with Dave Mienzinger in riding off opposing men was an outstanding part of the game.

Dave, who graduated from Northville high in 1928, was a three-sport man winning letters in football, basketball, and baseball "Chuckie" Mienzinger a younger brother, followed in his brother's footsteps by also winning letters in three major sports. He graduated from Northville in the class of 1922.

PAYING BY INSTALLMENTS

"I read your editorial on paying a little at a time and here is a dollar to apply on my account," said one of the best citizens of Northville—even though hard hit for some time.

Now that is the spirit. The dollar he paid was soon on its way to pay someone else and who knows what good it has done in the past few days? Our friend owes a dollar less, we owe a dollar less, and the end is not yet. Moral: If you can't pay it all to the grocer, the merchant or your neighbor, pay a little.

WHAT TWO MEN SAY

What distinguished men say, as quoted in the daily papers, makes one think pretty deeply these days.

In one issue of a Detroit daily last week there appeared statements by two men that are worth pondering.

Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council of England, stated in a speech that the "constitution has broken down in the United States and Americans are practically under a dictatorship. . . . Thank God we are not an hysterical nation. Great Britain is the sole guardian of democracy. . . . The British government is the greatest steady influence in the world today." Now, whether you like that or not, Baldwin has raised some points around which it is hard to detour.

Then listen to this. O. Max Eastman, author and critic, spoke at Detroit City College last week. He praised President Roosevelt as a man of great courage and moral integrity and called him a statesman with vision. But of the NRA, the "President's brain child," he said: "Personally, I can see no future for the NRA." He calls it a "temporary creation, a make-shift affair, an attempt to stem a tidal wave."

Both these critics make us think. But both will find this true, if they live long enough: The United States will not throw overboard the constitution and it will not be run by any dictator like Hitler or Mussolini. And this: With out anyone being able to tell just how or why, the people of the United States will before very long find a way out of the woods and go back on the road to national recovery.

LOOKING BACKWARD

It is too long a story to tell here, but the editor of The Northville Record stepped abruptly about a quarter of a century ago—as a boy we thought we should be lucky to live to be 10—from teaching school to running newspapers. We have often wondered what would have happened had we clung to teaching, yet we have no doubt that we have been much happier and have done better in the newspaper "game." High-strung temperaments perhaps do not make ideal teachers and yet we have seen some teachers who needed more "dynamite" in their teaching.

We reminisce thusly because we have just had a letter from one of the best friends of a lifetime, inviting us back to Quincy, Branch County, Michigan, to a home coming celebration. Then along comes The Quincy Herald, telling us in detail of the plan. So memories are running swiftly before us.

The first country weekly we owned was at Quincy. We bought it almost "unsight and unseen." Just a boy out of college, with an unusually loyal and capable wife, we had the urge to get a newspaper of our own and with one thousand dollars we started the career of an editor. Unwisely — Or should we say wisely, because it might have been that?—we bought the "underdog" of the two papers of the pretty village of Quincy. The going was rocky the first few months. Friends of the rival paper gave us six months to stay in town. We refused to be licked that way and got busy improving the paper. We were in an old building, set up on blocks and the office got so cold in the winter that the type setter—there were very few linotypes in the country offices then—almost had the ice freezing on her fingers as she "threw in" the columns of type. So we soon moved the office to a better building—in fact the one where the Herald is now printed.

If we had any virtues in those days, they included industry, the good sense to keep away from the hard drinking set that dominated certain groups of the town and the good fortune to make fine friends who stood loyally by the new editor and his wife. So in two years the publisher of the other paper was agreeable to a merger which gave the town one newspaper. In another two years the opportunity opened to go to a larger field and the change was for the best.

Many of the folks we knew in Quincy back in 1907-11 have passed to their eternal reward. Practically all of the business men whom we tried to serve are gone. When we left the town we thought the folks would never forget us, yet we returned just a few years ago and met one of the "pillars" of the church we attended there and thought he would fall on our neck. What he said was this as he tried to place us in memory: "Where have I seen you before?" How fleeting is the memory of man.

In our four years at Quincy we made no money and lost none. But we found out one thing that makes Quincy a pleasant memory and that has made green the memory of every other town in which we lived. That was this: Friends are priceless and make life glorious. We mean the never failing kind of friends like Dan W. App, retired railroad man who sent us the homecoming invitation; Norman H. Kohl, then a school boy, now an honored banker and ex-mayor, at Coldwater, and Martin Griswold, retired farmer, now deceased, who wasn't afraid to loan money to a young man trying to get a toe-hold in life. Yes, and there was that other friend—nameless here—at whom the wagging tongues of gossip shot their charges but who to us was a true friend and who stood us with a kindly word many a time when the going was hard. He too is dead, and we say sincerely: "Peace to his ashes."

Yes, Quincy, you didn't put much money in our pockets but you started filling the halls of memory with priceless pictures. We thank you!

WANDERING THOUGHTS

Bright spots: The tool and die makers strike in Detroit is pretty well settled. Had it not been, you would have seen a discouraging let-down in automobile production in Detroit.

Northville high school football boys and Coach Ted Watts: We are with you today in that battle against Plymouth. We hope you win, but we are still for you even if you lose.

Detroit votes for the subway plan. "When will it put men to work?" thousands are asking. We are no prophet, but we predict that outside of a few "high-ups," there won't be any going to work on the big job within one year. (We hope our prediction is wrong.)

Now the wets are on the defensive. The University of Michigan sends out a warning that drunks at the football games will be shown out on their ear—or put in jail. Incidentally Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost is one of the most consistent dries of the whole United States.

Northville hunters are in the woods. We envy them the long hikes and the crackling of underbrush under the feet, the satisfying of prodigious appetites created by the outdoor life, the long silent sleeps, the friendship of the woods. Yes, and the absence from too many things and too many people.

Last Saturday was Armistice day. Fifteen years have passed since that never-to-be-forgotten Nov. 11 of 1918. Since then a world has been shaken, not by war but by the results of war. Personally we all have seen the service men come back and live among us—except those who sleep in Flanders field and in thousands of graves elsewhere. We have seen those returned soldier boys change from young men to heads of families. Now, along with the rest of us, the greying hairs are creeping over their heads. They are taking their part in rebuilding a new world. But the tragedy of war is that there is no armistice to the grief, the suffering, the sorrow, the countless loss, it leaves behind. And yet we just read that "Europe is visibly drawing close to another war." How much more war can civilization endure?

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Do you favor using whisky revenue to support Michigan schools?

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

NOT EVEN COUSINS

Broed Kletter, Iowa editor, decides that Mr. Wiggins, the New York City banker, could not have been the husband of the Mrs. Wiggins of cabbage patch fame.

NO WHISKY FOR SCHOOLS

(M. H. DeFoe in The Charlotte Republican-Tribune)

It is not pleasant to contemplate a suggestion out of Lansing that whisky revenue be turned to the support of the schools.

It was bad enough when the surplus boxing revenues were used to buy school playground equipment.

That was giving the fight game an official dignity it never deserved. If the state can arrange to put the liquor cash into the general fund and pay the school debts out of that fund, all well and good but for heaven's sake let's not sink to a point where a glass of whisky has any responsible relationship to the item of education.

ON A WASTED LUNCH

(Emerson O. Giddart in The Union Sentinel)

Coming down to the office Tuesday morning, we saw the substantial remains of some well-fed person's lunch, wantonly thrown to the gutter. What a difference! we reflected, in this quiet country village and in the hungry city! How long would that half-eaten lunch lie there clean in its half-unfolded wrappings in Detroit just now, where hundreds are picking their living from garbage cans? But here it lay, awaiting the coming of some ever-hungry dog, or else to be crushed by the first car to come that way.

CHEERS FOR HOOVER

(Ray S. Corliss in The Parma News)

Saturday evening we were one of several thousands of persons who crowded Detroit's largest theatre to capacity while many others stood waiting for seats. A news reel showing former President Hoover was flashed onto the screen. The thunderous applause that arose from the audience startled us. If Mr. Hoover could have heard the tremendous ovation given his picture he would know that the affection the American people have for him is steadily growing deeper.

SCHOOL BOARD DISCLAIMS ATHLETIC RESPONSIBILITY

(From Milford Times)

The Milford Board of Education has adopted a resolution which states in effect that the school district will assume no responsibility for accidents that may happen in athletic games participated in by school pupils nor in practices for such games.

The ground taken is that the games are not a part of the curriculum, are not required of any pupil and hence are not a responsibility of the school as to injuries that may occur.

HOW TO BRING BACK JOBS

(The Manufacturer)

During the present winter it will be possible to build well and build cheaply. You can obtain a house for a few thousand dollars that would have cost twice the price four years ago and probably will again four years hence. The same thing is true of repairs of all kinds—from those tickety steps you've been vaguely meaning to have fixed for months, to that roof which has suddenly developed a leak. And here is something to think about: one-third of the people on the relief rolls in the larger cities are normally engaged or supported by the construction industry. Starting home-building on a national scale is all that will bring back their jobs.

A NEW IDEA

(Richard Cook in The Hastings Banner)

A big department store in the east is trying a new experiment in advertising: telling the whole truth concerning the merchandise it offers for sale. Instead of trying to make a lemon look like a peach, for example, this firm concentrates on making clear just how four the lemon really is. For example an advertisement might state that a pair of curtains on sale at a modest price were patterned after a famous design but also add a warning that in all probability the colors will fade after two seasons of wear! Imagine such a radical departure from the ordinary routine of sales ballyhoo. Or the firm might go on to announce the sale of an accumulated assortment of rugs many of which are in colors that an interior decorator might not select. So far the experiment seems to be a success.

THE HOME TOWN MERCHANT

(Fred Kletter in The Ionia County News)

I think that in all these movements toward national recovery we should not overlook the local merchant, whose pathway has been beset with many ills during these depression years. Sometimes I hear people speak thoughtlessly about those who serve us along Main street. We should remember that when we speak disparagingly about the local merchant we are hurting the community in which we live. One can go with the average merchant into the innermost recesses of his business and there will be wonderment how he has managed to weather the storms that have raged above his head in recent years. But through it all he has remained patient and faithful—he has refused to whimper or admit defeat. Each morning of the workday week finds him at his place of business still carrying on. We have just witnessed "National Recovery Week," we should make them all recovery weeks, doing our little part from day to day to aid in the great work of restoring this nation to an even keel.

ONE EDITOR TELLS THE TRUTH

(Robert D. Gifford in The Eaton Rapids Journal)

Here's one editor who has the nerve to come out and tell just what he thinks of a man after he passes to the great beyond, regardless of consequences. And why not? Why whitewash a man just because he is dead? The fact that he is dead does not change what he has been, and when the editor polishes him up, just because it has been done for centuries, he makes a liar out of himself and a monkey of other people who believe all the nice things he has said about the deceased. Listen to what this editor says:

"Montrose lost one of its former residents this week when he died at the home of his daughter in Flint," says the Clio Messenger.

"He was probably one of the worst old reprobates that ever graced the streets of Montrose. Always a trouble-maker, without a good word for man, woman or child, words of truth probably never passed from his mouth for many of the fifty years of his deceptions on earth. Unprincipled from the years that the writer knew him, meanness far surpassed any thoughts of goodness that the average person would command and exemplify."

"He passed on, and it is not likely that Montrose will ever have another resident his equal at least, most people have their moments of decency."

(Record Editor's Note—After the above was run in the Clio paper, we understand that the editor apologized, not for the truth he told but because it brought grief and sorrow to the family of the man whose name is left blank above. Regard for others is just the reason that few papers ever tell the whole truth about anyone.)

THE MEANEST MAN I EVER KNEW!

(Scarth Inglis in The Galesburg Argus)

He did nothing against me; was not very rich; not very cruel; not dishonest.

In my recent duties to secure a high school education for every rural boy and girl I met this man—fine appearing, well dressed, prosperous, beautiful home and fine family. It did not seem possible a wolf could hide by the product of a lamb. The meanest man I ever met was a farmer—not because he was a farmer but in spite of the fact. We look for mean men among our Insulls, Wiggins, Mellons and Atterburys.

But this farmer was the meanest man in Michigan because he would educate his own children but not those of his neighbors; because he would let one hundred dollars keep four boys out of high school even though we arranged a loan for the money and he knew that the state later would pay much of this tuition back to the district; because these boys were just an excuse to set a precedent to keep all rural children out of high school at public expense; because he would hold school office to use his ruthless power to hinder education—not to build it up.

Thank God! He is a little man in a small community so his influence cannot go far. Four boys suffer—not forty of four hundred as would happen in a city under the influence and philosophy of such a man. His village will say he pays his debts—but not another good word.

Shakespeare called this man—Shylock, who thought more of his ducats than his daughter.

Dickens called him "Scrooge." Aesop pictures him as "King Midas."

Jesus says: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." "Whoever shall offend one of these little ones, it is better that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea."

NORTHVILLE'S YESTERDAYS

5 YEARS AGO

Editor Frank S. Neal passed away at his home Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bloom have returned from a brief vacation trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hodge are leaving today to spend the week-end in Sebewaing, with Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards, formerly of this town.

Don Starr is leaving the last of the week on a trip around the United States as a mechanic in the Furman Capital Air Service ship from Grand Rapids.

Warner Neal is very ill at his home with appendicitis.

Dr. A. B. Wickham has returned from a hunting trip up in Canada north of Lake Superior. He obtained a big moose. His chauffeur, Lee Prunty, who accompanied him, landed a deer weighing something like 250 pounds.

Charles Delph was in New York on business during the last part of last week.

C. W. Rogers writes that he is enjoying the beautiful Florida weather during his stay down there.

10 YEARS AGO

Mrs. G. E. Richardson and two children are spending the week with her sister in Chicago.

Mrs. W. A. Ely and son arrived in Northville the first of the week from Riverdale, California. They are spending the remainder of the week with Detroit friends.

Harry Shafer, who went to Chicago some weeks ago, returned home the first of the week.

One of the most active students in campus affairs at Alma college is a Northville boy, Cleon Dey, a freshman at the college. He was selected to be assistant yellmaster, and in all probability will be the successful candidate for the place next year, although the position usually is held for an upper classman. Cleon is also a member of the band.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hinkley motored to Belleville Sunday, where they were joined by a party of friends and drove to Toledo. They returned home Tuesday morning.

25 YEARS AGO

Ray Daggett has accepted a position with the Northville Milling Co. as delivery man. He and his family will reside here as soon as they can find a house.

C. A. Sessions and Glenn Richardson, who have been hunting at McKinley with four others, returned home Saturday. Glenn was the only one so far out of the six to kill a deer.

Tim Tibbitts met with what might have been a serious, if not fatal, accident Saturday. He went in the barn to feed the horses and in passing in the stall, caught his toe and fell headlong on his face. He had a pan of oats in his hand and that landed in the manger frightening the horse. The animal made a huge and came back planting both hind feet on Mr. Tibbitts' lips and one fore foot on his hand. He finally succeeded in extricating himself and when he got out almost collapsed. He is pretty badly bruised, but thankful it was no worse.

Joe Montgomery is building a new concrete basement for his barn. It is the only one of its kind in this village.

Mrs. W. H. Cattermole and little daughter, Ruth, visited relatives in Detroit from Thursday until Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dolph spent Thanksgiving day with the latter's sister, Mrs. Mercy Evans, at Holly.

30 YEARS AGO

Scherer & Cattermole's new bowling alley is being put in this week. Herbert Pickell and Miss Hoffman of Durand spent Thanksgiving at the home of the former's parents.

Mrs. Mina Beal, who had been visiting at the home of her father, George Clark, for a few days, returned to Detroit Wednesday. She leaves soon for her new home in Arizona.

Mrs. S. J. Lawrence is spending a few days with friends in Wyandotte and Adrian.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry German of Caledon spent Wednesday evening with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Yerkes, Mrs. W. H. Yerkes and Mrs. Robert Yerkes, Sr., of Northville, were entertained at D. P. Yerkes' Thanksgiving.

THIS WEEK

By R. H. WHITE

Probably there is nothing in modern life today that is more topical than the many assaults that are made on freedom in the name of morality since morality does not exist without freedom. It is the inevitable thing that morality perishes with liberty and the unthinking man would strangle it for his own sake.

The zealous man if he is sincere at all about any moral issue that he might have often puts himself in the ridiculous position of one trying to kill the very thing he is fighting for. Unless any good deed is voluntary it has no moral characteristic and only a free man can be moral.

A machine can be made to behave as man's will and an animal can be trained but such behavior is not moral. There can be no morality unless there is freedom to do right, and it is because a man has the privilege to take the opposite course that we say he did right of his own initiative.

Thus, if anyone is free to do right day of January, A. D. 1921, in Liber 1077 of Mortgages, on page 180, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of Two Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-eight and 33/100 ($2,268.33) Dollars.

No suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Thursday, the 15th day of February, A. they are also free to do wrong. This is what is meant by moral responsibility and which is recognized as intellectual responsibility.

For unless a man acts or is allowed to do so according to his best dictates he is not a moral being. Thus he who acts according to his best judgment is free. As Aristotle has so aptly said: the good man, the wise man, and the free man are the same.

Northville's curstone coaches are waiting for Pierre Kanyon to explain Southern California's defeat on the gridiron last week.

"GET ON AND RIDE"

This story concerns a local physician and it's good so read it all the way through.

This doctor hides a kindly heart behind a derby, a cigar, a mustache, and a sometimes gruff exterior. In fact he is none other than our own "Doc" Snow, better known perhaps as Mr. Mayor.

It seems that the worthy doctor was watching a ball game in Ann Arbor last summer and standing beside him were two men who wanted to bet ten dollars on the game and could only muster up seven iron men between them.

"Would you care to take the other three dollars, stranger?" they addressed His Honor, the Mayor, "and get back six dollars?"

"Oh," said Doc, "I'll go along with you if you boys are willing to put up seven bucks."

So they did and he did and they won!

They went somewhere to celebrate—all three of them—and one of the strangers asked Doc what his business was.

"I'm a physician," said Our Hero, and now the plot begins to thicken according to the best story-telling tradition.

"Could you," said Doc, question "Could you deliver a baby for ten dollars?" Just in the way of friendly conversation, of course.

"Why," declared the Doc, fingering his winches in his pocket, "for ten dollars I can deliver the baby and even throw in a nurse for a couple of days. Ha-ha-ha-ha!"

"Ha, ha," said one man, "Ha-ha-ha," said the other. About a week ago His Honor received a phone call from an excited individual.

"I'm Jones, remember me?" "Don't know as I do," replied Doc, "where did I meet you?"

"Don't you remember me, I was in on part of that bet at Ann Arbor last summer. My wife is going to have a baby. I gotta have a doctor quick. Can you come?"

"I'll be right over. Where do you live?"

The other side of Ann Arbor on the Blank road. Come a-runnin'—and bring your nurse!"

Well, Doc did and the baby was a seven pound boy, mother and son doing nicely. The husband came into the room where Doc was putting on his overcoat and handed him a ten dollar bill.

"Uh," said Doc, and then "Agh-h-h," thinking of that 40 rule drive.

"What's the matter," said the husband, "isn't that all right?"

"It's all right for a down payment," bellowed Doc.

"Well," said the guy, "you told me you could deliver a baby for ten dollars and there it is. Say," he said suspiciously, "You're going to leave the nurse here for a couple of days aren't you?"

"Dam *x* (*&!* x*!*) $!" You're so dumb I don't even want to talk to you. You don't suppose I meant that, do you? "Gah-h!"

L'Envoi

Three men were sitting around a table in the Recreation restaurant—Dr. Snow, Dr. Holcomb, and Dr. Cavell, veterinary.

"Well," said Dr. Cavell, "I was over to Ann Arbor today and a physician wanted to know if I knew a blanky-blank so and so doctor in Northville. He's coming over, this medic says, in to our territory and delivering a baby for a price of ten dollars. Just thought you might like to know, Holcomb. Wonder who it is?"

"I'll make that guy pay," said his eminence, "I'll make him pay!"

Narrowing Friendships

"Mrs. — would like to join our club and we would enjoy having her," said a Northville woman the other day, "but," she added, "of course our number is full now."

So fine Mrs. —, who really would have been a valuable addition to any group, remains outside because this club is already established in its number and could not possibly change. Perhaps she looks across the road a bit wistfully when the crowd intimates gather—just the "old crowd"—for a good time together.

Fortunately, Mrs. — is not dependent upon outside amusements. She has resources within and wide interests without, so she goes about them contentedly after a fleeting sigh as she glances across the way. Of course, every woman loves to be "in it."

But there's many a reserved, rather shy new-comer in our village who waits in vain for some sign of interest, manifested by townspeople. Back home she was a figure in her community, but here "the number" is made up—there's no need for another. If it is a bridge club there must be just an even number, and if it is just another get-together club—it is more pleasant to back in the Sunshine of the same folks who have "always been together" and an outsider is—well, just an outsider.

More aggressive folks have no trouble. They just "bust in" some way and go on their way cheerfully as if they were among the "native sons." It is the backward woman who asks rather hesitatingly, "Is Northville a cold place?" No one seems to care whether we live here or not. Not even our neighbors have called.

"No more Northville" than many another old town, we always tell them. "Just wait, they'll find you."

Intimate Friends

Among our clippings we run across these suggestions:

Intimate friendships should not become so exclusive as to preclude other friendships.

To intimate friends should not be confided family secrets nor such confidences as one will regret in case the friendship becomes in time less intimate, as it is likely to do.

Intimate friends should not demand too much of another's time.

Too great familiarity with a new acquaintance is unwise and unpolite. Too hasty friendship is apt to be insecure.

One should never call a friend by his first name unless requested to do so.

Intimate friendships are delicate relationships and must be guarded with care to preserve their sweetness. One should not presume upon the security of such friendships to give vent to one's worst moods; nor should one treat an intimate friend with less courtesy because his friendship is assured, nor use him as a means to grind axes.

Intimate friendships should not become so close as to interfere with the relationships with those of one's family, to whom first place is due.

after a while." (Inwardly we hope it is true.)

Not only clubs but sometimes even churches forget the "stranger in our midst," and leave him standing on the outskirts as if the big object of a church were to sing hymns and carry on things in the old-time way which a new-comer might upset.

A number of families have moved on to other towns for lack of a warmer welcome and Northville has been the loser.

Perhaps around the corner there lives a stranger whose friendship might become a rich jewel in your life. Why lose it?

Black Walnut Cake

(Mrs. Oren Horsfall)

1 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 cups Gold Medal flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 cup thick sour milk, 1/2 cup fine ground walnut meat.

Cream the shortening and add the sugar gradually. Add the eggs (which have been beaten) and the vanilla. Add the sour milk alternately with the flour, baking powder, soda and salt, which have been sifted together. Then add the fine chopped black walnut meats and mix thoroughly. Turn in two greased layer pans and bake in moderate oven, 350°, for 20 minutes. White frosting should be used on this cake.

Giving It the Double-cross

"I have decided," remarked Senator Sorghum, "to train my memory."

With the other representatives of the Plymouth district, Harold White and Orlov Owen met with the group from Ann Arbor and discussed the advisability of the Plymouth district troops leaving the Detroit or mail.

There is a plug in each room for the ear phones and anyone desiring to listen has merely to plug in. This is only the first installation and the need for more ear phones is delaying many more patients from enjoying the programs. If anyone has any extra sets of earphones around the house get in touch with Roy Crowe.

"One of the best sermons I ever heard," says Supervisor Chas. Hamilton in speaking of Will Rogers radio talk on Sunday evening "in which he compared national affairs to a football game. Mr. Hamilton and a group of Non people were here for the Methodist chicken pie supper Tuesday evening."

Mrs. Leona Borchert, of Farmington, visited Miss Evelyn Grennan at the Osgood private school for girls late in October and had the pleasure of seeing Miss Grennan on the cap and gown at the beginning of her senior year. While, in the East Mrs. Borchert visited a brother in Philadelphia, whom she had not seen for 27 years.

Word is received by Mrs. Gary Christensen from her daughter, Mrs. Waldo Johnson, that she is en route home after a most interesting motor tour through the South in company with Mrs. Geo. Sammons and Mrs. Robert Lee, the latter from Plymouth. Taking turns at the wheel these ladies made side trips up into the mountains with ultimate glimpses into the lives of the southern mountaineers. Their most southern points reached were in Georgia and throughout the trip the weather has been beautiful until they reached Ohio on their return trip. During Mrs. Johnson's absence Mr. and Mrs. Cass Golden and family of South Wing street have been staying at the Christensen home.

SCOUTS IMPROVE THEIR CLUB HOUSE

The local Boy Scouts have been improving their club house the past few weeks. They have put a partial basement under the house and installed a new furnace from the independent Plumber and Foundry company. The ceiling has been, enclosed and reinforced against the cold water pipe will give the boys a warm place to spend the evening.

It is quite a complete recreation center having a radio, a book case full of books, and a variety of games including checkers and chess.

The money for the improvements was raised partially by the Scouts, through revenue from plays, and through a gift of fifty dollars, and a loan of another fifty, for the Lloyd H. Green pool of the A. A. A. Legion, who are now sponsoring the local Scout troop.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

Editor of Record:

Our pleasant experiences during the last few days have revealed to us more clearly the meaning of friendship. In our preparation to leave your good town for another field, hosts of friends have endeavored to make it pleasant for us, which courtesy we will not forget.

We wish to use the columns of our generous editor to say to every one of you that every word and act of kindness is much appreciated.

Monday evening we were "casually" invited to drop over to the Baptist church for a few minutes, and upon opening the door beheld a house full of friends. A joyful evening, was spent in song and entertainment, concluding with delicious refreshments. Many "good wishes" were heard from every corner.

Tuesday evening all the families and employees of the fish hatchery worked a surprise on us and came in for the evening to bid us farewell. Pleasant conversations ensued, mostly about fish and fish culture, and all appeared to have a delightful time. At both parties, a nice present was presented to us, as a token of their best wishes.

We will leave Northville with regret because it means leaving friends. Yet with the kindest and most pleasant memories of "you all" as we are afforded any vacation at the Louisville, Ky. Fishery station, to which we are assigned, we hope to spend some of them in or near Northville, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Q. Carman, and children

The Baptist Mission Band met at the church last Thursday for a dinner and afternoon business meeting.
Mrs. Harold Hadley and Mrs. J. O. Munro went to Pontiac Thursday to attend the leader's training class for the Home Economics course. They will give the lesson to the Novis group at the school house next Wednesday.
The Novis fire department responded to a call last Thursday at the home of Edward McCracken on Drake road, Farmington township.

The house caught fire from overheated furnace, flames and was badly damaged.
The "Northville Workers' Club" meeting was postponed because of conflicting dates until Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 22. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Glenn C. Salow. The program will be devoted to a demonstration and study from the Home Economics project work.
The auction sale at the I. O. O. F. hall last Friday evening, given jointly by the Rebekah and Odd Fellows, was an enjoyable affair, and was a success financially as well as socially. A great variety of goods were on sale which included baked goods, canned fruit, vegetables, fruit, grain, aprons, fancy work and a quilt which sold for $5.35. The auctioneer, Harry Robinson, created a lot of fun for the audience with his jokes and jovial manner. A great deal of the success of the sale was due to his super ability as an auctioneer and the lodges thanked him for his work. The total proceeds of the evening including lunch was about $68.00.
Novi School News
The Novi School Herald will be on sale again next week. Accounts of Thanksgiving activities will make up a large part of this issue. A full page announcement of the Thanksgiving assembly program will be included.
A short assembly program was given last Friday in recognition of Armistice Day and American Education week. The students who took part in the exercises were: Edwin Hill, Laura Tollette, Madeline Bramer, June Latte, Eleanor Hill, Billy Garrett, James Munro, Edith Mockridge, and Thelma Kent.
The ninth grade has begun a study of some declamations. Each student will learn a declamation and give it in a contest which will be held sometime in January.
The seventh and eighth grades have been organized into four groups for the purpose of arranging opening exercises. These groups compete with each other in providing interesting stunts.
The primary grades have started to work on a project to study Pilgrim life. A model of the Plymouth settlement is being made and stories of Pilgrim life dramatized.

STOP WAR PROFITS AND WAR WILL STOP SAYS REV. MR. MINER

"Armistice Day might better be a day of repentance for failure of war rather than a day of rejoicing," said Rev. F. N. Miner in a stirring patriotic address Sunday morning.
"Contrary to the general appeal to 'protect our nation,' time has proved that the World war was waged for the profit capitalists. Peace will come only when we turn our energies from selfish profiteering and exploiting our fellow citizens to the building up of our boys and girls, our homes and the prosperity of the nation. Take the profit out of war and war will cease," said the local pastor.

THE OTHER DAY

By Miss "19"

Arline Richardson came home from Michigan State College over the week-end. She spent Saturday in Detroit shopping. Eleanor Grosvenor and "Dooly" Hyde attended the American Legion dance at Meadowbrook Inn Saturday night.
The "Drovers" did very well in rendering their selections and adding to the fine quality of the Scout Benefit Thursday evening.
Coach Daugherty of Abdon and "Tiny" Howard, a member of Abdon's football team, were in Northville for the Northville-Farmington game Friday.
Ira Mackay has a pretty new hat.
Florence Balko disagrees with Edna Martens. Edna thinks Thursday's snowstorm was great while Florence thinks—well, ask her.
Ward Vanatta writes Northville friends that he feels like a hermit as he has been home only once since college started at Michigan State.
We hear that Isidore Keeney is enjoying her college work immensely up at State—and then every Sunday (or most every Sunday) Duane Fry finds some excuse to go up to Lansing.
Joy Thompson is attending college in Ypsilanti. She must be a junior now.
Eleanor Westphal has been employed at the Maybury sanatorium for the past three months.
Chuck Melzinger was in Northville Tuesday.
Warner Neal attended the meetings of the Michigan Press Club in Ann Arbor from Wednesday until Saturday.
Arnold Robinson believes he should take a job as doctender at the post office.
Inga Stemann writes that she expects to come home in time for Thanksgiving although she is having a wonderful time up in Flint.
Danie Rumor has it that the only time Miriam Richards ever writes to her sister, Anna, and friends is when she gets a pay check or some nodmother gives her the necessary three cents. Anyway, she is finding her work at the hospital in Kalamazoo hard but interesting.
Jack Harper makes his smiling face known around Northville's main street only once in a while—what can be keeping him away?
Pat Sutton is still holding down his job at MacLean's service station on South Rogers street.
Ivan Ely is showing coal for his father.
Edith Horton was in town Tuesday.
Edith Cousins played the pipe organ in the Methodist church Sunday.
Ruth Broad was in Northville Friday to attend the Northville-Farmington game.
Jack Blackburn will soon have his name in the Monroe "Who's Who". He is a regular Sunday visitor down there for various good reasons.
We hope this final and greatest game of the whole season which is to be played Friday at Plymouth will be a greater victory for Coach Watts and his team than any this year. The best luck and faith of all of Northville's citizens go with each member and the coach.
Back again next week.

THE GOOD FELLOW OLD NEWSBOYS

(By Richard James, Maybury San.)
The Good Fellow Old News Boys. Every Christmas time appear. To make the kiddies joyful. This season of the year.
These Good Fellow News Boys. Come from every walk of life. Judges, Mayors and Governors. They know the human strife.
There's Policeman and Fireman. And many more good men. And don't forget they'll do the same. When Christmas comes again.
They care not for greed or color. Catholic, Gentile or Jew. They're only out to do some good. And bring happiness to you.
They stop not for winter weather. They go out in the cold. And sell their golden papers. As they did up days of old.
Let's help the Good Old News Boys. To do their human task. In helping needy children. It's not to much they ask.
Just a scooter car for Wilke. And an Air gun for little Jim. A talking doll for Mary. And a toy bull-dog for Min.
Let's make the children happy. This coming Christmas night. Make them believe in Santa Claus. And fill them with delight.
An overcoat for Tommy. A pair of shoes for Gwen. A sweater-coat for Polly. And a stocking cap for Ben.
Let's help the Good Old News Boys. In this grand and noble cause. The children's hearts are calling. Let's be their Santa Claus.
God bless the Good Old News Boys. In this grand and human act. They made many children happy. And made Santa Claus a fact.

N. H. S. GRIDDERS DEFEAT FARMINGTON
Baldwin intercepted a pass, fumbled when tackled, and Porter recovered. Deal, on a neat reverse play, made about ten yards, but then fumbled. Farmington recovered and had the choice of having Northville penalized fifteen yards for holding or taking the ball where she had recovered. The latter plan was chosen. Spaller lost ten yards. Spaller threw an incomplete pass. Northville was penalized for being off-side. Spaller gained eight yards through the line. Then five through the line. Bender intercepted a pass intended for Spies and ran ten yards toward the opponents' goal. Marburger made two yards at end. Double pass behind the line. Marburger passed ball to Baldwin. Baldwin plunged the line for five yards, but Northville was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Baldwin then kicked from the forty yard line into the end zone. The ball was brought out to the twenty yard line. Lee was paled behind the line, losing one yard. McGee tackled Spaller for a yard loss. Bender intercepted a pass. Deal lost a yard attempting to go through line. Reechko fumbled while hitting line. Spaller made a quick kick which caught Northville flat-footed. Marburger had to go back to the fifteen yard line, from where he advanced ten yards. Bender hit line for no gain. Bender went through line for two yards. Marburger kicked to the forty yard line.

IDEAS

Gleaned by a Northville Idealist
"In every quarter the present state of affairs is being challenged."
The old world must and will come to an end. No effort can shore it up much longer. If there be any who feel inclined to maintain it, let them beware lest it fall upon them and overwhelm them and their households in the ruins. — Lloyd George.
The most serious disadvantage under which the very rich labor is in the bringing up of their children. It is well-nigh impossible for a very rich man to defend his children from habits of self-indulgence, laziness, and selfishness. — President Eliot of Harvard.
"Luxuries tie up capital" which might otherwise be used in the production of the necessities of life.
"Since the producing power of mankind is limited, every superfluous and useless article that they buy, every extravagance that they consume, prevents the production of the necessities of life for those who are at present in need of them." — Hartley Withers, a leading English economist.
What is there to bring peace? We must find a philosophy of life for persons and nations which is internally constructive, externally unifying, with an objective dominantly human, and with a method characterized by humility. — The Idealist.
A review of the various world religions will reveal a distinct advance at their inception over the prevailing religious practices of the time. — The Idealist.
A mechanistic civilization wedded to an economic acquisitiveness has led the Western world into a lunatic situation. — Basil Mathews.
The people who want to cut down on education do not really know what problems we are facing in this country. — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.
Youth seeks to reconstruct society, age seeks quick recovery because it cannot wait for reconstruction. The world is trying to meet the requirement of both groups. — Owen D. Young.
We should teach the art of life. If we can't teach that, we should keep still and stop chattering about other matters. — John Erasmie.
Democracy is doomed unless men and women who have had the great privilege of higher education offer themselves to the public weal, with keenly trained intelligence, willing at personal sacrifice to do their full part toward the preservation of a real sacrifice to do their full part toward the preservation of a real government by the people. — President McConaughy of Wesleyan University.
Advertising is a less expensive method of salesmanship. Use it!

The Orange and Black :

Edited by the Northville High School Journalism Class

PLYMOUTH IS LAST RIVAL GAME THERE

Starts At 3:30; All Of Northville Urged To Attend

The last gridiron combat of the year takes place at Plymouth this afternoon (Friday, Nov. 17) at 3:30 o'clock. A large crowd is, as usual, expected.

Few football games arouse the interest of high school fans so much as does this annual battle between Northville and Plymouth. Both schools and towns are greatly excited about the game and intensely concerned with its outcome. Never before or after do the students and residents in their opposing communities support their favorite eleven as they do on this memorable day.

The scores of the past games are:

Year	Northville	Plymouth
1922	34	0
1923	0	20
1924	0	35
1925	10	19
1926	13	0
1927	21	0
1928	18	0
1929	0	7
1930	0	7
1931	9	7
1932	6	7

There is a trophy in the form of a painted football on a standard for which the two teams fight. This year both the Orange and Black and the Blue and White warriors are determined to take it home with them. Which will be successful?

GRADE NOTES

Miss Richard's kindergarten class started having its milk today. This has been made possible by individuals who have donated milk for this cause. When asked if they enjoyed their milk they unanimously shouted in the affirmative. The new people in the kindergarten are William Bull and Evelyn Cranston.

Miss Leonard's first grade made an all-class poster after its visit to the farm. It also started to climb the ladder lead in health inspection. Each pupil is given a paper doll representing himself, which he places on the ladder according to his rating for the day. The first snow morning the class went on a snow picnic. They took bread and cookies to the birds in the park.

Miss Jarvis' first grade is studying "Little Black Sam." The pupils are also making posters and learning how to act it out. Each day pictures are made. The one whose picture is best has the honor of placing it on the large poster. Alice Harper is back in school after an illness.

Miss Reng's second and third grades are studying about the first Thanksgiving. A special study is being made of the Indians. The pupils are making Indian wigwags and bringing from home the things they have concerning Indians. They are reading interesting stories about Indian chiefs and learning an Indian song.

Mrs. Babbin's fourth grade is making winter posters and also booklets for better English. The following pupils in Miss Reincke's fifth grade have had perfect records in spelling so far this year: Marilyn Cavell, Mary Ellen Burgess, Bernice Lanning, Ruth Mary Mullis, Betty Barry, John Hotchkiss, and Lloyd Clark. The students are reading the poem "Hiawatha" and cutting silhouettes regarding the literature.

Mrs. Hawkins' room is observing book week by having people impersonate various characters in favorite books. They made book plates with which to mark the books of their individual collections.

It is believed that many students of the grade school will attend the Northville-Plymouth game. Although they understand little about the game itself, they realize one thing: that is the main thing to do at the game is to yell for Northville.

'ROUND THE SCHOOL

The Game of the Year

Plymouth thinks Northville is a dead-beat, a pushover, a cinch, and a few other things not worth mentioning. They're going to take us like we took Farmington—or worse. According to them, we have no school spirit, no team. The back-house and the good old do-or-die are gone. In fact, we're licked already. That's what they think. But Northville has different ideas. Shall we sit down and let Plymouth walk all over us? Do we have to let them show us up with their cheering? Do we have to stay home and hope while they turn out and support their team?

Not on your life! As long as the boys can move, they'll fight. As long as Northville can cheer, shall cheer. And as long as we can walk, we'll go to that game. Come on, N. H. S. Let's give Plymouth something to remember!

You seniors who were going to "break the camera" will have to wait until next week. Too bad to disappoint you like that, wasn't it?

Was the definition given to "farious" taken from some foreign dictionary? First time we ever knew that it meant "nothing short of a miracle."

It certainly is queer how people contract colds so quickly. Maybe if Eddie keeps asking them to cry, they'll catch influenza.

Yes, we admit that we've been day-dreaming a lot lately. But the cause isn't a "be" as many of you have kindly suggested.

How thrilling it must be to have the honor of being the best reader in the American Literature class.

DO YOU BELONG TO THE P. T. A.?

(By Mildred Zimmerman)

How many times have we all said, "How time flies and how things change." Perhaps in no one place is this more noticeable than in the average American home. Let us see what some of these changes have been. First we will take the three essentials for all children—shelter, food and clothing.

It is not difficult for us to see the change in shelter. The homes which have developed from one or two room log cabins up to the modern homes with so many conveniences, to say nothing of our modern apartments. What would our poor ancestors say if they could see ten to thirty families living under the same roof?

Our food has not only changed in ways of serving, but also in preparation. It has not been long ago that most of the food consumed was prepared in the home. But now what would our bakers and grocers do if we began to take our own bread and pastries and can all our fruits and vegetables?

When our country was new, the clothing was not only made in the home, but think of the hours spent in getting the material ready for making into clothes—combing and carding, spinning and weaving. No Parisian creations were even dreamed of then.

Now for the culture side. In the days of our forefathers, the home was the center of all activities. Here a great deal of the learning was obtained. Here the religious life was developed and here was the center of recreation. This was true, of course, to the fact that there was a scarcity of teachers. Houses were far apart, and people had little leisure. In our days of progress the schools that have been built are giving the children training that was never thought of fifty years ago. Along with this, the recreation has been gradually taken from the home, and children are seeking their entertainments elsewhere. Hence the home has been lifted of some of its heavy burdens.

The school has accepted a big challenge in taking these activities from the home. However, it is impossible for it to be entirely separate from the home because each has its part in molding lives for future generations. There are various ways of linking the two together, and in our locality the Parent-Teachers' association is the link. This organization was developed in order to bring the different homes closer to the schools. Is your home linked? Are you a member of the P. T. A.?

If not, why not?

Guessed Wrong

"I turned the way I signaled," indignantly said the lady, after the crash.

"I know it," sadly said the man, "that's what fooled me."

ROBERT ANGOVE GETS ANSWER FROM WARDEN

Last week Robert Angove wrote to Warden Lawes of the Sing Sing Prison. This is the reply he received:

"My Dear Mr. Angove, Thank you for your kind letter of comment on my book, 'Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing.' I am glad to know you have enjoyed reading it.

It is encouraging to note a greater interest on the part of thinking people in a more rational approach to the problems of prison and prisoners. Sincerely yours, Lewis E. Lawes.

N. H. S. WILL WIN FROM PLYMOUTH

(By Frances Alexander)

For many years the rivalry between Plymouth and Northville has been keen. Perhaps this is well, perhaps not; but one thing is certain—it has spurred the participants in athletics on to their greatest efforts.

On the day of the Plymouth game everyone in the school as well as the townspeople are keyed up to the highest pitch of excitement. The boys on the team, of course, feel that upon their shoulders rests the honor of the school and therefore they will put forth every effort within their power to win the game. The entire town is the team's supporter and is jealously on hand to cheer its heroes on to victory.

Heretofore, Northville has lost quite a few games to Plymouth, but now our minds are made up. Everyone in town must turn out to the game. Today is the day! Three cheers for Northville High!

QUARTET SINGS OVER W. M. B. C. SATURDAY

The quartet of which the school's music teacher is a member sang over station WMBG last Saturday night. The singers, Albert Smith, Carl Bryan, Leslie Lee, and Pierre Kenyon, were accompanied by Miss Barbara Bake of Plymouth.

DID YOU NOTICE

The rivalry in the air? Today's game with Plymouth is the "talk of the town."

How well a certain sophomore can imitate Mae West?

M. C.'s glamorous fingernails. We are debating as to whether cardinal nail-tint is R. A.'s favorite shade or someone else's.

How the students of N. H. S. thirst for knowledge? We hope it won't be necessary to enlarge the library door just because of that magazine rack.

Ruth Riordan's presence at the Farmington game?

The number of promising singers in the senior class? Isn't it strange that one mere song (Lucy Lee) could bless so many with voices.

All the hi-top boots at the game Friday?

How very often M. E. E.'s eyes saunter behind her? A change in seating arrangement may prevent M. E. from becoming a victim of eye strain.

F. Z.'s face after the game Friday? Wonder why it was so red?

How cleverly Mr. Watts made his escape at the pep meeting last Friday? It is certain the coach didn't reprove Captain Schrader for his "modesty."

The number of ambitious candidates competing for basketball manager? May the best man win!

A certain person waving a silk stocking around during the noon hour and how flustered the owner looked?

The depressed looks on the faces of a great many sophomores? And all because of another Latin test.

That all a librarian needs to do is show her client's magazine with an illustration of football and she has him in her power?

That Dorothy Richardson wears glasses? They are very becoming, Dorothy.

How everyone rushed for their cars between halves of the game Friday? Do you suppose it could have been the weather?

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Question: What chance do you think Northville has against Plymouth in football this year?

Coach Watts: If the team spirit has anything to do with it, then we'll win.

Nelson Schrader, captain: Plymouth is good, but, in my opinion,

SENIOR WHO'S WHO

Ruth Luella Angell was born in Redford, July 5, 1915. In the spring of '15, the Angell family moved to a farm three miles west of Northville, Ruth attending a rural school. Then, in the fall of 1925, they all came to Northville, and she, at the ripe age of eleven, entered into the fifth grade of good old N. H. S. Ruth was elected secretary of her class in 1931, and her classmates were so pleased about the way she handled the position that they elected her without hesitation to be secretary of the class of '34.

Ruth's hobby is embroidery work. She is completing a commercial course in the high school, but is yet uncertain as to what she will take up when she steps out into the wide, wide world. Good luck, Ruth.

COMMERCIAL NOTES

The Accuracy Graphs with their red and blue dots are proving to be of interest to all typists. Next week they will tell a more complete story. Ernestine Grace has the highest record with twenty-six words, and Helen Carman and Anthony Lumetta each have twenty-one words.

The office practice class had an interesting program Tuesday when it presented a one act play, entitled, "Hooks and Crooks." Mary Harper, Eunore Booth, Hilda Garbow, and Eleanor Grosvenor took the parts, while Ethel Hartner acted as producer and stage manager.

Alice Masters has an average of one hundred per cent over a month's work in commercial arithmetic. Harold Booth and Charles Ash each have ninety-nine.

NORTHVILLE BOYS PICKED ON TEAM TO PLAY RIVER ROUGE

An All-Star football team composed of picked members of the Detroit Suburban League will meet the undefeated River Rouge team Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the Detroit House of Correction athletic field in an exhibition game to be played for inmates of the institution.

Four members of the Northville team will play on the All-Star team which will be coached by the Melville coach, Mr. Newton. The four are: Capt. Nelson Schrader, Jr., right tackle; Paul Baldwin, fullback; Donald Bray, center; and Irving Marburger, quarterback.

The game was arranged for the inmates by the River Rouge chief of police. River Rouge has not lost a game for three years and the All-Star aggregation will attempt to break this record.

The public will not be admitted to the game, officials say.

ROY KENNER WRECKS CAR TO SAVE KIDDIES

Choosing to risk his own life rather than to hit some little children who were coasting down Spring Drive, Roy Kenner, Grace Avenue, crashed into a telephone pole near the Raymond Watts home, while driving west on the Fishery road Thursday morning. The force of the impact was so strong that the pole was broken and the car considerably damaged.

"Well, anyway, the kiddies are safe," says Kenner, who can thank his lucky stars that he escaped with his life. Kenner is a grinner in the Ford Motor Co.

Moral: Parents should train their children about coasting in the streets. This is only one of a number of near-accidents which might have been fatal.

FARMINGTON BOY TAKES OWN LIFE AT CHURCH SUPPER

G. Earl Grime, 18 years old, son of a former Detroit architect living in Farmington, died Saturday afternoon from the effects of poison he took Friday night at a church entertainment near Pontiac after his mother had scolded him.

Grime dropped a lump of poison into a cup of coffee in the presence of several friends, who thought he had removed sugar from his pocket. He did not reveal his act until he was on his way home in an automobile driven by Edwin Aldrich, 19 year old son of a Farmington nurseryman.

Grime gave Aldrich four notes, one of which was addressed to his mother, two to Farmington girls and the fourth to Aldrich himself. A short time later the boy remarked: "Well, I did it."

Friday afternoon Grime gave Aldrich a cigar box filled with addressed Christmas cards and told the friend his mother had "reprimanded him for taking $5 of a sum he had given her for safe keeping."

Grime obtained $50 from an insurance company last summer for injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Aldrich drove Grime to the office of Dr. Z. R. Aschenbrenner at Farmington, but the youth refused to enter. Aldrich obtained the help of four men, who, earned Grime into the office, where he was treated. Grime resisted all the way.

The boy, a graduate of Farmington high school last year, died in the Redford branch of Receiving Hospital at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Grime, and a brother George. The father, unemployed for two years, is now working at a Farmington winery under construction.

Grime went with the Farmington Community Band, of which he was a member, to a benefit Friday night at the Edgewood M. E. church, six miles east of Pontiac on Auburn road. After the performance supper was served to the band in the church basement.

Christian Science Churches

"Body and Soul" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, Nov. 19.

Among the Bible citations is this passage—Rom. 8:10. "And if Christ be in you, the body is dead because of sin; but the Spirit is life because of righteousness."

Conjunctive passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 339): "The evidence of the existence of Spirit, Soul, is palpable only to spiritual sense; and is not apparent to the material senses, which perceive only that which is the opposite of Spirit."

St. Paul's Lutheran

"Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered." Thus we read in Psalm 32:1.

These are the words of David. When David discussed both sin and the blessedness of forgiveness, he knew whereof he spoke. He had learned from personal experience.

David committed most awful wrongs. Some of the most horrible things in the catalog of crime burdened his conscience.

After he had stolen a man's wife and put her husband out of the way he even refused for a considerable time to repent. During this time he experienced what is meant to suffer the agonies occasioned by a guilty conscience. The fire of guilt burning within his soul caused him to shiver and writhe. He aged rapidly. He had neither rest nor peace. Such was the curse of sin.

Then his pastor, Nathan, spoke to him. David's true broke down. He acknowledged his wrongs. He turned unto the Lord as the Only One in whom he could find a safe hiding place. And, oh, what sweet relief! The Lord forgave his iniquity.

"Blessed," cried David, now freed from the crushing load, "blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven."

Confess your sins, my friend! Turn unto the Lord as your only hiding place. Then each blessedness will also be yours.

THREE SENIORS WILL PLAY LAST GAME AGAINST PLYMOUTH

Loyal followers of the Northville high school football team would rather see the local team beat Plymouth than to inherit a million dollars, and today the high school boys have a chance to do it. The teams meet at the Riverside Park field on Plymouth road, at 3:30.

Plymouth may have been the only team to score on River Rouge, but they will find it a different thing when they try to push the ball over the goal line the Northville team defends. Anyone who saw the game with Farmington last Friday knows that Plymouth is in for a real battle.

So far the percentages of the teams are about even: Northville having won four and lost two, and Plymouth has three wins, a tie, and two defeats the past season.

Three of the team are playing their last game, Baldwin, fullback; Schrader, captain and right tackle; and Ray Westphal end. These three seniors will give a good account of themselves, and that will keep the rest of the team fighting every minute.

Coach Watts says that the team has just started to go and that with the new plays they have been working on all week, they will keep the Plymouth boys busy all the time; they are also going to use a new shift that will have the neighboring enemies thinking they are playing two teams.

Thursday evening the students held a big pep meeting out in the school yard and danced around a large bonfire that was burning the last hopes of Plymouth for a victory over Northville.

Come over to Plymouth this afternoon and see your part; let's go over and yell for Northville.

BIG HELP TO NORTHVILLE

From the new directory it appears that the public and private institutions in and about Northville, exclusive of Ford and the Road Commission, provide for 170 families. Quite a steady backlog for the community.

SPECIAL—Saturday and Sunday Frys will sell their delicious home made ice cream in vanilla, chocolate, or black walnut at 25 cents per quart. Better cream is not available.

FEED IODINE, KEEP WARM

STRESSED BY PHYSICIAN

"Why the sudden demand for sea foods?" asks a local merchant after nearly a dozen Northville women had in turn visited his counter.

These women had attended the health lecture Wednesday, given by Dr. Ida Alexander and had just waked up to the fact that many in their families were of the "iodine starved" types with nervousness, irritability and "blues" as the price. They were glad to learn that eating at least once a week of sea foods would supply this lack and make a great difference in their outlook on life.

Even the humble codfish, the dried kind that has to be soaked, is rich in iodine, said the speaker, which growing children, especially, need. Oysters, any fish, and any food from South Carolina contain iodine, which Michigan residents lack.

At the public library in an illustrated talk on anatomy Dr. Alexander gave very illuminating advice and so interested were her hearers that a discussion was prolonged until the busy doctor was obliged to leave for another appointment.

One important point stressed by Dr. Alexander was that insufficient clothing in winter brings about congestion of important organs and causes suffering. Mothers were urged to teach their daughters to dress warmly in winter.

With scientific information, Dr. Alexander dispelled fears of "birthmarks."

On next Wednesday morning at 9:30, the subject will be "Nutrition" and all women are urged to take advantage of these free lectures by an authority under the direction of the State Department of Health.

A Suggestion

A small boy was much interested in watching a bald-headed man scratch the fringe of hair around the side of his head. The man kept it up so long that the boy finally reached over and said in a loud whisper, "Say, mister, you'll never catch him that way. Why don't you run him out in the open?"
