Six Hospitalized In Auto Accident

Two accidents and a breaking and entering case were reported to the Police department recently.

C. Don Hicks, proprietor of the Shell service station on Plymouth Ave., reported that $275.00 was taken from the station sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning. Entrance to the filling station, Police Chief Denton said, was made by forcing a window. At this writing, the police are still working on the case.

A car accident early Tuesday morning on Fairbrook Road hospitalized six persons. At Sessions Hospital are Betty Rice of Norway, who is believed to be suffering from multiple contusions and lacerations of the left ear; Auburn Hall of Wayne, who is believed to have a jaw fracture and multiple abrasions; Leroy Johnson of Dearborn, driver of one of the cars, who has a fractured clavicle; Ruth Brown of Northville, lacerations of L.P. and chin; Burrell Downing of 2249 Seven Mile Road, driver of the other car, possible fractured ribs and abrasions on chin; Chas. Cheerleaders Lead Mustang Rooters Extra! Extra! Read all about it! What's this, the city dailies trying to scoop each other on some startling news development? Nope, it's that crew of cheerleaders from Northville High!

Extra! Extra! Read all about it! We've got a team and we're proud to show it!

And they shout it every week when the Mustangs clash with some other school on the football field. The girls are out there in front of the spectators whipping them into a yelling mood, and that's not easy, especially when the hometown team is two touchdowns behind and the situation is very, very black. But that's when the girls really swing into high gear, sometimes yelling louder than the crowd!

The cheerleading squad is made up of six varsity leaders and five reserves, with Miss Ida E. Cooke as their advisor. The varsity consists of Mavis LaRoque, captain, Dolly Clark, secretary, Maxine Clark, treasurer, and Elaine Baxter, Judy Secor and Janice Smith. The reserves are Pat Reed, Jan Riley, Joanne Todd, Ruth Fulkerson and Lillian Dickerson.

The girls take time off every Thursday after school to practice their routines and to practice their new stunts. Their uniforms are bought with money from the team fund raised by popcorn and candy sales.

NHS To Play Last Home Game Friday

The Northville Mustangs will play their last home game of the season tomorrow night when they encounter Clarenceville under the lights at Ford Field. Kick-off will be at 8:00 p.m. Northville's Clarenceville last year, 29-7. The remaining games on the grid schedule will be at Plymouth on November 4, and at South Lyon on November 11.

The Mustangs defeated Roosevelt High School of Inkster 21-0 last Friday night before a Homecoming crowd kept small because of threatening weather. Northville scored two touchdowns in the second quarter, one in the third and two in the fourth. Inkster never threatened.

The game was played on a sticky field which caused a few fumbles and made ball-handling difficult, but both teams used passes frequently.

Fullback Dick Gray scored the first touchdown on a six-yard plunge through the left side of the Inkster line. The second TD was scored by Chuck Stephens on a well-executed 52-yard run behind good blocking, the longest run by a Northville player this year. The play was a reverse to the weak side of the line with Gray spinning and handing the ball off to Stephens, who cut through the line and reversed his field to go all the way.

After a series of plays which took the ball to the Inkster one-foot line in the third quarter, Tom Shrake ran the ball over for the third score. Center Tom Sutton made the extra point when he faked a kick and ran around the right side of the line.

In the final period, Chuck Dickinson found a hole in the Inkster line and ran sharply to his left and around from the Inkster 21 to make the score 25-0.

The final tally was the result of a seven-play, six-center Tom Sutton pass, and run totaling 17 yards. The Mustangs used a spread formation on this play, with the eleven players spreading apart from side to side. Sutton, who is the extreme left, and even though he is considered the ball, he was in and an eligible pass receiver. Northville scored a touchdown on a 51-yard pass to Sutton, who is a senior, and the passing game was over.

The Mustangs played the game without Quarterback Norm Robinson and Hank Biddle. Robinson will be out for the rest of the season as the result of a fractured leg in the Clarenceville game. Biddle injured his leg in a practice session, but will probably be ready for tomorrow's game.

Coches Al Jones and Dick Kay made frequent use of reserves, often running complete laps on and off the field.

Bell Telephone Co. Loses Court Case

The Michigan Bell Telephone Company lost its long fight in the Ingham Circuit Court against a $3,000,000 annual rate reduction, applicable to a period of three years between 1946 and 1949.

Under a ruling by Judge Marvin Salmon of Lansing the company would be liable for refunds approximating $10,000,000 to customers in 43 exchanges between January 1, 1946 and October 16, 1948 — date of an order increasing rates. In addition, about 15 per cent in excise taxes paid by customers presumably would be added to the proposed refunds.

Thomas N. Lacy, Michigan Bell president, declaring the company "is seriously disturbed by the unfavorable ruling," said it would not decide upon what future action to pursue until the opinion had been carefully studied. He said the general situation throws doubts as to the company's ability to continue its construction program at present levels.

While Judge Salmon said the rate reduction had to be decided on the basis of 1945 conditions, Lacy pointed out the company's return on its intrastate investment for the 3-year period averaged "appreciably less than 4 per cent" at a time of the "best business in the nation's history." The return for 1947 and 1948 was below 3 per cent. He termed such earnings "completely inadequate."

"In effect," Lacy said, "the ability of the company to obtain adequate earnings has been limited in these good times and there can be no guarantee to uphold earnings in bad times. Such a return obviously falls short of that necessary to attract new capital so vitally needed for the improvement of the service to existing customers and to extend service to others on the waiting list."

"Having had confidence that it would be permitted to earn a reasonable return on its investment, Michigan Bell has put more than $200,000,000 into new plant and equipment since V-J Day to meet demands of Michigan. (Continued on back page.)"

STUDEBAKER'S REALLY ROLLING! STUDEBAKER LEADS AGAIN WITH THE "NEXT LOOK" IN CARS!

MICHIGAN Motoring

Have you ever parked your auto near a high school at the time when school is "out" for the day? If so, you've watched the hundreds of youngsters pouring out the doors, dashing across the streets and "cramming" themselves into cars. They always seem to have a lot of fun to do, and the more in the auto the better they like it!

The fall football season always brings an epidemic of "stuffed cars" — some carrying players themselves, and others, all the "gang" who want to go out to the field to watch. And it's obvious to any of you who have watched the youngsters that they are completely unaware of the dangers that these overloaded automobiles may bring. And that's why it's doubly important for all of you parents, teachers and friends to keep reminding our students of the need for safety.

Sit down with your children and discuss the problem of over-loaded autos with them. Remind them that the driver who carries three other passengers in the front seat may not have room to slam on the brakes in a hurry — or to make that sharp turn. Ask them how many times someone in the car tells the driver to "speed it up" — or asks a question that may take the driver's mind off the street. These things are important! Your youngsters will realize these dangers if you take the time to discuss them with them.

Remember, a little of your time may save your son's or daughter's life. Caution them to drive safely — caution their friends against over-loaded cars and driving carelessness!

Fishing License Sales On Decline

Although early fall months provide some of the best fishing in the entire season, the conservation department reports the sale of fishing licenses dropped off last month for the first time this year.

Licenses issued through Sept. 30 totaled 950,762 in contrast to 984,572 through the same nine month period last year.

Resident anglers purchased 729,555 licenses compared to 740,090 in the like 1948 period, reflecting about a 1.4 per cent drop. Sale of temporary nonresident licenses were off 4.8 per cent with 112,828 issued so far this year compared to 118,482 through Sept. of last year. Annual nonresident license sales were up slightly from 105,940 to 108,379, an increase of 2.3 per cent.

The trout stamp tally also was down, nearly four per cent, although a number of rainbow waters continue open through November 30. Trout fishermen were issued 149,990 stamps in contrast to 155,825 in the same 1948 period.

Wearing of Grotesque Masks Antedates Greek Golden Age

Although your Halloween takes place October 31 may be brand new, wearing of masks dates back to the advent of group revelry and communal rites. Most savage tribes have used them for superstitious, ceremonial and militant reasons.

The old Greeks, separated from savagery by a gossamer web of scant time, knew masks and used them in the ceremonies and orgies attending the worship of Dionysus.

The comic masks were grotesque, laughing countenances; the tragic ones were dignified faces, but sometimes frightful.

The Greek Bacchus, god of drink and male fertility. From these rituals sprang Greek drama, comedy and tragedy, forerunner of the modern play.

The word "mask" derives from the Italian "maschera," traceable to the Arabic "maskharah" (buffoon) and "sakhira" (to ridicule). The Dionysian processions were at first ridiculous parades and carousals by the clowns, wine-imbibing devotees of the god until the songs and wild chants began to depict the deeds of Greek heroes beset by fate. Then, the Greek drama was given shape.

Some of the masks used in ancient plays were like modern ones, merely coverings for the face, but most of them covered the entire head. They were fashioned from the bark of trees first, then from leather and wood in the design of the poets composing the plays. The comic masks were grotesque, laughing countenances; the tragic ones were dignified faces, but sometimes frightful.

Some of the Greek masks had large, wide-open mouths containing metal bars or other sounding devices to strengthen the voices of the speakers to carry their words across the huge amphitheaters.

Masks, which seem to owe their origin to riotous religious observances, were retained by religion after they were discarded generally by the serious theater. After regular drama was divorced from face covering, private theatricals, known as masques, prevailed at the courts of Europe in the 17th century.

They were called masques because of the use of the head, masque, representing romantic, historical or allegorical characters on occasions of festivity or solemnity. They were akin to the French farce.

Masks find their greatest theatrical use today in the Japanese theater. The sacred dances and dramas of Tibet are carried out with the aid of extremely ornate and grotesque masks.

In sacred ceremonies of the middle ages, masks and the Dionysian spirit, persisted in Christian worship until devout Christians put an end to these relics of paganism. But masquerades before Christian fast days were sanctioned by the church until the 16th century.

And even today, secular masquerades, not sponsored by divine representative, precede Christian fast days.

"On fast eves," Christian zealots complained, "Christians give themselves to voluntary madness, don masks, exchange sexes, clothe themselves like spectres, and surrender to Bacchus and Venus, considering any pleasure allowable." Masks must have been useful in the concealment of identity of those tossing respectability to the winds.

A modern example of a period of masked carnival in which the sexes are surfeited on festivity before they are denied to feed the soul is America's Mardi Gras at New Orleans, preceding Lent.

The custom of masking the face at Halloween probably grew from the practice of masquerading on the eve of religious observance. Halloween ushers in the festival of All Saints, or Allhallows, November 1.

Dry Cellar
Placing around the cellar trays containing calcium chloride is often suggested as a means of keeping the cellar dry, as this material absorbs moisture from the air. However, the method is not too practical because the amount of water to be absorbed is so large. Generally it is better to paint the cellar walls with a cement-base water-proofing paint. A number of such paints are available commercially.

For those who dislike chicken wings, Peter H. Baumann, of Des Moines, Iowa, has come up with wingless chickens. He is shown here comparing the wingless chicken (right) with an ordinary chicken (left).

chicken breed a secret because he wanted to be sure it was a success. He studied animal husbandry at Iowa State college and asserts his wingless chickens are not a "freak." A freak does not reproduce, he argued.

The ancestors of this new breed of chicken, Baumann said, came from Texas. He was traveling through that state in the 30's when he acquired a light Brahma rooster and a white Minorca hen. Each bird had only stubs for wings.

He bred them, he said, and was astounded when the hen hatched wingless chickens. He then began experimenting and breeding.

Baumann reported that at first he got only three or four wingless birds out of 100 eggs. Now, he said, about 95 of every 100 chicks have no wings at all. Some of the others, he said, have stubs or a stub or one side and a wing on the other.

Eases Farm Chores

Wagon unloaders are among the latest electrical devices to be developed for farm chore use. Most types are still in the experimental stage, but many sections of the country already are using them to a large extent. In Wisconsin, for example, 50 per cent of the farmers who have forage harvesters also have electric wagon unloaders.

Under ordinary circumstances, a three-ton load can be handled with an electric unloader by one man in five minutes. Cost of operation is low, with power provided by a 1/2 horsepower portable motor which can be used on other farm machines when not connected to the unloader.

Narrow Poultry Houses
Give Way to New Style
D. W. Moyer, extension poultry specialist at Ohio State university, says the narrow type poultry house 15 to 20 feet deep is giving away to houses 30 to 40 feet in depth, built long enough to house 500 and more birds.

Moyer cites a number of advantages in the new-style housing. Wall space is cut down, heat loss reduced, cleaning is easier and it is less trouble to move equipment.

Wingless Chickens Cause Speculation

Impact on Industry Studied by Growers

Poultrymen and consumers throughout the United States are still speculating on the degree impact on the poultry industry of the development of wingless chickens. Peter Baumann, Des Moines, Iowa, a veterinary-supply salesman, has raised a flock of 460 such chickens and has proclaimed loudly that they are the "nearest thing" alive to famed cartoonist Al Capp's "abmoos."

Baumann said he had spent 10 years developing the wingless flock, and that he expects the breed to set a new trend in chicken raising. He pointed out that the wingless chicken has a thick layer of white meat where ordinary chickens have wings.

The National Wildlife Federation declares that the Michigan measure ranks high in the history of wildlife movement. Its importance is equal to that of the Migratory Bird Treaty and the Pittman-Robertson Acts. Michigan's conservation program is regarded nationally as "tops" in the Nation. P. J. Hoffmaster has been director of the state department for the past 15 years.

More federal aid for conservation is assured by Congressional approval of the Dingell bill earmarking existing federal excise taxes for game fish restoration and management projects. The excise tax applies to fishing rods, creels, reels and artificial lures, baits and flies—items perennially in demand by sportsmen. How much money will be raised by this levy? Approximately if you are a sportsman, and Michigan is filled with them; you probably read with approval the above item about new federal aid to Michigan and other states. The trend of more governmental spending for more public benefits has been accelerated at Washington by the 81st Congress. Federal spending for the present fiscal year (ending June 30, 1950) is expected to exceed $45 BILLIONS, as compared with anticipated receipts of $40 billion. Thus a treasury deficit of $5 billion is now in sight!

As 1950 is an election year, Washington observers do not expect that Congress will increase taxes next year. Deficit spending is likely to rise in 1950.

Rabbits Carriers Of Tularemia

While you're giving thought to that wonderful platter of wild rabbit, broiled to a turn; give a little thought also to the danger of tularemia, the Michigan Department of Health advised today.

Some Michigan wild rabbits do have tularemia so it is best to handle any wild rabbit as if he had the disease: to wear rubber gloves while cleaning the game and cook it thoroughly before even tasting it.

In humans tularemia is extremely painful, dangerous and difficult to treat. People usually get tularemia from handling, cleaning, or eating the carcass of an infected wild rabbit. They may get it from the bites of rabbit or wood ticks and some other biting insects. The germ is so small that it can get into the body through unbroken skin on the hands or face or it may enter through the eyes, mucous membranes or intestinal tract. Humans become ill four to twelve days after the germ gets into the body. The illness begins with chills, fever, body pains, and nausea. A sore usually appears where the germ enters the body. Nearby lymph glands become swollen, very painful, and often have to be opened. After opening they may continue to drain for a long period of time. This condition is usually accompanied by fever and may keep the patient in bed for weeks or months.

A large, infecting dose of the organism may cause high sustained fever and prostration. This type of the disease can cause death and at best requires long convalescence. It isn't worth taking a chance.

When you clean, handle or cook game use these precautions the Michigan Department of Health warned:

1. Wear rubber gloves when dressing wild rabbits. Use care so that a sharp bone cannot pierce the glove.
2. Do not handle wild rabbits that are found dead.
3. Shoot only rabbits which are running. Slow or sluggish rabbits are likely to be infected with tularemia.
4. Cook wild rabbits thoroughly so that no red meat or red blood remains. Do not taste the game until it is well done. Only thorough cooking of the meat destroys the germs.
5. Play safe! Destroy all rabbits whose internal organs are stuffed with small white spots. These spots are signs of tularemia.
6. Guard against the bites of ticks and fleas.

The ram you buy should be better than most of the ewes in your flock—he can do much for the average flock in stepping up quality of lambs. Look for a ram that is large for his age, showing good growth characteristics, and one that is active, vigorous and free from any defects.

Reverse Image Mirror
An inventor in Hamburg, Germany, claims he has developed a mirror with a reverse image, permitting the viewer to see himself as others see him. Franz Mueller, the inventor, is a bit nervous about showing the device or allowing it to be photographed, however, he said, it will be placed on exhibition when patented. In this mirror left is really left and right is right as against the "backward" reflection of the conventional mirror.

When future historians write about our current post-war period, they will present judgment on our swing to the left, the trend towards collective statism, the so-called "welfare state" wherein government protects the citizen from cradle to the grave. Why are we traveling in this direction? Is there anything we can do, as free-loving Americans, to halt these encroachments on our personal liberties?

Some contemporary historians say the Communist menace of atomic war is forcing Democracy to bankrupt itself in a race for survival. Dollar devaluation by Great Britain - and possibly soon by the United States are cited as proof of such dire forecasts.

What can we do in the face of increased government spending at Washington and Lansing? That the A-1 problem for the taxpayer today.

The answer must come at the ballot box in American communities everywhere. The choice is one for the people to make—and that means YOU.

Paul Gage has discovered what thousands of rural Michigan families already know — that it costs less to heat water electrically on the farm. That's because water is heated at bargain rates — while you sleep. No wonder that 4,467 of the 4,821 milk houses in the Detroit milk shed have gone electric!

Farmington — Village housewives may not be battling rusty water much longer. When the Farmington City Commission met recently, Roy Miller, Commissioner, brought up the subject of rust removal. He stated he had made tentative arrangements to equip the city's water plant with the rust remover, pending approval of the commission.

Plymouth — Out of a total registration of more than 3,000 voters, 2038 citizens of Plymouth decided that they wanted an entirely new city commission to serve this city. As a result Henry Fisher and Perry Richwine were elected to serve until April, 1951, and Floyd Tibbitts and Eleanor Hammond were elected to serve the terms which expire in April, 1950.

Grand Ledge — Under the chairmanship of Otto Pearl, the campaign will be waged here through five days, and President Richard Peacock hopes the goal of $3,790 will be reached well within the time limit.

RED CROSS HAS RECORD NUMBER SERVING U. S. MILITARY FORCES

With U. S. military forces at five times their prewar strength, a record number of American Red Cross workers are serving them throughout the world.

More than 2,000 Red Cross representatives today are stationed at 1,300 military installations and 123 hospitals here and overseas. About 1,400 staff workers are serving troops in this country. The others are working at occupation and defense posts abroad. Only during the peak years of World War II were a larger number on duty.

The duties of these Red Cross workers are as varied as the locale in which they work, involving a wide range of welfare services that contribute to military morale. They may include tiding over a soldier's wife with grocery and rent money until her family allowance check comes through, or getting a welfare report on an Eskimo serviceman's mother via weather bureau radio. Sometimes it means getting word of a family emergency to a sailor with the fleet in the Mediterranean.

Service of the Red Cross worker in a military hospital may be helping a man through the difficult hour when he learns that he will never be well again or removing the worry that often stands in the way of his recovery.

Under federal statutes and regulations of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, the American Red Cross furnishes volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of the armed forces and acts in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people of the United States and their armed forces.

In the last year Red Cross staff members handled more than 102,000 welfare cases in military hospitals. More than 500 professional Red Cross workers are stationed at 40 army hospitals, 26 navy hospitals, and 14 air force hospitals.

For the able-bodied, too, whatever the problem or wherever the serviceman is stationed, the chances

The Red Cross man at Hickam Air Force base, Hawaii, lead a helping hand to a young marine, en route from Kwajalein to his Maine home on emergency leave.

Are that the Red Cross has a field worker on the spot or nearby who can help try to solve it.

In this country 361 field directors and their assistants cover 148 base stations, 51 substations, and 923 itinerant stations. During the last year field directors at camps handled more than 672,000 cases. Health and welfare reports requested by servicemen or their families were the most common type of help asked for. More than 179,000 such cases were recorded. The next most frequent type of request was that involving leave or extension of leave. The Red Cross cannot grant leave, but military authorities depend upon the organization for reports of conditions underlying leave requests. These cases run into many thousands each year.

Aboard, Red Cross coverage is almost as complete as in this country. In Japan alone, 169 men and women are serving occupation troops at 31 military installations and 14 hospitals. Other parts of the Far East are equally well staffed.

In Europe, 248 Red Cross workers serve military personnel and their dependents at 51 military installations and 15 hospitals, most of them in occupied Germany. Coverage is also given in England and to miscellaneous units still in France.

Deficient rations often cause winter egg shortages, say, Michigan State College poultrymen. During cold snaps it's important to have the birds eat enough of the right things.

Cheek and double-check measurements before you buy material for draperies, advise home furnishings specialists at Michigan State College. Use a yardstick for measuring the windows — a tape measure often stretches. Take the measurement from the top of the rod to the length desired — sill, edge of apron or floor. Add sufficient length for the heading, casing and hems.

Agricultural Dep't To Make Butter Survey

The Michigan Department of Agriculture will make a detailed study of quality and grades of butter sold in some of the larger markets of Michigan. F. M. Skiver, Chief of the Bureau of Dairying said, "This dairy marketing service work will be carried on with the aid of Federal matched funds furnished from the Hope-Flannigan Appropriations." The Michigan Legislature at its last session, appropriated money for the Michigan Department of Agriculture to initiate this much needed research.

The project has been approved by the United States Department of Agriculture, and work will start with a general survey to determine the score of butter offered consumers in retail stores and restaurants. A large number of samples will be obtained from several of the larger markets. The Dairy Department of the Michigan State College is cooperating in the service work and will assist in scoring and analyzing the samples.

The purpose of the project is to assist retailers and distributors in determining the actual quality of butter they are handling and assist them in obtaining the quality and grades they desire. Information will also be obtained on the effects of storing and handling on butter.

This information will be of great value to the butter industry by enabling them to eliminate the causes of low score butter both at the creameries and at all handling points before it reaches the consumer.

Stirring the milk with a rod during the cooling process may be introducing unwanted bacteria. Don Murray, Michigan State College dairyman, suggests that tight covers and an occasional rocking of the can gives the same results as stirring and helps keep out bacteria.

Farmington—Initial steps were taken by the Farmington Township Board toward the adoption of a Building Code and a Zoning Ordinance at their regular meeting held at the Farmington Town Hall last Tuesday.

A regular milking routine is best, say Michigan State College dairymen. Cows are largely creatures of habit—signs such as feeding gram, the rattle of milk pails, and washing the udder, set up responses to prepare the cow for thorough milking.

A toast or doughnut and milk is a poor breakfast to start your child off to school each day. It is a handicap to him both physically and mentally.

Apples Offer Many Inexpensive Treats

When children come around, "Trick or Treat" on Halloween, have plates of taffied apples ready, or let your children make the candied delicacies at their Halloween party. Let them bob for apples in a dishpan of water; nibble at apples hanging on a string and find their partners by matching cut apples. Give them doughnuts and cider for zestful and inexpensive refreshments.

Take an apple for your mid-morning snack or with your lunch. Give your child an apple for his after-school refreshment.

You can decorate with apple "snow-men" or bowls of the beautiful fruit mixed with an egg plant and bananas; or with Michigan's purple grapes and a golden summer squash.

Bright red apples and bowls of snowy popcorn which were a feature of Michigan home life a generation ago will add zest to your television, radio or plate party or to the family gathering just as they did in gramophone days. Apples and popcorn aren't nearly so fattening or expensive as other refreshments and they won't leave you with a headache to keep you awake nights. There's more than one way to use an apple a day to keep the doctor away, the Department concluded.

WHO'S Crippled?

SUCCESS STORY OF THE MONTH

When John Steensma lost his left arm, amputee children and war veterans gained a new chance at normal lives. For the 27-year-old Grand Rapids, Mich., man, since his recovery has devoted his career to literally creating new skills and new interests for children and veterans who have lost arms and legs.

John Steensma

Ten years ago, when 72,000 volts of electricity ricocheted through John's body while he was climbing a high tension tower, he was given but a few hours to live. Steensma recovered following the amputation of both arms.

In recognition of Steensma's outstanding ability to rebuild his life and also aid others who suffered similar tragedies, the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults has presented the "Who's Crippled?" monthly citation to him.

This monthly citation given by the National Society is part of a nationwide program designed to honor handicapped persons who have overcome their handicaps through their courage and determination to live a normal, successful and happy life. The citation will be conferred by the Michigan Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Eight months after the amputation, Steensma received his artificial arm. With no instructions in the use of these appliances and little encouragement, he mustered his determination to make the best of a bad break. His rigid schedule of self-training was so successful that within a year he was driving his own car.

When his job in a defense plant seemed at odds with his interests, Steensma decided to go to college and study for the ministry. Within two years he completed three years of college work, was a National Interscholastic Oratorical contest, and married the pretty girl who had inspired him to continue his education.

In 1945 as war casualties filled the hospitals, Steensma left college to train disabled veterans at Percy Jones Hospital, Battle Creek, Mich.

He left this work to become associated with the newly established amputee training program inaugurated by the Michigan Crippled Children's Commission in 1946. Inspiring youngsters with his attitude toward crippling conditions, he taught them muscular coordination and walking rhythm.

Within a few months he had arm and leg amputees riding bicycles, roller skating, playing ball, and dressing and feeding themselves. When children leave the Commission's amputee training center, they are given periodic checkups until they are completely adjusted to their artificial limbs.

In addition to this work, Steensma has organized an adult training clinic which meets two evenings a week on Saturdays.

Automatically, through the tremendous job he has done in rebuilding his own life, Steensma has become one of the prime movers in getting others off to a successful physical adjustment to a handicap. This he realizes, is his job for keeps.

NEWS and COMMENT

FROM CONGRESSMAN

GEORGE A. DONDERO

The time has come to stop compromising

In his writing on the theory and practice of diplomacy, as it was and is during the Middle Ages, Machiavelli said that when an evil arises, its opponents should temporize with it just as long as they can. But Machiavelli was not chiefly for his advocacy of lying and deceit in public affairs. His advice was the antithesis of that contained in the teachings of Christianity.

For over several decades there has been a tendency on the part of our politicians to temporize with compromise with one of the greatest evils of our age. That evil, under a variety of names, is called socialism, totalitarianism, communism, collectivism, and by half a dozen other words and phrases. But it is always the same thing—a belief that freedom, economic and political, is not worth fighting for, is not worth the self-discipline and the real sacrifice its continued possession entails. It is a belief that some fancied social or economic security is preferable to those liberties our forefathers died to gain and preserve. It is a credo which says it is better to be safe than free.

It is true that thus far in America no major politician ever has openly endorsed socialism, which is the negation of free enterprise and personal liberty. But many have been and are now willing to go along while socialism is invited in at the back door. A few of them do so in the knowledge that some things can be and are being done to reduce the economic hazards of living for all the people, but they fail to discriminate between measures which ameliorate social hazards while preserving essential freedoms and measures which promise totally to eliminate the hazards yet destroy the essential freedoms and thereby render the hazards even worse. Others go along because through such opportunities they see a chance to enhance their own power and perpetuate themselves in office.

This latter attitude has had its most recent flowering in the President's legislative program and in the support given this program by a minority within both major political parties in the House and Senate. That the proposals which would socialize the American economy—invite socialism in through the back door—were supported only by a Congressional minority is proved by the failure of this Congress in its first session to enact more than a few unimportant items of the President's program.

All of this should point a political moral, not only to Members of Congress and of the administration, but also to labor leaders and others who seek change merely for its own sake or in the hope that by change they may aggrandize themselves.

The majority group they represent. Most of our men spend much time and effort, and some skill, in endeavoring what is, in the mind of a majority of their constituents, it is their business to do so. In they are "representatives" in fact as well as in name. They are a representative government, and will so continue unless the majority have their way. Therefore, the refusal of Congress to adopt the President's welfare state program may be assumed to reflect the convictions of a majority of Americans.

Some proof of this is provided by the recent election of a new Member of Congress, John P. Saylor, who replaced Robert L. Coffey, Jr., from the 26th Pennsylvania District. Coffey was killed in an airplane crash. He was a Democrat and supported the Fair Deal Saylor's a Republican who told the voters of his district, which includes the steel center of Johnstown, that the issue is the American way of life, free enterprise and opportunity versus "the regimented semi-police state." Saylor received the largest majority vote his party has ever received in that district.

The time has come, indeed, for those responsible to the American people to stop compromising with the evil of socialism, which would destroy the people's liberties while professing a tender solicitude for their welfare.

Pheasants Declared Plentiful This Year

With more pheasant hunters out, a considerable increase in number of birds spotted and a larger kill than in the opening days of last season, preliminary reports from conservation department field men indicate that the 1949 season should be the best in the last three years.

In the first two days of the season department observers contacted 1,386 hunters on farm lands who had bagged 1,552 pheasants, nearly a bird apiece. During the first three days of the 1948 season, field checkers contacted 681 hunters on private land who had shot 277 birds, or a little over one cock for every three hunters. On the basis of hunter report cards, the department's game division estimated 352,900 hunters killed a total of 633,900 pheasants in the 1948 season.

Most hunters told field men they saw more birds than last year, but dry field conditions in some sections hampered the use of dogs. Cocks were reported well colored and larger size this year.

Bumper Corn Crops Come From Hybrid Variety Research

Pioneer botanist W. J. Beal was thinking of higher corn yields when, in 1879, he first brushed pollen on a silk from the same corn plant. But little did he dream that his early work at the Michigan Agricultural College would lead to the tremendous corn crops of recent years.

This year's crop sets a new record. Michigan's crop of 80,730,000 bushels is 20 percent above last year, and 45 percent above the 1938-47 average.

Beal's was the first recognized work in developing hybrid corn and scientists have continued his search for higher yields through the years. When it became evident what hybrids offered, agricultural colleges and state extension services began "preaching the gospel" of hybrid corn.

Michigan farmers were quick to realize the benefits that hybrids bring. In 1938 only one-half on one percent of the state's corn was hybrids. This year more than 88 percent of the corn acreage was planted to hybrids. The average for the United States is about 78 percent.

Farmers estimate that they get about 22 percent greater yields from hybrids, when the growing season is favorable.

Despite the bumper crop in Michigan this year of almost 81 million bushels, research work continues to find new and better hybrids and hybrids that husk more cleanly with mechanical harvesters. Farm crop scientists at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station carry on numerous plant breeding projects to make the present-day hybrids even better. Each year they plant many acres of hybrids in all parts of the state and publish the results so that growers can compare yields and choose the hybrid best suited to their location.

The pioneer work of Professor Beal has continued to bring about the goal of more and better corn. When we see what has been done in the past half century, who can predict what will come from the researchers' greenhouses and fields in the next 50 years?

A four-pound bird furnishes about 2 1/2 cups of cooked meat for salad or creaming and stewing. Low, are available on the market the year around. Advise food specialists at Michigan State College.

Do you put up lunches with just what happens to be in the refrigerator to do, or really plan them so that they will be put to use? Remember to include fruit, bread, and vegetables, variety in sandwiches, and something hot in a thermos.

citizens for more and better telephone service.

This confidence has not been realized and the company has serious doubts as to its ability to continue its construction program at present levels.

Lacy cited the company's continued construction needs, pointing out that 19,000 families are waiting for service and 165,000 other families are waiting to change their service from party-line to individual-line operation. The 43 exchanges in which refunds would apply are Detroit, Albion, Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Bay City, Big Rapids, Benton Harbor, Birmingham, Cadillac, Calumet, Center Line, Cheboygan, Charlotte, Flint, Grand Rapids, Greenville, Hillsdale, Ionia, Iron Mountain, Ironwood, Iron River, Ishpeming, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Livonia, Marshall, Marshall Heights, Monroe, Mt. Clemens, Niles, Northville, Potosky, Pontiac, Port Huron, Roseville, Royal Oak, Saginaw, St. Joseph, Southfield, Wyandotte, and Ypsilanti.

The opinion was handed down as Michigan Bell's application for a rate increase was still pending.
