Preparing and Carrying On

Northville, taking everything in characteristic stride, has settled down to prepare for war emergencies in a constructive manner and at the same time, the village activities are carried on.

What has been done for defense in such a quiet manner and without fanfare?

A bomb shelter has been built at the grade school.

Air raid drills have become school routine.

Four First Aid classes meet each Monday night.

Home nursing and practical nursing instruction are given to volunteer volunteers every week.

Instruction in blue print and instrument reading is given by qualified teachers.

Seventy-eight pints of blood were donated by villagers to supply the Red Cross Blood bank held in reserve for the army forces. And registration is going forward for another contribution within a few weeks.

A canteen course has been organized.

During January, 5104 hours of knitting and sewing were reported by the local unit of the Red Cross.

Legionnaires are attending weekly classes in police training.

Newspapers have sold over 26000 Defense Stamps.

Villagers are loyally putting their savings into the purchase of Defense Bonds.

A course in motor mechanics for women will get started next week.

Substantial sums of money were allotted by the village and the township this week so that supplies could be obtained for the medical emergency corps which goes into training Sunday for civilian protection.

A village civil defense council was formed several weeks ago and is on the alert to carry out a definite campaign for protection.

All this has been done in the name of defense, but village affairs manage to receive due attention and we carry on much the same as before, but with the goal for victory over the paramount objective.

And how are we carrying on?

With our fifth report card back, that form has taken for itself the slogan, "Keep on Up". Last year the tenfold for Honors in Northville. Two years previous, the girls were sole holders of the title. So they are carrying on.

The Presbyterian Men's club sponsored the Second Annual Community Hobby Show last Friday. Collections who didn't exhibit last year asked for exhibit space along with the repeaters who participated in 1941. It was a good exhibition. It may come out that for one hour we still directed toward hobbies. But are they ever important.

Crippled children found out that they still have a helping hand to guide them through the effort of the Easter Seal Drive, sponsored there by the Rotarians. Widening the scope of activity for these handicapped Rotarians have stepped forward to sponsor the Northville Charity House Show, or, land, of the crippled children. So Northville joins in the fight to keep 'em walking of home!

The Camp Fire Girls and the 4-H club, both 4-H, 4-H, 4-H Defense programs, whenever their aid is needed, celebrated their birthday anniversary, March 15.

The Exchange Club has done a bit of reorganization of the Scout Troops so that the Scouting program can go forward under sponsorship.

The newly organized zoning commission is working hard for the interests of the village at large.

Village churches are continuing, even enlarging their programs.

Washington Encourages Potato Production

Urging the potato growers to plant on an increasing scale, a release comes today from Washington giving the price and loan privileges for 1942, stressing that producers are to plant at least 80 per cent and no more than 110 per cent of their allotment in order to benefit from the set privileges.

The government says that the following price supporting programs are available. Purchases will be made by A.M.A. when necessary to support price U. S. No. 1 potatoes, with differentials for marketable potatoes containing 85 percent U. S. No. 1 grade; 2-C.C.C. will make loans to and purchases from eligible producers, associations and dealers on potatoes grading U. S. No. 1 and on marketable potatoes containing 85 per cent U. S. No. 1.

Vegetables for Victory

With spring making its official debut on March 21, thousands of amateur gardeners are being encouraged to take an active part in their country's war effort. Victory gardens, inspired by the need to promote home vegetable growing, are the No. 1 war assignment for gardeners in all parts of the nation. The enthusiast pictured above is typical of the many youngsters who will do their bit to step up food production.

Although canning profits will be higher in 1942, due to the prospective high price of vegetables, smaller and more intensively cultivated gardens are recommended. Possible difficulties in securing containers for canning, shortage of farm labor and high prices of certain seeds are factors which will determine the size of garden planting.

The Victory garden is a recent development. Pictured above is a War garden—this version. The First World War saw many spontaneous city dwellers attempt to cultivate vegetable lots in back yards where there was little chance of success. The 1942 Victory garden drive is being directed largely toward farm families and rural home dwellers who have both land and experience available.

To the People of Michigan . . . a Report

For the information of the people of Michigan who have entrusted to this Company the responsibility of providing the major part of the telephone service of the State, for the employees of the Company who operate the service, and for those who have invested their savings to build the telephone system, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company presents this report of its problems and accomplishments during 1941.

MONTHS of feverish expansion of Michigan's defense industries, capped by the arrival of war, made 1941 a year of unparalleled problems and important responsibilities for your Telephone Company.

Before the outbreak of hostilities, the Company was engaged in meeting the greatest single-year expansion in its history. Expenses already were increasing faster than revenues. And throughout the year, a growing scarcity of materials essential to the business made it increasingly difficult to meet the unprecedented demands for service.

When war came, it not only multiplied an already tremendous demand for telephone service, but also made the swift handling of that demand even more vital to the nation.

1941 saw the largest service demand in the Company's history

Under the pressure of the Defense and War Programs, industry and its workers used more telephones and used telephones more. Michigan Bell's rate of increase in telephones was nearly double the average rate of the Bell System as a whole. The volume of both long distance and local calls was the largest in the Company's history.

A telephone gain of 110,223, more than 41% above 1940's record growth.

8,911,111 telephones at the end of the year, 45% over pre-depression peak.

An average of 1,739,000 local calls daily, 17% above 1940's peak.

A record total of 39,117,000 toll and long distance calls, 19% over 1940.

1941 required record expenditure for construction

The tremendous demand for service required an expenditure of $27,710,000 for new construction, a program which brought the total cost of telephone plant up to $226,500,000.

1941 material shortage made job difficult

Construction work was handicapped by shortages of essential materials. Because those scarce materials also are essential to other defense industries, their use was held to a minimum through emergency engineering methods and by the use of alternate materials. Work was restricted to that absolutely necessary for short-period demand and material was salvaged which normally it would not be economical to salvage.

1941 construction required new financing

Financing of the construction program was greatly simplified by Michigan Bell's membership in the Bell System. To help pay for the expansion work, $10,000,000 in common stock was sold to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at par of $100 per share. In December, the State of Michigan authorized issuance of an additional $25,000,000 in common stock, to be sold as necessary.

1941 taxes totaled $9,466,000

17 cents per hour telephone revenue $1079 per telephone $720 per employee

Due mainly to rapidly mounting Federal taxes which support government and war activities, Michigan Bell's operating taxes for 1941 were $9,466,000. That was the equivalent of 17 cents out of each dollar of revenue, or $10.79 per telephone, or $720 per employee, or $6.59 per share of stock. We also collected, and paid the United States Government, approximately $1,500,000 our customers paid as direct Federal tax on telephone service.

1941 wage rates were increased $2,750,000

It is the aim of the Michigan Bell to pay wages in each locality that compare favorably with wages paid by other employers for work requiring similar ability. Adjustments in wage levels in 1941 totaled approximately $2,750,060 on an annual basis, and brought rates of pay to a higher level than ever before.

1941 showed revenues UP, earnings DOWN

Revenues were higher than in 1940, but the growth in expenses, mainly wages and taxes, was greater than the revenue increase. Consequently, net income declined.

Revenues increased + 13%
Expenses, including taxes, increased + 19%
Net income decreased - 17%

Reduction in net income would have been even greater had it not been for the effect on taxes of the refunding in 1941 of certain toll revenues collected in previous years.

After payment of $7 per share of stock, there was $841,000 left for surplus, the "rainy day" reserve which every financially sound company must have.

1941 rates reduced $1,500,000 annually

Local and long distance rate reductions placed in effect in 1941 will save Michigan telephone users some $1,500,000 a year, based on current usage. In addition, $1,500,000 was refunded to users of certain intrastate long distance service.

1941 brought 26% increase in workers

Rapid increases in telephone demand require corresponding increases in the number of employees. Additions during the year brought the total number employed to 13,872, a net increase of 26%.

AND NOW, THE WAR YEAR OF 1942

Summed up, 1941 was a year of challenging problems. To the men and women of the telephone organization, recognition is given for a job well done. The problems of 1942 will be greater than those of 1941. In military communications, in speeding our country's industrial production, in warning civilians of danger, in mustering defense workers, the telephone will play a vital role.

It is with confidence and sober determination that telephone people approach the 1942 job. While they recognize the increasing difficulty of supplying service demands as promptly as in the past, they are determined that every war-time need will continue to be met.
