CARR'S DEATH MEANS LOSS TO FAIR DIRECTORS

County Agriculture Agent
Died Aug. 22—Held
Position 12 Years

With the passing of Ralph J. Carr, who died in Grace hospital, Detroit, late Saturday evening, Aug. 22, the Northville-Wayne County Fair loses one of its staunchest supporters. Mr. Carr had been associated with the fair as county agriculture agent for more than 12 years supervising all the agriculture and achievement exhibits. Always he could be relied upon to be "right on the job" and his department was a success not only to the visitors but as a stimulus to the ambition of many a boy and girl throughout the county.

Ralph Carr was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carr and with his two brothers, Roswell and Robin, was brought up in the farm home near Fowlerville in an atmosphere of unusual harmony and wholesome industry. It was no doubt to this influence that Ralph owed his deep interest in boys and girls to whom he gave his unselfish service. He helped youth to find joy in producing his best work.

In his quiet, unassuming way Mr. Carr had won a host of friends throughout the state who had confidence in his absolute integrity.

With the democratic administration much additional federal work was added to his program which made his burden even greater but his work was well and faithfully done.

Mr. Carr was graduated from Michigan State college in 1908. He married Miss Willatice Farmer that same year, who, with a son, William, survived. He is also survived by his two brothers and his father.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in Dearborn with interment in Marble Oak cemetery, Milan.

OPEN BOOK STORE
According to Leslie G. Lee, the Northville school book store will be open for business from Aug. 31—Sept. 4. During these dates used books will be bought and sold for the school year which starts Sept. 8.

VAN ATTA RELEASES EXAMINATION DATE

An open competitive examination for the seventh district for the positions of substitute clerk and substitute city carrier for this village will be held here Sept. 19, according to information received by Postmaster Fred E. Vanatta from the Washington office.

Upon receiving notice of the examination date, Mr. Vanatta released for publication the announcement that all applicants must fill out application blanks and mail them to the Post Office Building, Chicago, Ill., by Aug. 31. These blanks may be obtained at the local post office. "There are no vacancies for these positions at this time," said Mr. Vanatta, "but should there be we'd have no one to fill the places. About two months ago I wrote for information about the examinations. I was notified Saturday that the exams would be given here Sept. 19, to applicants who fill out the blanks and get them in to Chicago before the Aug. 31 deadline," he continued.

From the applicants taking the exam for substitute clerk and substitute city carrier, will be made the eligibility list for use when vacancies occur.

Following is a summation of the qualifications for applicants:

Citizenship—They must be citizens of the United States.

Height and Weight—Male applicants must be at least five feet four inches, in height, without shoes; female applicants at least five feet, without shoes. At the time of appointment male applicants must weigh at least 125 pounds in ordinary clothing, without overcoat or hat.

LOW EDISON RATE
MEANS BIG SAVING
IN VILLAGE OF $52

A reduction in rates for street lighting in the village will mean a saving of $52 a month, according to figures released this week by Mrs. Paul R. Alexander, clerk.

The new rates, a voluntary act of the Detroit Edison company, change the charge of $3 for 40 street lights to $2.50 each month; and $5.50 for 64 street lights to $5 a month.

Despite this saving of more than fifty dollars a month on village expenditures, Mrs. Alexander said she doubted if it would mean that the lights which have not been burning in the business and residential district for sometime would be turned on again.

ATHLETIC COACH TO CONCENTRATE ON FOOTBALL MATERIAL

Barr, Will Start First Week of School to Whip Team in Shape for Season

"I'm going to concentrate on the football squad right now," said Elliott Barr of Shepherd, Northville's new athletic coach, when he was here the forpart of the week arranging the schedule for the games this season.

"At the schedule now stands, we have six games away and only two here. I'd like to rearrange this so we have at least four games on the home field," continued Mr. Barr. One of the biggest games of the season, which is with Farmington, has not been set, pointed out Coach Barr.

The state law prevents football practice from beginning before Labor Day. School starts here Sept. 8, and Mr. Barr expects to begin work on the football team the first or second day of school.

"We're going to work out the Notre Dame system of plays. That means that the two ends will play out yard and the backfield will play in diamond formation," explained Mr. Barr.

Mr. Barr plans to come to Northville about the first of September and spend the week before school begins checking over the equipment he has to work with this year.

Although Mr. Barr's specialty has been in track, he says that he will push the football and basketball teams as hard as he can.

ROTARIANS BACK PROJECT TO AID COLLEGE YOUTHS

All is in readiness at the Rotary booth under the grand stand at the fair grounds where meals are being prepared under the supervision of Mrs. Edith R. McKenna, dietitian at the Maybury sanatorium.

Mrs. McKenna says that she will serve chicken Thursday and Friday. All the meals are to be served cafeteria style, priced at 50 cents for adults and 35 cents for children under 12 years of age.

Rotarians are backing this project in a big way as they consider it one of the best ways to further their student loan fund for young people who want a college education and financial support.

In order to give efficient service, boys will be put to work operating the electric dishwashing machine. A large number of people can be served in a short time through this arrangement.

MERCHANTS PLAN TREASURE HUNTS FOR SEPTEMBER

Continuing the plan to have a weekly attraction to draw shoppers to the local stores, the Civic association released plans this week for two treasure hunts, Sept. 5 and 12, similar to the one held last October. Tickets for the hunt may be obtained from the village merchants. Prizes will be on display next week. Drawings will be posted in the individual stores at 6 p.m. and should the prizes still be unclaimed after an hour's time, new numbers will be posted at 9 p.m.

THREE LOCAL MEN DO SMALL TOWN PLUGGING

Rotarians Listen to Success
Stories From Hannaford,
Gunsell, Litsenberger

Three prominent Northville business men gave short histories of their lives at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club Tuesday noon at the Presbyterian church house. Speakers were Al C. Gunsell, John Litsenberger and Neil Hannaford.

Born in Caro, Mr. Gunsell lived both in that village and on a nearby farm. While going to school he worked in a restaurant and a local drug store. "I guess I was intrigued by the long rows of bottles and the clean odors and then too, the fun of meeting all classes of people," said Mike, "and finally I felt the call to Detroit." He then told of spending a number of years in the big city and of the valuable experiences gained by working in different stores. However, he never did like metropolitan life and was delighted when the opportunity came to take over the Horton drug store business in Northville.

Mr. Gunsell drew a smile from his hearers when he told of the many lines of goods that the modern drug store has to handle. "But we have never yet sold fruit trees," he added. Yet he said that back of all this, a drug store still has as its fundamental business the science of filling out prescriptions. Pharmacy, he stated, dates back 1250 years; we have six games away and only two here. I'd like to rearrange this so we have at least four games on the home field," continued Mr. Barr. One of the biggest games of the season, which is with Farmington, has not been set, pointed out Coach Barr.

16-YEAR-OLD FARM YOUTH DISAPPEARS AFTER LOCAL SHOW

Edward Rowland Missing
For Past Two Weeks,
Wanted at Home

Mrs. Leonard Rowland, 21200 Greer road, cannot sleep at night and has lost 14 pounds since Aug. 7, when Edward, her 16-year-old son, left the farm to attend a show in Northville. This was the last time he was seen by his 12-year-old sister and his parents who are farmers near here.

Worried and sick at heart, Mrs. Rowland told a reporter this week that she wanted word from anybody who had seen Edward. If he is working for some farmer, I wish he'd let me know. It's all right if he is happy working away from home, but I want to know where he is," she pled.

Edward completed the eighth grade at Novi this year. He is five feet, four inches tall; weighs 140 pounds; has brown hair and eyes; and is marked with a deep scar on his left jaw.

When he attended the theatre in the village, Friday evening, Aug. 7, he was wearing a red plaid shirt, light grey trousers and white shoes. "He's quiet, hard-working and is well liked. We've always given him spending money—he need for clothes and there have been no harsh words at home," consoled his mother.

Rotarians are backing this project in a big way as they consider it one of the best ways to further their student loan fund for young people who want a college education and financial support.

In order to give efficient service, boys will be put to work operating the electric dishwashing machine. A large number of people can be served in a short time through this arrangement.

Replies to the question of whether her son was dissatisfied at home, Mrs. Rowland said that he was not.

"Everybody knows his grandfather, Herman Krumm of West Base Line road; and if farmers or travelers who have seen Edward, he's quiet, hard-working and is well liked. We've always given him spending money—he need for clothes and there have been no harsh words at home," consoled his mother.

WELCOME TO THE FAIR AND TO NORTHLVILLE

A brighter, more attractive and, we hope, a more friendly Northville, than a year ago, welcomes the thus-and-to our fair this week.

We thank all our visitors for their coming. Their co-operation and their cordiality are great assets to our community. It was a splendid, neighborly thing for the Plymouth business people to close their stores as they did yesterday to meet with us at the fair.

Today Farmington comes with the same spirit and we are also grateful to them. Our Detroit friends have done nobly for us.

One of the finest values of the fair is that it brings together so many friends who do not meet elsewhere during the year. We note by The Record locals that Richmond P. Benton and wife of Los Angeles have so timed their visit here as to meet friends at the Northville fair. What a splendid tribute that is to the solid institution we have here on South Center street.

So we say: "Welcome to you all. We hope that the time spent here will long linger as a very pleasant memory. Your coming has done us good. Good-by and good luck."

SOON COMETH THE FALL

The sound of the cricket is heard in the land. Big apples are dropping on the ground. School-bells will soon be ringing. Vacationists are taking their last fling and up north the nights are getting cold. Summer is waning and here and there, through the town, coal bins are being filled. If you have something you planned to do this summer, better yet busy, good friends for time hurries on as time has always done and soon doors will soon be coming off. We will, all too soon, be saying: "Good-bye to summer."

LET US BE FRIENDS

An up state paper tells about two friends who happened to be members of different political parties. Four years ago they got to fighting about Hoover and Roosevelt and haven't spoken to each other since. What pitiful nonsense!

We know of nothing like that in Northville—although we take out convictions here seriously, as we should. So far, in the present campaign we have seen little sign of recrimination although there has been plenty of plain speaking—and why not?

There absolutely is nothing finer in life than true friends. Without them and our families, life would hardly be worth living. Let no political campaign bring any break in real friendships. Life is too short for that.

MILLIONS OF HOMES NEEDED

No less an authority than the American Federation of Labour says that 1,300,000 new homes are needed in the United States every year until 1945. In the next nine years, there could be built nearly twelve millions of homes.

The day of the big rambling homes is gone for the average family. The modern housewife—and most of them are modern nowadays—wants hardwood floors, a bright kitchen with up-to-date plumbing, an adequate bathroom and good heating. With our mass production all of these wants can be satisfied in the modern home that can be built for a few thousand dollars.

One thing is sure—if people own their own homes there will be no danger of communism or socialism in this country. The greatest joys of life come from the home. Therefore, give the millions their homes and the United States will still be the greatest nation on the globe.

A BOUQUET FOR MR. BIDDLE

As one of the fine new busses of T. P. Biddle goes by the house, as we write these editorials, the thought flashes into our mind: "Why not say a good word for Mr. Biddle?"

So here is the good word:

"Northville appreciates the splendid bus service that he is giving us. We like his progressive ways in mapping out schedules that hook us up with the Maybury Sanatorium and with Detroit and points between. We like his interest in Northville and his willingness always to take a chance on some new plan to give better transportation facilities."

"We are glad that T. P. Biddle came to town."

JUST ONE SUGGESTION FOR THE FAIR

The Northville Wayne County fair has been so well and so progressively managed through the years that it is pretty hard to make any worthwhile suggestion to the directors. Yet, every time we drive by the main gate, we wish that some benefactors would provide for a new and worthy entrance to the grounds from Center street.

A brick entrance, overhung with ivy, would be a thing of beauty that would be in keeping with the stability and dignity of our fair. Who will show the way?

HOW MUCH COURTESY SHOULD WE EXPECT?

"My, what a cross voice that man had—is he always like that?" said the bookkeeper as she handed the telephone over to us. After we had gotten the message from one of the finest men in Northville, we said to her: "No, that's just his way. His voice sounds big and gruff but underneath it all, he is big-hearted and kind."

Yet we suppose we could all improve our telephone technique a little. Separate some people by space and hook them up with telephones and they seem to lose the courtesy that they would show you face to face. Why is that? Probably for the same reason that makes some people courteous when you talk with them face to face and yet that makes them boors and selfish "road hogs" when they get behind the wheel of a powerful automobile.

Just how much courtesy should we expect from people? You tell us.

THE REAL ESTATE BOOM IS HERE

An editorial in this column several weeks ago pointed out the word of experts that a real estate boom, which would see a great spurt in both building and buying of homes, would soon be found everywhere throughout the country.

Evidences that the boom is striking in the Detroit area are plentiful.

"I have been traveling around for days trying to locate a lot or house that will fit our purse and have been surprised at the jump in values that has come lately," said a Detroit man to us last week. He told of going to Gross Pointe and of finding that lots that sold a year or two ago at one thousand dollars, now could not be purchased for less than three thousand. These are lots that were priced at ten thousand dollars during the great boom before 1929.

Building is starting again—as the experts said it would. In Detroit, we are told, carpenters who a few months ago were glad to work for only wages, now want wages and a profit on the houses they are building. In some parts of Detroit they say that one can now build a moderate priced home and sell it in a few months at a profit of a thousand dollars. The only bargains in homes there are now, are the big ones that cost from $25,000 to $100,000 and which very few people can maintain. Only one man in a thousand wants such a bargain. Nine out of ten people are looking for a house costing from $4,000 to $10,000.

Unless all signs fail, this building boom will be striking Northville one of these days. We continue to lose families to Plymouth, Wayne, and other nearby communities because there is practically nothing to rent here. It would seem that some are doing profitably put up some apartments here and make good on the investment.

Homemaker's Corner

By MRS. EDITOR

AFTER THIRTY YEARS

Always when the goldenrod flings its blossoms out along the country side and the piping sounds of late summer fill the air they say "It's goldenrod time! Know what that means?" (No, not hay fever!) The anniversary of the day when they stood together before a bank of ferns and goldenrod and promised to walk henceforth together "till death do us part."

And then back goes memory to that tense moment at the head of the old oaken stairs in our father's house. That pause while the familiar Föhringer March was played to a certain point—that march that has spurred on the hesitating steps of many a bride to cross the narrow threshold from care-free girlhood to wifehood.

Was that dress hanging all right? It had served as a graduating gown just two months before and was the "latest style". Very full in the skirt, very tight at the waist, very pillowy in the blouse and very high in the collar.

Someone gave her a slight push from the rear. Oh yes, there was the strain, "Here Comes the Bride," and she clasped her armful of roses tighter and trudged down the stairs to meet the one who was to share her future "for better, for worse." Before them stood both fathers, one to tie the knot and the other to give it an additional twist. It ought to hold.

With less than nothing materially, they turned and faced the future fearlessly, partly from the ignorance of youth, but mostly because they had known each other for three years. Courtship had not been merely "dates" with moonlight and roses. Together they had waded drifts of snow to her father's country home. He had seen her at household tasks, wearing a work dress. He had even taken up a dish towel and helped finish the job so that she could go for that walk sooner.

He had seen her tired, he had seen her cross. They learned that they had interests in common, ideals similar. They learned each other's faults and virtues, therefore they ventured fearlessly into the unknown.

Thirty years! And not all "smooth sledding" by any means but they are happy to have weathered the storms together.

The remarks of a Chicago judge who has had 40,000 cases of marital disputes and has reconciled 2,000 are appropriate here. He believes that at the bottom of most unhappiness are mere trivialities. These simple rules, says he, would defeat much trouble:

1. Have patience with each other.
2. Work together, play together.
3. In all disputes avoid excited talk.
4. Do not conceal little differences until they accumulate to the break-

Certainly these are all very simple things—and none of the rules is startlingly new. If they are the answer to marital peace and happiness, and most of us will readily agree, why are they individually not more frequently observed?

Doubtless because they are simple enough and seem easy enough while everything is going smoothly. It is when they are most needed, however, when there is resentment and dissension and hot-headedness, that these simple remedies are not so easy to observe. It is like telling a vehicle that is rolling rapidly down hill to be reasonable in turning the corner.

"That you may say is what we have brakes for." And that is exactly how married people should use such a set of rules—as brakes, when they feel things going down hill. Once they stop you, the rest is simple enough. What they tell you to do is really what you want to do. It's the stopping to think about it that is the big thing.

Use Canadian Setting in Feature at Theatre; "Little Red Schoolhouse" Heads Double Booking Wednesday

While our own American government is spending millions of dollars annually in perfecting her G-Man organization with new and more effective methods of combating the rapidly spreading menace of kidnap-flauding "spectator" will find "Trails of the Wild" not only a monument to its screen Friday and Saturday, a timely study of the Canadian treatment of this dangerous subject, with the accomplished actress Maurice Conn, president of American Pictures, Inc., was fortunate in getting Kermit Maynard leading a notable cast in James Oliver Curwood's Newfield, who is also a criminologist of note, to make the picture. He spared no expense in securing his sky-rocketing career.

Kermit Maynard's unbounded courage, splendid physique and ability to portray red-blooded characters of the outdoors, has made him an ideal model of one of Canada's relentless guardians of justice, the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. As a Mountie in "Trails of the Wild" he is sent into the great wilderness of the north to join the ranks of a ruthless band of kidnapping murderers, in order to rescue an American mining engineer who is being held captive. The hair-raising situations that he is forced to face smiting, with only two bare fists and a grim determination to accomplish his purpose provides thrills that will raise an audience to its feet with cheers.

LITTLE RED SCHOOLHOUSE

The Little Red Schoolhouse, that familiar landmark of an earlier day, is destined to come in for its share of dramatic glory in the Chesterfield melo-dramatic comedy of that title, which will be shown for the first time locally at the Penman-Alten theatre next Wednesday. A story about roundies, it presents a large group of the most talented and most popular children in Hollywood. Among them are Frank Capra Jr. (who was "Junior" became so congested with mechanical birthday), Dennis Moore, Kenneth W. Jayne, appointed Mr. Smith chairman of a committee of lawyers, Doran and Lloyd Douglas play the two most important adult roles, the teachers at "The Little Red Schoolhouse," Richard Cohn, Ralph Harolde, Frank Shertliff, Matthew Betz, Fred Kelsey, Lyle McKee, and Jack Shutt are some of the others in the large cast.

"Little Red Schoolhouse," an original screen play by Paul Perez, is one of the comedies and tragedies that appeal every younger as he is going to find himself in his fortysome years at school. Its characters are all the students of every school, the person that trains the children of today, the person you attended when you were a kid. You among them will find, among others, the unknown bully, longing over his fellow, the restless, capricious boy, anxious to break away from his studies to make his way in the world of work, the familiar teacher's pet, without whom no class would be complete, the student of course, whose letter-perfect lessons preface the vicious hatred of his fellows, the young galant, waiting at three o'clock to carry the bundle of books for the girl of his dreams, and little Slaty, herself, with gaily colored short skirts and long blonde hair as an inveterate flirt fondly aloof as her youthful suitors pursue each other for her favor.

By a sudden twist in the story, the plot develops a melodramatic turn. A wayward youngster, tired of school and what he thinks is the oppression of the teachers, runs away from home to try his lot in the city. Inadvertently, he becomes involved with a gang of robbers, is implicated in a shooting and is sentenced to reform school. Almost too late he learns the lesson that the teachers at "The Little Red Schoolhouse" are the best friends a fellow can have.

TWO BARRIERS TO BUILDING

John J. Pope in Grandville Star Business is better. The facts and figures bear this out without danger of dispute and yet we see no evidence of a building boom—at least in the southwest metropolitan area of Grand Rapids.

It's true that a lone house—perhaps an occasional store building—is going up here and there, but there is no construction activity which might even remotely forecast a building boom.

In the face of returning prosperity and an acute housing shortage which has redeemed real estate as a profitable investment, building activity should be headed sharply upward.

If the law of supply and demand governs building work as it is supposed to other lines of business we know the demand is apparent and the fault must lie with the source of supply. I think that high building costs plus high financing costs are the twin barriers to an extensive building program.

JUST looking at Axel Adverse, you know that he constantly crusades for truth. No one is going to pull the wool over his eyes when it comes to claiming gasoline mileage.

Anxious to be fair about the whole thing, we'll go a big step beyond Axel's contention and concede that no one gets "a honest miles a gallon" with Standard Red Crown.

But we do have every reason to believe that this excellent motor fuel gives as many miles per gallon as any gasoline you can buy—quite possibly more.

In any event, thousands of midwest motorists are getting the truth, first hand, in the World's Greatest Road Test, instituted by Standard Oil. Even though you may not be driving one of the Research Test Cars, it will pay you to...

Isabell Wilkinson Writes Highlights of Northern Trip—She Visited a CCC Camp and Home of Curwood's Heroine

Isabell Wilkinson returned recently from a motor trip through the north with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Wilkinson, and has written the following highlights of her vacation.

By ISABELL WILKINSON, Age 15
My parents and I started out very early on Sunday morning heading north with the car loaded with everything from kitchen utensils to ash trays. We made a stop in Bay City. It reminded you of Detroit, our a smaller edition. After much needed refreshments, we continued on. By this time it was terribly warm.

Our next stop was Pineconefire. There Paul Bunyan's ox cart and armchair may be seen. The ox cart is about eight feet high and the arm chair is about seven feet high. We stopped at other small towns, but none were of importance.

We finally reached West Branch and inquired about the lakes. Then we rented a cottage at Clear Lake which is surrounded by pine trees and dotted with small islands. It is the ideal place for the summer vacationer.

Go North, vacationers, go North.

Three Local Men Review Histories

able, said Mr. Gunsel, yet there are many so-called "patent medicines" that are the "punks." Much of the radio advertising on drugs is ridiculous, he concluded.

Fennville was the birthplace of Mr. Lisenberger but after six years spent there the family moved to a farm near Nixon. Soon after, said they came to Northville where his father started in the blacksmith business. As he became older he helped his father care for the horses—and although he didn't say so in his speech—pulling off horse shoes helped John develop the strength that later made him one of the finest athletes in the history of Northville high school.

Mr. Lisenberger told interestingly how he peddled papers in the village, using one of his father's Shetland ponies to make his route around town. From newsboy and helper to his father, he finally got the chance to get into athletics and later to shoveling coal. He went on to tell the story how one evening, after a hard day helping unload a whole car of coal, he dropped into the barber shop near the Lapatham bank. To his great surprise, E. H. Lapatham asked him to come into the bank. To his greater surprise, Mr. Lapatham offered him a job in the bank. So, in January of 1921, with only half a year of school left before graduation, he began working mornings and evenings at the bank. He stayed there for ten years and during all that time, he said, Mr. Lapatham never once said a cross word to him. Mr. Lisenberger touched briefly on his work as village treasurer. Then in 1933 came the chance to buy a gasoline station on North Center street and he has since been in business for himself.

Nell Hanaford closed the auto-biographies by telling the story of how he, like the two other speakers, finally landed in business for himself, in Northville and is enjoying the experience. Neil said that he was born in Traverse City but spent much of his younger life in Highland Park where his father was a contractor and builder. He went to high school there and afterward into a hardware store. Then there came a chance to get into the Ford plant and he worked there for five years. But the lure of the hardware business followed him and he went back into a store and began to study nights on correspondence courses.

Although he lived in Detroit for a number of years, said Mr. Hanaford, he was always eager to get out of the big city. His years of experience made him confident that he could succeed for himself and when he got the chance to come to Northville two years ago and go into business as the Northville Hardware company, on the corner of Main and Center streets, the former Babbitt's store, he jumped at the chance. "I have a long ways to go and a lot to learn but I love the business and don't want to live anywhere but Northville," he concluded.

Vice President E. H. Lapatham took over the chairmanship of the meeting after President W. E. Forney was called to the fair grounds. Touching on the speech of Mr. Lisenberger, Mr. Lapatham said that E. M. Bogart, another Rotarian, was the first cashier of the local school bank.

The Garden club will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Susan Eaton, Eaton drive, Sept. 7.

D., of the First Presbyterian church of Denver, Colo., stopped Saturday for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Clark. Mr. Anderson was formerly pastor of the Emmanuel Presbyterian church of Detroit of which the late Mrs. Phil H. Grennan was a member.

Wooden Shoes to Measure

The Belgian shoemaker, John Vrombaut, in the Streets of the World, at the Great Lakes Exposition in Cleveland, makes wooden shoes for visitors to be used as souvenirs. His wife, Matilda, helps him the shoes out of rough wood. The Vrombaus were born in Eckloo, Belgium, 58 years ago and since they were old enough to work they have been practicing their trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hedge of Los Angeles, Calif., were visitors of Mrs. Hedge this week. They left Thursday to continue their trip to New Jersey and New York.

The regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors of America will be Monday, Sept. 31. It is expected that those of any other year with Paul B. Thompson using students from his manual training class to demonstrate the work in that department, the attractiveness of the school display has increased.

The free acts scheduled for the grand stand audience Thursday include the comedians, Franz and Fuller, the cyrists St. Claire and O'Day, the trio handwavers, the Kitagains.

Wednesday evening, the displays in all the buildings were ready for inspection and judging. Notable among the exhibits was the section reserved for the Northville schools.

This year the school entries exceed those of any other year with Paul

B. Thompson using students from his manual training class to demonstrate the work in that department, the attractiveness of the

MRS. JOSEPHINE CARR SURFERS SEVERE FADE

Mrs. Josephine Carr, who recently reached her 83rd birthday, had the misfortune to fall while going up the steps of the porch at the home of her daughter Mrs. A. E. Fuller, tearing and bruising her left hand severely. It was necessary to have 11 stitches taken in the injured finger which Mrs. Carr is wearing in a splint. With her customary fortitude she is making no complaint except that she can't wash the dishes now.

STUDY IN CONTRASTS

(Seyre, Pa. Evening Times)

Roosevelt is of a wealthy and socially prominent family of New York. He was educated at Groton and Harvard. He has held many political positions, to all of which he has been elected by his influential friends. His intimates are men of the Vincent Astor type.

Landon is of a sturdy, hardworking, middle-class American family of moderate means and less influence or political connections. As a boy, he learned his living hugging water in pipe-line gang. His education was secured in the public schools and at the University of Kansas. His business has been that of an independent oil producer. He has had but one political job, and that you still less.

Roosevelt has never learned the value of a dollar because he has never had to earn one. He is a leader with a typical political viewpoint toward public funds. Roosevelt does not believe in, etc.

Roosevelt is visionary, delusional, over-optimistic. He is a fluent promoter without particular concern as to fulfillment. Landon is solid, forthright, realistic and methodically honest. He never makes a promise without being certain he can keep it. Roosevelt's chief objectives are votes, power and personal popularity.

Roosevelt is scornful of old-fashioned American ways of doing things, impatient of plodding thrift and the wisdom of experience. He is a believer in short cuts, patent economic panaceas and magic formulas for recovery, for executing which he demands a dictator's powers and no interference. To gain his ends he is perfectly willing to appeal to class prejudice and to stir up group hatreds.

Landon believes that America can go forward best and fastest on the American road of individual initiative, ability and opportunity.

In nearly every point the one is the antithesis of the other.

ED. BROCK FAVERS LOCAL BUSINESS FOR THE LOCAL PEOPLE

Edward R. Brock, republican candidate for the Wayne county drain commissioner, who resides at 1615 W. Grand Boulevard, was born in the City of Detroit, a taxpayer and property owner, is married, forty-two years of age. He was educated in the public and parochial schools of that city, with a business and commercial training, and was a successful wholesale and retail farm and produce merchant for twenty years.

Edward R. Brock is constable of the Fourteenth ward, having been elected and is serving his fourth consecutive term. He believes in a progressive program yet rigid economy in the expenditure of public money, and in a more equal distribution of public improvements and services, that all taxpayers may derive proportionate benefits therefrom.

He insists that all contracts that are let out society that the jobs be given to the people of Wayne County, and that an American standard living wage be paid.

Mr. Brock is a World War Veteran and a member of the American Legion.

His experience makes him the logical choice.

Guided by a keen business sense, his past record stands as a splendid testimonial to his worth. He has earned your support.

Endorsed by social and business leaders.

Thank you.

Big Program For Exposition Farm Week

Waving fields of grain and iron ore and machinery will blend symbolically at the Great Lakes Exposition when Farm Week is celebrated at the Exposition from August 17 to August 22.

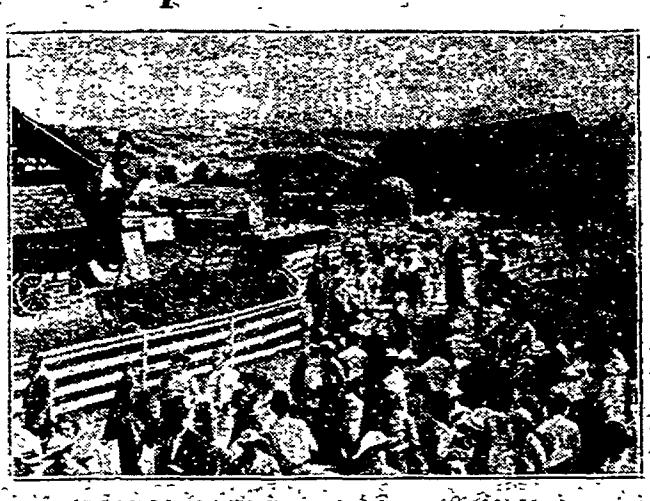

Agriculture and industry, which make for the greatness of the Great Lakes area, will have a holiday together in the full program which has been arranged for the entire week. Boys and girls of the rural area will have a chance to see at first hand how iron and steel are made and how machinery is produced and their city cousins in turn will learn about the raising of the crops that provide them with food and clothing.

The entire week will be a holiday for the rural population of the Great Lakes region. It will be their opportunity to enjoy the entertainment, exhibits, displays, buildings and educational features of the Great Lakes Exposition, already enjoyed by over one and one-half million people from all sections of the country.

Featured on the program of the opening day of Farm Week, which is Agricultural Day, will be a health contest to select the healthiest boy and girl; a style show for the best dressed girl and the best costume versatility by a girl; and an identification contest to identify a wide variety of implements, articles and crops found on the farm. Prizes will be awarded at a special ceremony which will be held on the stage of the beautiful Marine Theatre of the Exposition. The 4-H Clubs are actively participating in planning and conducting these contests and programs.

Throughout the entire week there will be concerts and entertainments in the many colonial spots of the 150 acre grounds of the Exposition.
