BOGART, FORNEY DR. SMITH GIVE CAREER TALKS

E. M. B. Missed Millionaire Class; War Snags Forney; Smith Gave Up Law

Three Rotarians told the story of their lives at the club's luncheon program at the Presbyterian church house Tuesday. Those who gave autobiographies in a most intimate and fascinating way were: E. M. Bogart, W. E. Forney and Dr. Thomas W. Smith.

E. M. Bogart, proprietor of the E. M. B. grocery store, traced his life from his birthplace near Wilson, where his grandfather, the well-known Mark Bogart is now living, at the remarkable age of 97 years.

"I got my start in the school at Nov.," said E. M. B., "but I must say that it took me two years to get through the chart class. My parents moved to Nov. in 1907 and I was graduated from Northville high school in 1912 under John L. Rue who is very well known to many Northville people for the fine educational work he did here."

Missed the Boom

Mr. Bogart told about taking two summer schools of work in Central State Normal college at Mount Pleasant. He told how some of the land that is now the center of the oil industry of Michigan was then a "wildcat" territory. "I could be a millionaire," he said, "but I know that this big oil boom was coming." After teaching school for a while in the present oil country near Mount Pleasant, E. M. B. went to Detroit where he worked for some time with the National Candy company. During the World War he was in the engineering division of the army and later in the navy.

Then followed a period of 12 years in the grocery business in which the Northville resident tried to be district manager for a large national chain of grocery stores. During the period he lived at Grand Rapids, Lansing, Muskegon, and Port Huron and over this period of a dozen years he participated in the oil boom in various parts of Michigan.

During this responsible time in 1914, Mr. Bogart came to Northville and has since conducted a very successful business here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bogart have three sons one of whom, Ralph is a graduate of Northville high school. Mr. Bogart has been a member of Rotary since 1931. "I try to be a fan of Northville," he said, "and I never forget one July fourth day I had the advantage of high school education," continued the local educator, "and was able to graduate from the local high school at Auburn, Ohio, in 1906. Then I went to work January 1, 1909 for the New York Central at Corcoran, Pa. and boy did we work! From 5:15 in the morning until 7:15 at

Roosevelt Court Plans Would Open A Road To Dictatorship

By FRED WARNER NEAL

If the unfortunate death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas does not kill abortive attempts to pack the Supreme Court of the United States, by "compromise" or other method the time has come to stop opposing them with mild debate and soft words of reproach.

The time has arrived to fight, to denounce court packing and its supporters in outspoken terms; to fight, shoulders against the wall of political democracy and freedom, with every ounce of energy possessed by intelligent and patriotic Americans.

This may sound like a pronouncement of the Liberty League. If so, the writer is properly embarrassed. It may sound like a Republican key-note address. If so, the writer is chastened. But if it sounds sinister, if it makes clear the real and imminent danger involved in court packing, whether in the President's original bill or in the Hatch compromise proposal, the writer will be satisfied.

MUSICAL CHAIR WINNER

Scott Cole
Placing first in the musical chairs event Sunday afternoon at Arrowhead farm where the third annual gymkhana and horse show was held, was Scott Cole. He won third honor in the jump, and second in the three-gated saddle show.

KATHRYN MARBURGER WINS HORSE TROPHY

Arrowhead Farm Is Scene Sunday of Third Annual Gymkhana, Horse Show

Shirley, the handsome horse that took to many hearts at the Arrowhead Farm horse show, Saturday, was the trophy of Kathryn Marburger. She won first honor in the jump, and second in the three-gated saddle show.

HE SHOULD BE CONDEMNED

It is not true that the president has been so successful in his efforts to pack the court. It is true that his court-packing proposal will be passed. It is not accurate to assert that the president has a last for more. But it is accurate to assert that he has an insatiable desire to better the constitution of his people, to make democracy work for that he should not be condemned. But he should be condemned. I think for letting that damn run-away with him in a manner that loses sight of our democracy, as a whole, that forgets that "economic freedom" if there is such, is worthless without political freedom to use it; that would destroy, or make vulnerable to the forces of destruction, an invaluable safeguard of all democracy in an effort to improve the workings of one part of that democracy.

Merrill S. Sweet, former village councilman, was named Monday evening to head the Lloyd H. Green post of the American Legion for the year.

PERSONAL FAULTS RUIN PLAN, SMITH

With a ring of optimism and hope to the discouraged, Dr. Thomas W. Smith spoke eloquently to a union congregation of Presbyterians, Baptists and Methodists at the Methodist church Sunday morning.

Using the figure of the potter modeling the clay, the speaker explained, "a fact that 'God never abandons a man although he stands on his heels'."

"Through our own faults and laziness we often ruin the 'plan of the potter,'" continued Dr. Smith. "We choose the lower plane when he chooses the higher."

In spite of flaws in our lives like shabby pieces of clay, hope was uttered in the words of the preacher "Who can measure the power of the potter to remodel the ruined vessel?"

The union meetings of these three denominations are proving mutually beneficial and are well attended.

POPULACE KEEPS ON SWELTERING

High Humidity Replaces The Excessive Heat

A populace that last week sweltered in the heat this week sweltered in the humidity, as rains and damp weather furnished only partial relief from uncomfortable weather.

Little change in the sticky weather of Thursday was expected today although the atmosphere might grow less humid toward the weekend, weather reports from Detroit said.

The slight break in the excessive heat came with a torrent of rain Sunday night. Rains Monday Tuesday and Wednesday failed to cool the over-hot village, but ran the humidity indicator up to a point where even the slightly lowered temperatures were too warm.

Hay has been further held up, and farmers indicated the additional moisture would do no good to struggling corn, already far behind the "three high" of fourth of July standard.

The rains have been intense, sporadic and short-lived, and Northville until Wednesday night, had been free of showers since as late as the 10th of July. A dust storm, which hit Walled Lake Sunday also missed the village.

The Gouppour early Wednesday evening however, did not keep a large crowd from standing under awnings, umbrellas and raincoats to witness the weekly Merchants Association show.

TO CHURCH HE GOES COATLESS — 'TIS A VICTORY OF SORTS

Encouraged, Heat-Crazed Man Ignores Collar and Tie

By C. F. HUTTON, Walled Lake

What has become of that rugged, round-shouldered, steel-nerved, iron-willed, lion-hearted newspaper editor in one of our neighboring states, a few years ago set tongues of the nation agog and eyebrows twitching with his would-be revolutionary effort to break open the ageless summer wearing apparel conventions which have so endlessly held the so-called civilized gentleman in bondage?

IS THE RUSSIAN DICTATOR MAD?

Terrible executions of high officials of the Soviet government of Russia in the past few weeks have given rise to the rumor that Stalin, the Russian dictator, is mad. There must be some mad men in Russia judging by the way cruel murders have been going on.

HIGH FOOD PRICES COMING

There was little if any corn that was "knee high by the 4th of July" around Northville; in fact our community has many fields that still lack that status. The cold wet spring has been hard on farmers' crops in southern Michigan but by a strange quirk of nature, while the southern part of the state has been suffering with too much rain the northern part has been having a drought.

WHEN CAN NORTHVILLE GO SWIMMING?

The other day while attending a burial service in the neighboring city of Milford we noticed a supervised group of swimmers in the Huron river. Fully 25 boys and girls were having the finest form of summer fun.

JOHN L. LEWIS LOSES PRESTIGE

Every indication points to the fact that John L. Lewis, who for the past few months seemed to be on his way to a labor dictatorship, is now "on his way out."

The head of the C. I. O. seems to have lost his position of influence at the White House and the recent poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion showed that William Green, of the American Federation of Labor is twice as popular as the scrappy Mr. Lewis.

It is a good thing for the country that John L. Lewis is deposed. He has made enough mistakes to merit the rebukes that have been coming to him both from the public and the higher powers.

IS TWO-PRICE SYSTEM COMING?

News from Washington is to the effect that cash buyers are getting ready to revolt against higher prices charged them because of the losses that come from credit buyers. A possibility of a two-price system—one for the cash buyer and one for the charge customer—is predicted by some observers.

A survey made in Washington shows that 32% of the goods bought in the country are purchased by people who say, "Charge it." Further, it is estimated that in the year 1936 merchants in the country should have received an interest alone $86,900,000 on charge accounts.

Proponents of the two-price system point out the fairness of such a plan. The losses to any store on the credit system come out of the cash customer, therefore, why should not the cash customer have the benefit of a discount?

Of course there are many reasons for the maintenance of the credit system, both for the convenience of the buyer and for the development of business. Why should some plan be worked out that would be fair to the cash buyer, the credit buyer who keeps his agreement and pays to the folks who say "Charge it" very glibly but who pay very slowly if at all.

ANOTHER REASON WHY MEN SWEAR

The other day we said to a good Northville friend that we thought most men use profanity because they lack an adequate vocabulary. It has always impressed us that a sensible, well trained, and straight-thinking individual should know enough good English words without having to resort to swearing to express his ideas.

"Dick, I think you are wrong," continued this friend of ours. "I think the reason men swear is because that in using profanity one has only to call upon the middle brain and not the top brain which is used for more intelligent thinking. Cut off the top section of the brain and the person does not do any real thinking. On the other hand, with the top part gone, the middle brain would still furnish the stimulus for profanity. That's my reason for thinking men should not swear."

Now, Record reader, why do men swear? And do they swear too much? Our own idea is that a lot of profanity is unnecessary and in many cases in very poor taste. It falls upon the ears of children and women who have the right to hear better language from good men.

Incidentally, we do not call a good healthy "damn" or "hell" the kind of profanity we have been talking about. Yet too many "hells" and "damns" are perfectly unnecessary and are often spoken in a tone of braggadocio.

who have attended previous camps or who have had previous military training. These young men are now in command of the companies under the direct supervision of reserve officers of the army, who act as instructors and regular army officers attached to the camp.

Intensive efforts are being made to improve the physical condition of the young men, to instill in them the habit of neatness and train them for better citizenship.

The camp will continue until August. Just before the close of camp, a visitors day program was arranged at which parents, relatives and friends of the trainees will be their guests at the camp. At the same time a number of Veterans prominent in patriotic and citizenship activities of the state will be guests of the camp commandant. The program will demonstrate the value of lessons learned in camp during the month.

END THE FEAR! Elton R. Eaton, Plymouth, Mich. For over six months there has been a constant effort made by politicians, certain newspapers and a group of so-called labor leaders to create labor difficulties in the Ford industries. So far, all of these efforts have failed.

Now certain government officials have entered into a scheme that on the face of it has every earmark of being nothing short of a conspiracy to make it appear that the Ford company has violated some new labor laws because a number of Ford workers gave a good thrashing to some agitators who invaded the Ford properties for no other reason than to create a riot.

The Detroit News, seemingly has entered into a campaign of this Detroit Times to punish the Ford Motor company, for what reason no one knows by blinding every effort to keep alive an issue that gutters and cover a wide variety of strike events.

In addition to the athletic events a number of other prizes are available for the young men who stand high in the camp. These include scholarships, medals for citizenship and other awards.

Another feature of the camp which is always of interest to the C.M.T.C. trainees are the periods which started this week. The five periods are in line several days during the camp and a certificate is awarded to the company commander by the experience at each camp.

Senior officers and non-commissioned officers of the companies have both chosen from the trainees.

ment" officers and other department. Day after day there has appeared on the first page of these two Detroit papers long articles reciting in great detail what the Ford Motor company has been accused of by the government as a result of their fight against the so-called "right" to force upon Ford employees.

Some political job holders who probably never created a job for a person in their lives and probably never made a success of any job they ever held in private life—pretending they ever worked outside of politics—are now conducting a "bearing" into this so-called riot.

There is this one thing about the whole matter—Washington officialdom and some of the big newspapers had better wake up to the fact that the general public, in the smaller communities and in the rural sections at least—is becoming pretty much infuriated by the UNFAIRNESS of what is being done.

The time is here for a RIGHT ABOUT FACE movement on the part of high administration officials and some of the big newspapers. The vast majority of the people do not like what is being done and they are not going to tolerate it much longer. How much better it would be if there was started a real campaign which will seek to restore at least a little good will between employer and employe, as well as a whole lot of badly needed confidence in public officialdom, both state and national.

For three long years now all we have heard is a song of hate, a declaration that everything is wrong and nothing right!

What a relief it would be if officials in Washington in Lansing and newspapers and everybody would begin to tell the truth—that this is still the best country in the whole world, that there IS opportunity for those WILLING to work and there IS plenty to do for those willing to work and that our government still IS a government of the PEOPLE!

GUSTER TRAINING CAMP BEGINS WORK

With a varied program of activities confronting them, young men in the Citizens Military Training Camp have completed organization of the camp and are hard at work in study and recreational activities. The mornings are given over to physical exercise, mass games and lectures and supervised athletics are available in the afternoon.

Those who excel in athletics will be awarded medals at the close of the camp. These medals are for first, second and third place standing and cover a wide variety of athletic events.

In addition to the athletic events a number of other prizes are available for the young men who stand high in the camp. These include scholarships, medals for citizenship and other awards.

sometimes half under water. It is slow. But it gets there.
Now why should a proposal to increase the number of justices on the Supreme Court be so invidious? Plan, Harmless in Itself?

The fact is that in itself the plan is quite harmless. It may be quite true that the country would be better off if younger justices sat along side those over 70 of 75. Few are they, after all, who are as keen as they were before. But in this instance there is nothing to do with it. And President Roosevelt knows that better than anybody else. Furthermore, the outstanding men on the Supreme Bench were as alert at retirement or death as when they were appointed. Story, Chase, Holmes, of those now dead. Brandeis (chief administration supporter on the court) is 80, and Hughes is 75. If there are better men than these, bring them out. The nation needs them.

It is the time and conditions surrounding the present court plans that make them so bad. Had President Hoover, or Coolidge, or Wilson proposed such measures, they might well have been adopted, were there a real need.
But now the President has certain definite objectives which he wishes to obtain. These objectives have, in part, been thwarted by decisions of the Supreme Court, which has held the manner of obtaining them unconstitutional. And the President wishes to pack the court in order to prevent his will from being thwarted.

It doesn't matter that his objectives are worthy. It doesn't matter that the President's proposals are constitutional to the letter. But it does matter that his objectives are unconstitutional. And it does matter that the President, whatever his intentions, is an authoritarian. He is a man who believes in the right of a single man to rule. He is a man who believes in the right of a single man to rule. He is a man who believes in the right of a single man to rule.

When the extension of the single case of war, the Supreme Court has repeatedly held that the emergency is sufficient for the suspension of constitutional provisions. And in a time of war, the Court has held that the government may do anything it wishes to do. It has held that the government may do anything it wishes to do. It has held that the government may do anything it wishes to do.

There are two other reasons for opposing the court proposal. The first is that it will concentrate still further power in the President. This process of centralization has gone farther under Franklin Roosevelt than under any previous President in our history. Each time he has asked for more. The departmental reorganization bill, now before the congress, would add control of the civil service to his control of tariff and foreign trade, money and bank and "heads-and-wages" bill would still further extend the presidential power. Many of these administrative extensions were asked for by "temporary" men (each was asked to be extended. The process was over too far ahead.) It was not the important and serious business of the country. But now is the time to stop a little.

The other reason for opposition to the court-packing plan is the change of the court's attitude in the National Labor Relations act cases in the Washington State minimum wage cases gives the present administration all that it has ever asked and more too. Particularly, the court in upholding the NLRB in the Virginia tailoring company decision opened a field of federal supervision of intra-state commerce not yet even dreamed of. Furthermore, the resignation of Mr. Justice Van Devanter risks the court of one staunch conservative anti-New Dealer and gives the president the chance to make a pro-New Dealer appointment.

What more does Mr. Roosevelt ask, and why? Persons extremely hostile to the president say the only reason he has insisted that a court bill go through is to gain more power for himself. But even if you grant that the only reason for his insistence is to safeguard a liberal court, is that sufficient excuse for jeopardizing the entire judiciary and laying the road wide open for the emasculation of democracy in the United States?

Perhaps some reform of the court is needed. Perhaps the amending process should be eased. But it is hoped that to both of the present proposals a majority of Congressmen will shout a resounding "No."

Further success of either of the President's proposals would be bound to weaken the court in the popular esteem. Few but ardent New Dealers could respect a court packed with men who would parrot the President's attitude on constitutional law. And the court would have that type of men for other good. It would do the President no good to appoint them. This would be bad for justice and good government in general. Long before the President's first plan was announced, Chief Justice Hughes made a study of the court's prestige, and he saw the ill-effects of a court in low esteem, a court regarded as the Supreme Court was after the Dred Scott Case, after the Legal Tender cases and the Slaughter House cases.

The present court proposal is immoral and a subterfuge because it attempts to gain popular assent under the guise of the age question. Age has nothing to do with it whatsoever, and the apparent Roosevelt belief that the people would fall for this argument is no less than an insult to the public mind.

A glance at the supporters of the court proposals is in themselves a good argument against it. So far as can be determined, the plans draw their support solely from four classes — persons so ardently New Dealers as to put their partisanship above all else; more or less spineless democrats who don't care to oppose the President; parlor-pink liberals who know nothing of the issues involved but who are for everything labeled liberal; and those extremist elements in our population who seek destruction of our democratic institutions.

Of the first probably President Roosevelt is the best example. Of the second, Senators Ashurst, Robinson, and a few libertarians. A recent editorial in the Michigan Daily, published in the Detroit Free Press, was the liberal-to-be-labeled group, and the Communist Daily Worker is the extreme type.

As for the last, it is well known that the liberal-to-be-labeled group is the best example of the second, Senators Ashurst, Robinson, and a few libertarians. A recent editorial in the Michigan Daily, published in the Detroit Free Press, was the liberal-to-be-labeled group, and the Communist Daily Worker is the extreme type.

EGG prices are running an average of eight to ten cents a dozen under their price of last year at this time. Fish continues to be plentiful, particularly fillets, haddock, cod, swordfish, oysters, clams and smoked and salt fish. Canned salmon is also an economical and delicious standby for lunches and suppers.

Poultry continues low in price. Veal is plentiful and moderately priced for the first time in months. Lamb is a little higher and beef, fresh and tenderloin, about steady.

The vegetable and fruit situation has changed very little during the week, the best values being available in sprouts, eggplants and the earliest root vegetables such as apples, carrots, raspberries and oranges.

PRIDE
At the games of Olympia, Diogenes beheld some young men from Rhodes attired most magnificently. "This," he exclaimed, "is pride!" Later, meeting with some Laconians, who affected a mean and slovenly dress, he said "And this also is pride!"—Christian Science Monitor.

TOO LITTLE!
The woman was directed to her seat at the military tattoo by an obliging officer, and offered him sympathy. "Here you are, my man!" "I beg you pardon, madam, but I am an officer."

"I can't help it; that's all the change I've got!"—Edinburgh Dispatch.
