How Mrs. Always Broke Balanced Her Budget

SHE NEVER USED TO KNOW WHERE HER MONEY WENT

Who could blame her husband for getting cross once in a while? She never seemed to know where the household money went. It just went.

How different now. When hubby asks about the finances, she confidently reaches for the old check book. There in the stubs 's the whole story—a business-like record of the month's expenditures. It is so simple to balance your budget when a checkbook record is kept of each expenditure.

Here comes the bride!

JUNE has swung around again, and this month brides by the thousands will start housekeeping—if they can find a house to keep.

In days soon to come, light housekeeping will be even lighter with electrical servants ready to wash and iron, clean and cook at the flip of a switch. And some day there will be many new, electric aids—air conditioners, food freezers, electric blankets, television sets, and all the wonders of the era of electric living which lies ahead.

The electric service which powers these time- and labor-saving appliances will continue to be inexpensive, friendly, dependable—ready around the clock and calendar—just as in the past.

Maybe 1946 brides will take the advantages of electricity for granted, just as you do. We hope they will. We're glad you just naturally count on the high efficiency and low cost of electric service. The men and women in this company worked hard to make electricity cheap and dependable. They'll work even harder to keep it that way.

Idle Acreage No Longer Recommended
Cultivation Needed For Tired Acres

The "rest cure" treatment for worn-out farm land is rapidly becoming a thing of the past, as farmers are learning that "rest on vacation" are likely to deteriorate rather than increase in fertility level, according to J. C. Hackleman, professor of crops extension at the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

"Farmers formerly thought that if they put their 'tired acres' into pasture, the land could be rested two or three years and would come back as productive and vigorous as ever," Professor Hackleman pointed out.

The fact is that every ton of beef, pork or mutton or milk produced on these pastures removes nitrogen, phosphorus, potash and calcium or lime just as surely as does a crop of corn, oats, wheat or hay.

"In addition, as these permanent pastures become less productive they provide less cover, and the result is more loss through erosion. But these weary pastures are not hopeless cases, Professor Hackleman declares. The response of most of them to proper soil treatment is almost miraculous. Five simple steps, he says, will transform the average worn out pasture into a productive acreage in one or, at most, two years. These steps are to test the soil and treat it with the necessary plant food mineral elements, dig these minerals thoroughly while preparing a reasonably good seedbed, seeded with a mixture of legumes and grasses, control grazing for at least a year and clip weeds, giving the legumes and grasses a chance.

Professor Hackleman said that because of an increase of cultivated acreages during the war, a greater acreage is now ready for legumes than in previous days.

Practical Gardening

Stakes Increase Yields

By W. J. DRYDEN, WNU Farm Editor.

Properly staked plants not only insure an orderly garden but result in greater production. Lack of proper staking means that many of the plants may become wrecked by heavy rain or wind storms. This often results in broken stems and loss in vegetables or flowers.

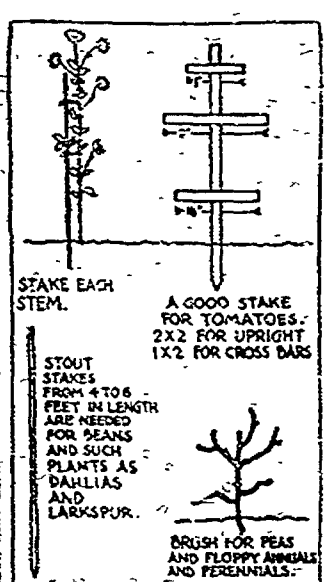

Delphiniums are the first flowers in the garden to show the need for staking. The heavy spikes of bloom on these stately plants make them singularly susceptible to destruction by winds or heavy rains.

To be effective, the stakes must be strong and capable of holding up the plant and its crop but it should be as unobtrusive as possible. Bamboo stakes are very efficient and are sold in varying lengths. They may be bought already painted or in natural color. Being very strong and durable they may be used for several years.

The use of heavy wire stakes has come into practice during the past few years. Plants can be tied to them easily and hung upright so that the tying can not be distinguished when used on flowers until viewed at close range.

Among the vegetables, the tomato requires more attention to staking than any other one plant. By keeping the tomatoes off the ground, little loss from animals and pests will result. Crawling tomatoes usually show considerable loss from these sources. For peas and beans it might be advisable to stretch wire from posts.

much after the method used with grapes. Except for bush varieties, proper production cannot be expected unless the vines are well staked. They need the sun, which may be lacking if the vines are left on the ground.

Codling Moth May Be Controlled by DDT

Drawbacks Present in Application to Apples
 By W. J. DRYDEN

By far the most effective material tried against codling moth is DDT, according to Prof. S. W. Harman of Geneva experiment station. These findings were backed up as more effective than arsenate of lead.

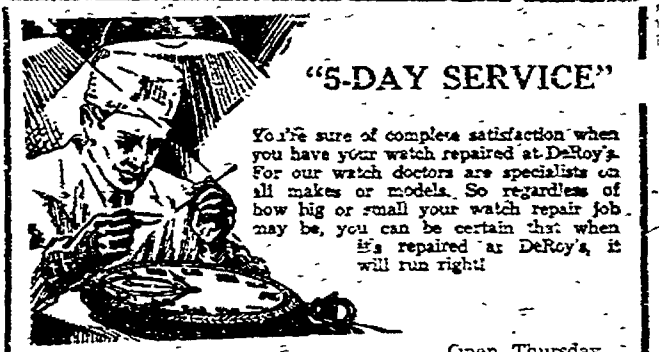

Present drawback seems to be that in some cases rather severe infestation of red spider in the apple orchards follow the application of DDT. When DN-111 is used to control red spider, damage to foliage results. New York found that the destruction of the natural enemies of the European red mite by the DDT spray, resulted in increased numbers of that pest. Further tests are under way and care is advocated in spraying for codling moth until more information is available. Where heavy spraying with lead arsenate has not controlled codling moth, growers are justified in adopting a DDT program.

Litter Pigs May Need Iron to Cure Anemia

When litter pigs show anemia they may be treated by being given small doses of iron in the form of reduced iron or sulphate of iron. By placing a quantity about the size of an aspirin tablet, back of the pig's tongue, when the pigs are a few days old and repeated in about a week, improvement will usually be found, according to Stanley Curtis of Nova Scotia agricultural department.
