King's Daughters Give Yule
Cheer by Distributing to 26 Families

The King's Daughters contributed their share of Christmas cheer Monday afternoon at the village hall when they packed and delivered 26 baskets of good things to eat to needy families in Northville.

It was a busy scene for several hours, the six women going about their work with a will. The township donated $50 and the Masons gave $10 to the cause.

Police Chief William H. Safford and Street Commissioner Earl Montgomery both volunteered their services for the delivery work. They kept the police car heaped full of Yuletide bounty most of the afternoon.

Every needy family got ample provisions to last several days. The baskets included all the Christmas delicacies imaginable. Most of them had chickens, and all had vegetables, fruit and even candy. Toys were included in cases where baskets went to families with young children.

Those on the committee were Mrs. W. H. Safford, Mrs. L. L. Vredenburg, Mrs. J. Berendt, and Mrs. J. Walker.

This custom of the King's Daughters of distributing baskets to the poor at each Christmas season has been in existence for over 30 years.

The Federal Emergency Relief administration continues to provide staple foodstuffs each Thursday afternoon to more than 100 families. They are distributed from the Richardson block on West Main street.

Many of the people who come each week there for food are farmers. This was especially evident last Thursday. The food on that occasion consisted of a four-pound roast of veal, two containers of canned roast beef and a pound of rice.

DR. T. G. HEGGE TO GIVE PAPER BEFORE
SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY

Dr. T. G. Hegge, director of education at the training school, has gone to Pittsburgh, Pa., where on Saturday he will present a paper before the American Association for the Advancement of Science on the subject of "Noteworthy Advances in the Education of The Mentally Defective Child," as developed under his direction during the last six years at the training school.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, which this year holds its ninety-fifth annual meeting, is composed of some 30 different scientific societies and comprises in its membership the leading scientists from all the universities of North America.

Dr. Hegge speaks before a joint meeting of the section in Psychology presided over by Professor Walter R. Miles of Yale University and the section on Education presided over by Professor Walter F. Dearborn of Harvard University.

DR. JACKLIN INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE IN DETROIT

Dr. J. E. Jacklin, veteran Methodist minister who was pastor of the local M. E. church a number of years ago, was struck by a car in Detroit recently as he was crossing Third Avenue.

The driver took the aged preacher to his home where a doctor cared for some bruises and lacerations. He is reported as completely recovered.

HERMAN KREEGER
TALKS BASEBALL
WITH TIGER STAR

Herman Kreeger is feeling extremely proud now as a result of a unique experience he had on Christmas day. He had the pleasure of chatting informally with none other than Billy Rogell, Detroit Tiger short stop, and in Rogell's own home at that.

Going to visit Earl Hamilton, formerly of Northville, at his home of Joy road, Mr. Kreeger was to his surprise, greeted by a stranger who told him Mr. Hamilton did not live there any more. The stranger identified himself as Bill Rogell, replacing Robert G. Yerkes, who has served for the past year.

Maurice J. Lapham was elected president of the Northville Exchange club for the coming term Wednesday noon, replacing Robert G. Yerkes, who has served for the past year.

The other officers, who hold the same posts as they did last term, are as follows: Carl E. Crowe, first vice-president; Dr. D. A. Brief, third vice-president; Charles A. Dolph, secretary-treasurer; Payton B. Bump, marshal; Nelson C. Schrader and Samuel W. Wilkins were named to the board of control.

The retiring president, Robert G. Yerkes, gave a brief resume of his term and expressed his appreciation of the courteous shown him. The half year has been an interesting one, he said, and a number of good things were achieved.

It was announced that the meetings of the club will be held at 12:15 p.m. each Wednesday for the next six months, rather than at 12 o'clock noon as previously.

The Exchange club sponsored the window display contest recently held and was largely responsible for the fine Christmas decorations throughout the town. The members have received many compliments on the appearance of Northville.

Many of the people who come each week there for food are farmers. This was especially evident last Thursday. The food on that occasion consisted of a four-pound roast of veal, two containers of canned roast beef and a pound of rice.

CLARENCE HELLER,
PLYMOUTH, KILLED
BY HIS SON SUNDAY

While attempting to show skill in handling a shotgun, thirteen-year-old Clarence Heller, Jr., shot and killed his father, Clarence Heller, Sr., 37, at their home, 918 Brush avenue, Plymouth, at 3 p.m. Sunday. The father objected to the son going hunting, saying "you're not old enough."

"Aw, dad, watch how well I handle this gun," pleaded Clarence, Jr., when he attempted to eject a shell. Instead his hand tripped the trigger and the father fell dead, the charge passing through his heart. Present were Heller's wife, Lelia, another son, James, 12, and Anna, 8.

Oratorio, "The Messiah," Sung By
78 Voices Here Sunday Evening,
Inspires A Crowd Of Over 400

More than 400 persons were turned away as 78 voices climaxed Handel's beautiful oratorio, "Messiah," with the stirring "Hallelujah" chorus Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church.

Directed by Leslie G. Lee, the singing of the combined Northville and Plymouth talent won the approval of all. The audience was hushed throughout, as the performance, lasting a little over an hour, went on from start to finish without interruption. This was the second time the oratorio has been given in Northville, Mr. Lee also conducting it last year.

As all audiences of the "Messiah" have done since its first rendition in England 200 years ago, the throng at the Presbyterian church arose to its feet, as the "Hallelujah" chorus rang out.

Soloists were Mrs. Edna O'Connor of Plymouth, soprano; Miss Barbara Horton of Plymouth, contralto; Roland Morris, tenor; and Carl Brynn, bass. Mrs. E. William Doty, wife of Professor Doty of the University of Michigan School of Music, presided at the organ.

Only the Christians portion of the famous work was rendered Sunday, but Mr. Lee has stipulated that the rest of it may be given at Easter time.

The names of the participants are as follows:

Soprano: Mrs. Joseph McCloud; Mrs. Norman Denne, Mary Denne, Mary Louise Boyden, M. Turnbull, Constance Burgess, Miss Curtis, May Groomer, Marjorie

At the close of the presentation Sunday evening the chorus invited Mr. Lee into the church house where they presented him with a Christmas gift, a beautiful indirect lighting floor lamp, as a token of their appreciation of his untiring efforts in training them.

WELCOME TO 1935

Another year debuts down the heavy corridors of time; another twelve-month comes onto the threshold of human history. Hail 1935!

If you are not a cynic—which few Northville people are, Thank God—then this new year gives you a thrill. You respect the mileposts of time, you want to know whether you are bound on life's brief journey. So you take inventory, count the failures, check the successes and resolve anew.

We have been wondering what we should resolve. Well, when we try to put these resolves on paper they look foolish and futile.

However, here we are. For 1935 we hope to:

Gossip not.
Avoid meanness.
Live the Golden Rule.
Read more good books.
Take time for friendship.
Try to learn from others.
Live on less than we earn.
Keep a sense of good humor.
Stand by Northville—always.
Be willing to admit our mistakes.
Keep on good terms with content.
Have as good a measure of health and strength as we now have.

Believe in our fellowmen, whether they treat us generously or otherwise.

Be just a little fairer and kinder—especially to that cross-section of humanity which takes more bumps than some of us.

President Woodrow Wilson had his famous "Fourteen points." These are ours for 1935.

We hope the new year brings you every good thing you should have. We hope it keeps from you those hardships or difficulties that should not be yours to bear.

We ask your friendship, your help, your good will, as we enter the doorway of what should be the greatest year in all human history.

May the new year be the crowning one of your life.

IT WAS A BETTER CHRISTMAS

There are many indications that the Christmas day of 1934 was one of the best in years. At least there was a better spirit observable all around this part of the world. May be it is because we are getting over our depression bruises and becoming adjusted to the new order of things. Whatever it was, Northville and Detroit, and points between and around, had a more cheerful Christmas atmosphere than for the past few years. Isn't that fine?

In spite of all the commercialization of Christmas—and many, of course, are untouched by the true spirit of the holiday—we are all better for having been moved by the spirit of "Peace on earth, Good Will to Men." Even the most pagan person cannot deny that. All around us we have seen the selfish and the shrewd lose some of their meanness; all about us we have seen the generous impulses of men, women and boys and girls heightened and turned into new channels of helpfulness. The shortest day of the year came at a time when people were longest on good will and sympathy. That is what Christmas has meant and if many have thought of it only in terms of what they could make out of it, theirs is the loss.

The high tide of this Christmas of 1934 should carry us over into the new year with every prospect that 1935 will be one of the best years we have all had. Why not? We know now that the false prosperity we had will not return. We realize now that there is no easy road to wealth and ease. We have found out what money won't do. It has been beaten into our minds and hearts that we can never defy the laws of God and man. Not for some time shall we try to "lift ourselves by our bootstraps." We know that we can't get rich without making some real contribution to the world. In brief, we know that real happiness and content can never come in "things."

If we have learned our lesson, it will be a better 1935 in the same way that it was a better Christmas on December 25, 1934.

NORTHVILLE'S CHRISTMAS CO-OPERATION

"I have been in large and small towns but I never saw anything anywhere else that would equal Northville's fine Christmas appearance." That is what William Gerould of Ypsilanti, formerly of this place, said to us the other day.

Northville did "get on the map" in a very fine way because of its lighted business streets during the holidays. That community tree, with its glowing lights, and all those individual trees in front of business places, with their sparkling lights of Christmas good cheer, spoke an eloquent message to all who travel the all more difficult and the community demonstration will be remembered long after the last lights have been turned out.

Northville is certainly indebted to the Exchange club for its inspiration and leadership which gave our community this splendid Christmas glow of good will. Thank you, Boosters.

WANDERING THOUGHTS

"The best is yet to be."

1935 will be pretty much what you make it.

"The greater man, the greater courtesy." —Tennyson.

Resolve that you will control your automobile in 1935.

"We feel sorry for the selfish man," said a good friend to us the other day.

An outrageous waste of public money and a tragic event any way you figure it, was the pitiful special session of the legislature. If there was any dishonest voting at the November election, it was well divided between both parties and neither republicans nor democrats have a monopoly on civic righteousness. And by the same sign neither does all the crooked vote buying. It is not the function of a politically minded legislature to do our vote counting—especially when majorities are large.

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

What is your big ambition for 1935?

ARE WE THE SMARTEST PEOPLE ON EARTH?

(Bob Gifford in Eaton Rapids Journal)

We were recently interested in an article called "The British are More Efficient" written by Herbert N. Casson, and published in MacLean's Canada National Magazine. The author has lived 24 years in Canada, 21 years in the United States and 20 years in London, England.

A few of these points are interesting and are considered here for the information of our readers: More factories built in Britain in 1933 than in any country (463 new, 85 renovated); England has captured the clock-making business from Germany. For the last three years Eng. has been leading the world in house-building. More than 2,350,000 homes have been built since the war. At present they are being built at the rate of a thousand a day—only 15 per cent of them with the taxpayers' money. Fully half the British people are now living in their own homes.

Since 1928 only one department store has closed, nor one other has failed to make a profit. Not one railroad has made a loss. Not one large hotel has gone into bankruptcy. And not one bank has failed.

The fastest growing towns in the world are now in England. They owe their booms to the creation of new businesses. Britons are not buying on the till to their grandchildren. They are extending trade. All of which sounds almost like a fairy tale. But those who have been in England recently come back with interesting stories of what they are doing in their housing work. And they are doing 85 per cent of their increasing private capital.

IF YOU MUST DRINK, KEEP SOBER

(M. H. De Poe in Charlotte Republican Tribune)

Carl Sparlock will spend the next 10 and a half to fifteen years in prison.

He unintentionally killed a man, Sparlock was "legally" drunk at the time.

As Judge McPeek told Sparlock, the tragic ending did not reflect the intelligence of the defendant. And indirectly society obeyed the law. Drinkers must be made to understand that while drinking is indeed sinful, the customer must not intend to excess, carelessly, to injure the escort, "another dead or far greater responsibility."

When a man, through the agency of intoxicants weakens his self control or steps up his tempo to a point of viciousness, it becomes necessary for society to pick its own approach. In other words, drinkers, who step over the bounds of moderation must expect to share the burden of possible penalty.

Sparlock, is quite a personable chap. During he became an involuntary killer of a man more than twice his age and with whom he had, before the tragedy, never spoken a syllable.

Moderation may be sensible philosophy, but in the case of Mr. Sparlock he is less a thinker than he looks, to be if he ever again touches alcohol in any form.

The next time you take a drink of hard stuff, why not propose a toast to Sparlock? He is Exhibit A of what you are shooting at.

If you must drink, keep sober!

CELEBRATING CHRISTMAS

(Bill Berkley in the Cassopolis Visual)

I read in the papers that the people of the state of Michigan through their liquor commission have laid in a stock of a half million dollars worth of additional liquor with which to celebrate Christmas—the birth of Christ. It is rather a sad commentary upon our so-called Christian civilization that the people of a single state should require a half million dollars worth of whiskey to celebrate "the birth" of one whose coming was heralded by the angel song "Peace on earth, good will to men." We have always observed that liquor is a disturber of the peace and a wrecker of good will, hence it is a bit difficult to reconcile this people-owned liquor business and its Christmas celebration with the thought that we call ourselves a Christian nation. Perhaps Michigan has become anti-Christian without realizing it.

Visiting guest artists have been amazed at the spirit in which their accompaniments were handled. The Revelers probably aren't over their astonishment yet.

Let the critics rave. These cards aren't for them; they're for the public. Such is the Orchestra Hall attitude.

In this stand they are being backed by a nation-wide whoop of approval.

Incidentally, these concerts are supplying something new in the line of Detroit spectacular entertainment. Orchestra Hall is packed every Sunday night. People like to watch these broadcasts. Also it has become quite the proper thing to go to the Hotel Kern's cafeteria. The supreme court left no alternative other than a special session of the legislature, so the people followed the mandate.

Will Rogers To Star In Irvin Cobb's Famous "Judge Priest," Dec. 28-29;

"365 Nights In Hollywood," Jan. 1-2

fashioned the screen play from the Cobb stories and Sol M. Wurtzel was the producer.

"365 Nights In Hollywood" A jolting farce-comedy of Hollywood life and loves is promised to patrons of the Penniman-Alen theatre on December 28 and 29.

According to all advance reports, the film gives Will the finest and most human role of all those he has played on the screen. Preview audiences in Hollywood and New York have hailed it as the most notable of all Roger's gallery of American characters and there seems little doubt that it will register throughout the country as the star's most successful picture to date.

The popular series of stories by Irvin Cobb has been used as a basis for this screen history of the shrewd and wise Kentucky judge who flourishes in Paducah, Kentucky. In the late years of the past century.

Rich Humanity Rich human interest is said blends with laughter and tears in this tale of a sleepy southern town which still is not too sleepy to cradle a stirring drama. Millions of readers know this grand old jurist of fiction now millions more will know and love him.

Will Rogers, from all accounts, contributes to this screen history of the shrewd and wise Kentucky judge who flourishes in Paducah, Kentucky. In the late years of the past century.

Grant Mitchell is the wily head of a phonny movie school who conspires to take a rich young chick James Melton for a large-sized Carroll. Other members of the cast are John Bradford, Frank Conroy and John Qualen.

Hollywood preview audiences are said to have greeted this new picture of morelled folkies with a tumultuous reception. Jimmy Star, famous west coast communist supplied the original story, which has been adapted for the screen by Henry Johnson and William Conselman. Sol M. Wurtzel is listed as producer.

Two song numbers are included, both authored by Richard Whiting and Sidney Clare. The song titles are "Yes to You" and "My Future Star." Both have been staged lavishly, it is stated. Sammy Lee handled the dances and George Marshall directed the script.

One advance reviewer has said: "You'll need a zipper to pull your sides at the merry antics of '365 Nights in Hollywood.' All reports indicate this is a picture you won't want to miss!"

NORTHVILLE CAGERS BEAT BERKLEY 21-17

H. S. Championship Chances Look Good; Team Tied For League Lead

Northville won its fifth consecutive basketball game at Berkley last Friday evening by a score of 21 to 7. The game was characterized by roughness on both sides. Berkley having 14 fouls and Northville five. One Berkley forward, Morehead, was put out of the game in the first quarter.

Henry Hoffman, Northville forward, scored the greatest number of points, 10, and Pivogel was the high scorer for Berkley.

Northville took the lead early and held it until the fourth quarter when after the game had been running "neck and neck," Chambers, Berkley guard, scored a long shot to tie the score at 17 all. Hoffman and Deal came back, however, with a basket each, putting the Orange and Black five in the lead again, 21 to 17.

This was Northville's second league game, and the fifth contest of the season. The victory at Berkley makes the local squad tied with Melvindale in the suburban league race.

Northville's second team made the evening doubly successful for the Orange and Black by conquering Berkley 14 to 10. Hotchkins was high man in scoring, with five points, and Westphal, Berkley guard, came second with four.

The lineup for the first team was:

Northville	Berkley
P	Pivogel
Deal	P
Hoffman	Morehead
Bray	C
Meiers	Weycker
Marburger	G
Wood

Substitutions for Northville: Westphal.

BASKETBALL TEAM

We on behalf of the student body wish to congratulate the Orange and Black basketball team for its success in winning its first five games played. Not only the first team but the reserves have shown an unusual fighting spirit in these games which are already put down into the annals of history.

We wish the team the best of luck as they are about to meet its old rivals, Farmington, and so on a new year approaching we wish the team the best of luck in capturing the championship of the Suburban league.

The Goths

The Goths were a Teutonic people who in the first century A. D. appeared to have inhabited the middle part of the basin of the Vistula River, in what is now Poland. They were probably the easternmost of the Teutonic peoples. According to their own traditions they had come originally from what is believed to be Sweden. They do not enter Roman history until the third century, when their frontier seems to have advanced considerably further south. The Gothic people were warlike and not very settled, consequently they had probably not developed agriculture to any great extent. From the third century until well into the seventeenth century, the Goths were constantly at war with the Romans and a great part of the Roman territory was conquered by the Goths, who were in turn overcome by the Roman culture, and the Gothic identity therefore disappeared.

"Esquire" Is Next Below
—Knight, English Ruling

In England "Esquire" is a title of dignity next in degree below knight. It is given to the eldest sons of knights and the eldest sons of the younger sons of peers and their eldest sons in succession to officers of the King's courts and of the household, to baronets, Justices of the peace while in commission in the army and navy and others, but opinions with regard to the correct usage vary.

There also are esquires of Knights of the Bath, each knight appointing three at his installation. The title is conceded to all professional and literary men. In the United States the title is regarded as belonging especially to lawyers. In legal and other formal documents esquire is usually written in full after the name of those considered entitled to the designation; in common usage it is abbreviated Esq. or Esqr. and appended to any man's name as a mark of respect, as in the addresses of letters, though this practice is less prevalent than formerly. In the general sense, and as a name, the term Squire has been the more common in familiar use.

Clay
Clay is the product of rock destruction by weathering agents, resulting primarily from the decomposition of other rocks containing silicates of aluminum. Clay, therefore, is always of secondary origin. Both residual and sedimentary classes of clays are found in various sections. The residual clays include two general types, the loose, unconsolidated materials that have been derived from surface weathering of limestone, sandstone or shales, or from the weathering of glacial drift, and the kaolins that has been formed by the alteration of sedimentary strata through biochemical processes. The sedimentary class of clays includes the majority of the ceramic materials of Indiana. The varieties of sedimentary clays include shales, underclays, fire-clays, attitlites, bentonite clays and glacial clays.

Water Scorpions
Water scorpions have two long bristles on the end of the body which are crowded on the inner side. By putting these bristles together, a long tube is formed, while the insects can put out of the water to catch air for breathing, while resting on the bottom of the pond. The water scorpions live among rank, or in the stems of water plants, in ponds and the quiet parts of streams. They are carnivorous, and the first pair of legs are fitted for seizing prey. As their bodies are long and usually covered with dirt, it is difficult to see them among the rubbish where they are found. Their resemblance to dirty sticks helps them to capture unwary insects and small fish that come too near them.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clark and family joined a Christmas family gathering in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Clark in South Lyon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Vidi and children, Birmingham, attended the Christmas exercises in the Congregational church and were guests in the parsonage on Christmas Eve.

Frank Lounsberry, Fredonia, N.Y., was a guest in the J. A. Clark home. His mother, Mrs. Albert A. Lounsberry, accompanied her son Frank on a week's visit with her other son, Irvin Lounsberry and family in Chelsea.

One of Largest Moths
The Cercopis is one of the largest moths. The wing spread is usually between five and six inches. The large silvery cocoons can be found during the winter months in clumps of willow along ditches. They are generally about eight inches from the ground and are sometimes covered with snow. Many people do not notice them but the careful observer seldom misses them. The cocoons generally mature in about a week after they are taken in the house, and the moth emerges.

Previously he was popular only along the Atlantic coast, where wild duck abound; particularly in the regions of his ancestral Chesapeake bay, where he was "invented" many years ago. He is the only American-made sporting dog said to be said to have originated from two dogs brought from a ship bound from Newfoundland to England and wrecked on the shores of Chesapeake bay.

The dogs were crossed with common yellow-and-tan "coon" basset, producing the odd beige coloring known as true Chesapeake shade.

Seeing Stars in Daytime
Stars are not visible during the day because the superior light of the sun and its reflected rays from objects on the earth is so strong as to obliterate the tiny rays from stars so that they make no impression on the retina or the eye. At the bottom of a shaft or very tall chimney where no light enters and the direct rays of sunlight are cut off, the retina registers the rays from the stars and hence they become visible.

Early Bounty on Wolves
A law in Ohio in its territorial days sounds as a testimonial that wolves were a menace to the settlers. Bounties were offered on the heads of these animals to thin out their numbers. Wolves under six months of age brought 50 cents, over six months, $1.25. The head had to carry both ears so as to prevent fraud. As soon as the justice of the peace paid the award he removed the ears and destroyed them.

Bridles in one form or another presumably in the form of a halter, have been used since the domestication of the horse and upon this date the anthropologists do not agree. Objects of wood and bone, evidently primitive bridle bits, have been found among other Stone Age relics. Bridle bits of bronze and iron are found among most discoveries of the Bronze and Iron Age.

Harness, originally a term for armor or equipment of a soldier, is now used mostly in reference to equipment of horses. Pathfinder Magazine

Crater Seamed With Sulphur

Popocatepetl is a dormant volcano rising 17,543 feet, about 40 miles southeast of Mexico City. It is the second highest peak in Mexico, Orizaba being 4,000 feet higher.

The crater is an ellipse a half mile by one-third mile in size, and about

1,500 feet deep. There is water in the bottom of the crater, which seeps out through fissures and is converted into steam which issues near the base of the peak through mineral springs. The sides of the crater are seamed with sulphur.

Professional Snail Hunting

The professional snail hunter trails his prey by trailing a lump of suet over floating vegetation from various points to a central place where the bait is anchored for a day. Returning, the hunter will find most of the snails in the neighborhood congregated about the bait. Other species are attracted to a sliced potato from a distance of 75 feet, while others still relish

the potato on book covers and the taste of old newspapers.

Poles Apart
The north and south polar regions are in complete contrast. The Arctic contains about 1,000,000 inhabitants, has much plant and animal life and a summer three months long. The Antarctic being much colder, is a vast field of ice without any life except mosses and one insect which is active only a few days each year.

Leit Motif
Leit motif is a term intended to mean a short figure of speech or progression of harmonic (frequently the two in combination) of marked character used to illustrate situations, personages, objects and ideas essential in a story or drama to which music forms a counterpart.
