Did City Block Building Sale?

C. A. Smith Says 'Yes'

A Main street property owner took a strong swipe at the city council and planning commission Monday night and accused the city manager of upsetting the sale of his building.

C. A. Smith, owner of the building at 141-145 Main street that houses Brader's Department Store, read his rebuke and filed it with the council without further comment.

Although Mayor A. M. Allenasked if the manager or any council member wished to reply, it was decided that the answer would be made in written form to smith.

Specifically, Smith charged that a prospective buyer of the commercial building had called upon the city manager "to ask questions as to the future of the business district and especially the future of the building in question".

Smith said that Manager Frank Ollendorff "courteously outlined the future master plan of the business district and advised the purchaser that the building is to be demolished and the space used for parking space. Needless to say the sale was off completely and definitely".

Smith's letter suggested that the owner of the department store might not, under the circumstances, renew the lease upon its expiration in one year. Instead, the letter asked if "you think he will have a liquidating sale and close out in Northville in which case we will close the doors of the building and board it up to advertise Northville as a location to avoid".

The property owner added that it was still his opinion that the Northville business district should have a definite future ... "however, if your planning board is determined to wreck the business district and demolish the buildings it is my well considered opinion this fact should be made known now so other property owners in the business district may be governed accordingly".

No Decision

There's still no decision on the Randolph street assessment suit.

The clerk for the court of Judge Joseph B. Moynihan said it "might" be rendered next week.

UNIFICATION HUDDLE—Members of the city-township appointed committee to study the feasibility of unification met last week with their hired consultant, Donald M. Oakes. It was the first study session since the committee employed Oakes. The consultant presented statistical "inventory" information on both the city and township, but the committee centered most of its attention on the creation of a plan for procedure and a list of prospective candidates to serve as citizen participants in the study. Chairman Del Black gave Bernard Baldwin the job of creating an organizational chart that will be discussed by the steering committee this week. Pictured

Council Passes R-1 Zoning, Okays Housing Ordinance

By a 4 to 1 vote the Northville city council rezoned a two-block residential area from two-family to single family classification.

Councilman Charles Lapham was the

The area is located northwest of the intersection of Main and Rogers streets. Most of the residents had signed a petition seeking the rezoning and it had been given approval by the planning commission.

Discussion was limited Monday night to the council. But an August 7 public hearing brought strong objections from Gerald Stone and Thomas Schwarze, who were supported by Donald Ware and Lloyd Elmore. It was stated by a spokesmanfor Schwarze that legal action challenging the city's entire zoning ordinance would be taken if the rezoning were approved.

Both Stone and Schwarze outlined plans for developing two-family dwellings in the interior area of the section.

Monday night both Mayor A. M. Allen and Councilman Lapham expressed concern over drainage and sewer problems because of the lowness of area. Councilman Wallace Nichols questioned whether this had any bearing on the rezoning.

Councilman Del Black said he feared the problem of deteriorating neighborhoods as older homes are converted to two-family dwellings. He pointed out that R-1 zoning had been proposed in the city's master plan.

Councilman Lapham countered that

R-2 property abuts the area to which

Black replied that the master plan also calls for R-1 zoning in these areas.

City Manager Frank Ollendorff explained that planners preferred rezoning more slowly, neighborhood by neighborhood, instead of the entire community at one time.

Councilwoman Beatrice Carlson added that she believed the council should support the master plan recommendation, but that the "drainage problem should be resolved before issuing building permits".

The council also passed an ordinance establishing minimum standards for housing. It did not do so, however, before explaining to several concerned citizens that the city had no intention of "going door-to-door to seek out violators".

Mayor Allen explained that the ordinance gave the city authority it does not now have to correct flagrant violations for the protection, health and welfare of the city's citizens.

City Attorney Marvin Stemplen and the city manager further pointed out that the supreme court has ruled that no inspector can enter a residence without the permission of the homeowner. If the situation were serious enough and permission to enter for the purpose of inspection could not be gained, a court warrant would have to be secured, they explained.

A letter from Reuben Petersen, owner of Main street property, asked the council to delay action on the ordinance until "such time as my attorney can appear".

The council decided that the ordinance could be amended if supporting evidence was presented at a later date and voted unanimously for passage.

In other business the council waived bids to renew its annual rubbish collection contract with C. B. Rubbish Disposal; asked the city attorney to draft a contract to permit vacation of Park Place so that it might be improved as a parking area by Foundry Flask and Equipment company; waived bids to purchase a used buildozer for $5,000; and again postponed a decision on joining the council of governments of southeastern Michigan.

Single Year Pact Costs $1,179,180

Northville teachers returned to classrooms Wednesday following a split ratification vote Tuesday on a one-year contract that took six months to hammer together.

Only ratification by the board of education, expected yet this week or at Monday's regular meeting, remained to formalize the contract that includes a $1,179,180 economic package.

Teachers salaries, exclusive of fringe benefits will cost the Northville school district some $200,000 more than last year. This figure includes pay for 17 new teachers, however.

Teachers metearly Tuesday morning to vote on the contract proposal, finally reached after around-the-clock Labor Day weekend mediation and fact-finding sessions. The vote was by no means overwhelming — 71-46 infavor of the contract which drew vehement objections from several teachers.

Because of the lateness of the hour, teachers asked for and were granted permission to postpone classes until Wednesday to permit them time later Tuesday for orientation activities. Students reported for attendance Tuesday morning and then returned home.

A dozen or more teachers reported to school Tuesday. These include some who are not members of the teachers' organization.

The day of school missed Tuesday reportedly will be either made up during the school year or at its conclusion

All but four issues had been resolved by 6 a.m. Sunday morning after negotiators for the board and the teachers concluded mediation that had begun at 9:45 a.m. on Saturday. At this point, the state fact finder, M. David Keefe of Roseville, dug into the remaining issues and later came up with a recommendation on salaries and the school calendar that ultimately were approved.

Keefe also served as mediator during the around-the-clock negotiations.

The factfinder's salary recommendation more nearly approached the board's last proposal than it did that of the teachers. His recommendation—and the schedule approved—provides for a bachelor's starting salary range from $6,150 to $9,545 in 11 steps, and for a master's starting salary range from $6,650 to $11,500 in 17 years. The board's last proposal came in at $6,000 to $9,765 and $6,600 to $11,566, respectively, while the teachers' last proposal put these same ranges at $6,260 to $9,617 and $6,620 to $11,890. Differences also occured at various step

The fact-finder's recommendation represented only about $500 more than the board's last total offer.

The fact-finder's recommended calendar, which continued to disturb teachers Tuesday morning up to and even after the ratification by secret ballot in the social hall of Our Lady of Victory church, calls for 180 membership and 190 attendance days. It includes additional school days for teachers on Friday, December 22, on Saturday, January 27, and Saturday, June 15.

Still another issue that probably caused the large number dissenting votes against ratification was the $2,000 increase for overall extracurricular activity pay. This increase, divided over more than 50 positions, is "grossly inadequate," they argue.

Teachers who objected to ratification but who pledged with the others to "give Northville the best instructional program we can provide" considered the one-year duration of the contract balm for their wounds. On the other hand, the board of education's chief negotiator, Acting Superintendent Raymond Spear, considered the failure to produce a multi-year contract one of his and the board's biggest disappointments.

The board had recommended a threeyear contract, chopped it to two years and finally to one year in the face of adamant teacher opposition.

In the final analysis it may have been the teachers' negotiators who staved off rejection of the contract. The negotiators recommended approval, without which teachers may have voted against the measure. At least general reaction at the meeting strongly indicated this possibility.

Following the vote, teachers gave their team a lengthy, standing ovation despite discord over the package.

But for the fact that school would open — a day late — there was little jubilation on the other side of the fence as the board of education also met Tuesday morning. The economic package means now it must chop its proposed 1967-68 budget by more than $40,000 to provide for approximately $142,000 additional dollars represented in the new economic proposal.

According to board representatives some $100,000 was available in the budget for several tentative expenditures, including fringe benefits, salary increments, contingencies for possible additional teachers later in the school year, an additional new central staffer, and in-service evaluation. With the additional economic monies pegged at $142,000, the board finds itself short $40,000-plus without providing for other than additional salaries and fringe benefits.

Among other economic agreements within the new contract are:
---A $1,000 life insurance policy.

---A $1,000 life insurance policy.
---Extra credit pay, with $150 per 10 hours.

---Retirement pay, $50 per year after 15 years service not to exceed $800. ---Full tuition reimbursement of up to $250 per teacher per year.

---Additional extra curricular pay of $2,000.

---Three personal business days per year.

---Ten sick leave days per year for teachers on Step 5 or below, and 15 days per year for teachers on Step 6 or above.

The contract also provides for an additional $600 on each of the MA steps for those teachers with an MA degree plus 30 hours.

Foundry Flask Sale Announced

Sale of Foundry Flask and Equipment company effective September 1 was announced by John A. Weber, company president and principal owner.

The new owner is James R. Hayward, who will succeed Weber as president and chief executive officer. Hayward was formerly president of McCord Corporation of Detroit and has a background of administrative experience in the automotive industry.

Located at 456 East Cady street,

Foundry Flask was founded by Weber in 1946 and has enjoyed annual sales in the range of $2 1/2 to $3 million. It is one of the largest suppliers of foundry flasks to the automotive industry.

The sale had to win the approval of the Northville Area Economic Development Corporation, a non-profit community organization which secured a Small Business Administration loan for Foundry Flask to expand and modernize its plant. The corporation holds title to land and buildings until the loan is refired.

loan is retired.

Hayward announced that with the exception of his succession of Weber there would be no other management changes at Foundry Flask.

He also announced that Albert Kitzman, formerly shop superintendent, has been named vice president in charge of manufacturing. Other officers include John W. Weber, executive vice president, Peter Kitzens, vice president-sales, and Harold E. Bittner, secretary.

Revisits Home Near Tokyo

Mrs. William Boyd returned to her home land, Japan, this month for her first visit in ten years. She spent two weeks there.

She traveled with 1300 members of a religious group called Sokakakae. The trip was part of a summer training course.

Mrs. Boyd spent several days traveling to various places in Japan with her group. One of the places she visited for two days was Fuji Mountain.

She also spent several days visiting her family near Tokyo. She found that Tokyo has changed in the ten years since she last saw it.

She says there are now so many people it is crowded within the city. The heavy traffic reminded her of New York or Chicago. The weather is hot and very humid. She adds, though, that it is still "very nice" in Tokyo.

Players Guild Tryouts Set Next Sunday

Tryouts for the first fall production of the Northville Players Guild will begin Sunday, President Gary Webb announced Monday.

That first production, Ten Little Indians, will be presented the weekend of October 25-28. Tryouts will begin at 2 p.m. sharp at the Northville Scout Hall.

A murder mystery by Agatha Christie, Ten Little Indians refers to the cluster of statuettes on the mantelpiece of a weird country house on an island off the coast of Devon with the nursery rhyme embossed above them, telling how each little Indian met his death "until there were none."

To the queer Byzantine mortuary, eight assorted guests are invited for a weekend by a mysterious host.

While the guests are assembled for cocktails prior to going to dinner, a voice comes out of the air, accusing everyone present, including the two house servants, each in his turn, of murder. The accusation is not one that could lead to conviction in court but murder just the same.

And while the guests are exchanging data about themselves and their host (who has sent word he will not be down until the next day) one of the ten little Indian statuettes topples from the mantelpiece and breaks and immediately the giddy Oxonian chokes to death of cyanide of potassium which someone has dropped into his drink. One down and nine to go.

Then the excitement begins and continues to mount until the final curtain.

Following the presentation of Ten Little Indians, the Players Guild will begin work on its annual children's play. This year an adaptation of one of the Wizard of Oz tales is planned. The year will be brought to an end with the presentation of another adult production on the weekend of April 24-27.

For further, information about the tryouts or the Players Guild, interested persons are asked to call Webb at 453-6986.

Life With The Rimples

As our children return to the classroom this month, concern continues to mount over keeping them there to complete their education. Problems of the high school dropout are well known. But this year almost one million young Americans will not get the message. The present national dropout rate is so high that it is estimated there will be 32 million adults in the labor force by 1975 with less than a high school education. I urge every young person to return to school this fall. You will need that education in the future.

A high school diploma is not a free ticket to the good life, but it is a free ticket to a better chance for the good

Some high school dropouts make it up the ladder to a good job, but most of them do not. The jobs that are usually available to the dropout are those of short duration, with low income and little future for advancement. It is usually estimated that a high school graduate will earn $63,000 more during his working years than his dropout counter-

All of us can help fight the dropout

For example, studies show that most dropouts leave school because of a lack of interest. Leaders in our state have worked long and hard to fight the dropout problem, but few of them say that no more can be done. Much more can be done, and our educators need our help to do the job.

Business and community leaders can take the lead locally in the Stayin-School Campaign of the National Council on Youth Opportunity.

The first step might be personal letters to actual dropouts and potential dropouts in your community. Schools can provide the names and addresses of these young people.

Additional help might be in the form of volunteers to help counsel, supervise, and tutor high school students. It might be in the form of providing part-time jobs for those youngsters who need them to stay in school. It might be in the form of vocational training and counseling assistance from private industry and labor unions.

It might be in the form of a simple gesture of encouragement to a struggling youngster. One major reason many young people reject school is that they themselves feel rejected by society. A kind word, a pat on the back, a helping hand can mean a lot to these youngsters.

The dropout problem is a concern we all must share and work to solve, Goyernment cannot do it alone. It requires a total community effort.

The House has approved the Social Security Amendments of 1967 which provides a 12 1/2 percent cost of living increase for the aged and at the same time gets tough with welfare recipients who refuse to help themselves.

The measure was debated on the House floor under a closed rule which prohibits amendments to the bill by Members. Therefore, in order to take advantage of the stricter measures to counteract snowballing welfare assistance payments, it was necessary for the House to go along with the 2 1/2 percent increase.

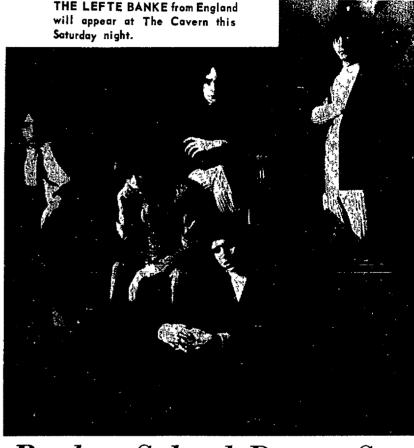

I had supported a pre-debate proposal which called for an eight-percent benefit increase without expanding the taxable ceiling.

Legislators Report

As passed by the House, the bill requires all States to establish training programs for welfare family members with a view of getting each of them equipped for work and placed in jobs.

Those members of a family who refuse without good cause to accept training or employment will be cut from the welfare rolls.

By putting teeth into the welfare program it is possible that we can break the welfare mentality of a large percentage of the over one million families currently on the welfare roll. I believe this type of action is headed in the right direction since children try to emulate their parents. When they see mom and dad depending upon the Federal Government for material needs, its not surprising when they try the same thing even though they are perfectly able to ork for a living.

Says Young Tiger Hopeful

He Grows up Behind Plate

"It's terrific, really terrific." That's how Doug Swiss, Northville's young baseball star, sums up his first summer of professional baseball witha Detroit Tigers farm club.

But in weighing the total experience, the 18-year-old Northville graduate figures development of a mature attitude on and off the playing diamond was the most rewarding element of his first professional season.

The excitement and thrills of playing professional ball was great, he says, "but the fact that I grew up a little behind the plate probably made me happiest. New guys like myself develop a mature attitude that's as important as playing ball."

Enrolled now in the school of education at the University of Michigan, Swiss signed a Tiger contract back in June that gives him a free education, an undisclosed bonus, and trip to Erie, Pennsylvania where he shared catching duties with a Class A ballclub made up of talented rookies.

Following a year at U-M, he'll probably travel to Florida for spring training with the Tigers and then head back to Erie or some other farm club within the Tiger organization, for another summer of baseball.

Fresh out of high school, Swissplayed with the Erie Tigers - a team composed mainly of young high school stars like himself. However, because a majority of the players with the other five clubs in the league had more experience, the Tiger management moved a few more experienced players to the club "to equalize the team and stabilize usinexperienced players."

"I started slow," admits Swiss, "but as the season progressed, particularly towards the end, I was more relaxed. Everything was new at the start and I was sort of tight. I was probably trying too hard."

The five other clubs in the league. all in New York, include Jamestown (Atlanta Braves), Oneonta (Yankees), Auburn (Twins), Geneva (Senators), and Batavia (a "mongrel" club with players from several big league systems). All home games were played during the day, while away games were played at night.

With games played daily, Swisstook a turn behind the plate about once every fourth day. And while maturing a little here, he also "grew up" at bat. "You have to learn to hit harder," he says. "What might be a hit here (high school and summer lot ball) might be nothing there. Unless you hit it hard to get the ball through a hole those fielders are going to gobble it up."

Swiss didn't keep tabs on his batting; he's waiting for an official report. But he remembers one - a four bagger at Auburn, his first in professional ball.

Playing daily meant plenty of traveling - all by bus, he says. Some of the guys "grumbled a little but overall most guys realized that we'd signed with the professionals so we accepted it as part of the game."

"You know," he adds, "it's part of growing up. It's helped me, I know." About his coach, Ed Lyons, a former pitcher in the Philadephia farm system, Swiss has plenty of praise. "He is very good. He not only taught me some baseball sense he taught me how to act like a man, how to adjust to living away from home and shifting for

And the "players were great. You meet all kinds." Swiss explains that high school Coach Bob Kucher and his father, Frank Swiss, helped him adjust to the new experience before even leaving Northville.

The two "home-front coaches" told the Tiger hopeful to keep his mind on baseball, he recalls, if he planned to succeed. "They're right, too. Out there you're on your own. You can do what you want at night just so you're ready to play. It's your choice."

And Swiss' choice hasn't changed since he swung a bat with the knotholers; He wants to play ball.

Next Month

Michigan's archers, when they take to the woods this autumn to bring down deer, will be following an Indian tradition hundreds of years old.

"With their handmade bows — the favorite weapon they had for bringing down the fleet-footed creatures-Michigan Indians did a more effective job than their emulators of today," says Wayne State University archivist and historian, Dr. Philip P. Mason.

"They had to. They were looking for the food they needed for survival, and they hunted the year around, learning more about deer and their habits in a few months than modern archers learn in a lifetime."

The Indian bows were made of hickory or ash, for the most part, and their strings were twisted hides or the guts of various animals. The shafts for the arrows were made principally from hard wood and fitted with finely chipped flint, bound with gut and resin.

"These arrowheads, prized byfinders today, can be found anywhere in Michigan, for all Indian tribes used bows and arrows," says Dr. Mason. "And they used them on deer, bear, moose, elk, buffalo, beaver, rabbits, squirrels, wildfowl and even fish."

The Chippewas, or Ojibwas, located mainly in the heavily wooded Upper Peninsula, and the Ottawas who lived in Northern Michigan used short, powerful bows while the Wyandots or Hurons used the long bow, which was influenced by their contact with Indians from New York and the East.

Michigan's modern bow hunters, using bows made of fiberglass or of laminated woods, hunt the full gamut of Michigan game, from bears to fish and fowl.

Deer are the big target every fall, with a season which in recent years has run from October 1 through November 5. All counties have had the same season except Allegan, where it has run October 1 through December 15. In certain counties does and fawns have been protected from the arrows.

Bears may be taken with bow and arrow, but the season and areas are carefully prescribed. In recent years, the bow-hunting for them has been legal in all parts of the Upper Peninsula except the Keweenaw Peninsula, from September 1 through September 15 and October 1 through November 5. In 1965 and 1966 they received complete protection in the lower Peninsula. Indians hunted the bear fearlessly, but few modern day Michigan archers molest him. Game men estimate that kills range from only "two or three bears" per year to "less than 25."

Bow Hunters Steve Juday Fires Turn Indian' Game Winning Pass

A 46-yard pass play launched by Northville's Steve Juday with but 22 seconds remaining gave the Ypsilanti Vikings a 7-0 defensive triumph over the Dayton Colts Saturday.

Judy fired the pass into the outstretched hands of Tom Grunder, former Eastern Michigan university star, who scampered across the goal. The extra point was kicked by Eric Corner.

The Vikings' leading ground gainer in their first official semi-professional league game was former Wolverine Fullback Dave Fisher, who traveled 37 yards in five carries. Juday, former All-American with Michigan State, completed 16 out of 38 passes.

Big grid names of Michigan, Michigan State and the Detroit Lions' will dot the program next Saturday when the Vikings travel to Pontiac to take on the Firebirds, who will be playing their home opener in the Midwest Football League.

Coaching wise, the Firebirds will put Tom Tracy, former Detroit Lions star, against a 1956 teammate, Earl "Jug" Girard, who played with the Lions' championship years of the 50's.

The game will carry added interest in as much as Tracy was the head coach of the Vikings last season and directed them to a 7-3 record for the runnerup spot in the MFL.

Two outstanding family names on the Pontiac starting unit will be Bill Apisa, brother of current Michigan State running star Bob Apisa, and Barry Barr, brother of former Detroit Lions' star Terry Barr.

Juday, of course, will be calling the signals for the Vikings, while Bill Harrington, a three-year veteran of the MFL, will quarterback for Pontiac.

Jerry Imsland Switches to U-M as a 19-year-old Northville football giant traded allegiance late last month.

Jerry Imsland, star end on the University of Kentucky's freshmen eleven and a major cog in U-K's varsity plans this fall, enrolled in the U-M's school of education.

The move means Imsland must sit out football for one year. He's ineligible to play at Michigan until next fall when

Fires 29 For Record

If Northville's Jimmy St. Germain could have put two first-nine rounds together last week he would have racked up a sparkling 59 at Meadowbrook country club.

St. Germain, who since capturing the state high school championship two years in a row at Northville high school has become an outstanding amateur golfer, fired successive 66's at Meadowbrook last week. He did his best scoring on the front nine, normally considered the tougher of the he's expected to don blue and gold togs as an end with Michigan. Next fall he'll be a junior, with two years of eligibility remaining.

'I just thought I'd be happier at Michigan," was how the high school allstater explained the move. He offered no other reasons, pointing out there'll be no "redshirting" at U-M.

As a junior next year, Imsland will be permitted to play spring ball. Meanwhile, he's under a university conditioning program aimed at preparing him for his debut with the Wolverines.

Ironically, Imsland will be battling for a starting position next fall against Billy Harris, who was an all-stater at Manchester back when Imsland earned his laurels with the Northville Mus-

Township Inspector Dies Suddenly

Northville township building inspector, John P. Lynch, died suddenly at his home at 43750 Six Mile road Sunday evening. Mr. Lynch, 66, suffered a heart

He had been in charge of the township's building department since April 10 this year when he succeeded R. B. Willis, who retired.

Mr. Lynch moved to Northville one year ago from Dearborn. He had spent most of his life in the lumber business or lumbering. As a youth of 16 he worked in a lumbering camp.

He is survived by a son, Ronald of Northville, and a brother, William. Funeral services will be held today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at the Howe-Peterson Funeral Home, 22546 Michigan avenue. Dearborn. Interment will be at Grand Lawn cemetery in Detroit.

Township offices will be closed Thursday morning, opening in the afternoon from 12:30 until 5:00.

ARTHUR HAY

A former Northville resident, Arthur Hay, died Sunday in Royal Oak while attending a convention of the Canadian Legion. He was 72 years old and presently resided in Stranton, California. Burglars Hit Home, Miss Realty Entry

A home was burglarized, and an attempt to break and enter a local business occurred this week in North-

Reuben Jensen of 47055 South Chigwidden told police that the electric garage door and a door into the house had been forced open September 4. The only thing missing was a bottle of cologne.

Several dead matches were found in the house. The fumes of sulfur were still strong when the family arrived home, according to Jensen.

An attempted entry occurred at Cutler Realty, 340 North Center on September 3. When police arrived, after receiving a call from owner James Cutler, Cutler stated that someone had broken a rear window of the building.

The latch of the window was still locked. Drapes covering the window were disarranged and the curtain rod

Coal Bin Burns

A fire broke out in a bin at the Ely Coal yard August 30. After checking the fire with extinguisher, Northville police called in the fire depart-

A truck was brought to the scene and the fire was extinguished.

PARKING IMPROVEMENTS-Two offstreet city parking lots were improved recently. The Wing street lot (above) now has day-long meters, while the newlypaved Dunlap street lot (below) awaits meter installation.

Apartments OK'd with IF

A Five Mile road apartment project planned by Fred Greenspan building company was given approval by Northville township planners subject to changing the location of five buildings within the complex.

In its regular monthly meeting last week the board also discussed the use of some 33 acres owned by Alex Gordon, a builder, on Bradner road. It wasproposed that a plan be developed by Gordon that would provide single family residential sites along Bradner and an area of multiple dwellings on the interior of the site.

In final action the township planning commission indicated that a letter would be sent to the Northville board of education stating that planners cannot legally require developers to donate acreage within a proposed subdivision for school sites. Planners did promise, however, to keep the board informed on any proposed new developments so that the school district will be aware of possible growth

One Car Stolen, Another Damaged

A stolen car and another hit by vandals were reported to the Northville police department this past week.

Alexander Strachan Jr. of 602 Horton reported his car disappeared from the parking lot off West Main street August 27.

J. Korlarczyk of Plymouth notified police Thursday he had parked his pickup in the Ford Motor company employee parking lot on Griswold street that morning.

Upon his return later that day he found the rear view mirror on the door broken and scratches and dents over the hood, roof and top.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of charac-ter and good citizenship It is a store-house of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There larly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, support. Plan to go to church regu-larly and read your Bible daily.

first began to express its devotion in unique forms of architecture. How could Christians proclaim constantly their faith in Christ? How could they lift the eyes of others to behold the Lord of Life? Soon, over gabled village roofs rose gleaming spires. And men who tilled the fields, and men who trod the lanes, rejoiced to behold the symbol of Faith.

Then one day cities replaced the villages . skyscrapers dwarfed the spires of God. And so, on the day this picture was taken, ten thousand people passed by and never raised their eyes. Only a few looked upward and thought in mild surprise, "Why, isn't that a man way up there on the steeple?" Yes. A MAN. One of hundreds of millions whose skill and courage continue to be needed as the Church fulfills its mission. Maybe your church doesn't have a steeple. But it has a task to challenge your skills . . .

Projects totaling $18,927 were approved by trustees of Schoolcraft college at their regular meeting, August 2, at the college. The board awarded bids totaling $6,938 for construction of a pre-fabricated greenhouse to initiate the first phase of a long-range greenhouse andarboretum project as part of the biology instruction program.

Successful bidders were Everlite Greenhouses, Inc., $3,075 for the 17x20 foot greenhouse; Thomas Robitalle, $650 for erecting the building; Mainello & Colone, $580 for footings and walls; Howd Electric, $1,108 for electrical work; and Priest Plumbing, $1,525 for mechanical work.

The unit will be erected on a site east of the Forum classroom building and south of the technical-vocational building.

from the PASTOR'S STUDY

The age old question of men seeking reconciliation with God has been, "How then can man be justified with God?"

This question was asked by Job the ancient Patriarch (Job 25:4) How can a sinful man be made right with God? This is the question of the greatest importance.

Justification has been defined to mean,

"Just as if I had not sinned." Haunting the past of every human is some sin he wishes he had not done. "For all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Having sinned, man wants to know how he can stand before God just fied by faith. "Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteousness." (Romans 4:5). "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace

The Bible tells us that we are justias if he had not sinned.

Rev. Ivan E. Speight, Pastor Salem Federated Church

with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." (Rom 5:1) But you say, "If I have sinned, I must pay for my sins.' You are right! Your sins must be paid for in order for you to be justified. This is what God's Son, Jesus Christ did for you almost 2,000 years ago. "Christ died for our sins." The payment was made. But the credit to individual accounts was not made. The credit to your own personal account with God comes by faith in Christ. The very moment you put your faith into Christ, the payment for sin is credited to you. At that moment you become justified with God.

Turn to God through Jesus Christ, and have Him credit the Crucifixion to your account. Then the age old question of, "How then can man be justified with God?" will be answered in your life.

Orchard Hills Plans Sunday Dedication

Sunday will be a significant day in the life of the Orchard Hills Baptist Church. That's the day members will dedicate their new house of worship. Orchard Hills' new facility is located on Novi road, north of Northville, on a five-acre site.

Salem Church To Show Film

"Signposts Aloft", the latest motion picture released by the Moody Institute of Science, will have its premier showing in this area Sunday, September 10, at 7 p.m. at the Salem Congregational Christian church, Six Mile road at Dickerson. Pastor Gary L. Herne has issued an invitation to all interested persons to attend the presentation of this intensely interesting and thought provoking film. Viewers will have a simulated ride in the cockpit of a modern aircraft equipped for automatic, push button flight. They will go behind the scenes at the airport, visit the tower and radar room, and see the traffic controllers

The film goes to the Libyan desert with Dr. Moon to investigate the cause of the crash of the World War II ghost bomber, "Lady Be Good".

According to Pastor Herne, this challenging film reveals why judgment is not always reliable

Dedication day, according to the pastor, Mr. Fred Trachsel, will begin following Sunday school at 10 a.m., with the Rev. Robert Wilson as guest speaker. Rev. Wilson is state missions director for the Baptist State Convention of Michigan.

Sunday afternoon beginning at 2:30 p.m., a special dedication service will include the appearance of several distinctive guests. Rev. Fred Hubbs, executive secretary of the Baptist State Convention will be the main speaker. And Sunday evening, following the 6 p.m. training union hour, the Rev.

W. B. Oakley, a popular evangelist and public speaker, will deliver the address. Commenting on the significant day, Mr. Trachsel noted that "the permanence of the congregation is exemplified by the lovely structure which was erected on a prestige property with adequate acreage for long-term expansion.' Cuthbert and Cuthbert of Dearborn was the architect, while Richard Stone of the Stoner Construction company was 'the contractor. Price and Frazer Painting contractor of Northville did the decorating. Interior features include avocado green carpeting from Schrader's of Northville, and antiqued elm woodgrain floor tiling from the Wayne Floor and Til-

Appointment of 28 new faculty and staff members for the academic year has been announced by Schoolcraft College Vice-President for Instruction John H. Brinn.

At the same time, Dean of Student Affairs Edward V. McNally announced the appointment of five additions to the college counseling staff.

Of the new faculty members, 13 were hired as replacements for instructors who have resigned, gone on leave of absence, or who have been promoted to administrative posts.

The others, Brinn said, were hired as instructors for new programs and to staff up in existing programs because of increased enrollment.

McNally said two of the five counselors will replace two staff members who resigned. The three others, he said, were needed to meet increased counseling demands on his staff.

New instructors in the academic area are John Beckwith and Leo Macarow, mathematics; Robert Briggs and William Burke, history; Beverly Clarke, speech; Joseph Dager, Elizabeth Lichty, Arthur Lind-enberg, Mrs. Donna Price and Joanne Stein, English; Dr. Mehdi Kianfar, political science; John Krato, psychology; Donald Morelock, music; William Pintal, biology; Thomas Roncoli and Jack Washka, physical education; and Mrs. Katherine Peters, assistant librarian.

New instructors in the technical area are Richard Benson, culinary arts; Lowell Cook, distributive education; Stuart Galbraith, welding; Oscar Poupart, data processing; William Baumgartner, electronics; Salvatore Greco, drafting; Thomas Handy and Clifford Hall, automotive; and Ronald Simmons, highway technology.

New instructors in the nursing program are Mrs. Tamara Penrod and Dorothy Sampson.

New counselors are Mrs. Saundra P. Florek, James D. Sylvester, Robert W. Burnside, John D. Witten, and Mrs. Sylvia D. Shuput.

★★★ How important is it to provide a geographic "mix" in a community college facul-

Robert A. Stenger, dean of academic instruction at Schoolcraft college, believes a geographic balance is essential to the development of a creative faculty and its corollary - quality instruction.

As a result, of the 16 new faculty members hired to teach academic subjects at the college this year, 12 earned their masters degrees at universities outside Michigan.

'We felt that as our academic faculty continued to grow with the college, we were in danger of becoming a bit 'home-grown' in terms of the academic backgrounds of our instructors." said Stenger.

"Of the 51 academic faculty on our staff last year, for example, two-thirdshad earned their masters degrees from Michigan universities. We're closer to 50-50 this year.

"I don't mean to say there is anything wrong with Michigan universities, at all. They rank among the finest in the nation, and an MA earned at any one of them carries considerable weight on a man's academic cre-

"But there is always a danger when a community college faculty is recruited heavily from among nearby universities that ideas, techniques and approaches to subject matter tend to become stereotyped.

"We want to avoid that and are attempting to develop an academic faculty that will constantly confront their students with new ideas, and challenge them with new and different concepts."

Stenger, who became dean early this summer after serving as acting dean for almost a year, visited every section of the nation to recruit new instructors for the 1967-68 college year.

Legislators Present Hammond Memorial

A special memorial resolution prepared in certificate form by the Michigan House of Representatives to honor the late C. Oscar Hammond was presented to his wife in ceremonies at the Northville city hall last week.

Representatives Louis Schmidt and Clifford Smart made the presentation, with other local dignitaries attending.

The resolution cites Mr. Hammond's contributions as a building inspector for Northville, 'his devotion to his family and his conscientious, friendly and ever-willing assistance freely given..."

It outlines his service during World War I while serving in the European theater, and it notes particularly his activity in veteran affairs including being commander of the Michigan American Legion department, 1963-64, vicecommander of the 17th District of the American Legion, commander and lifemember of the Lloyd H. Organization of the so-called Greek social groups was authorized by the college Board of Trustees at its meeting last Wednesday night August 23. The vote was five to one. Voting for the policy change were Trustees James Boswell, Harold Fischer, Dr. George Martin, Paul Mutnick and Clarke Oldenburg. Mrs. John Moehle voted against.

Two other trustees, William Second and Sam Hudson, were out of the college district and did not attend the meeting.

The board's decision reversed a policy established in 1964 when Schoolcraft was first opened and which banned Greek groups from the campus.

Last week's action carried the recommendation of President Dr. Eric J. Bradner.

"I have been opposed to the organization of these groups at the college from the beginning," Dr. Bradner told trustees. "But the students seem to want them. The fact is that we have had several fraternities and sororities operating on a sub-rosa basis for some time.

'Apparently they are going to be here and I believe it is better to have them out in the open where we can control them."

In a companion action, trustees established a policy on student dress. Previous practice, under regulations set down by the Office of Student Affairs, had banned slacks for women students and shorts of any length, pedal-pushers and similar affire for both men and women students.

The new policy does not spell out what is permissible and what is not for student dress. Instead, it provides that campus dress regulations shall be as recommended by the Student Senate, student governing body, to the Office of Student Affairs and approved by the president.

The Senate has already proposed a ban on "short" shorts, "cutoffs" and miniskirts. This would in effect permit the wearing of slacks for women and Bermuda shorts for all students. But the exact limitations are still to be set.

The prohibition on the Greek groups and the dress regulations have been a source of irritation to students and were the principal subjects of two meetings during the summer between college officials and a Student Senate committee.

After the first meeting in July, the Senate drafted a written policy statement on dress and drew up a set of ground rules for the regulation of fraternities and sororities.

At a second meeting earlier this month, Dr. Bradner and McNally agreed to take the two matters to the Trustees. Under the fraternity-sorority policy, the Greek groups will be incorporated into the existing club structure on the campus.

Although they have been officially banned, at least one fraternity and several sororities have been organized at the college. The regulations, which McNally said were acceptable to college authorities, requiré each Greek organization to draw up a constitution which must be approved by the Student Senate and McNally. Every constitution must contain a no-bia's clause.

A Greek Board will be organized to coordinate and oversee Greek activities, especially to establish rushing arts requirements for the nursing program this summer to graduate. The quirements earlier this year, recently procedure. Hazing will be specifically prohibited, McNally said.

The regulations also prohibit fraternity or sorority houses on or off campus, require each Greek group to have two faculty advisers, and place full financial responsibility for all Greekac-tivities on the individual organization. Approval of all fraternity and sorority activities will be through the Greek Board and the Student Senate.

College officials said that in recommending a less stringent policy on these two points, Schoolcraft is following trends already established at other two-year colleges in the state.

"One two-year college in southeast Michigan," said McNally, "has gone much farther than we have in the matter of dress regulations by dropping all restrictions. A number of two year colleges permit Greek Groups.

"Our concern during the past three years as to fraternities and sororities has centered principally on the matter of bias and selectivity in membership \ 6 and the contribution that these groups can make to the entire college. BE SURE . . . INSURE

14 Schoolcraft Nurses Pass State Examinations

All 14 members of the first Associate Degree Nursing class to graduate from Schoolcraft college have passed the state licensure examination to become registered nurses.

Mrs. Harriett Sattig, Schoolcraft director of nursing education, said she had been informed of the examination results by the Michigan Board of Nursing. The nurse graduates took the state examination in Lansing on June 28. Results were released last week.

The 14 students were graduated from the college last April 30. Two other students, according to Mrs. Sattig, will sit for the state RN licensure examination in October. One of them completed liberal

Northville History Comes to Life

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the first of a series of articles on the five Vintage Homes which will be visited Thursday, October 5 during a tour sponsored by the Women's Association of the Northville Presbyterian Church.

, From the entrance hall to the far corners of the rambling, E. A. Chapman home, Northville history comes to

And this living memorial to the community's past will be there to see when the Women's Association of the Northville Presbyterian Church presents its historical tour of five houses next month.

Snuggly fitted behind towering trees at the northwest corner of High street at Randolph, the house, which has undergone four major changes over the past century, is admittedly no architectural masterplece.

But inside, there's enough antiques to make the most blaze' collector sigh with envy. And unlike antiques in most homes, these are authentic pieces from Northville's past. "I've never had to buy an antique," explains Mrs. Chapman, an offspring of several of Northville's earliest families. "They belong to the house and the families who lived here."

First taste of the fascinating furnishings is served up in the entrance hallway off a large, screened porch. It's enough to whet any connoisseur's appetite. Seated in the far corner is a beautiful early 19th Century Melodeon that still performs at the skillful touch of its present owner.

Decorated simply with candles, a tuning fork, and an early songbook, the Melodeon was the property of Mrs. Chapman's grandmother. Sophia B. Lapham, before she married more than 100 years ago. It was refinished by Mr. Chapman.

The songbook and tuning fork also are preciously old. The former was owned by the Rev. James Dubuar, Mrs. Chapman's great grandfather and Northville's first Presbyterian minister. And the tuning fork was used for Presbyterian choir rehearsals a century ago.

Framing a window of the hallway is a beautiful English Cathedral clock that dates back to the late eighteenth century. Now housed in a glass case made by Mr. Chapman, the clock, like the Melodeon has been in the family for more than a century. Its works are simple but eloquently finished in gold leaf and brass with an authentic silver dial.

Standing in ready formation in the same room as if waiting for their owners' hands are more than a half-dozen magnificent walking canes, each one the prize possession of a Northville pion-

The remainder of the house is equally impressive. There's a refinished sofa, originally a black horsehair couch in the office of Dr. J. M. Swift, who treated Northville's ills in the nineteenth century. And hanging above the sofa, Abraham Lincoln and his cabinet look out over the library that once was part of the original home. It's the same engraving that hangs in the White House.

Still another example of Northville's past is a corner cupboard in the dining room that was built backbefore the turn of the century by Northville's own cabinet-maker, John Sands. And behind its glass doors are dozens of antique glassware pieces, including a glassdecantor from the old Randolph tavern that once stood on Main street across from the A&P supermarket.

For the tour, Mrs. Chapman plans to label these and all the other historical pieces to explain their significance in Northville's past. In addition to the furnishings, she plans to display authentic costumes worn in Northville more than a hundred years ago, hand-woven blankets and sheets, five generations of toys, and several important historical documents.

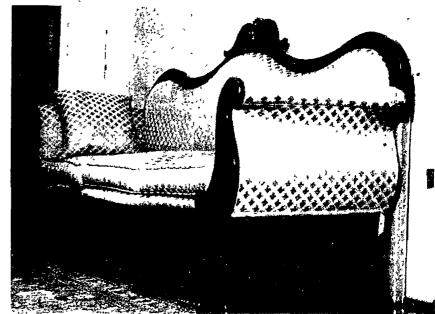

The original part of the house was a small story-and-a-half, including four rooms and a kitchen. The Chapmans can only guess when it was built - probably back in the mid-nineteenth century. Over the years, four major alterations took place, including the addition of a second floor, that gives the home its rambling, spacious appearance.

The property on which the home sits was part of the farm owned by Wil-hands several times, finally becoming the property of Mrs. Chapman's family on October 30, 1854 when her great grandmother, Mariette Baker, purchased it and several adjacent lots for $900.

A Lapham before she married, Mrs. Chapman traces her Northville ancestry back to Rev. Marcus Swift, a circuit rider and Northville's first Methodist minister, and Rev. Dubuar, Northville's first permanent Presbyterian minister.

They are great great grandfather and great grandfather, respectively, of Mrs. Chapman, owner now of one of Northville's oldest homes and its charming furnishings.

for The Record

If you took a man-on-the-street sentiment poll on the deadlock in negotiations between the Northville school district and its teachers you'd find nine out of 10 citizens turning thumbs down on

Typical of the comments heard during the past week are:

"It's too bad we can't fire them and hire 135 new teachers";

'They like to think of themselves as professionals, then they strike like common union members";

'What do they mean underpaid? $10,000 for nine months work isn't bad!";

They chose the teaching profession knowing full well it's not a high-paying job, what are they griping about?"

Most taxpayers, even union-member taxpayers, are management oriented when it comes to coughing up more tax sides and the one we dislike most is being flaunted in our faces. It's causing frustrations, twisting our thinking, knocking down the blocks. Teachers sitting at a bargaining table

The teacher contract coin has two and demanding more money from the board of education is almost as bad as those way-out liberals thinking that a Negro has the right to buy a home and reside in a white community.

For anyone, much less this writer, to try to nutshell the disorder that has resulted from the legislation granting teachers the right to negotiate their contracts - and to refuse to work without a contract - is a Herculean assignment.

But one can assess the local situation and presume it is representative of the

In this district it has been customary 👾 to regard teachers as one might children, Outside the classroom they should be seen (in the right places) but not heard.

It was perfectly all right to form a teachers' club, but it should confine itself to such constructive matters as

An appearance could be made before the board of education on a grievance matter, or even a request for higher pay. But it should not be presented too strongly, and the representative was certain to become suspect as a rabble-

The board attitude was made evident by design. There were few strong administrator voices fighting for teacher rights. Every block was exactly in its place. If you didn't like teaching in Northville at the going rate, you could look elsewhere.

In recent years (nationally and locally) more pressure has been brought to bear by sincerely concerned citizens for improved teaching techniques and facilities. The method of selecting teachers and their credentials suddenly became a matter of greater import. Merely having one body for every classroom was not sufficient.

At nearly the same time classrooms began to swell, more teachers were needed and competition for qualified teachers became keen. Hiring new teachers became animportant administrative assignment and districts found themselves competing on the teacher college campuses. Naturally, dollars spoke loudest, so starting salaries rose and, almost as an after-thought, pulling with them the five, 10 and 15-year car-

Locally, at least, this is how the stage was set when teachers were given bargaining rights.

To say that bitterness existed in the teacher ranks would be an understatement. And to imagine that this bitterness did not carry over to the bargaining table would be foolhardy.

An indication of how unprepared Northville was for teacher negotiations when they were introduced two years ago can be gleaned from a statement by a then board member. It was his observation that the teacher club representatives (negotiators) were trouble-makers who did not truly represent the average teacher. The teachers will support the board, he allowed.

The ill-feeling that has been harbored within the teacher ranks for countless years will not dissipate quick-

It should, however. Teachers cannot expect the grievances of 100 years to be resolved by a single stroke.

And they cannot expect a board of education or an administrator to bargain away authority that belongs to management.

Whether by pressure or by change, Northville's school leadership - both at the board and administrative level has clearly demonstrated a new awareness of the teacher, a recognition of his requests and recommendations, and a willingness to meet halfway.

Money-wise, a board of education can go only as far as the community it represents permits. And administrators are responsible to the board to see that these limits are observed.

But from this view, it is not money alone (or chiefly) that has brought our negotiators to a deadlock. It is history. A wise administration will recognize it. And teachers will exercise patience.

Northville has been beset by enough problems within its school system. The self-improvement or planning of social --time has arrived for trust and mutual

> As this is being written, settlement has not been reached.

They have had months to toss barbs and wrangle. Let both sides now bend their efforts towards a better future.

Is Your Child A Potential Dropout?

Education and society are facing what seems to be an increasing problem-the growing numbers of young people who drop out of school and, unarmed with skills or a profession, wander aimlessly about, often falling into trouble and squandering their talents. The best that can be said for the book, "Up the Down Stair Case," is that it is an amusing potpourri of notes and vignettes from the life of a public school teacher. Bel Kaufman, whose book rose to the top of the best seller lists, had indeed struck on an ingenious means of telling a story, albeit fragmentary. What's more, it smacked of the Inevitably, a movie was based on the book and is presently playing at area theatres. And truth of the matter is, it surpasses the book in convincingly portraying the plight of the ingenue teacher who walks unaware into a public school classroom. Where the book was sketchy and nimbly skimmed the surface, the movie, "Up the Down Stair Case," probes the heart of teaching.

It's a frustrating, funny, sobering and exhilarating experience as we follow Sandy Dennis as Miss Sylvia Barrett from her first chaotic day at dilapidated Calvin Coolidge high school to the poignant ending when she resolves to stay at Calvin high, despite monumental obstacles to effective teaching - overloaded classrooms, inadequate facilities, pedagese, paper in triplicate and of course, lack of communication.

Miss Barrett is not unlike thousands of other teachers venturing into the classroom for the first time. And her colleagues are duplicates of teachers in every system, from the New York public schools where Miss Barrett taught to Detroit or Livonia or any other public school classroom. And the problems are amazingly similar. That, in essence, is why "Up the Down" is a spanking good, but not exceptional movie with appeal.

A side from the amazing similarities to real circumstances, the acting of Sandy Dennis, a sandy haired, soft spoken lass who previously gained prominence in her quiet role in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolf?" makes "Up the Down' entertaining. She sensitively portrays the dedicated teacher fresh out of college, who, loaded with idealistic notions, breaks through the reality barrier to become a good teacher.

As if following Chaucer's maxim, "And gladly would he learn and gladly teach," she gayly approached school on her first day, Bediam in the form of students greeted her. They were the deprived, the ignored, students cheated by circumstance and suspicious of school because of constant failure. Miss Barrett prevails in her own unassuming, enthusiastic manner.

Sandy Dennis has the lead, and probably will receive the most kudos (note Time magazine this week), but Ellen O'Mara, an unknown, captures the heart of the viewer. She plays Alice Blake, a homely teen-ager with a romantic crush on Paul Barringer, an English teacher frustrated in writing. Alice's world is a fanciful one, occupied by cupid. Everything she sees is reduced to the magic quotient, love.

She quietly guards her mad love for Barringer, disclosing it only to a close girl friend. Finally, emboldened, she places a love note in Barringer's office mail drop. He reads her love letter and asks her to meet him in his room after

She obeys. The starry-eyed, plump girl obediently awaits his comment. In matter-of-fact tone, he reads Alice's letter, correcting spelling and gram-matical errors. It is Barringer's method of objectifying, a very personal attachment, dismissing the girl's emotion as mere infatuation.

Later, she takes the most drastic of measures, leaping from a window in Barringer's room. It is a touching incident, vividly captured on the screen (again, surpassing the book). It screams the essence of teaching - the emotions of youth arc to be treated sincerely. tenderly and lovingly.

ories as I was to learn later.

As a youngster I lived in a farmhouse so close to a barn that the aroma alone was sufficient to fertilize my mother's hothouse geraniums. And stabled within that barn, in seven giant cubicles, were seven behemoths who reluctantly took turns in pulling plows, wagons, drills and assorted other implements that today are drawn by gas guzzlers instead of oats munchers.

We called 'em horses, 'work horses" to be exact, and each of them had romantic names like "Nellie", "Brownie", or "Jake".

Their owner, my uncle, both loved and hated them, and he talked to them in words of love and hate. Nellie, for example, might warrant endearments like "honey", "beauty", or "Sweety", one hour, and "she-devil", "pox" or lommox" the next. The former usually were voiced affectionately early in the morning as their owner dressed them in leather trusses, and the latter about mid-afternoon when one or another of a team started running out of gas.

It was the height of bravery to sneak up behind one of the giants, kick him in the ankle, and then dash for safety behind a stable wall. Fortunately, Nellie was dealing with no physical defect. I picked 'em up and laid 'em down, sweeping around the corner of the house barely touching the ground. Nellie did likewise, not bothering, however, to skip over mother's hothouse geraniums. Thump, thump and they were gone in an instant as was the rosebush and the little sick plum tree she'd been nursing for a couple of years.

Nellie was a horse that took a halfacre to double back for another swipe at a row of infant corn but that night she was an ol' pro. She shaved the corner of the house, leaving quivering grey hairs in the redwood shingles. She was gaining as I rounded the last corner to the back yard.

But for a little sapling I'dhave been another crippled geranium. Grabbing the tree in full gallop, the momentum swung me around and through the screened back door.

The ripping and screams produced an indignant mother who stared out at the grey hulk camped at the back door and said, "Scat." Nellie understood fear, too. Off she went to join her watering band of terrorists.

So there you have it: Sufficient evidence, I think, to permanently put to bed an erroneous theory. Horses, you see, are mean and vindictive, but certainly

UP Unemployed Picked for Pilot Program

LANSING - Michigan's "hard core" unemployed in the Upper Peninsula were picked for a unique retraining-educational pilot program. Although job retraining has been conducted at many locations for quite some time, the UP project combined basic education and prevocational training with the teaching of only job skills.

A Federal program passed in 1964 provides funds for attacking hard core poverty. The Michigan Department of Social Services and Northern Michigan University, at Marquette, pooled their talents to provide a more flexible program, based on individual needs, than is normally found in retraining.

The 201 enrollees were first given thorough medical-dental examinations and underwent extensive counseling. Factors which become apparent - and which could affect the trainees' successfully completing courses-included organic problems, drinking habits, marital difficulties, low reading and mathematical competencies.

Trainees, housed in special quarters at Northern, received specific help on these individual problems. During this period social services staff visited homes, explained the program and asked for cooperation and support from families.

Once a vacancy developed in the job training classes, a trainee was "promoted" from basic education to job skills. No class schedule was set; trainees graduated from classes as employment was found or when they entered a more highly-skilled course.

Programs planned for 10 week intervals actually averaged 11 1/2 weeks. Maximums and minimums ranfrom one year to one day. Some men spent the entire periods in the basic education program and increased general education levels. Others spent less time in classroom, but acquired skills in welding, woodworking, auto mechanics, and other

At the end of the year's program, 94 of the 201 originally enrolled planned to continue their education or vocational training, 52 had or were promised employment, 27 were unemployed, 14 were in work-experience projects, eight were under medical care, six were in jail, unknown or dead.

Estimated trainee cost was $1.62 per hour, although exact figures will not be known until the books are officially closed. Results of the program were felt to merit its continuation for another MOTORISTS traveling north on U.S. 27 near Mt. Pleasant or Clare and those northbound on U.S. 23, between Ann Arbor and Flint, will note blue markings for exit ramsp.

Both projects are part of a "colorcoding" experiment by the Michigan State Highway Department.

Previous tests in Minnesota and Florida prompted Michigan to add a third color code to the existing yellow and white-on-green interstate signs on its freeways.

High-speed freeway travel requires "glance" notification of interchange areas to permit advance positioning for exit maneuvers. The need is greater when exit ramps are approached from left lanes and look identical to the thru-way.

Erratic driving maneuvers were observed at such interchanges with drivers switching lanes two and three times before deciding whether to exit or continue on the freeway.

The erection of blue signs and edgemarkings at Mt. Pleasant and Clare reduced erratic maneuvers 38%. Data from 30,000 driver interviews is now being processed. The highway department has received many letters from motorists expressing favorable reaction to the coding system.

Results on U.S. 27 showed enough merit to justify a similar experiment on an extended length of freeway. In 1965 color coding was established on ventories dropped to lower levels in -June for the first time in six years. Some economists feel that this downturn has removed one of the last obstacles to a strong business upturn that could get under way during the final months of this year.

The June dip in total inventories to $137.0 billion from a May level of $137.4 billion - seasonally adjusted brought an end to a 72-month climb. However, since the beginning of 1967, the rate of rise had been losing steam.

At the end of January, total business inventories amounted to $136.6 billion. When they made their peak four months later, they had edged up only 0.6%. So, in effect, the inventory adjustment has been in process during five of the six months of the first half of this year.

It should be noted that June's drop in inventories coincided with a boost in sales, thus bringing the inventory-sales ratio down to 1.55, - the lowest level this year. But one swallow does not make a summer, nor do single dips in total inventories and/or inventory-sales ratios indicate that a turnabout in the economy is assured. The hard, cold facts are that both inventories and inventorysales ratios are still well above their year-ago levels.

Of course, it may very well turn out that the inventory adjustment - slight and brief though it has been - is just about over. Or it may be that it has only begun and that a further shaking out will take place over the next two or three months until businessmenfeel they have reduced stocks to a more realistic balance with sales. Most likely, inventories and inventory-sales ratios will hold fairly close to current levels over the next month or two, following which there will probably be a gradual -not sharpbuildup in stocks.

RIGHT NOW, it is hard to imagine where a sufficient stimulus to business could come from that would warrant a sharp rise in stocks carried. Those who anticipate an early upsurge in business are placing a good deal of faith in a further broad rise in government expenditures and in a new wave of capital spending. If both government and capital spending do spurt smartly, inventories will respond on the upside.

But government spending alone at an Available, too, are hand switches to control headlight beams, a hand park brake, a left foot accelerator and other aids for the handicapped driver.

Patients entering the program will be screened before they begin the course of training to qualify for a license. Patients between ages 16 and 18 will be required to attend the mandatory 30-hour classroom course in addition to six hours spent at the wheel.

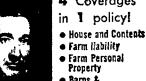

Dr. James W. Rae, chairman of physical medicine and rehabilitation at the University medical center, said of

"We expect that some patients will be referred here, to the new Parview Medical Center for driving training alone. However, more general, such training will become one part of their accelerated rate will not turn the trick. Indeed, too great a rise in government spending (and borrowing) will tend to slow down the rate of capital expenditure by draining off funds that could be used for that purpose. As the money supply tightens further -and as interest costs are locked in a high range businessmen whose profits are already being squeezed by higher labor and materials costs and who face the prospect of higher taxes are more likely than not to trim their capital expansion programs.

A SIZABLE percentage of business failures are directly traceable to poor inventory control. Indeed one of the tests of a successful business is the ability to correlate inventory with sales. If you have a business - whether manufacturing, wholesaling, or retailing - you should bear in mind that inventory holdings which you as an individual can decide to build up or to cut back constitute both a danger and a source of flexibility in our economic system.

In the matter of inventories, the best policy is not be carried away by what others are doing, or by what you surmise they may be doing. Instead, study actual trends, especially in your own and related businesses, and make your decision on the basis of facts and the needs - current and prospective of your business. Do not be afraid to boost stocks if conditions warrant it, but do not rush into large-scale forward commitments without thinking through what they entail. Above all, avoid going too deeply into debt. If you get in a tight spot later, it's cash you'll need, not goods.

6-Month Building Declines in 1967 authorized for construction in the metropolitan area during the first six months of 1967 declined from the same period of the previous year, according to a report of the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning commission.

This is the first decline for the period in six years, the commission noted. "A total of 15.370 units were permitted during the first six-months of 1967 compared to 16,697 for the same period of 1966, a decline of 1,327 or 7.9 percent."

Construction of multiple-family units, which recorded an increase of 22 percent in 1966, declined 11.4 percent during the first six months of 1967. The number of multiple family units decreased from 7,012 units in 1966 to 6,212 units in 1967, a decline of 800 units.

Oakland, Washtenaw and out-Wayne counties recorded overall residential unit declines while Macomb county and the city of Detroit recorded increases. Here's the local area residential and working conditions for the 1967-68 academic year has been approved by the Board of Trustees of Schoolcraft college and the Faculty Forum, which represents full-time instructors, counselors and assistant librarians.

Announcement of the agreement was made public by Dr. Eric J. Bradner, president of the college.

The contract provides for a $1,000 across-the-board raise for all Forum members plus salary increments earned last year ranging from $200 to $500. In addition, the college board agreed to pay one-half the cost of dependents' hospital and medical insurance for dependents. The college will continue to underwrite the entire cost of the insurance for all employes.

The agreement establishes a 10-step basic salary index for a 36-week con-

Oakland university will cast off its near-ghost town look this week when students return to campus to begin the 1967-68 academic year.

A total enrollment of about 3,800 is anticipated for the fall semester, which would be an increase of more than 600 over last fall. The total will include about 2,400 returning students and 1,400 new students, both freshmen and transfers. Classes will begin on Monday, September 11.

Activities for new students officially opened yesterday with convocation ceremonies in the Howard C. Baldwin Memorial Pavilion on campus. Chancellor D. B. Varner presided and Melvin Cherno, associate professor of history and master of Oakland's New College, delivered the main address. The invocation and benediction was given by the Rev. William Brewster, director of the University Christian Federation, Today and tomorrow, September 7-8 students will go through advising and registration during the last of a number of orientation sessions scheduled this summer. They also will take a battery of placement tests which are used by the student and the University in deciding what curriculum he should follow.

Two open houses are planned to acquaint new students with sports and recreation opportunities available on campus. They will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Sunday for men students and 4:15 to 5:45 p.m. on Monday for women students, both held in the OU Sports and Recreation Building.

Birmingham Bloomfield Bank pays Michigan's highest bank rate.

Annual rate.

Effective rate when compounded continuously for 46 months.

Five percent is the maximum interest any bank is allowed to pay on time deposits. But at BBB, savings certificates earn this 5% every minute of every day so you actually get an effective rate of 51/2% at their 46-month maturity. And we'll guarantee this highest interest for the full 46 months, even if interest rates come down. If you prefer a one-year, 5% certificate, we'll still compound the interest continuously to give you an effective 51/8 at maturity.

BBB savings certificates are available in amounts as small as $100, and they are insured to $15,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for maximum security. It's easy to transfer your funds—just fill out and mail this coupon today.
