RECORD SHARES SUBSCRIPTIONS WITH CHURCHES

Preachers Accept Proposal for Special Christmas Newspaper Fund

Northville's five churches have an opportunity to make a contribution to the Record's subscription campaign which begins Dec. 4 and continues through the Christmas shopping season until office closing time at 5 p. m. Dec. 24.

The office makes it possible for the churches to make 40 cents out of every $1.50 renewal and 50 cents out of every $1.50 paid on new subscriptions to the Record office, the subscriber has the privilege of stating which church he wants to be credited.

A bulletin board will be posted in the Record office and the credits will be marked daily on the chart to indicate the gains each church makes during the day.

By sharing the subscription cost with the village churches, each denomination will be able to enlarge the scope of its Christmas treats and at the same time the Record reading family will be increased.

"I think this proposition would be a fine thing for our Fellowship class to back," commented the Rev. Harry J. Lord of the Methodist church this week when he learned of the plan.

"We need the money. I hope any church will work in this matter. I don't have much time for carpentering myself, but it sounds like a good idea to me," responded the Rev. Kendall S. North of the Baptist church.

"Of course I won't be here to see this thing through, but I believe my people will be interested," said the Rev. Harold G. Whitfield.

Arthur Schnate, who was contacted as a representative from the St. Paul's Lutheran church, favored the plan as did the Rev. Fr. Joseph G. Schuler of Our Lady of Victory church, who referred the matter to Miss Lena Kohler.

TWO VISITING TEAMS BEGIN SEASON HERE ON VILLAGE COURT

The Farmington high school basketball team plays University high school of Ann Arbor on the local floor at 7:30 tonight.

This will be the opening game of the season for both teams as well as for the fans.

Both teams are well known to Northville fans. In fact, this will give Northville court followers a team a life on the Farmington cagers and some idea of what to expect when Northville plays Tuesday, Dec. 8, at Farmington.

University high brings a veteran team and Farmington prospects are different from last year. While not expecting a championship team, Farmington will have a larger, more experienced team than last year's one which is expected to play a strong game from the start of the season.

EDWARD LOCKMAN INJURED TUESDAY

Edward Lockman, chief engineer of Maybury sanatorium, is recovering today at Maybury from severe injuries suffered at 8 a. m. Tuesday when a car driven by a fellow employee, Charles "Scotty" Milne, skidded against him as he stood by the running board of his car. The accident occurred on the Maybury grounds.

The impact pinned Mr. Lockman between the two cars, causing serious fractures to both legs. "His left leg is badly broken. The right leg fracture runs into the knee joint," said the attending physician.

Mr. Lockman had just helped a nurse, Miss Mary VanDomelein, start her car and was standing beside the running board of his own car when Mr. Milne, driving Miss VanDomelein's car, skidded on the ice and hit Lockman.

"Both Lockman's legs have been placed in splints. He'll have normal use of both legs when he has fully

3 HUNTING GROUPS RETURN FROM TREK TO NORTH COUNTRY

9 Men from Forney Camp
Shot 7 Deer; Took Not with Turnbull

Three groups of hunters returned to the village within the past week from hunting trips in northern Michigan. Two of the parties had their game bags full, one group had nothing to show for its outing.

Nine hunters who spent several days in the W. E. Forney camp at Covington returned Sunday evening with seven deer to show for their trek into the north. The record for the hunt is held by Sam Stremick who got his deer the first hour out of camp. "I went out every day after that to see if I could get a deer, but no luck," he reported.

"It was a very lovely trip. We had a nice time," were the words Mr. Forney used to describe the hunting. His bag held an eight-point deer.

The chief cook of this camp was Arthur S. Nichols, said Mr. Stremick. Others in the group were Edward E. Balko, Edward Rehnus, Herman Tesika, Arthur Stillwell, Don Hamilton and Fred Hicks. Hamilton's buck was a 15-pointer.

Mr. Nichols shot his deer the last hour before the hunters broke camp. He was sitting in front of the cabin when his buck victim chanced by. Nichols aimed carefully and bagged him.

Tunis Eiddle and John Hanna returned to Northville Nov. 25, after hunting near Sindsay. Eiddle bagged a buck.

C. B. Turnbull and three of his friends hunted near Covington and came in Saturday with nothing in their game bags. B. E. Warner, Herb Wauson of Rochester and Mr. Mark of North Adams made the trek with Mr. Turnbull.

TWO CLUB GROUPS HEAR 6-MAN TALK

Cunningham Explains Work of Federal Department of Justice Bureaus

By C. A. DOLPH.
James D. Cunningham, Detroit, special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, United States Department of Justice, was the speaker at the Exchange-Rotary club meeting Wednesday noon, Nov. 25.

The club members and guests listened carefully while the speaker outlined the origin, jurisdiction and training of men like himself who had entered the department.

Mr. Cunningham told who were selected and how they were trained to handle the bureau work in 37 offices operated throughout the nation.

Eighty seven per cent of the men held college degrees and all were lawyers or accountants. Each had to be trained in the use of every type of fire arm used by criminals and were called at stated times to see how efficient they were after a few months' work.

After telling about the apprehension of criminals and the certainty with which they were eventually run to earth, the speaker dwelt upon the importance of finger printing for all citizens.

In Washington, 6,200,000 finger prints are registered and new ones and old ones are coming in at the rate of 3,700 daily.

The classification of finger prints as explained by the speaker was instructive indeed. All prints are classified by nine types and it is possible to go to those on file in Washington and find if the new ones just received have criminal records. This information can be back to police officials inside of 26 hours.

All citizens were urged to have their finger prints filed in the citizen's list so that in case of accident, loss of memory or disappearance the person thus afflicted could soon be definitely identified.

The company of 50 surely enjoyed the dinner served and the address by Mr. Cunningham.

LAPHAM LAUGHS AT RHYMING CHECK

Edward H. Lapham is still chuckling over the "poetry" he found written as endorsement on a check that came through the ticket at the Depository State bank the other day. And the writer of the check laughed with the banker when he read: "This check payment in full. For one Brown Swiss bull. Vernon M. Spencer, who drew the check, is a well-known breeder of fine Brown Swiss cattle over at

LEE'S CHORUS WILL REPEAT 'MESSIAH' HERE

Practices to Begin Sunday Afternoon for Holiday Musicals, Dec. 20

In preparation for the presentation of the fourth, consecutive year of Handel's "Messiah," Dec. 20, in the Presbyterian church, Leslie G. Lee, school music supervisor, is calling a practice at 3:30 p. m., Sunday, Dec. 13, in the Methodist church.

"I am particularly anxious to contact more singers, especially the ones who sing with the chorus the last three years, and any other singers in the village who may have sung the 'Messiah' in other communities," affirmed Mr. Lee this week when he announced that the performance would be repeated in December.

Last year 70 voices, thrilled villagers who crowded into the Presbyterian church during the Christmas season to hear the "Crucifixion" and the "Resurrection" and Christmas portions of the "Messiah." Assisting the local musicians last December were two artists from Plymouth, Miss Emma Strasen, organist, and Miss Inez Curtis, pianist.

It is expected that the chorus this year will equal that of the previous three years.

Solo parts were taken last year by Mrs. M. J. Kolyke, soprano; Ray VanValkenburgh, tenor; Mrs. Victor J. Lunnely, contralto; and Carl H. Bryan, bass.

LUTHERAN CHICKEN SUPPER IS DEC. 9

Women of the St. Paul's Lutheran church are making final preparations for their annual fried chicken dinner which will be held Wednesday, Dec. 9, in the church hall. Serving will begin at 5 p. m.

This dinner is always served family style and is often the occasion for family and group entertaining.

Mrs. Charles Metzner is chairman of the kitchen committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Hamilton and Mrs. Fred Balko.

Heading the dining room committee is Mrs. Martha Martens. Mrs. Elizabeth Arndt has been appointed to help her.

Mrs. Arthur Schnate has charge of the sale of tickets which are priced at 60 cents and 50 cents for children under ten years of age.

The appetizing menu includes a number of dishes: fried chicken, mashed potatoes, cabbage salad, carrots, cranberries, pickles, rolls, butter, coffee, mince and pumpkin pies.

MISS SYBIL SIMMONS OPENS BEAUTY SHOP

Miss Sybil Simmons, recently of Plymouth, has set up a beauty parlor in the room adjoining Marshall Street's barber shop on the corner of Main and Center streets.

Miss Simmons has had 12 years' experience in her work and will have her formal opening in Northville this week.

PREACHERS WRITE AGAIN FOR RECORD

Northville Record readers responded so favorably last year when Christmas messages were penned for publication by village ministers that similar articles will appear in the Record until the first of the year.

The article this week was written by the Rev. Father Joseph G. Schuler, pastor of the Our Lady of Victory church. In the Dec. 11 issue, the Rev. Harry J. Lord, minister of the Methodist church, will write for the column. He is to be followed by the Rev. Kendall S. North, pastor of the Baptist church.

Beneath Bethlehem a Star

By The Rev. Fr. Joseph G. Schuler

We are approaching an event which stands out like the north star in the firmament of history—the Birth of Jesus Christ. At the Crib of Bethlehem the highways of history meet and depart; by the Crib of Bethlehem are dates reckoned and events tabulated; with that Crib the clock of history has been changed from B. C. to A. D. So deeply has the birth of Christ plunged its roots into the soil of time that this very year, month, day and hour is calculated by it. This article, however, shall attempt to show how God disposed the events of history so that the avenues of time led up to the town of Bethlehem.

Our story carries us back to those remote days when man first rebelled against his Creator, to the time when this estrangement became almost complete. This brazen defiance in the face of God might have been punished by eternal reprobation but no! God's mercy could not so easily abandon the sons of men.

That they might not despair the Eternal Father promised them One who would appear in the fullness of time and who would be the Savior of man. From that time forward deep in the heart of every Jew there was a longing, an awaiting for the Promised One, and that chord of hope became the cornerstone of the Religion of Israel.

God preached and spread this religion by means of the good men of old, the prophets. They preached faith in One God, One infinite and holy, just, merciful and providing, the Rewarder of good and the Avenger of evil. They preached a form of worship to be exercised privately in the heart and publicly in the Temple. They exhorted the people to charity, justice, and mercy towards all men. They promulgated a code of morals, the parallel of which can be found in no other ancient nation, the sublime dictates of the Ten Commandments.

So began the religion of Israel, first a tiny stream, piecemeal for primitive minds, in successive revelations, until God poured the wider and deeper rivers into the waters of the ocean of Christianity. Though this religion of the Old Testament was far superior to all others, it was not perfect and complete in itself, but as a preparation for another and greater religion: It was professed to be but breaking the ground for a more sublime religion, the mapping out the ground-plan and laying the foundation stones of a great cornerstone. When Christ came he said explicitly that He came not to destroy this foundation but to build upon it. "I came not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it." (Matt. 5, 17.) And in the course of His ministry we see Him building so naturally and beautifully out of this prophetic foundation.

So perfectly do the various teachings of Christianity interlock and dovetail with the beliefs of the prophetic religion, so perfectly does Christianity complete and finish the work of the prophets, that we must acknowledge therein the Hand of the Divine Architect, Who of old, working through His prophets, now perfects and completes through His Divine Son, Jesus Christ. These facts penetrate the clouds of the supernatural and stand like mighty columns, defying the winds of time and the rains and storms of disbelief, supporting and proving the divinity of Christ and Christianity, that same Jesus Christ whose birth into this world will be celebrated for the 1936th time this coming Dec. 25.

DR. J. M. BURGESS, 84, CONTINUES PRACTICE HEART ATTACK FATAL TO A. D. PHILLIPS

With a warm spot in their hearts for their old family physician, many Northville friends will be interested to hear that Dr. J. M. Burgess, now of Detroit, who practiced in this community for many years, reached his eighty-fourth birthday Nov. 1.

Dr. Burgess, associated with his son in Detroit, still continues his medical practice. With his daughter, Miss Mabel Burgess, he spends the summer months in the old homestead on West Main street, Northville.

Recently the Burgess family joined in the celebration of the Golden wedding anniversary of the brother of Dr. Burgess, Charles Burgess, and Mrs. Burgess at Kalamazoo.

ILLNESS SENDS BRADER TO HIGHLAND PARK HOSPITAL

S. L. Brader, ill with respiratory infection, was taken to Highland Park hospital Thursday afternoon. His local attending physician said that his condition was not critical.

Mr. Brader has been in poor health for several months, although it was not until this week that it was necessary for him to give up his work in his store and stay in bed.

BUSINESS MEN PREPARE FOR HOLIDAY TRADE

Heavy Yuletide Shopping Is Expected in Northville This Season

Northville's shops are rapidly becoming centers for Christmas shopping. In no other year have the local merchants carried such extensive lines of attractive gift merchandise, artistically displayed as they are this season.

Two new stores, the Louis and the Bonnie, give villagers a wider selection for their shopping tours than was possible last December.

Minute interviews with a few of Northville's merchants this week revealed a note of optimism for the buying season.

"I look for at least a 50 per cent increase in buying over last year's figures. There were a great many persons buying last year, but as a rule, they bought inexpensive articles. This year there seems to be a trend to buy expensive gifts," asserted Nell Hannaford.

Mrs. L. B. Holmes has also noted this tendency to spend more money on gifts. "Christmas buying has started here already. I find that general business all season has greatly increased. Shoppers have been purchasing gifts and cards for all occasions," she affirmed.

C. B. Turnbull, who has been busy since his return from the north woods getting his new Christmas merchandise ready for display, stopped long enough this week to say that he had his stock in readiness now for the season's gift buying. "I look for a heavy Christmas. A study of other places indicates that this is going to be a good electrical year," he said.

M. C. Gunsell, after spending some time Wednesday writing copy for an advertising circular which will be used in every Northville home as a shopping guide, said that he expected a 25 per cent increase over last year. "The buying has started early and people are really going to town," said Mr. Gunsell.

SESSIONS HOSPITAL ADDS OXYGEN TENT

It was Thanksgiving at Sessions hospital last Thursday when 15 patients, all "on the mend," were happily surprised with trays all dressed up with gay napery and favors with a fine turkey dinner spread out on them. Away with eggs and soups for the day! It was Thanksgiving and the corps of nurses, Superintendent Irene Pennel, Miss Christine Fisher, Miss Corrie Lee and Miss Rose Harrison all did their best to make the day cheerful for those who had to stay in a hospital on a family day.

Not a single operation broke the peace of the occasion and only two or three minor accident cases were brought in for first aid.

One very great cause for Thanksgiving is a new up-to-the-minute oxygen tent which is indispensable in treating pneumonia and heart.

Miss Lena Kohler This Year; Invite Public

Observing their fourth annual gift party, Catholics and their friends will gather at 8 p. m. Monday, Dec. 7, in the high school gymnasium. This affair is open to the general public.

According to the Rev. Fr. Joseph G. Schuler, the leaders of last year's ladies' groups, under the general chairmanship of Miss Lena Kohler, will have charge of the soliciting, arrangement and distribution of the various prizes for the evening. Miss Kohler will be assisted by Mrs. E. J. Verduyn, Mrs. L. C. Stewart, Mrs. S. Strainick, Mrs. J. L. Hickey, Mrs. A. Funke, Mrs. P. Hausbeck, Mrs. D. Martin and Mrs. R. M. Terrill.

During the evening's events, Charles LePere will call the numbers for the games. M. J. Murphy and Al Heatley will take charge of the receipts for the tickets that have been distributed.

As in past years, a number of games will be played, each game having three prizes. These prizes are suitable for Christmas gifts or are practical for personal use. After the games have been played, the 15 grand prizes, donated through the courtesy of local merchants and church members, will be given away.

At 9 a. m. Sunday, Dec. 6, 12 men who have been named by Fr. Schuler will meet at the church for the purpose of deciding upon the games to be used and to elect a chairman from the group.

WALLED LAKE TAKES AMATEUR ENTRIES

Invite Village to Compete with 7 Other Towns for Cash Prizes, Dec. 9

Widespread interest is being taken by the people of Walled Lake and surrounding communities in the "Major Bowes" amateur contest to be held in Walled Lake the evening of Dec. 9, in the school gymnasium.

Entries have been received from Milford, South Lyon, Wilcox, Novi, New Hudson and Pontiac as well as the host town.

Northville is among the villages which has been invited to send talent to the contest. Leslie G. Lee, supervisor of Northville school music, is the local committeeman.

The committees in charge state that a program of wide variety is assured and will be further augmented by a specialty program by local entertainers who will not be competitors in the contest.

According to C. E. Hutton's publicity release, several really nationally known guests are expected to be present in the audience and will be presented by "The Major."

Mrs. Fred Thayer, in charge of the program committee, stated that entries would be accepted up to the night of the program. There will be prizes of $5 and $3.

M. E. MISSIONARY GROUP GIVES PLAY

High points in the annual Women's Home Missionary society's Sunday Thank Offering Service, held Sunday evening in the Methodist church, were a talk by the Rev. H. J. Lord, a solo by Maurice Gies and a play by society members.

The playlet, "All in the Same Boat" was presented by a cast which included Mrs. Dana Briggs, Miss Grace Temper, Miss Rose Mary Rennie, Surley MacLean and Vera Briggs.

Mr. Lord's brief sermon was timely, giving an outline of the organization's work with the underprivileged.

Presiding at the service was Mrs. L. L. Vradenburg, Thank Offering secretary. The devotions were conducted by Mrs. H. Berend.

Mrs. E. J. Cobb, president of the society, in expressing her appreciation for the generous offering received for the missionary work said, "I am grateful to all who cooperated to make this service helpful."

MRS. F. E. WILLIS DIES SUNDAY AT SOUTH POINT HOME

Mrs. F. E. Willis, mother of Dr. H. S. Willis, died Sunday at her home in High Point, N. C., following a long illness. Mrs. Willis had spent several winters in her son's home here and made many friends in Northville.

Dr. Willis was called to his mother's bedside two weeks ago and remained with her. The funeral was held Tuesday morning.

BAND PLAYS TO BUY NEW INSTRUMENTS

Langfield Estate, Wickham and Other Villagers Contribute to Fund

Thirty-one members of the Northville high school band, directed by their leader, Leslie G. Lee, made their first appearance at a concert in the high school gym Tuesday evening with an appreciative audience present. This was the first of a series of concerts to be given in a drive for funds to replace the worn-out instruments used for many years.

No one would have guessed from the excellent music that came from those horns and clarinets and saxophones that they had been mended and re-mended until they are almost beyond repair. The young folk played heartily and seemed to enjoy it.

Starting with the band was their former leader, Frederick Head, who began training this organization nine years ago and still comes each week to teach a class of beginners. Mr. Lee has been leader for the past two years. As guest director, Mr. Head took the baton for one number on the program Tuesday evening. A piano solo by Doris Tewsbury and a vocal solo by Cecil Gies added variety to the program.

In an interval in the program Mr. Lee introduced the players, calling attention to the fact that there are no seniors in the band, three juniors, 10 sophomores, and the rest.

SCHOOL FURNITURE BID GOES TO IRWIN SEATING COMPANY

The Irwin Seating company, Lansing, was granted the furniture contract for the new $35,000 grade school building Monday evening by members of the board of education when it was learned that this firm was the low bidder on the type of desks and seats needed here.

Three other companies submitted bids including the American Seating company of Detroit, the E. P. McFadden company of Lansing and the Peabody Seating company which sent a representative to Ypsilanti.

According to Superintendent R. H. Amerman, 220 desks, the new movable type with box compartments for books, have been purchased for grades three to six.

Tables and chairs for the kindergarten and the two lower grades are being constructed by C. A. Dolph. "These are nearly complete now," asserted Mr. Amerman.

When queried as to when the grade pupils could move into the new building, Mr. Amerman said that the building might not be ready for occupancy until after the holidays. "One of the architects told me Monday evening that the Dec. 15 completion deadline set by the FWA might have to be extended. The workers are almost ready to start painting," concluded Mr. Amerman as he spoke of the progress to date on the construction.

OUR CHANGING TIMES

The other evening a group of young people stood and sat around a piano in a Northville home and sang songs. No foolin'. A by-stander could have gotten a real thrill out of it, since the radio has taken over the singing in most of our homes.

GOVERNOR-ELECT MURPHY'S CHANCE

Thousands of republicans will leave Lansing and other cities of the state on January 1, handing over their former political positions to democrats. The wholesale change of office gives plenty of chance for incompetent men to get into places of responsibility.

Reports are heard that the incoming governor, Frank Murphy, is determined to surround himself with a group of the most capable and experienced men possible. That is a very sensible resolution. He will follow one of the best public servants Michigan has had in recent years, Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, a man who rose from the bottom and who has given the state a splendid administration.

Governor-Elect Murphy goes into office on the coat-tails of the tremendous Roosevelt popularity. It will be another story in two years when the governor will be on his own. He faces two years of stern probation and probably no one realizes it better than himself and his immediate advisors.

A GOOD TIME FOR THAT LETTER

Few of us write letters that we should. Letter writing is hard for some folks and the result is that there are thousands of aching and lonely hearts because of letters that are expected but never come—or come too long delayed.

Maybe we got to thinking about this because of the many fine letters that have been sent to the writer during the year that is just closing. All of the hospital experience of our lifetime has been crowded into the past thirteen months and as a result, we became conspicuous in the eyes of our friends. They showered us with their good wishes, by personal call, telephone and letter.

Among our letters of last week were several from fellow editors—busy men from whom we would hardly expect letters. Yet one of them, just back from a deer hunting trip, writes us a type written page—and he is a man we see only once or twice a year. That's real loyalty to a friend, we say.

Now, at this Christmas time, when the world of human beings rises to its best, why not write those letters that will bring cheer and hope to some one too far off to touch with the human hand! And if you want to get a good style in letter writing, turn to your Bible and read some of the marvelous letters written by the Apostle Paul—letters that are among the finest in literature. Anyway, write.

THE FARMERS' SOCIAL SECURITY

Twenty-six million workers of the United States are eligible for the benefits of the social security act. With some exceptions, these benefits begin at the age of 65.

The farmer and the farm worker do not come under the benefits of this legislation. The reason for this is probably the fact that the farmer is regarded as a more self-sustaining person than the industrial worker. Certainly the farmer is closer to the potato bin than the city worker who can reach out and touch the house of his neighbor and who has to buy everything he eats at the grocery. The farmer can come closer to economic independence than anyone else we know.

So we wonder where social security is going to be for the farmer. We cite the case of a well known Northville farmer with whom we talked just the other day. He will be a typical example of the problem of some farmers. This man is past 70; though he looks the picture of an early sixties. He has one of the best farms around Northville and he is like the man hanging onto the tail of the bear—he doesn't know how or when to let go and make his escape. His story is interesting.

This farmer is intelligent, is industrious, yet he knows he must slow down if he is not to break down. "But how am I going to do it?" he asked us. Illness and operations cost his family a large sum of money. "I can't work like I used to," he said: "I have the old ambition but the back has played out and I can't lift half what I once did. It is just about impossible to secure competent help at the price we can afford to pay, so the result is that I have to keep going myself," he added.

Renting the farm or selling would, at first glance, seem to be a way out for this farmer. Yet anyone who knows much about Michigan farm conditions know that either of these ways is full of pitfalls. Take renting. We happen to know of a very capable and sensible farmer who has a highly-paid city job but who lives on the home farm and rents it. He knows how to pick a good tenant and how to keep an eye on the farm operations—for he has farmed himself and "knows the ropes" better than the average farmer. He has kept an accurate account of all farm operations for over ten years and likewise has kept a separate bank account for the farm. What has he made for his big investment and oversight the past ten years? As we recall the figures, after keeping up the farm like it should be maintained, buying tools, paying taxes and all these items, he had something like $500 to show for his net returns for these ten years. If it had not been for his city job, he certainly would have been close to the welfare roll call.

Suppose, however, the farmer decides to sell. He hits a couple of stone walls right at once. Point one: he can't sell at the price he should get, for all the investment he has made through the years. Take his orchard trees, for example, he can hardly get a third of their worth. But suppose he does sell, very likely for a small payment down. Doing this, he takes a very real chance of having to see the farm go down. Take the rare chance that he can sell for all cash or even a good amount down. In these days of low interest, how is he going to get the kind of interest to which he is entitled, after his lifetime of work? You can tell him; we can't.

In the view of all these conditions, how is the farmer going to get social security in his sunset years? He can't keep on working like he has; the sons of the family have gone to the city for bigger pay; if he rents, his troubles are many; if he sells, he is still in hot water. Literally, he can't let go of the bear's tail.

We don't blame the farmers for wishing that some kind of a social security bill had been enacted for their benefit.

What is your solution of the way to quit the farm and yet have something to show for all the many years of work, planning and sacrificing?

"Old Charlie," one of the most intelligent and accomplished equine citizens that ever lived in Northville, was peacefully killed Sunday. The horse was raised by the late Morell Simmons on his farm in Novi and sometime after the family moved to Northville, was given by Mr. Simmons to his daughter, Mrs. E. E. Miller, who is an accomplished driver. Charlie was taken sick a few days ago and because of his extreme age it was thought best to put an end to his life and spare him further suffering.

It is believed that Northville has the oldest "Steeple Jack" in the state in the person of Theodore W. Wood, who has been engaged this week in repainting the spire of the Methodist church. Mr. Wood has passed his seventy-third birthday.

A quiet home wedding took place Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark when their daughter, "Daisy," became the bride of Dr. August Holcomb of Novi.

The freshmen entertained the high school Monday morning with a reading by Ruth Cattermole, a Thanksgiving story by Edith Avery and a short play by Ruth Cattermole, Averil Miller, Genevieve Parmeter, Helen Millard, Helen Miller, George Wilcox, Howard Stark, Henry Lamberight and William Scottell.

MRS. EDITOR

"She Hath Done What She Could" - "She hath done what she could," was the astonishing praise given to a modest little woman who had achieved things that folks had predicted "she never can do that!"

For long years we women have been quieting our consciences when we know we could do better, by quoting the old Biblical expression, "Elio hath done what she could," and then we settle down at our hearth sides with snug content with only half our faculties used.

But it is those who have "done what they could," who are really living heroically. That little widow who kept her family together when everyone knew she couldn't. She fed them, sent them all to school, warmly clothed though patched. No one but herself knew the things she went without so that she could "do what she could."

There was that young wife who knew who had never been to college herself, but who helped her stumbling husband study late into the night until he had fitted himself for his life's work.

There was Harriet Beecher Stowe who wanted to write a book but there were several children to care for in her home. Then, finally "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was finished between acts of housework with small hands tugging at her skirts.

There was brave Carrie Jacobs-Bond whose husband's health failed and he was ordered West to save his life. She couldn't raise the funds to take him to California but she did go as far as she could on her small means and stopping at intervals along the way she sang at concerts to earn more for the next lap of the journey. She made the goal at last and her "Perfect Day" will be sung long after his voice is silent.

Then there was that wife of the personage who thriftily stretched the meager salary by making over "Dad's" trousers into at least two pairs for the smaller boys of the brood of seven. She has told us that often she washed their clothes after they were all tucked into bed at night. "You can never raise seven children on so small a salary," folks said to her. But she did. And did it well.

An impossible deed? Many a young couple has shouldered a burden that others looked at with doubtful misgivings and because they can because they think they can't they have achieved the impossible.

We will never forget seeing Helen Keller stand before a large audience at Bay View years ago. Helen Keller who could not see, hear, nor speak until long years of hard effort led her out of her prison to a brilliant career. Now she lives more fully than many folks who have all their senses.

"Never again will we say 'I can't.' What if we are afraid of that job that faces us? It's our turn to conquer. Behind every success is a fear of failure, and that's why it's braver to 'do what you could.'"

Marrow Dumplings. Dumplings on a cold day! Mrs. Emma Roof, office assistant at Meadowbrook tells us how she makes these unusual and very delicious dumplings.

Take the marrow out of a few beef bones, add equal quantity of bread crumbs, season with salt and pepper. Mix with a fork. Add as much egg as needed, to hold together and a small amount of flour so they can be rolled very lightly with a spoon. Drop in small balls into gently boiling broth and cook. Very fluffy and good.

OME. Two pounds hamburger, brown in spider with 1 large onion. Cook 1 stalk of celery in small quantity of water. Mix all together with 1 can each of lima beans and kidney beans. Add one-third teaspoon chili powder, and tomato juice to moisten well, and season to taste. Simmer slowly for one and one-half hours. A good dish for a winter dinner. -Mrs. Stewart Robinson.

community and a representative of one of its oldest families. Memorial services were conducted Monday afternoon from the Schrader Funeral home, Plymouth, with the Rev. C. M. Pennell of the Salem Federated church officiating.

Interment was made in the family lot in the Traver cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS FRED W. GREEN

Fred W. Green, former governor of Michigan died Sunday, Nov. 29, at Munising hospital where he had been ill for nine days following an attack of acute indigestion suffered while on a hunting trip.

Successor Alex J. Groesbeck as Michigan's governor in 1927. He served two terms, declining to be a candidate for a third term.

Among the noteworthy achievements of his administration were the institution of a $30,000,000 building program to bring hospitals up to date, provide adequate care for the State's many wards the adoption of the State's modernized crime code, establishing a State Police broadcasting station and instituting the use of radio in combating crimes on a state-wide basis.

Mr. Green was born in Marquette, Oct. 20, 1874. He attended the Ypsilanti Normal and was given a certificate to teach. For a time he was interested in journalism and worked on a Ypsilanti paper. Later he turned to law, graduating from the University of Michigan with an LL.B. in 1898.

During the Spanish-American War he commanded Company G, Thirty-first Michigan Volunteer Infantry in Cuba, coming out with first lieutenant and battalion adjutant honors. Later he became inspector general with the rank of brigadier general.

Through the capacity of lawyer he made connections with the Ypsilanti Furniture company and became a partner in the firm, later owning it himself. This plant was moved to Ionia where its owner prospered and entered actively into civic life. He became mayor of Ionia, serving for 13 consecutive terms.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS ARE THINKING ABOUT

NO NEED TO KNOCK ON WOOD

Every town can boast citizens whose record for accidents is 100 per cent perfect. If we were to talk with these individuals we would not find them boastful. If we succeeded in getting them to admit their excellent record, we might catch them knocking on wood and attributing it all to luck. However, the virtue really lies within themselves. In their citizenry, in their homes and at work, they are true to certain standards and ideals. They are conservative and sensible men. They keep their cars in repair and their homes in repair. They live within their means, and they drive within the boundaries of the road and the speed laws.

FOOTBALL MANNERS

The president of Princeton University has asked for a cessation in drinking at football games. He declares that drinking at gridiron matches has reached proportions which seriously menace the future of the sport as an intercollegiate activity.

This should serve as sufficient warning to people who have been guilty of this offense. Surely they want high standards of sportsmanship maintained, and they must realize that in jeopardizing the game they are jeopardizing a national interest.

The habit has grown to such ugly size that a flask and a ticket to the game are almost synonymous. But there is a vast majority of spectators who do not want the game spoiled by the flask-toters, and it is in the interests of these people, and of clean sport, that the request is made.

EDISON ON SMOKING

(Midland Republican) Down in Henry Ford's Greenfield Village one may see a letter written by Thomas A. Edison, famed inventor, to the motor manufacturers on April 26, 1914. It reads:

"Friend Ford: The injurious agent in cigarettes comes principally from the burning paper wrapper. The substance therefrom, is called 'Acroline.' It has a violent action on the nerve centers producing degeneration of the cells of the brain, which is quite rapid among boys. Unlike most narcotics this degeneration is permanent and uncontrollable. I employ no person who smokes cigarettes."

"Yours, THOS. A. EDISON"

All of which would deserve framing by parents in an effort to keep young boys and girls from smoking while they are growing up. The great inventors did not smoke cigarettes, nor does his pal Ford smoke them. Many other great men use no tobacco at all. But this is almost unknown because it is not advertised. Our own Dr. Herbert E. Dow never smoked and this is also true of numerous Midland men who have been highly successful.

From this letter it seems that the great inventor was convinced that boys who insisted on smoking injured their brains permanently in such a way that he did not care to employ them. He even went a step further and says: "I employ no person who smokes cigarettes."

ALBION EDITOR THINKS NORTHVILLE EDITOR LUCKY

(Walter S. Kennedy in The Albion Evening Recorder)

Deck Baldwin, former editor of the Recorder, was a victim Armistice Day of one of the strangest combinations of incidents on record. No writer would dare use it in a story because it was so improbable. A boy was shooting at a target on an improvised Boy Scout rifle range in a vacant building across the alley from Editor Baldwin's Northville Record building. Just before he fired the steel plate behind the target fell, allowing a twenty-two bullet to travel through an open door, across the alley, through a plate glass door and a wooden door, something we never thought a twenty-two bullet could do, into the Record building. At that exact instant Editor Baldwin moved to the path of the bullet. At that point, his guardian angel who apparently hadn't been much on the job, stepped in and the bullet struck a rib. A little higher or a little lower and it would have been much more serious, possibly fatal. As it is the Northville editor will stay in the hospital only a few days with a broken rib, for which his many friends are very thankful.

MOVEMENT UNDERWAY TO ABANDON FARMS, FAVOR WILDERNESS

Michigan is witnessing in Allegan county the exemplification of one of the newest ideas in land utilization. As if transplanted from the oak and jackpine plains of north central Michigan, an expanse of idle, semi-wild and wild forest land is "going back" to a wild condition with the deliberative help of conservation land specialists after years of unsuccessful use for agriculture.

Approximately 44,000 acres of sub-marginal agricultural land—land not generally suited to successful farming—have been acquired by the federal resettlement administration. The farmers from whom the land was purchased have been moved elsewhere and the tract is being developed for use as a public recreational area, the use for which it is believed best suited.

The production and maintenance of wildlife, not only to be utilized as game but for visitors to see, is receiving close attention. Under the direction of P. J. Hodge, wildlife technician, about 200 men are employed in various types of wildlife development work. Through Dr. Glenn W. Bradt, farm-game specialist and others the department of conservation is cooperating in various aspects of the development work.

A system of dikes has been constructed to control water levels on some 2,500 acres of marsh land, once a breeding and nesting place for ducks and geese, but later ruined for this purpose by artificial drainage. Although the dikes have been completed but a short time, large flocks of ducks and geese have already made use of the newly flooded ponds.

Extensive plantings of aquatic vegetation suitable for duck foods have been made and another year should find a good population of ducks breeding in the flooded area.

Upland game also is receiving attention. Dr. Bradt says during the spring and early summer of the current year, approximately 150 food patches totaling 105 acres were planted. The largest food patch comprised about five acres and the smallest about a half-acre. Food patches were planted in small groups adjacent to good cover, the whole unit being considered as one large food patch.

A herd of deer, estimated to number between 350 and 500, roams the Allegan project area. Since this portion of the state is not open to deer hunting the expected increase in this herd may prove a vexing problem to authorities interested in and in charge of the project in the near future, Bradt says. The herd is the largest in the southern half of the lower peninsula and both the deer and the area itself, located in a region under intensive farm and fruit growing, have become natural curiosities.

"Sitting On The Moon" Is Current Feature at Local Theatre—Double Attractions Booked for Wednesday

Four more hit tunes are added to the now famous collection of Sammy Stept, composer, and Syd Mitchell, lyric writer, who wrote such popular songs as "All My Life," "Laughing with My Eyes," and "I'll Always Be in Love With You." Stept and Mitchell has recently written "Lost In My Dreams," "How I Doln, With You," "Who Am I," and "Sitting on the Moon," the little song of the Remblie picture co-starring Grace Bradley and Roger Pryor, coming Friday and Saturday to the Penniman-Allen theatre.

Stept and Mitchell, who have been teamed for the past 18 months, have sold more than 3,000,000 copies of their songs to the music loving public. "Sitting on the Moon," co-starring Grace Bradley and Roger Pryor, has a strong supporting cast, including Part Kelson, comedienne, Henry Wadsworth, Pierre Watkin, Henry Kolker, William Janney, June Martel, and Pat Gleason.

Ralph Staub, former supervisor of Warner Bros. short subjects, makes his feature picture direction debut in "Sitting on the Moon."

"DON'T TURN 'EM LOOSE" Lessons that have been written in blood across American police records by the careers of notorious public enemies contribute to the dramatic photoplay, "Don't Turn 'Em Loose," coming Wednesday to the Penniman-Allen theatre.

"GRAND JURY" Something new is coming out of Hollywood—socially significant drama.

"Grand Jury," starring Fred Stone, and showing Wednesday at the Penniman-Allen theatre, is one of this new cycle of films that have something important to say in addition to offering entertainment.

Answering the question, "Why can't the police stamp out organized crime completely?" "Grand Jury" lays the blame for the power or racketeers directly on the doorstep of the taxpayer, and dramatically tells what he'll have to do about it.

Stone appears as a voter who on his own hook takes violent measures against racketeering which probably citizens would care to duplicate, but his procedure is a definite indication of the way toward a clean sweep of gangdom.

Owen Davis, Jr., and Louise Latimer appear in the romantic leads. RKQ Radio produced.

Tri-leaf of the criminals who usurp the privileges of parole is Bruce Cabot, a downed and dangerous criminal. Aided by a former-convict attorney, a borrowed baby and a third-rate actress who plays as his faithful, waiting wife, the gangster has recently written "Lost In My Dreams," "How I Doln, With You," "Who Am I," and "Sitting on the Moon," the little song of the Remblie picture co-starring Grace Bradley and Roger Pryor, coming Friday and Saturday to the Penniman-Allen theatre.

Six hours after the prison gates closed behind him, Cabot holds up a creamery and shoots the cashier. The round of crime has been resumed.

To allay suspicion from his family he pays them periodic visits, posing as a successful engineer with business all over the world. When he disappears, on another crime enterprise or for a detention in the state penitentiary, he leads his family to believe that he is off on foreign points on business.

The family, not the law, catches up with him, and tragedy stalks across the soul of a broken father, but society hides itself of a menace.

Lewis Stone, able stage and screen veteran, plays the parent in a poignant characterization, while James Gleason, Louise Latimer and Betty Grabke, complete the featured cast of "Don't Turn 'Em Loose," an RKQ Radio picture.

Superintendent R. H. Amerman commended the band for its loyalty to community occasions. During the past year the band has added to Memorial Day observance, has given several summer concerts in the business district, has played for all the home games on the athletic field and appeared in the recent Community rally. They have also played several times for the Eastlawn sanatorium. Its services are offered to any community enterprise.

Everybody Needs Religion

The Labor Problem
(Holland, Mich., Evening Sentinel)
Roger Ekblom says, "We business men think that the world is governed by intellect. It is not. We think people are controlled by their minds. They are not. Both employers and wage earners are controlled by their emotions; by love or hate, by sympathy or jealousy, by hope or fear."

"If this be so, it is evident that only religion can bring together employers and wage earners. What does it mean? It means that the labor problem is really a question of religion rather than economics."

The Christian religion demands the dedication of power to the more abundant life of humanity. Such concentration of talent especially in the fields of industry and statecraft must become a test of the Christian faith. Why not accept the invitation and go to church next Sunday?

Let Us Forget

(Charles S. Seed in The Rochester Clarion)
There used to be a song about keeping the home fires burning. It was popular in the days when that wasn't much of a job. But it comes to our mind to think of some of the battles that have been fought in the last four or five years.

Particularly does it apply to small town business institutions. We wonder how many persons have ever given consideration to the reason why Rochester is still a good town. What has kept it going, maintained good churches and schools, preserved it as a good place in which to live?

Of course the business places and professional persons, who have weathered the storm, have done it all. But they have led the scrap against adverse conditions.

They have extended credit when credit meant something. They have paid taxes when they were losing money, so that we might continue to have good schools, a clean and orderly town. They have bought new merchandise for their shelves and kept up to date, when they were unable to collect much of the money due them for merchandise that had already gone out.

Many of these business and professional people would have been in better financial condition today if they had shut their doors when the trouble started. But they had a pride in their reputation, a loyalty to their community, an obligation to customers who had patronized them for years.

Today, as the future begins to look brighter, all of us who live in the community should remember who has kept the home fires burning. It's a human weakness to overlook and forget these things. It's a fine thing to overcome that weakness, to be grateful and to show our appreciation.

ELECTION IS OVER

(A. D. Gallery in The Tuscola County Advertiser)
The campaign and election are over and we believe that everyone, democrats and republicans alike will be glad to turn from the heat of politics to the comparative quiet of more ordinary business.

President Roosevelt has had his policies approved in the strongest way; state officers will be democrats, and so will have the entire responsibility for the conduct of government.

We did not favor the election of either President Roosevelt or of the democrat state officers, and in fact, the majority of the people of Tuscola county felt the same about it. Since election day this has, of course, brought out a lot of good-natured "kidding" (confining our way) which we hope we have received in a cheerful spirit. To tell the truth, we get a tremendous kick out of the very much faded, crepe-deeked sunflower that some thoughtful democrat had left on our office doorstep Wednesday morning.

In all sincerity we say that we hope the president and the state officers will do as they have promised in the closing days of the campaign: Forget partisan spirit and conduct government for the benefit of all, forgetting class lines and all other disrupting attitudes. If this is done, we shall all be satisfied.

At the same time we congratulate the democrats on their victory in the state and nation; we want to do the same for the majority of voters in the county who gave such strong endorsements to the county officers—all republicans—who will conduct their business for the next two years. Some of them have already served a term or two in office while others are newcomers to county office, but we believe the best interests of the county have been served by their election.

BROTHERHOOD OF MAN

(Bill Censfield in The Livingston County Republican Press)
Baron's, the financial weekly, points out that one part of our population accepts the fact that economic security can be purchased only by work. Another group holds that the desirable things that money buys can be distributed to everyone under some new kind of social contract.

This is the Brotherhood of Man

The editorial goes into this subject at length and concludes with the following paragraph:
"It is all very well for officials or well-intentioned reformers to talk of the depressed classes, but the most depressed class in the United States consists of energetic, alert men who want to push this country ahead and are being held back from doing so. It is all very well to talk of devoting billions to caring for the sick, aged, and even the incompetent—but, first of all, the well, faithful, and competent must be permitted to make the money with which that noble task may be pursued. These are the cold and persistent facts; which nobody can deny."

A TIMELY MOVE

(Vernon Brown in The Mason News)
Regent James O. Murfin of the University of Michigan is right in his stand that an investigation be undertaken to bring forth the truth of the charge that 10 faculty members at the University are in league with the communists. The charge is based on a questionnaire in which it is said that 10 professors openly declared their allegiance to the communist party.

As one writer recently said, "The United States has financial deficits and likewise there are intellectual deficits. Right now the intellectual deficit looms large. That deficit is found on many an American college campus."

We Americans are too prone to be dazzled by the Ph. D., the B. A., the B. S. and other degrees which professors write after their names. The professors have had their way until many high school teachers have become entranced with the numerous degrees which are bestowed by the thousands.

Too many professors have too much time to think. They lead such a cloistered life that they lose touch with business, with industry and ordinary American life. They drink deep of Utopian draughts. They become befuddled and twisted in their thinking. They fail to follow an inductive diet and before they know it their minds are grooved and warped.

Everyone in the United States has a right to his own opinion. The right to infect impressionable youth with the virus of treason, however, does not follow. It is high time that an investigation of the Red influence exerted by professors in American universities be made. An honest investigation by a capable body will be welcomed by every patriotic faculty member. And the right-thinking, patriotic professors are still a large majority.

HOW IT HAPPENED

(Ray Collins in The Parma News)
Personally I do not feel the trend of the vote given President Roosevelt is any criterion of sober citi-

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

- By ANN PAGE
- LUNCHEONS and dinners based on the one-dish meal idea are popular with housewives and most families after a weekend of holiday feasting. Soups, stews, casserole dishes and even a planked steak with its accompanying vegetable, all fit this category.
- The usual winter vegetables are plentiful and cheap, peas are again reasonable, green beans, while higher, are moderate in price since one pound goes as far as two pounds of peas.
- Lentils is the most economical meat but pork and beef are moderately priced. Fish is none too plentiful. An increased supply of fresh eggs is expected before long. Oranges and grapefruit are the outstanding fruit buys.
- Here are three menus made to fit different budget levels.
- Low Cost Dinner
Pork Chops with Scalloped Potatoes
Coke Slaw
Bread and Butter
Apple Betty
Tea or Coffee
- Medium Cost Dinner
Pot Roast of Beef
Potatoes, Carrots, Onions
Bread and Butter
Snow Pudding
Soft Custard
Tea or Coffee
- Very Special Dinner
Grapefruit
Roast Pork
Browned Sweet Potatoes
Apple Sauce
Green Peas
Green Salad

zen vote. The president had the advantage of being already in office, his is an appealing radio voice and there is huge vote-pulling power in the name Roosevelt, thanks to the late "T. R." But in addition, the Roosevelt-Garner team had what no ticket in American history has had to assist in re-election—billions of dollars to build the greatest patronage machine of any national election, clogged with laborers and farmers in every state and county and hamlet in the nation. Therein lay the danger of the Farley efforts to Tammanyize the government-paid workers.

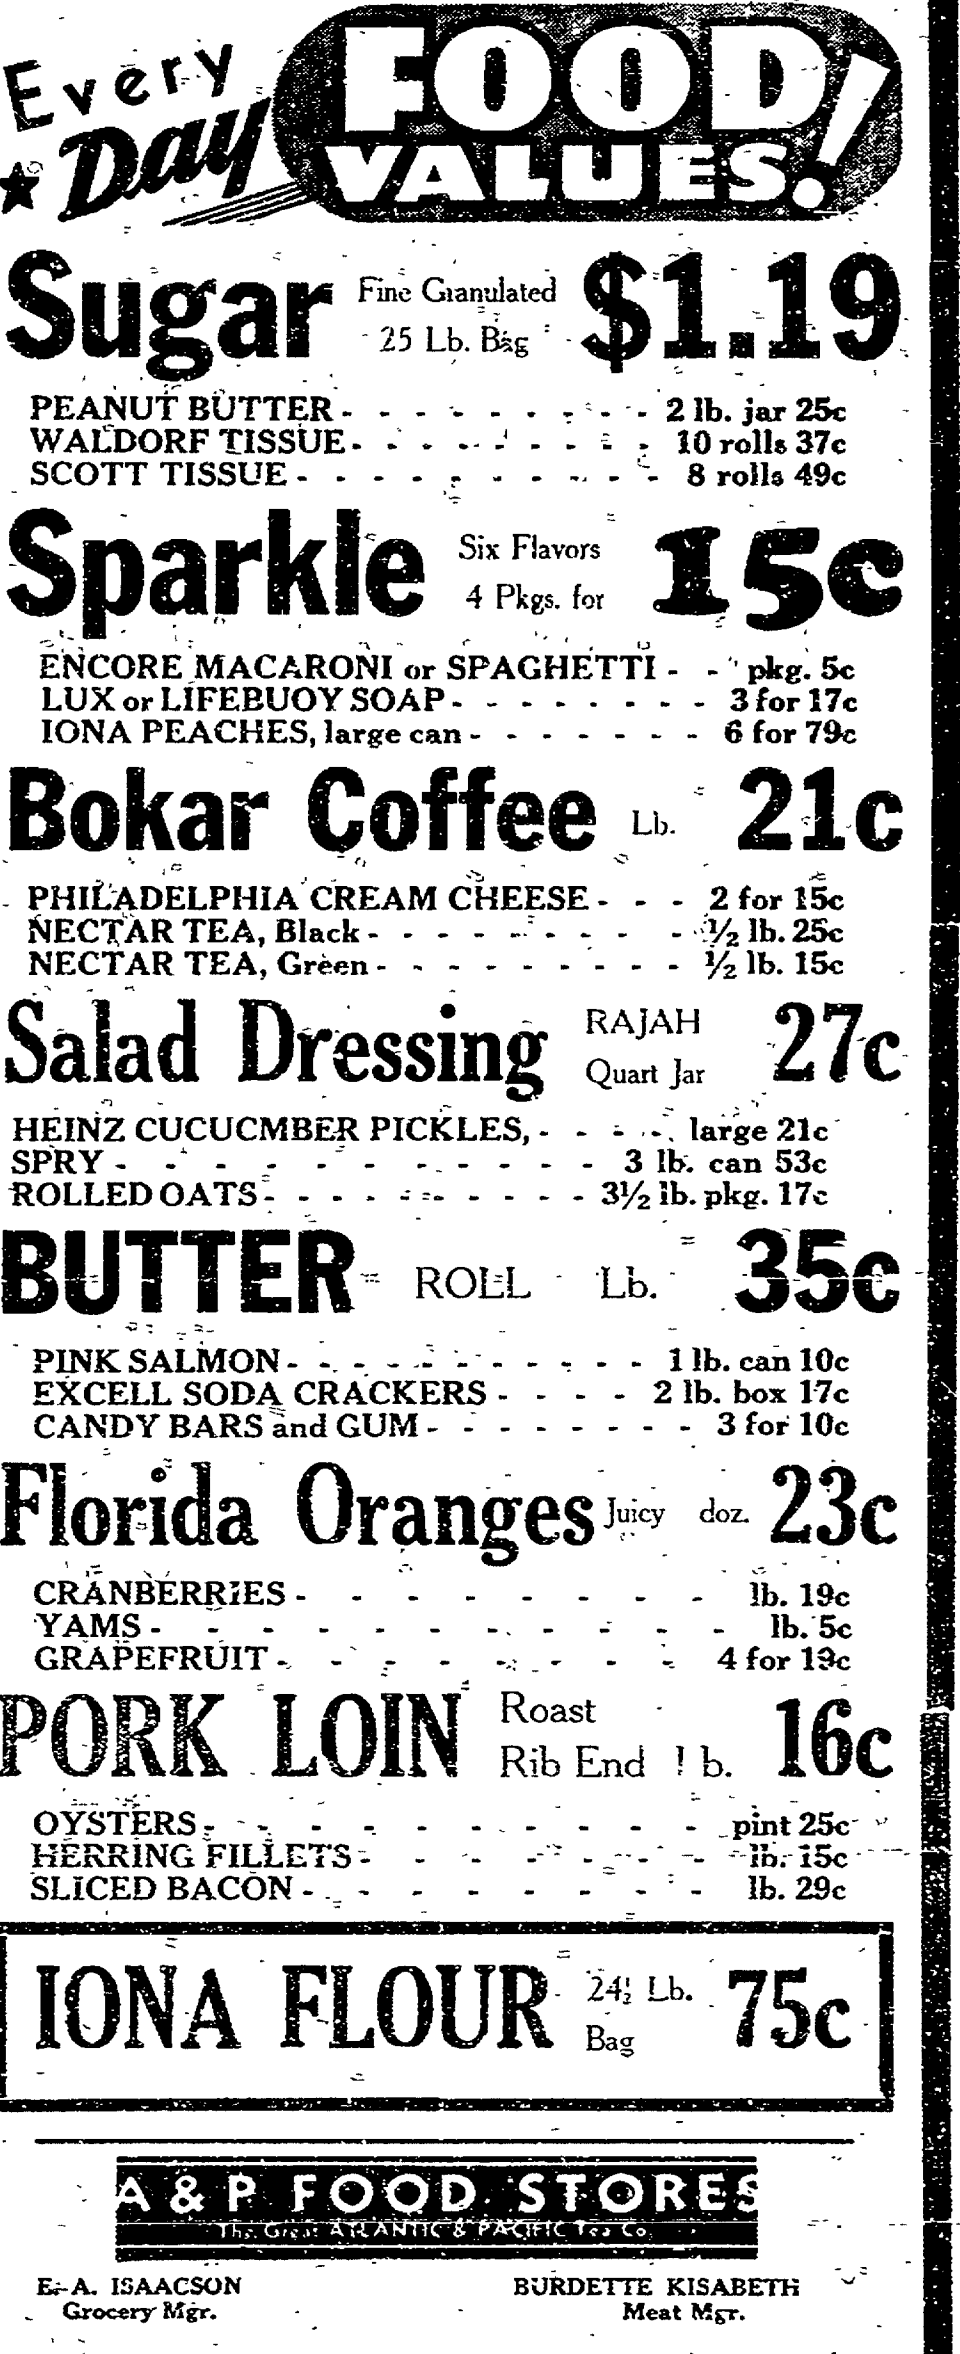

My prediction is that Roosevelt will be a better president his second term than he has been the past four years. I base that on the fact that he will not now be concerned with re-election in 1940 and thence will not be so political-minded nor so New Deal conscious; I believe, also, that he has learned a valuable lesson from the republican and Jeffersonian democratic criticism of his policies during the campaign. Much of that same criticism was directed against the "rubber-stamp" congress and I am of the opinion the next House and Senate, resenting such a reputation, will not be so pliable in the hands

Forsyth-Ludwig Wedding Vows Spoken Saturday Morning When Nuptial High Mass Is Read at Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Violet Ann Ludwig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ludwig, to William Howard Forsyth, son of Mrs. Alfred Forsyth and the late Mr. Forsyth of Detroit, was solemnized at 9 a. m. Saturday, Nov. 28, in the Our Lady of Victory church. A nuptial High Mass was read by the Rev. Fr. Joseph G. Schuler. Palms, ferns and large, white snapdragons were used at the altar, together with large baskets of white chrysanthemums.

The bride selected for her wedding a gown of white cut-velvet, princess style, with a high standup collar across the back. A row of tiny covered buttons extended down the back to the waist. The sleeves were full to the elbows and fitted snugly to the wrist, ending in points over the hands. The fullness of the skirt ended in a slight circular train. Three strands of small pearls caught with a rhinestone ornament at the shirred neckline were the dress' only trimming.

A coronet of seed pearls and crystals held the four-inch three-quarter length veil of white tulle which was held in place at the back by a row of small improved calli lilies. She carried an arm bouquet of these same flowers. Miss Gladys Ludwig, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her dress was like that of the bride's in all respects without the train. Miss Ludwig's hat was styled after the bride's, trimmed with a bow at the back and her slippers were of a matching shade. Golden rust roses and chrysanthemums were used for the bouquet.

Mrs. Ludwig chose for her daughter's wedding a floor length gown of hunter's green chiffon velvet. With this she wore a matching velvet turban and suede shoes. Her carriage was of Belmont gardenias. Mrs. Forsyth, the bride, groom's mother, wore a floor length dress of wine chiffon velvet, black velvet turban and matching suede shoes. Her carriage was like that of Mrs. Ludwig's.

Edward Lockman of Northville was best man. Walter McQuaid and Robert Hurst, both of Detroit, were groomsmen. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Dearborn Inn.

For her wedding trip Mrs. Forsyth wore a costume suit of blue wool, lined with brown. The three-quarter length form-fitted coat had lapels of baby wolf fur. With this she wore a clear fitting hat of blue velvet. Her other accessories were also of blue. A gown of wine and blue of brown. A gown of wine and blue. A gown of wine and blue.

This was an autobiography of James Weldon Johnson prepared by Mrs. C. E. Woodruff in her own distinctive style.

Mrs. Eural Clark's devotions on the topic "God's Gifts to Us," made all more fully realize how thoughtfully we overlook the many blessings granted to us.

Be Wise—Advertise.

When the tour of the shops ended and the Shopper's notes were tabulated, it was found that Meas had been gathered for practically everyone on her Christmas list. Village merchants are carrying more extensive lines this year and the discriminating woman's viewpoint seems to have guided them in their selections.

For the young hostess a gift shop has an 18-piece Chinese red coffee service... a triple candlestick in chromium to be used on the dining table, the hall entrance or on the mantelpiece—clever! It is, with three circles being responsible for its unique shape... card table covers in six shades, made of suedeette and spots that won't brush off may be removed with water and bland soap suds... a crumb sweeper, something new and fascinating in the way of silent butlers made in chromium... salt and pepper shakers, cleverly imitated to put a stop to this business of "Which one of these things has salt in it?"

Marching on to make life happier for the sorority sister or the girl who works at the other desk, something was spent beside the costume jewelry display... the gadgets are many and the styles vary, but there's a definite trend away from the modernistic designs and the old fashioned types are having a return engagement in everything from earrings to bracelets. Most all the pieces are in yellow gold affects, frequently with black enamel trim... all this quaintness is often surprisingly coupled with the modern, like for instance a beautiful petite pinette, at first glance it appeared to be a vanity case, not so, it's a cigaret case... there are really of evening bags, some may prefer.

A Jensen injured the third finger on his left hand last Friday when he caught his hand in a saw at the McCully shop on West Main street. The cut, which went through his nail, is not serious. Harry Howson, west of Northville, is out to see the world. Word has been received by his family that he is now "doing" Monte Carlo in Spain. He is hitch hiking on the journey about Europe and is on his way to China. He writes most interesting letters to the home folks. Dinner guests at the home of Mrs. A. H. Young on Thanksgiving day were Mrs. Mabel Randall, Columbus, Kans., her son, Jack, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Phelps and son, Edgar, Detroit; Ray Embury, Toronto, Can.; George W. Eberlee, Saline and Redford; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Young and son, Charles, Detroit. A letter from Mrs. Roy E. Lane, formerly of North Center street, now of Sault Ste. Marie, is of interest to Northville friends. It is below zero at the "Soo." Her daughter Marjorie is a contributor to the high school paper. Both expect to be in Northville during the coming holiday season. With the falling temperature in these parts, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hall are reminded of the lure of Florida and will leave Dec. 8, for their winter home at Daytona Beach. Their daughter, Mrs. L. L. Lindsey, who has been visiting them for a few days, will accompany them as far as Cincinnati. Mr. and Mrs. James Dubar of Waukegan, N. Y., were expected to visit here at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Tubar but word comes that they are detained because of the illness of their son, who is a student in a boys' school in Northfield, Mass. The boy has scarlet fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Albertus Derts of Grand Rapids were week end guests of Dr. and Mrs. Dan A. Brief. Attorney George H. Stalker has returned home by plane from a ten-day business trip to Washington, D. C. The Pastime club held another of its dancing parties Wednesday evening in the high school gymnasium. About 80 were present. The attention of high school alumni and others interested in the organization is called to the almanach which is on display in Frey's window. It will be given away within a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Murphy, Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur H. Johnston and Mrs. J. H. Bolton expect to attend a state mid-winter conference of the American Legion auxiliary to be held Saturday at Bay City. Mrs. George H. Stalker was hostess Thursday afternoon to members of her bridge club. Her guests included Mrs. Harold Bloom, Mrs. Robert Coolman, Mrs. Ward Masters, Mrs. Harry Wagenschutz, Mrs. Arthur Steele, Mrs. N. C. Schrader and Mrs. Sterling Easton of Plymouth. Thanksgiving in the Dearborn Inn was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and daughter, Geraldine, Mr. and Mrs. Alex H. Lyke and daughters, Jean and Shirley, and Mrs. Lyke's father, Wm. Fisher. They were guests of friends from Wayne. According to Assistant Postmaster D. J. Stark, the employes' social security blanks are not coming in so well as they should. "Out of the 350 distributed here, only 150 have been returned to the local post office," said Postmaster Fred E. Van Atta. Word has been received by G. C. Benton from his brother, Richmond, P. Benton, that he and Mrs. Denton have arrived safely at their home in California finding everything all right. Since leaving Northville after their visit here they made an extended trip through the East, going as far as Boston and stopping at various places en route west. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Alton D. Orvis, formerly of this village, now of Los Angeles, Calif., will be interested to know that a characteristic letter received from them states that they are enjoying that "Sunshine State." The letter says, "that excellent letter from our old friend and neighbor, Harry Gorman, should be framed and hung up to our office."

Debate Team Defeated in Last Negative Contest; Victors Lead League

The Northville debate team was defeated by the Belleville squad last Tuesday, Nov. 24, at the Belleville high school.

The question "Resolved: That all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated," was defended on the negative side, for the last time by Northville. In its next two games, the local team will take the affirmative of the question.

E. L. Johnson's team, which received its first defeat of the season at the hand of Belleville, was composed of Margaret Van Hellemont, Nan McLoughlin and Scott Cole. The winning team was made up of Joe Miloch, Winifred Sayre and Helen Ryzer.

The debate was judged by Raymond V. Shoberg, debate coach of the University of Michigan. His decision is the third victory for Belleville and places that team in the lead in the Outer Metropolitan Debating League.

'ROUND THE SCHOOL

It seems to the students that the poor, abused student council is again in a mental quandary. They took a look at the great suits the basketball team has been wearing and came to the conclusion that the only thing to do was to buy new suits for our "fighting five," and that's just where those struggling student managers got into hot water. Practically everyone in the school began to argue with them. Why not get cotton suits and save expenses? That just about floored the whole council. They clubbed their fevered brows and tore their hair. Cough! The idea was... Georgia's opinion rang thru the halls. It will do no good. So once more the council fights it out. To buy or not to buy? That is the question. Whether it is better to have cotton which bags or wool which does not? And all they ask for is a little cooperation.

The senior prom of '36 is history. And what history! The decorations fairly dazzled everyone, the orchestra was swell and the punch! Congratulations to all concerned and an orchid to the senior class.

The juniors are driving everyone crazy with their two one-act plays. They go about murmuring their lines in expressionless tones. In practice for "You're A Cuckoo" the other night, Cecil Giles was required to hurl poor Chuck Bishop to the floor. Seeing that it called for it in this script, and being a trouper, Chuck willingly submitted. But Coach Johnson remained unsatisfied. When Chuck finally arose after the sixth drag down and out he was black and blue! All in the name or art—and money.

L. G. LEE DIRECTS BAND IN CONCERT

Horns and Instruments to Be Brought with Receipts, Says Music Instructor

The first band concert of the year was on Tuesday night, Dec. 1, in the high school gymnasium.

Leslie G. Lee, the band director, announced that the main purpose of this program was to raise money in order to purchase the badly needed instruments. Although no admission price was charged, a collection was taken up.

There are at present 34 band members, not including the 12 beginners who will soon be able to become members. Only half of the band members are sophomores and under, and two of the players, Isabelle Tewsbury and Lella Haystead, are high school graduates.

The band at present needs several new clarinets, French horns, and flutes and it is hoped that the concert netted enough money to help the school purchase these badly needed instruments.

The program that was presented was a widely varied one. Besides the numbers listed below, two band members, Doris Tewsbury and Cecil Giles, offered respectively a piano solo and a vocal number.

- The program included:
- Sons of the Brave.....Bidgood
 - Invercargill.....Lithgow
 - Triumphal March from opera.....
 - "Aida".....Verdi
 - Minute.....Bocherine
 - Chorale, "O Light of Life".....Bortolozsky
 - "In Council" Overture.....Bidgood
 - Atell.....Karoly
 - Selections from "H. M. S. Pinafore".....Sullivan
 - Overture "Pavane".....Kilfer
 - Waltz, "Zarda".....Folmes
 - Star Sparkled Banner.....Key

JUNIORS REHEARSE TWO ONE-ACT PLAYS

The junior class will present a variety show Dec. 11 and 12 in the high school auditorium.

The show will include two one-act plays and several specialties by members of the class.

The plays, "You're a Cuckoo" and "Sauce for the Goose," have been presented in high schools throughout the State with great success. The first named is a farce and the second is a better speech play.

E. L. Johnson, one of the class sponsors, is directing "You're a Cuckoo" with two casts. The first is made up of Aunt Martha, a wise old lady, Barbara Phillips, Henry Willis, a member of the prohitic order of cuckoos, Charles Bishop, Helen Willis, Henry's wife, Margaret Walker, Dick Crump, Helen's brother, Keene Bolton, Freda, Dick's fiancée, Leona Mae White, Trysten, a tough detective, Cecil Giles.

The second cast includes Gwendolyn Jones, Walter Gorchow, Marion Beauchamp, Dick Junod, Margaret Hine and Cecil Giles.

Miss Florence Harper, who is being assisted by Leslie G. Lee, has chosen the following students for her cast of "Sauce for the Goose": Alice Eaton, Jean Anderson, Lydia Davis, Margaret Nagy, Margaret Garden, Virginia Washburne and Constance Burgess. Arthur Mitchell, Willard Wilson, Forest Ault and J. W. Bryn will have the masculine roles.

The remainder of the evening's entertainment will be offered by Nan McLoughlin, who will give a monologue; Virginia Washburne, who will dance, accompanied on the piano by Margaret Garden; Cecil Giles, who will give a harmonica solo; Constance Burgess, who will sing; Doris Tewsbury, who will play the piano; and a magician will be there in the presence of Bob Trofast, who promises some tricks.

GIRL SCOUTS HOLD MEETING, NOV. 25

Nov. 25 the Girl Scouts held their regular meeting in the Scout building.

The recreation committee had several games which were played before the business meeting. Alice Eaton took charge in the absence of Miss Harper. It was decided to use the bulletin board in Miss Ludwig's room for Scout notices, and Gladys Clark was appointed to find out who could drive to Redford Tuesday night and take some Scouts over to swim the high school pool. All girls who wanted to swim then were supposed to sign their names under the notice Gladys put on the bulletin board.

The troop wants to buy a Scout flag with the money left from the rummage sale profits after the Scout building money was taken out.

After the business meeting, the girls were divided according to which rank they were working for, and instructed in their requirements.

SOCIETY

Most everybody came to dance in a "Winter Wonderland" at the prom. And it just so happened the girls seemed to dress in colors which complimented the scenery or the scenery complimented them or something. Blue was the headliner in the number of formal of that shade. Black came in at either a tie or close second. Of course there were splatterings of other colors, too.

Doris Labitt and Bruce Turnbull led the grand march with Evelyn Ambler and Carl Arnold in a second position. Doris wore gold and Evelyn a black georgette.

Betty Van Hove, Fred Cesterline, Nan McLoughlin, Scott Cole, Pat McLoughlin, Skip Hochkins, Betty Schrader, Edgar Jolly, Barbara Phillips and Bob Lyke all came from Betty Van Hove's dinner party. Betty wore a pink damask affair.

Some of the sophomores were there and looking mighty nice. Vivian Grosvenor in an old rose shade was with Ken Willbur; Myrtle Drews and Ray Parmenter were with them, too. Betty Carlson was with Francis Huff and Helen Winters danced first and last with Don Helchman. Louise Alexander with Ed Angove wore black.

June Denne in icicle blue; Betty Haystead in pink; Jane Grosvenor, blue satin; Helene Johnson, blue velvet; Lucille Simmons, white; Betty Rix, black velvet were escorted by the following in order (we hope): Dick Junod, Lawrence Parmenter, Buck Hinckman, Ferd Scott, Leonard Young and Merle Fraser.

Jaqueline School from Plymouth came with Harry Richardson; Ruth Campbell also from P. H. S. danced with Don McNalder. Eva Mae Goodale and Lloyd Craft; June Ault and George Meisner; Marjorie Helchman and Cy Westphall all succeeded in having half the couple from out of town.

A more brilliant color, red, was worn by Lillian Fritz escorted by Forest Ault. Doris Tewsbury and Ken Schweizer danced, too.

BOSTON SYMPHONY PLAYS DEC. 10, IN HILL AUDITORIUM

The Boston Symphony orchestra of approximately 110 players, will be heard for the thirtieth time in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, in the Choral Union Concert Series, Thursday evening, Dec. 10.

This distinguished organization was heard in this series several times during the nineties and on intermittent occasions in later years. Since 1931, however, it has been heard annually in Hill Auditorium. Dr. Koussevitzky has brought this orchestra with its distinguished record of past accomplishments to a high state of perfection. On the occasion of its coming appearance, Dr. Koussevitzky has invited Joseph Brinkman of the piano faculty, to appear as soloist, performing the Piano Concerto No. 2 in E major of Leo Sowerby, in its second hearing. Mr. Brinkman having been previously invited by Dr. Koussevitzky to perform at its premiere in Boston at an earlier December date.

"END OF SUMMER" IS CASS COMEDY WHICH OPENS NEXT WEEK

The Theater Guild's S. N. Behrman comedy hit, "End of Summer," with Mrs. Claire and Osgood Perkins comes to the Cass theatre, Detroit on Monday evening, Dec. 7, for an engagement for one week.

S. N. Behrman, who wrote "Biography," "The Second Man," "Rain from Heaven," and other comedy hits, has written his best piece thus far in "End of Summer" it is generally agreed. Brilliant yet not too sophisticated dialogue put in the mouths of characters you are in-himself directed and photographed. Four years ago it swept the nation. Since then his motion picture camera has brought up to date the lives of his little heroines, Tazel and Grio. His motion pictures tell of a day in their lives, how they work and play, eat and sleep, worship and make love in their idyllic "Last Paradise."

ANNOUNCEMENT

I wish to announce that I am moving my business office from the present location at 115 West Main street to the Richardson building across the street.

terested in the moment they step on the stage is the sort of thing Mr. Behrman is noted for and the selection of Mrs. Claire and Osgood Perkins for the leading roles is one of the most delectable bits of casting in seasons. The play was a hit in New York last season, giving both Mrs. Claire and Mr. Perkins perfect roles.

A pretty, giddy matron of much wealth, not so much intelligence and blessed with generous instincts and impeccable character—that is Mrs. Claire's happy lot. Mr. Perkins, on the other hand, is seen as a high priced psychiatrist who abandoned his earlier career of tonstleomey because as he says, "The poor have tonisls but only the rich have souls." The entire action of the piece takes place in the summer home in Maine of Mrs. Frothingham and one of her house guests is the psychiatrist, her latest diversion. The shifting of his affections from mother to daughter is a conflict the psychiatrist had not bargained for, but this does happen and Dr. Kenneth Rice (Osgood Perkins) has tossed in his lap, as it were, the very sort of problem he usually helps other folks solve.

A distinguished Theatre Guild cast supports Mrs. Claire and Mr. Perkins, including: Stano Bragiotto, Susan Fox, Shepperd Strudwick, Jean Adair, Nicholas Joy, Van Heflin and Clifford Brooke. Philip Moeller, noted Theatre Guild director, is responsible for "End of Summer" and the exquisite set was designed by Lee Simonson.

Mail orders are now being accepted and tickets go on sale at the box office Monday, Nov. 30.

Merry-Go-Round Club Meets Wednesday at Harmon Home—The Merry-Go-Round club met Wednesday, Dec. 2, with Madam Kittle Harmon and Nellie Hewitt at the Harmon home on Wing street.

Fifteen ladies were served at a long table decorated with ferns and tiny yellow mums, presided over by the two hostesses. After all appetites were satisfied Mrs. Harmon read a letter from Mrs. Hattie Rogers who is on her way to Los Angeles, one from Mrs. Lucy Filkins, spending her winter in Detroit, and a card from Mrs. Minnie Parker, telling how sorry she was not to be with us—and then—who should arrive from Detroit but Mrs. Louise Chadwick, her daughter, Mrs. Mary Astleford, and our beloved Minnie Parker. So you see, we had her card and herself with us once more.

The afternoon was spent as usual with visiting and sewing and to create a change and entertainment the hostesses gave a memory test with the following as prize winners in the contest: Mesdames Thad J. Knapp, champion; Flora Babitt and Elizabeth Clark a tie, but both received prizes; and Ada Amher, winning fourth.

All were happy to be here but missed Mrs. Mary Simmons who is sojourning in the South. Mrs. George Yerkes and Mrs. May Dean who were too ill to come. Sorry, for we miss you all when you are not here.

Our next meeting will be the fourth Wednesday in January, the twenty-seventh, the place of meeting will be announced later. LILLIE HEWITT, reporter.

Mrs. Eber W. Lester announced Thursday afternoon that the next P. T. A. meeting would be held Thursday evening, Dec. 10, in the high school. A special program has been arranged.

Last year the Red Cross reached 10,000,000 homes with check lists or accident hazards in a nation-wide program to reduce the incidence of fire and farm accidents. This year home accident fatalities were cut by several thousand according to statisticians. A similar campaign has been launched this year through Red Cross chapters.

The equipment is air conditioned and provided with an ice tank which relieves fevers and provides cool air without subjecting the patient to drafts from an open window. Instead of the usual canvas cover, this new type has a rubber canopy through which the patient's condition may be watched constantly. Cause of Darkening of Sky in 1780 Is Puzzle

A remarkable darkening of the sky and atmosphere over a large part of New England occurred on May 19, 1780. The darkness began between 10 and 11 o'clock and continued in some places throughout the entire day, being followed by an unusually intense degree of blackness during the night. This phenomenon, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, extended from the northeastern part of New England westward to the coast of New Jersey. The most intense and prolonged darkness was confined to Massachusetts, especially to the eastern half of the state. It came up from the southwest and evening the country like a pall.

Scientists have been much puzzled as to the explanation of this phenomenon. It was plain from the falling of the barometer that the air was surcharged with heavy vapor. The darkness, then, possibly, was the result of a dense fog; but the question of the cause of so heavy a fog was still unanswered. The opinion of Professor Williams of Harvard college was that this unprecedented quantity of vapor had gathered in layers so as to cut off the rays of light by repeated refraction, to a remarkable degree. He thought the specific gravity of this vapor must have been the same as that of the air, which caused it to be held so long in suspension in the atmosphere.
