SOME MORE FLORIDA OBSERVATIONS

Clearwater, Florida

March 20, 1936

Now we know more about sponges—the kind you use to clean the family automobile or for the bath.

A good neighbor took us up to Tarpon Springs, 15 miles from here, where you find the largest sponge exchange in the world and the only one in the United States.

Turning about a couple of blocks from the main street you come to a little section that might well have been lifted from the Old World.

Drawn up at the docks are scores of strange looking sailing craft; on the streets and on the boats are foreign speaking men; strange looking curio stores, where there are more strange speaking folks, line one side of the street and extend down another.

All at once you are in the heart of the sponge industry. These odd looking boats are the craft from which divers descend and to whose decks later are brought the great loads of sponges.

The strange looking men are Greeks and it is they who do the diving to locate and bring back sponges. Inside the curio stores you see all sorts and kinds of sponges—Phil bought one for a nickel and a friend paid 35 cents for one which he cut in two and will use the halves to clean his automobile.

One of the young Greeks in a store told us that the boats—they seemed only 50 or 60 feet long—sometimes will stay out for a month. Anyway they don't come back until they have a load. The divers find the sponges on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico and "pick" them off and lay them out on a blanket like affair spread on the sea bottom.

When the boats come up with a full cargo the haul is taken to the warehouses and later the sponges are sold at auction to big buyers.

Well the sight of those sponge boats and the look at the cross-section of Greece, right here in Sunny Florida, left us with a strange weird feeling that has followed us for days. As a sponge diver or the sailor of one of those strange looking craft, we should "make a good plunder."

The Baptists have perhaps the most imposing looking church in Clearwater and there we worshiped Sunday morning. Another big crowd and a young preacher who was out in front after the service shaking hands, right and left, with the big crowd as it came out. Three people spoke to us—two more than at the Methodist church and also at the Presbyterian.

Traffic on the main business section is very much congested—just like on Northville's business streets. Most drivers are willing to wait for the "double parkers" whom the police try to keep moving. Although most of the tourists are complacent and self-contained, they are courteous to you if you happen to have some occasion for conversation. For example, Phil and I were studying the workings of the barometer near the Chamber of Commerce building and a Mr. Cluley from Pennsylvania kindly stopped and told us the mysteries of barometers. By the way, "Red"—that is the new name that our freckle-faced eleven-year-old has been given here by the kids in our block—and I get quite a thrill out of watching the barometer every day and seeing how its predictions work out. Incidentally, everyone here is apologizing for the weather—made us think we were back in our old California home.

There are no orange trees on our island. Yet three or four times in the past three weeks the east winds—which blow pretty strong—have wafted the smell of orange blossoms into our cottage. Which goes to show that nothing in life is without influence.

Along with tourists from 20 states and two or three provinces of Canada, we saw the famous Bok or "Singing" flower Tuesday. It and its surroundings are surpassingly beautiful. No wonder people journey from all corners of the world to see it.

About the best tribute we can pay to its charm and lure is this remark that our young Phil made at 1:45 P.M. when our lunch was nearly two hours overdue: "Let's not bother about eating but stay here and look at the flowers." All around him were mazes of beautiful azaleas and other flowers in a perfect riot of beauty, not to mention the palm trees, the shrubbery and overshadowing all, the majestic marble tower that was dedicated by President Calvin Coolidge February 1, 1929.

The sanctuary and tower occupy 53 acres on what is known as Iron Mountain. This is 324 feet above sea level and is the highest point of land in Florida. There have been identified in and around the Sanctuary, 111 species of birds, native or migrant. This does not include, so says the guide book, the aquatic birds of the surrounding lakes as they keep to the lower levels.

Along the winding roads as we drove along and followed the signs we wondered why this memorial present to the American for visitation is called the "Singing" flower. Here is the reason given by the guidebook:

But in those early centuries, the tower itself was also evolving out of a primitive landmark even to the glorious dignity of a Gothic structure where the carillon was first played at a greater height so the music spreading outwards, seemed to sing from the entire structure.

Seventy-one bells sound out the marvelous music that comes from the tower. The total weight of these bells is 123,789 pounds. One gets the best effect of the music about 200 yards away from the tower. As we were there on March 17, we had the pleasure of hearing a program of Irish melodies and also some well known hymns.

When you remember that a poor immigrant boy who came to our American shores with only ambition and faith and rose to heights of greatness and then left this priceless memorial to his adopted country, you not only stand with uncovered head but with heart beating with a new patriotism as Anton Brees, playing the Sanctuary bells, gives the last number, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Attended Rotary club Wednesday. Found it very unique. The membership numbers 55 and at the luncheon there were precisely 55 visitors, 45 of them being Rotarians from other places and ten being guests of members. Sat next to an apple grower from New York and got a big shock when we asked him: "How many trees have you in your orchards?" and he replied: "Ten thousand." Small wonder he has been coming to Florida for ten winters and has built his own home here. He was very friendly and made us feel very much at home.

Tomorrow we go to Sarasota to see the winter headquarters of the Ringling Bros. Circus—the big show starts its season now in a few days, beginning in the southern states—and better yet, the Ringling Museum of Art where literally millions of dollars worth of paintings by the famous masters of the Old World are assembled.

Yesterday we got our first perfect day for some time. The strong winds subsided and a cloudless sky hung over us all day. Had the best sun bath yet and had to send for the olive oil bottle to avoid getting sunburned too much.

It gave us a thrill to read the St. Petersburg morning paper to find the names of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Richardson among the Michigan registrations.

NORTHVILLE'S YESTERDAYS

1 YEAR AGO

The republican candidates for Northville township office were the winners in the election Monday by large margins over their democratic rivals.

By the addition of some new machinery, production at the Ford Motor Company valve plant in Northville will be stepped up within the next two weeks to 2000 units per day, the highest peak since the days when the Ford's Model T was manufactured.

At the annual township meeting Monday evening, it was voted to appropriate $1,500 in the form of rental payments to the Scouts so that the township may use this building as a place to hold caucuses and as a young precinct.

At the county of the Detroit News a large representation of the Northville Woman's club and a few guests spent a most interesting afternoon at the home of that metropolitan paper Friday.

5 YEARS AGO

Quo warranto proceedings have been started naming P. N. Perrin as complainant to oust Harry S. German from the office of president of the village of Northville.

Preliminary steps towards forming a social society were taken Tuesday evening at the high school when 20 men gathered to consider the project. Following a practically unanimous vote for forming the society, Leslie G. Lee of the high school faculty was named director. Roy G. Clark kindly consented to act as accompanist.

Northville parents are gratified with the recent choice of Orlov G. Owen by the Boy Scouts council as local Scout leader.

After a brief illness of one week Mrs. Mildred Baker passed away at her home on West street Friday, March 29, at the age of 75 years.

At the age of 75 years Scott Armstrong died at his home on Church street Monday, March 23.

10 YEARS AGO

Northville's High school debating team composed of Miss Ruth Biery, Russell Atchinson and Lynn Partidge, accompanied by their coach, Miss Aletha Yerkes, went to Leash Friday afternoon where the local team was defeated.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Casterline was the scene of a very pretty wedding in the presence of the immediate relatives of the family, when their daughter, Ruth, was united in marriage to Dana Albice Briggs of Farmington by Rev. William Richards, Sunday afternoon, March 21.

S. E. Cranson, who received the nomination for justice of the peace at the republican caucus, refused to permit his name to appear upon the ballot and the committee substituted the name of Edwin R. Perrin.

Max Lewis, who has been threatened to break Monday, due to the heavy rain and thaw, and men were kept hard at work all that day to prevent such an accident.

30 YEARS AGO

Mr. Sessions, one of Northville's popular shoe dealers, the present able incumbent of the office of supervisor has proved himself so good a man for the place with so good a record for many years' experience to make him an acceptable candidate for the democrats that no other man has been thought of for the head of that ticket.

Mr. Ely is the well known landlord of the Park House and is the only man in the race for the superintending nomination on the republican ticket. Mr. Ely is personally popular and has the advantage of his party's normal majority in his favor, and his friends are sanguine as to his success at the polls.

There is no discount on the fact that however March may have "come in" or whatever may be the number of its "going out" it has been a "tiger" in the middle of its sojourn.

The live-bird shoot given last Friday by the Northville gun club was very successful. The new rotary magazine trap invented by Merritt Stanley of this place was used and was found to work to perfection. Only four live birds escaped. Shooters were present from Ann Arbor, Detroit and DeRay. Six contestants tied for first place with a full score, among them Geo. Stanley, David Hurry also of Northville winning third.

When it becomes necessary to condense the excitement of a nationwide manhunt into a reel of film, as in the exciting crime melodrama, "Show Them No Mercy!" which comes Friday and Saturday to the Penniman Allen theatre, 26th Century—for looks to Rolla Flor, master of impressionistic effects to achieve the task.

Collected in the studio library at Flor's disposal are hundreds of thousands of feet of short realistic scenes, gleaned from the work of hundreds of new reel men.

Their slices of actual life show G-men and police at work, police cars in screaming pursuit, underworld rackets in newspaper offices at high speed, airplane views, trains in motion—everything that contributes to the excitement of a film.

With the combined talents of playwright and technical expert, Flor combines these into a series of impressions that contribute to the emotional force of the manhunt in "Show Them No Mercy!" the most thrilling brought to the screen.

Rochelle Hudson, Cesar Romero and Bruce Cabot are the stellar players who lead the cast of this Darryl F. Zanuck production, a searing, gripping story of America's answer to the new underworld terror.

Nine-tenths of the romance connected with foreign cities is imaginary.

This is the contention of Ronald Colman, star of 20th Century's romantic comedy, "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," coming Wednesday to the Penniman Allen theatre.

Pointing to Monte Carlo as an example, he says, "Monte Carlo is perhaps the most publicized spot in the world. You read glamorous stories about it in the newspapers and in books and before you know it, you have cast a halo of romance about it."

The same holds true for most of the other gay centers, such as Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

Joan Bennett has the feminine romantic lead opposite Colman in "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" which was personally supervised by Darryl F. Zanuck.

By act of the 1935 Legislature, the trout season opens April 25 this year, thus giving fishermen a six day gain over previous years, when fishing began officially May 1.

Fishermen have pointed out that the extra days will result in a larger catch of steelhead and rainbow trout than in former years. These trout go up-stream early in the year and by the time May 1 arrives most of them have dropped back into the Great Lakes.

Weather hazards will be encountered with the earlier opening. Trout fishermen may find balmy weather, but they are just as likely to meet up with a severe snow storm. Fishermen recall that last year there was half a foot of snow covering the ground May 1 and the week before, there was almost a foot of snow in Northern Michigan.

TABULATE ACCIDENT DATA FOR DETROIT

Analysis of 1935 traffic records indicates that chances of being killed by an automobile in Detroit are greatest when:

- You are driving straight through.
The weather is clear.
The pavement is dry.
You are on foot.
It is after dark.

The motorist is a male resident of the city from 30 to 40 years of age.

There is no defect in the vehicle. Three times as many pedestrians were killed in motor-vehicle accidents in 1935 as in all other classifications of accidents combined.

Twice as many pedestrians were hurt crossing a street against a traffic light as when walking with the green light.

Twice as many fatalities occurred at night as during the daylight.

Sixty-six more persons were killed in clear weather accidents than when it was cloudy, foggy, raining or snowing, and nearly twice as many were injured in clear-weather periods.

Snow, ice and wet pavement took 90 lives, injured 3,372 last year—dry roads were involved in 202 deaths, 7,549 accidents.

One of every 15 pedestrians and one of every seven motorists in fatal accidents had been drinking.

Some More Florida Diary Leaves
Thursday, March 12—
We've caught it! That spirit of play that infests this southern vacation land.

Friday, the 13th—
In spite of the superstition of the day Phil and his dad took a row over on the bay in our neighbor-fisher's boat. As I drove over the causeway to mail some letters they hauled me from their boat and drew up on shore.

Saturday, March 14—
Woke up to the sound of rain on the shingles. Kept it up all day. Chilly and dreary. Read and rested. Phil and another boy made a boat.

Sunday—
A perfect summer day. The expectation took an hour's sunning on the beach. Turned Baptist and visited the imposing church that we had supposed was a municipal building.

"Dive Land" in their final number.
Friday, the 13th—
Took a trip to "Little Greece" over at Tarpon Springs in the afternoon with our genial fisherman neighbor as guide. Just like visiting a foreign land to stroll along that narrow street lined with markets for "treasures of the sea" on one side and a long row of many-colored boats with high masts anchored to the pier on the opposite side.

Woke up to the sound of rain on the shingles. Kept it up all day. Chilly and dreary. Read and rested. Phil and another boy made a boat.

The FAMILY ROMANCE
By MRS. L. E. WARNER
Social Consultant

Dear Mrs. Warner:—Six years ago I married a man seven years my junior. I was 22 years at that time. I had a very good opportunity to continue teaching, the work for which I had fitted myself. I did teach for three years after my marriage. My mother-in-law, opposed to my marrying. I think she felt that a career after a University education which was followed by a good deal of special training, was more in my life. We married, anyway, and my husband has proved kind and considerate to me. He has been successful financially in a small way. Even during the depression he has built up a business which brought from the company back of him a substantial bonus. Mother's attitude does not change. Father is kind. I think he likes my husband. But he thinks that seems strange to me that my husband has never during all these years made one bit of effort to win my mother. He thinks so much of me and does everything for me but this one thing which would make so much difference in my happiness. Do you think I can go at this thing that will divide him from me on friendly terms with another?—Y A

This man has committed no sin in marrying you. The bargain after all was between you and him, not between him and your mother. I admit his independence. There really isn't any reason for his attempting to propitiate your mother, is there?

Men are different from women in the way they look at things. This kind. Women will take a lot of trouble to make conditions over, to patch things up, and to smooth out matters. Men are not inclined to do this. When they feel that they have done no wrong they let things alone. I think they show a love-sense when they refuse to put themselves in a wrong light when they have in fact done nothing of which they need to be ashamed.

Your husband might send flowers to your mother. The chances are it would be a waste of money. She might even pitch them in the garbage can to relieve her feelings. He might take her for rides or ask her to go with him. She might refuse. He would then be embarrassed. He would have put himself in a very unfavorable light, don't you think so?

What can you think of that he might do that would make your mother glad that he married you? Isn't it true that the one thing he could do to make her happy would be to divorce you and put you back into the career from which he rescued you?

It seems to me that this man is doing everything he can to prove to your mother that he is worthy of your affection and regard. He is an honest, upright man, he is kind to you, he has built up a business even during these trying times, which supports you and his children. He is growing old in this service. What more could any mother want of a husband? Your mother can have nothing against this man except that he is your husband, unless she is disturbed by the fact that he is younger than you. The matter of the difference in ages is something that you and your husband have already settled and it concerns no one but the two of you.

If I were you I should not attempt to force my husband into a false position. He has done nothing wrong. He feels it. Do nothing to interfere with his independence. It is your mother, not he, who should make advances.

(Letters accompanied with self-addressed, stamped envelope answered personally.)

Cost more than we had planned and nearly "busted our budget." But as was a grand turkey dinner and we won't mind having dried beef gravy tomorrow night.

Monday—
"Habit is a cable." Did a big washing in a dishpan. Mailed ten letters and a lot of cards. Played shuffle board in the p.m. Rained all night. And how it blew! A bad habit here.

Tuesday—
Up early and off to visit the Bok tower. Crossed the nine mile Davis causeway, a gigantic engineering project built up by dredge. Waves of the bay dashed high on both sides of the roadway as we crossed to Tampa. High wind.

Wednesday—
Stopped in Lakeland to call on old Albin neighbors. Sighted the Bok tower long before we reached it. Located as it is on the highest point in Florida. Two miles of orange and grapefruit groves and sniffed the fragrance.

Never expect to be nearer heaven to this old earth than in that lovely "sanctuary" of beauty dedicated to the American people by a one-time immigrant boy, Edward Bok, who later became famed as editor of the "Ladies Home Journal."

Wandering thro the wooded path-ways lined with masses of blooming azaleas, ferns and palms, we stepped to the chimes from the great stone tower pealing forth beautiful music. A reverent hush held that great throng of visitors so often to begeth to celebrate.

We started to lunch but and was. The beauty of it all made us about we have "loved and loved" seem very near.

A very lasting gift to our country, and a very uplifting one has Edward Bok made.

Florida: A tropical gate all night that three waves of the gulf as high as a house rattled the dry leaves of the palm fronds. The night air was a mass of tales of a hurricane can here and we lay half the night listening to our frail cottage way being to be damped over into the bay or the salt.

And here we are and sound, sitting in the sunshine. Just what some sell to Chicago folks who came to buy first next door with a complexion of the dollars, and who incidentally they pay $250 a month, for their cottage and have a maid to do their work. That would be all!

Termites Not an Ant
The termite is not an ant. The portion of the termite colony that takes wood and swarms the blues and are unlike the white termites seen working in wood and more nearly resemble true ants. After such swarming the winged termites break off their wings and start a colony.

The "Other Side" of the St. Lawrence Waterway

THE ST. LAWRENCE Seaway rejected by the U. S. Senate in 1934 on its imagined navigation merits is being stirred into life again with its electric power phases blithely offered as a co-equally important argument. But in neither respect is the seaway needed.

VIEWED as a transportation agency, we already have a lakes-to-the sea route. On it can be, is being, economically borne all the products for which America can find world markets. (Our railroads with their 59% surplus of equipment can handle all traffic given them, now and through the coming generations.)

IT WILL create no new markets, nor new traffic. It is simply a new shipping route, diverting traffic from existing transit agencies. It will function only in summer when railroad efficiency is greatest and need of it would be the least. It will be idle five months each winter when need of it would be greatest.

IT WILL not benefit the auto industry, or the wheat farmer, or bring farm relief, or aid employment, or "cure the depression". It will shorten no trade routes. It has no military value.

VIEWED for its power (half of which belongs to Canada) again the seaway is not needed. The region cannot absorb the vast surplus of harnessed hydro power it now has. The seaway is so remote from consuming (but disinterested) markets that transmission costs would make the new power—as it does present power—so costly as to be unsaleable.

TO ABSORB the contemplated power, an industrial district twice as large as Detroit's must be built adjoining the seaway. Without such a nearby market the power and the immense cost of its development would be wasted.

LASTLY, we must furnish the bulk of the new money needed for a project benefiting another nation more than our own and lying more largely in another's territory than in the United States.

FACT, not fancy and emotionalism, should influence our consideration of the seaway. And the fact is America has come to know it as a project that is economically unsound.

How Many Friends Have You?

IT HAS been said that the number of friends you have depends almost wholly upon you; for friendship is like many other precious possessions in that it does not thrive on neglect.

Modern telephone service is a special boon to those who have been parted by distance. It gives them, despite their separation, the opportunity for "voice reunions"—for a kind of personal contact which only the telephone can provide. Over it they can send greetings, of the season, condolences, congratulations—all the various remembrances that arise from genuine friendship—and prove that absence need not necessarily mean forgetfulness.

Quick, dependable, the telephone service provided by this Company has won a definite part in the social life of the people of Michigan, and daily fulfills an important function in the many occasions which both promote and preserve the treasure of friendship.

Most expressions of friendship, in this modern age, involve the use of the telephone. Direct, personal, inexpensive, it has come to be the recognized means of arranging nearly all informal social gatherings.

It has greatly simplified the rôle of the hostess, relieving her of bothersome complications once inseparable from entertaining. By telephone the woman of today can obtain acceptances or regrets without delay; she can make a last-minute addition to her guests, can quickly summon a fourth for bridge.

Breakfasts for the Busy Family

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON, Director, Home Food Institute

BREAKFAST IS the most regular and sometimes the most difficult meal we have to plan. We can bundle up the family and go out to dinner once in a while, and the children can carry a well packed lunch box to school every now and then to relieve us of planning luncheon, but breakfast we have with us always. Or so it should be. For breakfast is really the most important meal of the day. It gives a hearty send off to a good day's work and every family should have a well developed breakfast habit. But it is sometimes hard to keep our breakfasts interesting. They so easily become a humdrum round of the same dishes prepared in the same way. So we propose variety in breakfast menus—simple variety that will not involve a great deal of work—but variety none the less to pick up our interest. Try these grand recipes and your family will develop fresh new enthusiasm for the first meal of the day.

"THAT'S JUST WHAT I WANT IN MY HOME!"

(you'll say when you visit the Northville Model Electric)

FOR three days only—Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 27, 28 and 29 you will have an opportunity to inspect Northville's new 1936 Model Electric Home, located at 841 West Main Street. But suppose you and I have a preview right now—in advance of the public showing. Then later, when we go through the house, we'll know what to look for and what to see.

It is evening, and as we come up the front walk and approach the entrance, a quaint porch lantern lights the front steps and casts a cheery glow of welcome. There is nothing harsh or glaring about this light. It is soft and friendly and inviting. The sides of the lamp are frosted glass, and the lamp itself is of a design that is in perfect harmony with the architectural style of the house. Off to one side, and hidden unless you look for it, is an outdoor convenience outlet—weatherproof, of course—to plug in the outdoor Christmas tree or other decorative lighting.

And now let us enter the vestibule. The fixture here was selected to furnish enough light for the hallway and lower stairs. If you will observe its design, you will notice that it matches perfectly the railing on the stairway.

The living room is lighted by the new I.E.S. certified semi-indirect floor lamps, which give a white, glareless light that is unequalled for reading or sewing or entertaining. But a novel feature of these lights is the arrangement whereby a switch at the door of the room controls the floor lamps, turning them on and off just as if they were a ceiling fixture. This trick is accomplished by a new method of connecting part of the "Despard" convenience outlet to the switch at the door.

In the dining room, a ceiling fixture has been chosen to provide soft, restful light of the same glareless quality as that in the living room. But now let us step out into the kitchen! Here is a room as bright and pleasant as any in the house. In addition to the central ceiling fixture which furnishes general illumination for the room, small tubes of light have been placed strategically to brighten each corner, permitting work to be done easily and quickly without eyestrain. Among the electrical equipment in the kitchen, there is, of course, the indispensable electric refrigerator that keeps foods cold and cuts down food expenses. And there is also a modern electric range, which brings its time-releasing and labor-saving benefits to the homemaker, and deliciously cooked, healthful meals to the entire family.

The bedrooms are charmingly lighted with semi-indirect fixtures. Portable floor lamps and lamps of the "pin-it-up" variety have been utilized to provide good lighting at any point in the room. If one wishes to read in bed, it is not necessary to depend on the ceiling fixture for light, or the old-style-silk bedlamp. Plenty of convenience outlets have been built into the walls, so that lamps may be placed anywhere. And in order to keep the expense down and still provide enough outlets, a special new type of wire known as "Junior Non-Metallic Cable" has been used. A sample of this wire may be seen at the house by those interested in this technical detail.

A small, obscure item—but one quite important—is the placing of tiny "night lights" in the halls and bedrooms—those ever-watchful little sentinels that facilitate one's walking from room to room during the night without need of turning on the larger lights. The bathroom follows the best modern practice with respect to this room. On either side of the mirror are vertical tubes of light which provide perfect illumination when the man of the house wishes to shave. A recessed light is located over the tub.

Recessed dome lights are also used in the basement recreation room, with mirror-silvered indirect bulbs to furnish adequate and glareless light for games. And so, all through the house, we find that the Science of Seeing has dictated the quality and type of lighting for every room—to assure easy, comfortable seeing and to safeguard eyesight. Now—our "preview" finished—may we remind you once more that the Model Electric Home will be open for inspection only three days—and we cordially invite you to see it.

TOWNSEND PLAN

CHARLES C. LOCKWOOD Part II

In America today every large industry is spending thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to perfect new labor-saving devices in order to throw more and more of their employees out of work. Under our industrial system millions of employees are all through as far as securing employment is concerned at the age of 45 or 50 or even younger. Now what is going to happen to these people?

I believe that labor-saving machinery has made it not only impossible, but unnecessary for millions to work in this country. I believe that it is entirely possible and necessary that we pension our aged men and women, and that that pension be sufficient to maintain them on a decent and Christian scale of living. But in order to obtain this sort of pension, a united and massed campaign must be waged.

You and I know the enormous difficulty that lies in the way of securing adequate social legislation. We know the power that privileged groups exercise in our government. It is seldom that the masses of the people can unite and exert sufficient pressure to secure beneficial legislation. But I feel that through the power and energy of the Townsend movement we are going to secure adequate old age pension laws many years earlier than we would be able to do so.

There is one thing we can be certain of and that is that the masses of our people will get little relief or aid from either a Democratic or a Republican administration until through organized voting strength, they are powerful enough to compel that relief. It is going to be necessary to largely clean out the old type of politician and to take the control of both political parties out of the hands of the predatory group who have largely controlled them in the past.

If the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan has done nothing else it has made this country's old age pension conscious and it has aroused the people everywhere to insist on decent and adequate old age protection and it has pointed out definitely that this expression is not the result of over production, but rather under consumption and lack of purchasing power.

HENRY FORD PLANS TO EXTEND HIS HOLDINGS

Extending his industries westward from Wayne county as rapidly as they can be developed, Henry Ford, according to plat maps of townships in Washtenaw county, is the largest individual landholder in Washtenaw county. Records show that he owns more than 4,500 acres in seven townships.

He has recently purchased the Johnson-Lumber company and equipment in Milan and an extensive building project will begin there. Among the activities proposed will be the changing of the course of the Saline river which crosses the town in two places.

Ford's largest holdings are said to be in Ypsilanti township. There a branch of the Ford factory, the Ford dam and cooperative farms are located. In this township he owns more than 2,000 acres. More than a thousand acres are owned by the manufacturer in Superior township and another large piece of Ford land is in Sharon township, where the Sharon Hollow mill project and many fields devoted to the cultivation of the soy bean, used in the manufacture of rubber compounds and other products, are located. Near Macon in Lecaewee county, Mr. Ford also extensive soy bean acreage.

Eli Terry Clocks: Eli Terry clocks were made during the last few years of the Eighteenth and the early years of the Nineteenth century. Terry lived between the years 1772 and 1852. The Eli Terry clock having the wooden works was devised by him in 1814 and manufactured during the ensuing years.

SENIORS TO PRESENT PLAY APRIL 2, 3

There is a ghastly cry echoing through the high school corridors these days. It emerges from the lips of several of our seniors and this is what it is. "The Second and Third." This eerie call is accompanied by a wild clutching of hair. Don't be frightened however, for the second and third only means that on next Thursday and Friday, "Little Miss Fortune," the senior class' play offering, is to be presented.

Ida Altman, Tom McLoughlin, Chuck Strautz, Evelyn Amber, Frances Alexander, Irene Moods and Jack Stubbenvoll, who were in last year's play, are a little calmer than their fellow thespians, but they, too, occasionally "quake with fear."

THE OBSERVER

Much in the same manner in which the lovely rose stands amid the field of thorns and as a sparkling sapphire dazzles from a group of pebbles, so does this person predominate the mass of students. She is a sophisticate and not too proud of it, but they look upon her as that she is very beautiful. She is the owner of blond hair so brilliant it blinds you but is immediately softened by the azure blue of her eyes.

WHAT HIGH SCHOOL CHOIRS, GLEE CLUBS SING TO PUBLIC

In a study conducted by the author at the University of Michigan last summer, this question was asked of 69 music teachers in the State of Michigan. These teachers were asked to list the compositions which their choirs and glee clubs had actually sung to the public. The results of this questionnaire were tabulated. From the findings it is evident that these high school pupils sing mostly works written by the old masters, such as Bach, Palestrina, Handel, etc.

The members of the Northville High school basketball team should be complimented for their fine spirit towards the tournament games they just played so well. They were neither over-confident to begin with and now they are still showing that same modesty in view of the applause they are receiving.

Lester's Experience As Teacher

Told Here by Fellow Student

By DORIS GREEN We, the fellow-students of Northville High school, extend our sincere and hearty sympathies to Thyra Lester, a member of the so-called senior class.

Thursday afternoon she was appointed instructor of a certain ninth-hour class. Now our heroine is a student of the office practice class, and she has added to her encyclopedia of knowledge that certain difficulties must be calmly approached. Thus, our story begins with Thyra calmly entering a certain room.

Large advertisement for Rembrandt cooking. Includes text: "ALL HONOR TO THE PAINTING OF REMBRANDT but Cooking too is a Fine Art! At the Autumn Salon of 1927 of l'Institut de France, the art of cooking was officially recognized along with painting, literature and sculpture as one of the Fine Arts. Two great contributions to the world's Fine Arts are credited to Holland: the work of the immortal Rembrandt in the field of painting, and the Dutch Oven in the field of cooking. Rembrandt is dead, but the principle of the Dutch Oven lives on... in the finest cooking equipment available today: the electric oven... And countless women who are artists in their own right, whose genius is that of the born cook, give praise to 'REMBRANDT' for without this principle of the Dutch Oven, the principle of steamed flavor that lends an added deliciousness to cooked foods, meals would be far less enjoyable and the work of cooking would suffer a real loss... And the touch of magic that transforms plain, homely ingredients into fascinating, delectable dishes... the skill and talent that thousands of housewives wield in the kitchen to make daily meals a pleasure... these have been aided immeasurably by the modern electric stove. It is an invention that reduces difficulties and multiplies achievements. It is help that no woman who prides herself on her fine cooking would willingly be without. And its price today is well within reach of even the modest home."

THIS WEEK

By H. H. WHITE

By H. H. WHITE

So often you may parents say "We live only for our children. All our lives we have known little of opportunity. We have only known sacrifice and toil. We are going to fix it so our children shall never know by have the struggles we have known. Life is going to be a little easier for them."

This is the worst kind of folly and just how soon parents are going to "fix it" in order that Mary or John may escape the realm of life in their struggle for existence is a matter of mystery.

Perhaps they are going to purchase wisdom, understanding, happiness and opportunities in telephone packages and hand them to their offspring. But these things cannot be acquired like one would an automobile or a house, for a trip around the world.

The parents can only point and guide the way. They will have to instruct their children from out of their own experiences. And the children in turn will have to "get theirs" in like manner.

All that one has is what he has developed for himself and assimilated into his life and no one else can purchase it for him.
