THE LAST CAST

By Elton R. Eaton

FT. LAUDERDALE, Florida.—A fishing trip talked about for many years, a dream that a group of angling lovers were about to realize, is never going to take place. Nelson Schrader, one of this group and as true a sportsman in every sense of the word as ever lived, is dead. He died here while waiting patiently for his old fishing partner and other companions of many years to join him on one of the great out-door adventures that every angler some day hopes to experience.

Spring and fall we had trolled and cast the lakes and streams of northern Michigan together. Some years when we had traveled to the northlands of Michigan and Canada for a week-end trip and the luck had not been so good, we would talk of Florida and how wonderful it must be to go where the fortunes of angling always bring a thrill to the hearts of the fishermen.

Once or twice in the past such a trip to the angler's paradise had been partly planned by us but it was not until a few weeks ago when Nelson and myself and two other members of our northern trolling clan definitely fixed a time for that long-hoped-for Florida fishing trip.

Mr. Schrader and his family had gone on ahead to this ideal fishing place. Our two other companions were to meet us here coming from Michigan by another route—to join "Nels" for what was to be a glorious few days of fishing.

They tell me here that he counted the days and hours pending our arrival.

As we motored southward with the greatest of anticipation over the fishing we were all going to do together, we met a train steaming northward. Little did we realize as we saw it that it was carrying back to Nelson C. Schrader, our faithful sportsman companion and friend of many years. A fishing trip long planned and dreamed of will never take place. Nelson had made his last cast.

Certainly it is with a saddened heart that we pen these few words of tribute to one of the most loyal friends, the truest citizens and the noblest of men that ever lived from a place where we had anticipated upon so much joy and happiness together.

No one knew more intimately the life story, the struggles and successes of Nelson Schrader than the writer. His career from boyhood reads like the chapters taken from a manual on how to win success.

Born out southwest of Plymouth in the Cherry Hill neighborhood, he was known among the farmers of that locality as one of the hardest working youngsters in that entire section. As he grew to young manhood he left the farm and came to Plymouth to win a place for himself in the business world.

These early days were hard days for him, disappointing days. He endured trials and tribulations that few knew about as he worked to go onward and upward. But he never quit—and he WON. He won by fairness, frankness and faithfulness.

Then as Schrader Bros. expanded, he left Plymouth and went to Northville. That fine little community never had a more loyal citizen or one who gave more to its welfare and advancement than Nelson Schrader. For more than a decade he was the largest individual taxpayer of that village. He was happy in the knowledge that he had given to the community the largest and most complete furniture store in a place of that size in all Michigan. He served Northville as its village president, and he served it well. He never knew the meaning of the words unfairness or spite. He respected and courted the judgment of those that differed with him. As president of the Northville Exchange club he did much to help its growth and usefulness. For nearly 15 years he was president of the Northville-Wayne County Association.

To this extensive community activity he gave the same enthusiastic effort that brought personal success to him. The fair association, due largely to his work, is one of the few that weathered the years of depression without serious loss.

Not in the best of health for a number of years, nevertheless he continued his activities in behalf of all those things in which he was so interested. He was too young to die. His life work was not completed. Northville and Plymouth needed men of the kind and caliber of Nelson Schrader. He never refused to act when called upon to do something which he thought might help his home community. No man or woman in distress was ever turned away from his door without being given some degree of relief.

He worshipped his family and there was nothing in his power that he would not do for his devoted wife and children. Men of his type are generally of this kind.

No name in the hundred years and more of Northville history will stand out as prominently on the pages of recorded accomplishments as that of Nelson C. Schrader, who lived to serve and help mankind.

NORTHVILLE'S YESTERDAYS

1 YEAR AGO

With the possible goal of $1000. for use within the next year or two as a student loan fund, members of the Northville Rotary club at their luncheon Tuesday noon gave serious thought to the ways and means of getting this project under way.

A new showroom for Packard motor cars will be opened here about March 1, with H. R. Richardson as the proprietor, it was announced Wednesday.

Northville village, township, and school district are asking for a total of $562,000 worth of projects in President Roosevelt's new $4,853,000,000 public works relief program.

The problem of finding the cause of the gas that has been escaping in the grade school building was still not solved yesterday, although classes began again Monday, Feb. 11, R. H. Amerman announced.

Youth, 125 in number, headed by the United States flag and Scout banner filed into the Methodist church Sunday morning for their twenty-fifth anniversary service.

5 YEARS AGO

An unusual honor came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Girardin, 220 Randolph street, Monday when their thirteen-month-old daughter, Ruth Louise, was picked in the Detroit Daily baby contest as one of the eight most healthy babies from 1,200 who were entered in the competition.

The remarkable winter weather of the past few weeks, as continued into February and sunny, snowless days have been common. The mercury has dropped to around the 20 above mark some nights this week but the cold has been of a bracing kind.

The family of R. H. Amerman has been quarantined in their home at 212 West St., because of scarlet fever.

E. A. Kohler cannot quite beat Philip Graham's record of a lamb born this year, but can beat his record of one born this winter as he had one born Christmas morning.

Former editor of the Northville Record, Elton Eaton, received signal recognition from the Michigan Press Association recently when he was elected vice-president of that organization.

10 YEARS AGO

Northville's handsome new theater, the "Lodge," formally opened at 10 p. m. last night. The photographer, announced that he will be located in his new studio over the Palace Market on Saturday.

The Northville High boys' basketball team met the Wayne High school team and gave them a thrashing on the evening of Friday, Feb. 5.

Leola Wright, past commander of Northville Community, K. T., was killed Tuesday afternoon. He died Sunday.

Out time dance tonight at the High school given by the U. of M. girls Messrs B. G. Fikens and W. H. Yerkes will officiate as floor managers.

John Williamson, driver for W. R. Dickinson, was injured early last Friday morning when the milk wagon tipped over on him.

Friends of Miss Marian Johnston will present her name as a candidate for village treasurer at the caucuses to be held next week. After a few weeks illness Charles H. Coldren, a well known and valued citizen of this village, passed away at his home on Main street Sunday night.

15 YEARS AGO

Construction of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanatorium at Northville now nearing completion, marks a new era in local health work.

Prosecutor Paul Voorhies is preparing a bill for presentation to the legislature which is designed to provide machinery for increasing the pay of county supervisors.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Anderson on Monday, Feb. 11, a 7½ pound daughter, Jean Louise. Mrs. Anderson was formerly Miss Viola Miller.

George Simmons was badly burned about the face, a few days ago, as the result of starting a furnace fire with kerosene.

W. H. Safford was in Lansing Monday and Tuesday in attendance at a conference of deputy state oil inspectors. Mr. Safford read a paper during the conference.

The first of the new spring skirts appeared upon the streets of Northville Monday, being worn by a young woman well past twenty years of age, though from her knees down she appeared to be about six years old. The appearance of this fair maiden caused serious results. Smith, whose attention was called to the fair one, turned to Wood, who turned to Stone and Stone immediately turned to rubber.

20 YEARS AGO

Northville's first "Made-in-Northville" automobile attracted a lot of attention on the streets Saturday. Manager Porter was at the wheel and the machine gave a good account of itself. Several more cars are well under way in the process of construction.

The executive committee, namely,

E. A. Fuller, chairman; Mrs. May Miller, Mrs. George Simmons, Mrs. Kittle Harrison, Mrs. Georgia Tinsam, Mrs. Jesse Ponsford and Lloyd Northrop for the O. E. S. dance on Feb. 22, predict the usual gaiety which is always a feature of the order's annual ball.

The County Farmers' Institute held Monday in the Baptist church was a success in every respect—attendance, program and interest throughout.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bogart have moved from the Palmer cottage on Dubuque street to the new Carpenter house on North Center street.

During Sunday night the mercury reached the lowest point so far this winter, going from 6 to 15 degrees below zero, according to the "temperatures" of the various thermometers around town.

Prof. T. J. Knapp has signed a 5-year contract with the Highland Park school board as superintendent.

30 YEARS AGO

Mrs. George Simmons, mother of Mrs. Lewis Barham of this place, died Wednesday morning at her home a few miles east of Northville.

M. F. Stanley of this place has invented an adjustable piano bench. Musical-instrument manufacturers in various places are beginning to "set-up and take notice."

Did you see the eclipse last night? Dr. and Mrs. Frank Carrothers are receiving the congratulations of their friends over the arrival of a little daughter in their home on Monday, Feb. 5.

The Rogers shoe factory stopped operations here Tuesday, and the machinery and stock are being packed for shipment to Toledo.

Rep. Cass Benton has been in Lansing this week where he gave a talk before the assembled supervisors of the state and said a few things about the work of the tax commission.

ENGLISH PIANIST TO PLAY MARCH

Myra H. C., distinguished English pianist, will give a recital in the Choral Union Series, Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, Monday evening, March 13, 1936. This marks the first appearance of the celebrated woman between 11 and 12. She was heard Feb. 13, 1926, and again Jan. 27, 1934.

Miss H. C. won the pianists of (Cleveland) and music lovers through out the professional world, and has distinguished herself as an agent of first rank.

In December she was honorably decorated as Commander of the British Empire for services in music. She is the first pianist to be thus recognized.

Attention is also called at this time to the fact that the John Charles Thomas concert in the Choral Union Series, has been postponed from Feb. 17 to March 2.

The program which Miss H. C. will play is as follows:

Pastorale, No. 1, B flat major Bach
Prelude
Allegretto
Cavatina
Scherzo

EXHIBIT PETER PAUL RUBENS' PAINTINGS

The first large exhibition of the paintings of Peter Paul Rubens ever held in America, and one of the most extensive in the history of art, opened at the Detroit Institute of Arts on Feb. 12, and continues until March 15. Included in the 50-odd paintings to be exhibited will be the large Holy Family With St. Francis, loaned by the San Diego Gallery of Fine Art; portraits of King Louis XIII of France and Vladislav, King of Poland, from the collections of Lord Millbank and the Metropolitan Museum; and sketches of "The Rape of the Sabine Women" and "Return of the Sabine Women" from the Philadelphia Widener and Johnson collections.

If Rubens had not been a painter he would have featured in the history of 17th century Europe as a diplomat. He knew and painted nearly every important person in Europe between 1600 and his death in 1680. Acting as a statesman for Spain, the protector of his native Flanders, he opposed Cardinal Richelieu, who sought to keep England and Spain at war. He wrote and spoke five languages, and he made archaeological studies which are of value to present-day students. Yet he found time to paint hundreds of pictures, known and loved throughout the world for their rich, flaming color, and masterful design.

WINTER

Midwinter back in the 1890s. Two sisters and two little brothers were accustomed to be aroused from sleep on those zero mornings by a pounding in the stove pipe. A sort of rat-a-tat-tat it was, followed by the cheerful voice of our father from below:

"Now behold, now behold. See the snow and feel the cold. Children come with joy and singing—"

Then, because he couldn't remember the last line of the song learned in his boyhood he trailed off into a "ta-da-da-de-um-tun-ta."

A jolly wake-up song it was which made us all pile out of the warm blankets laughing to grab our flannels and make a wild, shivery dash through the cold hall down stairs to the "sitting room" where the big Round Oak stove already roared with friendly warmth and the teakettle on top sang merrily.

Who cared that it was below zero and that the wheezy old pump had to be primed with hot water! Father's song still rang in our ears putting a jolly sentiment into the snowy season and we sang as we blew on our tingling fingers "See the snow and feel the cold!"

Winter was pretty cold, of course, and very uncomfortable at times but Father taught us that it was the time of vim and vigor (the word "pep" had not yet been used). It was the time to pitch in and get big jobs done, the time to move fast and do work that the business of summer makes folks put off.

Winter is not the time, he maintained, to bug the stove, coast ones skins and grow tender. From playing with our dolls he would bundle us off to the back yard to pile great rows of wood and when that was done we could play "Fox and Geese." Hungry and rosy we stamped a snowy path through the house and sat down to devour good old winter, diet—baked beans or pancakes and sausage.

Winter was fun because we were healthy and could get out and enjoy it and we did not then worry about the price of coal.

And those sleigh rides! Jangling bells! Tucked in under a buffalo robe, who cared if the night was mippy? We feel almost sorry for young folks now who have to ride in a prosaic motor car and have never been packed into a "bob sleigh" with an oyster supper at the end of a thrilling plunge through drifts.

Winter is the time for long home hours when the warm hearthside is the great charm of family life. Is there any picture of home life quite so satisfying as Whittier's lines:

"Shut in from all the world without. We sat the clean-winged hearth about—"

In California, that land of perpetual summer, we found that family life is more scattered. With open roads the year round someone of the group is always going somewhere. There's no reason to snugly by the hearth.

Wait till you've lived here a while, called a California neighbor over the back fence where geraniums were blooming in January "your ambition will slow down here."

We meet such varied types of people walking on the streets in winter. There are those who shiver and hate the cold and those who hold up their heads and seemed to enjoy the invigorating sting.

Lucky are we folks in Northville who have no shortage of fuel and coal. Given warm houses and clothing with good physical resistance we can join in the old-time hymn, "December's as pleasant as May."

"The gang" is dropping in for waffles and a neighbor the other evening. Wonder if they ever tried this new kind.

GINGERBREAD WAFFLES

- 3 eggs
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup sour milk
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup shortening, melted

Beat the eggs until light. Add the sugar, molasses, sour milk and remaining dry ingredients, sifted together. Beat all together until smooth. Then stir in the shortening. If you wish, a dash of clove and cinnamon may be added. This recipe makes six waffles.

The FAMILY ROMANCE

By MRS. L. E. WARNER
Social Consultant

Dear Mrs. Warner:—People look upon me as a successful business man but so far as tasting the fullness of life is concerned I know I am a failure. I do so many things that I don't want to do. It seems to me that the more I determine not to do them the more certain I am to go right on as usual. In the first place I haven't a friend whom I can't criticize; I do criticize people, too, perhaps in my own mind but none the less bitterly. I find fault with one for one thing and blame another friend for something else. The best man friend I have, the one who would do the most for me if I were in a pinch, is a braggart. He is always telling about the wonderful things he has done; I detest this in him. It ruins our friendship. Sometimes I hate another friend of mine because he lies. I always know when he is doing it and I suspect he knows that. So he and I don't hit it off so well. Then there is my wife; I know that she is absolutely loyal to me but I can not rid my mind of the suspicion that she enjoys a little too well the society of other men. Damn it, I'm worried! Why can't I be tolerant like other men? If there is one thing I dislike about a full grown man it is the tendency to blame everyone else for his own shortcomings but it seems to me that I should get on a good deal better if I were not surrounded by people who are so constantly laying themselves open to my criticism. Am I too old to change my habits?—H. V.

Of course you are not too old to change your habits. One is relieved of a bad癖 by understanding, not by will power. So all you have to do is to analyze your own attitudes. You, yourself, place in my hands the solution of your problem when you say, "If there is one thing I dislike about a full grown man it is this tendency to blame everyone else for his own shortcomings." Then you go on to say that your acquaintances, your friends, the people with whom you are associated are at the root of your difficulty.

To be perfectly honest I have to say that you will never forgive others for their shortcomings until you have forgiven yourself for the same failures. We hate in others that behavior which we despise in ourselves.

Let us begin with your best friend whom you can not love without reservations because he is boastful. Are you still a braggart or are you still hating yourself because you have been one? There is no escape for you. You might as well confess it. When you are tolerant of your own tendency to boast of your achievements, or when you have stopped at your friend's boastfulness will cease to annoy you.

Then there is the friend who lies. Before you can endure this habit in your friend you will have to be truthful yourself or excuse yourself for fibbing. When you have become a little more tolerant of your own untruthfulness you will forgive your friend and go on loving him.

There is that matter of your wife's interest in other men. Well—one doesn't need to explain everything to a successful business man. It is enough to say that so long as you have one eye on your wife and one on some other woman your suspicions of your wife's interest in other men will not be allayed.

Be a little more charitable with yourself. You brag a little. What of it, who doesn't? Occasionally you tell a white lie. Since you are inherently honest maybe the fib is to make someone feel happier and therefore can be forgiven. So far as your wife is concerned why condemn her or yourself either for a natural and innocent interest in members of the opposite sex? Learn to live peacefully with yourself and you will get on better with those about you.

Miss Ethel Joslin has been ill and anyone can let drop a choice morsel of gossip, which has absolutely little or no foundation. This habit is liable to wreck a reputation, a character, ruin a business, or force into complete wreckage what might have proved a very fine relationship.

Some people seem utterly incapable of looking upon the happiness of others and leaving it alone. They cannot bear to see others normally successful and happy content. It takes a great strength of character to erect a barrier that will be immune or impervious to the barbed thrusts of idle gossip.

It is also foolish to say that innocent people cannot avoid being influenced and their lives shaped somewhat by outside forces. They are the innocent ones, as bystanders, as the author says in the story.

POTATO STOCKS ARE DECREASING

The merchantable stocks of potatoes held by growers and local dealers and buyers in Michigan on Jan. 1 was estimated at 8,849,000 bushels as compared with 14,905,000 bushels a year ago and 7,338,000 two years ago. This represents 59 per cent of the portion of the 1935 crop that has been sold or available for sale but is only 35.4 per cent of the total crop grown last year. Approximately 37 per cent of the total crop will remain on the farms where grown. This amount represents loss from shrinkage, food and seed requirements, and the cull stock unfit for food, seed, or sale.

The report of the Bureau of Agriculture's Economics further states that the Jan. 1 stocks in the 31 state and intermediate states is 12,777,000 bushels as compared with 12,315,000 on Jan. 1, 1935 and 9,202,000 on Jan. 1, 1934. From these figures it will be noted, as pointed out by the Michigan Crop Reporting Service, that the available supply remaining for sale in Michigan, and for the potato states of the country as a whole is much less than one year ago and practically the same as reported two years ago. In this connection it is interesting to make a comparison of farm prices. The average price to Michigan growers of Nov. 15 1934 was 28 cents per bushel on the following March 15 it was only 24 cents a bushel. This downward trend during the winter months is not unusual. A large crop such as that of 1934 is available for sale. The average Michigan farm price for the first 1935 crop averaged from 25 cents per bushel on Nov. 15 of that year to 22 cents per bushel on the following March 15.

In years of high crops the trend of prices is generally upward during the winter months. The 1935 trend of prices is downward. The 1934 crop was approximately 29,000,000 bushels less than the 1934 production and 20,000,000 bushels more than the 1933 crop.

The reported statistics of potato production in 1934 for the United States and the intermediate states and the intermediate potato area point to a decrease of two and one-half per cent below 1935 and 12 per cent below the year average average.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR MRS. JESSIE OLM

Mrs. Jessie Olm of Detroit who died Feb. 7, was born in Shaskan, N. Y., March 5, 1887 to Mr. and Mrs. Emory Van Valkenburgh.

Coming to Northville with her parents at the age of seven years, she spent her girlhood days attending the Northville school. In 1924 she bought the Millie tea room in Royal Oak. After selling it she managed the Birmingham Chateau tea room for one year. Later she managed a tea room on the Five Mile road for E. E. Taylor. During her residence there she was very active in the Redford Business and Professional Women's club and headed the organization in 1932.

For the past two years she has been house manager of the Wayne County Medical Society building at 421 Woodward Ave., Detroit.

She was always reaching out to help some one in need and speaking a word of cheer to those who were sad and discouraged. She will be greatly missed by her many friends.

She is survived by her son, Howard; her aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Van Valkenburgh of Northville; one sister, Mrs. George Patis of Royal Oak; six brothers, C. R. Van Valkenburgh of Northville, Edwin Van Valkenburgh of St. Louis, Mo., R. E. Van Valkenburgh of Redford, C. D. Van Valkenburgh of Wyandotte, L. M. Van Valkenburgh of Detroit, and nephews and nieces.

Funeral services were held Monday, Feb. 10 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Patis in Royal Oak. The Rev. Mr. Ditch of the Methodist church in Royal Oak conducted the service. Burial was made in the Roseland cemetery on Woodward Ave.

LINCOLN DAY SPEAKER SLAMS NEW DEAL

Colin D. Fox, vice president of the Lincoln Day club, told a group of the public club to which he addressed a lecture Monday night at the Lincoln Day club.

On the other hand he charged that the new deal was a "policy of surrender, dealing in a rational and sane manner of economic theory, reducing everything to a formula which does not take into account the variety of human nature."

Such a formula, he asserted, naturally results in a "policy of surrender, dealing in a rational and sane manner of economic theory, reducing everything to a formula which does not take into account the variety of human nature."

Justice Peck told another tale when he said that "most of the wealthy who get the urge that everything which is wrong and evil the divine call to correct it become parlor pinks or actual reds. Their traditional mental attitude toward their social inferiors is charity and command."

He warned, however, that "these remarks are not in any manner made as accepting or furthering the movement already started in this country of stirring up class hatred."

Continuing his hostility to the New Deal, Justice Peck accused the Administration of "freely admitting that nobody knows" the meaning of the new AAA substitute farm bill, now pending before congress. He charged that it was "deliberately framed so indefinitely and obscurely as to fool the Supreme Court."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The following is a letter received this week by the Northville Record asking about the Civic Association that was recently formed.

Mr. R. T. Baldwin
Northville Record
Northville, Michigan

DEAR SIR:

Several months ago there was in your columns a great deal of material regarding the organization of a Northville association to promote the village. The report came that an organization had been made and officers elected. I, for one, was very much interested in this plan and felt that a great deal of good should come from it. Since the report of the organization nothing has been heard of it. What has happened?

It would seem that Northville should have an organization whose job it is to promote anything that would benefit the village and I can not understand why something isn't done about it. Will you get a report to the residents as to just what has happened.

Sincerely,
A Subscriber.

SNOW BANKS AND NIGHT-SHIRTS WHEN IT'S ZERO

Almost every day we read of some family being chased from their home in their night clothing by fire. Hot fires attack stovepipes and leaky chimneys. Chasing out of a house at midnight in a nightshirt when the thermometer is way down and standing around in a snow bank barefooted is not, exactly a pleasurable pastime.

It will likely take less than an hour for the average householder to carefully examine the smoke pipes and

Are we afraid sometimes to suggest better community standards? Northville has two unique practices that are making it successful. We have some of the world's worst downtown auto parkers. Try such parking elsewhere! Again, are we becoming a second Constantinople with all the dogs roving unlicensed and untrained?

Weather conditions interfere with Sunday church attendance. We ask our membership please to double their contributions on the Sundays they attend.

organization, personal or financial support but it is the problem of carrying as scoutmasters young men who are adapted for the responsibility of leadership of boys both by ability and training. Young men with potential qualities of scout leadership should be sought out in every community and they should be encouraged to give their time and talent to boys.

Parents of scouts should know the type of men who are leading the troops. And if there are men in any community who are giving their time and talent to boys, they should be encouraged to give their time and talent to boys.

Through scouting or through some other organization they should receive the training, the knowledge and the experience of every citizen of the community. More and more the scoutmaster of our town is becoming a part of our community. Let them be appreciated as they are, being for boys.

BEHIND THE SCENES

With The Want-Ads

DEAR FRIENDS:

Would you believe it—the first Want-ads ever used were matrimonial ads. Lonesome maids and bachelors, advertising for mates laid the foundation for the remarkable growth of Want-Ads.

I contend that a type of advertising that will produce a new husband or a new wife will also sell livestock and rent houses and produce new business. I can prove it over and over again from the records here at the Northville Record.

The power of the little Want-ads is marvellous.

NEW INEXPENSIVE SMALL HOUSE

The Dearborn Press

What is hailed as America's most inexpensive small modern house—a result of many years of study by architects, engineers and builders—was opened in Radio City Park, Detroit, the house was built on what is America's most expensive site, 11 floors above the luxurious bustle of Fifth avenue. Named Future House by the sponsors, the house demonstrates throughout the coordinated planning of a new decade of scientific housing. Its opening marked the inauguration of an exhibition in 56 key locations of the modern small house. The exhibitor is one of the great electrical companies of the country.

A Valentine Luncheon Party

ST. VALENTINE'S Day is one answer to the hostess' prayer for an excuse to give a party. Such a gay, colorful day lends itself well to almost any kind of entertaining. But it is particularly effective in a luncheon or dinner party where we can set a pretty table and serve attractive holiday dishes. For the dining room we suggest festooning white paper lace from the four corners of the room to the central chandelier above the table. It will be easy to cut the lace borders off white shelf paper to use for this purpose. Then from the point of joining, hang a shower of little red paper hearts strung on fine thread. Directly below this in the center of the table, place a low cake plate with a gathered frill of the same lace paper arranged around the edge. In the center of this, carefully set a delicate angel food cake iced with a fluffy white frosting and sprinkled with tiny red cinnamon hearts. With this table as a beginning, you will want to serve specially festive food, so we suggest these recipes to insure success:

Valentine Luncheon Party

Cream of Mushroom Soup (ready-to-serve) Heart Shaped Toast
Spanish Green Olives Celery Hearts Ripe Mission Olives
Molded Tomato and Chicken Salad* (in heart-shaped individual molds)

Shoe String Potatoes

Hot Biscuits Apple Butter

Angel Food Cake or Valentine Custards*

Coffee Valentine Mints

*Indicates recipes given below

Molded Tomato and Chicken Salad—Soak 1½ tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup Tomato Juice 5 minutes. Heat 1 cup of Tomato Juice with 1 slice onion to boiling point, then remove onion and pour hot juice over gelatin mixture. Add 1½ teaspoon Pure Cider Vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire Sauce and stir until dissolved, then add ½ cup more Tomato Juice. Pour into individual molds, which have been dipped in cold water, to ¾ inch in thickness, and chill until firm. Place a thick layer of Chicken Salad in mold, then fill with the remaining tomato mixture which has been partially congealed but not so that it is firm. Chill and serve in cups of crisp lettuce. Garnish with Mayonnaise.

Chicken Salad—Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes, then add ½ cup boiling water and stir until dissolved. Cool. Combine 1 cup finely chopped cold cooked chicken, ½ cup finely chopped celery, ½ cup finely chopped Pickled Sweet Pickle or 2 tablespoons India Relish, ¼ teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Pour the cooled gelatin over this mixture. Add 3 tablespoons Mayonnaise and mix thoroughly. Since the amount of liquid is so small, it is not necessary to congeal before pouring over layer of Tomato Jelly. Chill until firm, then partially congeal, if desired.

Valentine Custards (Makes 8)—Chilled Custard—Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes, then add ½ cup boiling water and stir until dissolved. Cool. Add 1 cup milk, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1 egg white, 1 cup hot water, stirring on low heat until thick. Add 1 cup milk, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1 egg white, 1 cup hot water, stirring on low heat until thick. Add 1 cup milk, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg yolk, 1 egg white, 1 cup hot water, stirring on low heat until thick.

New American Design No. 26 to suit northern climates. It has been duplicated at Wanting. Long Island, for approximately $5,000 yet it offers all around air conditioning, electric kitchen, controlled central heating, a pre-fabricated bathroom, and other comforts and conveniences previously restricted to high priced groups. The basic plan contains 80 per cent of useable space as contrasted with the 65 per cent usually found in a house of this type. Space has been rendered more available through planned fenestration and other interior details. According to the architect, it was built from the inside out, and takes its arrangement, and external appearance from the "interior" of its rooms and labor-saving equipment.

Even the furniture was planned and built by one organization to harmonize with the plan.

Not all of the "New American" homes are of this design. More than 50 others were opened in other cities yesterday of varying sizes and styles, having in common only the use of electric kitchens, air conditioning, modern building materials, scientifically-planned lighting, and more provisions for outdoor living. Hundreds of other houses, begun too late to take part in the official opening, will be demonstrated in various communities in coming months.

AUTOMOBILES OF THE FUTURE

(Abilene Evening Recorder)

Driving a car this cold weather makes one wonder why the radiator fan has not been built so it might be turned off when not needed. The fan has but one purpose—to keep the motor cool. With a zero temperature nature does that without the aid of a fan. Since the exhaust heater fell into disrepute because it was claimed to be so many victims, hot water heaters have been taken its place. With a fan going, in addition to a low temperature and the usual winter winds, it is almost impossible to get the radiator hot enough in the average car to furnish hot water to the heater. With some kind of last control, on the fan, this condition could be remedied.

We were advancing these ideas to someone the other day when he quoted an automobile engineer on what the automobiles of the not distant future will be like. It seems that they are to be streamlined along the tear-drop idea, with the blunt end forward and the motor in the rear. The driver's seat will be wide enough to seat three or four and the seats behind narrow. Tires are to be self-inflating and this blow-out proof. There is to be an extra gasoline tank, holding high-test fuel, for starting when the engine is cold and an automatic device whereby the motor shifts to regular fuel, which may be a cheaper fuel than that now necessary. Only two graduated gauges are on the instrument board, the speedometer and the gasoline gauge. The other indicators will merely show a green light when everything is o.k., and red light when something goes wrong. Brakes and gear shift will be handled by buttons.

Sounds reasonable, and not far in the future. Some of these changes have been incorporated into cars now and then. But none of them seem to take care of the present problem of keeping one warm when driving in zero weather. That's what we are interested in. That's what car makers should be interested in. Sales of automobiles have dropped off amazingly during the past month or two of zero weather. Also sales of gasoline, oil, and everything connected with the operation of a car.

We can still reach over and shift gears, and even beat down on a foot brake. But up to date we have not been able to sit on both hands at the same time to keep them warm and still drive a car.

CONDENSING ROADSIDE TIMBER

(The Iron Range Reporter)

Certainly that the law for condensing private property in public interest includes the right to take over timber land along main highways must be voted upon upper peninsula in the near future. The Globe declares this week.

If the law governing the condensing of private property for public purposes does not embody the right of the country or state, or both, to condemn roadside timber, the Globe declares "such a change in the law" should be sought by a united group of upper peninsula legislators at the next session of the state legislature.

"Aside from the esthetic value of roadside timber in this great vacation land of the middle west, the question of protecting highways from drifting snow is one of great importance. It has been repeatedly pointed out that the cost per mile of snow removal in snow belt counties' line Gogebic ranges from $50 to $350. The lost cost, of course, is on roads protected by timber. The high cost applies to open stretches.

Legislators have been forcefully reminded of the need of condensing roadside timber by recent occurrences, the most recent of which was the banding together of 49 counties in the upper peninsula and the northern part of the lower peninsula to ask additional snow removal funds. The experience of Gogebic county with the Hutton Lumber Co. was another. Efforts of the county to purchase timber along the state trunk highway from the junction with US-2 to the south end of Lake Gogebic were unavailing because the company asked an unreasonable price for its roadside timber.

There is nothing unjust in the proposal to condemn roadside timber. On the contrary, it verges on being an economic necessity in snow belt counties.
