GENERAL DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

GENERAL EISENHOWER'S REPORT

Ш ". . ~

As our lorces moved rapidly eastward with the main effort in the center, to establish contact with the advancing flussian armies at the Elbs, and in turn to swing swiftly north and south to cut off any remaining retige, the German High Command reluctantly recognized defect and belattedly initiated regolations which terminated with unconditional surrender to 7 May 1945.

terminated with unconditional surrender as 7 May 1945. In these compaigns the United States of America and Great Britain worked as one nation, pooling their resources of men and material. To the Combined Chiefs of Staff, through whom the directives of the two governments were supressed, we constantly accorded our admiration for their well-devised system of command by which they applied the concerted national efforts. Their political leaders, the President of the United States and the Prime Minister, also contributed immeasureably to the success of our armies in the field; once they nad committed themselves to a course of action they never folled to give us unstituted support.

CONCLUSION

In attempting very briefly to assess the factors underlying the Allied success in this company I would stress the importance of three spisodes as being the most deciars in insuring victory.

of three episodes as being the most decisive in insuring victory. The first of these was the battle of the Normandy beaches. We sailed for France, possessed of all the tactical information which an efficient intelligence service could provide, but we had yet to take the measure of the few we were to meet. We were embarking upon the largest amphibious operation in history against a coastine briefling with all the defenses modern ingenuity could devise and behind the beaches lay the Gennan arries of the west which had not been tried in full-scale battle since the dark days of 1840.

As we struggled first to gain and then to hald our looked in since the dark days of 1840.

As we struggled list to gain and then to hold our looting in Normandy, we learned the otrength and ulss the weakness of these armies. We learned that the German soldier was still the same stubborn lighter whom we had set in Airice and in Italy, but we saw, too, how slander was the thread upon which his existence in France depended. Paring the mouths of lune and luty all the difficultier of communications and supply which were ultimately to prove his andoing became manifest. It was thus that we were snabled to establish ourselves on the Continent and to build up the great armies necessary to achieve the bheration of Europe. We learned also of this time, how inadequate was the enemy's intelligence concerning the Ailied intentions. Thanks to his air weakness and consequent lack of reconnaissance, he was completely misled by our diversionary operations, holding back until too late the forces in the Pas de-Calais which, had they been rashed across the Sceine when first we landed, might well have turned the scales against us. have turned the scales against us.

have turned the scales against us.

The second vital battle was that of the Falaise pocket. Here the energy showed that fatal tendency to stand and light when all the logic of war demanded a strategic withdrawal. By so doing, he allowed his Seventh Army to be encuriced and ground to pieces, and the battle for france was decided among the bloody sechards and hedgerows of Normandy. As the broken forces fled enaward we strined every effort to complete their overthrow before they could reach the shelter of the Siegfried Line, but the logistical burden was too great and we had to wait until the weary winter drew to a close before we rould sinks the final blow.

GENERAL EISENHOWER'S REPORT

The third decisive phase in the compaign consisted of the battles west of the Rhine during February and March. Once again the enemy played into our hands by his insistence upon fighting the battle where he stood. In the lowland country between the Rhine and the Meuse, in the Eifel and in the Saar, the armies highling the battle where he stood. In the lowland country between the Rhine and the Meuse, in the Eifel, and in the Saan, the armies which had been intended to defend Germany were shattered be-yond recovery. The potential bander of the Rhine lay practically undefended before us and from that time snumd there was no German icroe in existence capable of halting our forward march. The war was won before the Rhine was crossed.

Throughout the struggle, it was in his logistical inability to maintain his armies in the field that the enemy's latel weakness' lay. Courage his forces had in full measure, but rourage was not enough. Reinforcements failed to arrive, weapness, ammunition, and food akke ran short, and the dearth of fuel caused their powers of tactical mebility to dwindle to the vanishing point. In the last stages of the campaign they could do little more than woit for the Alfied avalanche to sweep over them.

for the Affied avaloache to sweep over them.

For this state of offairs we had, above all to be grateful to the work of the Affied air forces. Long before we loaded in France, the heavy bornbers had begun their task of destroying the conters of production upon which the enemy relied and the traits of this effort were evident immediately the land campaign began. Following the invasion, these strategic blows at the heart of German industry were continued, and the lask was also undertaken of cutting the supply lines which linked the factories to the fronts. Meanwhile the tactical sirradi. by their incessant bombing and straining of the enemy before us in the field, backs his powers of resistance and prepared the way for the ground advances which strack toward the center of Germany. Those thrusts moreover, were made with a rapidity which only the expedient of airborne supply could support. The overwhelming Allied superiority in the air was indeed essential to our victory. It at once undermined the basis of the enemy's strength and enabled us to prepare and execute our own ground operations in complete security. It is difficult even for a professional soldier to approaches the tremendous power which was achieved on the battlefields and in

It is difficult even for a professional soldies to appreciate the tremendous power which was achieved on the battlefields and in the skies of western Europe by the concerted efforts of the Altied nations. As stated earlier in this teport most of the 90 divisions, which fought in the later phases of our operations were habitually reinforced to a strength of 17,000 men by tank tank destroyer, and anticircuti-ctacchments. An idea of their shattering impact upon the Nam war marking comes from consideration of the terrific fire-power which they represent of the trans of hearier Corps and Amy artillery which supported them, of the inexhaustible supply system that sustained them, and of the flexibility with which their efforts could be applied by means of the chiatest communications system. For behind the combat units the efforts of 3 millions of other men and women in uniform were devoted to maintening continered testechments. 156,000 Telephones Installed in Michigan in 6 Months...

But 100,000 families are still waiting

Severe shortages of lead, copper and other materials which go into telephone equipment have upset our time-table for clearing up waiting lists.

Even so, during the first half of this year, Michigan Bell installed new telephones at the fastast rate in its history—an average of 25,000 But also received new orders at the fastest rate in history—an average of 27,000 appli-cations per month.

Added 340,000 miles of wire and fastailed enough additional central office switching equipment to serve 50,000 new customers. Cleared waiting lists in 27 Michigan Bell

As the second half of 1946 gets under way, there are still 100,000 families waiting for telephones. Of these, 49,000 have placed their orders since the first of the year.

We still have to expand our facilities in 200 exchanges to give service to everyone who has ordered a telephone.

We now hope that most of the orders for service received before January 1, 1946, can be filled by the end of the year. In some areas, of course, we expect to compiete many orders received this year, but it may be late 1947 before we can return to a "ready-to-serve" basis everywhere.

Meanwhile, we are loading our present equipment far beyond its normal capacity, to shorten the wait for as many folks as possible. This may affect the quality of service for the time being. But-normal service will return as we install the needed lines and equipment.

Waiting applicants can be certain that we are just as anxious as they are to see their orders filled at the earliest possible

* Long Distance lines and switchboards serving Michigan resort areas are extra busy this summer. On calls to and from these areas, you'll get better service by avoiding the rush hours-10 A.M. to noon and 7 to 9 P.M. Keeping calls brief will help too.

To get all the above information absolutely free, simply ask your Shell Dealer to forward your requests to Shell Touring Headquarters. Try to allow at least a week for compiling and mailing data. Your Shell Dealer will get in touch with you the minute your maps and tour information arrive.

BEFORE YOU START

- Have your Shell Dealer fill your tank with one of these powerful new Shell fuels: Shell Gasoline or Shell Premium Gasoline;
- Have him give your car a complete Shellubrication to make surè your car is in perfect condition for your trip;
- Ask him to check your tires, battery, and lights, and make replacements where needed;
- A Have your crankcase drained, flushed, and refilled with Shell X-100, the remarkable motor oil with "X" safety factors for extra protection against sustained-speed driving—the steady pace of the open highway.

And on the way—stop at the sign of the Shell for friendly, courteous, and complete service . . . for clean rest-rooms, for windshield and air servicing, and for Shellubrication every thousand miles.
