SYMPATHY FOR OTHERS

We have been thinking much of the great sorrow of some friends here in Northville and wondering about the marvelous power of sympathy.

Sympathy, we are told, means to "suffer with." Isn't that so? To the friends in sorrow we say: "I certainly sympathize with you." Those are true words if you have gone through the same experience and can speak from a heart that has been touched by an equal sorrow.

We have to live and learn how to sympathize. Prof. Paul J. Misner of the Michigan State Normal college told an apt story to emphasize this, to the Northville Rotarians the other day.

He was relating the experience of a college professor, who had known much of the sorrows and joys of life. One day in teaching a class in Shakespearean drama, this man, who himself was a real dramatist, with a bushy head of hair, related the story of how King Lear, broken and crushed by the disloyalty of his three daughters, going out in the fury of the storm to the desolate heath. As the teacher went on with the thrilling story and became himself filled with passion, the students sat unmoved, and restless before him. Suddenly and dramatically the professor banged his notebook shut, ran his hands through his hair and cried out, almost in anguish: "My God, you are hopeless." Then without a further word he left the classroom.

The next day the professor came before the same class of young men and women and apologized. "I am sorry I spoke as I did," he said. "But you didn't understand. You couldn't be moved as I was moved, for you are too young. You haven't lived enough."

There you are. We sympathize only as we live. After we have drunk deep of the cup of joy and sorrow we can then meet our friends and say from the heart: "I sympathize with you."

THE HURRYING DAYS

Here it is December and another Christmas and another New Year's Day await our touch. How fast flies life! We sit here and write on the last dying day of a dark November and think and think. How strange is life and how futile it sometimes all seems! What a mountain of mistakes we pile up and how little good we seem to do in all our wild rushing and worrying. And yet, how marvelous it is to live. How good to find some of the eternal values holding us up; how inspiring to find the hands of good friends linked in ours.

When we think of the swift passing of the months and years we go back in memory to our high school days when we put in the summer vacations working in lumber yards and planning mills at Port Huron. Chris Schmidt was the foreman at one of the mills and we shall never forget how he invariably saluted the coming of noon and the blowing of the 12 o'clock whistle. Standing in the doorway he would say to us: "Twelve o'clock and the noon whistle. Time goes by—you can't stop it." How eternally right Chris was. "Time goes by—you can't stop it."

"How noiseless falls the foot of time," says one writer. And this from another: "Time is a sort of river of passing events, and strong is its current; no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this too will be swept away!"

Those with a working philosophy of life will accept these hurrying months and years with calm and poise. None of us reaches the goals he sets and yet, "to travel hopefully is better than to arrive," and with all our failure to achieve, most of us can make a success of some of the things of life. So even though it is now December we need not resent the dying days of 1934 but can look forward with hope and vision to the new year whose shadows are now being thrown across our path.

THERE IS NO MAGIC WAND

A friend from a small Michigan city tells us of the disillusionment that awaits a number of elderly people in the town who really expect soon to be getting $200 a month from the Townsend plan which promises that amount of money each month on condition that it be spent at once.

In spite of all that people can tell them, some of these men and women are really counting on getting that pension.

How tragic this all is! How cruel it is! There is going to be no miracle in getting us out of the dark days in which we have been living. Much as we need social security for old age, it is going to be very slow in coming. Come it will, through the good judgment and vision of our leaders, one way or through any such visionary schemes as the Townsend plan of California.

WHO WILL GIVE THEM WORK?

Fifty fine young men, ranging in age from 21 to 30, have, in response to only one classified ad in a Detroit paper, applied for a position in the advertising department of The Record. Most of them have excellent qualifications for the place. All of them are ambitious, all are willing to work for a modest wage.

Here is one of the problems of this great country. What are we going to do with the great host of well-trained, ambitious and worthy young men who seek to get a "toehold" in life and can't find it?

We are too great and too resourceful a people not to find some answer to this serious situation.

Just to have met some of these fine chaps has been one of the most pleasant, yet embarrassing experiences we ever had. We just wished we had 50 jobs and not one only to hand out.

WANDERING THOUGHTS

Who'll predict a mild winter?

Are you a "Go-Giver," as well as a "Go-Getter"?

When you buy that Christmas present in Northville you help a lot of people.

England has had unemployment insurance for the past 20 years. The United States will soon be having it in force—in fact Wisconsin put such a law into effect last August.

After reading an article by Channing Pollock, the great dramatic critic, on "Smart to be Dirty?" in the Rotarian, we conclude that we are in for a better era of decency and clean thinking in our literature and on the stage. Virtue can never be permanently out-ruled by the cynics and all their Smart Alec crowd.

If must be that even in a man who looks bad there must be some good. Take the case of Samuel Insull. He fled from the United States to Greece to escape prosecution. Yet, just the other day at Chicago a jury acquitted him on the charge of using the mails to defraud. Mr. Insull was a powerful figure in building and operating public utilities. The millions he spent must have done a lot of good to a lot of people. It is easy to damn the Insulls, the Rockefellers and other great leaders of industry. We have wondered how much some of these critics knew about these men, anyway. The millions of dollars that the Rockefellers have given to medical research have saved thousands of lives. We need more charity in our condemnation of people about whom we know nothing but hearsay.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Do you jump on a man when he is down?

NORTHVILLE'S YESTERDAYS

5 YEARS AGO

Milton A. Porter, aged 72 years, for nearly half a century one of Northville's most prominent and active citizens, died Wednesday noon at his home on West Dunlap street.

10 YEARS AGO

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sessions, known as "Pleasant Home Hospital" was the scene of a very pretty wedding when their daughter, Amy, was united in marriage by the Rev. Wm. McManus to Ralph Simpson of Amara.

25 YEARS AGO

Leonard V. Herrick, veteran of the Civil War, and a highly respected citizen, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Alex. Daily.

30 YEARS AGO

Robert Smitherman of Commerce and Avis Greene of this place were quietly married at the home of the bride Wednesday evening. They will reside in Commerce.

John Pinkerton made a fine trip here Friday, returning to Detroit late evening with two and a half million lake trout eggs.

30 YEARS AGO

George Yerkas, Detroit attorney and former Northville boy, will be candidate for one of the Circuit judgeships next spring.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

RADIO BUNK

Some of the most vicious and glib advertising ever given out to the public is coming over the radio these days. The concern, variously manufactured products.

he could say, the broadcaster made a mistake. When an advertiser makes a statement in a newspaper, well, there it is. He can't dodge it. He must live up to it or admit he was trying to get the people's money under false pretenses.

Menjou, the "Best Dressed Man," Will Appear in "The Human Side" At Penniman-Allen, December 7

In Universal's "The Human Side," which will receive its first showing December 7, at the Penniman-Allen theatre this "best dressed man" appears without his coat, a bandana handkerchief on his head and a sash about his waist. But he is dressed correctly, as always, for he is attending a mock picnic before the Irene place with his children.

Golden Glow

"Laugh and the world laughs with you" is an old adage and true, but Chester Morris in his new Universal comedy, "Embarrassing Moments," which will open Dec. 12 at the local theatre, blasts this theory into a million pieces by putting people on the "spot" with his practical jokes.

The Word of the Lord is all divine revelation. All that God at sundry times and in divers manner spake to the children of men, we have in our Bibles. It is all aise and good. Even He threatnings are good: for they are designed to deter us from evil. His work are all done in perfect agreement with His divine plan of redemption for a lost world. Since God is a righteous Lord who has never wronged any of His creatures and a God of inflexible justice in all His judgments. He takes a pleasure in those who are righteous and just. Such a Lord can do nothing else than fit the world with goodness. In the wonderful provisions which God has made for the happiness of man and beast, we see that He is a God of inexhaustible bounty.
