

Plan April 10, 11 Cancer Crusade

With the designation of April as Cancer Control month throughout the United States, more than 40 area women will conduct a house-to-house educational crusade Monday and Tuesday, April 10 and 11.

Local volunteers are among some 50,000 recruited by the Michigan Cancer Foundation (MCF) to call upon every home in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties during the two-day period.

In this attack on cancer, a disease which ranks second only to heart disease in its toll on human lives, volunteers will be armed only with literature. They will not be asking for money. The MCF is a Torch drive agency and as such receives $760,000 from the United Foundation to carry out its year-round program of research, service and education in the tri-county area.

During April the American Cancer society, not a Torch drive agency, will also be conducting a crusade. Theirs, however, will be a fund raising as well as an educational appeal.

Spearheading the local MCF canvass is Mrs. L. M. Eaton, Northville branch chairman of the foundation. Branch heads working with her are Mrs. Ernest Shave, educational secretary, and Mrs. Oscar Hammond, service secretary.

Area chairmen who will direct district volunteer teams are Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. C. C. Teasel, Mrs. Marshall Huff and Mrs. William E. Walker, Jr.

District leaders under Mrs. Eaton include: Mrs. George Weiss, Mrs. Richard Welch,

The club will convene next in a general meeting April 4 at 1 p.m. in Mrs. Dewey Horning's home at 43605 Nine Mile road.

Any women in need of a babysitter that afternoon should contact Mrs. George Merwin at FI 9-1469.

Cancer Workers Need White Sheets

Mrs. Oscar Hammond, service chairman for the local branch of the Michigan Cancer foundation, has issued a call for white sheets, which she said are very badly needed for making cancer pads.

Anyone wishing to contribute sheets may contact her at FI 9-1039 or leave the sheets at Freydl cleaners on Main street.

Spring sorority rushing ended at the University of Michigan earlier this month with one coed from Northville pledging. Janet M. Wilson, 21634 Connemara, pledged Chi Omega. Initiation to membership will be held later this spring.

She does look old enough to be a grandmother ... course, grandmas seem to be getting younger everyday.

But drawing up the bench before the piano in her small apartment, limbering up her fingers and striking up a rousing version of Hawaii's national anthem, who would guess that Mrs. Belle McColl is 88 years old. Today is her birthday.

A woman with boundless mental and physical vigor that belie her eighty-plus years, Belle still maintains a torrid pace that would leave women half her age pausing to catch their second wind.

"When I was young," recalls Mrs. McColl, "it was the bicycle age. Twice I rode 100 miles in one day. I can remember one occasion when some of my chums and I went on a picnic. They sent me to fill the water pail, and I did just that, riding back steering with one hand and balancing the full water pail with the other. Of course the land around St. John — that's where I was born — was as flat as a pancake. Another time I carried quilting frames to the church on my bicycle."

Two of Mrs. McColl's clubs — a Presbyterian Woman's association circle and the Tuesday Book club — remembered her birthday at small parties last week.

There was no retirement at 65 for the bespectacled, silver-haired lady. In fact, when her daughter, the late Mrs. Alex Lawrence, was writing a column for a Detroit daily newspaper, a tale of Mrs. McColl's favorite exercise jarred the city editor from his swivel chair.

"Jenette, my daughter, was writing about how some of the city's middle-age women got their exercise. One woman went to the YWCA regularly to swim,

... Things have changed a lot since I was a girl ...

... Live up to highest ideals, let the cards fall.

another rode her daughter's bike, and one ran up and down the alley behind her home every morning.

"When she showed the story to her editor," continued Mrs. McColl, "he was just flabbergasted that a middle-age woman would go out and run up and down the alley."

Was Mrs. McColl's daughter sure some matron scampered up and down the alley, queried the city editor.

"She was sure," chuckled Mrs. McColl, "she told him it was her mother."

That was when the McColls lived on Chicago boulevard in Detroit. Her husband at that time was an engineer with the American Blower company. He passed away in 1936.

The couple married after Mrs. McColl, an 1895 graduate of Smith college — had taught English a year at Olivet college.

"After graduation from college," she said, "I spent the winter in California with some of my chums. We called ourselves the Cosmopolites because each girl was from a different part of the country. When I got back, I took a teaching position at Olivet.

"I had an awfully silly idea then, that a girl should have a profession of her own. I was engaged to be married at the time. I took the job, nevertheless, and little good that one year meant to getting established in a profession."

Her career may have taken a backseat to marriage and family life, but Belle McColl plunged into a whirl of club work and travels and gained momentum as the years sped by.

Eventually — after her husband's death — she found her way to Northville. That was in 1942, when planning to spend a few days with her daughter, she came down with pneumonia. Her daughter went to Detroit, packed up her mother's belongings and Mrs. McColl's been in Northville ever since.

Bitten by the travel bug as a school girl — her family spent the summer of 1885 in the Sandwich Islands, better known now as the Hawaiian Islands — she's hopped through 48 states. Even here, age has been no drawback.

In her eighties she drove her old Ford, fondly called "Mutt", to Florida. Returning home, she dashed off a letter to the automobile club.

"No one is safer," wrote she, "than an old gray-haired woman in an old Ford with a Triple-A sticker on the window."

The letter was published, and a deluge of mail followed. How asked many letter writers, did she have courage to embark on such long trips all by herself? (She had taken solo jaunts to both coasts, too.) Her answer was simple —

"If I lived in any town between here and the Pacific Ocean, I wouldn't be afraid to drive to the next town. And that's all there is to it."

She continued with another example, "If you saw every thing you had to eat between now and next Christmas, you probably wouldn't think you could make it. But taking it one day at a time, it's no trouble at all."

Does Mrs. McColl have any advice for today's young girl? "I don't like to give advice, really. The world is so different from my girlhood world. Guess all I could say is live up to your highest ideals and then let the chips fall where they will."

Theatre Guild Players Step Beyond Footlights

Community service, far beyond presenting entertaining plays, is the program of the Plymouth Theatre guild (PTG), one of the oldest and most active community theatre groups in western Wayne County.

PTG is officially an activity of the Plymouth Community school district's Adult Education and Recreation department. This, however, has not limited PTG's activities. With the encouragement of School Superintendent Russell Isbister and Adult Education Director Herbert Woolweaver, PTG has worked with almost every neighboring community.

Northville has contributed to PTG's activities. A former Northville resident, Mrs. Dorothy Smith, has starred, produced and directed for PTG, as well as being a board member. Lillian Dickinson has been featured in many of PTG's plays, as well as working on their community activities. Latest of the joiners are Mrs. Alice Woodruff, and daughter Alice, who immediately plunged in with parts in PTG's last play, "Inherit the Wind".

The Plymouth Theatre guild is active in many areas. It has helped school productions in Plymouth and Livonia and aided community projects such as the symphony ballet and musicals, parades, Christmas lighting, and producing a minstrel show.

In addition, PTG actors and advisors have assisted such groups as the Garden City Footlighters, the Wayne Civic Players, and the Nankin Mills Players in organizing and presenting their first plays.

One of the major achievements in total community theater occurred when PTG brought together, for the first time, representatives of the Community Theater association of Michigan, and the Detroit Windsor Theatre council, at the recent convention in Plymouth.

Now that spring has just about sprung, Ernest (Ernie) and Mavetta Michell have their work cut out for them. The newcomers are about to match wits with the weatherman to see if they can get some landscaping done around their new home at 21805 Connemara drive. Actually, the Michells shouldn't have much trouble working the land around their new house. Before moving here, they ran a dairy farm in Marian, (near Cadillac) Michigan for 12 years.

Homeowners on Connemara since October, the couple has five children, Gloria, 14; Calvin, 11; Robyn, 6; Karen, 4; and Trudy, 18 months. They lived a year at 153 Fairbrook. Mr. Michell is a shift supervisor at the Consumers Power company compression plant on Napier road.

The family attends the First Baptist church.

SUGGESTION FOR A SONG

Recently in a book I was reading the author suggested a theme for the writing of a popular song. The theme was "I Like Me the Way I Am". It seems to describe well the spirit of the age, including a lot of people that go to church. This explains why so many people rebel against the preaching of the plain simple Gospel. Practically every verse on Salvation carries with it directly or indirectly the fact that man is not right with God and needs to be changed. For example, the verses that contain the words "saved" suggests that man is not saved as he is. The word "lost" shows him that in his present state as far as God and His Kingdom are concerned, that individual is a lost cause. The word "perish" suggests to his mind that his condition is to be considered serious. So men naturally rebel against the simplest truth found in the Gospel. The Holy Spirit however, acting in conjunction with the Gospel, shows men that though they may like themselves the way they are, God doesn't and certain changes must take place before they can live forever with Him. The theme of man's song must be changed in his heart to say, "Only to be what He wants me to be."

Novi Planning Out the Window?

To the Residents of Novi

Until about a week ago, I labored under the misconception that Novi was proceeding slowly and painfully, but in the direction of a plan for the orderly development of a desirable community. After attending the council meeting of March 20, I am fearful that the selfish interests, the misguided and the uninformed of the village are still attempting to stampede village development off the path of progress and into the quicksand of confusion. If we would listen to the voices at that council meeting, we might believe that the only important thing to be accomplished is to attract tax paying industry, to make jobs, to bring in new residents, to fill every available square inch of Novi. It must be done immediately, now, regardless of how it harms the people now living in Novi, regardless of what kind of a hodge-podge of residential, industrial and commercial construction may develop. Don't worry about planning, expansion must come now. All of this in the guise of progress. Nonsense!!! If this were the objective, we would have no need for protective zoning or a planning board. The real objective at the present time is to create an acceptable community plan which will guide the development of the village and regulate construction so that Novi will continue to be the kind of village that attracted all of us, an area that will attract new residents and industries, but under our conditions rather than conditions dictated by those who might want to come here. For those who preach the need for immediate expansion of Novi, I would like to point out several important facts. Business will not move to Novi just to help us pay our taxes. We must have something to offer. That something is suitable locations in a stable and well planned community. Those locations must also be agreeable to the residents who have already invested their money here. The taxes paid by new residents and business are not all additional revenue to us. Each additional building also brings in additional cost. This may be in the form of new schools, more police and fire protection, new road construction, or many other forms of governmental responsibility. This additional cost may in some cases be more than the additional tax monies that will be collected. Very few residents were attracted to Novi because it was an industrial area and offered jobs to them. If we think back about a year to the survey made by the Novi Citizens Development Committee, we will recall that the majority of those answering the questionnaire indicated that the quiet country and suburban residential atmosphere attracted them to Novi. The present attempt to fill Novi with indiscriminately located industry is not consistent with the indicated desires of a substantial number of the present village residents. Novi had a great deal of unfavorable publicity back when spot zoning was in vogue. Without a doubt that reputation has retarded village growth. This condition can only be overcome by following a pattern of orderly growth and a policy of regulated construction consistent with an approved plan and the desires of the present residents. The planning board is to be criticized for recommending approval of the spot rezoning of the two locations considered at the March 20 council meeting, particularly because these rezoning requests were not in accord with the tentative community plan supposedly being developed by that same planning board. I would like to commend the Village Council for resisting the frantic pressures exerted at the March 20 meeting. I am sure that their action will in the long run do more for the development of Novi by showing potential residents that their investment will be sound and that they will not be sold out everytime someone wants to make a fast buck at the expense of the community. Donald C. Young Jr.

Orchard Hills kindergartners Mike Spisak (left), Marie Svatora and Diane Christensen are at work preparing for the PTA's "Art Festival" April 4 in Orchard Hills school. Art work from all classes in the Novi and Orchard Hills school grades kindergarten through sixth will be on display. A panel discussion by Mrs. Alex Ramsey, Mrs. A. L. Deibel, Ron Smith and John MacBride will be a highlight. The public is invited.

Miss June King

Northville Junior High girls generally describe their daily 45 minutes in the gym class as "a blast." If this means what we commonly suppose it to mean — an explosion — then teenage talk scores higher in accuracy than is most commonly supposed. An explosion does take place in the gym.

Physical education director, girls' division, June King explains that girls who are timid in regular classrooms become boisterous bombshells in this athletic atmosphere. "Gym," she adds, "provides an outlet from the regular, more sedentary classroom."

She recalls one time when this enthusiasm was carried too far. It seems that the girls decided to convert the shower room into a Roman bath. With drains plugged, showers turned on full and a liberal amount of bubble bath added, the girls patiently waited for the water to rise. Miss King arrived to see them wallowing luxuriously in the steaming foam. Her sternest school-teacher look, reserved for just such skulduggery, soon became an uncontrollable grin.

Enthusiasm, nonetheless, is a necessary ingredient to education. Miss King encourages it, in part, by carefully explaining the purpose of the physical education program to the students. "Bulging bi-ceps are not the aim," she explains, much to the relief of her feminine charges. On the contrary, they learn that grace, poise and body control are stressed.

How these aims are incorporated into the program can be seen in the current unit on "stunts and tumbling." After an initial warm-up period, Miss King supervises the girls in doing some elaborate balancing acts. Here youngsters view an upside-down world while resting on hands and head, or they are precariously perched one on top of the other in what is known as the "high stand." When properly pieced together these various accomplishments become a human pyramid. Miss King is showing prudent concern for life and limb by waiting until her acrobats show further improvement. Last Tuesday, however, the girls saw how it should be done when Miss King arranged to have Eastern Michigan university stage a "clinic" at the Community center. It consisted of athletic codes putting on a demonstration of tumbling, gymnastics and trampoline.

Dancing is another activity designed with definite purposes in mind. Besides the obvious aims of grace, poise and physical fitness, Miss King points out that dancing fills the need for recreation and teaches proper behavior in social situations. She is waiting anxiously for folk and square dance records, which she feels are more suitable than ballads or rock-and-roll. Keeping her students in spins and needles is really only a minor responsibility. "We only have dancing about every third Friday," she sums up, "so I don't believe it's overdone."

June King's other interests center mainly around sports. She plays softball on the local women's team and handles a tennis racket quite satisfactorily. She also avidly follows all the spectator sports. Lately, however, she's taken a liking to photography and has acquired a great deal of skill with still and movie cameras.

She qualified for a B.S. at Eastern Michigan university where she majored in physical education. Other experiences that she brings to her vocation are: recreational assistant at the Wayne County Training School and summer sports instructor for the local recreational department.

With this background and ambitious plans for furthering her education, plus her talent for being liked by everybody, it's a sure bet that June King will go far in her career.

OUT OF THE PAST

ONE YEAR AGO

The 120-acre Northville Estates subdivision and 135 acres of Novi township were voted into the Northville city limits. Now it's up to the State Supreme Court to rule on the legality of the annexation which has disturbed Novi and is incorporating the court action.

The possibility of a shopping center for Novi at 10 Mile and Novi roads was looking better after a planning board meeting.

Burglars just don't give Al Harndon, owner of Al's Market on Grand River in Novi, any rest. His store was recently broken into for the tenth time in the last three-and-a-half years.

Northville and Novi telephone users will receive their new "area" white pages directory soon.

Roger Atchinson was elected the most valuable varsity basketball player by his teammates. He scored an average of 16 points. Steve Juday was chosen the most improved player.

Oakland County has advised Novi residents that it will start rebuilding Novi road within the next two or three months.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Two cars in Northville were stolen, stripped and abandoned in one night. Both were found, one at Haggerty and Seven Mile, the other in Redford township.

The need for a new fire engine was dramatized by members of the Northville Exchange Club when they rode through town on the ancient pumper the city now owns. The council has discussed including a new engine in their next budget.

The Oakland County superintendent explained the legal steps of consolidation at a meeting of the four school districts interested in forming the Novi school district. The four are Putnam, Chapman, East Novi and Novi.

Northville shoppers contributed $112 in the Easter Lily seal drive.

Ford Motor company announced the donation of 10 acres of land for the construction of two-and-a-half miles of drive on the Edward Hines route.

Mrs. Margaret Cordukes, of Clement road, celebrated her 87th birthday March 17.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Wayne County officials announced the purchase of land on Seven Mile road by the State for a mental hospital. The 290 acres was purchased at about $570 an acre.

Remodeling work on the Northville Drug is just about completed. The store was widened.

A new taxi service, known as the Veterans' Cab company, began operations in Northville recently.

In impressive ceremonies, the new pipe organ at the Methodist Church was dedicated. Mr. and Mrs. William Walker Jr., were the donors.

Northville now has a new, clean jail for its future tenants. Embarrassment some weeks ago when culprits walked right out of the cell prompted the speedy action for safer quarters.

TWENTY FIVE YEARS AGO

No bids were received by the council for the purchase of several self-liquidating revenue bonds which would cover $11,500 of the $20,900 needed for construction of the community water reservoir as a PWA project.

The school board had to amend a petition to the government for PWA funds for construction of additional classrooms when the grade school burned down January 13. The amended petition calls for funds for a new school building.

Use of the polygraph machine was shown to Exchange Club members by a state police officer at their regular meeting.

The high school girls basketball team will also be receiving "N" athletic letters this spring along with the boys.

From the News Around Northville column: L. V. Sonnenberg told a friend this week that he wished the person who stole the collar from his watchdog would come back and get the dog to go with it.

Mrs. Susie Seeley, 88, of Northville, and Charles Kent, 74, of Novi, passed away during the week.

Wins Honors at Houghton

Crispen N. Hammond of Northville is among 38 freshmen at Michigan Tech to achieve one of the highest scholastic honors possible for a freshman at the college, an invitation to join Phi Eta Sigma.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national honorary scholastic fraternity open to all male freshmen, who attain a minimum scholastic average of 3.5 out of a possible 4.0 during the first year or first quarter at college. Because the requirements are so high, only three to six per cent of the entire freshman class attain the honor each year. Initiation ceremonies will take place at the College in May.

Hammond is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Crispin M. Hammond, 47100 Timberlane. A 1960 graduate of Northville High School, he is a freshman majoring in mechanical engineering at Michigan Tech.

Easter Seal Returns Lagging

A review of the returns in the mail distribution of Easter Seals during the annual campaign for funds, now at its half-way point, shows that many local citizens have not yet responded to the appeal on behalf of crippled children and adults.

Totals to date are: Allen Park, $1385.35; Belleville, $474.43; Ecorse, $252; Flat Rock, $205.50; Garden City, $734.60; Gibraltar, $88; Grosse Ile, $488.86; Inkster-Dearborn Township, $1577.31; Lincoln Park, $1175.92; Livonia, $2113.49; Melvindale, $235; New Boston, $88; Northville, $931.40; Plymouth, $1427.50; Redford Township, $1,464.16; River Rouge, $271.63; Rockwood, $218.75; Romulus, $500.60; Southgate, $356.05; Taylor, $121; Wayne, $1215.20; Riverview, $45; Total — $15,367.75.

The local program operated from the Easter Seal Center serves the children and adults handicapped from any cause. It works closely with other agencies in the community helping people to reach existing resources, and setting up special services only when there is no other program already established to meet the need. The summer day camp for crippled children, classes and clubs for the adult handicapped, assistance with transportation to hospitals and clinics, loans of special equipment and assistance to those who cannot qualify for tax-supported services are included among the services administered directly by the Easter Seal Society of Western Wayne County.

The fund raising campaign continues through Easter Sunday. Chairman for the Northville drive is Fred Casterline. The annual drive is a project of the Northville Rotary Club.

Scout Drive Nears Quota

Northville is leading the Sunset district in collections for sustaining memberships in the annual drive to support the area Boy Scout program.

Over $600 of the $800 quota has been collected, reports Drive Chairman Charles McDonald. The drive ends in two weeks.

This year's chairman of the Sunset district is Philip Oglvie of Northville.
