MAIN HALL TO BE FINISHED FOR THE FAIR

Hope To Have New Structure Up In Two Weeks; Fair Plans Progressing

It is always around this time of each year that Northville people begin to talk "fair," and 1934 is no exception.

Officials of the 1934 Northville Wayne County Fair, which will be held August 22-25, state that it is the eighteenth annual. "Will be true to our policy of improvements each year" and they hope this August to have "better exhibits, more exhibitors, and more and better attractions than ever before."

Chief among this year's improvements is the new main building, construction of which will replace the one destroyed by fire in the spring. The fair association is employing nine men, who, headed by Alex Johnson and George Hicks, expect to have the structure completed within two weeks.

The new building will be 54' feet deep and 33 feet long, slightly smaller than the old one in square feet, but with more actual floor space available. The floor will be cement, an outstanding improvement and the rest of the building frame. It will occupy generally the same spot that the old structure did.

The new building will be, for the most part, painted white. Pilasters will slope from the roof toward the front, and will be crossed by small varied colored pieces. A huge sign will extend up from the middle of the building, bearing the word "exhibits." American flags will fly at either end.

Four free acts to be put on in front of the grand stand, have been scheduled for every day of the fair, with changes daily. A display of fireworks will be a feature on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. Ball games for each day are being scheduled, and an exceptionally large exhibit of live stock and poultry is planned. The women's division, under Mrs. Kitty Hartman, is expected to be one of the best ever gathered together.

Harness races will be run every afternoon on the track and the horse show, in charge of a committee, noted throughout the state, will take place on the ring in the infield. Some saddle races and other saddle-horse attractions will also be run on in front of the grandstand, both in the afternoons and evenings.

Harry B. Clark, who has heretofore had charge of the horse show, and to whose efforts its excellence is largely due, feels that his health will not permit him to act in his usual capacity this year.

The Fair Book, which was finished at The Record office last week, contains full information regarding the 1934 Fair. From now on, not only fair officials, but Northville citizens as a whole, will be talking of the fair.

As soon as the building is completed, the fairgrounds will be a scene of even more activity than at present.

And then finally, on August 22, will come the eighteenth annual fair, and Northville, this entire section of the country, for that matter, will be in for four big days of celebration, merrymaking and good times.

FRED CASTERLINE ADDS BLISTER TO LIST OF INJURIES

There is probably no boy around here who can boast of more accidents than can Freddie Casterline, hulky 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Casterline, active and always "up to something." Freddie has been seen hobbling on crutches at various times with sprains, carrying an arm in a sling after serious blood-poisoning and now here he comes last week home from camp hopping on one foot because of a bad infection.

This time it is a blister, rubbed on an 18-mile hike at the Y. M. C. A. camp Ohiahee, near Holly, when Freddie, staunchly kept to the march with the other fellows. Instead of remaining another period, as he had planned, he came home where good care has checked the infection and he is almost as "good as new."

William Rawle Brown passed away late Saturday evening at his home, Arrowhead Farm, on the Nine Mile Road at the age of 57 years. Although he had been in declining health for the past two years, his sudden death, following a stroke, came as a shock to his many friends.

WHAT $638,600 MEANS TO NORTHLVILLE

"I am going to take some of my money and buy a home in Northville," said a local citizen after hearing that the Depositors State Bank will soon make available $638,600 to former depositors of the local banks.

"I have been going around with 50 or 75 cents in my pocket many a day," says another good friend, "and when I get some of my money, believe me, it's going to be fun to start paying some bills."

Who can tell what the end will be of the splendid distribution? It is the best news in many a month—the best since the new bank was started:

Homes will be built and repaired; debts will be paid; new furniture and clothing will be bought; new automobiles will replace some of the old chariots that are overdue on the way to the junk pile; some folks will get a vacation; a lot of folks will again have a checking and savings account in the bank—all this is part of the sweet picture that will follow the coming of this nearly two-thirds of a million of dollars.

Another big benefit of the distribution will be that much of the money will go back to the bank to start drawing interest and to begin helping rebuild a new Northville. The federal insurance that now protects depositors up to $5,000 means that your money in the bank is now as safe as though it were held by your government. That will mean that the local bank will gradually be able to extend its credit facilities to help business and in general to bring about a greater prosperity for everyone.

With the improvement in conditions generally and with this $638-thousand boost, Northville should be able to look ahead to a very fine future. We have all taken our losses and are ready to start the period that should mean content and prosperity for us all. Those who work, spend judiciously, plan and save can see ahead a future of progress and deep satisfaction.

"Forward with Northville."

"The Best is Yet to Be"

THAT GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

Here it is! Another 90 degrees in the shade day and a column of editorial to write.

Just crossed the street and the heat rose from the pavement and that reminded us of the hottest day's work of our whole life—shocking ice alone all day in heat just like we have been having. And along that line, the kids who have never moved away, lay up in the top of the barn don't know what hard work it is.

(Intermission—A man back from vacation comes in and pays us five dollars. How can anyone come home from vacation with any money? You tell us.)

Got to thinking: "What are the benefits of summer anyway?"

Well, here are a few of them:

The long days, with a chance to have an evening in the garden, out in the car, at the lake, or best of all, on the porch.

Chance for travel without fear of skidding off the road or landing in a snow bank. Do we know that our lakes are the finest in the whole U. S. A. and that northern Michigan right now has people from 15 or 20 states around us?

Sleep at night with just one sheet over you and an extra blanket to grab in the night if a cool wind comes up.

Opportunity to go and visit friends and relatives. What a land of gypsies we are! Rivers of gasoline will be used in our automobiles the next week.

Freedom from the coal bin. A chance to drink lemonade—what finer beverage does man make?

Opportunity to know the great outdoors. What finer spot in the world for an evening's meal and rest than Cass Benton park?

The priceless opportunity to work, to build and to improve the material things around you. There are still nearly three months in which you can start your new house. Finish it in the winter.

The chance to grow and produce. Michigan's farms in the summer time will raise enough to carry us through the hardest winter. Thank God for that.

Yes, "The Good Old Summer Time" is here. We like it, even as we complain about its scorching days. We are sorry to see its days go so fast. And we know of no finer place to spend these summer days than right here in Michigan.

THREE MEN AT THE BALL GAME

Last Friday afternoon we took our ten-year-old son Philip with us to see the Detroit-New York ball game. It was the first big league contest he had ever seen, and remembering our own boyhood fairly well, we know that the impressions he received will stick for many years. We sat in the upper deck, and could look down on the playing field and the people below us as though from an airplane. A pretty sight it was—players spread out on the green grass and out in the outer fields and a mass of humanity all around us, mostly time-looking and wholesome men and women and boys and girls.

In front of us, a few seats away, were three men, apparently from some up-state town and out to "make whoopee" at the big city. They had been drinking before the game started and were in the talkative frame of mind of the near drunk. One or two of them left the game to return with more bottles of beer which they added to their load of inebriety. They did the loud "wise cracking" which goes with too much liquor and yet that often draws a smile from the indulgent onlookers.

As the game progressed, the three began to swear occasionally, not simple "dams and hells" that sprinkle the language of the average man these days, but the kind of profanity that self-respecting men don't like to hear and don't like to have their sons hear. There were a few upturned eyebrows and a few shrugs of the shoulders from the people nearby who were disgusted with the trio's actions but in general none seemed to bother about having the men put out. At Ann Arbor at a university football game these men would have been removed without ceremony. And 20 years ago such language would have aroused instant resentment and these profane men would have been kicked out.

We just wondered why we all had to sit and hear that kind of language. We looked at a man sitting with his wife and wondered why he didn't object and then we looked at little freckle-faced Phil and wondered why we didn't politely ask the brawlers to try to be decent in the presence of small children. We spoke to a friend about this and he said: "It wouldn't do any good." Maybe not, but during our life we have gone to the mat on smaller issues than that and have never been sorry about it. As we took back at the game and our boy's first impressions, we hope that he remembers the fine pitching of Tommy Bridges and "Red Ruffus" Ruffing and Babe Ruth's home run and forgets the men who polluted the air with profanity.

WANDERING THOUGHTS

We say it again: Courtesy helps make a business success.

We still predict that Groesbeck won't be a candidate for governor.

August 22 to 23 are the "big days" Northville's fair gets more new friends every year.

The Record runs no liquor advertising. The "Tanglefoot" advertised in this newspaper is to catch flies.

We'll say this for General Hugh S. Johnson: He told the world what he thought of the bretzels in Germany.

A Detroit man was in the village Saturday trying to get a house to rent. He could find nothing modern. "You certainly have a pretty place, here," he told The Record.

"The finest boys on the trip." That is what one of the guides said of Stanley Taylor and Tom Carrington, who won the Regal trip to A Century of Progress. Thank you, Chicago.

Editor Walter S. Kennedy of the Albion Evening Recorder, usually a man of very good judgment, speaks up to say that he does not think that the present day bars and gardens are worse than the old-time saloon. What do you say?

$50,000,000 in processing taxes while the farmers of those states have received a trifle over $4,000 in crop rentals and benefits. The people of these states have paid $12 in processing taxes for every dollar their farmers have received.

Summed up, these northern states received about eight cents in rental and crop benefits for every dollar they spent in processing taxes while four southern states received in excess of $425 in rental and crop benefits for every dollar paid in processing taxes. Did someone suggest that we sing, "I Wish I Was in Dixie," where the benefits to farmers are fifty times as great?

DESERVES A MONUMENT

(Claremont, Calif., Courier)

Some suitable monument to Finland should be erected at Washington, D. C., one of the only European cities which pays its debts.

Finland about the size of California, nestled between Russia and Sweden, is the jewel of the Baltic.

Everything is clean, sparkling, refreshing. There are no beggars, no dirt, no filth.

Finland is one of the most delightful countries in the world, a beggar on the streets, lungs are pink-cheeked, hair light blue eyes, third cornea of the eye is Semidivine. They are happy and gay, full of the joy of living.

They are athletes. Nurmi and Robertson world records in speed skating.

Finns are genuinely grateful to United States for the financial assistance given during the famine period after the war.

It is one reason they paid in full their principal famine tax, during a time of the deepest misery, keeping living.

Their budget is balanced, a state-owned railroad pays dividends. They are a forward-looking nation.

Go across the border into Russia and you see poverty, squalor, dirt, desolation and discontent.

MICHIGAN'S GREAT

Dick Cook in The Hastings Banner

While speaking on Pontiac recently, Chase S. Oberon claimed the four men whom he opinion are the greatest in Michigan's history. His selections were Lewis Cass, a giant in any time and place; Henry R. Schoolcraft, student and writer on Indian lore; Zachariah N. Chandler, statesman of the Civil war era; James B. Angell, former president of the University of Michigan, who "gave the first and greatest state university to America."

Commenting on this notable array, Muriel DeFee, editor of the Charlotte Republican-Times, claims that "The Michigan man greater than all four is Chase Osborn himself." There are many who will agree with this opinion. As a statesman Chase Osborn compares favorably with the best that Michigan has produced as a scholar of wide intellectual attainment. He is in a class by himself.

There are many specialists who know more about one particular subject than Chase; very few who have a comprehensive understanding of such a wide range of subjects.

Personally we make no pretense of having sufficient knowledge of all the public figures who have helped make Michigan history to classify them accurately as to rank, but we can say without danger of exaggeration that if any of them are of greater caliber than Chase Osborn, or even as great, we have had our share of notable leaders.

The Summer Camp
Is your son or your daughter a Scout or a Camp Fire Girl? If not, you can do nothing better for him or her than to get him into one of these fine organizations. I hope the child will have the splendid privilege of attending a Boys' or Girls' camp this summer.

Some of the advantages of such a camp are the opportunity for rich association with other boys and girls in a free, out-door life, the closeness to nature, the healthful play, the simple diet, the regular living, the sleeping under the stars, the guidance of the directors, the give-and-take which makes for good citizenship and unselfishness and team loyalty, the quiet evenings, the singing of camp songs, the camp fire and story-telling or pageantry about it, the self-reliance and time to think and lead a simple life, the craft work, weaving, carpentry, or other handicrafts; the competition tests, visits to other camps, the obedience to camp rules.

All these advantages are rarely available for any child, except in the most ideal family conditions. They are valuable for the neglected, underprivileged child, for the pampered child who is self-centered; for the over protected child, who has not learned how to associate and adapt himself to his fellows, and also to the normal child.

Diseases From Animals

There are only a few of our native wild animals and birds that become subject to diseases that are communicable to man according to an authority in the Detroit News. Among these we find rabbits and coyotes that can give us trichinosis; wolves and coyotes (like dogs) whose bite may bring on rabies; ground squirrels, tritoma, or bumble pigeons; fish can communicate tapeworms and parrots psittacosis. Science tells us that five of our domestic animals including the cow, horse, ratite, sheep and goats may transmit over 20 serious diseases to mankind.

No Improper Questions

We were told the other day by a Northville official that a question we asked him regarding a news story was "improper." Our answer was and is that from a reporter, "no question is improper." A newspaperman may ask questions which his informant may not desire to answer. All right, we will force no one to answer embarrassing questions. All right, again they do not have to be answered. He may ask any type of question, and they may or they may not be answered. But to be told a question is "improper," that is another matter. Let the person interrogated handle the answering, and let the reporter hear the question. Both, as we're sure to do that which most concern them. And as long as it is the duty of a newspaper to present the facts in the facts, clearly and truthfully there is no such thing as an "improper question."

We are more fortunate today than ever before concerning the workings of the human mind and soul, due to such men as James, Jung, Adler,

Wundt, Fechner, and many others.

We must use all the help we can obtain, but we can maintain a mental poise and balance, if we so will it.

It will not be done all at once or once for all. Religion can also help us by giving us a sense of being girded and guided by a Supreme Wisdom greater than our own.

"I only have two suits besides be a tame man."
