

Church Services To Offer Thanks

Several area churches are planning worship services Wednesday and Thursday as the nation pauses to observe the annual Thanksgiving holiday.

Congregations in both Northville and Novi will offer prayers and hymns of thanks at special services Wednesday evening.

Northville Presbyterians and Methodists will meet jointly as in past years for a Union Thanksgiving service scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Methodist church.

Reverend Lloyd Brasure, Presbyterian pastor, will provide a sermon, and Reverend Paul M. Cargo will conduct the worship service.

The First Baptist church of Northville plans to include Thanksgiving services with its regular Wednesday evening prayer meeting and bible study, reports Reverend Robert Spradling. The service begins at 7:30.

On Thursday morning, the Our Lady of Victory parish will hold a special mass at 9 o'clock, rather than the usual 8 a.m. service, Reverend Father John Wittstock has announced.

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church of Northville will hold a worship service beginning at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. Reverend B. J. Pankow will deliver a sermon entitled "Godliness with Contentment is Great Gain." The service will include hymns of praise and two anthems by the senior choir.

The Willowbrook Community church will meet with the Forest United Missionary church of Farmington for a Union Thanksgiving service to be held at 8 p.m.

St. Williams Catholic church of Walled Lake plans a Thursday morning change of schedule, with masses being delayed until 8 a.m. and 9 a.m.

In Novi, members of the First Baptist church will gather for a 7:30 p.m. worship service conducted by Reverend Arnold Cook. Final collection of goods for the needy baskets to be delivered Thursday will be made Wednesday evening.

Reverend David T. Davies, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church, said the Plymouth church plans a 10 a.m. Thanksgiving Day Holy Communion service.

An all-day prayer meeting is planned by the Full Salvation Union, Reverend James An-drews said. The meeting will begin at 2 p.m. and will continue until a post-lunch Thanksgiving dinner at about 5:30. An evening service will be held at 7:30.

Reverend Rex L. Dye, pastor of Salem Baptist church, will deliver a special Thanksgiving message service Thursday evening. The service will begin at 7:30.

Hospital Discussion Set in Novi

The coordinator of the drive to locate a 100-bed hospital in Milford to serve a 10-township area in western Oakland county will speak Thursday of next week in the Novi village council chambers.

John Ripplinger, of Professional Facilities corporation of Hazel Park, will outline the need for a hospital in this area, and will explain the method of obtaining a medical facility. He will also answer audience questions.

The speaker has been working with the citizen board of directors for the hospital, which will be constructed in Milford if a fund drive scheduled to begin soon is successful.

The board of directors of the proposed $14 million hospital earlier this month took an option on approximately 14 acres of land inside the Milford village limits.

The land, located on Atlantic avenue, between Mount Eagle street and the Methodist church, has sewer and water service available.

A rolling site, the land provides sufficient level area for a hospital building, and is stable enough for a multi-level building, according to Ripplinger. He said details of the option, and final purchase price have not been worked out as yet.

Detroit Architect Victor J. Basso, selected last month to design the building, has expressed praise for the site.

The hospital, to be operated on a non-profit basis, would service the townships of Novi, Lyon, Green Oak, Harland, Brighton, Rose, Highland, Milford, White Lake and Commerce.

It would be open to both doctors of medicine and doctors of osteopathy in the area who would normally send patients to the hospital. Other doctors from outlying areas who would occasionally have patients at the facility would also be admitted to the staff.

New Traffic Idea Asks One-Way Main Street

A plan to create a "parking mall" on Main street and initiate a system of one-way traffic encircling the shopping district was introduced to the city council Monday night.

It represents the most extreme traffic changes ever considered in Northville.

The proposal was termed experimental, but was strongly advanced by Planning Chairman George Zerbel.

"Unless something is done with our central business district soon, we might as well say goodbye to this tax base. It will go out of town," Zerbel told councilmen.

The idea has been under consideration by the planning commission for several months. It results from a proposal presented by Earl Wineman, president of the Retail Merchants Association.

Working with their consultant the planners have come up with a complete periphery traffic plan for the business district. It would:

- make Dunlap street one-way west from Hutton to Wing;
- make Cady street one-way east from Wing to Church;
- make Wing one-way south from Dunlap to Cady;
- make Church and Hutton one-way north from Cady to Dunlap;
- make Main street one-way east from Wing to Hutton with Main street between Center and

Local Men Buy Thunderbird Inn

The Northville road "Thunderbird Inn", closed for the past year, will soon be reopened under the ownership of John Carlo and Arthur Kobierzynski, both of Northville, and John Klein of Detroit.

Carlo is executive manager of Northville Downs. Kobierzynski, who lives at 43574 Six Mile road, has had experience in the bar and food business, along with his father-in-law, Klein. They formerly operated the Lone Pine Inn (now Danny's) and Taboo Lounge on Seven Mile road.

The new owners are awaiting approval of the liquor license transfer by the state of Michigan. An early December opening of the modern dining establishment is expected.

Hutton considered a "parking area" rather than a street for through traffic; angle parking would be permitted on the north side of this portion of Main street and parallel parking on the south side; entrance and exit to the existing lot across from the theatre would be permitted from Main street; —no left turns would be permitted off Center street in either direction between and including the Hutton and Cady street intersections.

Specifically, the plan would create a counter-clockwise circle of traffic around the business district with a west-to-east flow through Main street.

Parking would be prohibited at peak traffic hours on Center street on the west side of the street in the morning and east side in the late afternoon.

Zerbel, who presented the plan to the council along with fellow planning commissioner Harvey Ritchie, pointed to three reasons for suggesting the proposal:

1. To facilitate shopping;
2. To provide an opportunity to test a portion of the long-range community master plan;
3. As an attempt to show some effort to help merchants and as a possible signal to prospective business that the community is interested in improving itself.

The council expressed pleasure at the effort shown by the planning commission — but no member was ready to jump head-long into the plan.

It was agreed, however, that an immediate attempt should be made to introduce the idea to the public — either through public hearings or presentations to business and civic groups.

If general public acceptance is apparent, the council told Zerbel it would put the plan into practice.

Aside from signs, little expense would be encountered. County cooperation must also be obtained, however. It was also proposed that "timed" traffic lights should be installed at the Center street intersections of Dunlap, Main and Cady.

In other traffic matters Monday night the council approved speed limits of 35 miles per hour on South Center street from Cady to Hines drive; on Fairbrook from the city limits to Hines drive; and on the Seven Mile road cut-off.

Answer Near On Second Racing Meet

Michigan Racing Commissioner Edgar Hayes has promised an answer late next week to the question that has become an annual one in Northville.

Will Northville Downs be awarded a second harness racing meet next season?

He would give no indication this week what the answer might be — but there were signs that the chances are slim.

Dates for thoroughbred racing must be released by November 30. Harness racing dates must be released by December 15. But Commissioner Hayes said this week that he expects to have the entire schedule set by November 30. Meetings with horsemen and track officials are planned for next week and Hayes was optimistic that agreement could be reached.

Leon Slavin, owner of the Jackson Raceway organization that conducts its meets at the county fairgrounds in Jackson, has applied for dates at Northville exclusively.

Last year Slavin applied for both Northville and Jackson dates indicating a preference for Northville. He was returned to Jackson.

Commissioner Hayes revealed that the Jackson Fairgrounds Board has also applied for its regular dates. The commissioner indicated that the Jackson county board of supervisors are "very anxious" to have Slavin return to Jackson.

Hayes pointed out that several possibilities exist:

—Slavin's bid for Northville dates could be turned down and he would then be able to negotiate with the Jackson Fairgrounds board to use the schedule it obtains (Hayes noted that the county board has a racing license and therefore is entitled to dates);

—Slavin could be awarded the dates at Northville and Jackson could also be given dates.

Commissioner Hayes noted that weather is a factor to be considered. If Slavin were awarded fall dates at Northville and Jackson was also given a schedule, the two tracks would be in competition with one another.

"We couldn't run another harness meet without having the dates overlap", the commissioner admitted. Harness racing started April 19 this year and did not close until last Saturday at Jackson. A later meet would almost certainly run into bad weather.

If Jackson is to receive dates, it seems unlikely that Northville would win a new meet. On the brighter side for Northville, however, the commissioner said his decision would be "based on what's best for all concerned". A strong argument for moving the Jackson meet to Northville has been convenience for horsemen and fans plus larger attendance, betting and consequently, purses.

Commissioner Hayes also commented on Northville's improved facilities calling the 10-way, 35 per cent to the state's 83 counties for county roads, and 18 per cent to 511 cities and villages for their roads and streets.

Highway commissioner John C. Mackie announced that net receipts for the third quarter amounted to $44,490,325, an increase of $2,301,033 over the same period last year.

Gross collections amounted to $46,267,158, from which collection costs of $1,556,953 and the waterways commission's $219,853 share were deducted.

Area communities will soon receive a total of $24,027 in third quarter motor vehicle highway funds, the state highway department has announced.

Novi leads with a payment of $13,581, the department reported, while Northville will receive $6,222 and Wixom will get $4,224.

Wayne county tops all others in the state, with a payment totaling $3,094,398. Oakland county will receive the second highest payment of $942,786.

The payments, made quarterly, come from a fund which is made up of all state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes, license plate fees and a small amount of miscellaneous fees.

After deductions, the fund is distributed under provisions of the state law. Some 47 per cent goes to the state highway department for use on state highways, 35 per cent to the state's 83 counties for county roads, and 18 per cent to 511 cities and villages for their roads and streets.

NO ESCAPE — It's either now or Christmas for Tom Turkey

Tom's Life May be Short, But Conditions Improved

Tomorrow is traditional Tom Turkey Thursday, when all Turkey becomes the center of attraction on Mom's Thanksgiving Day table.

And while it means the end of ol' Tom's almost carefree life, he'll have the pleasure of knowing he has served his purpose when happy families, filled to the brim with Thanksgiving delicacies, push themselves away from the table.

And ol' Tom shouldn't have any kicks, for his lot, like that of the humans he serves, was a good deal worse in the past, according to Eight Mile road turkey farmer Raymond Honsinger.

As recently as 25 years ago the turkey often fell victim to numerous diseases, he pointed out. But bird loss from disease is almost non-existent now, he said.

Honsinger, who has raised turkeys for the past 35 years, noted the relatively easy lives the birds lead.

From eight to 10 hours after hatching, which usually takes place in the middle of May, the young poulters are kept toasty warm, dry and clean in broader houses. When the turkeys reach the age of eight weeks, and have grown to about four pounds, they are turned out to range. Here, in a fenced-in world all their own, they spend the rest of their lives nibbling at alfalfa and clover shoots and gorging themselves on a plentiful supply of grains.

Honsinger, who has raised as many as 2,500 turkeys a year, now raises about 1,000. Each spring he purchases fresh-born poulters according to the number of birds he plans to keep for the year.

And after New Year's Day, he kills and freezes the few remaining birds he hasn't sold. The young poulters are started out on a commercial turkey mash, and slowly weaned to corn, oats and wheat as they become older. Their principal diet as adults consists of such grains.

Honsinger has special wooden roosting racks for the birds to sleep on at night. These are located in a yard separate from the daytime range.

In mid-November, Honsinger kills his first birds. From then until the end of December there's work every day in the shed he uses for preparing turkeys for sale.

First step in the process is, of course, the kill. The local farmer has special cone-shaped metal containers with openings at the bottom for the turkey's head. The cones prevent the bird from bruising itself.

A quick jab and slice with a sharp knife (which once went through Honsinger's finger before he realized he was cutting himself) brings a fast, quiet death.

DEFEATHERING is a rapid process, requiring little more than a minute. A special furnace Honsinger built heats and keeps a tankful of water at a constant 150 degrees.

A 30-second bath loosens feathers for easy removal. After stripping off the wing and tail feathers, the turkey farmer spends another 30 seconds holding the bird over a "pickin' machine" which removes all other feathers.

After removing the head and feet, Honsinger places the turkey in an ice water bath until it is thoroughly chilled. The bird is then drawn and tied up for sale.

The modern-day turkey farmer's greatest problem is the predator, Honsinger said. He explained that while diet control and continual cleaning have eliminated disease, there's almost no way to prevent losses to foxes and dogs.

He said he usually loses several birds a year to foxes, and recalled losing 31 in one night to a dog which managed to enter the range.

"But our biggest problem now is the two-legged fox, the kind that crawls over the fence instead of under it," he added. "I worry about them from now until New Year's Day."

Besides his turkey business, Honsinger has an orchard and raises pigs and race horses.

A plan to construct a modern pool for the purpose of forming a Northville Swim Club will be officially introduced to the city planning commission December 11 when a request for rezoning a 2.6-acre site comes up for public hearing.

The project is a private undertaking. Solicitation of memberships is already underway and promoters of the plan report that it has received excellent response.

The group hopes to organize as soon as possible so that construction may begin in the spring and use of the facility can start July 4.

Specifically, the planners will be asked to consider rezoning a 2.6-acre parcel behind the high school and adjacent to the city's water tower.

An option to purchase the property from the Harold Hartleys has been acquired and preliminary drawings of the pool submitted to planners. If it wins planning commission approval, it must be passed by the city council at a subsequent hearing.

Chief organizers of the plan are Robert Bogart, Robert Bretz, Charles Altman, Jr., Raymond Jackson and Maurice LaPointe, all Northville residents.

They propose to construct a

A 30 x 33 foot diving bay. A pool manager, assistant and life guards will be employed, Bogart said.

In its preliminary inquiries the group has already obtained responses from some 175 families interested in joining the club.

It is proposed that the heated pool will be 82 1/2 x 42 feet with actively set at $350 for membership stock and $40 annual dues. The group has already obtained the services of Bradford Edwards, an architect well known in the field of swimming pool design.

Bogart emphasized that the project was a "family affair". Some 350 family memberships will be sought with fees tentatively set at $350 for membership stock and $40 annual dues. The group has already obtained the services of Bradford Edwards, an architect well known in the field of swimming pool design.

New School Plan Studied by Novi

The Novi school board last week agreed to discuss a contract with the Walter Anicka and associates architectural firm of Ann Arbor for designing the proposed secondary building.

At its regular meeting last Wednesday, the board rated the five architects it has interviewed and the Ann Arbor firm received the greatest support.

The board then agreed to meet with the architects next Wednesday to negotiate a contract for a building to be built on the 80-acre secondary site located at Taft and 11 Mile roads.

The board is contemplating a building design which would permit partial construction to provide a junior high school. When and if the school system needs a high school, the design would permit expansion of the existing facility to provide the needed room.

The Anicka firm claims 25 years of experience in the educational architectural business. Recent work includes a Garden city junior high and the Clifford Smart junior high in Walled Lake.

The firm, which has its own structural engineering staff but employs consultants for mechanical and electrical engineering buildings built for South Lyon ing. The firm has designed all school district since 1947. It also designed the Northville community building.

The architects' fee for the secondary building has not yet been settled. It will be negotiated according to the cost of the building, Superintendent Tom Culbert said.

The school board had been meeting with architects and visiting buildings each has designed since it voted last month to start planning for the building.

The decision to take steps toward building a new school followed the Northville school board's refusal to accept Novi ninth graders beginning in the 1964-65 school year, and expressed preference to not accept them next fall.

At a joint meeting of the two boards in September, Northville indicated it would honor its agreement to educate Novi ninth grade students until June of 1965.

But the Northville board said that space limitations would make it difficult to handle Novi's ninth graders even next fall, and would prefer not to be held to the agreement.

In other matters concerning the building, the board learned that the junior high staff has held several meetings to discuss a curriculum for the secondary school, but citizen participation has been poor.

Novi school Principal Sam Stewart reported, however, that the staff is urging citizens to attend the meetings, and expects more at its next meeting next Wednesday.

The board also approved publication of both a school newsletter and an annual financial report required by law.

The financial report caused some controversy when board members differed over what should be included in the publication. The law requires a statistical report and a statement of conditions.

But Culbert proposed the report also include some information about the problems which the school district will have to face in the near future.

He said the minimum report would cost about $95 and the supplemented report would cost about $130.

St. John Proposes Policy For U.S. in Middle East

Looking much less bushy than his photographs, Robert St. John begins 'and' ends his lectures in the radio, broadcaster's voice which is familiar to millions of Americans.

And although he holds what he terms an 'entertainment' period near the start of his discussion of 'The Crisis in the Middle East', St. John's message is deadly serious.

The 30-year veteran of first-hand experience at many world crises was the second speaker in the Our Lady of Victory Altar Society's Northville Town Hall lecture series.

Speaking to a capacity audience in the P & A theater last Thursday, St. John pointed out many of the problems which face the turmoil-ridden Middle East.

He said the Arab world is one of sad contrasts, where 'wealth beyond the dreams of the richest Texas oilmen' is mingled with shocking poverty.

The Middle East, a land of 40,000,000 people is made up of a dozen countries, all but one of which are either feudal monarchies or ruled by dictators, he said, adding:

"Conditions there are very primitive — even more so in some places than anywhere in Africa."

The lone exception is Israel, St. John said. He explained the difference by pointing out that Israel is a democratically-created country, born in 1947 by a majority vote of the representatives to the United Nations.

He termed the West's problem with the Middle East a "non-partisan lack of any foreign policy at all."

He said that under this lack of policy, when King Saud, "this man whose country has denied it practices slavery for years, and then announced just last week it has 'abolished' slavery," comes to Washington, he receives red carpet treatment.

St. John pointed out that although Israel was supported by most of the world's countries, Saud has said he would sacrifice one million of his people to wipe out 'this cancer.'

"The Jews' only crime is bringing a bit of the 20th century into the Middle East," he stated.

Although Israel is surrounded by enemies, he added, the real victims of the situation in the Middle East are the primitive peoples of the other countries.

He noted that peasants of Egypt live the same sort of lives depicted by relics of centuries ago found in museums.

"These peasants used to use strong tea to deaden the parasites eating at their insides," he said. "Now they use Coca-Cola. The only signs of the 20th century found in upper Egypt are three huge bottling plants."

St. John listed the causes of the Middle Eastern crisis as feudalism and poverty, fragmentation from the failure of the United Arab Republic; the state of war with Israel; and the immortality of the great powers.

He then displayed a "souvenir" from Israel — a twisted fragment of metal from a bomb which he saw Arabs drop on a Jewish orphanage, which housed children whose parents had been slaughtered in Germany.

"I had this metal analyzed — it came from a bomb made in Great Britain," he declared, "and this was a year and a half after World War II — a war both the U.S. and England entered partly because of what the Germans were doing to the Jews."

As a solution to the Middle Eastern crisis, St. John suggested the U.S. establish a policy — no more aid without conditions.

He listed these conditions for the Arabs to meet:

1. Recognize Israel.
2. Confirm the recognition with a peace conference.
3. Agree to settle difference.
4. Guarantee the items settled by agreement.
5. Disarm completely.
6. Build, using the billions of dollars saved by disarming.

"What are the objections to such a plan?" he asked the audience. "If you don't like it, develop one of your own, and then use your influence on your representatives in Washington."

Pointing out that foreign policy has not been a matter of politics for the past 15 years, he told the audience that "only you can stop this lack of any foreign policy at all."

Garden Sale To Attract 11 Branches

Eleven branches of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will be participating in the Christmas Market to be held at the Northville Community building on Saturday, December 1.

Beside the Northville Branch will be Golfview, Inkster, Lake Point, Livonia, Milford, New England Estates, Northwest Detroit, Pine Lake, Redford and Rosedale Gardens. Some of the items that will be for sale include wreaths, doorpieces, swags and table decorations. There will be decorated candles, corsages, patio lights and ribbons. Some of the branches will have a bake sale. There will also be candy and pecans.

During the day each branch is to have a demonstration featured will be table and buffet arrangements, silk screening and bow tying. You will be shown how to make Christmas cards and favors, cone swags and wall hanging decorations.

A luncheon will be served during the noon hours by the ladies of the Northville Branch.

Mrs. Donald Ware has charge of the staging of this event which should bring several hundred people to Northville. The doors will be open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. The tickets at the door will be $1.00, but tickets may be purchased from Garden Club members for 75 cents before the day of the market.

Wed 50 Years

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bart (Domenica) Gatter, of 50274 Grand River avenue, were married 50 years ago yesterday (Tuesday) in Italy. The couple, who have lived in Wixom for 32 years, celebrated their golden anniversary Sunday at an open house in Livonia that was attended by 250 guests. The Gatteris came to the United States in 1914, two years after their marriage. In 1923 they moved to Detroit. They have eight married children and 18 grandchildren. Gatter retired from farming eight years ago and now raises harness racing horses.

POTS FOR PRIZES — When the Northville Newcomers club holds its card party Friday of next week, table prizes will be decorator cutting pots like the one Mrs. Gene Cushing is showing to Mrs. Frank Whitmyer (left) and Mrs. Jon Karau, chairman of the creative arts group which made the pots. The card party, which begins at 8 p.m. in the Our Lady of Victory social hall, will also feature door prizes and refreshments. Tickets, at a $1 a couple, may be obtained by calling Mrs. James Tellum at FI-9-2411.

You Can Send 'Voice' Greetings To Servicemen This Christmas

Red Cross volunteers in this area are making it possible for the families of servicemen and women stationed 'overseas' or hospitalized in this country to receive a very personal Christmas greeting from their families — a recording of the family's voices.

Volunteer Social Welfare and Staff Aides and Red Cross college Units members have learned to operate the recording machine and will assist the families.

Appointments to make the recordings, which takes about half an hour and provides the absent member twelve minutes of one-sided 'conversation' with his family, may be made by calling the Red Cross Northwestern Regional Office, CA 4-0220.

Recordings will be made at the Regional office, 33539 Plymouth road, Livonia, on December 5 and 6, between 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The Red Cross furnishes the plastic disc on which the recording is made, the special mailer, and the postage.

Mrs. William H. Cansfield, 404 West Dunlap, Northville, a Red Cross Certified Social Welfare Aid volunteer, will help make the recordings.

NEWCOMER'S CORNER

I look upon every day to be lost, in which I do not make a new acquaintance.

LIVING WHERE THEY like it are the Thomas J. Flynn's. They moved recently into a new home at 617 Reed court. Left to right are Thomas E. and his parents Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Flynn.

"We took a liking to Northville, so we decided to settle here," says Thomas J. Flynn. That was last summer, and now the Flynn's have just about completed the job of settling down in their new house at 617 Reed court in the Village Green subdivision.

"We still have a few boxes to unpack," Flynn reports, "and there's the lawn to put in next spring."

He explains that the family started casting about for a new place to live last spring, and after several visits to Northville they decided it was "just perfect."

The decision to move from Detroit came after illness forced Flynn to end his 17 years as a refrigeration production worker.

And Northville was a convenient location for his wife, Mary, who teaches a fourth grade class in the Clarenceville school district.

Also teaching is their son, Tom, who lives with them. He is a physical education instructor in the Detroit school system.

The Flynn's have a natural "spectator" interest in sports, stemming from their son's interests. They also list reading among their favorite pastimes.

High School Parents Elect Officers; Honor Teachers

New officers were elected at the first meeting of the Northville high school Parent-Teachers club with Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hill named to the presidency.

Other newly elected officers include: Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Ely, vice president; Mrs. Jane Kaake, secretary; Elwyn Kaake, treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, council representatives; and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lee, faculty representatives.

The club then presented service pins to high school teachers with five or more years service in the Northville system.

Presentation of service pins has been conducted by each of Northville P-TA groups at all schools. Following is a complete list of the teachers and administrators who have received the pins:

35 YEARS — Superintendent R. H. Amerman, 30 YEARS — Leslie Lee and Ione Palmer; 25 YEARS — E. V. Ellison, Katherine Giltner, Edna Huff and Edward Mollima; 20 YEARS — Harry Smith, Ann Chizmar, Ada Fritz, Florence Keith and Charles Yabner; 15 YEARS — Myrtle Funk, Diana Lance, Rosella Lee, Merritt

Old Auxiliary Funds Help Buy Hospital Projector

When the members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Community General Hospital of Northville disbanded, the Plymouth State Home, the St. Mary Hospital Guild of Livonia, and the Northville State Hospital Auxiliary each received an equal share of its funds.

The total fund, amounting to over $750, gradually had grown through the efforts of some 70 women during the first six months of 1961. Membership dues, card parties, and community canvasses had contributed to the sum.

Last June, at the annual picnic of the Northville State Hospital Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. Crispin H. Hammond, 47100 Timberlane, the Auxiliary members, having learned of a need for a 16 mm sound projector in the Nursing In-Service Education program at Northville State Hospital, donated its share in turn, for that purpose.

With an additional amount added by the Northville State Hospital Auxiliary to equal the purchase price, a good second-hand projector recently was obtained. "With our frequent use of mental health education movies as a part of our training sequence," commented Miss Evelyn Provitt, R.N., Director of the Nursing In-Service Education program, "there are real values in the availability of a

Goodwill Pickup

The next visit of Goodwill Industries pickup trucks to Northville is scheduled for Monday. Goodwill trucks collect household discards of clothing, shoes, hats, toys, most types of furniture and other household discards.

16 mm sound projector within our In-Service Area. In a modern psychiatric hospital, the importance of all its team members — psychiatrist, psychologist, social worker, occupational therapist, nurse and attendant nurse, to name a few — knowing and understanding the contributions of each other, is all important for effective patient care. Our staff members are finding the new machine a most useful and important audio-visual asset.

"May I express my thanks to the former members of the Women's Auxiliary of Northville's Community General Hospital, and the present members of our Hospital's Auxiliary, for making this presentation to us possible," she stated.

Perry C. Angove to Retire As Easter Seal Director

Robert N. Cox of Elgin, Illinois is the new Executive Director of The Michigan Society for Crippled Children and Adults. He succeeds Perry C. Angove, of Northville, who has directed the activities of the Easter Seal Society for the past twenty-eight years.

The announcement was made at the Society's recent annual meeting held at Saint Joseph, Michigan by T. F. Kuckelman of Belleville, who was re-elected to the presidency for his second term of office.

Cox comes to Michigan with an extensive background of service in the health and welfare field. For the past nine years he served as Fund Raising and Organization Representative for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, with headquarters in Chicago. During this time he visited Michigan frequently and is familiar with the state and its program of services to the handicapped.

Prior to that time he served as Executive Director for the Kane County, Illinois, Tuberculosis Association for eight years.

Other activities include a number of years spent with the United States Treasury Department, Bureau of Internal Revenue; the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation; and the field of Adult Education.

Mr. Angove, who is retiring,

will remain with the Society in an advisory capacity until the end of the year. At the convention he was made a life-time member of the Society and Honorary Member of the Board of Directors.

Others who were elected to serve as officers for the 1962-63 term were: Paul D. Soini of Bad Axe, first vice-president; Lloyd C. Meggie of Clarkston, second vice-president; Paul J. Abele of Detroit, third vice-president; and Albert F. Austin of Flint, Treasurer.

Two Novi Boys At Michigan Tech

Houghton, Michigan — Two Novi students have enrolled at Michigan Tech for the 1962-63 school year, reports T. C. Sermon, registrar.

They are Gregory C. Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Larson, 44281 Grand River, freshman, physics major; and Thomas J. Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Morrison, 24319 LeBost drive, freshman, civil engineering major.

Total enrollment on Tech's Houghton campus this year is 2,765, the largest in the history of the school, said Sermon. Another 608 enrolled at Tech's Sault Ste. Marie branch, and several hundred will enroll in night courses offered during the school year through Tech's Institute of Extension Services.

Take a Break... I Have To Go "FISHING"!

THIS WELL DRILLER IS GOING FISHING, BUT NOT FOR FUN!

To the men who drill gas wells, fishing is not a pleasant pastime—it's a painstaking, tedious job. It means that the well driller has to take his large, heavy, cumbersome tackle (hooks and line) and fish out drilling tools that have become stuck or broken off deep in the earth. Consumers Power Company, too, has an important and expensive task—that of providing its customers with a dependable supply of natural gas during the cold winter months. To assure a sufficient reserve supply, it has underground storage fields near Marion, Michigan and elsewhere. Natural gas is put back in the earth under a pressure of hundreds of pounds per square inch and withdrawn as needed when gas consumption is highest.

The regular meeting of the Northville City Council was called to order by Mayor Allen on Monday, October 15 at 8:00 p.m. at the city hall.

Present: Allen, Ambler, Canterbury, Carlson and Juday.
Absent: None.

The minutes of the regular meeting of October 1 and the Special meeting of October 8, were approved with no corrections.

Moved by Canterbury, supported by Carlson that bills in the following amounts be paid:
General $18,890.27
Water 1,190.89

Ayes: Allen, Ambler, Canterbury, Carlson and Juday. Nays, None. Carried.

Communications:
A communication was read from Earl Wineman, president of the Retail Merchant's Ass'n, expressing appreciation for the efforts of the city council on the purchase of the Main street parking lot.

A letter from the Presbyterian church asking that the original agreement regarding free parking space and unlimited time given to staff members be considered. This matter was referred to the city manager, recommending that he discuss this with the minister of the church and report back to the council.

Letter from George Clark, supervisor of Northville Township, thanking council for the joint meeting of township, school and city officials on October 10, 1962 and suggesting future meetings of a similar nature.

A communication from Alex
Lawrence, expressing appreciation for recognition of his wife in the naming of the Jennette
Lawrence Scout and Recreation Building.

Moved by Ambler, supported by Juday that Bruce Potthoff be bonded as treasurer for the city of Northville for purposes of tax collection from the County of Oakland and that the Manufacturers' National Bank be designated as the depository for said funds. Ayes: Ambler, Canterbury, Carlson, Juday and Allen. Nays: None. Carried.

Rezoning of Alexander, Property. Recommendation from the Planning Commission that Lot 184 of Assessor's Plat No. 2 be rezoned from R-2 to T-1. Mr.
Canterbury asked that a letter of intent from the owners regarding the matter of existing building lines be specified. Moved by Carlson, supported by Ambler that the second reading of this proposed amendment be scheduled for the regular council meeting of November 5, 1962 and notice so published in the Northville Record.

Ayes: Canterbury, Carlson, Juday, Allen and Ambler. Nays,
None. Carried.
Reply of the Planning Commission to Green's Letter Regarding Rezoning:

The following recommendations from the Planning Commission regarding Green's property were read:

1. No amendment should be considered at this time.

2. Consideration of the purchase of this property should be given by the council. Council's decision was that plans which would include this property are far from finalized and no action should be taken at this time.

Request from the Retail Merchants for Additional Poles on Dunlap street for Christmas decorations:
A request for six poles, with brackets, on one block Dunlap street between Center and Hutton street was addressed to the council by the president of the Retail Merchant's Ass'n. This was referred to the city manager and he was asked to make a report on this at the next meeting.

Reply from Michigan Bell Telephone concerning request for an improved service area:
A letter from Mr. H. C. Bronaugh, Manager was read explaining the city manager's inquiries. Mr. Canterbury felt that at the time of the next rate increase, Council should be quite specific on what is offered to the community. The city manager was asked to carry this information to the Economic Development Corporation.

Report on Trucking rates for Salt:
The city manager was authorized to purchase salt in necessary amounts from the three companies that submitted bids.

Status Report on contract for Scout-Recreation building:
Mr. Ogilvie reported that Harvey Cole and son Robert have signed the contract with no changes and all that is needed is for the city to sign this contract.

The insurance has been okay.
Harold Church can be asked for a verification binder which will be accepted. Mr.
Cole is to come in and see the city manager regarding this.
Two weeks prior to the payment of bills is set for approval of work.

Further consideration of an architect for city hall:

Three architects were interviewed on October 8: Ralph Calder and Associates; Harry
M. Denyes; Robert Svoboda.

Mr. Harry Denyes and Associates was selected to design the new city hall and was so notified. His fee is 6% of $150,000 and 5% of the remainder of the total cost. It was suggested that if the city is not eligible to receive funds, the building could be so planned as to be a smaller building to be considered if funds were available.

Problem regarding the library is to be considered.

Discussion took place whether the city could qualify on any other project and it was decided it would be better not to split the grant request.

Council asked that copies of the city hall report recommendations (made by the officially appointed committee in 1960) be made available for the next meeting on Tuesday night.

There is to be a meeting with Mr. Denyes at the library at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday, October 16.

The city attorney is to check on what happens to the library building when it is no longer used as such.

The city manager is to talk to the township officials regarding the library and the fire department in relation to a new city hall.

Miscellaneous:
Mr. Ambler reported on the recommended uses for the new Recreation-Scout building as suggested at the meeting of October 15 of the Recreation Committee.

Mr. Juday asked regarding the tickets being given because of radar. The matter of speed on the Edward Hines drive was discussed.

Mr. Ambler asked about downtown parking in the vicinity of the theater about the time the 5:00 show on Saturday lets out.

The city manager is to contact Dearborn and other neighboring communities that have traffic commissions and make a report on this at a future
meeting.

A sign at Seven Mile and Northville road should be considered because of the many accidents at this intersection.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned at 11:30 p.m.

Martha M. Milne
City Clerk

VFW News

Northville Post 4012

Today, veterans receive terminal leave pay, unemployment compensation, disability compensation, on the job training, college and education benefits, G.I. Loans, and much more.

From San Juan Hill through Seoul, we've come, a long way, and we didn't get here by accident. Since 1899 when the V.F.W. was founded, these veterans' benefits have been fought for, and paid for by the V.F.W. We've got 'em, but we can also lose 'em.

You owe it to yourself to join the V.F.W. which is ever alert to protect your rights.

The Northville Post 4012, Veterans of Foreign Wars, holds its meetings the first and third Tuesday of each month. If you are eligible, for membership in the V.F.W. you will find a friendly group of veterans to welcome you aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ambler of Carrington drive will be Thanksgiving dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Atchison of South Rogers street.

The Carl Bryans of West Main street will be Thanksgiving day hosts to the John Higginsons of Detroit; Miss Nina Huang of Hong Kong, now attending McMurray college in Jacksonville, Illinois; and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Austin of Walnut street. Their son, Alfred Bryan, will also be home from the University of Michigan for the holidays.

The drive opens in January. Principal speaker at the meeting was Dr. David G. Dickinson, director of the new Birth Defects Clinical Study Center, established at The University of Michigan Medical Center through a grant from The National Foundation — March of Dimes. Mrs. Irvin Marburger is Mothers' March chairman in Northville.

— Out of the Past —

ONE YEAR AGO

A plan to rehabilitate depleted gravel acreage in Northville township and construct a multi-million dollar subdivision will come before the township appeals board next Tuesday. Officers of the Manning and Locklin Land company submitted drawings for the 370-acre subdivision this week.

The appointment of Mrs. William S. Milne, 537 West Dunlap, to succeed Mary Alexander as city clerk of Northville was announced Monday by City Manager Bruce Potthoff. Mrs. Alexander retires next month after nearly 30 years as clerk of Northville village and city.

Northville school board members Monday night ordered an inquiry into the assault of Quarterback Steve Juday, who received a broken nose and bruised jaw a week ago Friday when Clarenceville players ended the game with the attack. The board also supported Superintendent Russell Amerman's suspension of athletic competition between the two Wayne-Oakland league members.

Northville city and township officials took a firm stand this week against sale of Wayne county sewer taps to Novi — unless. The "unless" is a $250,000 provision — the cost of building a line from Northville to Plymouth to dump sewage from Novi directly into the county's $18 million interceptor to Detroit.

Approximately 125 persons waited patiently through the regular meeting of the Novi school board last Wednesday evening, until the meeting was opened for public discussion. Then the board listened as numerous opinions — both pro and con — were voiced about board President Walter Ambinder's instructions last month to the superintendent that he caution teachers about being careful to not overstep their bounds in observing Christmas this year.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Thirteen residents of Novi township and voters of the city of Northville will decide on Tuesday whether some 220 acres of Novi township will become a part of the city. A majority vote in both areas is necessary for approval of the annexation.

Few Northville merchants who attended the parking survey meeting held last week were ready to accept the findings of the Automobile Club of Michigan's report — they heard that the city's parking facilities need only minor improvements.

Subdividers of Northville Heights wasted no time in getting their 12-home project underway this week. Ground was broken on the North Center street subdivision Wednesday, just after final contract agreement was reached with the city Monday evening.

A political science expert and the Wixom civic association joined hands Thursday night in endorsing a "yes" vote on the incorporation of the village as a city. Professor Arthur Bromage, of the University of Michigan, told the group since Wixom became a village, he could see no objections for becoming a city.

LET'S TALK CARS...
When you consider that the modern automobile has more than 20,000 separate parts it is little wonder that the job of remedying things that go wrong is becoming more of a specialist's job all the time.

This was illustrated recently when a motorist attempting to eliminate a vibrating noise from beneath his car went to four separate repair shops paying for needless work on his differential, wheel bearings, drive shaft and brakes.

The fault lay with a loose clamp on the car's suspension system that permitted a vibration to be set up throughout the bottom of the car while it was in motion, when the clamp was tightened, the noise disappeared.

Lack of knowledge at the service level frequently adds considerably to a motorist's service bill through the repairman having to experiment with various remedies while searching for the solution to a mechanical fault. A motorist stuck with such a mechanic is essentially paying for his lack of technical education in wasted time.

Franchised dealers today are vitally concerned with building a sound service establishment through rendering quick quality service at moderate prices. This is especially so in our garage where we prize service as the mainstay of our dealership.

Based on the number of parts involved, a car that was manufactured with 99.9 percent of perfection should have 20 faults according to the mathematics. That makes a modern automobile less than one tenth of one percent flawless.

It is the dealer's business to know his product so well that even that small percentage is eliminated.

Orson Atchison bagged this 150-pound, four-pointer near Covington, in the Upper Peninsula.

Some Hunters Have Success, Some Don't

Many area hunters have trekked northward during the past week or so in search of the elusive white tail.

Some have returned successful, some have just returned and the remainder are planning to stay out until they either bag their buck or the season runs out.

Nearly all hunters report seeing large numbers of deer, both on the range and in camps or on cars. Also reported is a larger than normal bear kill.

Essie Nirider, of 985 Grace street, dropped a four-pointer near Hoffman Lake, west of Vanderhilt. He reported seeing more deer and bear taken than ever before.

Unsuccessful companions of Nirider were John Miller, of 8660 Napier Road, and Ancil Felker, 113 Randolph street. Harold Ortwine, 44100 Stassen shot a doe near Luzerne. Other members of his party reported seeing a number of antlerless deer, but he was the only one with a deer permit.

In Uniform

Fort Hood, Texas. — Army PFG Lester L. Wallace, 21, son of Mrs. Irma E. Wallace, 39 Meadowbrook lane, Northville, recently participated in Exercise THREE PAIRS, a U.S. Strike Command joint Army-Air Force maneuver, at Fort Hood, Texas.

The exercise, which pitted members of the 1st and 2d Armored Divisions against each other, was designed to train Army and Air Force units in combined operations stressing team play, speed and flexibility and the development of maximum fire power.

Wallace is regularly stationed at Fort Hood, as a mechanic in Company B of the 2d Division's 124th Ordnance Battalion. He entered the Army in November 1961 and completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

It's Last Week Of Grid Quiz

You had to be almost perfect to win last week's football contest cash!

First and second prize went to entries with just one wrong prediction.

Top money of $15 went to Mrs. Robert Engel. F. R. Oglesby almost made it two in a row (he won first place last week), but had to settle for $10 second prize when Mrs. Engel's prediction of the Lions-Vikings score came closest.

Their entries were the only two with but a single miss.

Oglesby can make some claim as the "champion prognosticator". He's won a first and second, and his son is also a former winner.

The Engels have a good record, too. Mr. Engel was a second place winner earlier this year.

This is your last chance in 1962. So take a look at this week's entry and take a tip from Ye Olde Contest Editor: Michigan will rise up to surprise Ohio State and Wisconsin will march to the Rose Bowl with a win over Minnesota tucked under its belt.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

IT'S EASY! . . . IT'S FUN!

★ NOTHING TO BUY
★ ANYONE CAN WIN

HERE ARE THE RULES:

In each of the 20 spaces provided below place a circle around the team you believe will win. Be sure to pick a winner in all 20 games. Note that in one game it is necessary to pick the probable score. This will be used only in case a tie occurs and then the contestant whose score is closest to the actual score will be declared the winner.

Enter just once a week, but you may enter as many weeks as you desire. In case of ties, prize money will be split.

Be sure to write your name, address and phone number plainly in the space provided. Free entries are available at The Northville Record office.

Entries must be postmarked or brought into The Record office no later than 5 p.m. each Friday.

Employees of The Northville Record - Novi News or sponsoring merchants are not eligible.

NEWS FROM THE ## American Legion

LLOYD H. GREEN POST 117
Next meeting November 27.

The Pancake breakfast, Flag Burning, reports of our Boy and Girl Scouts, and the Feather party are now history. Those members who participated, working or otherwise, enjoyed themselves and can take pride in their organization, The American Legion, and what it stands for.

We have our big night coming up. On December 8, Post 147 celebrates Pearl Harbor Day with our "Hunters' Dinner". This is the night the membership can dine out, have a fine dinner, meet old buddies, play cards, etc. The idea is to get out and enjoy yourselves — take advantage of your Legion card.

You can also do the post a service. If a friend is a veteran, invite him to the dinner. He could be a prospective member. If you haven't paid your dues, Lou Katzback will be there and be only too glad to take your money. But, regardless, if you are a member make it a point to attend the "Hunters' Dinner" on Saturday, December 8, 1962. It is a sure thing that you won't be sorry that you did.

Rex Holloman, Commander
Ken Tregear, Adjutant

To Hold Annual J-Hop Under 'Stars of Paris'

L'Estoire de Paris — or Under the Stars of Paris — is the theme chosen by the junior class of Northville high school for this year's J-Hop, which traditionally starts off the holiday season.

The ambitious juniors will convert the community building into various Parisian scenes this Friday for the annual event.

Junior class President Dave Cummings is in charge of planning for the dance, while Eliza Batzer is serving as decorations chairman. Class Sponsors Don Brown and Robert Sharar are overseeing the preparations.

Music will be provided by Singer-Danny Baker, of Detroit, and his 10-piece orchestra. The dance will last from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Decorations include an Eiffel Tower dance floor centerpiece, an Arch de Triumph leading from the dance floor to the refreshment area, which will be decorated as a sidewalk cafe, and stars hung from the ceiling.

Tickets for the event, at $3 a couple, may be purchased from junior class members. Door tickets will be $4, and tickets for spectators will be 50 cents.

Novi Police Round-Up Teen Gang

Novi Police last weekend solved one of their most complex cases when they arrested four Detroit juveniles wanted for a series of crimes.

First notification of the quartet's activities in Novi came Saturday morning when owners of the New Casino reported their building had been broken into.

Investigating officers discovered someone had climbed over a wall to a rear patio and pried open a door to gain entry. A cigarette machine in the dance hall had been broken open and several packages of only one brand had been stolen.

The Novi police then notified area departments to call them if they picked up youths carrying the brand which had been stolen.

Later Saturday night, officer John Carroll stopped a car containing four youths. But before he had reached the car the youths bounded into the woods.

Then Sunday afternoon officers Earl Bailey and Dick Faulkner investigated a report from the Walled Lake police department that two juveniles caught shoplifting were carrying the same brand of cigarettes that had been stolen from the casino.

Bailey and Faulkner went to the cottage the pair said they were living in and apprehended two other juveniles who had just broken into the home of Ruddy Combs, of 1227 East Lake drive, next door to the cottage.

After further questioning, the four youths admitted breaking into the casino and stealing the car. They were turned over to the Detroit youth bureau, which had been searching for them for over a week on charges of car theft.

When Novi police were looking for a youth who had broken into the home of Mrs. Evelyn Montes, of 717 South Lake drive, they didn't have to look very far.

The youth, 18-year-old Patrick J. Miller, of 135 Eubank, was in the county jail, placed there by the Novi police a few days earlier.

Juvenile companions of Miller told the officers that they had all been involved in thefts of some $30 worth of small items from the Montes home last week.

Included in the thefts were beer and wine, which Miller consumed and then became involved in an automobile wreck which led to his original arrest. He was implicated in the break-in a few days later.

In Justice Court

William Adams, a patient at Maybury Sanatorium, was fined $35 and $10 costs by Northville Justice Charles McDonald Monday. Adams pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was arraigned on November 13 and released on $100 bond until Monday's hearing when he changed his plea to guilty.

A Farmington man was bound over to circuit court last week on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

Novi Justice of the Peace Robert K. Anderson ordered Ronald Clark bound over to the Oakland county circuit court on the charge.

Clark, who holds a medical degree but had his license to practice revoked by the state medical examiner, was arrested on a prosecutor's recommendation after patients complained of his practice.

DEMONSTRATE CHEERS — Northville high's prize-winning cheerleaders spent Saturday afternoon demonstrating their abilities and a raft of new cheers. The occasion was a cheerleading clinic held in Owosso by the division of girls' and women's sports of the state athletic association. Northville's cheerleaders were selected to demonstrate new techniques to girls from 27 Michigan high schools. Included in the squad are (l-r, kneeling) Lynn Johnson and Dawn McCollum, and (l-r, standing) Vicki Stroh, Elta Rutian and Diane McCollum. Missing from the picture is Karen Peterson.

Witnesses Plan Area Assembly

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Plymouth congregation and 15 other congregations will meet in Ann Arbor for their semi-annual circuit assembly, Dec. 21-23, according to Mr. C. Carson Coonce, local presiding minister.

"Spread the Word of Life" will be the theme of the convention. Mr. Coonce indicated that over 20 ministers will speak in support of this theme and show it to be the responsibility of each and every Christian.

Supervising the convention will be Richard Krebs, Jr., of Dundee, convention manager, Robert W. Pusters, circuit minister for the 16 congregations, and Nicholas Kovalak, Jr., district supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses in Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois.

Highlights of the convention will be the public discourse, "The Bible's Answer to Our Problem of Survival," by Nicholas Kovalak, Jr., on Sunday, December 23.

Girl Scouts Make Gifts For Retarded Children

Under the leadership of Mrs. Wilson Tyler of Meadowbrook road, Girl Scout Troop No. 235 of Northville spent many hours preparing for "operation happiness".

Also included in their gift were several uniquely designed colorful bibs for the children.

As one of their projects, the girls elected to make Christmas gifts for the retarded children at the Plymouth State Home and Training School.

Armed with scissors and paste, they attacked a mountain of magazines and created several sturdy scrapbooks centering around individual themes: babies, animals, flowers, transportation, the alphabet, and the four seasons of the year.

Area 59'er Family Survives Alaskan Perils

Few believed the young Northville area couple and their small children would last the winter in the rugged wilderness of Alaska.

And even fewer thought the Jerre Wills family, who lived in a small, modest house at 55266 West Nine Mile road, would actually settle permanently thousands of miles from the comforts and conveniences of their Michigan home.

But unlike many members of the now famous '59'ers' group that waved goodbye to local homes and left Michigan to pioneer in Alaska, the Wills family stuck it out through that first long winter of 1959. And today, still fighting to survive but fully satisfied that the battle is drawing to a close, they are more convinced than ever that Alaska is indeed the land of opportunity.

Area residents will recall that Jerre and Margie Wills packed their worldly possessions in a small house trailer and joined a caravan of Michiganders for the long trip to Alaska's Kenai Peninsula.

With them went their three little girls, Cheryl 4, Susan 2½, and Laurie Beth, just 10 months old.

The Wills' purchased a year's supply of canned and dry foods. They bought warm snow suits for the children — and boxes of extra clothing and shoes. Lanterns, guns, shovels, knives and axes joined the pile of essentials.

There were moments of apprehension, of course, as they prepared to leave. Most of their concern was for their children, who knew only that "we're going on a trip — going to live in the little house", and a yet unborn child.

What happened to this determined family matches, and in some ways surpasses, those adventures and difficulties experienced by the pioneers of this state more than 100 years ago.

Soon after arriving with the main body of pioneers in Alaska, the Wills decided to "go it alone" and they parted ways with their Michigan friends and settled on government owned land near Kaslof, on the lonely Kenai Peninsula.

There were no roads, no bridges. Just long stretches of wild countryside, virgin timber, and curious wildlife.

It was nearing spring and rivers were swollen. And the frozen Alaskan earth was turning into a quagmire of mud and water.

These were the welcoming mats that greeted the family as they set up house in their trailer on some 130 acres of government land that someday will be their own.

Yet, there were hints of good times ahead too. They had their own clear lake, appropriately named Lake Reflection, in which fish waited for catching, snow-capped mountains stretched skyward in the distance, and an abundance of deer, rabbits, and bear assured the Wills that they at least would not starve.

Week after week, month after month, Jerre and Margie — by now the parents of still another daughter, Cindy Lynn — attacked the land with vigor. Working side by side, they felled trees, cleared brush and planted a small productive vegetable garden.

Soon a road stretched back to their secluded farm, and work was begun on a small log house.

But scratching the earth for food and shelter was not enough to sustain the family. Jerre took odd jobs, traveling great distances for a dollar here and a dollar there. For a while he worked as a power lineman, and he traveled to and from work in a company helicopter.

The house — a real castle in this remote setting — was little more than four walls and a roof. Inside were only a few sticks of furniture. A used car seat became their precious living room sofa.

Eventually, they built themselves a greenhouse to increase the short growing season and a shed for their cow and chickens. For meat, the Wills are dependent a great deal upon the game found on and around their property. Fish, venison and even bear, are common table meats. Chicken, goose and rabbit offset the regularity of the gamier meats.

For recreation, the family must depend upon their own ingenuities, making up games for the children, swimming and fishing in their lake.

Two of the oldest children are now in school. A bus, traveling along a new highway of sand and gravel and mud, stops at the entrance to the Wills' private road to pick up the children for the long ride to the school.

Hints of the heartaches, loneliness and the hopes of this pioneering family is best sketched in the letters written to pen pals in Northville, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Taylor.

Joy filled the pages of a letter dated February 16 of this year.

"First of all, we are in our new house! And guess what? We have electricity! No kidding we've had it two weeks now. It's so nice not to have to use flat irons again or that smoky old lantern.

"I'm making bread. It's rising now, so if you find any flour on the paper that's why."

In March the young mother wrote: "The last day of March and a very sunny day it is. I think maybe spring is coming to Alaska, although just two weeks ago we had two feet of snow in two days.

"My second oldest, Susie, is just getting over the mumps — both sides — and we have just learned that Cheryl, our oldest, has a heart murmur. We are without transportation again (the car broke down).

"We bought ourselves a used TV set. It's real nice looking. We can only get one channel out here and it has mostly poor shows. But it's something to do in the evenings."

"(Jerre) will be leaving the first of May to go clam digging. Then later he and another fellow are going commercial fishing.

"Our greenhouse roof caved in. Boy, what a mess. I'll have to rebuild the whole roof again and put plastic over the entire house. That is going to be a job. I've sent away for my vegetable seeds. They should be here soon, and I'll have to start most of them inside."

Margie wrote a letter May 30 while her husband was away preparing for a fishing expedition. "It's been raining for almost two weeks. My four girls are all down with measles. I hope by the first or second of June we can get out. We're out of food. We've been eating eggs for breakfast and supper every day."

"I haven't heard from Jerre; although, one of the men who took him over on the boat came back and told me he arrived safe and sound and has a real pretty fishing site. His nearest neighbors are eight miles away."

A neighbor (four miles away), she wrote, is to stand trial for murder but apparently is not in jail. "I put locks on both doors and keep a gun loaded, although I couldn't use it, I'm sure."

"I've only seen two people this month."

By July, Marge had joined her husband. She wrote on July 25:

"The girls and I are over on Jerre's fishing site now. We have a small plywood cabin sets out four nets. You set the nets at 6 a.m. and pull them up before 6 a.m. the following morning. He has two skiffs, one small one for checking his nets and a large one for loading the fish and taking them to the cannery.

"Jerre made $1,400 this month so far in catching and selling his fish (salmon). He

"We also go seal hunting. Jerre has gotten two and one."

The July letter was the last received by the Taylors. But according to a brother in Farmington, the Wills are well and back now on their homestead.

Asked if their Alaskan relatives dread the approaching winter and perhaps wish they were back in Michigan, the Farmington couple replied: "Not at all. In fact, they're trying their best to get us to move to Alaska. But it's a big step for a family to take."

WHAT HAPPENED TO THEM? Ever wonder what happened to the Jerre Wills family of Nine Mile road — the family that joined the now famous Forty-Niners group that traveled some 4,200 miles to settle in Alaska three years ago? This picture of the Wills family was taken in front of their new trailer home shortly before their departure. Since then, a fourth daughter was born.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

"The last time we conducted a fund drive to build a scout building in Northville we shot the editor of The Record," a man was telling me the other day.

I was sure he wasn't serious, but he insisted that he and they did.

"Very funny," I replied (sort of half-heartedly — I'd hate to think a thing like this would catch on).

"The man" was Orlow Owen.

He's probably one of the best known residents of our area. But chances are many people think of racing when they think of Orlow. He's vice president and general manager of Wolverine Harness Raceway and well-known as one of the most successful operators in this business.

But, old time Northville residents think of kids and boy scouts when Orlow's name is mentioned.

Three decades ago (that makes Orlow sound ancient, but when you add it up it's only 30 years) he devoted every spare moment to activities for youngsters of the community. He was scoutmaster and recreation director all wrapped up into one — and he did it free because this is what Orlow enjoyed.

I was talking to Orlow about the current scout-recreation building fund drive, trying to find out how the original structure at Hutton and Dunlap was financed.

That's when he came up with the very unfunny remark about shooting The Record editor.

Many residents will remember the incident well — Mrs. Russell Atchison, especially, because the editor was her father, Dick Baldwin.

In those days there were three scout troops in Northville. Usually they'd meet in a temporary school building behind the Main street high school (now junior high school). The depression was at its worst and WPA projects were being rushed into being to stimulate the economy.

So Orlow — and many other community-minded residents — decided to raise half of the necessary funds hoping the WPA would do the rest.

The American Legion owned the land where the building was to be erected. It traded the site to the village for another parcel of land.

In those days, Orlow recalls, the Legion was the real drive behind the scout program. Charles Schoutz, now of Baseline road, George Simmons, the Ten Mile road orchard farmer, and the late Harold White, were the most active Legionnaires in the scout program.

"One of our fund-raising projects was a harvest festival," Orlow went on. He remembered that Dr. L. W. Snow and Dr. A. A. Holcomb were working with Orlow in setting up a shooting gallery as a part of the special event in an empty building now occupied by the D&C Store. Heavy metal plates were erected in the rear of the building as a back-stop for the gallery.

Naturally, some of the workers had to practice before the gallery opened. Only instead of using the regular .22 cartridges, somebody brought in a box of high-powered bullets.

In those days The Record was located behind D&C in the building now occupied by the Carrington insurance agency.

Instead of the metal plates stopping the shots, they merely slowed them down and they whizzed across the alley through an open door into the Record printing shop.

It so happened that at this time Editor Baldwin was walking about in the shop and suddenly felt a pain in his back. Returning to his office he turned to one of the young ladies employed there and said, "I think I've been shot."

"You HAVE been shot, Mr. Baldwin — you're bleeding," she screamed.

When the ambulance rolled up to The Record, Orlow suddenly had a strange feeling that it might have a connection with the shooting gallery. During the excitement of halting the shooting in the gallery one of the marksmen shot himself in the hand — and he, too, was rushed to the clinic where a young, new doctor by the name of Russell Atchison was treating his father-in-law for a gun-shot wound.

Fortunately, the other projects to raise funds for the new scout building were less violent. "We raffled everything imaginable and sponsored all kinds of events, including boxing matches arranged by Dr. Snow," Orlow noted. It developed that about $7,000 was raised locally and the government came up with a like amount.

But the important point to the story is the fact that these men were working for the youngsters of that day. "We weren't just raising dollars for mortar and bricks, we were building men — and I'm really proud today when I see the results of this work," Orlow continued.

He pointed to some of those boys — Jack Stubenvoll, Bob Lyke, Monroe Weston, Ward Van Atta, Fred Warner Neal, Scott Cole, Frank Hunter, Tom Carrington, Jr., Lawrence Warren and Ralph Bogart — and many more. He remembered that Van Atta, Neal and Cole were Northville's first Eagle Scouts.

This hasn't been a story of Orlow Owen alone — but he typifies the men and women who have helped guide our youth toward a richer adulthood.

Northville's new scout-recreation building will be named for another such tireless worker in the field of girl scouting, Mrs. Alex (Jennette) Lawrence.

And to name a few more from the past and present, there are Phil Ogilvie, Wilson Funk, Fran Gazlay, Ed Welch, Bob Merriam, Ken Conley, Leonard Bogoraitis, Jake Morgan, Ray Gregerson, Bob Prom, Bob Visser, Stan Johnston, Bruce Turnbull, Dan Bolland, Dan MacDermid, Leonard Lucdike, Glenn Deibert, Dick Tunison, Jim LaRue, A. C. Carlson, and many, many more.

This is where you come in.

Councilman John Canterbury and a committee of 40 people are attempting to raise $12,000 to fully complete the new scout-recreation building. Soon they'll contact every resident by direct mail.

As you fill out your pledge card, you might recall the words of Orlow Owen — you're not giving dollars for bricks and mortar, you're helping to build better citizens for tomorrow.

(But no shooting gallery projects, please!)

See Rough Road Ahead for Romney

THE VICTORY of George Romney in the Michigan gubernatorial race may well prove to be just a beginning of his contests in state government.

Many political observers are predicting bigger battles lie ahead for the new Governor in his dealings with the all-Democratic State Administrative Board and the Legislature.

Republican gains in the Legislature, however, would seem to indicate he will have less trouble in this area than anticipated.

THE OTHER state officers, all elected on the Democratic ticket, have pledged their cooperation with the new chief of state. Any break in this pledge is likely to bring Republican legislators into closer sympathy with their titular leader than might be possible if he were working with a GOP Administrative Board.

Romney will be assured some measure of cooperation with Democratic Ad Board members since he will have considerable power over the budgets for their departments being considered in the Legislature.

GOP budget-writers who have been keeping the purse-strings tight for years are not going to let up to any great amount next year. But the new Governor is likely to get more ready acceptance of his budget recommendations than his Democratic predecessor could.

FORECASTS of a fight over a state income tax likely will never be borne out.

The nuisance tax package adopted by the Legislature this year is in considerable amounts boosting the revenue supply. Continuation of the increase in revenue during the next fiscal year most likely will mean Romney won't have to ask for a state income tax.

If he does propose total fiscal reform, including a state income tax, Democrats in the Legislature would be under heavy pressure to support it since they screamed so loudly in favor of such a program when their party was in power in the executive office.

UNFORTUNATELY Romney's strength at the polls was not as great as Republican leaders hoped it would be. In fact, the areas where he made gains were counted more as Swainson weaknesses than Romney strengths.

In the suburban communities around Detroit, Swainson made many enemies by vetoing the bill to protect the people from Detroit's income tax. In the Upper Peninsula, people who usually voted Democratic were unhappy that Swainson supported a Congressional reapportionment plan that would lessen their representation.

Romney will undoubtedly face both these challenges during his term.

CHANGES in the Legislature as the result of the recent vote show little except perhaps how few actual "swing districts" exist in the state.

Two of the changes reflect back to the Democratic losses in the Upper Peninsula and suburban areas. Republicans picked up the seat in Western Wayne County formerly held by Democratic Rep. Harvey Beadle of Redford, and the U.P. seat held by Democratic Rep. James Constantini of Iron Mountain.

In Monroe County, one of four districts generally considered to be a swing region, Republicans gained the seat held by the late William C. Sterling. Democrats were the victors in the Bay County district which was represented the last two years by Les Begick, R-Bay City.

The other two "swing" districts, in Saginaw and Muskegon Counties, remained as before, with a Republican coming from the out-county Muskegon district, and a Democrat maintaining the Saginaw seat.

CLOSED CIRCUIT television uses have increased in recent years, but a wider use is predicted for the future.

Within the next two months a year-long research project involving the use of closed circuit television for traffic control will come to an end. Findings of this research will be watched by traffic officials throughout the country as well as in Michigan.

The Detroit expressway experiment uses television cameras and variable signs to control traffic speeds and lane use. Traffic engineers a short distance away are able to control traffic on the freeway by keeping an eye on the road conditions and pushing buttons to regulate lane use at will.

WHILE at first it would appear closed circuit television would be effective only for highway use in the cities where traffic is heavy, State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie says this is not the case.

Mackie believes the experiment will be a major factor in future planning of automated highways and soon may be affecting rural areas.

"The immediate next step may be similar installations on some sections of rural freeways where monitored cameras could help spot stranded motorists on freeways in rural areas," he said. "The cameras likely would be mounted on drone helicopters patrolling the route."

THE USES of the electronic highway controls in cities are almost unlimited, Mackie predicts. "There may come a time when most surface streets will be part of the system."

"A running account of traffic loads could be kept on sensing devices and the information fed to a central computer," he said. "Changes could then be made automatically and instantly in phasing of traffic lights throughout the city."

A step beyond this might be a system of lighted symbols within a given community, connected to a computer and telling drivers the best routes, based on current traffic conditions.

Biggest Advertisers Lead Business Field

Babson Park, Mass., Advertising does not need to be defended against its critics; it can defend itself. I am quite aware that tremendous sums of money have been wasted in advertising, but think how much money has gone down the drain in drilling for oil or mining for gold.

When the right media and techniques are used in advertising, they can bring tremendous rewards, just as can drilling in oil-rich terrain or mining in promising lodes. Advertising is, of course, a risk, and it should be sold as such.

Chance Worth Taking Nevertheless, it is a risk well worth taking. I can think of few gambles more likely to pay off. It is obvious from the record that officials of American companies agree with me on this, so their outlays must have been profitable indeed. When the final total is figured for 1962, I expect that both national and local advertisers will have shelled out about $8 billion for ads in newspapers and magazines. This represents a most spectacular channeling of cash into newspaper advertising.

Proof of the success of advertising is found in its steady growth of popularity. Ten years ago, for example, expenditures for newspaper and magazine advertising totaled only $3 1/2 billion, while they amounted to only $1 1/2 billion just twenty years ago. For some years a steadily greater part of corporate advertising, and I am certain that this trend will continue over the years ahead.

It is interesting to note that, along the way, those concerns doing the greatest amount of advertising have nearly always been at or near the top in their fields.

Advertising Helps Everybody Some labor publications tend sometimes to complain that companies are putting too much money into this type of publicity. Union officials want higher wages for their members, and more and more expensive fringe benefits — and often think of advertising as mere diversion of money that should go to the employees in one form or another. Hence, company officials should make plain to their personnel the value of advertising in holding up production and keeping employment high.

A well-run firm is careful not to waste funds in profitless advertising. Results are always carefully studied, and directions are pursued that bring about greater sales, which in turn lead to larger payrolls.

Newspaper advertising is to a great extent responsible for our having the highest wage rates and the best standard of living in the world. There could be no mass selling without newspaper advertising. Mass production would be an impossibility without mass selling. Without mass production, our standard of living could not conceivably have reached its present historic height.

Smaller Cities; Important Many corporations located in or immediately outside of big cities place most of their outlays in national media, but more and more are recognizing the value of local placement. For instance, even some of the biggest concerns are giving more attention to small dailies and weeklies. I expect this tendency to increase over the coming years.

Surveys have indicated that people of small communities read advertisements with great care.

In fact, I should say that I still consider newspapers, both large and small, as a safe investment. This is particularly true where there is only one newspaper which controls a given area, with the focus in a small city.

True, production costs are moving upward, but it is still relatively easy to raise the price of a newspaper by a cent or two. People still want written news, and the more they pay for a paper the more careless had them from time to time. It is impossible to evaluate the seriousness of such thoughts through the mails and if this idea has been more than transient, I should suggest that you talk to your doctor about it. Your friend couldn't be more mistaken about self-destruction.

The commission of suicide is unrelated to a person's willingness or reluctance to discuss it. Talking about it is certainly no insurance policy. It is interesting to note, I think, that although people are often excused on the basis of "I can't help it" for all sorts of misdeeds and even serious crimes, suicide is always recognized as a conscious act which the individual wills to perform.

Yours truly,
Sandor Mudd, M.D.

Dr. Mudd Replies

Suicide Isn't the Answer

Dear Dr. Mudd:

I feel so depressed and blue and I have been thinking about suicide again. A friend told me that if you talk about it then you won't do it and that the only people who kill themselves are the ones who keep it to themselves and don't tell anyone.

I guess my problem is really in my marriage. Of course I've known that all along, but somehow I couldn't ever admit it to myself. At first we got along just fine and I couldn't have asked for a more perfect person as a husband. He was kind, helpful, and very loving and I thought how lucky I was because I had a perfect marriage.

But I was young and I guess I was a little too simple not to realize that things were different than the way I thought that they were.

It seems that my husband has been running around with this woman and has been doing this for years. You will never know how much my pride has been hurt by this. I faced him up to it the minute I found out and he openly admitted it. Then he said "What are you going to do about it?" and right there I saw a side of his nature I'd never seen before.

Well, you can imagine how this has changed things. He keeps telling me he loves me but I just can't bear the sight of him anymore. I feel disgraced and ashamed. But I don't know what to do.

I have a 13 year old girl who adores her father and if she ever found out what is going on, she'd die — so I can't let her know. But how can I keep up the pretense? Why did this all have to happen to me? I was so happy and so lucky and all at once the sky fell in.

J.J.

Dear J.J.:

Well, I think you have a right to feel blue and dejected. You have lived in the clouds for a long time, it would seem, and now at last you must face a hard, harsh reality. I really doubt very much that your married life has been as marvelous and successful as you claim.

For it is inconceivable that your husband would have been so chronically philandering had the picture of your life together been as rosy as you paint it!

Mature love is always reciprocal just as immature love is often one-sided with the lover disregarding or ignoring whether or not his love is returned by the one he adores. I suspect you are unfortunate in being both immature and naive. I don't know that anything can be offered in the way of help.

You are hardly in a position to make wise decisions, and yet you must decide whether or not you will continue the sham which has served as happiness for you all this time.

Now, in regard to your daughter: I doubt your daughter will be harmed as much by knowing of her father's failings as she will be by being constantly and continuously deceived by the two of you. Maybe she will be more willing to look life squarely in the face in the future if she finds her parents willing to do so at the present.

There is little hope for your husband, I should think. He has established what is for him a way of life — perhaps strenuous by another man's standards — but nonetheless he has found a mode of living pleasing to him. Unfortunately, his deception was discovered and I am sure he now wishes he had been at greater pains to keep his double life a secret.

Suicidal thoughts are quite common and almost everyone

Advertising and You

Occasionally I hear somebody say, "What is advertising doing to help me?" That is an easy question to answer. It is helping you, for one thing, to hold your job 52 weeks out of the year. It is helping to up your "take home" pay. It is increasing employment, so that your children too can get a good education. All of us should encourage newspaper advertising.

Some labor publications tend sometimes to complain that companies are putting too much money into this type of publicity. Union officials want higher wages for their members, and more and more expensive fringe benefits — and often think of advertising as mere diversion of money that should go to the employees in one form or another. Hence, company officials should make plain to their personnel the value of advertising in holding up production and keeping employment high.

A well-run firm is careful not to waste funds in profitless advertising. Results are always carefully studied, and directions are pursued that bring about greater sales, which in turn lead to larger payrolls.

Newspaper advertising is to a great extent responsible for our having the highest wage rates and the best standard of living in the world. There could be no mass selling without newspaper advertising. Mass production would be an impossibility without mass selling. Without mass production, our standard of living could not conceivably have reached its present historic height.

Smaller Cities; Important Many corporations located in or immediately outside of big cities place most of their outlays in national media, but more and more are recognizing the value of local placement. For instance, even some of the biggest concerns are giving more attention to small dailies and weeklies. I expect this tendency to increase over the coming years.

Surveys have indicated that people of small communities read advertisements with great care.

In fact, I should say that I still consider newspapers, both large and small, as a safe investment. This is particularly true where there is only one newspaper which controls a given area, with the focus in a small city.

True, production costs are moving upward, but it is still relatively easy to raise the price of a newspaper by a cent or two. People still want written news, and the more they pay for a paper the more careless had them from time to time. It is impossible to evaluate the seriousness of such thoughts through the mails and if this idea has been more than transient, I should suggest that you talk to your doctor about it. Your friend couldn't be more mistaken about self-destruction.

The commission of suicide is unrelated to a person's willingness or reluctance to discuss it. Talking about it is certainly no insurance policy. It is interesting to note, I think, that although people are often excused on the basis of "I can't help it" for all sorts of misdeeds and even serious crimes, suicide is always recognized as a conscious act which the individual wills to perform.

Yours truly,
