

SCHOOLS HERE WILL OPEN ON SEPTEMBER 17

MAKES PROGRESS

To Run at Least 9 Months;
State Assistance
Is Needed

The Northville schools will open Monday, Sept. 17, and attempt to run nine months; it was decided by the board of education in its regular meeting Monday evening.

Members of the board inferred that the financial condition of the school district was better now than a year ago at this time. Estimated in round figures by Superintendent R. H. Amerman, $5,000 is expected from tuition, $11,000 from taxes being released by the Depositors State Bank are enabling people to pay back as well as present taxes upon recommendation of Village Treasurer John Litsenberger, the commissioners voted Monday night to extend time for payment of taxes with our penalty from August 1, to September 1.

Mr. Litsenberger reports that since the payoff began last week, tax money is "coming in very good." A total of basic taxes are being paid, said one tax roll he sent for request amounting to $300.

The money for time extension was made by Commissioner William Gregory and seconded by Commissioner E. E. Perrin.

The council also passed on the treasurer's report, and discussed enforcement of the peddler's ordinance with regard to the ice cream store in the Pefiman-Alten theatre building.

Tuition rates this year remain the same as last year: In the high school, $65 per year with reduction for cash, and $60 wholesale price to districts having five or more pupils; in the grade school, $45 per year with discount for cash, and whole sale to districts with five or more pupils, $40. Tuition rates for Northville, which draws from 11 counties, are comparatively low.

The per capita cost in Northville, the cost of educating each student for one year, is $55 in the high school and $44 in the grades, making an average per capita cost of $49.55.

It would be impossible to operate all without state aid, Superintendent Amerman stated, explaining that the 15 mill limitation on property tax will not be available for schools to rely on money from some other source. State aid will come from either higher fund or federal fund overflows.

Mr. Amerman gave two reasons for school starting in the middle of September. One, while there is still no possibility of school running for ten months it may, by chance go for nine and one-half months. Thus a nine month year would end school the first week in June, 1935, and a nine and a half month year would close it about June 28.

Two FERA workers are still working in the school, helping considerable amount of work in the grades to do, as well as 10 gallons of paint to spread in the high school Delaying the starting of school until the 15th will enable them to finish, Mr. Amerman stated.

While a date for registration has not yet been set, Superintendent Amerman is awaiting confirmation with Assistant Principal Paul B. Thompson, who will probably be the first week in September. Announcement will be made in The Northville Record.

TAX DEADLINE EXTENDED TO SEPTEMBER 1

Bank Release Enables Many
To Pay, Litsenberger
Finds

Because thousands of dollars being released by the Depositors State Bank are enabling people to pay back as well as present taxes upon recommendation of Village Treasurer John Litsenberger, the commissioners voted Monday night to extend time for payment of taxes with our penalty from August 1, to September 1.

Mr. Litsenberger reports that since the payoff began last week, tax money is "coming in very good." A total of basic taxes are being paid, said one tax roll he sent for request amounting to $300.

Street Commissioner Earl M. Burkhardt, Commissioners Perrin, Gregory and Hicks being present.

High Wind Tears Down Trees, Wires,
And Roofs Here, Taking Great Toll
In Property and Lives Through State

Although the heavy gale that overran Michigan with ferocious rapidity last Thursday, causing thousands of dollars worth of damage throughout the state, subsided somewhat before striking Northville several trees were blown down, causing considerable damage to roofs and electric wires.

For some ten minutes before the storm finally broke, ominous black clouds moved rapidly overhead. Then, without warning, the wind and rain poured down at once.

A huge limb of a gigantic elm outside the Carpenter cedar hill on the Base Line road was torn off, crashing through a part of the roof of the mill, pulling down the electric wires going into Charles Schoultz's garage.

The top of the silo on the farm belonging to Sherrill W. Amberg in the Ten Mile road was blown off, causing considerable trouble and expense. Trees were down here and there on the East Base Line road blocking traffic for an hour.

West Base line road residents were almost completely without electric lights for hours following the storm, and the Detroit Edison company

"Backwoods" Homes

On through mile after mile of winding road the car slipped. Drowsy with the puffy odors and with the monotonous silence of dense woods, on both sides—second growth of pines and poplars that raised their heads bravely from the blackened ruins of their ancestors, the travellers drank in the sleepy solitude and were thankful.

Press day-back in Northville What is it? Ho hum! Here and there an unexpected break in the miles of woodland and a humble little cottage comes to view. A modest little black-and-white cabin with a sagging door standing open and unshuttered.

About the barren, sandy doorways, run swarms of brown-legged children with straggling hair. Little girls wearing queen black dresses made out of old petticoats, little girls too tender in years to be carrying the fat babies they must mind, made their mothers stoop over wash tubs in the back yards and hang muddy washings on lines stretched between straggly pines.

Fleeting glimpses within these open doors reveal the barest furnishings and frayed curtains blowing outward from screenless windows. Some cautions heat marks of efforts to hang-on to higher standards clean, ruffled curtains and window boxes filled with blooming geraniums or petunias make them seem real homes.

School houses, churches and neighbors seem so very far apart that we wonder where they make friendships, (that seem to us, so essential) when they receive uplift for daily living and where the kids learn to read and write.

So used are we to the many modern contacts that we have grown to think of them as necessary to living radios, movies, libraries, society.

Three Recipes from the West

Our sister-in-law in California is one of the best cooks we know. She sends the following recipes:

Three of Five Ice Cream
Pulp of 3 bananas; juice of 3 lemons; juice of 3 oranges; 3 cups sugar; 3 pints of milk. Mix well and freeze. Makes nearly a gallon of unusually good ice cream.

Baked Salmon

Put a can of good red salmon, flaked, into baking dish. Pour over 1/2 cup of heavy sour cream. Bake in moderately hot oven until brown and bubbly on top, about 20 minutes. Serve piping hot. Fine with baked potatoes.

Peach Pie

A lovely peach pie is made by preparing pie in usual way, then pouring over peaches 1 cup of heavy cream, mixed with 1/2 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons flour. Put on a lattice top and bake in the usual way.
