

WINNING THE WAR IN 1944

WITH NORTHLVILLE'S MEN AND WOMEN IN THE SERVICE

Several Northville boys who were in training at the Fox theater in Detroit, Myron "Tiny" Ully, wrote to his mother when the moving pictures were taken there, to watch for him and the several other local boys whose pictures are to be found in "Gung Ho."

Now that I've been here in Merry Old England for a short time, I can safely say that I had a nice, calm trip over on a ship that I'll tell you about some day. We had only one rough day, and some of us were uncomfortable due to the rolling sea. I'm gradually getting used to the accents and the new monetary system.

All in all, I'm seeing it as a tourist, "the hard way," as we can only get five-hour passes so far. But I've managed to see some of the terrain changes on the way to this post which is a reception type of camp. I feel fine and eat hearty of our rations. Say hello to all.

I met Walter Fox some time ago while driving a major on unripe detail, during their maneuvers; but I didn't get very much chance to talk to him, although it sure seemed swell to meet an old schoolmate.

Writing to the Exchange Club, Capt. H. L. Scarpino admires Bill Canfield not to publish his remarks but an stealing remark Doc said if he kicks me in the pants for doing this I'll take it and charge it off to the war and bull-headedness.

Received your letter of Nov. 17 and words cannot express how pleased I was to hear from you and see the list of old family names of the two clubs. Many times it has occurred to me to drop the club a letter but the long voyage and getting accustomed to this new country (or should I say old country) and my duties that were to be overseas, plus the extreme heat, I guess accounts for my negligence.

About things on this side of the globe - well, I refer you to Life Magazine and confine myself to this God-forsaken land known as the cradle of civilization, which stopped racing 200 years ago and I think its infant occupant got tossed out on its head.

After a long voyage of zig-zaging with no dust storms, we arrived at the promised land or what we thought was to be a land flowing with milk and honey and date palms, but evidently we had been on the course right to the rear end of creation, and for what else we looked en route we made up to it here, and a dash of salt spray would be welcome; but that's just a bitching, belching bunch always have been and always will be.

We were advised before leaving that we were going to a desert place and to leave rubber boots and raincoats behind, but somebody got mixed up on the almanac and we landed in the midst of the rainy season and mud up to your hips and such slippery mud - worse than Main street ever was during an ice storm, and I with just my G.I. shoes I had to report at a tent block away from my own and plowing through the mud. I came to a ditch full of water and there I stood debating and finally decided that if Con. Co. Washington was awaiting me, he would have to wait but an army truck came to my rescue and conveyed me over.

Living conditions, filth, and disgrace of these people are unbelievable. Native savagery around in garbage dumps and trash for crusts of bread, has been commonly seen, for I tell you the truth, and not like I did to my poor old aged mother living in Ann Arbor. I wrote to her, stating that I had purchased a burrow, donkey, or whatever you call them, or in making my miles of inspection. Had my picture taken in a stick one - a blond one too - and sent it to her as evidence, and for her not to be too disengaged, as great men in Biblical history had done the same.

Rossow. Choosing as his text the story of Joseph, Rev. Rossow told the life and experience of this boy in early history and recommended him as an example for boys of the present day world. A number of parents and friends of Northville Scouts also attended this service which was part of the Scout celebration of the thirty-fourth anniversary of the founding of Scouting.

Rev. E. E. Rossow, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, was greatly surprised Sunday evening when reporting at the church house for a supposed committee meeting, he was met by most of his congregation who had assembled there to help celebrate his birthday and also the seventh anniversary of his coming to the Northville pastorate. Community singing and special musical numbers from Mrs. Florence Miller and the Wallham Leaguers, games and light refreshments made up the evening's program. A birthday cake, baked by Mrs. Alex Johnson was a special treat. Rev. Rossow was presented with a purse by the members of the church.

Oven House

Clean house for young folks of high school age will again be held in the Scout Building, corner of east Dunlap and Huron streets Saturday evening from 3:30 to 11 o'clock. There is room for outfit school girls to participate in the basketball program held every Thursday night in the High school gym, time 7:30 to 9 p.m. This is another of the recreational projects planned for Northville young people.

Dog Ordinance Being Enforced Here

Summons are being issued by

Northville police to local dog owners who have permitted dogs to run contrary to Village

Ordinance No. 116, which makes it illegal for dogs to be allowed to run at large; this is also contrary to the dog quarantine effective in the township at the present time.

Any dog owner receiving such summons must appear in court and the maximum penalty under this ordinance is a fine of $50

and/or sentence to the Detroit

House of Correction for 60 days, so he has the power to order the dog destroyed.

Justice Harper Britton

suggests that if this ordinance is effective in April 1943 had been obeyed, none of these summons would have been necessary.

He also advises that present and future compliance with the law will obviate the necessity of issuing other summons.

A number of Northville people went to Leamington, Ont., on Monday to attend the inspection meeting of Imperial chapter No. 21 O.E.S. Those who made the trip were Mrs. Angela Hannaford, Mrs. Mae Berecht, Mrs. Edna and Mrs. Eva Gray and Mrs. Lucille McKinney. The latter's brother is a member of the Leamington chapter.

offered by S. L. Brader and Austin Van Hove for top sales and first-prize award winner was Roywood Show, with total sales Proctor of the second, with $1,900; second, Don Stevens of $1,575; third, Betty Show, $1,25; fourth, Frances Paine, $1,15. Honorable mention was made of Miss Rohr's third and fourth grades, with record of $8,300; and Miss Schwartz' fifth and sixth grades, with $4,250. Nancy Woodward Show, with total sales of $1,150, was Proctor of the kindergarten.

Mr. Douglas was then introduced as a representative of the U. S. Treasury Department and he gave a short talk on the business of selling war bonds giving great praise to the Northville students for their sales efforts.

"We don't know what we would have done without the school children of Michigan," Mr. Douglas stated.

30 percent of the amount of the Fourth War Bond sales would be used for medical supplies for the armed forces and he reported a total of $1,500,000, $52,000

instead of the $50,000 quota set presenting the Minuteman flag to Mayor Sessor, for the school.

Mr. Douglas told of the junior Northville schools had earned and said the flag could be kept flying every month in which 90 per cent of the school bought at least one war stamp or bond.

On behalf of the school, the Mayor promised to make every effort to "keep the flag flying" for the duration. Mr. Douglas also announced that since the school had gone over the $50,000 mark, a dental plate bearing the name of the Northville schools has been saved the needs of Northville citizens each week in the local office proper forms according to David L. Brown, division manager of Consumers Power Company.

Save electricity to SAVE COAL

... don't leave lights burning wastefully!

It's so easy to turn on a light in an unoccupied room or a clothes closet or the attic of your home — then forget it. And that light burning needlessly may go unnoticed for hours.

Ordinarily this wouldn't be too important . . . perhaps half-a-cent's worth of electricity wasted. But that light in the clothes closet burns COAL. Electricity requires coal and manpower and transportation and other critical resources for its manufacture. And today ANY waste of electricity is serious.

The Government asks everyone to conserve electricity, even though it is not rationed and there is no shortage in this area. Save VOLUNTARILY, whenever and wherever you can—in home and store and office.
