Spring Politics Being Talked In The Village

Candidates Must File by March 1; Registrations Being Taken for Election March 11

With the filing date a week away and the Village election scheduled for March 11th, rumors of candidates and other candidates are buzzing around the corners and in some back rooms.

The possible candidates for President do not seem to be overly plentiful by, according to the Village say so's, there may turn out to be a goodly number of candidates for commissioners. Other offices look like no opposition places so far.

According to the grape vine knowledge, Commissioners Lapham and Schultze will in all probability seek re-election. Forest Doren and George Locke will file for commissioners. And from other sources come indications that from the ex-service-men's group some one, or all of the following may file for the commission, Chas. Murphy, Jack Stubenvall, and Esstie Nivier.

For the place of President the picture still remains foggy and only the mentioning of names comes to the fore. W. A. Ely, Dr. Snow and E. M. Boggart are being talked of by many people. While President Del Hahn has mentioned that he was not a candidate for re-election, it is intimated, according to reliable source, that he is not averse to running for the Commission. Commissioner Carl Bran has stated that he was not a candidate for re-election.

Mention has been made about the will of that former President Elmer Lerner would seek election, but according to personal conversation, Mr. Lerner states he is not going into the political whirl this Spring.

All petitions for places on the Village ballot must be filed by March 1st.

"Michigan industrial workers are receiving today an average of 15 cents more per hour than workers get in other adjacent Mid-West states. If Michigan is to continue as a leader in manufacturing, and we were responsible for 13 per cent of the nation's war armament output, management must get production and union contracts must be enforced."

John L. Lovett, manager of the Michigan Manufacturers' Association, was speaking. His audience was a group of 200 college professors and instructors.

Brusque and straight-forward in action, Lovett is a realist in the world of industrial relations. A graduate of the University of Kansas, he served as legislative correspondent of the Chicago Tribune at Springfield, Illinois. For the past 27 years he has been employed by Michigan manufacturers; he has been as frank and outspoken in warning them of their faults as he has been in deploring labor's irresponsibility and restrictions on production, where he believes they exist.

Historically, the American management-labor movement, said Lovett, is about as follows: Around a quarter of a century ago American industry underwent a significant change. Whereas most industries had been managed by their owners, a wave of mergers brought an era where many industries were directed by professional managers, most of whom had no ownership in the business and whose earnings, salary, plus bonus, often were at the expense of labor itself.

This swing of the pendulum led to unrest among employees and finally to enactment by Congress of a series of laws all designed to protect the worker, from the Watson-Parker act in 1926 to the Byrnes anti-strike-breaking act in 1936.

Labor's new powers have caused the pendulum to swing to the other extremity. Management's abuses have been followed by labor's abuses, he said.

The General Motors strike, said Lovett, was not prompted by the publicized 30 per cent wage increase demand but by a deliberate strategy of the international board of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. to assure a long, costly strike which would leave the rank-and-file union member "decile" due to depletion of savings, and hence unwilling to lead or join a threatened insurrection against re-election of the present U.A.W. officers at the fourth coming-convention next month at Atlantic City.

He said the 30 per cent wage demand was merely "window dressing" (Ed: U.A.W.-C.I.O. demands may be assumed). Nervousness of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. organization has handicapped its officers in lack of experience in collective bargaining. Lovett contrasted this with the long experience of AF and L leaders whom, he said, "know how to bargain" with employers.

(It has been estimated that 2,500,000 AF of L members have received pay increases since V-J Day, averaging 15 per cent or more, a big majority of these were obtained without resort to costly strikes—Source: Research Institute of America).

Another factor: The UAW board's lack of discipline over local unions and hence inability to live up to its contracts.

Lovett declared that many labor unions, especially those having large memberships were controlled by their officers through a handful of delegates and followers more in the traditional manner of a political machine. "State officials could learn a lot from these," he added.

This situation is largely the fault of union men, most of whom are indifferent and do not attend union meetings and hence are willing to let their leaders make impudent decisions for them, he said.

When a reporter asked Lovett what the schools might do to overcome this lack of democracy in union organizations, he said: "In my opinion, public education has been a total failure. It has failed to raise thinkers out of the average American citizen. Public ignorance is appalling."

(Dr. George Gallup, expert in public opinion polls, recently said: "I am frequently amazed at the lack of information many people reveal. I often wonder how democratic governments can work as well as they do when so many people are so poorly informed." Here is the need for adult education which the State of Michigan is now financing for the first time.)

And yet the Michigan management-labor situation isn't one-sided, by a long shot.

Listen to this bold statement by Lovett, delivered last October before the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers at Chicago:

"The great wave of dissatisfaction of the workers throughout the country can be traced directly to management's failure to grasp the importance of human relations within the plant organization itself. As a result, unionization has become widespread, and generally speaking, this union leadership is irresponsible and incapable. The result is a chaotic situation."

Lovett said union organizers used three appeals in organizing Michigan automobile workers: Security, protection from the foreman, and wages. In all three points the industry was largely at fault—men when they reached the age of 40 or so were let out of the industry because they were presumed to be too slow. The automobile industry, unfortunately, had neglected foreman training and had a large number of arrogant, dictatorial and unfair foremen; and "the industry was seasonal and the average employment was only about six months."

Management's recent "education" in human relations thus is being purchased at a costly price to workers, stockholders and the suffering public.

John L. Lovett is a man with plenty of guts. We admire his courage.

OUR aim is to provide the kind of telephone service you want.

We have no choice but to grow as the demand for our service grows. That's our public responsibility—and we like it that way.

Right now, the demand for telephone service is at an all-time high. To meet it and prepare for future growth, we have a 5-year post-war program under way that will cost $120,000,000.

Money to finance that program must come from thrifty people who are willing to invest in Bell System securities. If our prospects for future earnings are less attractive than those of other companies, folks will invest their money elsewhere.

In recent years, the rate of Telephone Company earnings has been declining until at the end of the war it was far below the average of other industries.

So it boils down to this:

Too long a continuation of a rate of earnings substantially below that of other industries would weaken our ability to raise the money required to meet expected telephone needs.

The future quality of your telephone service depends on telephone rates that will produce earnings attractive to investors.

We believe our customers want good telephone service, even if it costs a trifle more than inferior service.

Technical improvements in the past brought rates for good service down and have kept them down in the face of rising costs. As rapidly as future improvements will permit, we expect and want our rates to come down still further. For Michigan Bell wants rates no higher—and no lower—than necessary to insure good telephone service.

WEEKLY REMINDERS

"Truth shall spring out of the earth; and righteousness shall look down from heaven." Psalms 85:11.

According to that which is written, some nineteen centuries ago, the Lord Jesus Christ organized a body of men and appointed them to official positions in His church, giving them power and authority to perform certain acts, and to speak and build up the church in His name.

The organization, as originally established by the Lord Jesus Christ, was a perfect organization, with instructions for governing its daily function; its growth, and its ultimate purpose, with keys to unlock the future, leading to its goal, an inheritance.

The original appointees were given power and authority to carry out the instructions, and did carry them out, during their natural life. But to whom fell the official administration, not being so thoroughly grounded in the principles and attributes attending its growth, departed somewhat from the original pattern and doctrines, allowing errors to creep in, and finally submitted to the ruling power of a man, under whose hand developed the organization called Catholicism.

This organization, becoming universal in scope, claims to be the only true church of Jesus Christ on the earth, and has continued down through the ages, of many centuries, unto the present day, declaring its leadership to be the successors of the original appointees.

During the sixteenth century a few honorable men began to reflect on certain acts, which brought about a comparative examination of the recorded past; cried out against the errors, and questioned the authority of the Catholic leaders and their interpretation of the Scriptures; the consequence of which resulted in the Reformation, out of which grew an organization called Protestantism.

Later, the reformers disputed among themselves; the outcome of which caused a division and resulted in the establishing of several denominations; out of which has come many versions of the original Scriptures; various interpretations, opinions, commentaries, dictionaries, documents, and hundreds of sects and religious organizations.

Into this scene came another act; during the first quarter of the nineteenth century, a young man by the name of Joseph Smith, startled the inhabitants of the world with an announcement that he had seen several visions; chief among which was a visit of two personages, who introduced themselves as God the Father and Jesus Christ, his Later he was visited by another personage, clothed in a pure white robe, who introduced himself as Moroni. This personage informed Joseph Smith that he had deposited, in a hill called Cumorah near the village of Manchester, Ontario county, New York, a stone box containing gold plates on which was written an account of the former inhabitants of this continent together with two stones, in silver bows, which are called the Urim and Thummim; these stones having been prepared by God for the purpose of translating the language, or characters, written on the gold plates.

On the 22nd day of September, 1827 Joseph Smith obtained possession of the gold plates, and the Urim and Thummim. With the aid of the Urim and Thummim, together with the help and power of God, Joseph Smith translated the ancient language into our modern speech, and in the year 1830 the Book of Mormon was first published and presented to the world.

Perhaps the ushering in of this revelation has had a lot to do with the conditions that now confront the world.

The philosophy and unity that has engendered itself into the organization known as The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) has instilled into the minds of intelligent thinking people that there is something wrong in the disunity and various interpretations that exist among the religious sects.

The leaders of these sects, sensing the possible dissolution of their organization have gotten their heads together in a series of conversations tending to the unifying of all sects.

While this is in semblance of the scriptural oneness, and is a temporary incentive to the peace in general, it does not solve the problem; for out of this springs another sedition, sponsored and propagated by the preachers of Salvation and unity through belief in the name of Jesus Christ, regardless of sect, party, denomination, or conformity to any doctrine, or organizing standard; just believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved. That's all. Nothing to do. No ordinances to perform. No rules to follow. No doctrines to adhere to — for should one err on doctrinal points, at death the erring one shall immediately fly into the bosom of the Lord, and there instantaneously have all things straightened out and made clear.

No need of any organization. No need of any man standing in a vacant or void, for all such things are done away with, and there is to be no more of such things, for the Bible contains all there is of the word of God, and all that is necessary for the salvation of the human race is contained in the Bible.

There is to be no apostle, or prophet, or heavenly messenger, in these last days to set up a new order of things, or restore any of the things that are past.

In contrast to this the Mormons have spent millions of dollars in time and money trying to prove to the world that Joseph Smith, Jun., was a prophet of God, the Book of Mormon the word of God, the Book of Commandments, called Doctrine and Covenants, revelations from God, and that, the Mormon, the only true church of Jesus Christ on earth; the only lawful successors of the original appointees of Jesus Christ; and that their interpretation of the original scriptures is the only true version.

The Protestants retort with millions of dollars in time and money trying to prove to the world that Catholicism and Mormonism is both wrong; that they are instruments in the hands of Satan; and that their interpretation of the original scriptures is the only true version.

These things caused me — as it has thousands of others — to ask: "Which of all these parties is right?"

Having an inquisitive nature I set about to learn, if possible, the answer to this question.

To prove the truth of a thing, there must be a standard by which to weigh, or measure it.

As for beliefs, it doesn't matter what one believes, the question is: Does it bring joy to the soul? Does it fill the soul with peace? Does it satisfy and convince the soul that it is on the right road? Does it give to the soul a knowledge of these things, or does it compel one to accept the beliefs, traditions and dogmas of some creed without question or personal investigation? Does it give one a personal knowledge of things, or does it compel one to accept what others say without personal knowledge and experience? Does it allow one to read and interpret according to reason and facts, as established and known or does it compel one to submit to the interpretations of the ruling powers and principles of the world, contrary to reason and known facts?

Does it put the soul in possession of the fruits contained therein, or does it consist of words void of fruit? Does it allow one to live alone with the inward thoughts and conscience, or does it compel one to seek forgetfulness with the crowd in an amusement, or in a sedative?

To sum it up: It doesn't matter what others have done; can I do it? It doesn't matter what others have seen; have I seen it? It doesn't matter what others have heard; have I heard? It doesn't matter what others were promised; have I received a promise? As one writer put it: "It is one thing to look on the mount and hear the excellent voice, etc., and another to hear that voice declare to you: 'You have a part and lot in that kingdom.'"

Dogmas, traditions, superstitions, astrology, divinations, paganism, familiar spirits, or wizardry that peep have no part in the following pages; but is rather a peep into the author's diary of life's experiences.

With a prophetic prayer I dedicate the contents of this book to the Giver of all gifts that His message may glorify the author of Truth, be used to the furtherance of His cause; comfort those that mourn; bring peace, joy, and eternal salvation to all the honest in heart, who read it.

"O God, the Eternal Father, in the name of thy Son, Jesus Christ, I pray that thou wilt pour out thy spirit unto the convincing of men of the error of their ways, that their hearts may be prepared to receive thy Gospel and thy yurthly that thy Kingdom may come in all of its power and glory; that thy will may be done on earth as it is in Heaven. Amen."

GEORGE BERRY,
Northville, Mich.

"Some seem to think I am not very intelligent because I have not assembled the knowledge (facts and precepts) of this world and then applied them so they would produce the riches of this present life — bless your soul, that is not the knowledge, or wealth, I am talking about."

Worldly knowledge does not make one an intelligent — it is the knowledge that comes from the Eternal Father makes one wise and intelligent. The knowledge and riches of this present world are only temporary, all shall perish. But the knowledge (facts and precepts) I am talking about are everlasting, beneficial: giving to the possessor eternal life with continual joy, health, freedom, liberty of action, and the right to progressive knowledge, and to accumulate incorruptible possessions.

The rich, and collectors of earthly material, have learned how to make a living, but have failed to learn how to live — and prepare for the life to come. And those who put their trust in other men's dreams, vision, and revelations, are but warming themselves by the heat of other's fire — makes you feel good, but after you leave, their fire, you become chilled.

If that is all you want, to warm yourself by another's fire, you may do so — but for me, I want a fire of my own, by which I can enjoy a continual warmth. I want an inheritance of my own, on which to rely, not on how it is according to my specifications, pleasure, and convenience.

But why talk about these things? To understand the things I am talking about, and become a possessor of incorruptible possessions one must take the teachings of the Bible — not just read them.

One must put first things first. One does not enter a village without first obtaining the equivalent of high school diploma and high school classes can be after elementary education. Luke 16: 11-12 "If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches? And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?"

The Bible says (Matthew 6: 33): "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness." How is this to be done? Acts 2:38 answers this question: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." And that this must be done by one who has been commissioned by Jesus Christ himself (not by one who has been commissioned by men, or who gets his commission from the scriptures) is evident from Acts 19:1-6. Here were men who had been baptized, but it availed them nothing, as after hearing Paul's gospel of repentance they were baptized "Again" (by Jesus Christ — as was Paul) and then they received the Holy Ghost, and had communion with the powers of heaven.

One may ask: Is the Bible true? Can one depend on its promises? Well, the only way I can tell is to test their precepts; if I receive the promises as promised, I know they are true. If I do not receive their promises, either their false, or else I do not obey according to their precepts. Even if the Bible is true; and I know it is true from personal experience; and I told you it is true; yet you would not know that it was true, or that I was telling the truth — the only way you can know that it is true is through personal experience.

GEORGE BERRY,
Northville, Mich.
