

Federal Government Approves $137,000 Grant For Immediate Construction of City Hall, Library

Northville has won approval of its application for matching federal funds to construct a new city hall and library. Word was received by this newspaper late Tuesday evening in a telegram from U.S. Senators Patrick V. McNamara and Philip A. Hart confirming the $137,000 grant. Specifically, the telegram said: "Northville will receive $137,000 for construction of new building to contain city offices, fire and police departments and library facilities. Construction to begin May 1 and will provide 240 man months of labor." The news was greeted enthusiastically by Mayor A. M. Allen. "I'm really happy," said the mayor. "This is something Northville has dreamed about for years. Certainly credit must go to many people who have worked hard to bring this about." Then the mayor hung up. He couldn't wait to call the council, manager and other members of the official family to tell them the good news. The city council entered its application for matching federal funds shortly after the Federal Public Works Acceleration Act was introduced in early October. With some $150,000 on hand acquired by sale of the community building to the school district, the council had already established its plans to construct a city hall. But it faced money problems in providing adequate police and fire department facilities within the building. And to include a library would have been impossible. The project fit the federal program's purpose to a "T". The new public works acceleration act was drafted to encourage immediate undertaking of projects that would otherwise be delayed due to lack of funds. Its purpose is to stimulate the economy — thus the reference in the McNamara-Hart telegram to the May 1 date for beginning and the number of man hours of work that will be provided. The money is an outright grant — with no strings attached for repayment. Construction of the new city hall-library is planned on the same site as the present city hall. The 12,500 square foot building will provide city offices on the main level facing Main street with the library entrance on Wing street at a lower level. The police department will be located on the lower level with entrance from the rear (south side). The fire department will be on the main level on the extreme west side of the building facing Main street. The colonial building was designed by Architect Harry M. Denyes. Construction cost of the building is estimated at $210,000 with contingencies, furnishings, site improvement, etc., expected to boost the cost over $250,000. Approval of the grant also poses some immediate problems for the council to face.

Probably foremost is definite location of a temporary city hall. Negotiations to purchase the Geraghty residence at 122 North Wing street is already underway. The council has long considered the purchase of the property for access to the parking area in the Wing-Dunlap-Center-Main street block. Alley access from Dunlap street could be lost by expansion of the First Methodist church. The home could be used as a city hall until the new facility is completed then razed for alley and parking development. The communities of Wixom, Plymouth and Livonia also learned Tuesday that their applications for grants had been approved. Wixom received $75,000 for roads, Plymouth $255,500 for a new city hall, and Livonia $86,500 for extension of trunk sewers and $25,000 for road paving.

MAY THE BEST TEAM WIN — Northville's A. E. Jones (center), director of the district basketball tournament opening in Northville Tuesday, officiated at drawings made this week for tourney play. Ron Horwath (left), representing Northville, and Dan York from Howell have just learned their teams will meet in the opening game.

Mustangs Meet Howell

District Cage Play Opens Here Tuesday

First round play in the annual, state-wide series of area tournaments leading up to the Michigan high school basketball finals in Lansing begins Tuesday night in Northville. And Coach Daye Longridge's Mustangs cagers lead off the action against Holly.

Drawings for the district tournament to be played at the Northville high school gymnasium were made Tuesday afternoon under the direction of A. E. Jones, head of athletics at the high school and tournament director.

Games are scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday — all at the Northville gym.

The six teams participating in the local district tourney are Brighton, Fenton, Holly, Howell, Northville and South Lyon.

Two of the teams, Holly and South Lyon, drew first round byes. As host team, Northville was ineligible to draw a bye.

But Coach Longridge should be happy with the results of the drawing. Howell has a record of two wins against 14 losses this season. And if the Mustangs get past the opener, they would meet South Lyon Friday night, another team with a poor season mark (three wins, nine losses).

In tourney play, however, the record book goes out the window — and Longridge's biggest job may be to remind his charges of this fact.

In Wednesday night's competition Brighton meets Fenton. Then on Friday, March 8, the winner of the Northville-Howell game plays South Lyon, while the Brighton-Fenton winner meets Holly.

The Tuesday and Wednesday night games start at 7:30. Friday the Holly game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. with the South Lyon game following at 8:30 p.m.

Holly and Fenton must be classed as the tourney favorites with the best season records — 10-4 for W-O League leading Holly and 9-4 for Fenton.

Northville has an 8-6 season mark, but meets Brighton, 6-9, in the final game of the regular season tomorrow night at Brighton.

The winner of the district tourney in Northville advances to the regionals, scheduled to be played in Clarkston.

If Northville hopes to match its record of last year, it has a long road ahead. In its best season ever registered, the 1962 Mustangs racked up an undefeated season and went all the way to Lansing and the state semi-finals before losing to River Rouge, the state champions.

Call Water Shortage 'Critical' in Township

Sixteen homeowners in the Roberta-Lakeside area in the extreme southern portion of Northville township have a serious problem. They're nearly out of water. And this week the residents petitioned the township board to help them solve their dilemma.

The petition was signed by 19 residents representing 16 homeowners. It asked township officials to assist in having "an extension of the Detroit city water supply from Five Mile and Bradner roads brought to Roberta and Lakeside streets to relieve the water problem."

Five Mile road is the dividing line between Northville and Plymouth township, which is serviced by Detroit water in that area.

"The situation is critical here," Mrs. C. A. Holdreith of 15599 Lakeside said this week.

She said that although only she and her husband live in their home they must ration their water carefully. "And some people don't have any water at all. We just can't go on living in our homes without water," she added.

William McAllister, 15674 Lakeside, said he has "pumped sand" from his well twice in the last six weeks.

"No one can do a laundry in our area, and it will be worse this summer," he noted.

The subdivision of homes, all in the $25,000 to $40,000 class, overlooks Phoenix lake near the intersection of Bradner road and Five Mile.

Supervisor George Clark said this week that the matter would undoubtedly be turned over to the township water and sewer commission. He said Plymouth township would be contacted for possible purchase of Detroit water.

OK Novi 9th Grade; Plan Split Classes

Northville's board of education agreed Monday night to accept Novi's 70 to 80 ninth grade pupils for the school year 1963-64.

After making this decision, the board turned to the problem of where to house the ninth grade students.

Superintendent of Schools Russell Amerman proposed that the ninth grade be split next year — one-third going to the junior high school, two-thirds to the senior high school. The board tacitly agreed to such a solution.

Board Member James Kipper suggested that such a split could serve as "a shake-down cruise" for the junior high school principal.

Such a split, Kipper said, would give the principal a chance to "get the feel of an extra class" and the 6-3-3 grade system proposed for 1964-65. The 6-3-3 system would provide for six grades in the elementary schools, three in the junior high school and three in the high school.

Amerman stressed that both college preparatory and non-college preparatory courses would be offered for ninth graders in both the junior high school and high school next year.

He said subjects offered in junior high would include algebra, English, general shop, life science, physical education and world history.

Subjects which ninth graders could obtain only if they attended the high school would include, Amerman said, foreign languages, other sciences such as biology and special mathematics, such as geometry.

Fred Stefanski, high school principal, said the ninth graders housed in the junior high school "would be considered part of us socially." He noted that they would be invited to attend dances and use spectator buses to out-of-town varsity games.

There was some doubt at the meeting as to whether ninth graders housed in the junior high school would be considered "eligible" to participate in junior varsity football or basketball at the high school.

Amerman declared that the administration had no thought of "segregation, according to ability."

Board members assured Novi Superintendent of Schools Tom Culbert that Novi ninth graders would not be put entirely in either school, but that some would go to each school.

Board Member Donald Lawrence said the board must "avoid any stigma attached to going one place or another."

Amerman said the schools "must face up to the problem." He noted that he saw few problems in splitting the ninth grade and added that during registration, a quite natural split might become apparent.

Dr. Kenneth MacLeod, assistant superintendent of schools, said geographical location as well as courses might well be used to determine who would go to which school. "I am fearful, however, that we're going to run across a parent who says — my child is going to so and so."

After the Northville school board agreed to take Novi's ninth graders for the coming year, they reaffirmed an earlier resolution not to take the ninth graders for the 1964-65 school year.

Pushing the Northville board into accepting the ninth graders for the 1963-64 school year were financial considerations. Currently, the Northville system has 252 tuition pupils from Novi. These pupils — ninth through twelfth graders — bring the Northville system $88,568 in tuition payments and $42,840 in state aid.

If Northville school district had to refuse to take the Novi ninth graders for the coming year, this would have meant approximately a $26,595 loss in tuition payments to school coffers.

Northville's school board had told Novi last September that it might not be able to take their ninth graders this coming September because of the pupil "squeeze."

Last September, Northville school administrators discovered that if all Novi-Northville ninth grade students were sent to the Northville high school, the enrollment there would total 868 — which they considered too crowded.

If all ninth graders were to be kept in the junior high school, the enrollment would total 510 — again too crowded.

Thus, school administrators proposed Monday night that the ninth grade be split — two-thirds going to the high school, one-third to the junior high.

With Novi planning to open its own junior high school for the 1964-65 school year, the "pressure" on the Northville school system will be removed.

ed after the 1963-64 year, the school year 1963-64. Northville's school board expects that Northville high school can continue to take Novi's tenth, eleventh and twelfth graders for several years to come.

When it became apparent last September that high ninth grade enrollments would cause overcrowding in the Northville schools during the coming school year, the Northville board requested that the Novi board — if possible — find another place for their pupils for Just last week, Novi learned that the Farmington school board would accept their pupils on a one-year basis if Northville would not take the pupils.

However, throughout the negotiations, the Novi school board expressed a preference for retaining their ninth grade students in the Northville school system since the students obtain their high school education in Northville.

School Board Eyes Ford Field

Northville's board of education Monday night voted to initiate negotiations with Ford Motor company for the continued use and possible eventual purchase of Ford field, located at Hutton and Dunlap.

Board member Donald Lawrence noted that a Ford representative ought to be told the Northville school district would like to "eventually purchase" the field for the use of the junior high school, but the district does not now have "sufficient funds" to do so.

The discussion arose after board members were told that the city council is contemplating the release of the field when the current lease with the Ford Motor company expires.

In a letter to the board, City Manager Bruce K. Potthoff asked the board to let the council know if the board has "an interest or compelling reason as to why the field should be retained as a public facility."

Lawrence said that if the field does not become a part of school facilities now, "we'd better start looking around for other playground areas for the Main street school and the junior high school."

"These schools are now underprivileged as far as playground area goes if you compare them with Amerman school and the high school," Lawrence declared.

Earlier, Lawrence continued when the 6-3-3 discussions were first begun, "we should have tied up the Ford field for permanent use of the junior high school."

School officials noted last night that it's becoming increasingly more difficult to schedule junior high school football games at the Cass Benton park since more schools are using the park.

In other business, the board directed Superintendent of Schools Russell Amerman to visit two residences suggested as possibilities for housing central school offices next year. The residences are located at the northeast corner of Main and West streets and at the southeast corner of Rogers and Main. The former is owned by Mrs. Nelson Schrader, Sr.; the latter by James Little.

Lawrence commented that it would be cheaper "for the district to buy a house and convert it into office space than to build another classroom for $30,000. He explained that if the offices now located in the Main street school were to be moved out of the school, that space would be released for classes.

The board briefly discussed the cost of operation of the driver education program, but took no action.

Superintendent Amerman pointed out that in a recent study made by Clarenceville schools, it was found that the average hourly rate of a driver-training teachers in 55 schools was $3.98. Currently, he said, Northville driver-training teachers are being paid $5 per hour.

Currently, the Northville driver-education program costs $35 per pupil with $24 plus of this coming from the state.

Walking JC's Challenged

IT ALL STARTED OUT as a "fun" project. Sunday the above Northville Jaycees, and a few other hearty souls, decided to walk to Plymouth and back. Then South Lyon Herald Editor Jack Hoffman, a former Northville Jaycee, suggested that the South Lyon Jaycees were more able-bodied than their Northville counterparts. The result: a walk-a-thon test between Northville and South Lyon. It's tentatively set for March 17 with a trophy (provided by either the Herald or Record depending upon which team wins) going to the winners. Time will be the deciding factor with one team starting from South Lyon and the other from Northville. In Sunday's "warm-up" stroll to Plymouth and back the best time was about 2½ hours. Pictured above as the hike started are Jaycees Karl Knott, Charles Ely, Jr., Dick Kozlars, Joe Selman, Bob Pratt, Bob Pankow and Ken Roberts. "Friends" include CAP Cadets Harry Sanders and Chuck Lanning, Bonnie Phillips and Maureen, Steve and John Pauli and Jim White.

Last Day for These

Time's running out for the motorist who hasn't purchased his 1963 license tabs. Today's the deadline. All week long business has been booming at the Northville secretary of state office. Manager Harold Hartley reports waiting lines and sales averaging more than 400 tabs per day. The office is open until 9:00 tonight.

'Our Foreign Policy Clear': Mrs. Dulles

Eleanor Lansing Dulles, last week praised her brother's career as U.S. secretary of state, declared she cares "very much" that people believe this country has a foreign policy and begged for citizen criticism "coupled with tolerance."

Mrs. Dulles, the last member of the famous political family in government, maintained that the outline of United States foreign policy has been "perfectly clear" since the country's founding.

"Executing foreign policy," she declared, "is difficult, however. It's like bringing up a child or conquering disease."

"Other people aren't always in step; other people do the wrong things — they shoot each other, disagree in conferences."

Mrs. Dulles, who's served with the U.S. state department for two decades, spoke last week at the Northville Town Hall lecture series in the P&A theatre. Her topic was "The Making of Foreign Policy."

Mrs. Dulles noted that the state department has "a mountain of papers filed away." The papers, she said, are "written up by people like me" and contain a myriad of information about every country in the world.

These papers, she explained, outline U.S. position, noting that this is what we can do today, tomorrow or the next day.

"Now, I know what I'd like to do in a country like Mali, but I can't," she said. "The foreign policy of the United States is too serious a matter to leave to one or two people."

The President of these United States "cannot execute foreign policy with clarity and vigor unless he has the full cooperation of the entire state department," Mrs. Dulles declared.

"Never has there been in recorded history a relation between a president and a secretary of state that compares with that of my brother (the late John Foster Dulles) and President Eisenhower."

"The contacts between my brother and the President were daily and sometimes hourly. So great was the mutual understanding of the men and so smooth their contacts that often no one knew a problem existed or a contact had been made," she said.

"Smoothness in time of crises is foreign policy at its best," Mrs. Dulles noted.

Mrs. Dulles, who worked for eight years in the reconstruction of Berlin, explained how the foreign policy surrounding Berlin was translated into a program.

Once the decision had been made "to stick by Berlin as a matter of policy," we could begin thinking of what the western sector needed and then we could start on the very grubby quest for money.

"It's easier," Mrs. Dulles observed, "to get the money out of you taxpayers than to get money out of the Washington budget bureau."

We had to prove to the budget bureau, Mrs. Dulles said, that one of our projects, a proposed medical center, was "feasible and necessary to strengthen Berliners' morale."

Harder yet, Mrs. Dulles said, was "convincing the building commissioners in Berlin that the building would be good for them."

"The German bureaucracy can develop red tape faster than Washington," Mrs. Dulles said. "They have a building code that even dictates the size of windows and doors for new construction."

By the time we got ourselves straightened around with the Berlin building commissioners, we found our money had been taken away from us while we were absent from Washington, she recalled.

We got it back, but only because of a stray unrecorded remark "Khrushchev once made to Hubert Humphrey: 'Berlin is a bone in my throat — there, democracy, even under difficult circumstances, is building something very fine.'"

Mrs. Dulles recounted. Berlin is the story of "a vital, rather conspicuously glamorous program," Mrs. Dulles said. "But it's a program which has come about with no basic change in foreign policy."

Foreign policy does sometimes change, Mrs. Dulles pointed out. She turned to the Lebanon crisis in 1958. Basically, when we sent United States Marines to Lebanon during a period of internal controversy, we were executing a program based on the recently-issued Eisenhower doctrine, she explained.

Sometimes, she continued, even though policy has been planned and planned — things go amiss. For example, "we failed dramatically in Hungary. 'As I see it, we failed in Hungary not because of a lack of understanding of issues, but because the geographical location of the country didn't permit the landing of a seventh fleet,'" she said.

"Where there's no water access to an area, we're stymied. Air access brings on the most dire possibilities and we know that there are certain provocations which will release the relatively uncontrollable Russian forces."

It is because of these unforeseen quirks that arise to stymie policy makers that "I beg you to couple tolerance with criticism," Mrs. Dulles said.

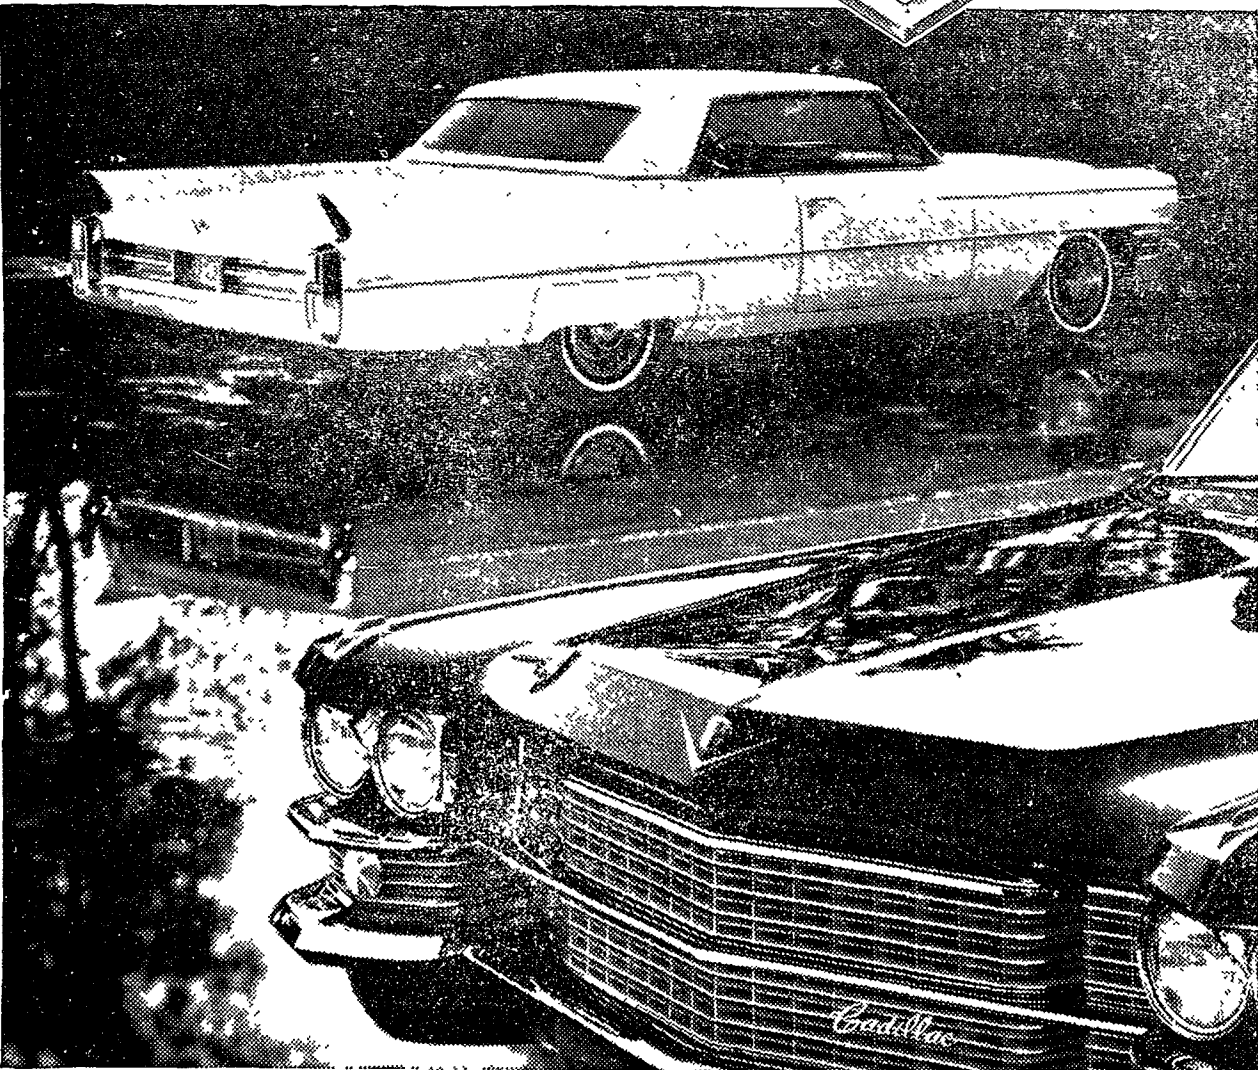

Mrs. Robert Yoder, publicity chairman, greets Mrs. Dulles.

Sharon Ann LaFond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray LaFond, was united in marriage to Robert W. Krauter, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Krauter of Northville on February 16 at a 10 o'clock Mass in Our Lady of Victory church in Northville.

The bride's cousin, Miss Judy LaFond was maid of honor and her brother, Robert LaFond, was best man.

A reception was held in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents for approximately 100 relatives and friends, including her uncle, Major W. A. D. McRobbie of Westover AFB, Massachusetts.

Mrs. Howard LaFond and daughter, Judy, gave a surprise linen shower on Wednesday, February 13 for the new Mrs. Krauter. There were 16 guests present.

Give your room that perfect definition (and comfort) provided by carpets of Acrilan made by Cabin Crafts. Worrisome stains sponge right up. Dirt won't cling. Heavy traffic won't hurt its resiliency, and they are moth-proof, non-allergenic.

And give yourself the satisfaction that can take the worst treatment. The wool-like warmth of Cabin Craft's Acrilans, with an assist from their exclusive Permapad Backing, last through the roughest wear . . . assures you of comfortable luxury underfoot for years.

Two large rooms, a 12'x15' and a 12'x10', wall-to-wall in beautiful McKinley Carpet is only 14.50 a month including installation and rubber padding.

READERS SPEAK:

Conflict In City?

To the Editor:

After a period of approximately eighteen months and with an election coming up, the council decided it would not be politically expedient to have the city engineer acting for the city and the subdivision who is operating and building in the city at the same time.

After all this time they discovered this was a conflict of interest. There is an old saying. No man can serve two masters simultaneously.

This is what I have been saying for some time and points up to the careless way the city is being run today.

Cagers Edge Milford, 56-52; Close Season at Brighton Friday

The erratic Mustang basketball machine almost ran out of gas at crucial points last Friday night, but sputtered along for a 56-52 victory over Milford at the Northville high school gym.

With his eye on the March 5 district tournament, Coach Dave Longridge expressed concern over his team's performance. "We had a couple of chances to break the game wide open but we bogged down. We need a lot of work before we're ready for the tournament."

Milford showed lots of fire when Northville threatened to run up the score. Down by a 27-17 count with 1:36 remaining in the first half, Milford fought for a 33-26 score at intermission.

Again the visiting cagers were way back, trailing by the biggest margin of the night, 45-34, at the end of the third quarter.

Then they put on their finest show of the game to cut the Mustangs' margin to three points, 52-49, with only 1:32 left in the game.

But two free throws by Joe Hay and a breakaway score by Jim Juday with 1:02 remaining iced the game. With Northville stalling, Milford went down to defeat, scrapping for the ball.

The Mustangs defensive play left something to be desired. In their eagerness to intercept the ball or to block a shot, they were faked out of position frequently permitting an opponent to drive through the zone.

When other Mustangs covered the man, he passed off to a teammate under the basket.

Other times, Milford passed the ball quickly to spring a man loose in the pivot or underneath the basket.

Joe Hay clicked on defense as he made the best moves of the night. Twice he broke out of the zone to intercept the ball and drove hard for two scores.

Cager of the Week

Ability to come off the bench and fill in where needed is Bob Boyle's role on the Mustang team. A senior transfer student from St. John's Military Academy, Bob has been a welcome addition to the team. He also plays football and golf, and spends many hours water and snow skiing. The son of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Boyle, 39360 Nine Mile road, Bob hopes to major in hotel management at Michigan State university.

Colts Can't Hit Hoop

The local gymnasium was turned into a firing range last Friday night as the Colts sprayed the backboards with shots, but few were on target as Milford maneuvered to a 56-51 victory.

Although the Colts outshot (73-59) and made more (23-17) field goals than Milford, they still dropped the decision.

Milford won at the free throw line with a 66 percent average, converting 22 of 33. The local cagers, on the other hand, attempted only 13 foul shots, making good on seven.

"I think the statistics speak for themselves," said Coach Alex Klukach, "I don't think I need to say any more about the game."

Trailing by as many as seven points, the Colts finally caught up at 48 all with 5:51 to go in the game.

But the local cagers, in their eagerness to grab the ball and score, juggled the ball off their fingertips into the hands of an opponent or missed shots.

Milford scored twice and stalled to protect the four-point margin.

Both teams started fast in the first quarter as Northville took the lead, 17-16. Tim Krug topped the scoring with eight points.

Milford bounced back to take a 29-24 lead in the second period. Many Colt shots went astray as they hit on only 3 of 21.

Led by Tom Wicke, who scored eight points, the Colts stayed close through the third period, outscoring Milford, 18-17.

Trailing by four points, 46-42, going into the final period, the local JVs closed the gap then fell back again as the gun sounded to end play. Eight of Milford's 10 final points were scored on free throws as the Colts pressed to get the ball.

Leading scorers for the Colts were Wicke with 14, Krug with 13 and Jim St. Germaine with 12.

Topping all scorers was Milford's Gary Newcomb with 21 points, supported by Greg Swift with 14.

The final JV game of the season will be played at Brighton. Starting time is 7 p.m.

— In Justice Court —

Two men from Maybury Sanatorium were arraigned before Judge Charles McDonald in Northville justice court last Saturday.

Clinton Collins, an employee of the sanatorium, was found guilty on February 22 drunk and disorderly charge on Main street. He paid a fine of $25 and $10 costs.

John Zunic, a patient in the sanatorium, pleaded guilty to having liquor in his possession on February 21. Fined $25 and $5 costs or 10 days, he took 10 days.

John Mabry of Birmingham was charged with drunk driving on February 23. Early Saturday morning he drove on the wrong side of Center street and ran onto the sidewalk near the high school. He was found guilty and chose 30 days instead of paying a $100 fine and $5 costs.

Roger L. Redmond of 341 East Main street, Northville, pleaded guilty to speeding on Main street on February 9. He paid a fine of $25 and $10 costs.

Novi Sniper Arraigned

A 22-year-old Southfield gardener who shot at a Novi housewife January 30 was arraigned in Oakland county circuit court Monday on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Gary S. Goodrum of 26145 West Nine Mile, Southfield, who spent a year in a Baptist seminary, stood mute before Judge Stanton G. Dondero. No trial date has been set.

Goodrum was continued in the $20,000 bond which had been set last Thursday when he appeared before Novi Justice of the Peace Robert K. Anderson for examination.

Goodrum turned himself in to Novi police February 7, saying that after shooting at Mrs. Gerald Race of 28000 Dixon: "I realized what I had done. It was wrong."

Goodrum's surrender came just two days after Douglas Godfrey, 15, had confessed that he was the "Bloomfield sniper" who killed his mother January 25.

Goodrum told police that he shot at Mrs. Race because "I guess I just wanted to see how good I was with a target."

Asian Flu Misses Area — So Far!

The flu bug has skirted the Northville - Novi-Wixom area so far.

While the epidemic of Asian influenza predicted last fall has established itself in Michigan, area physicians report "no more business than usual."

Dr. R. M. Atchison of Northville reported that not only did the clinic seem to be getting only the usual number of influenza cases, "but it doesn't seem to be building up too much right now."

He noted that more cases of strep throat than anything else are currently appearing.

"It seems that a number of people are becoming confused," Dr. Atchison said. "They believe if they're sick now that they must have the flu. Thus, they neglect calling a doctor and just go home to bed."

Dr. Atchison pointed out that by the time these people realize that they don't "just have the flu," they're exceedingly sick. He advised residents to call a physician as soon as the combination symptoms of flu and sore throat appear — general aches and pains, cough, fever and chills.

The current influenza epidemic, which started on the east coast and spread westward across the country, began showing up in Michigan about two weeks ago.

Dr. Charles P. Anderson, director of the Detroit city health department, said that he would conservatively estimate the caseload at about 15,000 per day and that absenteeism in schools and industry is "significantly higher" than usual.

So far, however, attendance at Northville, Novi and Wixom schools has not been seriously affected by influenza. But Northville Superintendent of Schools Russell Amerman noted that Northville schools "may soon be in trouble." He said that last Friday absenteeism rose to 10.6 percent of the pupil population.

Although Asian influenza is not itself dangerous, often it can lead to severe complications, such as pneumonia. For this reason, the state department of health last fall recommended two immunization shots in a two-month period for all citizens.

Since it is now too late for immunization, health department officials are urging everyone to observe the usual precautions against flu attacks — plenty of rest, a balanced diet, an avoidance of over-fatigue, unnecessary exposure to sick persons and large groups of people.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m., last Saturday in the Casteline Funeral Home with Reverend Paul Cargo, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating.

Burial was at the Rural Hill cemetery.

Tips for Sufferers Of Car Sickness

Are you missing a pleasant cross-country trip because you are subject to motion sickness? Some folks feel nauseated in an airplane. Others succumb to the motion of a train or an automobile, although not as frequently. And, of course, the seasickness that often accompanies an ocean voyage strikes many travelers if the weather gets a little rough.

In some individuals the fear of motion sickness is so acute that they just stay home rather than travel and take a chance.

If you are reasonably healthy, motion sickness, unless prolonged on a long voyage, probably won't do any real damage and recovery is rapid once the trip is ended.

There are now many commercial products on the market that may help you to forestall motion sickness. Ask your physician or your druggist for the names of these products. Most of them do not require a prescription.

Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, offers some suggestions on how to help avoid motion sickness.

—Eat lightly before your departure — no big, heavy meals.

—Avoid excessive alcoholic intake.

—Once aboard the plane, take a nap or divert your attention by reading a newspaper or a magazine. Your state of mind can be an important factor in bringing on motion sickness.

A contemporary painter, Duccio (doochio) of Siena is considered the leader of a quite different style than Giotto's Florentine school. The Si-enese style kept to the traditional Byzantine conventions but added some grace and movement. Duccio's figures are aristocratic, remote, formal. He included a great many small details in his tempera paintings, whereas Giotto did huge, sweeping frescoes with very little fussy detail.

Duccio also kept to the conventional gold-leaf backgrounds and rich reds and blues.

Simone Martini (Seemoan) developed the Siennese-Byzantine-Gothic temperas into a so-called international style. His attendance at the Papal court at Avignon in France and at what was then the Kingdom of Naples spread the influence of the Siena School to these "foreign" parts.

The true Renaissance in art began in the fifteenth century in Italy. The word "renaissance" means rebirth and when capitalized is meant to cover there birth of interest in learning and a return to the classics of antiquity. It sprang out of a period of decay in the church, from the dissolution of the Empire, and at the beginning of the rise of nationalism when a growing humanism put Man at the center rather than religion. An avid interest in other countries was spurred by increased international trade. All of these were important factors in bringing about The Renaissance, a period in the history of art which is still considered its "Golden Age."

LET'S TALK CARS...

SNOW BY THE POUND

Every good car deserves a garage I always say. But when a garage isn't available, here are some pointers that will help make your winter motoring more pleasurable and less costly.

A lot of motorists cut down on car washes during the winter because of dirty roads and this is a mistake. The weight of that snow, especially the caked ice underneath the chassis can increase gas consumption as much as 20%.

Engineers who have checked on it report that most cars in winter carry an extra load of from 200 to 700 pounds of weight from undercarriage slush and accumulations on the roof, trunk and hood. The motorists who carry that weight are paying for it in greater gas consumption.

Highway authorities still haven't found a suitable alternative for the salt that keeps the ice off our streets. Until they do it will pay you to keep it off your car with frequent washes. Road salt eating away at paint and metal surfaces is the greatest single cause of body rust.

A little powdered graphite will keep your door locks from freezing and some cardboard under your windshield wipers at night will save a lot of scraping the next morning. Good snow tires can last many seasons and pay for themselves in convenience and safety.

Maybury Workshop Looking for Jobs Annual Easter Seal Appeal To Start Here March 7

Twenty-two men on Seven Mile road are looking for work.

Only trouble is, they can't come to town to go job shopping. They're bound by TB and the walls of Maybury sanatorium.

Their more fortunate tubercular brothers — some six of them — joined the ranks of the "employed" last week and are now working each day from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in a remote building on sanatorium grounds.

For at least six months, these six men will be working daily at the sanatorium in a sheltered workshop sponsored by the Detroit League for the Handicapped.

No one knows now whether the end of the six-month trial period will bring expansion of the workshop into a community effort or the squelching of the hopes of some 22 other TB patients eager for work.

These patients, the select few among the sanatorium's 554 who are considered medically-fit and able to participate in a "work tolerance program," have been more or less without hope since Goodwill Industries discontinued its sanatorium shop last May.

"Everything depends," says sanatorium Superintendent Dr. W. L. Howard, "on whether the newly-opened workshop can be made into a paying proposition."

He noted that the workshop, if it's to continue, must become financially solvent because the league has no financial support other than that derived from its own activities.

Basically, the workshop's problems are as old as industry itself — those of transportation and contracts.

Currently, the Detroit League for the Handicapped is sending a station wagon full of work to Northville each week for the six men in the workshop. The work consists of packaging automobile license tabs for American Motors company.

John Sullivan, director of sheltered work at the league offices in Detroit, explained "we can't send more work from here to Northville.

"If we did, we'd leave some of our 140 workers here unemployed," he continued. "We can't employ more until we obtain more contracts," he said, even though we have the people to supervise and run a larger workshop.

Meanwhile, Dr. Howard is hoping the community will feel a desire to join forces with the sanatorium and the league in expanding the project.

"We'd like to see small industries in the area which have contracts to farm out give the league, this shop, an opportunity to bid for those contracts," Dr. Howard said.

He stressed that, if at all possible, the workshop will eventually be enlarged so that it may be used for vocational rehabilitation of handicapped people throughout the western Wayne county area.

"We don't want the workshop to die out," he said, as the necessity for TB rehabilitation lessens over the years.

From Dr. Howard's standpoint, the important thing is "getting more and more patients back into the work habit." Or, as the case may be; developing the work habit, in patients, he added.

Then, he explained, medically-fit patients with "work tolerance" are ready to step back into society as useful members.

"I can't help being enthusiastic" about such a program, Dr. Howard said. "I can see many times that if our patients had not had vocational training here, they would have stepped out of the sanatorium into the welfare office.

"It's gratifying," he said, to see men who "knew nothing other than dish washing or bill peddling given a chance to learn a trade."

"I've seen some of these patients blossom out, go out of here with ambition and make their own livelihood," he reported.

For example, he said, I remember three men who came here some years ago without a trade. "When they left, they not only knew enough to start a Mr. Fixit shop, but they also had the desire to keep it going."

While Dr. Howard stressed that not all of the sanatorium's patients are without trades, he pointed out that the vocational workshop is valuable in still another respect.

"It helps improve the morale of our patients," he explained. "For, it gives our patients something to look forward to, something to help blot out their boredom with."

He noted that after the Goodwill Industries' workshop was discontinued at the sanatorium last May, many prospective workshop employees became discouraged.

Luckily, Dr. Howard said, the sanatorium began looking for a new workshop sponsor last fall just as the Detroit League for the Handicapped was thinking of setting up such a workshop in western Wayne county. "Things fell together just like a new set of gears," Dr. Howard commented.

He added, moreover, that he feels the new league workshop has "a better approach" than the old shop provided by Goodwill Industries.

"Goodwill Industries concentrated on training our patients whereas the league operates a shop on the basis of work taken in. This gives the shop a more stable foundation — and makes it more like an industry outside the sanatorium," he added.

Dr. Howard said he's convinced a complete vocational rehabilitation program is "a necessary part" of tuberculosis treatment. Eventually, he said, he hopes the sheltered workshop can handle several different kinds of projects.

Dr. Howard maintains that it's no good just being "well from TB." Former tubercular patients have "a good chance of breaking down again" unless they have "something to do, something to care about," he said.

"This sheltered workshop is the first step in helping these men find a job — and eventually, we hope, helping other handicapped members of the community find jobs," he concluded.

Annual Easter Seal Appeal To Start Here March 7

The annual Easter Seal appeal to help physically handicapped children and adults will get underway this year March 7 and continue through April 14.

In the Northville area the campaign is annually conducted by members of the Northville Rotary club. Chairman for the event is Rotarian Fred Casterline.

The appeal will be carried to every area home, Casterline noted, by direct mail. He said letters containing Easter Seals and donation envelopes will be mailed to each area residence and business place.

The new Easter Seal design was revealed this week by the Easter Seal Society of Western Wayne county, sponsors of the local campaign.

Taking a radically different direction, the Seals this year are intended as miniature posters, telling the story of the struggle of crippled children to overcome their handicaps.

The Seals will be distributed during the appeal dates as a means of arousing public understanding and support for services for crippled children and handicapped adults in Easter Seal centers in Western Wayne county as well as throughout the United States.

One of the companion Easter Seal designs features the stylized silhouette of a crippled boy in green against a Milori blue background, and includes a white Easter Lily, emblem of the Easter Seal Society and the legend "Easter Seals 1963" and "Help Crippled Children Walk."

The other Seal reverses the color scheme and bears the silhouette in blue of a crippled girl using a crutch, outlined in white against the green background. It bears the same legend as the first Seal.

PACKAGING SCREWS — Three of the six men "employed" in Maybury sanatorium's sheltered workshop are shown here packaging screws for license tabs in order to develop "work tolerance."

SUPERVISING STENCILING — From left, Roland Lalonde, workshop supervisor, and Dr. W. L. Howard, sanatorium superintendent, watch on as one of the workers in the sheltered workshop stencils boxes.

2. Investment of Debt Service funds. Mr. Ellison and Mr. Amerman presented a report showing available money in Debt Service Funds which might be transferred from regular bank accounts to Savings Deposit Receipts, where they will earn interest. They are recommending the transfer of a total of $82,090 from three different accounts, the 1957 Debt Retirement Funds, Series A, B, and C.

So moved by Mr. Shafer, seconded by Mr. Becker, and carried unanimously.

3. School Calendar. The Administrative staff has proposed an alternate plan for a school calendar for school year 1963-64 which is slightly changed from the one originally recommended to the board. The alternate is as follows:

Opening of School: Tuesday after Labor Day. Christmas Vacation: December 20, 1963 to January 6, 1964. Easter Vacation: March 23, 1964 to March 27, 1964. School Closes: June 16, 1964 (Pupils will attend until June 12, 1964).

Leod presented a Comparison of Educational Expenses in Northville with "The 1962-63 Cost of Education Index" as Published in "School Management" for January, 1963. 7. Released Time: The Professional Problems Committee of the Teachers' Club has requested that school be closed one hour early some day in March, to allow the faculty time to hold a meeting of the Teachers' Club, for professional growth and strengthening purposes. REPORT from LANSING

By PAUL CHANDLER
State Representative, 21st District

LANSING — It's getting close to deadline for submission of bills in the House of Representatives, and I've dropped a few new ones in the hopper which completes my personal batch for this session. The latest group includes:

1. A bill which would permit townships (with approval of a vote of the people) to place all employees under civil service. Today, the law covers only fire and police and in the larger urban townships there sometimes are ugly patronage fights in the DPW, water department, etc.

2. One which would set up a Wayne County assessment department, eliminating all assessment functions of local supervisors and assessors. Local boards of review would be maintained, so that complaints and requests for adjustment would be heard by local people in the taxpayers own municipality. The aim is to have exactly the same assessment standards spread over the whole of the county and to, as far as possible, take assessments out of the arena of local politics.

3. A bill which would place a 10 percent state tax on tickets sold to professional football games. The tax would be waived, however, whenever the promoter televised the games locally.

Since the latter bill has attracted considerable publicity, here is some background.

Tickets to Detroit Lions games have become a real luxury item. Something like 70 percent of the seats (and all the good seats) are sold as season tickets. This requires having $70 or 80 available to purchase a pair of tickets, and there aren't many "average" fans who are in any position to shell out that much money at one time. As a practical matter, the choice seats never are available, at any price. Big companies and prominent individuals have them reserved on a perpetual basis.

In terms of taxation, I regard the tickets as a genuine luxury item and a more logical source of tax revenue than taxes on food, telephones, cigarettes, and many other things which bear taxes now.

Despite the fact that seats are expensive and hard to find, the Lions for some time have imposed a television blackout over a wide area. Their reasoning is that they would be unable to sell as many bleacher seats, and the less desirable seats which are available, if the games were carried on TV. In other words, they argue that TV would cost them money at the box office.

Under my new bill, the admission tax would be waived whenever the game is televised. In effect, the taxpayers thus would be helping the Lions recover whatever losses they think they might suffer because of television.

Boiling it down, the bill accomplishes two things: it imposes a tax which is fair and reasonable and heretofore overlooked; and it provides an incentive to televise pro football games.

Two Boys Save, Befriend Red-Tailed Hawk

Two 15-year-old Northville boys, can boast of having one of the strangest pets in town — a red-tailed hawk. And the hawk — triple-named George, Pegleg and Hawk — by his young friends — can thank them for his life. Kent Hunter and Tom Bogart, sons of the Robert Hunters and Robert Bogarts of West Main street, spotted the hawk one cold Friday afternoon about a month ago lying in the snow. "It was too weak to fly and hardly able to move," recalls Kent. "We walked over, cautiously picked it up, and Tom continued. "We had crude tools to work with, but at least we got the job done."

Under the boys' care, the hawk has improved. "We soak his right foot in water every night to keep it from getting stiff. Now he's using the leg more and more," Kent said. "If we hadn't, the hawk would probably have died." They're kept busy feeding Pegleg. "We feed him raw hamburger and after school hours to amputate the claw, he looks for mice to feed to him. He eats a lot."

When asked if the hawk had hurt them, the boys joined in with an emphatic "no". "He's so tame he won't bite or claw purposely. Sometimes he scratches us, but it's an accident. He's just trying to hold on to our arm so he won't fall off."

Tom Bogart (left) and Kent Hunter display the wingspan of their friendly, red-tailed hawk "Pegleg". Below Pegleg, recovering from an operation on his claw, limps over to his dinner.

Readers Speak

To the Editor:

As an interested member of the Northville Area Development Corporation, I was pleased by the fine boost given this organization in Speaking for the Record on February 7th.

Members who have actively worked with this group can see great possibilities in the future economic growth and development of the Northville area. Growth and development are bound to come and Northville's economic development committee is providing the leadership which will keep this at a desirable level, one which will most benefit the community.

The success of this group is dependent upon community support, both moral and financial. It is disturbing that of the 39 individual members only 14 are dependent on the community for their livelihood, and of the 8 business memberships, 2 are from our neighborhood. I hope my fellow merchants, business men, and citizens will take this letter as an appeal to come into the fold and help in this effort to guide the future of our community.

Patrick Daly, 20, of Dearborn ran a red light at Novi road and Grand River. He was fined 10 for the February 11 violation.

In another traffic incident, Judge Robert K. Anderson found Peter King, 20, of Farmington guilty of illegal parking on Thirteen Mile road on February 2. King paid a fine of $10.

Two men caused disturbances at the Walled Lake Casino. John B. Davidson, 17, of Detroit was found guilty on a drunk and disorderly charge on February 21. He was fined $25 and placed on six-month probation.

Donald Duncan, 18, Ann Arbor, was charged with disorderly conduct on February 9. He was placed on six-month probation.

SPEAKING for The Record

by Bill Sliger

What makes a good town?

This question was asked by the editor of the Whitehall Forum recently in an editorial appearing in that news paper.

Another question, "What makes a dead town?" was also asked. And the answer to both questions was the same — people.

It seems that a sociologist once made a comparison study of two towns in a midwestern state. Both had been started about the same time when the same railroad came through shortly after the "land rush" got underway. Both grew about as fast for a few years.

But then one town stood still at a population of about 1,000; the other became a thriving little metropolis of some 12,000 people and was a modern, pretty and progressive city.

The sociologist was curious. Why had one of these two almost identical towns prospered while the other failed?

From his study he concluded that the town that had grown and prospered had about 15 or 20 people who were loyal, progressive and community-minded enough to give their time and talent to help build their community.

The other town didn't have these people. Nothing complicated about the answer — just people who care and are possessed of the foresight, ability and patience it requires to plan for the future. That's the difference between success and failure.

Work and planning, then, would appear to be the key to success for any community.

And in Northville it is obvious that someone has been planning. We can point to a great many assets in our community that are the direct result of good planning — our schools, recreation, fine area homes, water system and supply, sewer system, street improvements, etc.

But planning never stops. And what will happen to Northville in five years?

This question was brought vividly to mind last week at a meeting of the economic development committee.

A "professional" in the field of industrial and shopping center development was talking.

"Northville's probably two years away from having a shopping center on its borders," he casually observed. And by borders he indicated within Six Mile road area.

He hadn't attended the meeting to discuss shopping centers. Northville's economic development committee is devoted to industrial development and preservation, improvement and expansion of the existing shopping district.

His words left a definite impression on the local group.

Some of these members have been trying for years to impress upon the business interests of the community the seriousness of the situation.

What would happen to our local business district if a modern shopping center plunked itself in the township?

One of the committee members declared that local businessmen "didn't care." "If they did, they'd do something — at least show an interest in what the planners are trying to do."

He was referring to the Northville planning commission's master plan for creating a central business district.

This is, of course, the answer to the threat of a shopping center — to create one ourselves.

But who must carry out the planning?

People. Just 15 or 20 who are interested, possess the ability and have the patience to cope with the short-sighted and complacent.

Saginaw Area Seeks 4-Year College

Saginaw Valley will have a four-year institution of higher education if a group of legislators get their way this year, but there is at least one stumbling block in the offing.

The group, headed by Sen. Lester O. Begick, Bay City, Republican serving his first term in the Senate after two years in the House, has proposed a bill "under which the state would establish a junior-senior year institution in the area now served on the freshman-sophomore level by Delta College.

Begick in the Senate and Rep. Russell H. Stranger, R-Clare, in the other chamber are hoping Sen. Stanley Thayer, Ann Arbor Republican, will go along with their proposal.

Thayer, representing the home city of the University of Michigan, has something of a conflict where the bill is concerned.

University of Michigan officials have expressed an interest in supporting an upper-level two year institution in the Delta College area. The plans have not progressed yet to the point where the University is ready to ask for state funds to establish the unit.

Residents in the Delta College area have been pushing for the creation of the full four years of higher education to be established in their area for several years now. Begick and Stranger, along with a number of others who conducted a study last summer of the possibilities for offering the service, are anxious for action this year. As majority caucus leader in the Senate, however, Thayer's voice is powerful. His ties with the U-M could pose a threat to the possibility of legislative action if the University maintains its hopes of establishing a two-year branch in the Valley area.

Some legislators, however, don't want to see U-M and other existing colleges start creating a "chain store" or "piggy back" system of branches throughout the state. A number of these are afraid the Legislature would lose what little control it has over the institutions if this were to occur.

On the other hand, there is keen competition within the universities to continue their growth and the "chain store" approach is seen as one of the few ways future growth can be assured.

Gov. George Romney has declined to express specifically his views on the U-M proposal as opposed to the legislative measure in the House.

"This is one of the policy questions in higher education which should be determined quickly," Romney said.

The Governor proposes to establish an advisory group, composed of between 40 and 50 persons, to determine what methods should be followed to best meet future needs of higher education. He said the group, to be appointed within a month, would take into consideration the facilities available in both public and private institutions.

Michigan teachers who seek overseas assignments with the idea they will find an ideal situation might get a surprise, according to those who know in the educational field.

It is true that assignments in the Overseas Dependent Schools operated by the Defense Department offer wonderful opportunities for teachers who want to travel in their spare time.

On the job, however, conditions are far from ideal, according to National Education Association information circulating to state affiliates.

"The schools attended by children of military families are, in the horse-and-buggy era, while the military establishment is geared to an age of space exploration," said NEA Executive Secretary William G. Carr on the basis of a survey of the schools.

The survey disclosed shortages of supplies and current textbooks, lack of needed specialist personnel, an excessive teacher turnover rate, inadequate facilities in many locations, unsuitable housing at some posts, and unprofessional salaries.

Money, of course, was seen as a way to solve many of the problems noted in the survey, Carr said. Michigan's Lynn M. Bartlett, Superintendent of Public Instruction, was among a group of six persons who toured the overseas systems last fall and wrote the report on which Carr based his warning to lower the teacher's dream of ideal conditions to reality.

Michigan Week planners have called for recognition in each community of the local residents who have contributed most to the educational programs of the community.

Education Needs Tailoring

Babson Park, Mass. — I am writing this column in Florida overlooking a beautiful garden of snapdragons. The stalks are about three feet high and the blossoms seven inches above the stalks. They are in eight different colors. Yet they have the same soil, the same water, and the same sunshine.

I had lunch today with a government expert of the Agricultural Department. I asked him what caused the difference in the size and color of these snapdragon blossoms.

He said that the care which they received from my gardener made some difference; but that fundamentally it was a question of inheritance.

We agreed that the different stalks of the snapdragons might be compared with young people going to school. For some while at school they may not show their different tendencies. However, one child may be smarter than another, just as one stalk appears to grow more than another. He stated that life is basic, whether in the tiny snapdragon seed or in the "seed" entering the mother's womb and fertilized by the father.

The basic elements, whether of a plant or of a human being, are known as DNA and RNA, which are abbreviations for the life-giving chemicals. I then asked, this agricultural expert if the law of inheritance applies equally to snappdragons and high school graduates seeking further education and he replied that the same laws of inheritance do apply.

This probably means that a large percentage of young people should not go to college, as in such cases it is a waste of good time.

Applying the DNA and RNA forces to college work is very important. Assuming that too many young people go to college anyway, they should give specific consideration to what line of education they are adapted for. This is very largely neglected today both by the colleges and by the parents.

I believe in scholarships to help deserving young people who know what they are fitted for and who are earnestly seeking that goal, whether it is science, medicine, law, or some trade. I do not object to carpenters, electricians, or bricklayers getting the high wages they do. Admiral Rickover, who forced the Navy to become interested in atomic submarines, is reported to have said that educational experts and good teachers should be paid more than most Congressmen now serving in Washington.

He claims that education of young people is now "topsy-turvy" and that our voters should recognize this sad fact, now given out too freely. The young person's aptitudes should be considered carefully and the scholarships should be given only for the education of the student in the direction for which he or she is fitted.

Unless the above scholarship policy is followed, Government aid to education may do more harm than good. This applies to the building of fancy schools, and government aid to colleges.

There are too many "brass hats" amongst college professors, as there are in the Navy and Army.

This scholarship program would not rule out higher education for children whose parents are anxious to have their youngsters get college diplomas, irrespective of their adaptability. They could still be sent to private schools and colleges to graduate and go into some business or profession for which they are not fitted. This is done today; and should always be possible.

Two final questions for us all to consider are these: (1) For our children, does success depend more on education or upon natural instinct and experience? (2) Are they naturally lazy or are they ambitious?

One final thought: Parents can take out insurance which will greatly help their children get the equivalent of a scholarship whether or not the college or government gives one.

Farm Bureau Backs Constitution

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series about the proposed new Michigan constitution. Additional articles will appear in subsequent weeks.

The Michigan Farm Bureau, voice of more than 70,000 Michigan farm families, put its official endorsement on the proposed new constitution in a resolution adopted at its recent state convention. The farm group's convention action followed approval of the new constitution by a majority of county Farm Bureaus in the state at their local sessions.

The resolution favoring the new document reads, in part: "We believe the proposed new Michigan constitution which will be submitted to the voters for approval next April 1 is a definite improvement over our present document. It retains precious liberties. All of its provisions have been carefully reviewed and updated. The result is a much shorter, better worded, better arranged and more understandable constitution for Michigan."

"We believe that the proposed plan of legislative districting would stand the test of either State or Federal Supreme Court action, while at the same time it would give protection to rural areas."

"A number of safeguards and improvements were incorporated in the proposed document, such as: retention and strengthening of the 15 mill limitation on general property taxes; restricting the vote on millage increases for more than five years to property owners; and limitation of the rate of assessment and equalization of property for tax purposes to not to exceed 50% of cash value (presently 100%)."

"We approve the ending of the present system which permits 'packing' the state Supreme Court through appointments by the governor to fill vacancies."

"We look with favor upon the proposed enlarged State Board of Education and provision for a legislative auditor to provide fiscal information for the legislature. There are greatly improved provisions relative to budget preparation and consideration and for executive and legislative control over state spending."

"There is also a requirement for combining and reorganizing the present 126 state agencies into not to exceed 20 principal departments, each headed by a director or commission directly responsible to the governor. Existing earmarkings of sales tax revenues for schools and for local units of government, and of weight and gas tax revenue for highway construction and maintenance purposes have been retained."

"Local government has been maintained while at the same time new problems in this field have been recognized. Bureaucratic powers have been curbed and the people's voice in government has been preserved and strengthened."

"The new document contains the most comprehensive Bill of Rights of any constitution in our land. Civil Rights for all individuals and groups are spelled out and protected to an unprecedented degree. There is an equal protection clause implemented by the creation of a bipartisan Civil Rights Commission."

"These are only a few of the reasons why we believe the new constitution is excellent and worthy of the support of all Michigan voters. We believe that its adoption at the polls next April 1 will represent progress for Michigan."
