MACKINAC ISLAND—Happy in the knowledge that Michigan's famed hospitality had been warmly acclaimed, Governor Harry F. Kelly stood at the end of the long concrete dock at the harbor here.

The last boat of the day, bound for Mackinaw City, had just departed. Passengers included most of the 41 state governors and members of their families, and official retainers.

With one hand clasping in characteristic fashion a sturdy cane to ease the weight on his mangled in World War I, the governor raised a straw hat over his head. He waved it from left to right nearby was Arizona's personal secretary, Mrs. Kelly, whose thoughts are usually on her home and children, had stayed at the governor's residence which rises upon the bluff, next to historic Fort Mackinac, and presents a commanding view of the Straits.

It was about 7:30 p. m. on July 4, a mild breeze with cooling temperature blew from the southwest. The sun was dipping through cloudbanks for a patriotic salute in the western sky.

The 37th governors' conference, originated by President Theodore Roosevelt and the third to be held on Mackinac Island, thus came to a fitting conclusion.

Like any social function in honor of guests from a distance, the 1945 Governors' Conference involved a multitude of interesting, details and much careful planning.

For example, the war-time headache of transportation, Michigan wanted its guests to visit Detroit, automobile capital of the world. The committee struck upon the happy idea of securing reservations on a lake steamer from Detroit to Mackinac Island. A good idea except for one thing: No boat space was available.

This hurdle was surmounted by inducing an industrial firm to switch its convention dates and to surrender its cruise reservations. The governors' arrival at the conference, being by water.

way, offered an opportunity for the first time in years whereby governors could visit and get acquainted prior to opening of business sessions.

Detroit's part of the program was performed with customary smartness, even to choice steaks and rare Havana cigars. Henry Ford II was host at a luncheon at the Dearborn Inn and a tour of Greenfield Village. He displayed new models of Ford, Mercury, and Lincoln lines—a piece of good showmanship. Other automobile manufacturers wanted to honor the guests at the Detroit Athletic Club.

Upon their arrival at Mackinac Island, the guests were transported by horse-drawn carriages through the small business district, whose buildings have been transformed by white paint, up the parkway leading to the Grand Hotel. The hostelry had been freshly decorated, and hundreds of red geraniums were in bloom along the world's longest porch of summer hotel. Flags added a touch of moving color.

Bruce Anderson, the innkeeper at Lansing, Mich., City, and near by, was not to be left out. He had up his guests and baggage upon his motor and hurry them to the hotel and thence to the guests' rooms. Seeing Bruce swinging luggage atop a wagon was a sight to behold.

Commissioner Oscar Olander had detailed 25 members of the Michigan State Police for island duty. Six footers were apparently selected for the assignment. To meet any emergency that might arise, Olander's men brought along radio transmitters and a walkie-talkie. Two men patrolled the hotel corridors throughout the night. Special fire equipment was on hand. Arnold Renner, state fire marshal, had attended to that.

Michigan Bell Telephone company, represented by the personable Sam McCool, imported a mobile transmitter for emergency use. The press corps, numbering around 75 in all, filed scores of messages day and night.

A typical Michigan touch was afforded by a wooden salad bowl filled with Michigan apples and sweet cherries. This treat with a small flag, reminding guests to "Eat 'Em," was one of the thoughtful courtesies of the state department of agriculture. Commissioner Charles J. Flyg surveyed the scene and found it to his liking. Clarence Bolander, his deputy, had attended to details with smiling efficiency. Strawberries or juices were available at every conference meal.

Michigan's official family was on hand. With their wives were Lieut. Governor Vernon J. Brown, Secretary of State Herman Dignan, State Treasurer D. Hale Brake, Superintendent of Public Instruction Eugene B. Elliott, Auditor General John Morrison, Attorney General John Detmers, and Highway Commissioner Charles Ziegler.

For the most part the governors were easy to meet. They chatted with visitors cordially. The atmosphere was one of informality to a surprising degree. It prompted one Michigan state official to observe: "The bigger the man, the easier it is to meet him."

While Secretary of State Herman Dignan, an affable individual, was officially the chairman of the host committee, W. F. DeLoach, the acknowledged manager who got things done, as a result of his earned title of chairman of the Mackinac Island Park Commission, "Bill" was law unto himself. Even Harold Titus discovered this when he sought to induce Captain Charles J. Allers to take him for a ride on the conservation patrol boat. Titus had to get a written permit from Dignan. The pay-off is this reminder: Titus is a member of the conservation commission.

another governor spoke feelingly about the problem of the returning veteran.

After hearing wives of visiting governors relate the woes of entertaining guests at the state mansions, Mrs. Kelly remarked she was more lucky than she realized. And yet the need persists for a governor's home at Lansing. Michigan is one of the few states which provides no official residence for its governor.

The governor's new summer home, high as an eagle nest, is a three-story frame building built

Michigan's liquor rationing system presented a dilemma, for governors are human beings and some of them like a private "nip" now and then. The liquor control commission solved the problem by waiving the ration book requirement, if a guest desired to have a bottle of liquor, he raised the phone receiver, asked for room service, and gave his order. A bellboy delivered the package. The guest signed the bill slip. The cost of all beverages was placed on the guest's hotel bill, for the state underwrote only the cost of island hotel room, meals and transportation.

All in all, the governors' conference was as sober as a town squire, although we made no particular point to look for it. There is a saying—you find what you look for. The cost of all beverages was placed on the guest's hotel bill, for the state underwrote only the cost of island hotel room, meals and transportation.

This reporter must reiterate that if any liquor flowed freely, it did so at the guests' expense. One exception was the Distilled Spirits Institute, obligingly contributed several cases of Canadian Club—without solicitation either. A national columnist, thus inspired, led a corner chorus in "old-fashioned" church hymns.

All in all, the governors' conference was as sober as a town squire, although we made no particular point to look for it. There is a saying—you find what you look for. The bathing suits on the girls at the hotel pool were just the same as these at Grand Haven's fire beach, and probably the girls were too.

The governors' conference session, except for an off-the-record luncheon with General Marshall and Admiral King, was fraught with apprehensions about the post-war. We recall one lengthy session, on the eve of July Fourth, when an eastern governor spoke for an hour and half on social security and

THERE has been some rural telephone construction during these war years, but nothing compared to what we had hoped for.

Long before the war, Michigan Bell began an extensive program of rural service expansion and improvement. Then, in 1940, we adopted a rural construction plan recommended by the Michigan Rural Communications Committee, a group of agricultural leaders. It included a liberal free line-construction allowance, and small monthly payments where construction costs were necessary.

Under the rural construction program, there was a sizable increase in the number of rural telephones.

Then came war, and telephone factories went to work for the armed forces. Nearly all new wire, cable, instruments and other equipment "have gone to war."

After final Victory, Michigan Bell expects to launch a 5-year $120,000,000 program of expansion and improvement, a goodly portion of which will be used to resume our rural work.

Today, 2 of every 3 of our rural telephones are dial operated. We intend to increase that number. Telephone service will be made available to more rural subscribers through the use of important new devices and methods. We want to reduce the number of families per rural line. We are studying special features to make telephone service more valuable.

Thus Michigan Bell will proceed with its plan to furnish the best possible service to the largest possible number of people at the lowest possible cost.

Girl Scout Camp is an area camp sponsored by the communities of Ann Arbor, Northville, Plymouth, Wayne, Detroit, Lincoln School, Milan, Ypsilanti, Belleville and Romulus.

Girl Benish and Mrs. Harrison have returned to their homes after a two week session at Cedar Lake Girl Scout Camp at Chelsea. While in camp the girls participated in many activities, swimming, boating, hiking, cook-outs, nature stunts, dramatics, and crafts of various types. Highlights of the program included a barn dance, farmers' shuffle, the election of admission was a costume which depicted rural life. The units gave skits which were enjoyed by everyone. The younger girls in Juniper Knoll unit dramatized "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and "Old MacDonald Had a Farm." The older girls in Oak Ridge unit decorated the lodge. One Saturday evening, an impressive candlelight ceremony on the lake, all campers sailed small boats carrying lighted candles as they made wishes for the camp. One morning the girls of Juniper Knoll unit were in charge of an inspirational program planned and conducted by the Girl Scouts and counselors. Seated in a circle on top of one of the many wooded hills overlooking the shimmering lake, the girls took part in a devotional service of prayer and song. Miss Elizabeth Beard is the local chairman of this Girl Scout project. Girls will arrive for the second period of camp July 8 between 2 and 4 p. m. and will be here until July 15, leaving at 2 p. m. for Cedar Lake. Girl Scout Camp is an area camp sponsored by the communities of Ann Arbor, Northville, Plymouth, Wayne, Detroit, Lincoln School, Milan, Ypsilanti, Belleville and Romulus.
