T. R. Carrington

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for Thomas Raymond Carrington, 75, one of Northville's best known businessmen and community leaders.

He had been ill since August 8 when he suffered a heart attack. He died Saturday morning at St. Mary hospital in Livonia.

Masonic services were conducted at Casterline Funeral Home with the Reverend Lloyd Brasure of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Interment was at Rural Hill cemetery.

Mr. Carrington started the Carrington insurance agency in 1934 and had continued to be active in the business until his death. His son, Charles, became a partner in the business in 1946. Last year Carl Johnson joined the firm as a partner.

Urge 4-Cent Christmas Card Mail

Northville Postmaster Lela Smith this week urged area residents to apply first-class postage to their Christmas cards.

Smith said use of four-cent stamps rather than three-cent third-class stamps would reduce the likelihood of disappointing friends and loved ones.

He explained that Christmas cards sent at the third-class rate of three cents each were formerly forwarded to a new local address if a change of address had been filed with the post office.

Under the present regulations, which went into effect last January, however, such cards are not forwarded to a new local address, he said. If undeliverable as originally addressed, they will be disposed of as waste unless the sender requests their return.

"Through the use of first-class postage — amounting to only one cent per card more than the third-class rate — cards may contain a written message, may be sealed, and will be forwarded or returned without additional charges," he said.

In anticipation of what may well be the largest Christmas mail ever, Smith suggested that mailers start their Christmas mail planning immediately.

Huge Sign To Record Scout $ $

If there's anyone in Northville who isn't aware of the drive to raise funds for the new Scout-Recreation building, they'll have trouble avoiding the fact during the next week.

By Friday a huge (16 feet, nine inches tall) thermometer will be erected on the city's Main street parking lot designated the amount contributed thus far to the campaign.

And next week an area-wide mail appeal is scheduled.

The decision to erect the thermometer and keep a running total of the donated funds was made last Thursday evening at a meeting of the campaign committee.

The campaign to raise some $12,000 to complete the $27,000 project currently stands at about the half-way mark, financially speaking.

It was given a boost Saturday night through the joint efforts of the Garden Club and Optimist Club. A dance following the Garden Club's Christmas Mail in the Community Building netted $350 for the fund.

The money came from tickets purchased for the dance and an "auction" at the dance of wreaths and other Christmas decorations prepared by the Garden Club.

A huge Christmas tree brought $75 from a group of bidders who then donated the tree for public use. It now stands in front of the Community Building.

Local girl scouts and brownies are hoping to do much more. They're currently selling tickets to a "Luncheon is Served" program scheduled for January 17 at Our Lady of Victory social hall.

Latest contributors reported by the committee include:

G. Zerbe, G. Woodworth and R. Shafer of Tri-West Products, Northville P.T.A. Council, Woman's International League for Peace, Northville Driving Club, Freydl's Cleaners, John Mach Ford Sales, O. L. of V. Holy Name Society, Harry Sedan, Ugashton Club, Dr. Linwood W. Snow, Mrs. Jean A. Cole, Northville Estates Civic Ass'n., Mr. and Mrs. Duane L. Butler, Northville Woman's Club, Marguerite Northrup Young, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Crump, Guernsey Farms Dairy, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Although he was active in politics and was frequently referred to as Northville's "Mr. Republican", Mr. Carrington never ran for office. He did serve as precinct delegate and enjoyed attending party conventions.

Mr. Carrington was the oldest living pastmaster of the Northville Lodge No. 186 F & AM having served as Worshipful Master in 1915. He was also a past High Priest of Union Chapter No. 55, R.A.M., and currently served as treasurer. He was a past commander of Northville Commandery No. 39 and a member of Eastern Star. He was also a member of the First Presbyterian church.

An active Rotarian, Mr. Carrington had a 20-year perfect attendance record broken only by his heart attack in August.

Mr. Carrington lived at 536 West Main street. He is survived by his wife, Rose; two sons, Thomas R., Jr., of Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and Charles F., of Northville; and four grandchildren, Mark, Tom and Jane of Pittsfield, and Ruth of Northville.

He was born November 27, 1887 in Northville the son of Stephen W. and Frances Spencer Carrington.

At Monday night's city council meeting Mayor A. M. Allen called for a moment of silent prayer in memory of Mr. Carrington. The council then visited the funeral home together following the meeting.

City's Library Contract Hit by Township Attorney

An agreement submitted to the township board by the city council on radio of the township of Northville dealing with proposed rental rates should the city provide new library facilities in its new city hall was given a rough reception by Township Attorney James Littell Tuesday night.

The attorney made it clear that he did not oppose the idea ("for to object to a library would be like advocating sin") but he termed the agreement document "not sufficiently well drawn and full of ambiguities."

He told the township board that it could legally enter into a contract with the city to share the cost of providing a library facility, but he recommended a revised contract containing more specifics.

"I'm not against the new library idea, but you must remember that you already have a site and you should therefore justify any change, rather than agreeing merely to help the city in its plan to get a new building," Littell cautioned.

In his specific criticisms of the proposed contract Littell listed: no provision for termination; failure to spell out formula as determined by the county on radio of the township of Northville dealing with proposed rental rates should the city provide new library facilities in its new city hall was given a rough reception by Township Attorney James Littell Tuesday night.

Board members generally agreed that they wished to cooperate with the city in the library project. But they also agreed with their attorney's appraisal of the contract. In defense of the city proposal Supervisor Clark said it was his understanding that it had been advanced as a preliminary document.

The board approved a motion by Supervisor Clark that Littell meet with City Attorney Philip Ogilvie to draft a new agreement.

The board also had a question of its own concerning costs under the proposed arrangement.

Specifically, the city has suggested that the township share with the city the operating costs of the proposed new library under a plan similar to that used in the present building.

Presently, however, the city and township own the library 54 per cent-46 per cent, respectively. The city would own the new building, which would be connected to the city hall. The city is seeking matching federal funds to construct the proposed $220,000 city hall-library-fire hall.

The city proposal estimated the cost of the library at $69,000. This figure was divided in half because of the matching federal funds. This total was then divided in accordance with city-township book use of the library, which now stands at 70 per cent-30 per cent. The net result is an annual rental to the township of $1,236. The township's share of the janitorial costs was estimated at $722.

The new arrangement would hike library costs to the township by the amount of the proposed rental.

In other business the township declined to contribute to the Scout-Recreation Building fund drive for lack of a motion by any member. A question of whether or not the township could legally contribute to such a project was raised, but the board did not ask Attorney Littell's opinion. Supervisor Clark and Trustee Donald Robinson expressed sympathy with the proposal. It was apparent, however, that the board felt its hands were legally tied.

The board voted to close township offices Monday, December 24, but Clerk Marguerite Northrup noted that it would be necessary to remain open Monday, December 31, the final day for filing petitions for the spring election.

The board also had a question of its own concerning costs under the proposed arrangement.

Obstacles Face Local Community College Efforts

Although Northville will find a community college at its very borders within two years, the possibility appears strong that the local school district will be unable to send students to the college as a participating member of the college district.

This fact came out of a talk with Eric Bradner, president of the Northwest Wayne County Community College, last week prior to his appearance before a P-TA-appointed committee that's studying the pros and cons of joining the community college.

There are presently petitions from Northville school district residents asking the community college board of trustees to annex the school district to the college district.

Bradner said these petitions would probably never be acted upon by the board of trustees as things presently stand.

He explained that while statutes concerning community colleges provide for annexation of an area to a college district, there is no provision for the annexed area to be taxed to support the college.

There is little likelihood the college would be interested in assuming the burden of enrollment from an area which was lending no financial support to the college, he noted.

The only solution for Northville, or any other community in a similar position, would be a change in the statute, Bradner said. He added that bringing the matter to the attention of the legislature would be the job of Northville.

But Bradner had a word of caution about hesitation. He said that if Northville didn't get moving, there's a chance it could be rendered ineligible to send students to any community college.

He explained that the Northwest Wayne County Community College is made up of public school districts — including Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City and Clarenceville.

No school district may join such a college district unless all of it is included, he said, and no area may be in two community college districts.

Bradner said the problem is that an effort is being made to establish a community college district including all of Oakland county.

The statutes provide that community college districts may be made up of either an entire county or a group of public school districts. Since there can be no overlapping of college districts, a problem exists wherever school districts such as Northville and Clarenceville cross county lines.

Because Clarenceville belongs to the Northwest Wayne County Community College district, the backers of the Oakland county college district are seeking legislation to permit formation of a county-wide district that leaves out only areas already in another college district.

Bradner said that should the Oakland county district be formed before Northville school district were annexed to the Northwest Wayne district, the Oakland portion of the Northville district would be included.

Because of taxing problems, he said, Northville school district would then be unable to join the Northwest Wayne county Community College district. Only students living in the Oakland portion of Northville district would then be able to attend a community college — probably near Pontiac.

At a meeting of the Northville P-TA community college study committee last week, Bradner showed slides and explained the building plans of the Northwest Wayne County Community College.

The campus, to be located on the south side of Seven Mile road in Livonia, across Haggerty road from Northville township, will be opened by fall, 1964, with four buildings. The approximately $4 million campus will be designed ultimately to handle about 3,200 students, he said.

Bradner said the board of trustees is now recruiting some 44 instructors for the opening, when they expect to have a first-year enrollment of about 1,000 students.

At the Northville committee's next meeting, State Senator Raymond Dzendzel and Representative elect Paul Chandler will discuss legislation needed to permit Northville to join the college district and pay its share of the college taxes.

The 10-member study committee is made up of representatives from each of Northville's Parent-Teacher associations. Chairman is Mrs. Eugene Cook of 118 South Ely drive.

A public report of its findings and the committee's recommendations will be made when it has finished the study.

Council Explores Interim City Hall

Northville's city council started looking ahead to a possible temporary city hall site Monday night — despite the fact it has not yet received word from the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Chicago on its bid for matching federal funds to construct a new city hall.

City Manager Bruce Potthoff was given permission by the council to explore the possibility of purchasing a house located at 122 North Wing street.

The site has been viewed by the city for several years as a likely entrance from Wing street to the city parking and alley area behind the First Methodist Church. Present access to Dunlap street from the church and could be lost in the event of a building expansion.

It has been proposed that the house, about one-half block from the present city hall, could be used for a city hall during the construction of the new building.

The council gave Potthoff the authority to negotiate with the owner. The property has been for sale for several years.

Manager Potthoff told the council that he had talked with federal agents concerning the grant for matching funds but that no decision had been reached. He said that one sheet of the city's request had to be returned to fix the city seal to the document.

The council also decided to write to Wayne county road commission authorities concerning the possible change of Main street from Griswold to Rogers from County to city status. The county has indicated that it would release that portion of the street, thus placing responsibility for maintenance with the city and turning over state highway fees to the city.

It was decided to write the county concerning needed repairs on the street and also to indicate that if the street is turned over to the city it should be accomplished before January 1 so that 1963 highway funds would go to the city instead of the county.

SIGNING UP — Making application for membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution is Mrs. Tom J. Thomas (right), while Mrs. Harry N. Deyo, registrar of the Sarah Ann Cochran chapter, Mrs. Claude Crusoe, state registrar, and Mrs. William Bake look on. Mrs. Thomas applied during a membership meeting held at Mrs. Bake's home last week.

DAR Holding Drive For New Members

The Daughters of the American Revolution are currently holding a membership drive, urging interested women who may be eligible to make application for membership.

At a meeting held last week in the home of Mrs. William Bake, 418 West Main street, prospective members heard an outline of the DAR's purposes and received information about membership.

A similar discussion will be held December 17 at the home of Mrs. Carl Bryan, 728 West Main street, along with a regular program.

Mrs. Bake, regent of the Sarah Ann Cochran Chapter, which serves Plymouth and Northville, asked that women interested in joining DAR call her at FI 9-1815 to arrange for attending the meeting.

The national society of the DAR is made up of about 184,000 women. They belong to 2,820 chapters located in the continental United States, Alaska, Canal Zone, Cuba, England, France, Hawaii, Italy, Mexico, Philippine Islands and Puerto Rico.

Primary membership requirements are that a woman be at least 18 years old and able to prove she is a direct descendant of a patriot of the revolutionary period who aided the cause of American independence. The society is based upon patriotic rather than aristocratic ancestry.

Founded in October of 1890, the DAR seeks to carry out historical, educational and patriotic objectives. Activities are directed by four national departments and 24 national committees.

Under its historical objective, the DAR attempts to "perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence" through a variety of activities.

These include establishment of monuments marking historical places, encouragement of research into history of the American revolution, preservation of historical information about the growth of the United States and passing the knowledge on to others.

The DAR's second objective is educational. Its purpose is promotion, "as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge, thus developing an enlightened public opinion."

The society operates two schools for underprivileged children of the deep south. It also helps support 11 other schools for underprivileged children or to aid the foreign born.

It spent nearly $451,000 on these projects in 1955-57.

Other educational activities include support for two schools for American Indians, publication of a DAR manual for citizenship to aid those seeking citizenship, and a host of awards and scholarships.

The DAR's patriotic objective is fulfilled through a number of committees dealing with such matters as national defense, resolutions, American music, community service and conservation.

The organization distributes information aimed at alerting members "to any situation which seems to hold potential danger to our Republic." The DAR Continental Congress each year forms the official policy of the organization through adoption of resolutions.

In the past, the DAR has advocated such things as military preparedness, efforts to destroy the communist conspiracy and abolish socialistic bureaucracy, outlawing the communist party as a political party, curtailment of foreign aid, opposition to federal aid to education, and opposition to any form of world government.

READERS SPEAK: Gives Credit For Good Job

To the Editor:

To set the "record" straight — not just the Northville Record, but everyone in general.

The Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Assoc. found their part in the Christmas Market on December 1st to be exciting, exhausting and rewarding, not just in the material results, but in the experience and satisfaction of real team work and co-operation between the nine other branches participating and our own members.

At times it must have appeared as though Northville had many cooks stirring the broth and titles were handed around with abandon, but in fairness to the really fine leadership the Northville Branch enjoyed may we put the proper title with the right name?

Christmas Market Chairman Mrs. Douglas Straith; Co-chairman, Mrs. F. S. Jennings, Mrs. E. O. Whittington; Staging, Mrs. Don Ware, Mrs. James Kiper; Ways and Means, Mrs. Edwin Mueller; Booth, Mrs. Ernest Wood; Tickets, Mrs. John Northup; Luncheon, Mrs. Clyde Whittlesey, Mrs. William Slattery; Demonstrations, Mrs. Merner Ellber; Hostesses, Mrs. Wayne McBride.

In fairness too, we'd like to add every member's name for each one contributed in some way. And we would most certainly include the many community business people who so generously helped when needed.

A long list of names is not possible so we'd like to take this opportunity to say "We appreciated you and thank you."

When a group has worked as hard as these people have and can say, "We'd do it again!" as they have, you know that it has been a successful project and a credit to the community.

Mustangs Slip in 52-46 Opener

A lack of scoring capabilities — more than likely overcome-able — resulted in the Northville Mustangs' 52-46 defeat at the hands of Clarkston in the opening game of the season last Friday night.

The local cagers and the Wolves nearly matched in everything but the scoring columns: Each team grabbed off 32 rebounds, while Northville gave up the ball on 18 mistakes and Clarkston flubbed 22 times.

The Mustangs outpaced Clarkston at the free throw line, hitting for an even 50 per cent, while the Wolves clicked 40 per cent of the time. But Clarkston outdid Northville on field goals, connecting 23 times while the Mustangs sunk 18 of 48 attempts for a disappointing 37 per cent average.

Clarkston opened scoring with a free throw just seconds after the game began. Northville Guard Craig Bell dropped in a free throw to tie the game and then pushed the locals ahead a minute later with a two-pointer.

A tight zone defense, with Guard Dan Bishop doubling teaming the ball handler kept Clarkston to the outside throughout the quarter, holding down their scoring.

Northville's lead grew to seven points, the largest of the game, shortly before the end of the quarter when Forward Bill Chellis sunk a free throw — the only point he scored — to make it 12-5.

The period ended with Northville leading 14-9.

With the second period just over a minute old, Clarkston tied the game 14-14 on a pair of free throws.

The Mustang defense then tightened considerably while rebounding became as strong as it had been in the opening quarter, and Northville pulled ahead, gaining a six-point lead by midway through the period.

But in the last three minutes of the half, with a tired Bishop bunched with three fouls, Clarkston bounced back, tying the game at 24-24 before the buzzer sounded.

Northville suffered its worst quarter of the game as the second half opened. The Mustangs scored only six points before the third period ended. Clarkston added 11, and led 35-30 as the final stanza began.

Mustang scoring rebounded, as Northville enjoyed its best quarter of the game during the closing minutes. But Clarkston kept pace basket for basket, connecting for a total of 17 points while Northville picked up 15.

Northville Mentor Dave Longridge, who last year opened his coaching career with a phenomenal 20-1 record of regular and post-season play, pointed out that lack of scoring by Mustang forwards hurt their game the most.

He noted that Tom Swiss contributed only seven points, the same as Bob Boyle, while Chellis added only one.

He praised Bell's booming 23 points — best of the game — and Bishop's scrappy defense. He also pointed out that the five-foot, four-inch Bishop connected for five points.

"If we had the kind of scoring balance we should," he said, "any time Bishop picks up five points we should win."

Despite the loss, Longridge was still optimistic about the season. He pointed out that the Mustangs had only two regulars from last year playing Friday night.

With the addition of spark-plug Jim Juday, now out with a football injury, and some experience, there's still a good chance for a successful season, he added.

The Mustangs take on their second Wayne-Oakland league rival — likely to be one of the toughest this year — when they challenge Bloomfield Hills tomorrow (Friday) night in their first away game.

Longridge said the Barons boast a fast-running club with three and sometimes four players capable of scoring in double figures. He's hoping a combination of defense and a sharp or offensive attack will help the locals top Bloomfield.

Saturday night the Mustangs face an equally tough rival when they play host to Plymouth. The junior varsity game is scheduled to begin at 6:30, with the varsity tilt following at 7:30.

STANDINGS

In the first week of Wayne-Oakland league play last Friday, predicted strong teams ended up as winners. Bloomfield Hills overwhelmed Clarenceville 56-20, West Bloomfield bombed Brighton 57-23, and Holly scalped Milford 50-39.

Men's League Needs Cagers

Northville Recreation Director Ken Conley this week asked that all men interested in joining this year's basketball league attend a meeting at the community building tonight (Thursday) at 7:30.

He said the league would attempt to form teams and get its season underway at tonight's meeting.

Conley also announced that the adult recreation program on Tuesday nights is well underway but could have more participation.

Volley ball, ping-pong, shuffleboard, golf practice, badminton and calisthenics are among the activities offered in the adult program.

Local Halfbacks Gain Recognition

A pair of Northville halfbacks received honorable mentions in the announcement last weekend of the coaches' All-State football nominations. Joe Hay and Tom Swiss, both leading ground gamers and top scorers for the Mustangs, were among the honorable mention backs. Both are seniors and have played varsity ball since they were eligible.

Mustang Matmen Fall To Stronger Cranbrook

Northville's wrestling squad opened its season Tuesday afternoon by falling to a 15-40 loss to a stronger Cranbrook mat crew.

The Mustangs had only two wins, which were nullified by a pair of forfeitures, one decision and one draw. All but one of the remaining wrestlers lost by being pinned.

Mike Brandenburg, wrestling at 95 pounds, and 127-pound Riel Rebitzke were the only locals able to drop their opponents. Russ Nichols won a decision over his 112-pound opponent, and 151-pound Bill Adams battled to a two-point draw.

Ron Rebitzke lost a decision in the 133-pound class, while 103-pound Tim Horsinger, 120-pound Bob Steeper, 175-pound Bob Orr, 180-pound Jerry Burns and heavyweight Larry Spangler gave up pins.

Northville's 148 and 145-pounders were not able to make their weights and had to forfeit.

Coach Jack Kreiner said that besides the two forfeits, several of his grapplers had problems making their weights. He said the effort weakened a couple wrestlers and gave several others a poor pre-match outlook.

But Kreiner was quick to add

Yippie!

In Novi Courts

A Detroit woman charged with practicing nursing without a license was bound over to circuit court following an examination held last week in Novi Justice of the Peace court.

Mrs. Helen L. Quall was ordered to go before circuit court by Justice Robert K. Anderson. She was involved in practice with a doctor, who was bound over several weeks ago for practicing after his license had been revoked.

In other court action last week, Conrad P. Murray, 32, of Harper Woods, was found guilty of a charge of reckless driving and was fined $75.

Officers said he was weaving back and forth across the centerline on 12 Mile road his charge had been reduced from drunk driving.

Donald H. C. Gow, 20, of Livonia, paid $25 after pleading guilty to reckless driving last month on 13 Mile road.

Lonny C. Smythe, 26, and James R. Rush, 20, both of Detroit, pleaded guilty to being disorderly persons at the New Casino two weeks ago. Smythe was fined $10, while Rush paid $15.

Eight youths pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of alcoholic beverages, and were fined a total of $210. They were Joseph Clanton, 19, Darryl A. Bonds, 18, William D. Wheeler, 18, Louis Senia, 17 and William C. Way, 20, all of Detroit, and Marvin R. Wilkinson, 18, of Livonia, Willard A. Paterson, 19, of Pontiac and John E. Lane, 20, of Ypsilanti.

Dangerous Intersection

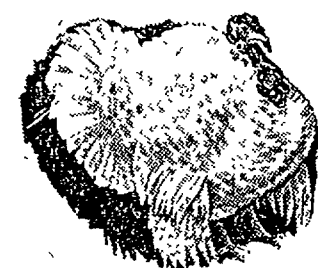

To the Editor:
Since three of Northville's largest business places, Manufacturers National Bank, Kroger and A&P stores are located in the vicinity of Hutton and Dunlap streets, I am curious to know if the City Fathers shop in these places by Helicopter, or if they shop in Northville at all.

One would not have to be an expert to know that the turn at Hutton and Dunlap should have a center line painted to divide the highway, because most of the drivers cut the left corner in making this turn almost causing head on collisions.

Log Cabin, 142, Won't Die

Its roof has collapsed beneath years of snow, ice and rain, and its huge white oak logs have cracked and swollen into decay.

But the log cabin clings wearily to life, bowing closer and closer to the earth but stoutly refusing to give up completely after nearly 142 centuries.

The Washtenaw county relic stands alone, unprotected in a field off West Seven Mile road where a Northfield township pioneer built it about 1819 — 143 years ago!

When David Meech assembled the small, hewn log house, Seven Mile road was no more than a narrow, well-trodden Indian trail between Pontiac and Whitmore Lake. Only the most hardy men and women dared live here where white man was an uninvited guest of friendly but suspicious Indians.

But Meech built the crude house anyway, on a tract of land to which he held a title from the government. He and his family lived here for close to 15 years until in 1835 he sold it to Hiram Godfrey.

For some reason Godfrey chose to sell the property and house the same year to Hiram G. Warren. Warren too sold it in 1835 to James Conley.

Since then the house and property has exchanged hands many times. And over the years it has served as both home and barn. Smith O'Brien, the present co-owner, recalls that it was used to house pigs and sheep. Later, a new floor was built and the interior cleaned and again it became a dwelling for humans.

To the original log structure was added a frame addition in 1891 by one of the Conley family.

A doorway connected the two buildings, making it into one large, comfortable home. Although the building (considering both now as a single dwelling) was relatively new to the ground, a stairway led to cramped attic quarters. The traditional stone fireplace, gone long ago, stood in the log section of the building.

A shed also was added to the original structure. It joined the log section at the rear. Little is known of the original inhabitants of the house. But a descendant of James Conley, who purchased the home in 1835, still lives in this area in the person of Edward Fitzgerald, Salem township clerk.

Fitzgerald is a grandson of five children, including Edward and Daniel Fitzgerald (Daniel has always been a symbol of courage, characteristic of the early inhabitants of Michigan and the frontiers of the United States).

To Mr. and Mrs. Conley were born five children. All were born in the original log section of the house. But of these five children, only one survived to adulthood. While living in the house, four sons died of diphtheria — a plague that took the lives of many early inhabitants of this region.

The surviving child, a daughter, was named Catherine. She was Fitzgerald's mother. Mrs. Conley, after the death of her husband, later married Daniel Donovan, a Civil War veteran who lost an arm in the Battle of Antietam. Before her second marriage, Mrs. Conley was forced to give up the house and she moved to live with her daughter's family. She lived until shortly after the turn of the century, dying at the age of 86.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was born to Mrs. Conley and her second husband, Donovan, had a daughter, Mary, who later married Timothy McCarthy.

NOVI BOARD OF EDUCATION

President	John MacBride
Secretary	Walter Ambinder
Treasurer	David Fried
Trustee	Arthur Heslip
Trustee	Russell Taylor
Superintendent	Thomas Culbert

Statement From Superintendent

The past year saw the Novi Community Schools making progress in meeting the changing financial and curriculum needs of the modern day school. The citizens of the Novi Community School District approved a 4½ mill increase in millage for operating purposes in June after defeating a 6 mill increase request in April.

This increase in local financial support will permit the Novi School to operate in a balanced budget this year and to show some improvement in the Junior High Curriculum. Physical Education classes for both boys and girls is being offered to all Junior High Students this year. In addition, other extra curricular activities such as Chorus, Journalism Club, etc. are available for those students who wish to participate in such.

In January, the Board of Education made final payment on the 80 acres purchased for a new secondary school building. The Board must now enter into an immediate building program to solve the problem of providing facilities and a program for students beyond grade 8.

Many problems of providing buildings and funds for the operation of schools lie ahead for the community. These problems must be met. They can be solved in an intelligent, sensible manner with Community support and Board of Education cooperation.

THOMAS CULBERT

THE YEAR AHEAD 1962 - 63

IN THE YEAR AHEAD — the following problems must be studied and solved by your Board of Education and the Citizens of the Community:

Secondary School facilities beyond the 8th grade must be provided for the Novi School Children. Plans for such a program have already been inaugurated by your Board of Education and approval of a Bond Issue for constructing a new Building will be sought from the citizens early in 1963.

RESOLUTION adopted by the Novi Board of Education October 10, 1962

WHEREAS: The Novi Board of Education has purchased and paid for an 80 acre school site for the building of a new secondary school, and

WHEREAS: Written notice has been received from the Northville Board of Education that they definitely will not accept Novi 8th grade students after June, 1964 and have indicated an inability to provide for them in September, 1963, and

WHEREAS: Consultation with a representative of the State Department of Public Instruction encouraged Novi to proceed with a Building Program that might be used to educate grades 7, 8 and 9 immediately and flexible enough to be developed into a complete High School Program with a future addition if the need arises, now therefore be it

RESOLVED: that the Novi Board of Education proceed immediately to engage an architect to be commissioned to develop a total secondary building plan to be developed in two parts, Part I to provide facilities for grades 7, 8 and 9 and to be built immediately, and Part II to be an addition to Part I at a later date if required to provide additional facilities for grades 10, 11 and 12.

Board of Education Vote: Fried—Yes, Taylor—Yes, Heslip—Yes, Ambinder—Yes, MacBride—Yes.

A 2.5 mill OPERATING LEVY will expire in Dec. 1962. The Board of Education must seek approval of a replacement operating millage from the voters at an election this coming year.

Continuous study and evaluation must be made of Curriculum offerings to keep pace with the needs of our children.

Our Lady of Victory Church, Northville

"The First Commandment"

It is true that people dislike the very idea of being dependent upon others. This is partly because they confuse lawful authority with tyranny, slavery with necessary subjection to others. But we know that no human being is absolutely independent. The author of the world alone is self-sufficient. All things else, man included, are dependent upon and subject to their maker. God made this plain in the First Commandment: "I am the Lord, thy God... thou shalt not have strange gods before me." Our first duty is divine worship. This worship is active recognition of an evident truth; it is an act of justice - giving God what belongs to Him. Men have always realized the supremacy of God and their own dependence and have consecrated certain actions, such as prayer, adoration, and sacrifice as the expression of the highest reverence for God and their own complete subjection. Every act of prayer to God is a step closer to God, a lifting of our minds and hearts to Him, not merely our emotions and feelings. Prayer does not change God's will. It fulfills God's will as expressed in the First Commandment.

pressed in the First Commandment.

Adoration means giving God the supreme honor and recognition which is due to Him alone. Here again, it is the mind and heart of man that adores. Obviously we can adore God anywhere but certain places are set aside in order that our worship will be more effectual.

By sacrifice we give an offering to God; this sacrifice is an external act by which we express the adoration, gratitude, reparation, and the petition which are hidden in our minds and hearts. In the Old Testament the law of God designated the specific forms which sacrifice should take. In the New Testament, now that the supreme sacrifice of Jesus Christ, the Redeemer, has been offered for all mankind on the cross, Catholics continue to offer the sacrifice of the Savior daily in what is called "the Sacrifice of the Mass."

These acts of worship - prayer, adoration and sacrifice - enable us to fulfill our debt of justice to God, the First Commandment; they give God His just due but they also help us, in that they give us a peace of mind, courage, strength of spirit. They give us a keener sense of justice and appreciation of the rights of our fellow-men, when we pay and respect His rights.

It is one thing to be superstitiously religious; it is another to be irreligious. Mr. Ingersoll pulled out his watch and dared God, if He could, to strike him dead within five minutes. He had no good reason to expect God to act upon this dare. Nor is there any good reason for the action of a student who throws himself directly upon divine action by praying to God for success in his examinations, while not bothering to study. God is not subject to the insulting demands of His creatures and He helps those who help themselves. The self-confessed atheist is irreligious, but so also is the man who does not deny God but consistently disregards Him. He does not "go in" for worship of God because he thinks it is unnecessary. He doesn't object to religion - he is neutral. But according to the First Commandment, religion is one thing about which no man, who thinks at all, can be neutral. "You are either for me or against me," says the Lord.

OUT OF THE PAST

ONE YEAR AGO

November 30, 1962

—Northville moved one step closer to a 25 per cent special assessment for paving of several streets Monday night as the city council approved the measure. The vote was 3-2, with Councilwoman Mrs. Beatrice Carlson and Councilman Richard Juday dissenting. Another public hearing on the assessment is needed before a special tax roll is approved.

—Students at Our Lady of Victory school will begin full-day classes for the first time this fall on Monday, if lockers for the new school addition are installed in time. The 270 students have been attending half-day sessions while construction of four new classrooms has been underway.

—Members of Northville township's newly created planning commission elected Gunnar Stromberg as president at an organizational meeting Tuesday evening. The six-man body replaces the township zoning board.

—The Novi village council Monday night approved the recommendation of the planning board for adoption of a thoroughfare master plan. The plan is, in effect, a map of the village depicting what type of streets and roads are planned and where they will be located.

FIVE YEARS AGO

November 26, 1957

—Northville school district residents should brace themselves for a minimum increase of 60 per cent when they open their winter tax envelopes next week. The boost will come from an increase in the state equalized value of the school district from $10.5 million to over $18 million.

—The job of solving Northville's complex tax inequities between its Wayne and Oakland county sections was started this week by city manager John Robertson. He began a house-to-house reappraisal of the Oakland portion of the city, to match the recently completed reappraisal of the Wayne portion.

—Final details to provide day school training for mentally retarded children were being completed this week at the Wayne county training school. The program will serve the Northville, Plymouth, Livonia, South Redford, Redford Union and Wayne school districts.

—Novi incorporation officials were nearly finished this week with the mountain of paperwork connected with changing the township to a village. Walter Tuck, chairman of the incorporation committee, said petitions and census forms are about complete and may be filed with the county in the next week or so.

—The continued record sales pace set by the Continental Mark III, produced at the Wixom Lincoln plant, has brought an increase in production schedule planning, with overtime of at least five hours a man a week.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

November 28, 1947

—Northville music lovers will again have an opportunity to take part in or attend the annual presentation of "The Messiah" this Christmas. Director Leslie G. Lee has announced that rehearsals are now underway, and extended an invitation to area residents to join in the event.

—N. M. Lazar, president of the Northville library chess club, last week accepted an official charter from the executive secretary of the United States chess federation.

—The Petz Brothers Studebaker dealership will open its new salesroom and parts department this Saturday. The dealership is located on Plymouth avenue.

—The Northville high school senior class will hold its annual senior prom this Friday night. Nate Fry and his orchestra will provide music for the yearly highlight. The decoration theme has remained a tight secret.

—"Home Sweet Homicide" is the first presentation of the dramatic group of the recreation department, to be staged shortly after the holidays. The play was written by Ann Reynolds and is based on a novel by Craig Rice.

—The Northville Kennel Club's first dog show will be held a week from Sunday at the Marimac farm located on 10 Mile road at Beck road. The newly-organized group will hold a show for all breeds recognized by the American Kennel club.

November 26, 1937

—St. Paul's Lutheran church of Northville was filled to capacity twice Sunday as crowds of parishioners gathered to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the founding of the local church.

—Milford felt the heavy hand of the union last week when seven non-union laborers were discharged at the construction site of the Ford plant because they did not hold union cards. The men, all Milford workmen, were sent off the job after union representatives objected to employment of the non-union help.

—Dad will dig deeper into the pockets of his jeans for the price of the family's Thanksgiving turkey than he did a year ago, a survey of local food markets shows. Turkeys and other fowl are selling for six to eight cents a pound more than in 1936, but cranberries and other accessories are lower.

—Northville's high school choir, under the direction of Leslie G. Lee, will present a concert of Christmas music next month at the newly-completed First Presbyterian church of Plymouth. The program is one of a series being held to dedicate the sanctuary.

'Fee' Judges Abolished In Proposed Constitution

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 19 in a series about the proposed new Michigan Constitution. Additional articles will appear in subsequent weeks.

Michigan will continue to have courts of jurisdiction below the circuit court level under the terms of the new constitution, even though the document specifically abolishes the offices of Justice of the Peace and Circuit Court Commissioner within five years after its adoption.

The setting up of a new state system of courts of limited jurisdiction is left to the legislature by provisions of the new constitution. If such courts are not designated by the legislature as "courts of record" their judges need not be lawyers.

The new constitution requires that all judges, including those in courts of limited jurisdiction, be salaried employees. The fee system for the compensation of judges is abolished if the new document is approved by the people at the polls on April 1, 1963.

Debates in the judicial committee and on the floor at the Constitutional Convention indicate that the fee system of compensation was one of the principal objections to the Justice of the Peace system in Michigan. A majority of the delegates felt that it was poor practice to gauge a judge's pay by the volume of his work. Cases were cited in which competition among lower courts appeared to be detrimental to proper judicial processes.

The proposed constitution provides the legislature with a five-year period within which to re evaluate the entire system of courts of limited jurisdiction and to develop a lower court structure better adapted to the needs of the people and the ends of justice.

Qualifications of judges for the lower courts will be a matter for legislative determination, but the framers of the new constitution recognized that in some of the more sparsely-settled sections of the state sufficient lawyers might not be available to staff necessary judicial positions.

The new document provides that only lawyers will be eligible for Justices of the Supreme Court and judges of the court of appeals and circuit courts. New probate judges must also be lawyers, but non-lawyers serving as probate judges at the time of adoption of the new constitution may serve the remainder of their terms and be eligible for reelection.

Another judicial provision in the new constitution would permit the legislature to combine two or more counties into a probate district, if such a procedure is approved by a majority of the voters in each of the counties involved. It also permits the legislature to provide for the combination of the office of probate judge with any judicial office of a court of limited jurisdiction within a county.

These permissive provisions are included to make possible better administration of these courts in the smaller counties of the state.

The term of office for probate judges is increased from four to six years under the terms of the new document.

NORTHVILLE

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

The front page of this week's edition reports the death of Northville's "Mr. Republican" — Thomas Raymond Carrington.

Tom was born and raised in Northville, spent more than 50 years working in its business district, and was undoubtedly the most familiar figure to stride its sidewalks.

He possessed a remarkable memory and loved to talk about the early days when he was a boy working in a grocery store. He held great respect for the community's leaders and soaked up every word as they discussed town business around a pot-bellied stove.

Several months ago Tom sat down at his desk to write a history of Northville as he remembered it. We had asked him to do this for publication.

Still active in his business, Tom was too busy at income tax time to undertake the chore, but promised he'd get at it as soon as possible.

He had completed two handwritten pages when he was stricken by a heart attack last August.

No one, of course, could complete the story of Northville as Tom saw it — from boyhood until death at 75.

For nearly every building, street or person of long residence in the community contained a recollection for Tom from the past.

He loved his community dearly and gave unselfishly of his time to help make it a better home for all.

He devoted full effort to every organization to which he belonged — and there were many. Until his illness Tom had not missed a Rotary meeting in 20 years. And although he had given up the chairmanship of the city's planning commission, he still attended meetings regularly as an active member.

Tom Carrington was not a complex man. He neither drank nor smoked. He knew what he liked and what he did not like. Yet he did not antagonize those with whom he did not agree.

He was a Republican who supported his chosen party and its candidates. But he liked Democratic Congresswoman Martha Griffiths, too. This respect was returned by Mrs. Griffiths who visited him when he was ill.

Most of all, Tom Carrington liked Northville — well enough to stay here all his life.

He recognized his green pastures and devoted a lifetime to making them greener for us all.

Competition for the Christmas shopping dollar is a contest that becomes keener every year. Modern merchandizing offers shoppers free parking, delivery service, selection galore and nary a shopper is missed as powerfully prepared advertisements reach the home via newspapers, handbills, radio and television.

We believe, of course, that shoppers should support their hometown merchants. And we know that they can find a good selection at prices to compare with any.

But beyond this, the local merchants always try to give that extra measure of personalized service. And, although their resources may not equal those of the large shopping centers, they also do their best to reward local shoppers with a special Christmas prize.

This year's is a dandy, we think. Its 20 gift certificates worth $25 each. In addition, shoppers have a chance to win one of 20 individual gifts each week during the Christmas promotion.

You'll be helping yourself and your community if you shop at home this Christmas.

To find out how to win the prizes, turn to page four of this section.

Demo Power Could Fade

Babson Park, Mass. — I write this column for two reasons: First, as a comment on the recent election. Second, for its use as a clipping when the history of the Democratic Party is written.

Early Interests in Politics.

This is my story. During World War I, I was in Washington as the head of the Labor Department's Information and Education Service. I had an entire building there with several assistants. Shortly after the war ended, President Wilson was suddenly taken ill; but I continued friendly connections with the White House and I was used by both parties to get funds from the Appropriations Committee.

Owing to President Wilson's sickness, the popularity of the Republican Party, and the election of President Harding by a Republican landslide, the Democratic Party gradually disintegrated and got very few votes.

Furthermore, this was when Vice President Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts, who was a personal friend of mine, became President following the sudden death of President Harding.

Payment of Rent

Before I left Washington, I called upon my old friends of both parties. I found that the Democratic Party had a little room in the Press Building for which they had not paid their rent for three months. A letter of eviction had just been received that morning demanding $120 cash! It happened that I was the only one of the crowd who could raise the cash to pay the back rent. I gladly gave $120 to them.

Some time afterward I received an invitation from Al Smith, the coming Democratic candidate, to attend a dinner to help raise some funds. To my great surprise I was introduced by the Chairman as "the man who saved the Democratic Party."

Naturally, I was much embarrassed. (To look back, this story seems incredible.) Al Smith was nominated in 1928. The Republicans, however, won and Herbert Hoover became President. The stock market crash came in 1929 followed by the business panic in 1931 and 1932. Then the Democrats were again successful, electing Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932. He served three and a fraction terms, and was succeeded by Harry S. Truman. Mr. Truman concluded Mr. Roosevelt's fourth term and was later re-elected, followed by Dwight D. Eisenhower.

GOP Today

At the present time, certain elements of the Republican Party feel that the Democrats, who preach the New Frontic and the Welfare State, have come in to stay. The young Republicans feel that their party's old conservative principles are outdated. They are trying to imitate the Democrats as led by President Kennedy and his family.

This story of what happened to the Democrats under the Wilson Administration should be a lesson to both parties. Politics are very uncertain. Furthermore, much depends now upon the life of such men as our Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Adenauer of West Germany, deGaulle of France, and especially Khrushchev of Russia and Mao of China.

Price of Democracy

Of course, Democracy and Freedom are the goal for which we all are seeking. But my column of November 15, 1962 shows the uncertainty of progress. It is a slow and tedious struggle. It is much more uncertain since we have become so dependent upon international conditions. The airplane for travel, the wireless for communications, and now the new space developments, are making even "going to the moon" a matter for businessmen and political leaders to consider.

When someone asks me whether a landing upon the moon could affect business in this country, I reply, "Not if we find nothing of value on the moon. But, if we find quantities of gold, or diamonds, or some new elements, it could result in a great new boom in this country like the 'gold rush' in 1848."

When we realize that it once took two months for ships to go from New York "around the Horn" to San Francisco, while the astronaut claim it will only take three or four days to go to the moon, we should be slow to forecast the future. We are living in a different age.

If such sudden overturns in the two great parties could occur when we were influenced only by conditions in the United States, what could happen today when we are a world power, and even seeking the moon? Hence, the moral of today's column is that the Democrats must not be too sure of their recent welfare and Cuban successes, and the Republicans must not be discouraged if conservatism is temporarily unpopular.

Big changes sometimes come suddenly.

Dr. Mudd Replies

My Marriage Seems 'Flat'

Dear Dr. Mudd:

I have some personal problems which have come between me and my husband. Sometimes they have been worse than at others and about five years ago they got so bad we tried a separation for awhile and were thinking about a divorce.

Finally, with our minister's help, we got back together so that from the outside our marriage looks good, but from the inside where I can see it, only prayer holds it together. I love my husband dearly but then something happens inside me and I don't feel anything any more. If my husband and I didn't get along so well in every other way, we never would have stuck it out together.

It's hard on him, too, and I get to feeling so guilty at times. I even think he would be better off if I weren't here, or if he had married someone else. Of course, I know deep down that that isn't true and I know that he and the children need me but I can't help thinking I feel like there is something missing in my life and like I'm always looking for it but never finding it.

I don't really know what it could be. It's just a feeling. I used to think that if only I had married a different man than my husband, it would be different with me now. I used to think that maybe if I had said "yes" to the first man who wanted me instead of waiting for "Mr. Right" that I wouldn't have all this restless feeling.

I owe my minister a lot of gratitude because he saved our marriage. But it takes more than what he can do. He gives good advice I'm sure, but it doesn't change the way I feel. Do you think I should go to a marriage counselor? Could he help me with my problem?

Dear D.E.E.:

No, I don't think you should seek help from anyone who advertises the fact that his professional competence and ability is limited to "marriage counseling."

If you want help — if you wish to understand the basis for your difficulties, you should ask your doctor to send you to an appropriately trained physician — a psychiatrist. It would be my opinion that a psychoanalyst should be considered as the suitable person to help you.

You must understand, of course, that treatment will be long, intensive, and arduous. You probably will have to go four or five times a week. That may seem surprising to you especially since you are "not sick" and may feel that your illness doesn't warrant such an intensity of treatment. Most of the difficulties such as yours, as well as all others which one encounters, invariably have their roots back in early childhood.

It is not necessarily that a single incident back years ago provoked the responses which you describe so carefully and cautiously, but it may be that the everyday living experience of your childhood acted as a traumatic factor. There is no easy answer to these problems. There is no pill, no "shot", no magical word which can give relief and restore normalcy. Your appliness, if not the continuation of your marriage, is at stake. You will ultimately have to decide whether or not you wish to embark upon a psychoanalysis. It is a big decision to make. Perhaps you feel you can live with your situation for the rest of your days. Perhaps you don't feel you can afford such an intensive and expensive series of treatments. In that case, there are several possibilities, one of which is becoming the analyst (this is what people who are in analysis are called by those who are analyzing them) of a doctor who himself is being trained to become a psychoanalyst recognized by the American Psychoanalytic Association.

Your letter, of course, does not provide much in the way of clues as to whether or not you would be considered a candidate for this very specialized intensive type of psychotherapy.

Yours truly
Sandor Mudd, M.D.

Propose Later Primary to Cut Campaigns

A LATER PRIMARY election will be proposed to the Legislature next year with the backing of Secretary of State James M. Hare, Michigan's chief elections officer.

His staff, which conducts the elections, however, is not wholeheartedly behind his proposal. The elections division of Hare's office is headed by Robert M. Montgomery, former Republican member of the Legislature.

Montgomery and Hare, despite their different political leanings, usually see eye to eye on ways to improve the election system in Michigan. Hare prides himself on this bipartisan cooperation in the elections office, one of the most important in state government.

ON THE QUESTION of primary dates, however, the two administrators hold opposing views.

Hare contends Michigan should return to a September primary to cut down the length of campaign time required of a candidate. He sees it from the candidate's point of view primarily. He points out that with the exception of the war years, the primaries from 1940 through 1950 were conducted in mid-September rather than the early August dates now set.

Montgomery argues that a September election, with the present number of voters and complications which could arise from a statewide recount, would present a hardship to the people. His main argument is that elections are set to suit the needs of the voting public, not the candidates.

"CANDIDATES, who may be worthy, get overexposed in the current 90-day campaigns," says Hare. "They lose friends and fail to influence people. The campaigns are needlessly expensive too, and few candidates can really afford them."

Montgomery argues that the candidates "should have the sense" not to campaign the full period. "If they were wise they would campaign for the primary, then take a brief rest after that before starting the campaign for the general election."

On the other side, Hare says, modern communications and machines eliminate the problems predicted by Montgomery if the primary were pushed back to September.

PLANS ARE progressing rapidly for the 1963 Michigan Week observance, still some 6 months away, according to General Chairman Herbert G. Davenport.

The general theme "Science and Research for Our Future" will be applied to each of the participating areas: education, industry, business, and other interests.

The emphasis on the future impact of science and research on our state is expected to draw considerable interest, Davenport said. This should be particularly true in light of the many demands being placed on Michigan industry to look to the future trends for survival.

MICHIGAN communities seem to be getting a good share of Federal funds appropriated as "job-creators" under the accelerated public works program, but state officials hope more effort will bring new rewards.

During the first few weeks of announcements of awards for local project, word came from Washington that more than $15 million in grants is earmarked for Michigan communities.

Now, the State Economic Development Department is putting forth an all-out effort to help outstate communities qualify for funds under the gigantic appropriation program.

TO HELP Michigan communities qualify for the grants, and thus gain immediate employment in labor surplus areas, the Michigan department is holding a series of meetings with local officials throughout the state.

Representatives of the regional offices of the Community Facilities Administration and Area Redevelopment Administration are cooperating with state officials in conducting the workshops in the outstate area.

"EARLY experience under the program has indicated many local officials did not have sufficient information to prepare applications fully," said Robert J. Byers, acting director of the Michigan department. "Half or more of the early applications were returned to communities for more information."

"It is to eliminate this delay that the workshops are being held," he said. "Time is of the essence if the program is to achieve its goal and if Michigan people are to be provided jobs."
