

Sinclair Bulk Plant is Moved

After some fifteen years of operation in this community, delivering to service stations, commercial, farmers and heating oil accounts, the Sinclair Northville Bulk Plant will be merged with the Wayne sales area.

William C. Hartmann, the present local commission agent will be in direct charge of the Wayne Bulk Plant. Gilbert Peters will go to Wayne as Plant Foreman, as will John Shinn and Anthony Szukaitis. The latter two men will serve this area in the capacity of commission drivers. This classification puts them in business, for themselves; they did when operating out of the Northville plant, the only change being that all merchandise will come out of the Wayne Bulk Plant.

Sinclair Refining Company within the last year has completed its Terminal on Ford Road and Wyoming Ave., Detroit. Gasoline for the local service station will be delivered direct from the Terminal to the stations. Larger tanks will be installed at the various service stations, thereby permitting larger deliveries, which will be made with a 5000 gallon company unit.

The commission drivers, Mr. Shinn and Mr. Szukaitis, better known as Johnny and Tony, will continue to give the same efficient service and deliver the same high quality merchandise, should telephone calls be necessary. They can be reached at Farmington 11821 or Plymouth 273W, or the Wayne office direct at Wayne 2579 or 2521.

Luncheon Speaker

DR. WILLIAM MURRAY, who opens local Cancer Drive at Exchange Luncheon Wednesday.

Cancer Expert At Exchange Club

Dr. William Murray comes to Northville Wednesday, April 7th to speak to the Exchange Club. The subject of his discussion will be Cancer and his talk will mark the opening of the annual Cancer Campaign Drive for funds which will be held in Northville from April 9 through the 17th.

Dr. William S. Murray, executive director of the Southeastern Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society, has devoted all his adult life to research, except for three years in the navy. Born in St. Stephens, New Brunswick, he came to Michigan via the University of Maine where Dr. Clarence Cook Little was head of the graduate board when Dr. Murray won his degree of doctor of science. When Dr. Little came to Ann Arbor, president of the University of Michigan Dr. Murray came along as a laboratory assistant and graduate student. When Dr. Little went to Bar Harbor, Me., to establish the now famous cancer center the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory, Dr. Murray assisted. He served as both laboratory and business manager during the early years there.

For 10 years previous to his navy service, he was with the New York Public Health Service as associate biologist of the Roswell Park Memorial Institute.

His navy service included a year as captain of an inshore patrol schooner, a year as executive officer at a naval repair base in Caracao, and two years as navigator aboard a carrier in the Pacific. He saw action at the Aleutians, New Guinea, and was present at the landing of the first troops in Japan.

He joined the Cancer Society in Detroit September 1, 1947.

Will It Be Fast Time Here?

With Detroit going on fast time, it is highly probable that Northville and other surrounding communities will follow suit. The Village Commission of Northville will undoubtedly give thought to the matter in the near future.

Edison Asks for Lower Discounts

The Detroit Edison Company has filed with the Michigan Public Service Commission a request for authorization for increased revenues. Prentiss M. Brown, chairman, has announced. Such increase is necessary, he said, if on a reasonable basis, the company is to finance and operate its expansion program which will require about $100,000,000. This will increase the system capacity by about 23%.

Present basic electric rates will not be changed. Instead the company will ask an order permitting a reduction in the present prompt payment discount which has for many years been 10% on residential and commercial customer bills. For industrial customers this discount is 5%. The company's request to the commission asks that all be changed to 3%. Such action would cost our customers about $6,000,000 and would net the company about $3,500,000 after taxes.

Since the average residential electric customer pays about $7.50 every two months, this increased cost to this customer, who takes advantage of the discount, would be less than 1c per day.

"It has been 28 years since Detroit Edison increased its rates to residential and commercial customers, and this record is broken only because we cannot help it," Mr. Brown said.

"The need for financing the construction program necessary to keep up with the rapid demand in this area with no fall-off in service is the basic reason for this request," Mr. Brown said. "We don't like to increase our charges for electric service but we believe that our service even with this increase gives the greatest value per dollar of anything bought."

"If the company is to restore its normal revenue capacity and prepare for future demands, it has no choice but to increase its plant and equipment. This additional revenue will aid in making this possible and so insure adequate power and electric service in this vitally important area."

"It should be remembered that regulated public utilities are not permitted to accumulate large surpluses. A large part of the money for this expansion must be borrowed and interest paid on it, or secured through the sale of stock, on which dividends must be paid. Adequate earnings are essential to attract investors. Most of the things Detroit Edison buys today have increased in price, just as they have for every other business and household. In the past 10 years our coal cost has gone up 88%, labor has gone up 58%, and supplies such as poles, copper, cable, gasoline and transformers have increased substantially."

Maybe, So? Speak Up

Guess we'll have to agree somewhat with the sentiments expressed in the following clipping from Time Magazine. What do you think?

"Burbank, Calif.'s semi-weekly News, which has a four-man news staff, suspected that it was missing some of the town's vital events. Last week, in a front-page notice, it begged, 'If you are born, marry, have a baby, die, or some other accident happens, please let us know—not that we give a darn, but most of our readers have a lot of curiosity.' We do give a darn."

Governor Kim Sigler has a tough nut to crack. How can he successfully dissociate his personal ambitions from his new program of constitutional reform?

It's not an easy task. The problem boils down to something like this:

Sigler is asking the legislature to submit amendments to Michigan voters next November. These amendments, if approved, would lengthen terms of the governor and other state officials from two to four years, would permit the governor to appoint the secretary of state and attorney general, would permit legislators to set salaries of their successors and elective state officials, and would permit the calling of a constitutional convention by a majority of the votes cast for such a convention call, not a majority of all voters who go to the polls.

Governor Sigler is convinced that these steps would make for better and more responsible government in Michigan. But a number of legislators are yet to be convinced. They link the reforms to personal ambitions of Sigler, a desire to get greater power for himself, not for his successor.

If Sigler is re-elected in November for a second term, the four-year term amendment would deprive him of one month of this second term. He would go out of office on December 1, 1950, instead of on Jan. 1, 1951.

As Sigler sees it, the Dec. 1 inauguration date is evidence itself that he would deprive himself of one month and that this would benefit his successor, not himself. While he has not said he would retire at the end of a second term, he had plainly inferred it.

Furthermore, the governor has emphasized repeatedly that he does not look upon the governorship as a stepping stone to the United States Senate or other political public service. He would like to do something about better government, and he is not satisfied to hold the office of governor unless he tries to accomplish this.

In the governor's mind, the reform program should not be confused with Sigler's political future. But it is inevitable that some legislators will want to be convinced. Frankly, they're not altogether sold.

For one thing, the governor's amendments would strengthen the power of the governor and other elective officials, but they would do little for legislators. The right of the legislature to initiate laws would not apply to themselves but to their successors. Legislative incumbents would be exempt. State officials would not. While terms of elective officials would be stretched to four years, terms of senators and representatives would remain at two years.

Speaker Victor A. Knox of the Soo said, "there is a feeling among many members that if we are to grant a four-year term to the governor, the same reasoning would apply to the legislature itself."

And there you have it—human nature, inevitably in action, linking a man's program of change to his personal ambitions.

Governor Sigler points out that, since the 1908 constitution was adopted, only five governors have served more than one term. "Most of the time we have had a shift of administrations every two years. In the light of these facts, can anyone wonder why a well planned program of state government has not been carried out?"

"Does anyone seriously contend that a worth-while program can be accomplished in two years? Governors are not in office long enough to lay out a program and see it through."

As for greater power for the governor, here is a quotation from Sigler's message to the legislature: "It is the governor to whom the people look for administrative accomplishment, and whom they blame for lack of it. The tools of administration, however, have not been provided to enable the chief executive of our state to fulfill this responsibility. There should be authority commensurate with that responsibility."

Governor Sigler asks the legislature to create a state department of administration which would take over function of numerous state boards and agencies. The governor would appoint its director. This department would give the governor, says Sigler, "the means to get a job done, a 'right arm' with power to get results. It is a good illustration of what Kim Sigler wants."

HERE'S THE STORY OF A BIG TELEPHONE YEAR

More telephones and more service for customers! More jobs and more money for employees! But earnings for investors continued their downward trend because the rise in costs far exceeded the rise in revenues. That's how 1947 stacked up for Michigan Bell.

CUSTOMERS

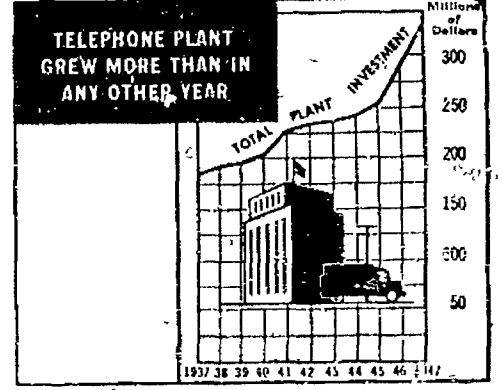

At the end of 1947, there were 133,000 more telephones in service than in 1946, including 16,000 more in rural areas. In the territory we serve 73 of every 100 families had a telephone. But 51,000 families were still waiting for service.

Service was better. Customers could call more people than ever before, and did with the average customer making between 5 and 6 calls a day, total calls averaged 8,022,000 a day.

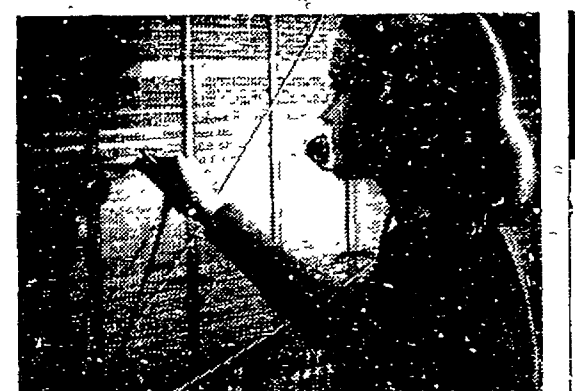

We added more switchboard "positions," switching equipment to connect 87,000 more dial telephones and 350,000 miles of wire. We enlarged the capacity of 196 central offices and built 7 new ones.

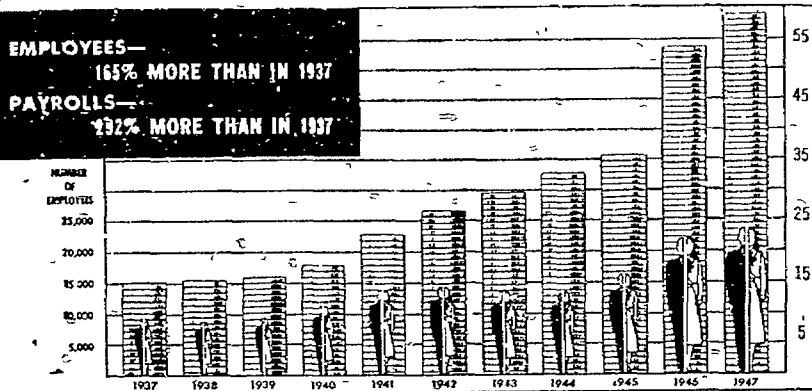

Forty-eight million dollars were spent for expansion and improvement. But Michigan Bell's plant is still not big enough to serve everyone the way we would like.

EMPLOYEES

Michigan Bell's expanding business created 1900 more telephone jobs during 1947. This required more supervisory jobs which were filled by promotion from within the ranks.

There were nearly 3 times as many employees at the end of 1947 as 10 years ago. Payrolls were nearly 4 times as high. Wage adjustments last Spring increased costs about $5,964,000 annually. One out of every 11 employees received benefits because of illness or injury.

By purchasing A. T. & T. stock under a payroll deduction plan, 7,400 Michigan Bell employees were on their way to becoming part owners of the business.

Money received from customers for service was 6% more than in 1946. But costs of providing service—wages, taxes, goods and services from others, etc.—rose 13%. Earnings per investor's dollar dropped to about half of what they were in the previous year.

730,000 investors in Bell System securities supply the money to build Michigan Bell's plant. Millions more have invested indirectly through savings accounts or insurance policies with institutions owning Bell securities.

Even with the telephone system operating at capacity, because of rising costs only 3 8/10 cents were earned on each dollar invested. This is not an adequate return. So the Michigan Public Service Commission is now considering our application for an increase in telephone rates.

ALL THREE GROUPS—customers, employees and investors—have a stake in the business. Looking to the future, Michigan Bell fully expects to supply a continually improving service to the public... good jobs for thousands of employees, with plenty of opportunity for advancement in a growing business... and a reasonable return to those whose savings are invested in the business.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS

Ninety nine women were present at the dinner and installation ceremonies of the Northville Business and Professional Women's Club Monday evening at the Methodist Church House. After dinner there was an introduction of guests. Out of town guests represented Mr. Clemens, Detroit, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, and Plymouth. A letter of congratulation from the new mayor was read after which time the installation ceremonies were held. May K. Burk, State President from Ann Arbor, was the presiding officer in charge, and she explained the emblem of the Club which is "Nike" Goddess of Victory.

The following officers were installed: Beatrice Carlson, president; Nellie Barry, vice president; Mary Alexander, recording secretary; Ruth Knapp, corresponding secretary; Ida Blucher, treasurer. Mrs. Carlson gave a brief address as the new president of the club.

Choose Wall Paper to Suit Your Purpose

In the spring a homemaker's thoughts turn to her home and particularly to the walls. A likely decision will be that new wall paper will be just the trick to brighten a dingy room.

With so many kinds and colors to choose from, it's a real problem to select paper that you will be happy with for months to come. Mildred Wilson, home furnishing specialist at Michigan State college, believes that you should first decide whether you want the paper for decoration or for background in the room.

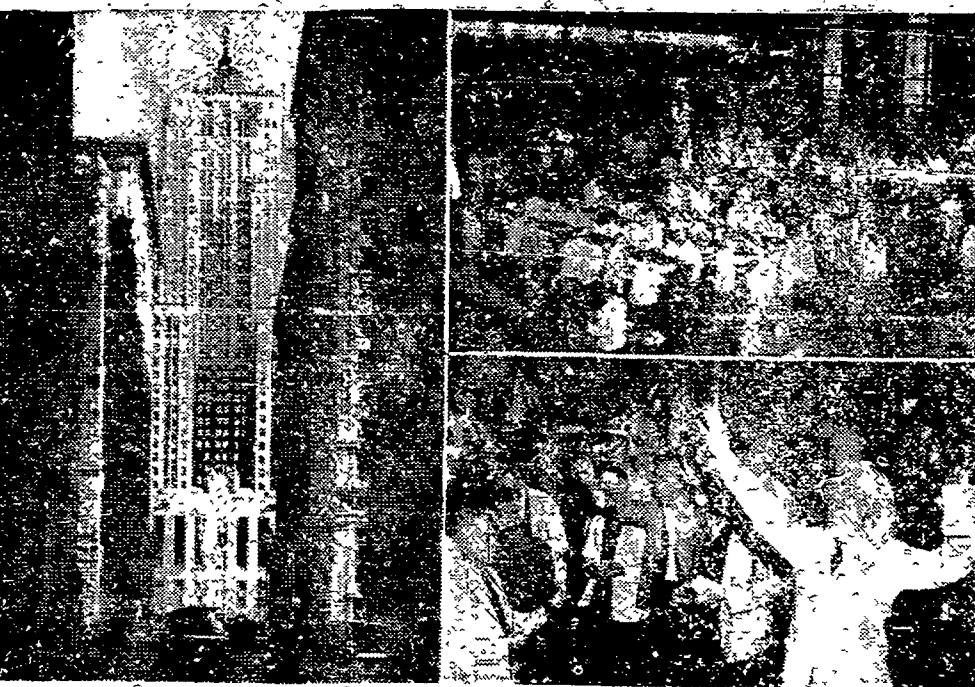

In rooms that are little used you can use a bolder and more brilliant paper than one where you will be reading, relaxing and spending a great deal of time. If the other studies in the room are plain, the paper can be more decorative. The size of the room will affect your choice and so will the amount of light in it.

After you have considered the use of the room think about the room's paper quality. The floor, walls, woodwork, doors, and the ceiling are a closely related unit. The color harmonize in color and texture. If it's hard to decide with a particular paper, a special color is a guide that you can use.

If you can get several different kinds of paper and hold them against the wall that's going to be papered. Then compare them. It's still better if you can experiment with several kinds of paper. For a final product, paper the door and the better it will be.

CENTURY OF HARVESTS . . . On April 3, 1948, the Chicago board of trade held its first formal session in a "grain frame" building set among the muddy streets of a war-torn city. This year it is observing its 100th anniversary, and now it is the world's largest grain exchange. Here representatives of the farmer, elevator operator, food processor and investor meet daily to buy and sell the grain that will be transformed into food for the earth's peoples. Shown in the picture are the 43-story structure housing the board of trade (left), a general scene of action on the floor (upper right) and a close-up of traders making transactions.

Parents Can Help With Child's Radio Listening Habits

As parents are you concerned about the radio programs which your child listens to in the evening? Do you wonder if so many programs of horror and crime will have a harmful effect on your child?

Some critics feel that these programs can be the cause of delinquency and severe emotional disturbances. Others feel that such programs offer outlets for suspense, adventure and aggression. Mrs. Lennah K. Backus, child development specialist at Michigan State college, feels that you should consider whether the programs over excite your child.

Evening radio programs may tend to be too exciting for your child for several reasons. First of all, they are concentrated into an hour or an hour and a half of continuous programming. Second, they usually occur at the end of a child's day when he is pretty well tired out. Finally, the child frequently endures a high note of excitement.

What can parents do about the radio listening problem? You can help by listening to the program with your child. Listen to a program which is a complete story and not a series of bits and pieces. If you can't listen to the program, you can still help by listening to the program with your child. Listen to a program which is a complete story and not a series of bits and pieces.

Your best solution to getting your child's point of view and his own positive help to him is to listen with him to some of his favorite programs. By sharing the listening with him you can remove some of the tension and make more intelligent comments to him. If you by you can enjoy watching your youngsters grow through various stages of radio interest.

Rudolph Herman Guest Speaker at Luncheon Clubs

Rudolph Herman of Des Moines, was the guest speaker at the joint meeting of the Exchange and Rotary Clubs Tuesday noon at the Presbyterian Church House.

Mr. Herman, formerly of Czechoslovakia, spoke upon the subject, "There is no Darkness without Light." He told of the Russian coup in taking over his country, of the pressure upon local and state officials, and seemed to find no immediate remedy for the situation.

Mr. Herman said he did not believe that Masterminds committed suicide as stated in dispatches. He said his country men were too checked to immediate happenings that the future was rather uncertain. He called for democracy to remain strong in this country, to try to understand the problems of less fortunate people and hoped for the day when more light would penetrate the darkness now over his native land.

PRINCIPLE No. 6

To combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses

—From the Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion

Every stratum of American citizenship is represented in The American Legion. It will always be a broad and comprehensive segment of American society, wherein the autocrat has no hope of gaining a foothold.

AMERICA, composed as it is of all nationalities, races, creeds, as well as all economic classes, has long been called the great melting pot of civilization. In our efforts to help carry out this great experiment in human evolution we must assure all groups that we stand for reason and fairness in all human activities.

Individual initiative must not be stifled by any revolution of the human masses; neither can we afford to allow powerful overbearing special privilege groups to autocratically exploit the inarticulate masses. Our Nation is large enough and rich enough so that all can live happily and well. If we permit autocratic control of one part of our people by another group we thereby nullify all of our democratic principles of fairness, freedom, and justice.

Let us remember that we represent a great cross-section of our national life. Whenever we have the opportunity we must insist that differences between groups be settled peacefully, reasonably, and with fairness to the general public as well as to both contesting parties.

We must do all we can to keep alive "The American Dream," the faith and confidence in the worthwhileness of the common man; the hope of opportunity, and freedom for the complete, balanced growth and development of each individual according to his vision, abilities, and efforts.

Better Home Lighting-Needed

Your family has the benefit of the very best in lighting while they are at school, the office or factory during the day. Do they come home to dimly lighted rooms to read, study or sew at night?

You may not have had the experience that the person who planned the industrial lighting had, but you can do something about lighting. Josephine Hoke, home demonstration agent, believes that the most common fault is that lighting is planned in terms of fixtures rather than the eyes of the family.

If you wonder how much light is enough, remember that you are much more likely to have too little than too much. Our eyes will adjust themselves to any amount of light but specialists have proved that we see more slowly when there is not enough light.

We also see more easily and do not become tired as quickly when there is enough light. Industry has learned that any expense caused by furnishing good lighting pays for itself. Did you know that just having enough light on the page you are reading or the sock you are darning isn't enough? If the rest of the room is dark when you glance up, your eyes have to adjust to the contrast in lighting. This adjustment to sharp contrasts in lighting is the greatest single cause of eye strain.

For a living room you should have a reasonable all-over light and concentrated direct light where it is needed. You also will find that three-way lamps that permit the light to be raised or lowered are a help. Several wall outlets in a room also add to the flexibility of the lighting. Maybe new shades or adding a white lining to your present ones can be the first step in your lighting improvement.

Proclamation

ARMY DAY

The President of the United States, as Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces, has designated Tuesday, April 6, 1948, as Army Day throughout the United States and in our overseas installations.

The purpose behind the observance of Army Day are threefold, to remind the people of our nation of the contribution the United States Army has made to the safety and progress of our nation in the past, to remember the Army's share in the earning of the peace; and to arouse adequate recognition of the fact that in these unsettled times the Army is of utmost importance in securing the peace and providing for future security.

This year, in view of the discouraging international situation, it is more important than ever before that the United States Army be recognized and honored on Army Day.

Our nation has moved to a new position of responsibility in world affairs and is now the one outstanding and powerful champion of the democratic principles, as opposed to totalitarian ideologies.

Army Day will serve to demonstrate the Army's share, through its Veterans, the men in the reserve forces, and those on active duty, in maintaining the peace and defending our way of life.

Therefore, I, Kim Sigler, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby proclaim Tuesday, April 6, 1948, as Army Day in Michigan, and call upon the citizens of the State to celebrate the day by the display of our national colors, parades, and meetings. I further call upon the loyal citizens of the State to give all possible assistance to the Army, the National Guard, and the Reserve organizations; so that our defense may be assured.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Michigan, this nineteenth day of March, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred Forty-eight, and of the Commonwealth the One Hundred Twelfth.

Signed—KIM SIGLER Governor

"NEVER AGAIN!"

... said BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

Benjamin Franklin's experiment with a kite to prove that lightning and electricity is one and the same could well have been his last!

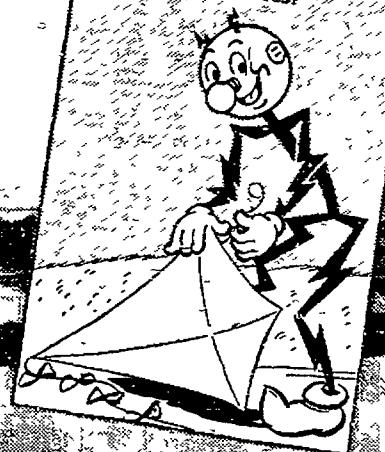

And if old Ben were here today he would warn our youngsters not to try his foolhardy stunt.

"Fly your kites away from electric wires," he would say... "and don't run into busy streets on the take off."

"Never use kites with metal ribs or metallic wound strings. Even damp cotton strings may be dangerous if your kite hits a high tension wire."

THE DETROIT EDISON CO.

Reddy Kluwert says:
"Ben's right kids! Fly kites all you want but watch out for wires and don't tangle with electric wires!"

ANGIE SAYS:

Whether you're an expert or a beginner, you'll certainly find a double-feature of fun and health when you bowl here. It's the inexpensive sport of fun-loving people. Try it tonight.

NEWS AND COMMENT FROM
CONG. GEORGE A. DONDERO
MARCH 29, 1948

Our Military Government in Germany: Quoting from the Congressional Record of March 23rd, Congressman George A. Dondero had the following to say about our Military Government in Germany:

"I have endeavored to find out what lies behind the brazen curtain which hides the activities of our so-called military government in Germany. From experienced observers, who are in position to advise me of the facts which should be known to every American—I learn they affect the honor and standing of our country, our national security, and the pocketbook of every individual citizen. Many of us have assumed that the policy for destroying industry in Central Europe was abandoned some months ago. "Our Commander in Germany, General Lucius Clay, has received directives ordering fundamental changes in the original blueprint for that plan, known as GSC Order No. 1067. These directives have told General Clay to impress upon the German people the advantages of the free enterprise system, while leaving up to them a choice of economic and political systems. There is a great deal of evidence to show that these directives are window-dressing only, and no effort is being made to demonstrate to the German people the practical workings of political or economic freedom.

"We ought not to overlook the fact that policy for our occupation zones is made and laid down by our State Department, which means the White House, of course. The U. S. Army acting as occupation force, is merely an instrument of the Executive Branch of the U. S. Government. I am told few Germans are aware that the free enterprise system is still the economic basis of the United States. On the contrary, a number of Germans, who have undertaken the difficult task of holding local office under the occupation have been repeatedly advised by top American authorities there that long-range planners in Washington had fully expected the German people to adopt Socialism after their liberation from Nazi rule. In spite of the fact that German voters in election after election, under our supervision, have re-elected the Socialist candidates and programs, our authorities in many instances have arbitrarily set aside the democratically elected conservative officials and installed socialists and even communists in their places. In plain words, more communists were put in power by United States authorities than have ever been elected by German voters.

"Newspapers and other publications in Germany are under direct supervision of our occupation authorities. There is no freedom of the press in Germany. A check on the publications permitted in our zone shows that almost nothing has been published about the actual facts of American life, the advantages of the free enterprise system, and the practical workings of a free political system.

Taft-Hartley Labor Act: The Joint Congressional Committee which has been studying operations of the Taft-Hartley Act reported that during the first seven months, the law has worked to the advantage of the public, that the number of strikes has decreased steadily, and that serious problems in labor relations have been solved which the Act does not provide an adequate remedy.

The report further says that unions have made substantial gain in membership under the Act, that the rights of workers have not been restricted by the act, and that the act has helped to eliminate Communists from union control and that unions have tended to comply with restrictions on compulsory membership contracts.

Veterans' Finances: Presidential approval was given a few days ago to legislation extending until December 31, 1948, the final date for the admission into the United States of alien veterans or United States servicemen.
