King's Daughters Mak Christmas Dinners a Reality in Poor Homes; Village Aids in Delivery

Plan New Project

The King's Daughters, the largest organized charity group in North-ville, were responsible for bringing Christmas in a material manner to more than 40 homes this season.

Some 30 baskets of provisions, including mickens and staples, were distributed the Saturday afternoon before Christmas to homes where there were few supplies for even an ordinary meal—let alone a holiday one.

In addition to the so paskets of provisions, some 10 baskets of fruit were given out. We were able to put a clincken in most of the fruit baskets, too," asserted Miss Ruth Gillis, president of the King's Daughters, "This was all made pos-According to Miss -Gillis, more

🔊 In a Pile of Cards . .

=We often think, that-despite personal differences, we are all much alike. We laugh when tickled, and bleed and weep when prickled, and react with marked similarity to kindred circumstances. So we wonder if others get the big kick out of their Christmus greetings that we do? Rach year we spend many happy hours reading the signatures, and greetings on the cards and detters that lie on the corner table. We always look them over after Christmas, and our thoughts are taken from Boston to lorida; to a pecan greve hear Mobile: to dear ones in California; to a trout fisherman up north; ah, yes. this year particularly our mind was focused on the trials of friends in foreign lands From English friends we find One Year Ago typical Christmas greedings in the words "In quietness] and confidence shall be your strength." and a verse of to head the Northville Branch of gupplication, "O, Light he yond our ken, Heal the Hearts the National Farm and Garden Asof men." "A Line on Europe" tells of Six months in Fin-sociation for the year.

A 200, Norman Charles, was born dand, Lapland, and northern Europe—made most interest—to Mr and Ms Marvin Tibble, Jan. President F S Harinon, vice-presiling in the light of today's events.

Individuality expresses itself in single line sketches of a movie artist and director in Hollywood. Our Deerslayer's card shows two graceful fawns. Three ministers of the gospel admonish to uprighteousness with biblical injunctions lest-we go astray. Fellow editors sympathize and former associates suggest memoirs. A P. K. asks for forgiveness for not writing. Volumes of Christmas wishes invite us to look inside. A card from the Old People Home bespeaks a stoutness of heart, and ability Leto-surmount adversities seemingly too great to carry. Several suggest the gayety and joy of an open house." Another says "Calling you up."

Business greetings spoke of "Old Wood, Old Books and Old Wine" and Ray takes time for a personal word on the company greeting. A card thowing a puffing loco-parents, Mr and Mrs John L Netmotive in its romance of power brings a trainlead of son greetings. Some say, fraternally-and bear the insignia Fifteen Years Ago of the craft or organization. Then we miss the familiar H. E. Gus, has the mailbox painted with a bucksaw so we can find the place E E E. has tales of the old camping ground, the Grand Canyon, the Major, T. N. T. and days when it was cool in the shade in New Mexico And again we feel as Editor 'Dick" reminds us so often, "It's a good world."

But we must pass on through the steel cuts, the lithos, date one grade and some changes the tinsel, the color, from religious inspiration to the 101lity and rollicking of the flowing bowl, and memory again has found rejuvination in happy thoughts. Home again an thought and fact we find "Fortune" will be yours sign? ed "Virginia, Stew. Stan, Jack Frank and Pete," and feel like a plutocrat or something. And then "Herry Christmas POP-can't match it, can't tie it, like YOU Pop, it's tops," and when you find out that the two kids picked it a former Northville resident fout all by their own sweet little selves, it brings a bit of moisture to the eye.

By the judicious use of lighting, it is pos-sible to LEAD customers to specific points or displays in your store, and in-crease the sale of merchandise in that area. A department store, for example, changed its ordinary lighting to a combination of indirect lighting and spot lighting. The change of lighting was made in the women's ready-to-wear department, and traffic in this section of the store was so increased that additional salespeople had to be called in and the sale of featured dresses increased 60%.

* * * In like manner, light can be used to divert traffic to a counter, a single display, or through certain desired aisles to the back of the store. Detroit Edison engineers will gladly explain how you can use light to control traffic in YOUR store. There is no charge or obligation. Call our Detroit Edison office. The Detroit Edison Company.
