

Here's the Complete Round-up of King Shooting Episode

What really happened in the rapid series of events last Wednesday afternoon (February 10) when Northville Police Chief Eugene King was sent to the hospital with two 25-caliber slugs in his body? Editor Don Bauerle traced every step and talked to all the principals involved — with the exception of the gunman, Warren Robert Wright, and his victim, Chief King. Here's the full story as those closest to the weird experience saw it.

It was 12:45 p.m. Wednesday, February 10 — a balmy sunny day in Northville. Perhaps you didn't notice the time of day. The baby was crying. Or you were on the telephone and the coffee pot boiled over. Or you were eating lunch. Or your son wanted his shoelaces tied. Whatever it was, you didn't glance at the clock. But for some people in the city it marked the beginning of a live nightmare — something that you might imagine or dream but something that couldn't really happen, not in Northville. But unfortunately, it did. Mrs. Judith Hedlund, a teller at Detroit Federal Savings' local branch, was waiting for a carry-over order at the Cloverdale Dairy on North Center street. She was somewhat upset. Police Chief Eugene King and Theodore Cuda, who operates a uniform supply business in Dearborn, were having lunch at the Thunderbird Inn on Northville road. They were discussing business. Officer William McGee was trying to round up a stray dog near Northville Estates. Officer Louis Westfall was at home. Mrs. Alice Ritchie, police department dispatcher on the day shift, was doing some routine work in the station, situated in the lower level of the municipal building on Main street. And Warren Robert Wright, who had just lost his job in Corunna which is near Owosso, was in Northville. He was heading for the Detroit Federal Savings office on the corner of Dunlap and North Center street.

Then one of three police lines rang. It was 12:53 p.m. John Macauley, manager of the Detroit Federal branch, was on the other end. He told Mrs. Ritchie: "I want an officer to come down but it is not an emergency. A car is circling the building."

Mrs. Ritchie radioed to Officer McGee to proceed to the savings office. Meanwhile, Mrs. Ritchie called Officer Westfall "who was off duty, to help McGee" and notified Chief King.

Macauley made his request because Mrs. Hedlund was sure she had seen the robber who held up the savings-and-loan last September 22.

Related Macauley: "Judith was on her way to lunch at Cloverdale when she saw him (Wright) in a car on Center near the light. When she came out of Cloverdale she saw him again."

Running into the office, Mrs. Hedlund shouted "Mac, Mac, look at that guy. That's the guy who held us up before. He was waiting for the light at Dunlap. I walked up in front of his car and got a real good look at his face. He threw up his hands to cover his face."

Besides observing the suspect, Macauley said Mrs. Hedlund took down the license plate number and description of the car, a 1964 aqua Dodge sedan. A late model green Dodge or Plymouth had been sought after the most recent robbery when $8,240 was taken.

In the first holdup on June 8 some $5,565 was taken. Both times the holdup man stuffed the money into a paper bag. Macauley, Mrs. Candida Partridge, a teller, and Carl Johnson, a local insurance and real estate agent, were in the office the first time. Just Macauley and Mrs. Hedlund were present during the second robbery.

While McGee and Westfall were on the way to the savings office, Mrs. Ritchie received another call. It was 1 p.m., seven minutes after the first call. Mrs. Hedlund was on the phone.

Mrs. Ritchie said: "Judith was very upset. She said that the man had parked his car and was coming toward the office."

Later, Macauley elaborated: "The suspect parked his car on East Dunlap — almost in the same spot it was parked during the second holdup — and started toward the building. Then he ran back to his car. He must have spotted the police car. McGee arrived a minute or so later."

Eugene Jones, a maintenance man at the savings' office, observed: "Before he got out of his car and came toward us, I saw him open the glove compartment."

Perhaps this was when Wright armed himself. But this is merely speculation. Officer McGee arrived. He talked with Macauley. Then he returned to the patrol car and Westfall pulled up. McGee told Westfall: "The guy is gone." They went to the Kroger lot and then up Hutton street.

At this point, Detroit Federal Savings called Mrs. Ritchie again. As Mrs. Ritchie recalls, Macauley told her "he's back again." Mrs. Ritchie notified McGee and Westfall.

"We got the call in front of Miller's used car lot," Westfall remembered. "We were told to get back to the savings' office. McGee and I went thru the alley and came out by Paul's restaurant. The suspect was not there.

Jones, who spotted the suspect's car in front of the John Mach used car lot, said: "he parked and slid over to the passenger's side of the car and looked back at us."

After the police came, Jones pointed out Wright's car to the officers. Wright was going south on North Center between Dunlap and Main.

Wright headed west on Main street, went down to Phil's Pure station and turned in, according to Westfall. Then he backed out and swung around the corner up Wing street. Wright turned right at Randolph and ended up back at North Center. Westfall remarked that he and McGee were now in radio contact with Chief King. As they followed Wright's car, Westfall and McGee got (Continued on Page 8)

'I Knew It Was Gene'

Telling Mrs. King of Tragedy

When Mrs. Eugene King answered the door of the Kings' big, red brick home at 512 West Dunlap street last week, she knew something was wrong.

She could see it in the faces of her callers. Just 20 minutes earlier, at about 1:30 p.m., she had heard the screaming ambulance sirens.

Now on her porch stood officers William McGee and Robert Pankov and Linda McKernan, her friend and frequent baby sitter.

She asked them to come in. "Then they took me by the arms and asked me to sit down. I said, 'It's Gene, isn't it? Something's happened to Gene.'"

Mrs. King saw a cut on Officer McGee's head. In her mind she guessed that there had been an auto accident, that her husband had been driving and Officer McGee's head had struck the windshield.

Then they told her that Chief King had been shot, that he was on his way to St. Mary's hospital and that Linda would take care of the baby while the officers took her to the hospital.

Six of the seven King children were in school. Two were to learn of their father's injury suddenly and frighteningly that afternoon. The others were told Thursday morning by their mother.

When Mrs. King arrived at the hospital she saw her husband being whisked into an elevator on his way to surgery. She heard him speak.

The sister in charge told her it was strictly against hospital regulations to allow anyone outside the official staff into the operating room.

But Lorna King is a determined woman. And she's a registered nurse. She knows the rules and she knew that it required calmness, no emotion if one were to enter the operating room.

"I must go in. I want him to know I'm here and that I'll be here," she told the sister. Her voice was firm and soon they were outfitting her with a surgical mask.

When she reached her husband, the anesthetic was being administered.

"Gene's head was moving from side to side. I placed my hand on his forehead. He looked at me and then said, 'I've been shot.' I told him I knew and that I would be there, that I would stay there nearby."

Mrs. King did stay — until 3:30 a.m. Thursday. That night she slept, fully clothed on the living room couch. And when the children awakened in the morning they were full of questions. "Where's Daddy?" they asked.

David, 15, knew. He had been told by a youngster at school that "your Dad's been shot, three times. He's dead". The terrified David dashed home. Linda was there with 15-month-old Peter. She told David what had happened, that his father was critical, but alive. Gregory, 12, arrived at that time and was also told.

Thursday Mrs. King kept her children home from school. She told them about Daddy and the bank robber. "I hate that naughty bank robber," said five-year-old Joseph.

King's Condition: 'Encouraging'

"Still critical, but encouraging." The surgery performed on Chief King last week was strictly reparatory. The damage caused by the bullet's paths was mended. The bullets were not removed.

Dr. Hagge said there was no sign of infection to date. It is possible the bullets may never be removed. According to Dr. Hagge, their location is "inconsequential."

But Chief King was scheduled to undergo surgery again yesterday (Wednesday). Dr. Hagge said a pack was used to control the bleeding caused by the slug lodged behind the liver. This pack must be removed. The surgeon termed this a relatively serious procedure, which could be halted if bleeding should resume.

This is what Dr. Hagge reported: "Twenty minutes after Chief King arrived in the emergency room he was taken to surgery. Two 25-caliber bullets entered King's body at very nearly the same spot at the junction of the chest and abdomen. One of the two slugs went downward and lodged itself in the right posterior spinal muscles behind the sacrum. It perforated the small and large intestine.

The second bullet followed an upward course causing minor injury to the stomach and pancreas and caused a large blood clot in the area of the aorta and the posterior surface of the liver.

Dr. Hagge described this area as a "surgical no man's land". He said the entrance of the bullet into this area without causing fatal damage was miraculous.

Dr. Donald Hagge, chief of staff of St. Mary's hospital, described the condition of Northville Police Chief Eugene King this week.

Roberts, McNamara Nominated

In a primary election made significant by the scarcity of voters Democrat Edward McNamara and Republican Farrell Roberts won nomination for the right to face each other in the April 5 election for state senator of the 14th district.

The post had been won by Republican Paul Chandler last November. Chandler died December 11.

District-wide totals were as follows: Democrats — McNamara, 4,004; John H. Burke, 1,010; Elsie Gilmore, 976; Republicans — Roberts, 4,739; Paul A. Kern, 1,493; Allan C. Ingle, 1,154; Thomas J. McHugh, 909; Fitzhugh Prescott, 383; George T. Ames, 231.

The city of Northville recorded 297 votes out of a registration of 2,371 for a turnout of about 12 per cent.

In the township the vote hit about 16 per cent with 267 of the 1,620 registered voters casting ballots.

THE TOTALS

Chamber Plans to Revise Street Pattern

The 102-member Northville Community Chamber of Commerce has its teeth into its first major proposal — a sweeping rejuvenation of the city's street system.

Next Thursday night the proposals of the Chamber's traffic and transportation committee will come before a general membership meeting for consideration.

The committee is headed by John Carlo and is composed of Mrs. Velma Belasco, Eugene King, Harold Penn and Adolph Schuler.

This is the report that the committee will ask its membership to endorse:

1. Straighten and widen Randolph street from Taft road to Center street. (This is important due to the fact that we have concluded that most of the future development would be north and west of Northville.)

2. Wing street widened on the east side, continued into Hines drive on the southerly end and continue it north beyond Randolph street where it now ends. Curve the continuation in a northeasterly direction to the point where Walnut enters Center street. Then make Center street one way north and Wing street one way south. Widen Center street from Walnut to Eight Mile road. (This would allow for parking on both sides of both Center and Wing streets and relieve congestion at the corner of Center and Main street.)

3. Continue Rogers street in a northwesterly curve according to the topography of the land so that it meets Taft road and intersects Eight Mile road. (This would aid north and south traffic.)

4. That High street be continued north from Elm street to Baseline then west along Baseline to the high school.

5. Continue Seven Mile road cut-off easterly under railroad tracks and then southeasterly curve into Seven Mile road.

6. Change the entrance to the high school from Center street in such a manner that there be a double curve — two forks projecting north, and two south to avoid the right angle entrance that now exists and is dangerous.

7. Widen Beal street by at least 30 feet on south side from Church street to Northville road and light this intersection.

8. Curb Northville road from city line to where present curbing terminates. Put in drain that would carry surface water into Rouge river. Beautify this area with flowers and bushes. Cover Rouge river where visible to traffic.

9. It is also recommended that a committee be selected to confer with the Planning Commission regarding these improvements, as to whether or not, these improvements in any way affect any of their future plans. We feel that in view of the fact that the Mall Project, if consummated, will be in the future, that our recommendations are urgent and presently needed. Even the continuation of Northville road to meet Nov Road is too long in the future to relieve our present situation.

The February 25 meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the city hall.

New Route Eyed For Detroit Line

An alternate route through the city of Northville for the Detroit water line was proposed Tuesday night by the city's water consultants, Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May.

The consultants have proposed extension of the line from Baseline at Center to Dunlap along Center street, then west to Wing street and south along Wing to Fairbrook, then returning eastward to Center street from which the line would continue southward to Five Mile.

The city manager, attorney and consultants were instructed to draft an agreement covering the proposal, although definite action to accept the new plan was not taken by the council.

Nichols, Toussaint In Council Race

Two more candidates entered the race for city council in Northville this week.

Four hopefuls have now indicated they will seek the two four-year seats.

Latest to file petitions was Charles Toussaint, 34, of 528 Horton. Toussaint is a lifelong resident of the community and an accountant in Detroit.

Petitions were taken out Tuesday by W. Wallace Nichols, 219 Ely drive south. Nichols is employed by Creditors Service, Inc., in Detroit and is a member of the city planning commission.

Incumbent Councilwoman Mrs. Beatrice Carlson has stated

she will seek re-election, but Councilman Richard Amble has decided to retire from the council.

Another previously announced council candidate is C. Oscar Hammond.

Only incumbent A. M. Allen has announced intentions of seeking the two-year mayor's post on the council. Allen has served for 3½ terms as mayor.

Also on the city ballot on April 5 will be the position of municipal judge. Incumbent Charles McDonald is seeking re-election with no opposition to date.

Petitions must be filed by noon Saturday, February 27 with the city clerk.

Faces Exam Friday

Warren Robert Wright, the gunman who shot Police Chief Eugene King twice in the abdomen last Wednesday, returns to Northville Friday.

Handcuffed to state police officers, Wright will appear in the courtroom of Northville Municipal Judge Charles McDonald to face a preliminary examination.

Last Wednesday afternoon, a few hours after he had seriously wounded Chief King, Wright was arraigned in Judge McDonald's court on the charge of assault with intent to kill and murder.

Wright stood mute and was placed under $50,000 bail by Judge McDonald who said that "I wanted to set the bond to commensurate with the crime."

It will be up to Judge McDonald to determine tomorrow that a crime has been committed and that reasonable grounds exist that Wright committed the crime. If it is so, Wright will be bound over to Wayne county circuit court for prosecution.

Meanwhile, Wright was arraigned Monday in the courtroom of Federal Judge Thaddeus Machrowitz.

An FBI agent said Wright was charged by the U.S. Attorney on two counts — holding up the Northville branch of Detroit Federal Savings on June 8, 1964 and September 22, 1964.

The FBI said Wright stood mute and waived indictment. Judge Machrowitz then entered a plea of not guilty for the defendant, a standard procedure. Bond was continued at $50,000.

Wright was taken back to his cell in the Wayne county jail in downtown Detroit.

Last Friday, John Macauley and Mrs. Judith Hedlund, employees of Detroit Federal Savings, and Carl Johnson, a Northville real estate and insurance agent, identified Wright as the holdup man in a lineup at the county jail.

Johnson recalled that an FBI agent earlier said: "When you see him again, you'll remember him." Johnson did.

Johnson and Macauley were present during the first holdup while Macauley and Mrs. Hedlund were working the day the second one was committed.

With Wright positively spotted by three witnesses for the first robbery, the FBI pinned the second one on him with fingerprints gathered at the savings-and-loan office.

In another development in the case, the Northville Record learned that Wright was living in Detroit when both robberies (Continued on Page 8)

In Our Town

By Jean Day

WHEN A SINGLE EVENT raises as much as $2,600 for charitable purposes, there's not much doubt that it will claim an annual place on the social calendar. This was the sum netted from the benefit dinner dance given by Our Lady's League of Victory Catholic church last year.

The gourmet buffet and dance is being repeated this year and is scheduled for February 27, the Saturday preceding Lent, at Roma hall in Livonia. Mrs. Earl L. Egbert, general chairman, has announced that Steve Geoggey's orchestra will play for dancing beginning at 9:30 p.m. As the dinner will begin at 7 p.m., the arrangements committee has suggested that groups attending hold their cocktail parties at the hall, where set-ups will be available. Mrs. Egbert explained that they hope the once-a-year fund raising event can be "a long evening of fun."

Again this year the major portion of the funds raised will benefit Our Lady of Victory school. An $1800 project of blacktopping the entire school playground was made possible through last year's proceeds.

Remainder of the almost $2,600 profit was used to give scholarships to two eighth grade students to the Catholic high schools of their choice, to the school library fund for book purchases, and for church incidentals, including candleholders, and vestments. A donation also was made to Our Lady of Providence.

The League hopes to award the scholarships, based on scholastic ability, again this June.

Mrs. Nelson C. Hyatt, ticket chairman for this year's dinner dance, has 400 tickets in the hands of church members. In addition tickets, which are $12 a couple, will be available at the door. The committee hopes to top last year's attendance of 351 couples.

MARATHON BRIDGE MID-POINT (at the end of December play) finds the women's daytime league topping the six leagues in competition with a high score of 17,220. This total was earned by the team of Mrs. Jack W. Ryenolds and Mrs. Edward Angove.

Second place in the daytime league goes to Mrs. Stuart F. Campbell and Mrs. Gerald Doub, 13,050, and third, to Mrs. Robert Yoder and Mrs. Robert Lang, 12,680.

Top in the night leagues are Mr. and Mrs. William Tucker with 15,480. They are followed in their league by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pauli, 14,880; Mr. and Mrs. John Hahn, 14,010. This is the league (Group A) captained by Mrs. Gordon Forfer.

Third high league is that captained by Mrs. H. O. Evans with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laird accumulating a 14,580 score. They are followed in that league by Dr. and Mrs. F. F. Ishac, 12,670; and by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Vradenburg, 10,710.

Mrs. Chet Lipa's league follows with a high of 13,890 by Mr. and Mrs. Al Wistert; 13,290 by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Angove; 10,670 by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hartt. Mrs. Frorer's league (Group D) has a high of 13,480 by Mr. and Mrs. James McCormick; 13,300 by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lang; 12,360 by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ward.

In Mrs. Blake Couse's league Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McRae are high with 13,010, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Schrader, 12,260, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horner, 11,380.

The 60 participating couples in the six leagues will continue to play once monthly through May. The May play, concluding the tournament sponsored by Mothers' Club, will be at an over-all get-together at Amerman school. Mothers' Club will serve coffee and cake.

Cash prizes of $50, $20 and $10 will be awarded to the top couples in each of the six leagues at the conclusion. Complete mid-point scores will be posted this week in The Northville Record window.

LOBBYING IN LANSING will be described by Stan Schaefer at the next Mothers' Club meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. William E. Davis, Orchard drive. Co-hostesses for the guest day program are Mrs. Kenneth Conley, Mrs. Blake Couse, Mrs. Essie Nirider and Mrs. Eugene Cook.

Stan Schaefer, whose wife is a Mothers' Club member, has been a lobbyist in the Michigan State Legislature for nine years. He represents several state associations, including the Association of General Contractors of America and the Michigan Savings and Loan League. A graduate of Michigan State university, he and his family have been Northville residents for 11 years.

Salute Cadets

Jon Kaake, a first lieutenant in the Northville Civil Air Patrol, recently appeared before the Michigan Wing screening board at Selfridge Air Force base.

The board annually awards special activities citations to Michigan cadets.

Kaake, competing with 40 other state cadets, walked off with the American Legion's Boys State award. Boys State is held annually at Michigan State University.

Another local cadet has been cited for achievement, too. Lynn Baughman, a second lieutenant, was appointed Monday night as cadet commander of the local CAP.

Mrs. Sober To Speak

About 75 friends dropped in at their home during the afternoon. For the occasion Mrs. Hill put on display the ivory lace and satin wedding gown she had worn on February 10, 1940.

Northville Explains 6-7-8 Junior High

EDITOR'S NOTE - The following article was written by Dr. Kenneth MacLeod, assistant superintendent of schools in Northville, as an explanation of the decision by the board of education to adopt the 6-7-8 grade program for junior high school. It will be followed next week by an article written by Superintendent Russell Amerman which will outline more specifically the philosophy behind the 6-7-8 grade program and its experience elsewhere. The articles were prepared at the request of The Record so that parents who have expressed concern over the proposal could better understand its objectives.

In Saginaw township the grades 5-6-7-8, are called the "middle school". They feel that this organization has been most successful. We also checked out the 6-7-8 grade program at Holt, Hazellet and Williamston where the organization is successful. It is our intention to broaden the scope of the junior high school curriculum next year in order that the sixth grade pupils may profit more from science, music, art, physical education and perhaps industrial arts and homemaking.

We do not intend to mix the 6th, 7th and 8th grade pupils in social functions but we do feel that the 6th grade can profit from the use of the facilities and equipment in the junior high school. It is felt that in order to really test these grades we should try the program for at least three years. If we find this organization is not the best for the 6th grade boys and girls we will be the first to recommend a change.

UNEXPECTED COMPANY - A guest from the blue dropped in at the Robert W. Baidel residence, 20758 Lujon, Meadowbrook Hills in Farmington township Sunday. The plane, piloted by Richard Beaubien of 43443 Grand River, Novi, on a test cruise for co-owner Max McGregor of 17373 Ridge road, Northville, apparently incurred engine failure when Beaubien brought it in for an emergency landing near Haggerty road and Eight Mile among the subdivision's cluster of $40,000 homes. S. R. Cracker, 9205 Six Mile road, Northville, is also a co-owner of the craft, which suffered damage only to the wheel assembly. The pilot was not injured.

Fight Junk Piles in Novi

Village councilmen hope to mow down unsightly junk piles existing in Novi.

Howard Bond, village attorney, had been asked to draft an ordinance to legally fight the eyesores locally.

In outlining the need for such a measure, Harold Ackley, village administrative assistant, said that "places are getting more cluttered all the time."

Bond informed the council that scrap yards abound in areas having a lot of vacant property. "A place was cleaned out in Walled Lake and it was found that police had brought cars there," Bond said.

Cagers Win Two; Eye League Lead

For suspense, not even the artistry of Alfred Hitchcock could top the past week of play in the Wayne-Oakland conference.

Northville took a leading role in a week of thrillers. Playing back-to-back ball games, the Mustangs pulled both of them out of the fire in the final period to remain in the W-O running for the title.

A flurry of 10 consecutive points enabled the Mustangs to turn a close 41-34 contest Friday night into a runaway against Brighton. Northville

Colt Cagers Split Tilts

It was up and down again for the Northville Colts the past weekend.

They opened visiting Brighton, 49-39, Friday night to snap an eight game losing streak as Coach Alex Klukach cleared the bench in the closing period.

Forward Jim Zayti provided the spark by scoring 20 points to lead his mates. He was backed up by Pat Hall's eight.

Three Milford JV's turned the tables on Northville Saturday night, however. They tallied a total of 68 points, contributing all but 10 of their team's total in a 78-65 victory.

Klukach's cagers fell behind 19-8, and just couldn't get up momentum to overtake Milford.

The margin at halftime was 37-28, but a 20-point third period put the game out of Northville's reach.

Tom Swiss with 12 points and Zayti with 11 topped the local scorers.

went on from there to post a 62-45 victory.

Saturday night's 57-53 conquest of Milford was even more harrowing as Northville came back from a 35-22 half-time deficit to finally pull out the decision in the closing moments.

The last victory wound up a dramatic week of court antics that saw Northville grab sole possession of second place and bounce back into league contention after losing a game to top-seated Bloomfield Hills the previous week.

The series of events aiding Northville began last Tuesday when both Bloomfield and Holly suffered setbacks.

Clarkston came up with its game of the year by stunning Bloomfield, 67-55, to pin the second loss on the league leaders.

And West Bloomfield dropped Holly out of a second-place tie with Northville by edging the Broncos, 66-64.

In a battle of giants, Holly slid further down the line Friday night when Bloomfield copied a 64-57 win.

Meanwhile, Clarkston came up with its second win of the week by thumping Clarenceville Friday, 88-66, to move past Holly into third place.

As a result, first place is still Bloomfield's with a 10-2 record, but Northville threatens with a 9-3 slate. Just a notch behind is Clarkston (8-4) the hottest squad in the loop.

That's the picture, those are the contenders and there's more to come in the remaining two weeks to make the strongest fan weak in the knees.

Bloomfield is in the best spot, and with Clarenceville as one of its opponents in the final two games, the Barons are assured of at least a tie for loop honors.

Key to the final outcome is Northville. The Mustangs, who have their work cut out for them, must face tough Clarkston on the road next Friday before taking on Bloomfield in a showdown battle here February 26.

Only a miracle could vault Clarkston into a tie for first place. The Wolves square off against Northville, then take a long journey to Holly, still a dangerous foe. In addition, Bloomfield Hills must lose both its games.

In a span of three minutes, Northville blew the Brighton

Grapplers 'Tie-Up' Grosse Ile

Putting forth their best effort this season, the Northville matmen tied Grosse Ile Thursday, 18-18, at Grosse Ile.

The victory atoned for a previous setback, 42-11, at the hands of Grosse Ile earlier in the year.

"The boys really put on a good show," said Mentor Dick Gray. "It was a considerable improvement over our previous outings."

There were six Northville winners. Taking decisions were 95-pound Bob Baber, 103-pound Tom Wright, 133-pound Norm Dix, 145-pound Dale Ashby, 180-pound Bob Orr and Heavyweight Jerry Burns.

Mustangs Gear For Clarkston

With a crack at the Wayne-Oakland championship clearly in sight, Coach Dave Longridge's cagers will be out to shoot the works Friday against Clarkston.

Make no mistake about it, Northville is gearing up for Clarkston, at present the hottest team in the league and just behind the Mustangs with an 8-4 record.

The Wolves would like north-

Flying Frosh Win Again

Northville's freshmen cagers are flying higher than a kite on the Fourth of July.

They're just back from their most recent conquest, a 60-56 victory over Willow Run, a citadel of basketball madness.

It was Guard Dennis Matthews who iced the game late in the fourth quarter by converting four out of four free throws. He tallied 14 points.

But the list of stars doesn't stop there. Center Jim Peterson played an outstanding all-around ball game, which included 23 points.

Matthews and Peterson got support from Ross Butt and Bob Hubbert, who scored nine and eight points, respectively.

Lauded for his stellar play also was Guard Randy Burnett who filled in for the ailing Joe Andrews.

"It was a genuine team effort," Coach Bob Kucher noted. "We all worked hard for the victory."

The win pushed the frosh record to 12-3.

ing better than to record their second big upset in a row by downing Northville at home. Just last week, Clarkston pulled the biggest upset of the season by beating talent-laden Bloomfield Hills.

But Longridge isn't taking the Wolves lightly. "We're going out to get them like we did last time," Longridge declared. "We'll try to run with them, but we'll have to watch out — their floor is 10 feet longer than ours," he added.

In their initial clash of the season, Northville played one of its best games in beating Clarkston, 64-52. Northville employed a full-court press to keep Clarkston back on its heels in mounting up a 64-46 margin before Coach Longridge relented by putting in his reserves with three minutes left.

To stop Clarkston this time, the Mustangs will have to clamp down on Clarkston's two top scorers, Dan Fife and Gary Pearson. They have been sparking the team by hitting consistently in double figures.

Although the Wolves lack a big man, they proved their ability to knock off taller opponents by dumping Bloomfield. And Bloomfield handled the Mustangs with little difficulty in their first meeting.

If Northville gets by Clarkston, then the stage will be set for the showdown with Bloomfield Hills here in the final game of the season. Longridge pointed out that this thought should make his cagers move.

CAGERETTES — The girls got into the cage act last Friday when a Northville girls team, coached by Miss Pat Bubel, took on visiting Livonia Bentley here. Northville lost its first outing of the year, 47-28, the first of seven scheduled inter-scholastic games. The girls' JV team had more success, edging Bentley in a low scoring fray, 8-4.

caught at the traffic light at Dunlap and Center. Wright stopped at Main and Center. King was then approaching Main and Center. He told the officers over the airwaves. "Yes, I see him. He is watching you out of his rear view mirror."

Nothing that Wright was turning left, the officers went down Dunlap to Hutton. In the meantime, King turned his car around and joined the pursuit. Westfall continued: "We saw the suspect cross Hutton and Main. We were back four cars from the corner on Hutton, waiting for the light to change. We put the siren on and swung around the other cars. By that time the chief's car had passed and we fell in behind."

King instructed the officers to apprehend the suspect. "Stop him for speeding," the chief commanded. McGee and Westfall passed the chief's car. All three cars were traveling on South Main. Wright turned left at Seven Mile road. So did the officers and King. Wright was finally stopped on Seven Mile near the entrance to the gravel pit.

"McGee got out of the patrol

"I didn't realize I had a gash on the head until it was all over," said Patrolman William McGee, who subdued Warren R. Wright after Wright shot Chief King. "I don't know whether Wright hit me or kicked me," McGee said. His wound was stitched up after Wright was put behind bars.

LET'S TALK CARS... A BUYER'S MARKET

It is a common occurrence when car dealers meet these days to hear the remark "in all my years in the car business I've never known a buyer's market like this one." While buyers markets have always come and gone with changes in the economy, the fact remains that today's surplus of cars over buyers has reached a very high level.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the used car market, for very specific reasons:

Before World War II, three out of five car owners had never owned a new automobile. As high as 80 percent of car owners at one time bought their cars second hand.

The rising post-war living standard made it possible for former used car buyers to move into the new car class. This process has been greatly speeded up in recent years by low-priced compacts.

The manufacturers production race of the late fifties resulted in extended credit terms that opened the new car market to still greater numbers of buyers.

For all these reasons, plus the fact that modern cars have been built to last longer, the values offered today on the used car market are the greatest in history. They represent the TRUE MARKET VALUE of the cars at, in many cases, a fraction of their new car price.

But one word of caution—Unless you are an expert mechanic, appraiser and market expert, you can still make a bad mistake. Your only safeguard is a reputable dealer who is both—and who wishes to keep your repeat business.

car with his pistol drawn. He went up to the suspect," Westfall said. "I went to the right front fender carrying a riot gun (sawed-off shotgun)."

"The suspect was nervous and excited. McGee opened the door and told the man to keep his hands on the steering wheel and not to take them off."

McGee said Wright was jittery. "I had to tell him two or three times to keep both hands on the wheel. I pointed my pistol at him and he slid over on the passenger's side."

Wright asked McGee "to get in and talk." McGee didn't and remarked: "Come out and talk." Westfall, carrying the riot gun, walked toward Wright. "He became very nervous," Westfall said.

"The suspect didn't want to get out of the car. Chief King tried to talk with him. The suspect said we were going to shoot him. The chief said we just wanted to talk with him."

King told McGee and Westfall to put away their weapons. They complied. "I put mine back in my holster," McGee said. Westfall returned to the patrol car with the riot gun.

A call came over the radio. Westfall acknowledged it. He told the chief that the FBI, called earlier by Macaulay, wanted to talk to the suspect and "that two cars were on the way."

King continued to question the suspect. Westfall indicated that the suspect "knew quite a bit about Northville." Motioning to the suspect, King told him: "Come with me."

He got into King's car. The suspect was not handcuffed or frisked, Westfall said.

Westfall said the suspect was concerned about his car. King told Westfall to drive it to the station. King, the suspect and Cuda were in the Chief's unmarked car and McGee was in the patrol car. They left the scene. Westfall had a little trouble starting the suspect's car and was left behind.

King called the station. Mrs. Ritchie answered. It was about 1:25 p.m. King told Mrs. Ritchie: "I am coming to the station with the suspect."

When Westfall got to Seven Mile and Northville road he could see the other two cars rounding the curve near the Ford valve plant.

"By the time I got to the business district," Westfall said, "I didn't see the others and figured they were already at the station."

On the way to the station, the suspect suddenly brandished a .25 caliber Colt automatic pistol. Cuda, who was sitting in the back seat, said:

"Wright reached down to toward his shoes before coming up with the revolver. Maybe it was somewhere between his socks and shoes."

As they got close to the municipal building, Wright told King: "Shake the patrolman behind us." King didn't turn at Wing and Main but kept going west on Main. "Apparently the chief didn't want to stop in the heart of town. He was concerned that someone might get hurt," Cuda theorized.

With Wright threatening the chief and waving his revolver, Cuda said that King tried to persuade the suspect to put his gun away. But, according to Cuda, Wright snapped.

"I am a two-time loser. You are not taking me in." Meanwhile, Westfall arrived at the station. When he drove into the parking lot he didn't see the other cars. Westfall's reaction: "I thought maybe the chief had stopped at the bank."

Now it was about 1:30 p.m. Inside the station, Mrs. Ritchie heard on the police radio: "Hello, hello, hello." Cuda was calling. He told Mrs. Ritchie: "The chief has been shot. Get an ambulance up here."

When Westfall entered the station, Mrs. Ritchie was excited and exclaimed: "My God, Lou, the chief has been shot. Get up in front of Bloom's."

Westfall took off on foot to the Harold Bloom insurance agency on Main street. Just then Casterline's ambulance turned right onto Main and went to the entrance to the city parking area near Bloom's.

Roger Eicken, an employee of the Casterline Funeral Home, recalled the incident: "I was told that the ambulance was needed in front of Bloom's. Then the police car came down Main and someone told me: 'Up the street.' Somehow Westfall jumped into the back of the ambulance and we sped to the scene."

Actually, King was shot near the Harold Bloom residence on West Main street. Cuda was driving the patrol car and flagged down the ambulance.

In recapping the shooting, Cuda said: "The suspect ordered the chief to pull off the tire. King stopped and took the car out of gear. Then he was shot."

Just before Wright pulled the trigger, McGee, still behind the chief, said "he saw a commotion in the car. I ran up the right side of the car and opened the door. I heard two shots and then the suspect swung at me."

"I had my hand's full," McGee said. "I wanted to get the guy and the gun. And I would get him anyway I could. I wasn't paying much attention to what the chief was doing. Everything happened so fast."

Cuda provided more details on the skirmish in the car. "Even with two slugs in him, King kept fighting the suspect until he was handcuffed. Wright was a pretty tough hombre."

Sol, a basset hound, was an eye-witness to the shooting of Chief King last Wednesday but unfortunately he couldn't talk. Officer McGee picked up Sol, who was limping, near the old Whipple house on Eight Mile, then was told to check out a "suspicious person" report at Detroit Federal Savings.

Later, Northville police placed Sol in a cell next to gunman Warren Wright to keep the animal safe while FBI agents and local officers conducted an investigation of the shooting. Sol belonged to a Washington couple who were visiting relatives in Northville.

Wright stood mute and was held on $50,000 bond. He was then taken to the Wayne County jail in downtown Detroit.

Why $50,000 bond? Judge McDonald explained: "I wanted to set the bond commensurate with the crime. I thought it was serious enough for that type of bond."

Questioned about the state police's role in the crime, the judge said that "our police were involved in the crime. If this goes to trial, the defense might say that our policemen are trying to hang the defendant. By calling in the state police, this wouldn't be an issue at a trial."

Wright is scheduled to appear at a preliminary examination Friday in Northville. Said Lieutenant Daniel Myre of the state police: "Wright is our responsibility and we'll see that the prisoner is present."

"Then King started holding his stomach. He was in terrific pain," Cuda explained.

When the ambulance arrived at the scene, Westfall jumped out. "The chief was kneeling near his car, holding his stomach," Westfall said. Inside the car, McGee had the suspect lying face down on the front seat. The suspect was handcuffed, Westfall said.

Eicken said: "We helped the chief onto the stretcher. Cuda and Dr. A. A. Holcomb helped." Cuda said the chief had difficulty in breathing on the way to St. Mary hospital. "Dr. Holcomb and I gave him oxygen."

"McGee, Westfall and the suspect went to the police station. Wright was placed in a jail cell in the basement. A few minutes later a reporter for the Northville Record entered the police station. It was 1:45 p.m."

Everyone seemed tense and flustered. Telephones were ringing incessantly. Newspapers were trying to confirm if the chief had been shot as were other law enforcement agencies.

Talking briefly with McGee, Westfall and Mrs. Ritchie, the Record reporter gathered a sketchy outline of the episode. Shortly after 2:30 p.m., the Record was on the street with the story.

Local police officials didn't actually question the suspect until the FBI conducted its investigation. Wright was interrogated in a room across from the jail cells.

At that time, the FBI called him "John Doe."

Northville Municipal Judge Charles McDonald explained the reason for the pseudonym. "The state police confiscated Wright's hat and wallet. But it is not uncommon for papers in the wallet to be phony."

Later, police said the suspect was Warren Robert Wright, 29. Wright was living at 627 Ridgeview drive in Corunna, Michigan. He was married and had two children.

Around 5 p.m. police announced that Wright would be arraigned. Wright would be taken up the stairwell leading from the basement lobby to the first floor of the municipal building.

But he didn't go up that way. Instead, the state police escorted him out the side door of the police station, into the fire hall and then thru a door near Judge McDonald's office.

Then, with television cameras eyeing his movements and flashbulbs popping, Wright was led down a corridor to the council chambers where Judge McDonald was presiding.

Wright, who was handcuffed, tried to shield himself by hitting his hands to his face. It was hard for anyone to get a full face photograph of the suspect.

Wright was specifically charged with assault with intent to kill and murder. The complaint against Wright was signed by Detective Robert Ferry of the Michigan state police post in Detroit.

Wright stood mute and was held on $50,000 bond. He was then taken to the Wayne County jail in downtown Detroit.

Why $50,000 bond? Judge McDonald explained: "I wanted to set the bond commensurate with the crime. I thought it was serious enough for that type of bond."

Questioned about the state police's role in the crime, the judge said that "our police were involved in the crime. If this goes to trial, the defense might say that our policemen are trying to hang the defendant. By calling in the state police, this wouldn't be an issue at a trial."

were pulled off. A relative of Editor Don Bauerle tipped off The Record. Wright and his family were residing at 12327 Ilene near Grand River and Wyoming. Wright's name is listed in the Detroit telephone directory as W. Robert Wright.

According to Bauerle's sister-in-law, Mrs. Diane Sweet, Wright was renting the home at the Ilene address when the Sweets moved into the neighborhood last March.

Coincidentally, Mrs. Sweet is a nurse for the pediatrician who cares for Chief King's children.

Mrs. Sweet said that she immediately recognized Wright's picture.

Further, she described the car that Wright owned. She said "it was an aqua 1964 Dodge." Her description matched the one sent out by police officials after the second robbery.

Mrs. Sweet said that Wright, to her recollection, left the neighborhood sometime last fall. The FBI verified this and said Wright moved to Corunna — which is near Owosso — in late September.

The second robbery took place September 22. Wright has a police record, the FBI stated. He encountered ed some problems as a juvenile and got into serious trouble when he was 17.

He was sentenced to one to 10 years in Jackson state prison for the armed robbery of a Kent county gasoline station in 1952.

Paroled a year later, he reported to a probation officer in Portland, Oregon. Wright lived there with his mother and stepfather.

Wright was finally discharged from parole in 1957. Then law enforcement agencies are somewhat unclear about his whereabouts.

As an FBI agent put it: "Wright was pretty good for a long time."

He was — until he ventured to Northville last summer and last week.

As police reports verify, he approached the savings office but apparently was scared off when he saw a Northville police car driven by Officer William McGee heading toward Dunlap and North Center streets. McGee was checking out a "suspicious person report."

Wright's luck ran out a few minutes later when he shouted: "I am a two-time loser. You're not taking me in."

Shortly thereafter, he shot Chief King.

Now Wright faces 25 years imprisonment for each robbery and possibly a life term for shooting King.

Four Northville Women

They Make Picture Books for the Blind

By Jean Day
Little fingers substitute for eyes as six young blind children at the Plymouth State Home and Training School "read" their special picture book, "A New Day," created for them by three Northville volunteers.

Working with their teacher, Mrs. Sandra Soloman, Mrs. John Begle, Mrs. William C. Wiley and Miss Linda Edgerton spent their free minutes in recent weeks cutting bits of coroduro into jackets or gluing cereal particles into tiny copper-tooled bowls to create six copies of the dimensional picture-story.

The limited-edition was produced after Mrs. Begle, a Plymouth State Home volunteer, learned of the need for it from Sandy Soloman. Mrs. Soloman wrote the simple story which, she explained, had to be based upon the children's own experiences as her little charges have no concept of make-believe or family.

So the story begins, "I get up in the morning —" and follows a days routine.

Artist Linda Edgerton then created the designs to illustrate the story in dimensions that the children could trace. These patterns were copied and glued into place by Mrs. Begle and Mrs. Wiley, who have worked together as Braille transcribers since 1961.

The books themselves contain no Braille. Mrs. Soloman explained that when the children are ready, Braille tapes can be inserted. Right now she reads the story and the children follow along, keeping pace as she tells when to turn the pages. For two partially-sighted children who have joined Mrs. Soloman's class at the home, Miss Edgerton fashioned adaptations of the book.

Whether you feel them or look at them, picture books are a "fun" first step toward learning. Mrs. Soloman's pupils are finding. So popular were the first books that the volunteers, who donated 55 hours to make them, agreed to find time to make a second set of books, a story of a trip to an ice-cream parlor.

Mrs. Soloman wrote this story also, basing it upon the almost weekly trip she makes with the children Friday afternoons to the Cloverdale Dairy Store.

Nine copies of this book are underway with Linda Edgerton snipping small doorways in the pages. Even the familiar pillars which flank the door are being reproduced dimensionally. As the work increased more help has been needed. Mary Begle thought of a co-worker in the Northville Branch of the Farm and Garden Association, Mrs. Donald A. Ware.

The choice, she recounts, was a happy one as Mrs. Ware "immediately and enthusiastically" agreed, saying "just give me the dimensions." The four volunteers keep track of the hours they donate to the project and Mrs. Begle reports them to Lansing, where state records are kept. Materials for the books are supplied by the state. The work, however, is purely voluntary and without pay.

A third book already is taking shape. This, a picnicking adventure, is being written by a teenager, Dottie Petrie of Livonia. She has been a volunteer worker at the home and agreed to do the book with Mrs. Soloman.

Most of the work on the books is done by the volunteers individually at home but they have been getting together on Thursdays when it could be arranged.

Mrs. Begle points out that while the books are new to the Plymouth State Home and Training School, the books' concept is not original. Delta Gamma sorority, she said, a few years ago took on the project of making similar books for the Adams elementary school in Livonia. Mrs. Begle and her Northville volunteers, however, have not seen the sorority's editions.

Mrs. Begle, who is serving as Garden Club president this year, still makes time to transcribe books for blind students on her Perkins Braille, as goes Mrs. Wiley.

Asked how she manages all this, plus a family and country home complete with horses, Mary Begle merely says positively, "it's rewarding!"

Sightless youngsters at Plymouth State Home can now see things they never saw before thanks to the creative talents of three Northville residents. A dimensional picture story allows the youngsters to "feel" what a bus, ice cream cone, blouse and even a face (pictured above) are like. "A New Day" is the first story. Another story is being prepared for the children about their weekly visit to a dairy parlor.

The Bible Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches this Sunday will feature the story of Moses leading children of Israel into the promised land, showing how his faith in God resulted in what are considered miracles. This is amplified in a citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 200): "Moses advanced a nation to the worship of God in Spirit instead of matter, and illustrated the grand human capacities of being bestowed by immortal mind." The subject for the day is "Mind," and the Golden Texts from Matthew (22:37): "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind."

from the PASTOR'S STUDY

by the Rev. S. D. Kinde

First Methodist Church

A new convert to Christ was heard to pray, "Lord, help me to reform the world beginning with myself." He had the right idea, one often contrary to the popular idea of many reformers who want to start on the other fellow. So often we wonder why the other person doesn't mend his ways or change his attitudes. Seldom are we willing to ask God to change the world by changing US. We want Him to change the other fellow.

I once read of a family that moved into a rather run-down area of a big city. The woman was tempted to lecture her careless neighbors on beauty and cleanliness, but being a wise woman, she refrained. She scrubbed her own doorway and steps clean, gathered up and burned the accumulation of wastepaper and leaves.

Spring came and house and fence were given a coat of paint and the yard was adorned with new shrubbery. Many rosebushes were planted as she kept smilingly at her work. When the roses bloomed, she gave flowers to the neighbor's children and they carried them into their homes. This woman let her influence be felt, but did not talk about it.

Two years passed, and within that time practically every home in the block had had its face lifted, and it became a show street with rising economic values. This was because a wise reformer began at home.

Virtue can not be taught as much as caught. All inspiration begins within us, and all good deeds come from un-seen thoughts. When self is of the proper nature it produces many human qualities - self-control, self-esteem, self-respect etc.

Lent is at hand. In a few more days we will come to Ash Wednesday. May this be a time of reformation when we bow before the Lord and say, "Eternal God, reform the world beginning with me."

It might be helpful if we look deep within our lives and see those things needing reformation. What thoughts need changing? What attitudes hinder us from being our best? What deeds keep us from being men and women of honor?

These are the hours when God would come and change our lives by making us better persons. Are we willing that He should make the change?

Virtue can not be taught as Psalmist of old, "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me and I shall be whiter than snow. Create in me and clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

"An Example For Our Children"

WHAT DOES IT ALL ADD UP TO?

In the well-known city where this young fellow is growing up crime has shown a steady increase for more than a decade. And many of the convicted offenders aren't old enough to vote. Rough-looking "kids" loiter on the street corners with nothing to do. Smooth-looking "kids" flash by in cars with no place to go. The police patrol certain beats with dogs — humanity alone cannot cope with the situation.

But this young fellow must grow up nevertheless. And for him... for the community... for the nation... tomorrow depends on how he grows up!

It all adds up to the most crying need of our time: early, continuing, determined moral and religious instruction. It demands spiritual awareness in our homes. It requires resolute, sacrificial support of our churches.

In every city, village and hamlet an awakened nation is mustering its total spiritual resources... seeking God's help... and seeking yours...

For The Gardener

This column on gardening information is compiled by the Northville branch of the National Farm and Garden Club.

House plants — hard to grow or easy — can make a bare room glow with a "homey" atmosphere. A flowering plant or a green leafy foliage plant can transform a room.

Most house plants require an abundance of light, either artificial or natural, although they vary in the amount of direct sunlight needed. Some protection from direct sun rays is usually necessary. Generally, light increases a plant's ability to manufacture food which provides the materials for the energy necessary for growth. On the other hand, many of the "shade enduring" kinds are retarded in their growth by strong light. Flowering plants such as geraniums, begonias, chrysanthemums and cyclamens thrive best in a sunny south window, while those grown chiefly for their foliage, like ferns, palms, philodendron and vines, succeed better in an east window, where they receive more subdued light, or in a room with other exposures as long as the plants are not in the direct sunlight. West windows with strong afternoon sun should be avoided or some protection afforded to reduce the light. North windows admit too little light for healthy growth of almost all plants, except foliage plants.

A moist atmosphere is important to most healthy plant development, but is rather difficult to obtain with the present method of heating our houses. Under the usual conditions of low humidity, plants dry out and are then more susceptible to the attacks of insects and diseases. To alleviate this condition spray the foliage of the plants (but not African violets) once a day with a fine mist of water.

Good soil, as well as a moist atmosphere, is an essential for plant growth. Good soil, kept moist, enables the plant to develop a good root system, able to replace water lost through the leaves. It cannot be emphasized too strongly that an ample supply of water should be furnished to the plants at their roots. This will be one of the best ways of overcoming the effects of low humidity in the home. Lack of water at proper intervals causes the plants to wilt and starve eventually resulting in hardening and woodiness of the tissues.

Too much water, however, can do as much damage. It is apt to reduce proper aeration of the soil and thus cause root injury. Oxygen is necessary to the proper function of the roots. When the soil cavities are filled continuously with water, the roots become deprived of oxygen. Decay of roots and general debility of the plant follow. For these reasons plants must never be allowed to stand in water. For most plants the ideal condition from the standpoint of soil moisture is that condition which is obtained soon after watering when all the surplus has drained away.

A specific rule regarding the exact amount of watering cannot be made, unfortunately. Water plants when they need it. Water the soil thoroughly and allow it to dry before watering again. Avoid frequent applications of relatively small quantities of water. Keeping these two requirements in mind will increase your success with house plants.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

"Why didn't he frisk him?"

Only Eugene King knows the real answer to the question that has been repeated over and over again in the Northville area since a suspected bank-robbler shot and seriously wounded Northville's police chief.

And Monday morning quarterbacks know, now, that Chief King would have been better off if he had submitted the suspect to frisking or handcuffing.

But there are just as many second-guessers who would join the cry of outrage if a law-abiding citizen had been "roughed-up, searched and publicly embarrassed." This would be an infringement of our civil rights.

This isn't being written as a defense of Chief King. It's merely the recognition of a condition to which each of us as citizens must plead guilty.

Our policemen are sitting ducks for criticism. At times it must seem impossible for them to do the right thing.

A September, 1964 article in the Reader's Digest pointed out that "the over-zealous concern for the rights of criminals is preventing law-enforcement officials from doing their job effectively."

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover calls it "one of the most disturbing trends I have witnessed in my years of law enforcement."

Consider this recent case in New York City:

It was after midnight in one of New York City's most turbulent areas, where robberies and killings are frequent.

The detective patrolling in an unmarked car was alert and tense. Experience told him that the two men in front of a bar and grill across the way were up to no good. One kept peering into the place, the other up and down the sidewalks — typical preparations, in the detective's eyes, for a holdup.

The officer slid out of his car. The men saw him coming and started to leave. "This is the police," the detective called. "Hold it!" The suspects allowed themselves to be frisked. One of them had a loaded pistol in his pocket.

In court, the judge found that the detective had no right to search the men because he had not known that they had a gun illegally and because he had no evidence that they intended to commit a crime. Therefore the pistol was inadmissible as evidence, and the case was dismissed.

I don't know what Chief King was thinking about when he brought in Warren Robert Wright. But I'm willing to give him the benefit of any doubts.

Even King's severest critics never accused him of not knowing his police book.

One thing — King was there . . . able and on duty.

And if he did hesitate to take steps that might jeopardize a case against the suspect, then it remains for the lawmakers and citizens to re-appraise our definition of what constitutes violation of civil rights.

State Income Tax Gaining Support

LANSING — Public sentiment appears to have turned full circle in Michigan where income tax is concerned, if organizational voices are any true indication.

Several groups, most notably perhaps the state Farm Bureau, are now supporting and even urging enactment of a statewide tax on incomes where in previous years they were the loudest opponents of such an idea.

On the local front, the recent favorable vote on the Saginaw city income tax was urged by nearly every major civic organization there.

In the Saginaw case, as is being discussed in the Capitol chambers, the tax was coupled with a fiscal reform program. Some other area of taxation was removed or reduced.

Whether the Republican Governor and the Democratic Legislature are able or willing this year to agree on a fiscal reform program including a personal income tax remains to be seen.

One thing is certain, however. Legislators and an increasing segment of the general population have become aware that the surplus-deficit ups and downs will continue under the present tax structure.

Demands for and the rising costs of expanded state services are not likely to end in the future. At the same time, existing forms of taxation are not likely to meet the built-in rise in spending.

With farmers and school officials lamenting that property tax rates have reached beyond reasonable limits and businessmen claiming an unfair method of taxation in the business activities tax, the group supporting tax reform via income tax grows larger almost daily.

If a tax revision program ever reaches the floor of the Legislature in the present two-year reign of the Democrats, it can be expected that many Republicans previously opposed to it will be voting in favor of it.

Relatively little is ever seen or heard publicly about one division of the State Department of Public Instruction, perhaps because it serves a comparatively small portion of citizens.

The vocational rehabilitation division provides both the mentally and physically handicapped with diagnosis and treatment to remove or reduce the disability. Most of the persons in the division's programs are adults.

Diagnosis and counseling for appropriate job goals, retraining for a skill, job placement and follow-up are other functions of this government unit. An average of 4,400 individuals a year are being restored to productivity under programs of this division. Spokesmen say this number is only about one-quarter of those who could be served, if funds were available.

Department officials say around 12,000 persons 16 years or older are newly disabled or reach this employable age with prior disabilities each year.

Lack of funds has resulted in an additional accumulation of a backlog of disabled persons in the state.

Department spokesmen contend that full use of Federal funds, which are available on a modified matching basis, would enable this division to serve all the annual new cases and cut into the backlog.

Compulsory motor vehicle inspection is once again before the Michigan Legislature.

Opposition to it in the past has seldom been made clear, but the proposal has failed to gain sufficient support in several attempts.

Now, as public officials urge trying anything and everything to reduce the constant increase in traffic accidents, this aspect would appear to bear watching.

A national survey has shown about one car or truck in six in use is unsafe. Michigan officials say the state's various voluntary vehicle safety check programs indicate a similar rate here.

Unsafe vehicle tallies in states where the inspections are required have been known to run as high as 40 per cent. It appears the people who conscientiously keep their cars in good condition are also generally those willing to volunteer for safety checks.

Voluntary safety inspection programs were carried out last year in about 130 communities.

The mechanics of operating a compulsory program have been one deterrent to legislative approval in the past, but the near future may bring about a comprehensive plan to overcome this objection.

Roger Babson

Prosperity Holds its Pitfalls

BABSON PARK, Mass. — Everybody is talking about a possible devaluation of the dollar. This has been touched off by the narrow escape which the English pound had last December. And fuel has been added to the fires of speculation by the remarks of President de Gaulle of France concerning the need for something more stable than the dollar and the pound with which to settle debts between nations.

What does dollar devaluation mean? Simply the raising of the dollar price for gold. For more than thirty years, an ounce of gold has been valued at slightly over $35. In some international circles, it has been suggested that a price of $70 an ounce would provide greater liquidity for carrying on the world's commerce. This would mean that one ounce of gold held in this country's reserves could support twice as large an expansion of credit as one ounce can today.

Is the dollar price of gold likely to be raised soon? Our studies of the history of the world's many devaluations point to the conclusion that the price of gold is not advanced until a nation gets into real economic and financial trouble.

Only when it is faced with serious deflation does a government resort to a hike in the price of gold — i.e., to devaluation of its currency. The United States does not face such a threat . . . at this time.

But if our country continues for a long enough period of time to promote "prosperity" by budget deficits and by spending too much abroad and by big annual additions to bank credit, we may be in serious trouble with the dollar at some unknown date in the future. The whole nation is captive to the idea that we must not permit even a tiny downturn in the total of business. Credit must be kept easy and plentiful so that production and income will climb ever higher; this is the way to avoid unemployment and keep everyone happy.

We are like a happy family picnicking in a rowboat drifting down a river . . . so busy with the lunch that we do not hear the roar of the falls growing louder. The danger is not yet; but holding to this course can end only in disaster.

When President De Gaulle of France made his famous remarks about the dollar and the pound at one of his infrequent "press conferences" early this month, he set off an explosion of angry retorts in Washington, London and New York. These political and financial centers assumed that he was calling for a return to the old-fashioned gold standard . . . to replace dollars and pounds as carriers of trade. Every effort was made to dismiss the de Gaulle comments as another of his delusions of grandeur.

It seems more likely, however, that the French statesman was warning Uncle Sam that if he didn't mend his ways, the U.S. would find itself in the same mess that de Gaulle pulled France out of when he took over the helm at Paris in the late 1950's. Certainly few could know at first hand the awful disease of inflation better than the French President. Moreover, he realizes that if the U.S. gets into an economic stew, France can hardly escape the aftermath.

Rather than worrying about what would happen if the dollar should be devalued — or struggling to think up ways we can "benefit" from inflation — we should work to make certain that the dollar is not devalued and that inflation does not run wild. Only a handful, and these are probably the very rich, can come through inflation unharmed. Ask any German who is now in his late sixties or over.

The first thing to do is to think right. Don't believe that perpetual prosperity is any more likely than perpetual happiness. Don't believe that tinkering with money and credit can keep business constantly climbing. Don't believe that our dollar can stay sound if we persist in spending, lending, and investing abroad more than foreigners spend, lend, and invest here. Don't believe that big budget deficits can permanently postpone a day of reckoning.
