Contract Snag Delays Scout Building Project

The city council postponed its choice of builders for the proposed new recreation building Monday night in an attempt to avoid possible delays once construction gets underway.

It indicated that the job would be awarded to the firm of Harley J. Cole and Son, low bidder, if Cole would be willing to sign a contract that stipulates "that delay due to use of non-union help cannot be considered justifiable cause for failure to complete the building on time."

Cole, a local contractor, was one of seven bidders for the city's new recreation building. His price was $25,878.56. Next lowest bid was submitted by the John N. Northrup Company, also a Northville builder, at $29,345.

Councilman Richard Ambler opened the discussion of bidders Monday night by asserting that it had been brought to his attention that the low bidder does not use union help. He cited the possibility of delay in construction of the building for this reason.

"Would you be willing to employ union labor and complete the building at the same price to avoid delay?" Ambler asked Cole. He further explained that he was merely interested in protecting the interests of the city and acknowledged that a variety of acts could occur that would justify delay. But he emphasized that the city should be protected if "the sole cause of delay is due to not using union help."

Cole answered that 75 percent of the work would be done by union labor. "Only some aspects of the job won't be performed by union men," Cole told the council.

He declined to indicate whether he would agree to such a contract. "I took the job at rock-bottom prices and plan to buy all the supplies possible locally. I bid with the idea that I would finish the job," Cole stated.

At one point Mayor A. M. Allen seemed inclined to accept this as a guarantee. "If Cole is willing and says he'll fulfill the job, that's all we can ask," he commented.

But later the mayor called for the attorney to draft a contract that would guard against delay because of a possible strike against the non-union workers.

City Manager Bruce Pott-hoff reported that it is not generally a requirement of municipalities that union labor be employed. But he said that the architect strongly urged this.

In his report to the council on the matter the manager noted that "the low bidder is confronted with a situation which may make it impossible for him to build for his bid price. Should this become a reality, the city would be in the position of having to change contractors at an increase in costs and considerable loss in time."

He urged consideration of the question before awarding the contract.

The council finally decided to delay awarding of the contract until next Monday night. City Attorney Philip Ogilvie was instructed to draft a contract and submit it to Cole.

It was indicated that the job would be Cole's if he would agree to the terms. Presumably, if Cole declines, the contract would be offered to Northville.

The building will be constructed on city-owned property on West Cady street adjoining the cemetery. It is colonial in design and will be a two-level building, 47 feet wide and 32 feet deep. It replaces the recreation-scout building once located on the corner of Dunlap and Hutton and sold by the city for development of the Kroger supermarket and drive-in bank.

P-TA Starts Action

'No College Vote Without Greater Local Pressure'

The question of whether or not Northville will ever become a part of the Northwest Wayne County Community College district depends upon the citizens of Northville.

These were the words of College President Eric Bradner this week when he reported to The Record that Northville petitioners seeking a vote to join the college district were in the hands of the college attorney and would probably stay there.

The community college president cited some complications in the proposed expansion of the district, but noted that the major obstacle was the failure of a representative group of people to show real interest and display concerted action.

Evidence that such an effort might be forthcoming appeared last Thursday evening at the first meeting of the Amerman school Parent-Teachers Association meeting.

A proposal that the group form a five-member study committee to work in conjunction with other P-TA's and consider the pros and cons of Northville joining the community college won approval of the members.

Eugene Cook, who serves with his wife as president of the Amerman P-TA, said a public meeting would be proposed at the conclusion of the study for a thorough airing of the subject.

Petitions signed by 98 residents of the Northville school district were submitted to the community college board of trustees last July.

Since then, the college board selected a 137-acre site at the southeast corner of Haggerty and Seven Mile roads as the proposed location of its $4 million facility.

It is "across the road" from Northville township. Ironically, it is located closer to the center of the community of Northville than any of the school districts which it will serve.

President Bradner reported this week that the college program is progressing rapidly. He reported that the board expected to advertise for sale of $2,435,000 in bonds for construction of initial facilities within a month.

Preliminary plans are scheduled for examination in three weeks, he said. It is anticipated that building bids will be awarded in April and that the college will be opened by September, 1964.

The college program is supported by a one mill levy, voted for 20 years, in the districts it serves. These districts include Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City and Clarenceville.

President Bradner said that one half of the mill levy will be used for construction and the other half for operation.

He noted that the laws governing the Northwest Wayne County Community College are new and will require some charges if expansion of the district is to take place. Under present law a school district can vote at one election to join the college district, but must then hold another election to decide upon the mill levy. He pointed out that this would present a problem should the joining district vote itself in and then defeat the millage measure.

The college president pointed to another problem for Northville.

Special state legislation is now being considered to permit Oakland county to form a community college district made up of the entire county — less Clarenceville, which is already part of the Northwest Wayne County district.

If the entire Northville district is sincerely interested in joining the Northwest Wayne County College, Bradner proposed that it should take steps in the near future to inform forces in Pontiac attempting to take this new legislation to the state.

Otherwise, the Northville district could find itself split, he pointed out.

The Northville school board has been cool to the community college idea. It has taken the position that its first consideration must be to the local school system. The board has stated that it believes its own system would be jeopardized through assistance to the community college plan. In short, the Northville board fears voters may short-change the local system if they must also pay tax dollars to the community college.

But Board President William Crump has stated that he would favor thorough study of the pros and cons and a public meeting on the issue.

100 Businessmen To Attend Local Industry Tribute

Roblee B. Martin, president of Dundee Cement Company and chairman of the Michigan Industrial Ambassadors, will address 100 Northville businessmen tonight at Meadowbrook Country Club.

The occasion is a testimonial dinner honoring Northville area industrialists. It is sponsored by the newly-formed Northville Area Development Corporation with the cooperation of the Northville Retail Merchants Association.

Honored guests will be owners or executives representing nine community enterprises. They include Consumers Power Company, Ford Motor Company, Foundry Plank and Equipment Company, Haller Inc., Mergraf Oil Products, Northville Downs, Northville Driving Club, Northville Laboratories and Warren Products.

Martin is a relative newcomer to Michigan, but has already gained recognition as one of the foremost boosters of the state.

A native of St. Louis, Missouri, Martin served as Director of Research and Development for Mississippi Lime company before joining Dundee as general manager and chief resident executive in 1959. He assumed his present title and was made a director of the company two years later.

Martin serves as a director of the Wabash Railroad and two of its subsidiary railroads; as Chairman of the Board of International Village, Inc.; and as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Detroit Institute of Technology.

Since his residence here, he has devoted much of his time to traveling about the country selling the advantages of Michigan through his work as Chairman of the Michigan Industrial Ambassadors, Chairman of Michigan's Special Commission on Industrial Legislation, as a Director of the State Chamber of Commerce and as a member of the Board of Governors of the Greater Michigan Foundation.

John Canterbury will serve as master of ceremonies, while C. A. Smith will introduce the honored guests. Both Canterbury and Smith are leaders in the local economic development program.

Walter Couse, a Northville resident and member of the state industrial ambassadors committee, will introduce the guest speaker.

Ed Erwins Named 'Family of the Year'

A Novi family has been chosen as the Oakland county farm bureau's "family of the year", the bureau announced this week.

The Edward Erwins, partners in the locally-prominent Erwin fruit operations, were named the county's "family of the year."

The appointment makes them contenders for the state wide "family of the year", to be selected before the state farm bureau convention in December.

The honors were officially conferred upon the Erwins at the annual Oakland county farm bureau association dinner held in Davisburg last night (Wednesday).

"I don't think anyone's ever been more surprised than we were when we found out about it," beamed Mrs. (Betty) Erwin earlier this week.

She explained that while they had known about their nomination for the honor by the Novi farm bureau, they never expected anything to come of it.

The award is made to families actively engaged in farming which have made outstanding contributions to agriculture and which maintain high personal standards.

The selection, which includes consideration of educational and religious activities, is made by the county farm bureau board of directors.

Each local bureau in the county nominates one of its member families for the title and submits an application detailing the reasons for the nomination.

After each county winner is selected, their names and the information about them is forwarded to the state board of directors for final selection of a state-wide "family of the year."

Erwin, his father James and brothers J. W. and Robert own and operate some 450 acres of farm lands, 350 acres of which produces fruit. Their orchards are located on Novi road, at both 10 and 12 Mile roads, and in South Lyon.

They also own two cold storage and packaging plants, the original one at the Novi and 10 Mile orchard and a larger facility just completed in South Lyon.

Erwin, who graduated from Northville High school, attended Michigan State University for two years before joining the Air Force, and the University of Michigan for a year while in the service.

He is a past chairman of the Novi farm bureau, and has been a discussion leader for several years. Mrs. Erwin was the Novi bureau's first secretary.

The Erwins are active members of the First Presbyterian church of Northville. Erwin is an elder of the church, and his wife serves as a Sunday school teacher and is active in the church women's association.

Erwin has been a director of the Michigan State Horticulture society, and is president of the Eastern Michigan Horticulture society. He was recently appointed to membership on the Detroit wholesale distribution center development committee.

He also served a three-year term on the Novi school board, and was a member of the East Novi school district board before the present district was formed.

The Erwins, who live at 40401 10 Mile road, have three children. Kathy, 13, is an eighth grader, while Patricia, 11, is in the sixth grade and Richard 8, is a third grader.

Registrations Rate High Here

If registrations are any indication, Northville should record one of its biggest votes for biennial state election this November.

Both city and township clerks report registration response is higher than normal.

In the city there have been 66 new registrations bringing the total number of registered voters in the city to 2315.

The township has had 58 new registrations for a total of 1627. Deadline for registration is Monday. Both offices will be open until 8 p.m. the final day of having to change con-

man. Ed Welch was master of ceremonies and C. D. Hill handled introductions. The dinner was held at St. Paul's Lutheran church. Pictured (l. to r.) are: Al Strath, Peggy Marr, Tom Brown, Pat Brandon, Larry Clark, Judy Nauman, Tucker Williams, Mary Welch, Fred Schwarze, Joe Miles, Carla Schwarze, Cathy Farley, Susan Rathburn, June Doan, C. Water, Sewer Fees Studied By Township

The Northville township board, vaded through an agenda top-heavy with technical data concerning proposed rates for water and sewer fees Tuesday night in a three-hour-long session.

The board approved the recommendation of its sewer and water commission to charge a fee of $4 and $5 per lot for reviewing of water and sewer plans, respectively.

It also decided to adopt a $400 connection fee temporarily until the township engineers and attorney can study the matter. The fee will be applied to a request for sewer tap-in by a restaurant on Northville road.

An additional charge of $52 times the number of seats is applied to restaurant connection fees.

In other business the board heard a request from residents of Vesta Lane in Taft Colony subdivision to change the name of the street to Woodhill road.

The petition was signed by all property owners on the short street. It pointed out that it is difficult to find because it is actually a continuation of Wood hill.

The board agreed and promised to turn the request over to the county road commission for action.

Supervisor George Clark also reported that the city of Plymouth had agreed to supply two subdivisions in Northville township with water from a city of Plymouth line that runs through the proposed developments.

The board discussed what manner of procedure to follow in the event the subdivisions do exercise their right to use the water.

City Attorney James Littell said that a study of the township water ordinance would be necessary to determine if the township could permit direct sale of the water by Plymouth to the residents, or whether it would be necessary for the township to act as agent.

16 NEW VOTERS were honored last week at the 22nd annual Citizenship Dinner sponsored by the Northville Coordinating Council and the Optimist Club. The new citizens heard Wayne County Probate Judge Ira Kaufman in an address outlining goals for life and how they may be accomplished. They were presented with copies of the United States constitution by the Sarah Ann Cochrane chapter of D.A.R. by Mrs. Virginia Bake and given certificates of recognition by Judge Kauf-

What to do with 'left-over' baked ham is often a problem to the homemaker who is tired of serving ham and scalloped potatoes, ham and eggs and ham salad to her family. Offering a new variation for left-over ham is this week's guest recipe contributor, Mrs. William Lemon, Jr., 557 Langfield.

Mother of two, Cathy, 6, and David, 3, Mrs. Lemon says this dish is a special favorite with her husband.

GOLDEN HAM CASSEROLE

Fill almost full a shallow baking dish with slices of baked ham.

Cover ham with sliced pineapple rings from large size can, reserving juice to pour over top.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 45-60 minutes.

Since the baked ham shrinks some, Mrs. Lemon suggests cutting a generous amount of ham.

BLUEBERRY BOY BAIT

Add to first mix.
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 egg yolks, unbeaten
1 cup milk

Beat three minutes in electric mixer on medium speed or by hand 150 strokes.

Beat two egg whites until stiff but not dry and add to cake mix.

Pour batter into greased and floured 13 x 9 x 2 cake pan. Pour evenly over top, 1 cup blueberries. Lastly, sprinkle 1/4 cup crumb mix over all.

Bake at 350 degree oven for 40-50 minutes.

Local Boy Scouts to Participate In Annual Star-Pac-Camp-O-Ree

The Sunset District, Detroit Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold a Star-Pac-Camp-O-Ree at Kensington Metro Park on October 12, 13, and 14, 1962.

Scouts from every troop in the district are making plans to attend and compete, not only in Scouting skills, but also in physical fitness contests in keeping with the wishes of President Kennedy to build up our American youth.

In excess of 1000 Scouts and Scouters from the following areas in the Sunset District are expected to attend: Wayne, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Plymouth and Northville.

All boys attending the Camporee will be given patches, and in addition, ribbons will be awarded to patrols for the best campcraft, cooking and patrol spirit.

The Scouts will compete against each other in all events on Saturday morning, while the afternoon will be devoted to a trail hike.

A spectacular campfire and program is planned for Saturday evening, followed by camping out under the stars for the rest of the night.

Visitors are especially welcome, and we hope to see a large group of relatives and friends out to watch "Scouting in Action". Don't forget, these boys are the Leaders of tomorrow.

Northville will be represented by Troop No. 731 of the Methodist church under the leadership of Ray Gregersen, Claude Morgan, Ed Frounfelter and Roger Harrison and by Troop No. 755 of the Presbyterian church under the leadership of Frank Oglesby, Dick Kerozek, John Beerbower and Steve Evans.

Cus Hammond of Northville will be in charge of registration at the Camporee.

LET'S TALK CARS...

THE BARGAIN CORNER

Of the two principle things to be considered in arriving at the market value of a used car — age and condition — age usually has the most influence. The depreciating effect of age keeps chipping away at the car's market price year after year until it reaches a point where it levels off and condition then becomes the most important.

A car that has reached this point (from about 1956 back) will depreciate very little from there on, but will last many years more if it is properly maintained. Proof of this is that there are still well over a million cars on the roads of this continent that were made BEFORE the Second World War. They are used as a second car around the house or by the youngsters in the family. A few are the sole family transportation still.

When we take in cars of this vintage, we think twice before reconditioning them because the market price they can ultimately bring is limited. Mostly we sell them near their wholesale price in "as traded" condition.

If looked after by a mechanically-minded driver, they will supply their owner with reliable transportation at not much more than the cost of a bicycle. And that's more than you can say for a limousine!

And speaking of bargains, we still have 14 new 1962 Fords being offered at very attractive prices with or without trades. Contact Grant Howard or Gordon Bunn for information of the models still available.

Mustangs 'Make Hay' with Holly, 33-14

It was Joe Hay night last Friday as the Northville Mustang halfback led his teammates to a solid 33-14 victory over Wayne-Oakland league opponent Holly.

Hay scored four TD's, kicked three extra points and continually figured in defensive measures which stymied the Holly Broncos' usually-ground-gaining backfield.

The Mustangs scored early in the game on a hook-and-lateral pass play from Quarterback Craig Bell to End Don Biery, who pitched to Halfback Tom Swiss. The speedy halfback carried from Holly's 45 for the score.

Northville had taken possession of the ball after a Holly fumble when the game was just five plays old.

The Broncos moved the ball back to their own 49 yard line after the first score, but the Mustang defense forced them to punt midway through the first quarter. Hay, racing in from his linebacker spot, blocked the kick and then picked up the loose ball, trotting 49 yards for the second Northville TD.

The defensive eleven once more forced a Holly fourth down punt, and the rest of the quarter was consumed by a Mustang march from their own 40 to the Holly 10. Northville was unable to make a first down inside the Holly 10, and the Broncos took possession of the ball as the second quarter opened.

Unable to move, Holly punted just four plays later and Northville took over on the Redskin 38. The Mustangs moved to the 12 yard line, but were once more unable to make an inside-the-10 first down.

The defensive squad contained Holly's play attempts, forcing a fourth punt. Taking the ball on the Holly 34, Northville marched in five plays to another tally, with Hay carrying in a dive from the four yard line.

Holly moved from its own 46 to the Northville 32, where defensive Halfback John Mach intercepted a Bronco pass. The first half ended before another play was started.

Defense and penalties told the story in the third quarter, when Holly gained only 20 yards rushing and lost 19. It also saw Northville march against the Bronco goal twice, one TD nullified by a Mustang penalty.

Northville received Holly's kickoff on the Mustang 40 and moved in four plays to the Holly 33. Bell once more connected with Biery, who dashed 30 yards to the goal line. But the play was called back because of a penalty and the Mustangs started once more from their own 43.

Hay carried three times for 21 yards, with Swiss making up the difference to the Holly two-foot line. Hay once more crashed through the line for a Northville score.

With five minutes left in the quarter, Holly took possession on its own 41 and lost ground to its 36. But a third down penalty gave the Broncos possession on the Northville 44 and four more cracks at the Mustang line.

Holly lost ground to the Northville 47 and was forced to punt, but a roughing-the-kicker penalty gave the Broncos another automatic first on the Mustang 29.

They once more lost yardage, and a Mustang penalty once more provided an out, and Holly held possession on the Northville 20. Three plays later they had moved to the Northville 12, and the third quarter had ended.

Two dives by Bronco Halfback Larry Wood gave Holly its first score against Northville. And with the final stanza just underway, the Mustangs led 26-7.

Northville then controlled the ball until midway in the fourth quarter, when the Mustangs added their final score. Taking possession on their own 25, the local gridders marched down field for the touchdown in 10 plays.

Hay, who took Bell's pass and dashed from the 16 into the endzone, also figured in this long drive. He and Swiss carried to the Holly 30, where Bell passed to Biery to move to the 16 and set up the TD.

Holly fumbled the kickoff, and defensive guard Tim Krug recovered for Northville. But the Mustang second string failed to capitalize on the opportunity, and the Broncos took over on the Northville 48.

In a 10-play drive, Holly moved in for its second score, while Mustang Coach Ron Horwath's reserve defenders tried in vain to stave off the attack.

The younger varsity gridders had only one minute to move the ball, and were able to get off only four plays before the final gun sounded.

Horwath, whose charges have now won two league contests but lost their extra-league opener against Plymouth, praised his defensive squad after Friday's game.

He pointed out that while the Mustang offense gained 242 yards on the ground and 96 in the air, the defenders held Holly to 151 rushing and only four yards passing.

He also singled out Bell, who connected for seven of 11 pass attempts for a total of 96 yards, and Hay, who gained 58 yards rushing besides his defending and 49-yard blocked punt return.

Other Mustangs Horwath voiced praise for included Dave Jerome, who took over Rick Rebitzke's inside linebacker spot after the latter's knee injury the previous week, and Doug Clark, who moved into the tackle hole vacated by Jerome.

The coach reported this week that doctors say Rebitzke will be unable to play the rest of this season. The senior defender has a slow-healing injury that has resulted in water on the knee.

"If we can keep improving as we have over the past three games," Horwath predicted, "we'll really hurt the other league clubs."

He'll have a chance to see whether the Mustangs have improved enough this Friday when they travel to Bloomfield Hills for their only afternoon game of the season.

Although Northville is defending league champion, Bloomfield Hills and West Bloomfield have been rated as the teams to beat in the league.

Thus far, Northville and the two Bloomfield area clubs are the only unbeaten squads in the league.

"But Friday's contest is likely to be our toughest," Horwath said.

Bloomfield Hills outweighs the Mustangs about 30 pounds a man on the line, he said, and has Roger Stewart, one of the state's highest scoring halfbacks last season, still in the line-up. They also enjoy the home field advantage.

"But there's always Northville's traditional defeat of Bloomfield on their own field when they've gone undefeated during the rest of the season," the coach mused.

In other Wayne-Oakland league action last Friday, Bloomfield Hills took the measure of Brighton 31-19, West Bloomfield rolled over Clarenceville 39-6 and Milford smashed Clarkston 26-6.

SCOREKEEPER — that's a job for Northville Mustang Halfback Joe Hay, who last week piled up 27 of the local eleven's 33 points in a 33-14 rout of the Holly Broncos. Here he carries the payload in one of the many plays that helped Northville build up a two-to-one yardage record over Holly.

Upsets Top First Football Contest

The arm chair quarterbacks were caught off guard in the season's first football contest.

It was a week for upsets and the best that any of the contestants could do was pick 16 of the 20 winners.

First prize of $15 went to Steve Ogelsby, a 13-year-old eighth grader in Northville junior high school. Second place and $10 was won by Don Lahr, 407 North Center street, a salesman for a food company.

Both Steve and Lahr missed four games, but the youngster was closer in picking the score of the Detroit Lions-Baltimore Colts game.

Nearly every contestant missed on the Michigan and Michigan State upsets. And the Minnesota-Missouri tie game was scored as a miss for all contestants.

(Incidentally, the contest judges

note that a contestant may predict a tie game if he wishes, merely by circling both teams or writing the word "tie" over the two teams.)

Other frequently missed

games were the Denver win over New York in the National Football League and the Auburn win over Tennessee.

But this is another week and another opportunity to win

cash prizes appears on the back page of section three.

And just to show you that we want to help, here's a few inside tips on the outcome of this week's action: Northville to squeeze by Bloomfield Hills;

Army to slap Michigan; Purdue to down Notre Dame; and don't miss this — Detroit over

Green Bay by a score of 27-17.

N. Runners Lose At Cross Country

As every golfer knows, the highest score doesn't always indicate the winner.

And while the Northville Mustang gridders were racking up game-winning high scores against Holly last week, the cross country squad sadly watched its scores mount into meet losses.

The harriers lost their second of three contests last Thursday as Riverside placed more men sooner to undercut them

23-30.

Gary Davis showed the way for Northville and copped a second place for the two-mile run. Bill Adams followed Davis, but ended up in fifth place for the meet.

Chuck Annett grabbed off

Adams and Annett were one and two men for Northville, and also held down the first two places in the meet. Stem-berger ended up in the seventh slot, while Russ Strath came in 10th and Peterson finished 11th.

Coach Chuck Yahne, who expressed optimism at the start of the season, said that despite the losses, his charge are continuing to improve in performance.

"I still expect to do better than last year when we go to the league meet October 24," he said Northville took fifth place in the Wayne-Oakland league cross country meet held last year.

The harriers were slated to meet Willow Run last night

(Wednesday), and will host

Clarenceville today. Starting time is four o'clock in Cass

Benton park.

In Justice Court

Two youths paid a total of $70 in Novi Justice of the Peace court last week for violations involving alcohol and cars. Walter H. Zadrozny, 18, of Farmington, and James R. Wickline, 20, of Pontiac both pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of alcoholic beverages. Justice Robert K. Anderson ordered Wickline to pay $35 in fines and court costs for the alcohol charge, and Zadrozny $25. He also fined Zadrozny $10 after he pleaded guilty to having a defective vehicle. Novi police officers reported that the car in which the two were riding had defective lights, doors, exhaust and several other parts in need of repair.

Faces Reckless Driving Charge

A reckless driving charge awaits James D. Robinson, 22, of Plymouth after he is released from Wayne County General hospital. Robinson was charged with striking a car driven by John Hlohinec, 529 Randolph, as he was leaving the A & P parking lot on Hulton street Saturday. Robinson was taken to St. Mary hospital for severe cuts on the right forearm. Later he was transferred to Wayne County General. He is scheduled to appear before Justice court here.

Do Friends Mumble? Better Check Hearing

Have you noticed that everyone else seems to be mumbling lately? That almost no one talks loud enough over the telephone? That you are asking your family and friends to repeat everything they say to you?

It's possible that your hearing is beginning to fade. Sometimes loss of hearing is so gradual that the victim is almost the last person to realize it. If you suspect that your hearing is fading somewhat, see your doctor. There are several things he can do: (1) find the extent and cause of hearing loss, (2) decide whether medicinal or other treatment is necessary, (3) establish whether surgery is necessary, (4) check on the possibility of a hearing aid, and (5) determine whether a study of lipreading will help.

Hearing loss may be due only to impacted wax that can be removed in a few minutes. Or there may be an infection that can be treated. A cold sometimes will bring temporary reduction in hearing that goes away when the cold subsides. In some cases surgery can open a window through the bony wall of the middle ear. However, this route is not applicable for all. Your ear doctor can determine what's best for you. He may decide that no treatment will help and refer you to a hearing center, where you can try out various hearing aids to find the one best

St. Mary Opens Unit For Physical Therapy

Sister Mary Columbine, administrator of St. Mary hospital, Livonia, has announced the opening of the Physical Therapy Department. The department is under the supervision of Sister Mary Colette, CSSF. Sister Mary Colette received her Bachelor of Science Degree from Madonna College and a Bachelor of Science Degree with a major in physical therapy from New York university. Sister has taken her field work and professional training at St. Vincent's Hospital, Montrose V.A., Bellevue, and the prominent Rusk Institute in New York City.

The department will render services to all hospital patients as well as to patients in the five communities (Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Farmington, and Redford Township) on outpatient basis, on the presentation of a doctor's prescription for treatment.

Besides physical therapy treatments such as: massage, hydrotherapy, therapeutic exercises, radiation therapy and electro-therapy, muscle strength tests and surveys are also available.

Board Starts Fall Meetings

The Novi board of commerce will hold its first general membership meeting of the fall tonight (Thursday), board Secretary John Eskro announced this week.

He said the dinner meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the Saratoga Farms restaurant. He urged all members and interested persons to attend.

Library Friends Collect $300

With about half the solicitors reporting so far, the Novi Friends of the Library has collected about $300 and signed up some 200 new members, says Mrs. Vincent Miklas, membership drive chairman.

She said indications are that donations for the library may climb to $800 or more by the time final tabulations are made. And some of the Friends of the Library representatives are still knocking on doors, Mrs. Miklas added.

The solicitors are contacting persons who were absent during the regular two-week campaign which ended last Saturday, she said, as well as the homes they were unable to contact.

Novi business places are now being contacted by members of the library board. The Friends of the Library did not attempt to solicit from the business places.

Mrs. Miklas said anyone who is not contacted but wishes to donate or join the Friends of the Library may do so by coming to the group's first official meeting next Monday night.

The organizational meeting, for election of officers and conducting of business, will be held at 8 p.m. in the community building. Mrs. Miklas said those who can't attend may donate by mailing their check to the library.

The library board announced this week that the feature film it plans to present next Thursday afternoon at the community building will be "The Fuller Brush Man" starring Red Skelton. The film will begin at 2 p.m.

Novi Has $2,242 U. F. Drive Quota

The Novi quota in the 1962 Torch Drive will be $2,242, as expected to come from business establishments in the community, 43461 Coltsford, division-unity, and $1,732 from a house-to-house canvass.

Funds raised in Novi will go towards meeting the Oakland county townships regional quota of $38,595.

This figure is part of the total Oakland county quota of $328,909. This is made up of $114,792 for the southern Oakland county region, $176,544 for Birmingham - Bloomfield - Franklin region, and $38,595 for the Oakland county townships region. All of Oakland county except nine townships is included in the Torch Drive.

The Torch Drive in Oakland county is headed for the third successive year by Mrs. Clyde C. Bennett, Jr., of 1274 Westwood, Birmingham, county chairman.

The southern Oakland region is headed by two co-chairmen, Mrs. W. L. McCracken, 26899 Meadowlark, Southfield, and Mrs. Harry Tillotson, 2321 Benjamin, Royal Oak. Divisional chairmen have been named in each community.

Chairman for Birmingham-Bloomfield-Franklin region is Mrs. Charles C. Hilton, 1241 Westwood, Birmingham. Mrs. Arthur Mazur, 22860 Manning, Farmington, and Mrs. Werner Hoy, 11291 Bigelow road, Davisburg are co-chairmen for the Oakland townships region.

Regional chairmen have named divisional chairmen in each community. They in turn have appointed area chairmen, who have recruited district chairmen, who are in direct charge of volunteer solicitors who call on neighbors.

In most communities separate teams of volunteers, often business and professional men, of the community, have been selected to solicit small business and industry.

The 1962 Torch Drive will be striving for the highest goal ever set for a community-wide drive of this kind. The money obtained will be used to finance the 1963 budgets of 195 local, state, and national health and community services.

43 Were Aboard This Bus

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

That's how officials termed the accident in Hamburg, west of Whitmore Lake, last Friday morning when a school bus carrying 42 youngsters dropped eight feet to the Huron river as a 67-year-old bridge collapsed. Witnesses said the bus started to tip when one end of the steel bridge started to give way, but it righted itself when the opposite end broke loose and the bridge dropped flat into the water. Bus Driver David Fisher, who was praised for the manner in which he handled the frightened children and kept them from panicking, said the youngsters "got off the bus just as nice as you could ask—just like they were unloading at school." Another bus driver helped Fisher lift the children up the bridge embankment.

Only two children were injured and these only slightly. Angry Hamburg township residents and officials launched a storm of protests at Livingston county officials for not replacing the old structure. Road officials pointed out that there has been no money for replacement.

FOUR NEW TESTAMENT SUPPERS"

San Diego, California — Midshipman First Class Franklyn P. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myrn R. Smith of 20114 Woodhill, participated in four weeks training in August, aboard the aircraft carrier USS Ticonderoga, operating from San Diego, California.

The summer training cruise provided him with an opportunity to learn what it is like to work and live aboard a ship for an extended period of time.

It will aid him in selecting a career field when he is commissioned as a naval officer.

While aboard the Ticonderoga, he studied aircraft operations, seamanship, gunnery and other naval subjects.

JET AGE CONTEST — An unusual contest was launched last week Sunday by the Federated Church Sunday School appropriately entitled, "Race for Space". The six-week contest is aimed at increasing Sunday School enrollment and attendance at worship services at the Salem church. Scores of helium-filled balloons were launched publicizing the event. And a unique space board, showing the week-to-week progress of Sunday School groups competing in the contest has been erected. Each time a group boosts its rocket ship to the top of the space board, it sets in motion a motor driven satellite. Shown with the space board above are Pastor Elwood Chipchase and Sunday School Superintendent Frank Davis.

Safety Awards Won by Local Grade Schools

IT WAS A BUSY DAY Thursday for Northville Police Chief Eugene King. He personally distributed the green safety banners for permanent display in each of Northville's four elementary schools. He's shown in the picture above making the presentation to Safety Patrol Lieutenants Charles Keegan and Carl Bechamp at Our Lady of Victory, while members of the school's safety patrol force look on.

AT ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN school Earl Devereaux accepts the banner on behalf of his classmates.

AT AMERMAN SCHOOL all the safety patrol members watched from the stage while the presentation was made to: (l-r) Lt. Colleen Delbert and Capt. Cindy Baldwin, service girls; Teacher Mrs. Frances Kontos, sponsor; Principal Raymond Spear and Patrol Captains Scott Butler and John Gustaf.

Recognition of a perfect safety record for the past school year made Friday a banner day for pupils of four Northville schools.

In separate presentation ceremonies, representatives at Amerman, Main street, St. Paul's Lutheran and Our Lady of Victory schools accepted Green Pennants from Chief of Police Eugene King.

The Green Pennant program, sponsored by the Detroit News, is supervised by the Northville Police Department under the direction of Chief King.

Working in conjunction with the program, King visits kindergarten through sixth grade classrooms each fall stressing the importance of safety to the youngsters.

As a memento and a reminder to young audience is given a school calendar (September-August). Contributed by four local merchants, the calendar features a safety scene the children can color.

He follows up his remarks with another talk on summer safety at the close of the school term.

Semi-annually he reaches nearly 1500 children.

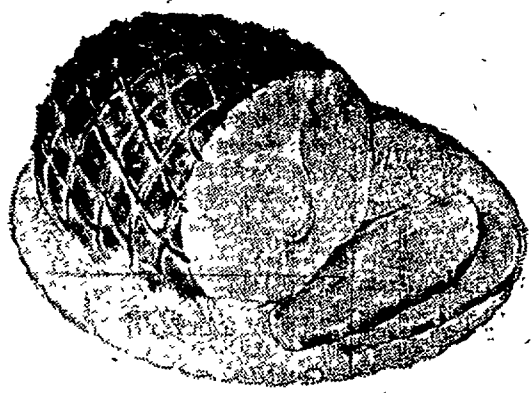

The green flags flying beneath the American flags at the city's four elementary schools are positive proof that King's program is a success.

In Proposed Constitution

Greater Flexibility Gained in Financing

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 9 in a series about the proposed new Michigan Constitution. No. 10 appears below.

More flexibility in state and local financing is accomplished by the changes recommended by the convention in Article IX of Michigan's proposed constitution. The Article deals with finance and taxation.

The basic 15-mill tax limit on property is retained ($15 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation). The only exceptions are for extra voted millage and special provisions of local charters.

If the voters of a county approve, separate and fixed limits for the county, townships and school districts may be established so long as the total does not exceed 18 mills. If this option were exercised by the voters of the county, the tax allocation board would be eliminated.

If voters who are also property owners give majority approval the total limit could go to 50 mills for no longer than bonds, however, are given unlimited tax support.

The new document also provides that after January 1, 1966, real and personal property cannot be assessed at more than 50 per cent of true cash value. The present constitution specifies that assessments are to be at full cash value but, as a matter of practice, this provision has not been effective. The new provision would give the legislature authority to determine true cash value and the proportion, up to 50 per cent at which such property is to be assessed.

Property owned and occupied by non-profit religious or educational organizations, and used exclusively for those purposes, as defined by law, would be exempt from property taxes. This writes into the constitution exemptions which are presently provided by statute in Michigan.

Article IX prohibits the imposition of an income tax, graduated as to rate or base, by the state or any of its political subdivisions. It would permit, however, the levy of a flat-rate income tax.

The sales tax limit continues at 4 per cent. Under the new language of the proposed document, however, the legislature could by majority vote eliminate items covered by the present sales tax, if it so desired. It could also include items presently exempted. The 4 per cent rate could be reduced if the legislature authorized such a change.

The present earmarking ratio of sales tax funds for local government and schools is preserved — half to schools; one-eighth to townships, cities and villages, according to population.

The new constitution provides for the establishment of a School Aid Fund exclusively for public education and school employees' retirement systems. One-half of all sales taxes and other taxes, as provided by law, would be dedicated to this fund. The primary school interest fund, which now provides only $82 million of the annual school aid outlay of more than $348 million, would be abolished.

Provision is made in Article IX for an elastic borrowing limit to meet current state obligations, replacing the present archaic debt ceiling of $250,000. The new limit would be 15 per cent of the undedicated revenues of the preceding fiscal year (about $70 million). The debt would have to be repaid entirely by the end of the year in which the borrowing was made.

While highway motor fuel and weight taxes would continue to be earmarked for highway purposes under the terms of the new document, the legislature is given the authority to define "highway purposes". Conceivably, the legislature might find that highway police patrols, for example, qualified for such moneys. The present state highway commissioner opposes this possible interpretation, although it is a practice in some states.

Another new provision in the Article specifies that accrued pension and retirement benefits would be contractual obligations of the state which could not be diminished or impaired. Such obligations would have to be funded during the year in which they arise.

Few Changes Made In Civil Service Law

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 10 in a series about the proposed new Michigan Constitution. Additional articles will appear in subsequent weeks.

While the state civil service system was the subject of detailed study and lengthy deliberation in committee and convention sessions, few changes were made in the original civil service amendment which was voted into the present constitution by the people of Michigan in 1940.

Considered by a majority of the delegates as improvements in the provisions governing civil service are proposed changes which would:

1. Allow administrative control of the creation or abolition of positions for reasons of efficiency and with the employee's right of appeal to the civil service commission clearly stated.

2. Give the legislature some control over the total level of state payroll by allowing legislative rejection or reduction of pay raises ordered by the commission, but only by an extraordinary (two-thirds) vote, and prohibiting legislative reductions below compensation rates then in effect.

The legislature is not empowered, however, to change pay differentials established by the commission.

The civil service section occupies the major part of Article XI which is concerned with Public Officers and Employment. The civil service provisions are designed to continue Michigan's national leadership among states in public personnel practice, and to foster and encourage a career service in state government.

The bipartisan civil service commission continues as at present. New language in the proposed revision, however, prevents the classification of the chief executive officer of boards and commissions and reserves these positions for political appointment without tenure.

Eight exempt positions among policy personnel are permitted in the governor's office. This simply gives constitutional sanction to a practice which has become customary. The revision also provides for additional exempt policy positions in other principal state departments.

Another revision provides that increases in compensation for civil service employees can be authorized by the commission only at the start of a fiscal year & after prior notice to the governor so he can accommodate the increases in the budget he submits to the legislature. Power is given to the legislature, however, to waive such notice and permit increases at a time other than the beginning of the fiscal year.

The present legislative appropriation to the commission of one per cent of the aggregate payroll of the classified service for the past year is continued. It is provided, however, that within six months after the end of each fiscal year the commission must return to the state treasury funds not spent during that year.

The commission is directed to report on its expenditures at least annually to the governor and the legislature and will be subject to audit procedures prescribed by the legislature.

A new section in Article XI permits the establishment of civil service merit systems in other political subdivisions of the state, providing a majority of the voters of the unit affected approve. Teachers under contract or tenure are excluded in the provision.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

Has Northville become a "speed trap"?

Positively no, say the city manager and police chief.

But some businessmen, and even an elected official or two, might take exception to this.

"The issue has become a matter of concern to several merchants who believe their business is being hurt by the increased issuance of speeding tickets in the city.

It even rated mention by the retail merchants association at its last meeting — and some talk of a petition of protest.

The emphasis on speed laws within the city limits came about as the result of the recent acquisition of radar equipment.

Until police had this automatic timing device it was extremely difficult to prove that a motorist was violating the speed law. Now it is simple, and the proof remains on the clocking device for the violator to see.

As a consequence, the issuance of speeding tickets within the city has doubled in recent weeks.

Why the sudden emphasis on speed in Northville? Did the police install radar just to go out and ticket every motorist driving through town a few miles-per-hour over the speed limit?

The fact is that great pressure was exerted upon the city to enforce its speed laws. And police noted the difficulty of such an assignment without proper equipment.

Recent petitions criticizing the truck traffic also called for enforcement of speed laws.

In other words, citizens of the community have complained that the speeds with which many motorists drive through town constitute a dangerous condition for pedestrians.

With the acquisition of radar a definite program was outlined for introduction and eventual enforcement. Motorists were warned by signs at the city limits. For several days they were merely stopped and warned. Still later, courtesy tickets were issued.

Then came the enforcement and a rash of tickets followed by a near equal number of complaints.

It's also noteworthy that many residents along Fairbrook, Randolph and other well-traveled streets have acknowledged the change. They think life and limb are safer.

It would appear that police have followed a moderate route in bringing about enforcement of speed laws. In addition to the step-by-step introduction of the timing system as noted above, they have been instructed to issue tickets only when speed limits are exceeded by 10 m.p.h. and to move on to another area of the city after issuing a ticket to avoid the impression of creating a "speed trap."

It has been stated that police catch the "innocent violator" — one who slips momentarily and exceeds the limit — and permit the flagrant speeder to get away. "We're not after the businessman returning home from work — we want the real speeder," these critics argue.

The trouble is the radar cannot distinguish between the "innocent and the guilty." It does not recognize residence from outsider. It can't separate customer from non-customer.

It only registers speed.

And in this dangerous business — where lives rather than dollars are concerned — this is as it should be.

In many instances it remains for the officer to judge when circumstances dictate a warning rather than a ticket. But these are rare — and can result in sensitive problems.

The only true solution lies with the motorist himself and his alertness to the law. This is his responsibility — a set of double standards for enforcement is simply unworkable.

One improvement the city could make to assist the motorist in this responsibility is posting of speed limits. Mayor A. M. Allen called for this Monday night while noting that the Eight Mile road cut-off, Hines drive and several other city streets are not posted. "How does the motorist know the limit? It could be 65," the mayor pointed out.

In most instances the county and state police must establish limits on these unposted roads.

The city manager promised prompt attention.

Selecting Growth Stock

Babson Park, Mass., There are three prominent classes of stocks being talked about today: (1) The old-line investment stocks, included primarily the Dow-Jones Industrial Average's thirty stocks; (2) the speculative electronics stocks; and (3) a class which I consider "growth" stocks, which group I would like to discuss today.

What is a Growth Stock?

Unfortunately, the general public tends to misunderstand the term "growth." As a result, it is often misused. For example, many people confuse real growth issues with the more transitory glamor situations. The sad part of it is that the growth label is most often misapplied during the latter stages of a bull market when stocks are overpriced. A real growth stock is one which has a proven record of increasing profits, sales, and dividend payments. Let me stress that true growth must include rising trends in both sales and profits. An increase in sales without a commensurate rise in profits is usually a sign of keen competition, cost squeeze, and/or inefficient management.

Dear Dr. Mudd:

I have been married six years and I don't know how much longer I can go on. If it weren't for my son, now age 3, I think I should have left my husband long ago. I was perfectly happy, right after I got married. My husband was warm and affectionate and truly loving.

I can't be sure but as much as I can remember, it was three or four months after we came back from our honeymoon that everything seemed to change. My husband no longer complimented me on my looks or my sewing, the way he had before. He seemed to become cold and indifferent to me. I spoke to him about it but he always accused me of being a "hopeless romantic." He wouldn't talk to me the way he had before and I began to feel he was shoving me out of his life.

At first I made allowances for it. He was working and going to school at night and I thought that this just made him too tired to pay much attention to me. I used to dream how it would be when he got his degree and started his law practice. I'd get frustrated and angry and I'd try to control my feelings and would leave the house and go for walks, or if I couldn't get to sleep I'd take a sleeping pill.

After the baby came I was better. I had something to do besides sit around and read magazines, while he was studying or going to school, and I wasn't so lonely any more. We just never communicated with each other anymore and I thought everything would work itself out after he graduated, so I was patient and waited. A year ago June he finally graduated. A wonderful job was waiting for him so we moved from the East and came here to live. He was so busy getting adjusted to his new working conditions that I thought that was probably why he was gone so much of the time. Everyone has been so friendly that my life has become fuller than I ever imagined it could be.

Then one day last week something came over me. I suddenly realized that this isn't what I planned for. I feel so lonely and left out of my husband's life. He's already gotten one promotion but I don't know anything about it because he is so cold and aloof. He just comes in the house, pecks me on the cheek, and disappears behind a newspaper.

I'm young. Some men even think I'm pretty. How do I get my husband to see me the way they do?

Sadly

Dear Sadly:
You are suffering a great misfortune about which there is little you can do. Your husband has conflicts within himself about which he remains ignorant. His ambitious behavior is not, I suspect, a matter of his conscious choosing, but is a compulsion over which he can exercise little control. If so happens that this symptom of super ambition is generally admired and often rewarded by society and just because of this, acceptance is seldom viewed as pathological. Indeed, work itself, even when great effort and much time is consumed by it, is not evidence of emotional maladjustment. But other factors, such as you have indicated, place your husband's behavior in quite another light. His withdrawal from you, coupled with his increasing investment of emotional energy in his work, is symptomatic of rather serious difficulty. He, of course, can not be expected to agree with this estimate of the situation for to do so would threaten the defensive purpose which the symptoms serve.

There are many women like yourself; trusting, affectionate, and wanting no more than the warmth of a marriage and the security of relating with a loved one without restraint or reservation, who naively believe that "things will change." They are unable to get to the heart of the problem and realize that there is no reason why a kept man cannot be warm and loving and also be a hard and ambitious worker.

They too easily excuse and accept without question or complaint the most superficial explanations given them. In my experience such women are unusually loyal and committed to high standards of morality and hence never resort to seek outside of marriage that which they have failed to find within it. Nor are they usually capable of bringing sufficient pressure to bear on their secretly sick mates to force the latter to seek psychotherapy.

The years drag on and the fires burn low and a disappointed compromise is made until it becomes too late to take any other course. Try to get your husband to see a psychotherapist. Even if he refuses it will be of some comfort to you that you tried to help him find a solution to the problem which besets the two of you.

Very truly yours,

Sander Mudd, M.D.

Salk Vaccine Rates A-1

A CONTINUING DISPUTE over the effectiveness of oral vaccines to combat polio leaves only one conclusion for the general public, according to State Health Commissioner Albert E. Heustis.

"The unquestioned effectiveness and safety of the Salk vaccine speaks for itself," Heustis said. "There is no doubt of the need for a vaccine against polio and several other diseases, such as whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and smallpox." Heustis urged parents to check both their own immunization records and those of their children for all of the diseases for which immunization is available.

POLIO CASE reports continue to drop every year. In 1952, Heustis said there were 3,912 reported cases of polio in Michigan. Last year there were only 33 cases and this year only six case reports were received during the first eight months.

"We have, however, had 1,167 cases of whooping cough reported, three cases of diphtheria, and five cases of tetanus," he said.

"And while we have had no reported cases of polio deaths, we have had two deaths from whooping cough, two from diphtheria, and one from tetanus."

HEUSTIS described the disease deaths as "needless." "There is an effective vaccine against each one of these diseases, and they can be combined into a single solution for one-shot immunizations," he said.

The health commissioner said the expansion of Seaway transport and jet travel gives Michigan citizens "no choice but to maintain a constant vigil against disease."

WITHIN THE NEXT six months, a process of change started nearly three years ago will have gone its full cycle. All Michigan drivers will be carrying the new tamper-proof licenses issued by the state.

The old emulsion-process license issued until 1960 will become a matter of history in mid-April, said Secretary of State James M. Hare.

New licenses are printed on paper which cannot be altered. This form was praised by law enforcement agencies because it is easy to determine if alterations have been attempted.

Hare said the new form also was popular because it included the basic information about Michigan's driver "point system," and financial responsibility law.

AN ATTEMPT to avert juvenile delinquency by making its consequences clearly known to young people is getting under way this year in at least three school systems in Michigan.

A booklet entitled "You and The Law" will be used along with suggested films and a classroom guide in an attempt to acquaint teenagers with basic legal processes and the results of law violations.

The pilot test of the educational course is being conducted this year in Okemos, Ypsilanti and Gaylord schools. Officials of the Michigan Crime and Delinquency Council said the Fremont and St. Clair school officials also were considering the program.

"THE BOOKLET is designed to tell teenagers, in simple terms, what the law is, how it operates, and to use specific examples of law violation to demonstrate to juveniles how apparently innocent pranks can lead to arrest and a criminal record," the Council said.

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs lauded the effort as an effective aid in making young people aware of their responsibilities and also the consequences in event laws are violated.

SOMETHING NEW in university housing is causing widespread attention at Michigan State University.

A co-educational dormitory arrangement was initially viewed by many with pessimism but only good reports of the operation have been heard since it was started.

Last year 1,400 men and women lived in a single dormitory. Another co-ed dormitory of the same size was added at the university this year.

UNIVERSITY officials view the combination of separated dorm units as a natural for an institution of its size.

While combining the living classroom, facilities, and faculty offices also have been brought to the students in the same building.

This method of housing and learning is both practical and noble, officials said.

BETTER GROOMING and more maturity among the freshmen students housed in the co-ed dorms were one feature praised by university spokesmen.

It's Just About Harvest Time on Area Mink Ranch

The harvest is finished on most farms. But not so on the ranch of Floyd Taylor, 55815 West Eight Mile road.

On this ranch — and 372 similar ranches in Michigan — October is the start of spring. The harvest won't begin until late next month when the crops are in full "bloom".

Until then mink raisers will be hard at work cultivating the best crop possible.

Taylor, who has been the president of the Michigan Fur Breeder Association for the past five years, is no different. One of the critical periods in the cycle of raising commercial mink fur starts this month on his ranch too where 1,600 of these precious animals make their home.

The Salem man launched himself into this full-time business some 23 years ago while working for an automotive company.

"I started raising black raccoon," Taylor explains, "but by then the demand for this kind of fur was already disappearing. I sold the whole bunch of them to China. Don't know what they did with them."

Raising mink is no easy or inexpensive business. It takes years of hard work and investment. But with the help of his family Taylor made the grade, and today his stock is prized by professional furriers.

But what about this talk of spring in the fall?

Taylor explains it this way: October is the month when mink begin losing their summer or kitten coats and start growing the beautiful winter fur that makes women drool. During the shedding period, loose fur collects on the sides of the pens, on the ground, and the mink itself carries quite a bit of loose fur on his newly started winter coat.

It's during this period that Taylor and other mink raisers must be especially careful with feeding. During this period the mink must put on body fat while making the winter coat. The mink must be kept in good "athletic shape", his old coat must be shed clean, and the new fur must be protected and kept clean.

"We try to fatten them up. Fatter mink usually have more fur," he explains.

How do you know when the mink is ready for pelting?

That, says Taylor, isn't hard to determine. "It usually starts about the 20th of November. You know, because the mink comes in bloom just like a rose. His fur shines. And you've got to pelt 'em when they're in full bloom."

"If you pelt them too soon or too late, it's like picking green or over-ripe apples."

According to Taylor, the entire growth cycle of the mink is dependent upon sunlight. Mink sheds therefore must be constructed so as to take the most advantage of this sunlight.

The mink sheds on Taylor's ranch are long and narrow, built north and south. They are so spaced that each mink pen is open to sunlight sometime during the day.

Ventilation and feed also are important factors in mink raising. Each shed is open at both top and bottom, permitting free circulation of air from the bottom out through an opening in the roof.

Taylor buys food mixtures in bulk quantities and stores it in a cold storage building on his farm. He mixes the food with an automatic mixer in still another building. He and all other mink raisers must be careful in the preparation of this food, which is primarily meat.

The local raiser recalled an experience of another breeder who bought a dead cow and had it ground up into feed. The morning after he fed his mink, the farmer found them all dead of poisoning.

Mink, he said, are highly susceptible to food poisoning because they cannot rid themselves of poisonous foods as readily as other animals. They also are susceptible to two contagious diseases, including distemper and a virus. But for these diseases, mink can be vaccinated.

Feeding, housing and caring for mink is no easy task. The newcomer in this field, warns Taylor, must never forget that he is not dealing with a domestic animal. "You're actually working with wild animals. You shouldn't ever forget that."

Although fall is the season in which mink come into "bloom" and harvest begins, the raising cycle starts in March with the breeding period. Only those mink — usually the best producers with the most valuable furs — are kept for this purpose.

Usually, Taylor keeps about 350 mink for breeding purposes. In selecting these mink he must not only keep those mink which have demonstrated good production, but he and other raisers must guess at the demand that might exist at sale time. In other words, he at least attempts to determine what colors will be in demand. "This isn't very easy, he admits.

The young — called kits — are born in May inside the mink house that is located in individual wire pens.

Kits grow rapidly, and when they are about three weeks old they will eat some of their mother's feed which she carries to them. Between the ages of 4 and 5 weeks they come out of the nest box.

The mink raiser is happiest if mother mink has produced a majority of male offspring in her litter which averages about four. The male mink is a more valuable because he is larger and therefore has more fur.

The average of four weaned for every adult female is a good production. Some females will not produce young and others may lose their litters.

While the mother is nursing, the mink is fed three times a day. During late winter, feeding is reduced considerably because mink "seem to live off the fat" they've grown on their bodies. There is no hibernation period, however.

Food fed to the mink is placed on the top of the wire pen, and the mink reaches through the screen to eat.

During the pelting season — that is when the fur reaches its peak color, luster, and density — activity on the mink ranch mounts.

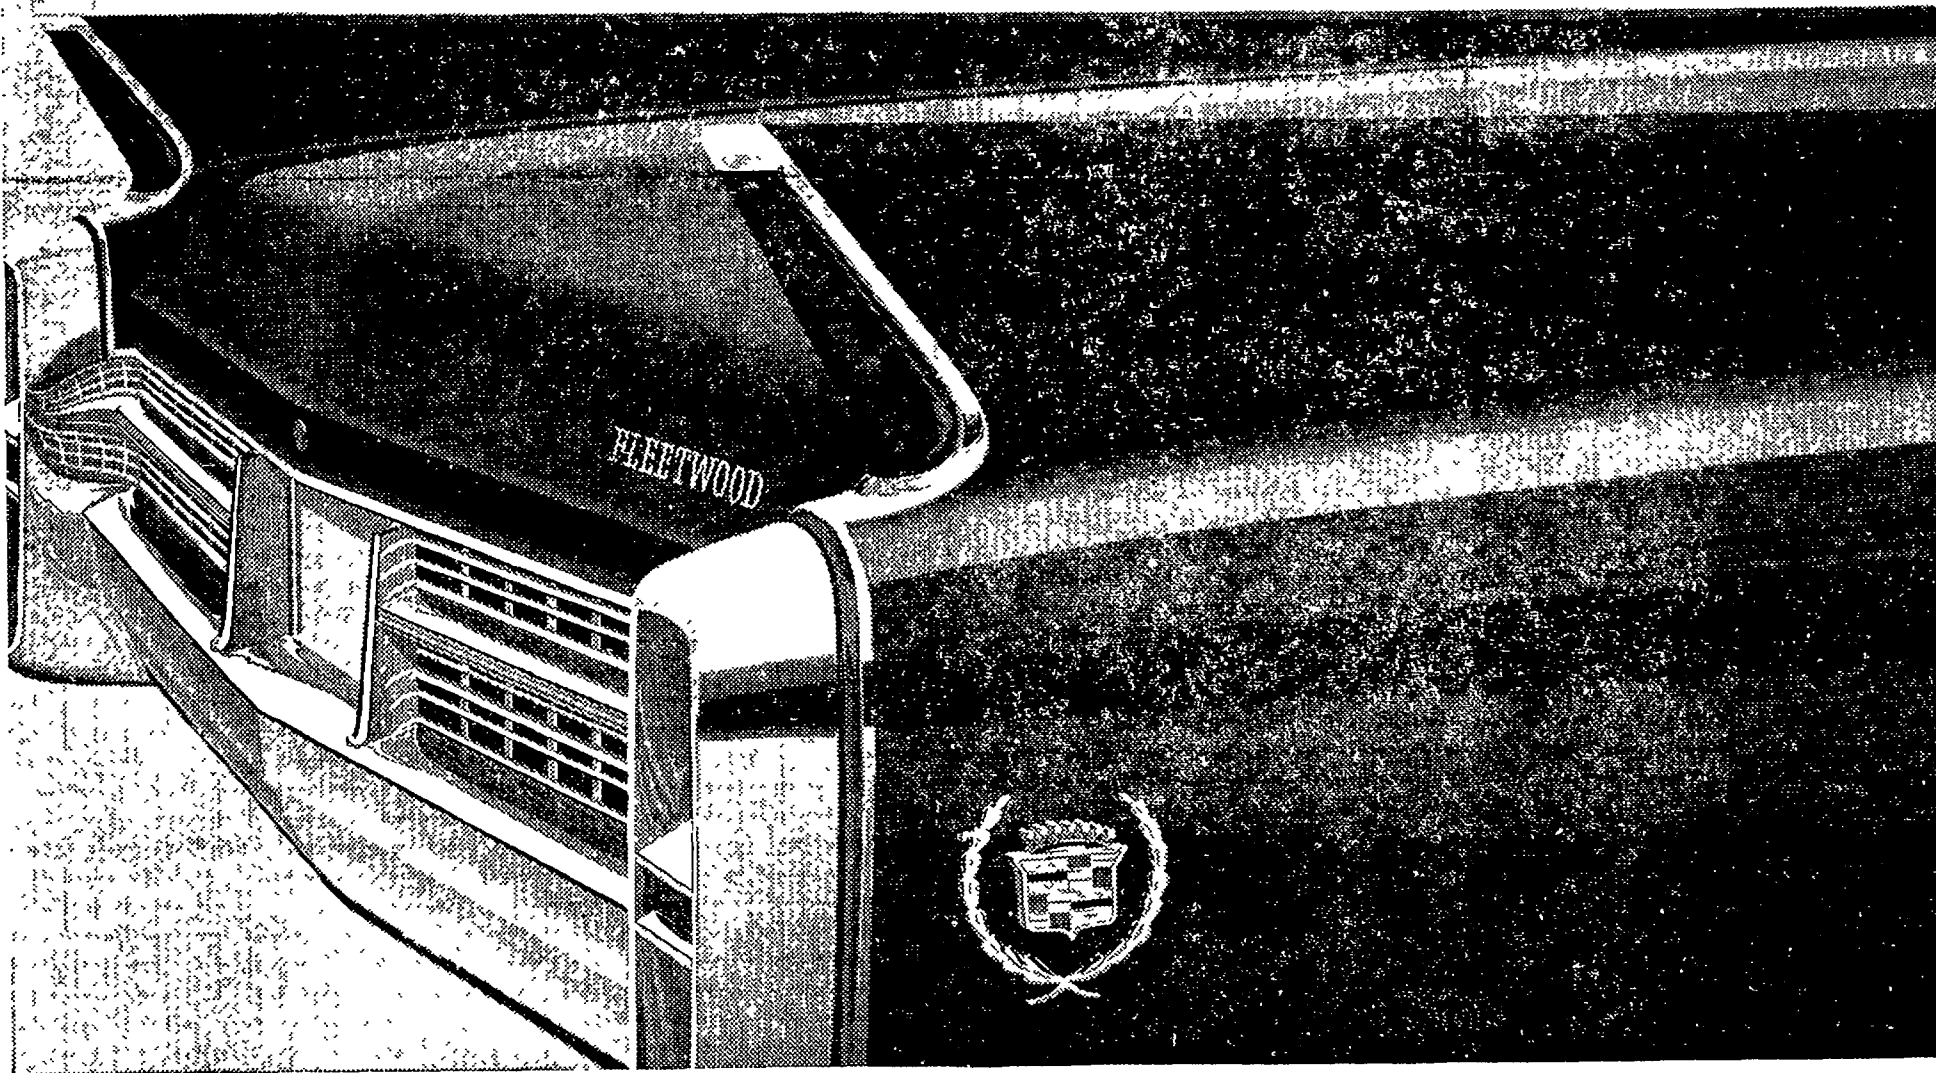

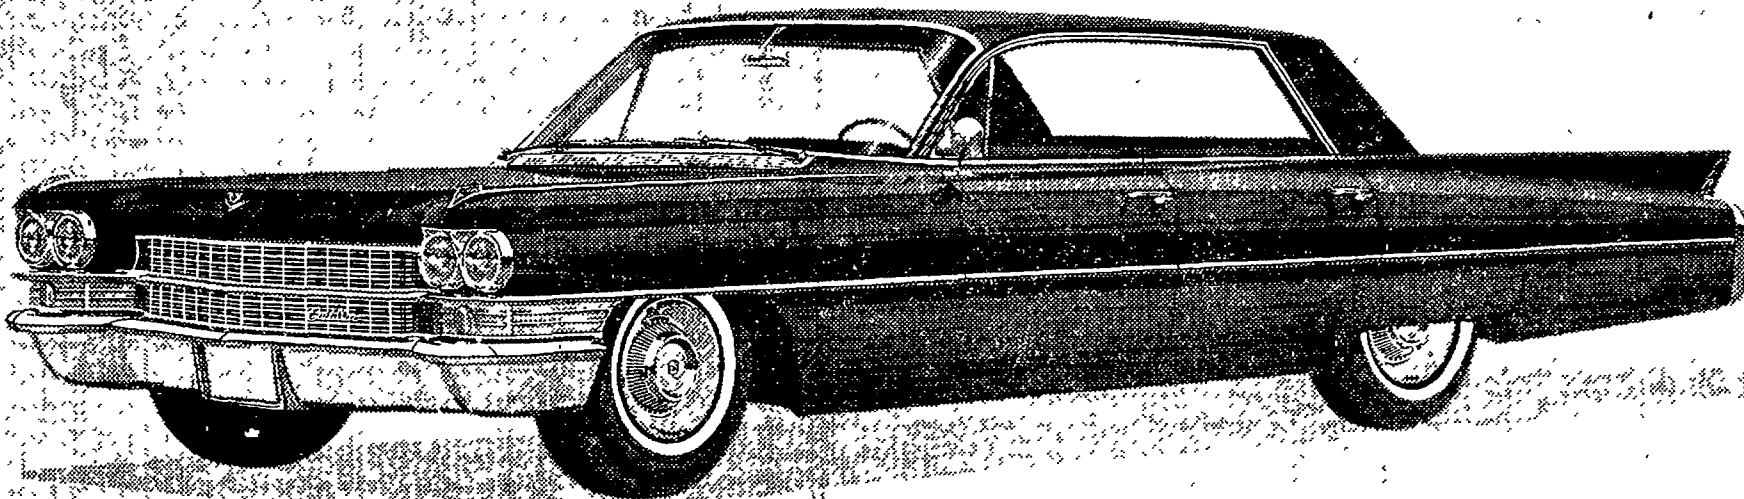

First, the animal must be killed. Ranchers use several different methods. Taylor uses a special contraption when he breaks the mink's neck. "It's the quickest and most humane," he says.

Second, the pelt is removed from the carcass. Only the smallest of cuts is made so that none of the valuable fur is wasted. The skin is worked loose around the legs, the tail and even the face.

Once the pelt is removed inside out, it is placed on commercial or homemade fleshing boards or beams where fat and flesh are scrapped off the hide. Next comes the drying process, and finally sale.

How much is the pelt worth? Like the value of other farm products, it's difficult to say. It depends upon demand and quality. But, says Taylor, his pelts usually bring about $18 to $30 dollars each, with the male pelt selling for the higher price.

And in case the lady of your house has the idea of raising her own mink coat, keep in mind that breeding stock sell for up to two or three times more than does the mink pelt.

EVER WONDER what the animal looks like that produces the fur coat you've always wanted to own? Well, Floyd Taylor, Salem mink raiser, is shown here holding one of the little fellows. He's not really wearing those gloves to protect the precious fur. It's the mink's teeth that prompts him to wear them.

MINK PEN — One of the many mink on Floyd Taylor's Eight Mile road farm is shown here about to help himself to a drink of water. Each mink has his own individual pen and nest. Food for the mink, consisting mostly of various kinds of meat, is placed on the top of the wire pen.

PROPER HOUSING for mink is very important, says Floyd Taylor, shown here in one of the buildings housing scores of individual pens. Each building is open at the bottom and top to provide sufficient lighting and ventilation.

Duck Hunters Must Know Their Species

Michigan duck hunters will be called upon this season to play their biggest role to date in shaping the future of their sport.

To meet the test, the state's waterfowling will have to know their ducks like they've never known them before. Their prudence in shooting will face its stiffest challenge.

The reason is that duck flights will be down throughout the Mississippi Flyway this fall, and certain species such as mallards, black ducks, canvasbacks, and redheads are in particular trouble. Others such as scaup (bluebills) are more plentiful than a year ago.

Shooting regulations, reflect this general decline as well as ups and downs of individual species. They again give canvasbacks and redheads full protection, and bag limits on mallards and black ducks have been trimmed.

On the liberal side, however, Michigan hunters may take two scaup per day in addition to the regular daily limit of two ducks.

From here on in, it's completely up to sportsmen to carry out this flexible program of species management. Well-planned as the regulations are, they will be only as effective as the hunter's ability to identify ducks and to shoot discriminately.

If hunters do their job — shooting the right combination of targets — they can actually bag two more birds each day than last year.

More importantly over the long haul, there is some optimism that drought conditions are nearing their end in the continent's northern "duck factories."

With the right break from the nation's gunners this fall, these birds might bounce back enough so that regulations can be eased in 1963. Any shortcomings on the part of hunters in Michigan and elsewhere could mean even tighter regulations when next season rolls around.

This business of selective shooting won't be a snap by any means. For most hunters, it's going to require some pre-season homework in duck identification.

Conservation Department game men offer the following as a sort of primer for fall shooting:

Michigan ducks are divided, for convenience, into Mergansers (fish ducks), Dabblers (marsh ducks) and Divers (open water ducks).

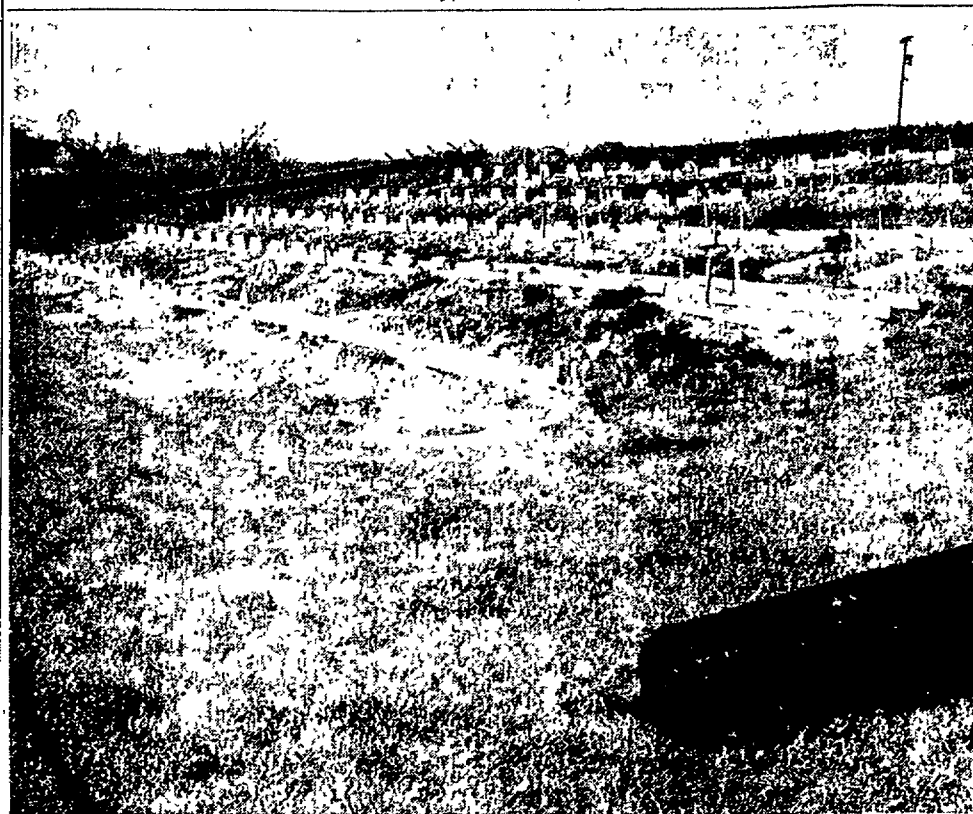

In flight, certain characteristics are useful for distinguishing the major groups. The dabblers have a slow wing-beat and, except for mallards and black ducks, a long stroke. Divers fly with rapid, short strokes of the wing, while Mergansers have a distinctive stretched-out horizontal position in the air that separates them from the other ducks.

Dabblers, in rising from the water, spring up almost vertically, especially when surprised, but Divers and Mergansers "taxi" along the surface of the water before they take off.

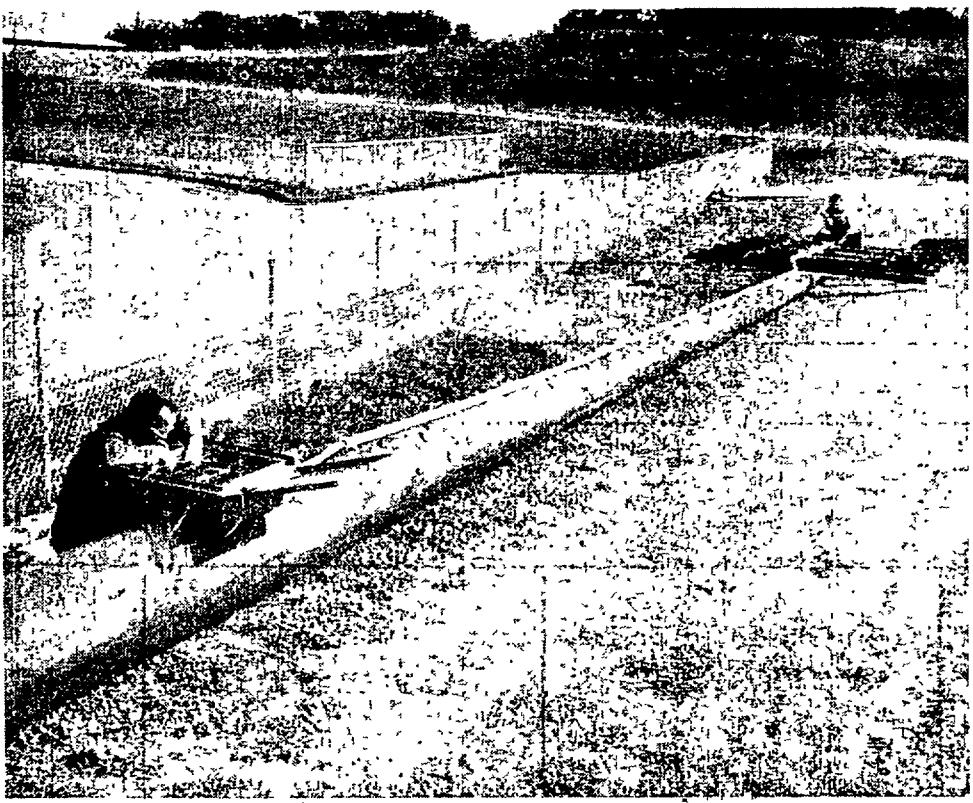

Coming in to decoys, Dabblers tend to circle the blocks and hover for a moment with outstretched legs a few feet over the water, while Divers usually fly in at lower altitude and "touch down" directly.

The traits of these three groups provide good clues for identifying ducks. Of course, hunters need to know the birds that belong to each group. And there are some look-alike species within each category which test the most discerning eye.

FIELD PREPARATIONS are continuing so that Northville's new football field will be ready for the next home game October 19 against West Bloomfield. Above are the bases for the bleachers on the east side of the field, located in the track oval nestled in the hills across the Eight Mile road cutoff from the high school. The small mound of earth in the top center of the picture surrounds the base for the press box. In the lower picture, two workers of the Transformer Inspection company wire one of the four poles which will support lights for the field. Each pole will contain 24 quartzlight lamps, controlled in pairs from the switch boxes. Workmen report it takes about two hours to wire one of the 80-foot poles. They planned to erect all four poles this week.

No Wonder Natural Gas is So Clean!

Before Consumers Power Company pipes Natural Gas into homes and industries, it gives it a thorough scrubbing! This cleanliness means more efficient operation and longer life for appliances and industrial equipment. Yes, to make sure you get the cleanest fuel possible, all Gas is forced through huge cleaners called "scrubbers" (such as these pictured here at the Company's compressor station near Manchester, Michigan). Each "scrubber" costs $10,000 and this is only one of the many compressor stations operated by Consumers Power Company performing this cleaning operation.

Assessment costs for paving Center, High, East, Elm and Walnut streets were approved by the Northville city council Monday night, and a public hearing on the projects was scheduled for October 30. The approval was by split vote, with Councilmembers Mrs. Beatrice Carlson and Richard Juday maintaining their opposition to the idea of imposing assessments for street improvements in older sections of the city.

It was a confusing night for Bruce Potthoff Monday, when he attended his first council meeting as Northville's new city manager. A straight-faced council member told him about a "few little extras" his job entails, such as serving as city health officer, welfare officer and treasurer.

Friday will be a big night for Northville high's students and grads alike. It's homecoming. A senior class queen will be crowned, and the Mustangs will be seeking to down Milford to continue their thus far defeatless season.

A committee to study all sides of the issues concerning city incorporation for Novi was proposed last Thursday night at a meeting called at the community building by the Novi board of commerce. October 19 has been set as the first public meeting at which time an authority on details of incorporation will be the speaker.

"I guess I'm just not battling too well tonight," said Wixom Mayor Donald Brooks last Thursday. His statements followed one of several tongue-lashings he received from the city council for his methods of handling several city purchases.

Voters of the city of Northville and on some 220 acres of Novi township will go to the polls November 19 to decide whether the Novi township area will become part of the city. Petitions for the vote were submitted to the Secretary of State September 8, but an election had not been expected until sometime in December.

When Joe Kritch went to Washington, D.C. last week, his name and picture made all the big papers. Joe, who last week won the $550 second prize in the Record-News subscription drive contest, appeared before a senate investigating committee to discuss his dealings with the Teamster Union-backed Sun Valley, Florida real estate project. He sold 446 lots in the project to area residents before he became disillusioned about what sort of deal the buyers were getting.

The fate of a 24-night harness racing meet at Northville Downs this fall rested Wednesday in the hands of the state supreme court. A "writ of prohibition" sought by state racing commissioner James Inglis could burst the racing balloon if granted. He asked that Wayne circuit Judge Frank Fitzgerald's recent ruling in favor of the meet be overturned by the supreme court.

Two Novi youngsters died in a fire which last week sent their mother to the hospital with third degree burns over one fourth of her body. Killed in the blaze which flashed through their small home at 2465 Shawood were Peggy, 3, and Robert, 5, Shunatona.

Service were held in a Wall Lake funeral home Sunday for Diane Wegener, 11, who died last week from injuries suffered in a fall from a tree.

Freydl's Cleaners have enlarged their retail merchandizing area and installed new modern show cases.

Northville's recreation program started its new season with a bang Monday night, when 167 residents enrolled in various courses. Classes offered include arts, crafts, photography, sewing, hat making, sketching, leather working and hobby courses under direction of trained leaders.

Robert German became senior class president last week as the high school students elected officers for the year. Mac Pierce was picked vice-president while secretary is Nancy Boyd and treasurer is June Richardson. E. C. Molena and C. D. Yahn were chosen sponsors.

The 55th season of the Northville Woman's club opens today with a luncheon meeting at Meadowbrook country club. Past presidents will be honored guests at the event.

Some 60 friends, neighbors and relatives attended the open house of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Salow Sunday, held in honor of their aunt Miss Lottie Card, who was celebrating her 90th birthday.

Four Northville village residents were bitten Sunday by a rabid dog owned by Charles Freydl. Dr. E. B. Cavell is holding the dog for observation. Its victims were June Forshee, Mrs. Herbert W. Martins, Miss Davis and Miss Beulah Miller. All are receiving the pasteur treatment.

Loyle M. German, Northville police chief since the death last spring of W. H. Safford, has submitted his resignation to take a position with the state department of conservation.

The possibility of Union Lake becoming a village loomed larger Monday when voters in that area approved by a narrow margin the formation of a village charter commission to prepare a charter. After completion of the charter, voters will have the opportunity to adopt it and create the village of Union Lake.

Annexation of Commerce village school to the Walled Lake consolidated school district was approved Tuesday night by electors of the Walled Lake district. The annexation adds to the district a valuation of $500,000, bringing total valuation to $5.5 million, the largest of any consolidated district in the state.
