COUNCILMEN TABLE LIQUOR APPLICATIONS

Council Shows Reluctance In Letting Village "Go Wide Open"

That Northville may not be thrown wide open following the council's passing the liquor-on-the-glass resolution a few weeks ago was indicated Tuesday evening when the governing body voted unanimously to table indefinitely two requests for liquor licenses.

According to the Rev. Father Schuler, the applications came from Cliff LePere and B. H. Stevenson. There were about 300 visitors for the dedication of Villa St. Felix.

Councilmen voiced no objections as some 4,000 persons attended the service.

While little bodies were growing stronger than hands had been kept happy and quietly busy with their summer recreation work under the direction of Supervisor Mrs. Clara Sharp and the three teachers, Mrs. James McKenna, Miss Cecil Douglass and Mrs. Beulah Pearl.

Following the dedication, the building is to be left open for public inspection until Sept. 12, to be closed then for all time to outsiders.

The Villa, constructed of brick and stone, includes the novitiate, the convent, the chapel and the service buildings. At a later date it is planned to build an infirmary, girls' academy and rectory.

Of the Lombard style of architecture, the buildings were designed by O'Meara and Hills and were erected by the W. E. Wood company.

Built of concrete and steel with pine trim and Indiana limestone trimmings, the structure is modern and fireproof.

Work on the Villa commenced in 1935 under the supervision of the provincial superior, Mother Mary de Sales and her council, Sisters Mary Theodore, Vitilda, Jeremiah and Pancratius. The late Bishop Michael Gallagher laid the cornerstone Oct. 13, 1935.

Monday's dedication culminated the greatest expectations of a small community diocese known as Polonia, Wis., where the organization had its beginning in the United States.

It was here that the Rev. Fr. Joseph Domrowski started a parish to take care of the Polish immigrants. In 1874 he realized that he needed the aid of a community of nuns. This led to the inviting of the young order of Felician to come from Poland to Wisconsin. That year five nuns responded to his call to open a convent there. With the growth in immigration from that country, the Felicians had in mind a more central location and upon invitation, moved to Detroit. Simultaneously the Rev. Father Domrowski was establishing the SS. Cyril and Methodius' seminary of which he is the president.

Petitions for a special election must be submitted to the council if residents wish to vote for or against liquor.

At Plymouth the commission has tabled the resolution, which according to State law must be acted upon by Sept. 19, if governing bodies are to take any action on the liquor question. If this is recognized, the matter will come before the general vote of the residents of that place in a special election.

Much public sentiment has been aroused at Milford where the commission has as yet taken no action on the liquor resolution.

Rev. Fr. J. G. Schuler Attends Dedication Of Villa St. Felix

The Rev. Fr. J. G. Schuler, of the Our Lady of Victory church, was among the 200 priests who attended the dedication Monday of the Villa St. Felix, the newly constructed motherhouse and novitiate of the Detroit Province Felician Sisters on Schoolcraft road at Newburgh road, just outside Plymouth.

Archbishop Edward Mooney had charge of the ceremony, which was followed by solemn Mass. This was the archbishop's first public office act in the Detroit archdiocese since his enthronement a few weeks ago.

Assisting Archbishop Mooney with the dedication were some 40 priests, mostly from neighboring parishes.

According to the Rev. Father Schuler, the dedications came from Cliff LePere and B. H. Stevenson. There were about 300 visitors for the dedication of Villa St. Felix.

With great ingenuity the teachers helped these children to make "much out of little" using all kinds of material to carry out their projects.

Empty spools, boxes and even newspapers are transformed into attractive articles.

The climax to the event was the singing of tea by the little folks who passed the cups and plates of fancy sandwiches with remarkable dignity.

WHAT'S WRONG AT HOME

(Farmington Enterprise)

After hearing a lot about the waywardness of children of the present, it occurred to Rev. Clinton D. Cox of Chicago to get the viewpoint of the youngsters themselves, which he did through asking 175 boys to write freely their ideas on "What's Wrong With the Home?"

Among the answers given by these boys, who ranged from 14 to 16 years of age, were the following:

"A boy wants a mother who can keep a secret and not tell the neighbors everything about him."

"The girl's word is always taken and the boy's word is always doubted."

"Home is a court room and every member in the family tries to take a hand in raising the boy."

"Parents never admit it when they are wrong."

"People who led the wildest life before they were married are the strictest parents."

"Mothers try to hold other boys up as models too much."

These are only a few of the answers, but they indicate that boys believe there are a good many faults on the parents' side of the case, and doubtless that is true.

Young persons will usually acknowledge their shortcomings and accept reproof without resentment if they feel that the parent is right and fair. But it is often difficult for parent and child to see things from the same angle.

To deal with children firmly when necessary, yet without apparent harshness, is not always easy.

DANGER IN LABOR SITUATION

(M. H. DeFoe in Charlotte Republican-Tribune)

In the opinion of Senator G. E. McArthur of Eaton Rapids, who spoke at the Charlotte Rotary club luncheon Tuesday noon, "communism or fascism is coming mighty fast" if conditions that threaten the all time closing of the Horner Bros. woolen mills are allowed to continue undisturbed in America.

As the sole instigator of the movement to organize an independent union of Horner employees Senator McArthur fully acquainted himself with the provisions of the Wagner act which statute, he says, is a collection of legal don'ts for the manufacturer and a free rein bordering on open anarchy for labor. He says the Horners will permanently retire from the industrial field before they will submit to C. I. O. control.

The speaker predicted that Henry Ford will do precisely the same thing: that the flivver king will dismantle his plant before he will take any outside dictation. He said that when the Wagner law was passed there was only one serious labor disturbance in the country; the seaman's strike along the west coast and that since the law was approved the country has faced 700 strikes, an all time high.

The McArthur statements were carefully framed, in fact, his complete talk, despite several trends toward emphasis, showed a sympathy, poise, and dignity that added to the potency of his opinions. To really appreciate the deadly earnestness of Senator McArthur in this matter and the extent of the fears that he expressed for our national security, if these conditions are allowed to continue, one must know something of the man. McArthur was brought up on the streets of Eaton-Rapids, so to speak; he had to fight his own way, he is self educated and by birth, inclination, desire and thinking, is a liberal, an under-dog sympathizer who doesn't have to go outside his own experiences to explain his attitude.

In other words McArthur basically would prefer to be with the shop hands rather than with the executives in the front office. This man knows the dangers of any labor program that goes beyond moderation. For that reason he gave liberally of his time and abilities to an effort to serve the man at the bottom. That he failed does not take away from Senator McArthur the inner personal satisfaction that goes with any movement as deeply conceived in community helpfulness as was his motive at this time. The Wagner act is too one-sided to protect the people it aims to serve. Idle factories will never settle labor difficulties. The Horners should match the efforts of their friends. They owe this consideration to the community that must hold a deep and abiding place in their hearts. Both sides should not fail!

A SCREWDY WORLD

(W. S. Kennedy in The Albion Evening Record)

This is a screwy world we are living in. Civil war in Spain goes on and on with Italy, France, Germany and Russia practically openly taking sides and sending naval and munitions into the fray. Japan defies the western powers to interfere with her conquest of China and gets away with it. Chinese bomb an American luxury liner from American-made planes.

Right here at home a congress adjourns after appropriating eight billion dollars from a treasury already three billion dollars in the red. More than ten million workers are paying an additional income tax on their wages for old age pensions and the money collected is being spent, and legally, for current government expenses. A special session of Congress may be called because John L. Lewis, czar of left wing labor unions, promised his followers a wage-hour bill and Congress did not enact it.

In Hazelton, Pa., where a silk mill strike was forced by C. I. O. organizers, 1,131 of the 1,425 employees signed a petition to the mayor demanding the right to return to work with proper protection. To which the local chapter of the United Mine Workers Union, which has nothing to do with the silk industry except that another C. I. O. union is trying to organize it, replied as follows with a page ad in the local newspaper:

"Any member of the United Mine Workers who has a wife, daughter, sister, brother or son, who is a signer of this petition should, and will pay strict attention to this statement, for on it depends his membership in the United Mine Workers of America. This organization will not permit any of its members to continue to hold memberships who allows any member of his family to scrub in an open shop, such as the Duplan Silk Mill. Let every mine-worker beware, for he will not be allowed to enter any mine or colliery if he permits any member of his family to return to work in the Duplan Silk Mill, unless signed by a legitimate labor organization."

Now what do you think of that?

Nearer home, at Eaton Rapids, where a woolen mill was closed by United Automobile Workers' organizers, an injunction has been granted by the court against illegal picketing which prevented the officials of the company free access to their plant. The automobile union's answer to that was to increase the number of pickets and arm them with clubs. Some of them are strangers to the town. One could go on with similar testimony of the screwiness of the world and our own country indefinitely. There are those who maintain that "everything will work out all right." Our idea is that everything can be worked out all right, but it will take a lot of working.

These are only a few of the answers, but they indicate that boys believe there are a good many faults on the parents' side of the case, and doubtless that is true.

JAPAN

Officially, there is no war in China. As I write, the British ambassador to China lies desperately wounded by Japanese gunners. Several Americans, including one United States sailor, have been killed. American vessels carrying refugees and non-combatants out of otherwise peaceful Shanghai have been attacked, and many American civilians have been wounded in Japan's murderous aggression upon China. American property, and that of other nations, has been ruthlessly destroyed by the same force. Shipping is being subjected to blockade conditions by the Japanese navy along eight hundred miles of China's coast. Countless thousands of unarmed defenseless Chinese have been slaughtered in demonstrations of human ruthlessness that place the kingdom of little yellow men in an unfriendly category among world powers.

Perhaps Japan intends this ghastly butchery of women and children to serve as warning to other nations. Perhaps she wishes us, for example, to see how Japan deals with those who might stand in the way of her nationalistic presumptions.

The Japanese are suffering from a form of primitive savagery which has been steadily growing more monstrous. They are convinced that they are the world's most able and most deserving people. Their past successes—the first Chinese war and the U.S. S. aviation camp which were seen flying over the village. WHY NOT GOVERNMENTALIZE EVERYTHING?

(Paul Ruddick in LaGrange, Ind., Standard)

The easiest solution for trouble is to say, "Let the government take it over and run it."

In theory, it seems a delightful way to end all selfishness and other ills of existence. In actual working, it is the shortest route to waste and woe.

Here is just one example, a homestead project of the government for small income families of Washington where they could supplement incomes by some small farming. The official name of the settlement is Highland, but it is called Tugwelltown in honor of Rexford Tugwell, the famous creator. Because the government's money was being spent and everyone felt free to throw it lavishly, this modest project for some humble families cost more than four million dollars for the 200 units or $20,163 per unit. The houses alone came to about $16,000 each. The administrative costs were about forty per cent. What chance in the world has a man of humble income to pay out on such a home in accordance with its real cost?

Yes, the only way to end all our troubles is to have the government run everything.

TOGETHER
Thoughtfully we closed the finished book. It was not a great book—unless you call that book great which leaves something to be remembered, that raises the ideals.

This is the part of the story that we will remember: A young doctor took a friend who was troubled by an unhappy marriage to call upon an old couple to be parted in death. The relation between the two old people was beautiful and both visitors left the house profoundly impressed.

"Whenever I leave that home," said the doctor, "I say to myself that I will never let anything but the last enemy come between me and the woman I love. This man and woman made a home together, worked together in their market gardening, read and studied together—did everything from first to last together. That's the whole force of the illustration to my mind. It's the standing shoulder to shoulder to face life that does the thing. Whenever you bring Alicia back—as you will—make it a partnership even though you have to build a little cottage and live alone there together."

Seward's Higher Law Speech
Seward's higher law speech was a speech delivered by William H. Seward during the debates on the compromise of 1850, in which he said: "The Constitution devotes the domain to union, to justice, to defense, to welfare, and to liberty. But there is a higher law than the Constitution, which regulates our authority over the domain, and devotes it to the same noble purpose."

THAT OLD FASHIONED MOTHER
By Grace Springer Miller
There's an old fashioned girl
With an old fashioned name,
In memory's hall divine,
And her picture hangs there
At the foot of the stair,
She's that old fashioned mother of mine.

There's an old fashioned flower
That's pressed 'twixen the pages
Of a book that's wondrous to see.
And it grew in the ages of love
That made childhood a haven for me.

Tis the rose of the world that grew
In the forests of sturdy old oaks
And of pine. Ah, I hear a request
And I grant the bequest.
She's that old fashioned mother of mine.

There's a mist in my eye
And my heart breathes a prayer
Whose fulness isn't hard to divine
It's to make sweet the path.
Make sweet the last breath
Of that old fashioned mother of mine.

Three Tea Hostesses Honor Mrs. A. R. Clarke

One of the local tea parlors was host of Miss Adeline Krueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krueger, of Blant road, 1911 Lemoore Place, Detroit, for the Saturday evening Aug. 25. The Luthersburg church of Northville was tastefully decorated for the occasion with its chancel lined with green trees of garden roses in the pink and white motif. Rev. E. E. Rossouw, pastor, read the service at 8 o'clock before a company of guests that filled the church.

Following the wedding procession, Miss Marlene Ray Rieschmeier, of the bride, sang "Trene Liebe." Mrs. John Beam presided at the organ for the wedding music and played "Lebenstraum" during the ceremony. The Lohengrin march brought the attendants up the aisle and the bridal chorus was reserved for the bride and her father, who gave her away. The recessional was expressive with Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride was charming in a gown of ivory satin with tight-fitted bodice and sleeves. The long train was veiled in tulle edged with lace that fell from a high halo set well back on the bride's hair. She carried pink roses. Miss Josephine Lennon of Highland, was maid of honor and was lovely in a gown of lace taffeta with puffed sleeves, shirred bodice and full skirt with train. She carried orchid and white asters.

Miss Emily Krueger, bridesmaid, sister of the bride, wore a pink rayon crepe and carried a shower of pink and white asters. Carol Krueger, the bride's small niece, was in yellow and carried a basket of garden flowers. Mr. Racooy's attendants were his brother, John, and Meyers Tyler of Detroit.

Following the ceremony a reception and wedding dinner was held at the Krueger home. The bride's table was laid for 32 guests and cousins served. A high wedding cake with its traditional bride and groom formed the centerpiece.

After a trip in the east and a visit in Ontario the couple will live in Detroit, where Mr. Racooy is a commercial artist and the bride a teacher of piano. The bride is a graduate of Milford high school and has been a popular musician since childhood. —The Milford Times.

LADIES SHOP REFLECTS FALL FASHION TRENDS IN DRESSES, HATS

A sun, sending down heat several degrees higher than we find pleasant, didn't stop us under office shelter Friday when we had a chance to preview the hats and dresses that Miss Myrtle Gibson selected for her formal opening.

Having made a study for several weeks of early fall styles, we made a mental check of the "trunks" as Miss Gibson brought her frocks out for inspection. We found all the new trunks fashion-conscious, have been emphasizing for the season.

For instance, the "trunk" selected for the formal opening.

Observe Birthday

The birthday party will be the feature of the March 1 meeting, with Mrs. Arlo M. Hauger, Mrs. C. H. Schoutz and Mrs. C. R. Ely the hostesses.

A registration day partner for the velvets might well be a black wool, tweed weave, with fur balls resting on the neck ties of this two-piece dress.

There were two dresses that had the necessary fall look, but still would make for comfortable wearing while the days remain warm. Both were short-sleeved and were made of crepe. One boasted a navy skirt with an interesting top of white embroidery over the dark background. Pearl buttons in groups of five completed the trim. The other was black with a Peter Pan collar. Round white buttons that extended three-fourths of the way down the front of the dress and which ornamented the two waist pockets, were the only trim.

Another early fall favorite was of black crepe designed with a great deal of fullness in the bodice, had a its unusual feature, wide sash, lined with silver-matched cloth and completed with a deep fringe.

That the shop is going to receive the immediate patronage of villagers became assured when Miss Gibson told about the very personal service she can give to clients. If shoppers don't find exactly what they want, she can get it within a short time. It's her plan to stock her shop according to the wants and needs of patrons.

No woman likes to see herself coming and going—that's what happens when a buyer selects several sizes of a particular frock or hat design. There will be none of that at the LaCnic shop, where one-of-a-kind is the policy.

Mrs. Charles M. Murphy, 223 High street, was tea hostess to a large group of friends last Friday afternoon, Sept. 3, honoring Mrs. E. L. Mills who is to leave in the fall to make her home in Howell.

The hostess made her rooms particularly attractive for this occasion with the use of large baskets of late summer flowers.

Mrs. Wood Opens Home Tuesday To Members of Nellie Yerkes

Mrs. Ernest Wood, 924 West Seven Mile road, will be hostess to the members of the Garden club which is scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. Monday, Sept. 13.

The highlight of the afternoon will be an informal talk by Mrs. Thad J. Knapp on "English Gardens."

Members wanting transportation to the Wood home are asked to call Mrs. R. J. Casterline, 265.

Mrs. Avis Brown Is Feted During Week at Parties

Mrs. Avis Brown, formerly of this place, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown, Ann Arbor, left Wednesday, Aug. 21, honoring Mrs. A. R. Clarke of a cushion shower.

The guest list on this occasion included Mrs. George H. Stuller, Mrs. Harold Bloom, Mrs. C. H. Wilson, Mrs. James A. Huff, Jr., Miss Gladys, popular fabric for street wear, Iraug Mrs. D. P. Yerkes Jr. and Mrs. Leslie G. Lee.

EDMONDSON SHOWS FILM TO EXCHANGITES

By C. A. DOLPH

Pictures showing the moving parts of machinery and the necessity of oil to protect them from wear were thrown upon a screen for the benefit of Exchange club members at their meeting Wednesday noon.

Tom Edmondson provided the program and Jack Frost, engineer for Socony-Vacuum Oil company, and his helper arranged for the pictures. The modern demands for speed in production, and transportation calls for oils that can be applied by hand; pressure under ordinary warmth or great heat and performed properly for each need.

Next week Constitution Day will be observed and matters of interest discussed.

Walled Lake News BY CHARLES E. HUTTON

FIRE AND ACCIDENTS HEAD NEWS COLUMN

Accidents and fires continue to hold the banner line of this column. Automobiles were responsible for serious injuries to a four year old child and an adult during the past week.

Patricia Thomas, four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Faywood Thomas, 650 Walnut road, was struck by an automobile last Sunday afternoon when she ran across the road in front of her house. The driver of the car, John C. Smith, 31, 8157 Violet lawn Drive, told deputies he was unable to stop when the child ran in front of him. The child was taken to the Pontiac General hospital where she was treated for face lacerations. Several stitches were needed to close one wound. She is still confined to the hospital.

Richard Pezey, 1046 Chalmers, Detroit, struck a tree on Decker road at 9 p.m. Friday, when he lost control of his car at an unfamiliar turn in the road. He suffered lacerations of the head and back, fractured ribs and possible fractured pelvis. He was treated here and later taken to Pontiac General hospital.

A cottage located at 303 East Lake Drive, owned by Mrs. Bertha Schultz, completely destroyed by fire at 6:30 p.m. Friday, when a kerosene stove ignited oil which had leaked in a catch basin, below the burner.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Matensky, 15271 Regna, Allen Park, and tenants of the cottage were preparing dinner at the time. They were followed by a business session for members of St. Peters Social club. Detroit, which had rented the cottage for a week.

The Walled Lake fire department was not called, it is alleged, for several minutes after the fire was discovered by Matensky, and the blaze had swept the cottage by the time the apparatus was in operation. The department succeeded in saving adjacent cottages which were threatened.

CLUBS BEGIN FALL PROGRAM

With the beginning of the fall season, come announcements of opening meetings of several local and county organizations.

The Parent Teachers association of the Walled Lake school is holding a potluck supper and teachers' reception tonight at 7 o'clock in the school gymnasium. Mrs. Earl Stark is in charge of kitchen arrangements, and Mrs. Fred Thayer is chairman of the supper room committee.

The supper and program will be followed by a short business meeting when committees for the year will be announced. An unusually large attendance is expected from the newly enlarged school district.

SORE STUMICKS ONE THING

FRIDAY EGGS ANOTHER, SAYS HOWDY

By C. E. HUTTON

We stopped in at "Howdy's" for Howdy is the sage who runs the garage and grocery store down at Maple Corners. "Zinctooth" Billups puffed up while we were there, to get some eggs for dinner.

"I ain't either," denied Zinctooth but Fred Jenkins had him. He got so he couldn't do no work at all and he started eatin' raw eggs, and now he can stay in the field all day.

"Yea, but he had a bad stomach yesterday, anyway. I eat from four to six raw eggs every day. Anyway, they're better for you than raw. You should eat eggs any way but raw."

"That's a matter of opinion," continued Howdy. "You're the only one I've heard say that, and I've been buyin' and sellin' eggs now, for quite a spell."

"Well, they hurt my stomach any way but raw," declared Zinctooth. "Besides, I know a lot of others who goin' to win this argument, any how? And what have you got if you don't win? Go on up stairs and get some lunch. Fry me three eggs and turn 'em over."

"You can't go on that," countered Howdy.

"It's a matter of opinion," continued Howdy.

COVER CROPS CUT SOIL LOSS
Soil erosion and floods are largely regulated by the surface cover on any farm, comments J. S. Cutler, regional head of the federal soil conservation service. He recommends immediate planning for cover crops on fields which would otherwise be bare this winter.

Where natural vegetation is undisturbed by fire, grazing or cultivation, the natural soil openings are not clogged, Cutler declared. When the cover is disturbed, the openings become small because of the packing effect of raindrops, and infiltration of rain becomes more difficult. County agricultural agents including E. I. Besemer in Wayne county are prepared to recommend suitable plantings.

Whether rain seeps into the soil or runs off, carrying topsoil with it, depends largely on plant roots, Cutler said. Decaying roots leave channels that conduct water not only in the topsoil but into the subsoil as well. On the other hand, the removal of trees and grasses eventually destroys the root channels and those left are filled up with soil. Soils cling together, thus contributing to the flood and erosion menace.

Cover crops serve a double purpose of protecting the soil against erosion and increasing the fertility of the soil, he said. When turned under, the green manure adds to the humus content and enables it to absorb more water.

Winter cover crops, recommended by the Michigan State College Extension agronomists to provide protection against winter rains, include available small grains grown on the farm, such as rye, wheat, vetch or sweet clover.

LISTENING WITH YOUR EYES

All your thinking is done with mental images or pictures. When some one says "apple" to you, there goes up in your mind the image of an apple.

Is it not true that "apple" on this sheet that same picture of an apple came up in your mind? The apple and the word are one and the same in your mind. First you had to see an actual apple or a picture of one but once that image was "set" in your imagination the word will do the trick.

Do you see then that all your thinking depends on your seeing ability? When you come on a new familiar object or object, you have to "look twice" to get acquainted. That is listening with your eyes.

BUT the value of these mental images will vary, depending on how accurately you were able to observe the original word or object. Accuracy means more than "sharp eyesight" — it may be necessary for you to look steadily at some object close to you. You don't realize it, but in many cases, you look away from the object before you have seen it thoroughly, because the effort of holding your eyes focused on the object was too great for you to endure. In others, you "suppress" one eye to avoid seeing double and if you fall into this habit you find yourself making mistakes, spoiling work, getting "in Dutch" and
