

NEWS BRIEFS

WINTER'S BEEN EXPENSIVE reports City Manager Frank Ollendorff, who notes that the expenditure for salting of streets and intersections in the city has exceeded the budget by several thousand dollars — and winter won't officially end until March 20.

REZONING of 117,000 square feet of land near Eight Mile and Taft roads to permit development of a professional office complex has been approved by the city council as recommended by city planners. The rezoning was requested by the owner Lloyd George, a former Redford Township official. The land is located behind a proposed Boron Oil service station, located immediately on the northeast corner for which council has set a public hearing on rezoning for March 2.

NORTHVILLE JAYCEES have been granted permission to conduct a two-day mobile TB X-ray clinic on public property, near the Spinning Wheel store, in mid March.

THERE'S NO HURRY in trying to sell again the old well site property on Novi Road, city councilmen agreed this week. The council earlier had rejected a single bid for the property ($10,000) which officials believe should sell for in the neighborhood of $40,000.

A SPECIAL MEETING of the Northville Township Board will be held at 8 p.m. on Thursday, February 26 for the purpose of approving an allocation of funds for bidding on used voting machines. An executive meeting will precede the special, open session to determine the amounts to be bid on specific machines. The guaranteed machines are being placed on sale by Redford Township, which is adopting a completely new voting machine process. Northville Township is interested in acquiring one or two or more machines since it is in the process of establishing a new voting precinct, to be located at Tanger Elementary School on Five Mile Road, within the next several months.

AN INITIATORY resolution setting into motion a city sidewalk construction program, involving 100 percent assessment of affected property owners throughout the city, was approved Monday by the council. First special assessment hearing has been set for April 20.

BECAUSE of the condition of Carpenter Street, between Eureka and Eight Mile roads, the council has voted to close the street to through traffic until weather permits repair.

ONE OF THE HOTTEST shows in television occurred in Northville Heights subdivision recently, it was disclosed this week. City DPW personnel thawing out a water line with the use of electricity inadvertently hooked their hot line, to a gas main. A television set in one of the homes in the vicinity, which apparently was grounded in some manner to a gas line in the house, got a bigger jolt than TV got from Vice-President Agnew. The city has agreed to pay a $107.06 television repair bill.

CORNERSTONE-LAYING ceremonies are scheduled for March 15 between the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services at Northville Presbyterian Church with the Reverend Lloyd Brasure, present pastor. The cornerstone will be set in place at the outside northeast corner of the new sanctuary. Dedication tentatively is set for the latter part of May when work on the new sanctuary is expected to be completed.

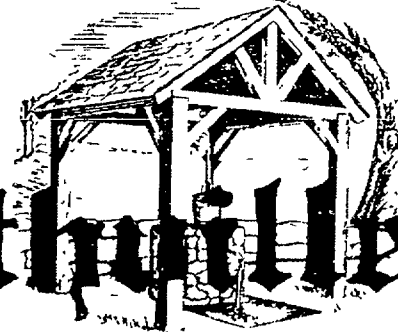

Heartbreaker Shatters Hopes

School Bond Issue OK'd By 3-1 Vote Margin Here

Twenty-three percent of the registered voters turned out Saturday to approve the $2.7 million building program of Northville School District by a vote of 909-341.

The bond election was the first time "bid before bond" had been tried in Michigan, and "the Northville district did prove the system works", officials declared.

Commenting on the election, acting school board president Eugene Cook said, "The vote was watched by school districts around Michigan, the State Board of Education and the Municipal Finance Department. Northville's 'bid before bond' will revolutionize school building procedures throughout the state."

Cook commended Superintendent Raymond Spear and Business Manager Earl Busard for implementing the method for the construction program.

"It was a team effort by parents, administrators and staff," Cook continued, "to provide facilities for expanding educational facilities at the lowest cost."

Busard commented "I doubt if the bond issue would have passed any other way. With the conventional method, we could not have guaranteed taxpayers there would not be a tax increase. Northville has set a precedent."

Final vote totals showed 1,259 electors went to the polls, with 1,182 property owners and 77 non-property owners voting.

Property owners passed the building program 850-326, while non-property owners approved the measure 59-15. Nine ballots were spoiled, four of which the voters were residents of the Plymouth School District.

The $2.7 million realized from the sale of bonds will be used for constructing additions and renovating Main Street, Moraine and Amerman elementarys, Cooke Junior High and Northville High School, adding facilities for a near 1,000 students.

Also included in the building program will be site improvements at all of the schools and the construction of a bus garage.

The bond sale has been set for March 17, St. Patrick's Day. Busard said confidently the "bonds will sell."

New Rec Budget Sparks Protests

A record-high recreation department budget is trading water this week as city and township officials ponder its fate.

The proposal, which on paper calls for an increase of approximately $17,000 for the 1970-71 fiscal year, ran into a recalcitrant city council Monday following similar reaction of the Northville Township Board last week.

Both bodies have tabled the budget pending further study and, in the case of the city, perhaps considerable trimming or adjustment.

Since the recreation department is jointly operated by the city and township, the budget requires approval by both the city and the township. Already recommended for approval by the recreation department director, the city-township recreation committee, and the city manager, the budget is to come up before the city council again next Monday night and it may be considered by the township board at a special meeting Thursday, February 26.

Besides the objections from city councilmen over the budget, the proposal came under sharp criticism from representatives of the Northville Senior Citizens Club who saw it as shortchanging senior citizens.

With some 20 senior citizens on hand, club president George Lockhart and Howard Fuller prefaced their remarks by noting that the club's chief concern is that no effort appears to be made to find the organization a permanent home. The 156-member group is being "pushed around from building to building."

Fuller suggested if the city acquires the Methodist Church building, which is up for sale, that senior citizens be given the opportunity to use the fellowship hall for a permanent meeting place.

As for the budget itself, Lockhart charged that the proposed outlay for senior citizens is another indication of the "inferior position" senior citizens hold in the community.

While noting the total budget may be insufficient to meet the needs of the community, Lockhart argued that the outlay for senior citizens is discouragingly low in comparison with outlays for other recreational activities. It would appear, he suggested, that senior citizens must "bust out in disorder" as do some youths in order to win more attention and consideration in today's society.

Apparently, the senior citizens were angered by the fact that the budget's lone mention of their organization was for a miscellaneous outlay of $200.

Department Director Robert Prom, who also came under fire from Lockhart, explained that the $200 was just part of the outlay for the club. The budget, he explained, for the first time separates various expenditures for the club under different categories where the club's name does not specifically appear. For example, money is set aside under transportation for paying costs of busing for senior citizens trips. And similarly, some money appearing

Men's Fashion: Capone in Living Color

by JEAN DAY

The corporate image of the man in the grey flannel suit is being shattered completely this year as the break-through in men's fashions signals the end of years of conservatism.

Color, stripes and cut are creating the new picture of the American pacesetter.

In fact, the American businessman is apt this fall to look a lot more like an Al Capone of the 1930's with dark shirts, shaped striped suits with wide lapels and pant legs. And he's going to wear Al's wide brim hat.

This is the picture brought back from the annual convention of the Men's Fashion Association and Menswear Retailers of America in Dallas last week by Charles Lapham of Lapham's Men's Shop who attended the national meeting for the fifth year. With him was Charles Parton, a store staff member.

"Everything is color," Lapham detailed, pointing out that 95 percent of the shirts being bought by buyers in Dallas were colored — and they aren't pastels, but they're dress shirts in red, navy and even black.

The shirts which will be coming into local stores in the next weeks and in the fall will have longer, pointed collars but will not be button-down types. The collar points will be three-to-four and a half inches long.

The few white shirts being stocked also will have longer collars and will come with white-on-white patterning. One being ordered for Lapham's will have a jersey-look; most will be dacron-cotton blends.

The shirts will have two and even three-button French cuffs with bigger, gaudier cuff links. (Sixty percent at Lapham's are wraparounds.)

Feeling that "the pacesetter on the job also should be the pacesetter in dress" the retailer for the first time in years will be stocking double-breasted suits. About 15 to 20 percent of all fall suits are to be double-breasted in contrast to about two percent of previous years. In the sport coat lines 40 percent will be double breasted.

All will have a definite shaping with deeper vents and longer coats, creating a slimming, close-to-the-body look. All lapels will be noticeably wider — Lapham mentioned that not a single suit manufacturer offered narrow lapels for fall.

Stripes are hot; if your fall suit is striped, it's in! It should also be double-breasted (six buttons set in a V shape often with only the lower buttoning.)

Retailers admit happily that the new fashions take more color coordination. Now a man buys a suit with colored complementing shirts and proper tie.

Ties are continuing wide — and even are being cut wider, as wide as six inches. Any pattern goes. Lapham reports his store will be carrying ties averaging three-and-a-half to four inches, but there will be some five inches wide.

Making its appearance at the Dallas show, he adds, was the bow tie, a big butterfly bow tie that's sure to be noticed.

Other fashion changes:

- Slacks — patterns a little bolder and in wrinkle-free double knit materials that have a gabardine look and are extremely comfortable. Expect wider bottoms by fall.

- Leather — news in coats and jackets with leather coats coming double-breasted. They'll also come belted and fur collared (around $165).

- Sport coats — corduroy as well as leather in Norfolk styling.

- Sports shirts — slippers with at least four buttons on the placket.

Admitting that midwest and local

Top Off Dinner With Flaming Peaches

A flaming dessert is the perfect way to end a meal and is guaranteed to warm your family against the wintry winds. Flaming Peaches, for instance, is made with peach halves, brandy and tangy American blue cheese.

Fruit and cheese is always a satisfying dessert, made even more so with the use of zesty American blue cheese. It complements both the peaches and the brandy in this sweet-yet-light dessert.

Crumbled blue cheese is flecked into the puddles of the peaches. Warm brandy is poured over all and set aglow.

For added flavor and variety, alternate or mix several fruits — pears, apricots, even orange sections are excellent for flaming.

FLAMING PEACHES

2 canned peach halves per person
1 teaspoon crumbled American blue cheese per peach half
2 teaspoon brandy per peach half, warmed

Broil peach halves four to five inches from broiler for two minutes. Remove and add blue cheese to center of peach. Place two peach halves in each dessert bowl. Ignite brandy and pour over peach halves. Serve flaming. This recipe may also be prepared in a chafing dish.

French Consul Speaks to Women

by JEAN DAY

THIS FRIDAY'S program of Northville Woman's Club which will have Consul General of France in Detroit Jacques Dircks-Dilly speaking about his star-shaped country and its relations with the United States is one of those rare "coups" that every program chairman desires.

When the program committee called the French Consul General's office in Detroit for a suggestion for a French speaker for the program at 1:30 p.m. in Northville Presbyterian Church, it found Mr. Dircks-Dilly himself would be happy to appear.

Born in Paris and holding a Bachelor of Laws degree and a diploma in political science, the speaker was assigned after the 1939-45 war, to a mission to the Cabinet of the Secretary of State, at the Presidency of the Government, and then at the Cabinet of the War Minister.

In 1947 he acted as assistant to the economic advisor of the High Commissioner of France in Sarre, and from 1949 to 1965 as director of the office de la Sarre in Paris.

Afterward, he has occupied such different diplomatic posts as Assistant Consul in Singapore, Ambassador's Deputy in Malaysia, Embassy Secretary in Mexico, Counsellor at the French Embassy in Luxembourg, and finally, Consul General and Ambassador's Deputy in Ile-Maurice before his Detroit appointment. An author of many studies and publications on economy and politics as well as of two books on the economy of the German territory and La Sarre and on relations between France and Germany, Mr. Dircks-Dilly is a Knight of the Legion of Honor, Officer of the French National Order of Merit and holder of many other French and foreign decorations. He is to be introduced at the guest day meeting and tea by Mrs. William Switzler, program chairman.

AN ANTIQUES forum is planned for the meeting of King's Mill Women's Club at 8 p.m. today in the clubhouse. Mrs. Jean Magee of the Stone Cellar Antique Shop on North Center Street is to speak.

Arrangements are being made by Mrs. Robert Endress, program chairman, and Mrs. Gilbert Knoth, chairman. They remind members to bring their own antiques to learn more about them.

SARAH ANN Cochrane Chapter, DAR, appropriately marked Patriotism Month by honoring outstanding high school senior girls of the area, their parents, teachers or counselors at a luncheon Monday at the home of Mrs. Thomas Lovett on Pickford Road.

The 46 members and guests also heard Mrs. Elmer Sebastian, treasurer of the American Indian Association of Detroit, tell what the association does for 4,000 Indians living in Detroit and the suburbs.

FEBRUARY stay-at-homes were entertained last Wednesday at a Valentine tea given by Mrs. Robert Bogart and Mrs. Samuel McSeveny at the Whipple road home of the latter. Friends dropped by during the early afternoon for tea and coffee from a red-cloth-covered buffet table decorated with red carnations in a white holder.

"HOT SUN — there's nothing like it to change your spirits." That's the motivation taking many Northville residents on

'March' Totals Keep Climbing

A total of $1,412 has been collected to date in the 1970 Northville March of Dimes campaign for the fight against birth defects, with $42 being added last week end from a Cavern coffeehouse benefit.

Postmaster John Steimel, local March of Dimes chairman, said that the $1,353 total reported last week for the Mothers' March had been increased and that the total also was augmented with $35 from the local canister collection.

This sum, Steimel commented, would have been higher if nine of the 27 canisters placed in local merchants' stores had not been stolen.

Additional monies also are expected from an upcoming high school band competition being scheduled by Robert Williams, band director winter vacations these days. The explanation was that of Mrs. W.P. McDermott, who made the trip to Grand Bahama Island sound very tempting as she told of seeing acres of flowers after "shaking snow from our shoes and then — just two hours and fifteen minutes later looking at island patterns in the water below."

On the business convention Mr. and Mrs. McDermott found the William Tuckers, also from Northville. The vacation included trips to other islands, barracuda fishing and a visit to Freeport

Dr. and Mrs. Russell Atchison returned this week from a two-week vacation at Montego Bay, Jamaica, where they unfortunately encountered the area's worst weather in 20 years with daily rain.

However, the trip was a rest and a reunion with Buffalo friends met on an earlier trip. The two couples joined forces in Miami, going on to Montego Bay where they rented a physicians vacation home complete with maid and cook.

Early this month a "Fun in the Sun" trip of beauty salon owners took the Eugene Guidos (She owns Dorothy's Glamour Nook in Novi) and the Reinhold Hammers (He has Salon Rene) to Nassau in the Bahamas where they did have a week with warm sun and swimming.

"We're going back next year," enthused Mrs. Edward Sepp as she returned from a skiing trip to Austria with her husband. Their first week abroad was spent at Salzburg and Kitzbuhel and the second, at Zors.

President Writes First Graders

Framed and hanging in Room 2 of Main Street Elementary is a personal letter from President Richard Nixon to 25 first graders.

"One day while wondering what to write about," their teacher Mrs. Judy Lucas said, "the students decided to send birthday greetings to President Nixon."

They received a thank you reply Friday and were thrilled, Mrs. Lucas said.

Joint PTAs to Air Women's New Role

The "Changing Role of Women and How Men Feel About It" is the topic chosen for the joint elementary PTA meeting next Thursday, February 26 at 8 p.m.

Featured speaker is Mrs. Eleanor Driver, assistant director for the Continuum Center at Oakland University. The meeting, hosted by the Main Street PTA will be held in the Instructional Materials Center of Cooke Junior High Annex. The public is invited to attend.

Oakland's Continuum Center was founded to develop a program enabling women to more constructively deal with normal life problems. "Investigation into Identity," the program Mrs. Driver is most involved in, serves as an approach to self-evaluation and life planning. Throughout the course of the program, a woman is encouraged to gather a wide variety of information concerning her own abilities, goals and interests.

Mrs. Driver brings a wealth of experience to the program as one who continued her education after her family needs lessened. With her wide variety of life experience — school, work, marriage, children, school, widowhood, work, mother-in-law, grandmother — Mrs. Driver is an example of what Oakland University calls the mature woman.

She feels that "continuing study, even in a small way, is both stimulating and rewarding and can, in some instances, create a new career or life interest for an individual."

A voice major in her early educational years, she returned to school focussing on guidance and counseling which led to her present position with the Continuum Center.

Brownies Build Bird Feeders

As a winter conservation service project, Brownie Scouts in Northville Troop 209 made and took home bird feeders created from pine cones rolled in peanut butter and bird seed this week.

Some also were to be made and placed on the grounds Tuesday at Moraine Elementary School where the troop meets. Their leader, Mrs. H. Clark, explains that the project is part of the troop's conservation study. In January the troop held a sledding party with hot chocolate and a "Brownie 1970" cake to begin the new year.

Brownie Troop 211 has had sewing projects, learning to sew buttons and simple basting stitches. They also have had a "sharing" meeting with each bringing a favorite toy or game and a skating party.

Brownies in Mrs. Keith Pixley's troop had both a sledding party and a winter cookout. A Think Day program is set for February 22 when the Brownies will talk about international friendship. The troop also is preparing for Girl Scout Week in March.

Badge work is occupying Juniors of Troop 234. They first are working on a health badge and plan needlecraft and songster to follow.

Mrs. William Schlieff's Cadette Troop 407 is working on badges, concentrating on the cook badge this winter. As a community service project, the Girl Scouts served at the VFW banquet the end of January. Their leader was honored interviewee in the Northville Scouting Newsletter for January as she has been active in scouting for more than 12 years in this area. She began as intermediate leader and has worked with all age groups, declaring she enjoys all age levels — "They're just all my favorite when I'm working with them."

Cadette Troop 371 has been working on scout challenges and went roller skating with Senior Troop 222.

Scouts in Troop 149 enjoyed a skating and sliding party and are working on a Valentine project.

Senior Troop 222 took a field trip last month to the University of Michigan Botanical Gardens. The scouts also have visited Our Lady of Providence home, making plans to visit once a month to play games on a one-to-one basis with the youngsters there.

COOKIE TIME'S HERE — Mrs. G. M. Abbott, Northville chairman of the Girl Scout cookie sale, left, distributes order forms to Mrs. George Merwin, Northville troop 371 cookie chairman, for the annual sale which begins this Friday and continues through March 7. Scouts will take orders for cookies to be delivered the latter part of April. Good news — Mrs. Abbott reports the cookies still are 50 cents a box, in five varieties — Savannahs, mints, scot-teas, chocolate-vanilla cremes and fudge creme.

Crupi: Pass Road Millage Before Paving

'We have no money right now. We have to pass the millage first.'

MAYOR JOSEPH CRUPI

Novi's two announced mayoral candidates — Mayor Joseph Crupi and Councilman William Duey — definitely have different ideas about the proposed millage increase for roads.

The two clashed briefly in the city council meeting Monday night in response to a demand the city pave a stretch of Nine Mile Road.

Warren Coville, president of Guardian Photo, 43034 West Nine Mile, complained in a letter of a "near-disaster" allegedly caused by the condition of the road.

His letter said fire trucks answering a call from Guardian were detoured four extra miles because a truck blocked traffic on Nine Mile.

Coville blamed road conditions for overturning the truck at the Nine Mile railroad viaduct. "We were lucky we had some of our fire equipment," Coville said. "Otherwise we could have lost our plant or even someone's life."

Council agreed the road condition was a problem. But Crupi pointed out no funds would be available to fix it unless the millage passed on the April 6 ballot.

"We have no money right now," Crupi explained. "We need to pass the millage first."

Duey disagreed. "Even if the millage passes, I don't think the money should come from the city. This Nine Mile area is almost all industrial and the owners have told me they're willing to pay to have the road paved."

Duey opposes the spring millage, which is asking for three mills for 10 years for roads. Crupi introduced the millage idea

Councilman Denis Berry resolved the impasse Monday by suggesting the property owners on Nine Mile from Novi Road to the Meadowbrook Subdivision be polled on their opinions of paving.

If they give a consensus agreement, the city could initiate a special assessment of the property owners to pay for paving.

Since the road millage promises to continue as a controversial campaign issue, the Novi Jaycees will sponsor a forum on the question in conjunction with a meet-your-candidates meeting March 17, 8 p.m., Community Building.

Council also agreed Monday to pay Richard Jeffery, an expert realty witness, a five-year-old bill of $657.50. Although Jeffery was never specifically hired by Novi (then a village), the council decided a tacit agreement between him and City Attorney Howard Bond should be honored.

Council did not debate two ordinances which will probably provoke some dispute: (1) the paving plan proposed by Presnell which would require developers to pay for paving one side of the main road which borders their development and (2) the offenses ordinance which somewhat incorporates the controversial "disorderly person" ordinance recently dropped by the council.

They are scheduled for discussion Monday.

What Is A Confidential 'New Town'?

Apparently a lot of people know more details about the proposed "New Town" in Novi than the city council. And the council is going to do something about it.

Nearly three months after being promised an interview with the promoters of the "New Town," council still hasn't talked to anyone from the Metropolitan Detroit Citizens Development Authority (MDCDA).

Monday night council decided to request in writing a meeting with MDCDA, a private group backing the "New Town" idea.

Action was prompted by Robert Flaherty, a Novi resident who read excerpts from a confidential report explaining the "New Town" plan. The report projected an integrated community of 50,000 for Novi, probably in the Taft and Nine Mile Road area.

Flaherty refused to divulge where he got the confidential report. "I just think we should know something about this before these people come in here," Flaherty said. "This report treats us like we were a bunch of hicks."

Mayor Joseph Crupi agreed a meeting with MDCDA was overdue. "I don't think the council and planning board should be the last to know," he said. He reminded council he'd asked for a session with MDCDA in November.

Edward Robinson, executive director of MDCDA, apologized for the delay and repeated his promise to meet with the council as soon as an information brochure is available.

Robinson said the confidential report and the information brochure were not the same and declined to comment on the confidential report.

He told this newspaper that reports of the "New Town" have been highly exaggerated. "It's not even going to be a 'New Town,'" he claimed. "We haven't got that much land."

Reports have claimed MDCDA has bought or is negotiating to purchase as many as 5,000 acres in the Taft-Nine Mile area. Robinson said this figure "was way above the truth."

The concept behind "New Towns" is basically to promote self-contained cities which do not become barnacles on larger cities. It is also designed to break up the megapolopolis into smaller, more efficient units.

Van Gieson Tops Wixom Vote; Cronin, Dufresne Eliminated

Duey and Friends Leap Into Novi Race

William Duey is expected to resign from the Novi City Council Monday so he can run against Mayor Joseph Crupi in the April 6 election.

Crupi has indicated he will seek re-election as mayor.

Duey will be backed by a three-man team vying for three open council seats in the spring election: The slate includes Raymond Evans, Raymond Harrison and Phillip Anderson. Although all three have served as Novi officials before, none are incumbents.

Duey has 26 months to go on a term he won a year ago in February when he was the second leading vote-getter in the council race. All six council candidates were unopposed last year. Donald Young, William O'Brien and Duey won 38-month terms and David Harrison, Denis Berry and Edwin Presnell won 14-month terms.

Crupi won a 14-month term in a three-way race with Anderson and Leo Harwood.

From now on, however, mayors will be elected to two-year terms and council members to four-year terms.

Berry, Presnell and D. Harrison are expected to seek re-election although no one has announced so far.

Evans is a former member of the planning board and chairman of the charter commission that wrote the city charter. R. Harrison is a former village president and councilman. Anderson was a charter member of the village council and is an ex-village president.

Duey and his three supporters have informally pledged to fight Crupi's proposed millage hike for roads. Presnell has also declared he will work against the millage.

The city is asking three additional mills for 10 years to be used in building new roads. Crupi sponsored the plan when it was introduced a month ago. "I'm not against roads," Duey explains. "But I think we need a master plan for roads before we go after a millage increase."

Crupi said he was running again specifically to promote the road millage. "I want to push the road program," he challenged. "That's the reason I want to give Bill a good fight." Crupi said his campaign would probably be low-keyed on the other issues.

The Duey team also wants to give the city manager more administrative control.

Duey's resignation will leave a seat vacant. But the city charter is not clear on how it should be filled. Howard Bond, city attorney, has been asked to give an opinion Monday whether a special election will be necessary.

Petitions for either mayor or council must be filed by 4 p.m. Wednesday. Deadline for registering for the April 6 election is March 6.

Bill Van Gieson, a political newcomer to Wixom, was the surprising favorite of voters in Tuesday's primary election for city council candidates.

Van Gieson led an eight-member field by a sizeable margin, polling 203 votes. Robert Dingley, also a political novice, finished second with 175 votes.

Then came the two incumbents in the race — Lottie Chambers with 174 and Elwood Grubb with 169.

Three council seats and the mayoral chair are open.

Because there are only two mayoral candidates, Charles McCall and Gilbert Willis skipped the primary and moved on with Tuesday's council winners to the April 6 general election.

Jean Cronin, who missed most of the primary campaign because of pneumonia, and James Dufresne were knocked out of the race Tuesday. They managed only 82 and 87 votes, respectively.

Two other candidates, Jill Hall and Earl Madary, sneaked into the final two places with 99 and 92 votes, respectively.

Mrs. Hall's poor showing was somewhat startling to local observers because her candidacy had been well-publicized. Last week Mrs. Hall filed a complaint with the Michigan Fair Election Practices Commission after she and four of her supporters received hate mail and after she had gotten threatening phone calls.

She has been a vocal critic of the present administration, headed by Mayor Wesley McAtee who is retiring after eight years. She has particularly rapped McAtee's recommended appointment of Tom McGuire as police chief. McGuire has been the target of several complaints since he took the job last August.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department is investigating the hate mail and threats against Mrs. Hall. Both she and her husband have given their fingerprints and handwriting samples to detectives on the case.

"People were insinuating that I wrote the letters myself," she said. "This was just to set the record straight." The letters had been handwritten.

Madary, an ex-city policeman, has also criticized McGuire. Some observers attributed his and Mrs. Hall's low total to a pro-McGuire backlash.

Mrs. Chambers' third-place performance means she may have a tough fight in trying for her fourth consecutive term. She is the only charter council member still active in city politics.

Grubb, the other incumbent, is facing his last race after being appointed last year. Both Mrs. Chambers and Grubb have taken stands against McGuire.

Neither Van Gieson or Dingley have given their opinions on McGuire or the controversial urban renewal plan for Wixom.

Meadowbrook Lake Still A Mess

Sewers Should Stop Walled Lake Pollution

The cities of Novi and Walled Lake are going to stop some of the pollution in the lake of Walled Lake starting March 1, 1971.

By then an $11 million sewer system and sewage treatment plant will be cleaning up the human garbage and waste that's now going wholesale into the lake.

"This won't solve the entire pollution problem but it will take care of most of it," claims Donald Ringle, deputy director of the Oakland County DPW.

The DPW finally sold its bond issue last Tuesday for the sewers and the plant, after failing to get a bid in two previous tries. First National Bank of Chicago won the bid at 6.99709 per cent interest, edging out the First National Bank of Detroit's 6.99977 per cent bid.

They were the only bidders on the bond. Lerner-Linden Construction Company of Detroit received the contract to build the treatment plant for $1,655,550. The bond issued was for $8.5 million because $2.5 million will be paid by federal and state grants.

The treatment plant will be located south of 13 Mile Road, near West Lake Road, in Novi—about one-half south of the lake. The sewer system will service almost everyone north of the plant in Novi and Walled Lake.

Most of the trunk lines and laterals will cater to the cottages on the periphery of the lake, where much of the pollution problem is concentrated.

This system also will stop some of the sewage seepage which starts in the Walled Lake area and runs south into Meadowbrook Lake. "But it will not significantly help the pollution of Meadowbrook," explains Ed O'Rourke, associate director of the Oakland County Health Department.

O'Rourke points out that most of the sewage going into Meadowbrook comes from the commercial center at Grand River and from houses north of 10 Mile Road — where there are no sewers.

The Michigan Water Resources Commission cited Novi more than two years ago for allowing pollution of Meadowbrook and the upper branch of the Rouge River.

Oakland County engineers have just started drawing up plans for extending sewer service from 10 Mile and Meadowbrook Roads north to collect industrial and residential effluent.

Cost estimates for the extension, which would carry the sewage to Detroit, are expected by the end of February. Bonds will have to be sold to finance this project also.

Originally Novi hoped to boost the capacity of the sewer lines from four cubic feet per second (cfs) — equivalent to 10,000 people. But plans for that fell through.

Now stuck with four (cfs) capacity, Novi will have to build a holding tank somewhere near Nine Mile Road and the C & O Railroad so the flow of sewage into the line will be even. With the tank the same sewer capacity can handle up to 15,000 people.

The Water Resources Commission is giving Novi time to put in the extension, though it has repeated its pollution warning several times.

"A sewer system is the only answer for Novi," declares O'Rourke. "Septic tanks aren't sophisticated enough to handle a developing area."

At this time, however, most of Novi's sewage is dumped into septic tanks.

The treatment plant will remain restricted to the northern end of the city. Actually the plant will not neutralize all the sewage it treats. Like most secondary plants, it won't do anything to kill nitrates and phosphates, the nutrient source for much of the weed and algae growth in the lake.

It should, however, filter out about 95 per cent of the sludge and sediment. "Basically this plant will get rid of the bacteria and eliminate any health problem caused by sewage," Ringler explains. "It is not a cure-all for the lake's problems."

The Water Resources Commission cited the city of Walled Lake for pollution of the lake two years ago, creating the catalyst for the sewer and treatment system.

The plant is expected to service 7,000 people in each city with potential expansion for 3,500 more.

Novi will start paying back its $4.25 million share of the cost November 1, 1973, and continue paying past the year 2000. The city council is expected to devise a pay-back plan shortly.

Residents in the area will probably have to pay a $670 installation charge and a $1.76 flat rate per month. By state law, home owners must hook up to the sewer system — but have 18 months to do it after the sewers are installed.

Ford Field Work Boosts Budget

Major increase in the proposed 1970-71 fiscal budget of the recreation department is pegged for development of Ford Field and for bookkeeping. Recreation Director Robert Prom has explained.

The $44,756 budget currently is under approval by the city and the township, which shares the cost of the recreation program based on a ratio of participants from the two municipalities.

With 652 persons registered for the program in the city and 317 registered from the township, cost of the proposed 1970-71 program has been put at $23,667.80 for the city and $11,507.20 for the township.

The budget calls for an outlay of $6,700 for Ford Field improvements, some of which have already been provided at the expense of the city, and $2,900 for bookkeeping. In previous years, the bookkeeping category was not included, according to Prom. It has been included in the new budget, at the request of the city, to ensure that the township shares these costs that previously were borne by the city as part of its regular bookkeeping procedures, he said.

Other budget increases:

Wages and salaries — from $10,644.20 to $12,146 (first increase in "three or four years").

Director's salary — from $4,500 to $5,500, first increase since Prom took the job.

Building and grounds utilities — from $1,000 to $1,500.

Equipment for recreation activities — from $4,000 to $5,000.

Officials and registration fees — $1,000 to $2,500.

Vehicle operation — $500 to $650.

Adult education classes (volley ball, etc.) — $500 to $650.

Team insurance — $696.61 to $750.

Canoe rental and trip — $507 to $850.

Contingency — $329.24 to $1,500.

All but $35,175 of the total $44,756 is to be recouped through fees, insurance and contributions from merchants and clubs, the budget shows.

Despite the increases, Prom and other recreation officials contend the budget is a minimal one — and that it falls far short of what the community should be providing in recreational services.

Budget Sparks Protests

under wages and bookkeeping is for the club activities.

He estimated the total club outlay, taking into consideration of all budget categories, at close to $1,100.

This new accounting practice, Prom said, is in line with the city's standard accounting system and provides the city with a way of recouping some costs for bookkeeping, wages, etc. from the township. Until this year, he explained, these particular costs were borne almost entirely by the city. Furthermore, he emphasized that this new budget procedure was ordered by the city.

Despite the explanation, Lockhart persisted, arguing that the club outlay still represented neglect of senior citizens' interests.

Councilman Paul Folino, member of the recreation committee, suggested Lockhart spell out specific desires of the club so his committee can come up with an adequate figure. "Right now we've got to make a ballpark guess," not really knowing if it is sufficient to cover the interests of senior citizens.

However, Lockhart replied that setting up of the senior citizens' activity schedule was not the club's duty but the responsibility of the recreation director.

Mayor A. M. Allen and Councilman Wallace Nichols, who were appalled by the increase in the budget, took the side of the senior citizens, suggesting that more consideration be given that club in the budget.

As for the budget itself, the two officials took the position that it appears the department "is losing sight of what the recreation program is supposed to do."

They were particularly critical of the fact that the program provides for the transportation of youngsters involved in skiing and for a new hockey program in which youngsters will utilize ice rinks elsewhere.

Discussing the appropriation for a canoe trip in northern Michigan, Mayor Allen quipped, "A lot of people like deer hunting but I don't see anything here (in the budget) for them."

But provisions are made for the deer hunter, countered the city manager, who pointed out that the firearms safety-training program sponsored by the department prepares youngsters for hunting. As a matter of fact, a new state law requires satisfactory completion of such a course to qualify young people to hunt he added.

Activities are conducted outside the community, the manager said, because the local community does not provide some facilities. If the high school did not have its new swimming pool, he added, youngsters would still be bused to other areas as they had been in previous years.

Concerning the ski program, Prom reminded the council of community concern a couple years ago when a number of vandalism drug problems arose among high school age youngsters prompted citizens to look for diversionary interests for these youngsters. Out of a study, it was determined that skiing represented one of the activities most desired by young people, he said.

The mayor hammered away at the budget increase, however, pointing out that if every department comes in with a propose hike of this kind the city is in for serious financial problems.

ORDINANCE NUMBER 22-I

AMENDMENT TO THE ZONING ORDINANCE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN DEALING WITH THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A B-3 REGIONAL BUSINESS DISTRICT

AN ORDINANCE ENACTED UNDER ACT 184, PUBLIC ACT OF 1943 OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN, AS AMENDED, TO PROVIDE FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF ZONING DISTRICTS LYING WHOLLY WITHIN THE UNINCORPORATED PARTS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN WHICH ZONING DISTRICTS THE USE OF LAND, NATURAL RESOURCES, AND STRUCTURES, INCLUDING TENTS, AND TRAILER COACHES, THE HEIGHT, THE AREA, THE SIZE, AND THE LOCATION OF BUILDING HEREAFTER ERECTED, THE LIGHT AND VENTILATION OF SUCH BUILDING, THE AREA OF YARDS, COURTS AND OTHER OPEN SPACES, AND THE DENSITY OF POPULATION SHALL BE REGULATED: TO PROVIDE FURTHER FOR A METHOD OF ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT OF ITS PROVISIONS AND TO PRESCRIBE PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION OF ITS PROVISIONS: TO PROVIDE FOR A BOARD OF APPEALS AND ITS POWERS AND DUTIES.

THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE ORDAINS:

PART I. That the Zoning Ordinance of the Township of Northville is hereby amended by amending Section VIII and adding thereto a new subsection to read as follows:

ARTICLE VIII-A

B-3 REGIONAL BUSINESS DISTRICT

PREAMBLE:

The B-3 REGIONAL BUSINESS DISTRICTS are designed to cater to the needs of a larger consumer population than is served by Local and General Business Districts and are characterized by an integrated or planned cluster of establishments served by a common parking area and generating large volumes of vehicular and pedestrian traffic. Because of the greater building height, intensity of land use, and associated high volume of vehicular traffic, it is intended that this District be located only in the proximity to major traffic arteries having convenient access to freeway interchanges.

SECTION 8.5 PRINCIPAL USE PERMITTED:

In a Regional Business District, no land or building shall be used and no building shall be erected except for one or more of the following uses, unless otherwise provided in this Ordinance:

(a) Any retail business whose principal activity is the sale of merchandise in an enclosed building.

(b) Any service establishment that requires a retail adjunct or performs personal services on the premises.

(c) Restaurants, or other places serving food or beverages, except those having the character of an "open front store" or "drive-in" establishments so called.

(d) Hotels and motels.

(e) Theaters, assembly, concert halls or similar places of assembly.

(f) Office buildings for any of the following: executive, administrative, professional, accounting, writing, clerical, stenographic, drafting, and sales.

(g) Medical office, including clinics.

(h) Other uses similar to the above uses upon approval by the Township Board.

(i) Accessory structures and uses customarily incident to the above permitted uses.

SECTION 8.6 REQUIRED CONDITIONS:

(a) All business establishments shall be retail or service establishments dealing directly with consumers. All goods, produced on the premises, shall be sold at retail on the premises where produced.

(b) All business, servicing or processing, except for off-street parking, loading and those open air uses indicated as being subject to Special Conditions in Section 8.7, shall be conducted within completely enclosed building.

(c) All off-street parking plans shall be computed separately for hotels, motels, office buildings, medical offices and clinics, and restaurants, except as SECTION 12.12 (e) of this Ordinance is found to be applicable.

SECTION 8.7 USES SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS:

The following uses shall be permitted subject to the conditions hereinafter imposed:

(a) Retail sales of plant material not grown on the site, and sales of lawn furniture, playground equipment and garden supplies all enclosed with a fence. Said area shall not be used for bulk storage.

(b) Automobile service centers, when developed as part of a larger retail use designed so as to integrate the automobile service center within the site plan and architecture of the total shopping center; and provided further that a building permit shall not be issued separately for the construction of any automobile service center within the B-3 District.

SECTION 8.8 AREA AND BULK REQUIREMENTS:

See ARTICLE XI, "SCHEDULE OF REGULATIONS" limiting the height and bulk of buildings, the minimum size of lot by permitted land use, maximum density permitted, and providing minimum yard setback requirements.

SECTION 11.1 LIMITING HEIGHT, BULK, DENSITY, AND AREA BY LAND USE:

Use District	Minimum Size Lot Per Unit		Maximum Height of Buildings		Minimum Yard Setback			Minimum Floor Area Per Unit (sq. ft.)	Maximum Percent of Lot Coverage Area of All Structures
	Area In sq. ft.	Width In ft.	In Stories	In Feet	Front	Side	Rear
B-3 Regional Business	—	—	(p)	(p)	75(p) (q)	75(p) (q)	75(p) (q)	—	—

Notes: (To Section 11.1)

(p) There shall be no limit relative to building height other than the restriction that the building shall not be nearer to the property line than seventy-five (75) feet or a minimum for all yards determined in the following formula, or whichever is greater:

$$L + 2H$$

$$Y = 6$$

The symbols used above shall be defined as follows:

Y = required yard formed by building wall and property line.

L = the total length of that portion of a lot line from which, when viewed directly from above, line drawn perpendicular from said lot line will intersect any part of the building.

H = height of building.

(q) Off-street parking shall be permitted to occupy a required yard after approval of the parking plan layout and points of ingress and egress by the Planning Commission provided that there shall be maintained a minimum landscape setback of twenty (20) feet between the nearest point of the off-street parking area, exclusive of access driveways, and the nearest property line.

PART II. VALIDITY. Should any section, clause or provision of this Ordinance be declared by the courts to be invalid, the same shall not affect the validity of the Ordinance as a whole or any part thereof, other than the part so declared to be invalid.

PART III. CONFLICTING PROVISIONS REPEALED. Any Ordinance or parts of Ordinance in conflict, herewith, are hereby repealed.

PART IV. EFFECTIVE DATE. Public Hearing having been held herein, the provisions of this Ordinance Amendment are hereby given immediate effect, pursuant to the provisions of Section 11, of Act 184 of the Public Acts of 1943, as amended.

I, ELEANOR W. HAMMOND, Clerk of the Township of Northville, do hereby certify that the above ordinance amendment was approved and adopted by the Northville Township Board at a regular meeting thereof, duly called and held on the 10th day of February, 1970, A.D., and was ordered to be given publication in the manner prescribed by law.

SAMPLING SUCCESS — A check for $504.75 was presented to the Northville Mothers' Club last Thursday for completing a survey of 673 families in the school district concerning their opinions on year-round school. Mrs. Robert Boshoven, co-chairman of the survey committee, watches Raymond Spear, superintendent of Northville schools, as he prepares to sign the check. From a preliminary evaluation, Spear said the "results suggest year-round school is feasible in Northville." Most citizens feel school buildings should be used more than they are, according to survey results, though 71 percent favor summer vacations. Final evaluation of the survey will be completed in the near future.

Pastor to Review Ministry Candidates

The Reverend Lloyd G. Brasure of Northville will participate in the grading of candidates for ordination during a three-day session at McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, on February 25-27.

All candidates for ordination in the Christian ministry by the Presbyterian Church must undergo extensive national examination in four areas: worship, Bible, polity, and theology. These are conducted in several places in the nation, following which groups of readers are assembled to grade papers.

The pastor of the Northville Presbyterian Church is one of these readers.

The plenary session will begin at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, February 25, continuing through the evening with grading all day Thursday until late Friday afternoon.

Mr. Brasure just completed a six-year term on the committee for Candidates of the Detroit Presbytery, four of those years serving as chairman.

This committee is charged with supervision of studies, psychological testing and evaluation by a qualified service of professionals, and overall preparation for examination by the Presbytery in faith, sermon preparation, and theological standards. It covers all students from junior year in college to graduation, once they have applied formally for ordination procedures.

The Presbytery currently carries approximately 30 candidates on the roster. Most of these are men but women also may now qualify.

Jaycee Orientation Set Wednesday Eve

The Northville Jaycees will conduct an orientation program for community young men interested in the Jaycee organization on Wednesday evening, February 25.

It is to be held in the basement meeting room of the Detroit Federal Savings Building at 200 North Center Street at 7:30 p.m.

Membership in the Jaycees is open to any young man between the ages of 21 and 35 and "provides an excellent opportunity to meet with men of similar interests for the improvement of the Northville area."

Program chairman Doug Loomis said the program will be highlighted by guest speaker Robert Padgett, the 1968-69 Jaycee State President. In addition, local chapter officers will present a slide program of area projects accomplished by the Jaycees.

A refreshment period will allow prospective members to question chapter members in detail about Jaycee operations.

Persons with questions are asked to call Loomis at 349-1664. "We urge," said Loomis, "any Northville young man to spend a few hours at the February 25 meeting to see what the Jaycees are doing in the community."

Mental Health Meet Planned by Jaycees

Preparations are fast nearing completion for a state mental health seminar, sponsored by the Northville Jaycees, to be held here on Saturday, February 28.

First of its kind ever sponsored by a Jaycee organization in the nation, the day-long program will be held at the Plymouth State Home and Training School, corner of Five Mile and Sheldon roads.

Following registration, breakfast and introductions from 8:30 to 10 a.m., Dr. Ralph Rabinovitch, director of Hawthorn Center, will kick off the seminar with a talk on "Drug Abuse and Mental Health."

Three workshops are planned from 11 a.m. to noon, including a movie titled "A Way Out of the Wilderness;" a panel discussion concerning a sheltered community for the mentally retarded presented by Community Living Centers, Inc.; and "The Sheltered Workshop," a discussion of sheltered employment of mentally handicapped.

Following lunch, guided tours of area mental health and mental rehabilitation facilities will be conducted from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The keynote speaker, Charles F. Wagg, chief assistant director of the Michigan Department of Mental Health, will deliver an address at 2:30 p.m. entitled, "How Can We Become Involved?"

All of the day's activities will be held in the recreation building on the grounds of Plymouth State Home. Tour transportation will be provided and will originate from the recreation building.

Mental health experts, officials and employees — as well as interested laymen — will attend the seminar from throughout the state.

Aside from general sponsorship of the seminar, Northville Jaycees and their wives also will serve as hosts and hostesses.

"Our purpose in sponsoring this event," a Jaycee spokesman explained, "is to increase the public awareness of the problems and activities that are presently being worked on."

Knights Plan Birthday Ball

Northville Commandery No. 39, Knights Templar is sponsoring an All-Masonic Washington's Birthday Ball Saturday at 8 p.m.

Eminent Commander George Y. Cheng has extended invitation to members of all Masonic orders, their ladies and friends, to participate in the festive celebration which is to be held in the Masonic Temple in Plymouth.

Refreshments will be served, following the grand march, and drawings are to be held for several door prizes.

All Sir Knights of the Commandery are requested to wear Templar dress uniform without chapeaux and sword. Formal dress is preferred, but not mandatory, for the guests from all other Masonic orders.

Information and reservations may be had by contacting the committee chairman, Past Commander Herman A. Wedemeyer at 45189 W. Nine Mile Road or by calling 349-0149.

"Of particular interest is that 85 percent of the mentally deficient individuals who are able to function at near normal levels provided they have proper training in personal adjustment and in vocational skills."

"It has been estimated that if all the mentally retarded persons in the United States who are capable of supporting themselves could be given job training and placement assistance, they would have a potential annual earning capacity of $6 billion."

The seminar is open to the general public with a fee of $2 charged for registration, which includes a noon luncheon.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

One or more anonymous "tipsters" are revealing to this newspaper, and apparently any other that will listen, that all is not well on the city of Northville police department.

"I'm just a city taxpayer concerned about the welfare of our community. Did you know that many of our policemen are leaving? Don't you think you ought to look into what's wrong?"

"Oh, no. I don't want to identify myself. No, I'm not related to anyone of the officers. I'm just a concerned city resident".

"Thank you, madam. We think we know what's going on, but we'll look into it a little more. I'm certainly concerned about our police department, too. They need more public support and probably more money. Maybe you could write a letter to the editor and suggest what you think should be done to improve our police department."

End of conversation.

In the tradition of sensational journalism enjoyed or deplored by readers (depending on whose ox is being gored), here's a story calculated to make headlines.

"Northville Police Department Racked by Dissension", "Three Officers Quit - City's Safety Threatened".

Everyone would get into the act. Letters to the editor would soar, sides would be chosen, and maybe we could have another public hearing so that every disgruntled officer, past and present, could get his fair shot at embarrassing the brass.

First of all let me say flat out that I have no respect for anonymous callers. I sign my name to opinions and I expect others to do the same.

Secondly, I don't know of a single business or government agency in Northville or any other community that doesn't have personnel problems of some kind. Either the boss is lazy or a slave driver, or some fellow employee isn't pulling his load.

This condition exists to some extent at one time or another at every police department, fire department, post office, newspaper, city hall, school building or church organization in the nation.

Plymouth, Livonia and Wixom are currently experiencing police department problems. And you can be sure there are two sides to stories being circulated there.

Nevertheless, these facts would not excuse a strife-torn police department, if it existed.

I believe it is the responsibility of this newspaper, or any other, to dig out the facts and present them to the public as they exist. I admit to an attraction for the sensational, the revelation that causes public officials to awake from their complacency. But the facts do not always satisfy this appetite.

What should be more satisfying to the citizenry of Northville is that they have a good police department.

I would not attempt to classify its proficiency compared to other communities, but for Northville it is the best we've ever had.

The credit belongs to the entire department, but it started with City Manager Frank Ollendorff when he hired Sam Elkins as chief and it continues as this team performs at a talent level rarely found in communities so small.

City Manager Ollendorff and Chief Elkins would not try to hide the weaknesses of their department. They know where the discontent lies, where improvements could be made. And they don't pretend that some of the complaints are not well founded.

They defend their officers and they're proud of their department.

Chief Elkins is a well-trained, highly competent police officer. He's also a practical man. He knows that he cannot always get 100 per cent from every man. Nor can he receive 100 per cent compliance from his boss, the city manager, or from the city council, which controls the city's purse strings.

When the disgruntled complain that one thing or another isn't being done, that one of their fellow officers hasn't been disciplined (or fired), or that additional equipment or personnel are not available, they receive little satisfaction from Chief Elkins.

He doesn't tell them that he has disciplined another officer; he doesn't tell them that the city manager or council will not approve the funds for more equipment or personnel. He respects his officers and his superiors. Chief Elkins realizes that his job is a difficult one and he doesn't believe in taking the heat off himself by hauling someone else into the kitchen.

I hope the public, the council and the men working for and with Chief Elkins and City Manager Ollendorff will think hard and long before they're enticed into any witch hunt.

I hope the men of the department will not permit themselves to become split into factions. If they bear grievances, take them to their immediate superior - not the mayor or a councilman - and talk the problem out.

Finally, I hope the public, in whatever manner it sees fit, will express support and appreciation of the job our police department is doing.

It has never been better and it is showing improvement every year.

Speaking for Myself

Mrs. Zimmerman

GOOD . . .

Have you noticed? Hardly a week goes by that someone doesn't complain to you about high taxes. Federal and state income tax, property tax, sales tax . . . all taxes seem to be continually spiralling higher and higher. Do you know anyone, personally, who has not lamented this fact?

Yet, most of us demand more and more services from our federal, state, and local government representatives that we feel are desperately needed, but are, in our opinion, too expensive.

How often do we get the opportunity to save tax dollars by more efficient use of existing expenditures instead of reducing existing services?

I would urge everyone to keep an open mind and study carefully the quadrimester program to maximize our existing school facilities. You might find that the inconveniences are a very small price to pay when weighed against the alternatives.

Mrs. F. Zimmerman

Mrs. Brown

BAD . . .

Certainly all taxpayers would welcome relief from escalating educational costs, but it would appear to me that the Year-Round School Program puts the emphasis on the wrong syllable. The reduced cost of building would, of course, be attractive, but the major expenditures in education are administrative and teacher salaries.

I believe the emphasis for tax relief should be placed on a complete review and streamlining of curriculum, with possible synthesis and blending of various courses.

I also object to the Year-Round School Program as I believe it would create new sociological problems for our children.

Tradition has never appeared more attractive.

(Mrs. John F.) Patricia Brown

There's a stupid rumor making the rounds that suggests society's most vicious sport is hockey.

Those who spread such fallacious nonsense obviously have not played the grueling game called "Move the Furniture." It's played in most homes, like mine, where women make the rules, choose up sides, and then slam male participants and/or spectators into the boards.

The All-American in my home won her letter early and is busy now training a squad of female offspring to follow in her footsteps.

She moves furniture from wall to wall, corner to corner so often I'm afraid the Teamsters are about to picket our home for scabbing. Thank goodness for Isaac Newton; if that apple hadn't hit him on the head our coffee table would be sitting on the ceiling.

And it isn't just furniture. She's so addicted to moving things that our tooth brushes never appear in the same place two days in a row.

I should have guessed early during our contractual agreement that her forte would be moving. At college, she suggested we live in a trailer home. For economy reasons, she said. It wasn't until after we bought one that I realized the mistake. If I hadn't protested our trailer would have been parked on a different pad every night.

We had the only home around with a sign attached to an outside wall - "This side is front."

"I don't run your office so don't try to run my house," she argues whenever the matter is debated.

If it were not for the pain of it all, perhaps her argument would be a valid one. Men forced to play this game are subjected to all kinds of physical and psychological abuse. They are either suffering hernias from lifting or, as in my case, nursing cuts and bruises from stumbling over furniture that wasn't there the day before.

A blind man in our home would panic.

It is impossible to sneak into the house undetected after a night on the town. Tincans hanging on barb wire couldn't be more effective.

Even our dog suffers. How many dogs have you ever seen with bloody noses? The poor animal has tremors at dinner time; her food dish can be in one of about 25 different places.

So the next time you hear that rumor about hockey, scuttle it quickly. Those scars worn by Roger Crozier aren't from blocking pucks in the net. They're lumps from an obstacle course at home.

To the Editor:

This is regarding Mr. Krause's letter opposing a lower voting age.

It seems that on the controversial issue concerning a lower voting age I am in complete disagreement with his views. It seems evident that his arguments opposing a lower voting age are supported by nothing more than generalizations. From his letter it is quite apparent that he advocates an aristocratic form of governmental process far above that of a democratic one. Or at least his reasoning tends to make me believe that.

He stated, "There are several reasons for not lowering the voting age but making the rules much tighter than they are now." His suggestion was to make the qualifications dependent on some objective standards such as property ownership, $5,000 in the bank, a high school education and a steady job. It seems that with these restrictions on the voter, it would not only deprive the 18 year old his right to vote but also deprive many middle age Americans. Doesn't it seem that these restrictions would strip many deserving Americans of their voting rights. What he is proposing is total rule by the upper class. Under his requirements only those in the middle or upper class would retain their rights.

I myself truly believe in a democratic form of process. I believe all men are equal. In this way I feel every citizen (disregarding their wealth) has the right to vote. It seems almost tyrannical to take this privilege away from so many people by simply saying, "Sorry You're not good enough to vote you don't have $5,000 in the bank."

Did he ever consider the fact that even many middle class Americans have families and good jobs yet do not have $5,000 in the bank? Would he deprive them of their right to vote? Or consider the people who hold important jobs yet did not receive a high school diploma? Will they be denied also?

But let us examine his arguments which directly attack the young. It seems his basic argument rests on stereotype reasoning. He stated quote, "Their (teenagers) daily activities demonstrate immaturity, not only in radical action such as dope, demonstrations, rock festivals but also such inane activities as poor driving records, getting married without adequate economic background and general unwillingness and ability to accept the consequences of their actions."

This argument hurt me the most, personally. I don't see how he can brand a whole generation of young people basing it merely on over publicized actions of a minority. He must realize that there are many more wonderful people who act responsibly,

Finds Fault With Story

To the Editor:

I am writing in regards to the article, "Citizens Wary of Bill of Rights When Asked to Sign Petition," which appeared in the February 11-12, 1970 issue of The Northville Record.

My first comment is that the sampling taken by Mr. Kohn is far too inadequate to be used as a cross-section of the communities mentioned. Neither is it representative of the adult knowledge in our society.

Secondly, a person would not be very wise to sign a petition being circulated door to door - not knowing the person who is doing the circulating, what purpose the petition is to serve, what group the individual represents and what that group is trying to accomplish. Mr. Kohn did give a reason for the petition - but it was too vague to warrant anyone to sign the petition.

The adults in our society are not as illiterate as some would have us believe. Granted, there are some people of voting age who are not as familiar with the specifics of government as are our students, but at the same time there are students who know the "facts" but do not have a working knowledge of our government.

Thank you,
Cheryl F. Meixner

Council Draws Fire in Novi

To the Editor:

Is a councilman a puppet,
On the end of the mayor's strings,
Or is he an elected peoples man,
Expressing our views in major happenings.

According to our current mayor,
A councilman should not be,
If he listens to the peoples side,
And votes accordingly.

People of Novi, wake up now,
Get involved in the nitty gritty,
Before like so many others,
We are another ruined city.

yet rarely make the headlines. There are many teenagers who hold jobs, attend high schools and colleges, people who personally get involved in trying to help our society. For example, peaceful young political groups volunteer in hospitals, etc. I found no overwhelming statistics in his article which established 80% were bad and 20% good. Therefore, I refuse to believe that the bad outnumber the good.

He mentioned that we have such "inane activities as poor driving records." It seems to me that this is also a very broad generalization. I could just as easily make a similar statement pertaining to adults.

He also says the young have "general unwillingness and inability to accept the consequences of their daily actions." Could this also be a generalization? Based on the overpublicized acts of a few? Too many people are influenced by this sensationalism.

I feel youth are very able to cope with responsibility; there are many young men fighting for their country. Of course it is easy to forget this, yet keep complaining about those who burn their draft cards. It takes a little more time and effort to think about the thousands of men who are sacrificing their lives so that freedom can be preserved.

Yet when you hear the argument "we're old enough to fight we're old enough to vote" you feel this is patently ridiculous, since some countries have used boys and girls age 10 to fight. I think you will probably agree that country was wrong in doing such a thing. Then why not admit they were wrong instead of using this weak argument to try and right a wrong?

A strong justification for having the younger voting age is that 18-20 year olds are better educated than adults. Today about 75% of all fifth graders go on to get a high school diploma and 40% go on to college. According to Life magazine, in 1940 only 45% went on to finish high school, and only 16% went to college. When the Gallup poll asked "what are the first 10 amendments called?" 67% of the 18-20 knew compared to 33% of the adults.

The ranks of married teens are also swelling. The last census showed that close to 3 million people under 21 were married, and many have children. While they are legally permitted to undertake serious family obligations, incongruously they are denied the right to vote. More than 6 million of these people pay taxes without representation.

The young have also proven themselves to be conscientious voters. In Kentucky where 18 year olds are allowed to vote. (also 18 in Georgia, 19 Alaska, 20 Hawaii) 80% of all the university of Kentucky students voted in the 1964 elections compared to 59% of the states electorate.

From this I hope he at least realizes that we are not all evil. If given a chance the young can aspire to achieve much.

Sincerely,
Mari Egbert

Neighborhood Feud Sparks Two Arrests

Two men have been arrested for misdemeanors and three are being sought for felonious assault in a number of disputes growing out of a neighborhood feud in Novi.

Novi police said Clyde Kimberline, 48, 7877 Nine Mile Road, is being charged with malicious destruction of property from a February 9 incident. A neighbor, Everett Moyer, 45, 48779 Nine Mile Road, claimed Kimberline broke the glass in his front door and threatened him.

Kimberline then charged that three males broke into his house February 11, cutting him with a straight razor and threatening him. Police are looking for the three men, who are still unidentified.

Later the same day, Kimberline said Isaac Kelley of Plymouth broke into his house and also threatened him. Kimberline said he ran to a neighbor's house, Wesley Klocky, 47889 Nine Mile Road, for protection.

Klocky said he chased Kelley from his house with a shotgun when Kelley followed Kimberline into the house. Police arrested Kelley for being a disorderly person. His trial is set for February 19.

Kimberline was convicted the previous week of firing a shotgun at Moyer and Kelley as they drove past his house in their cars. He was charged with discharging a firearm within the city limits — a misdemeanor.

Dennis Pooley, 29, of Berkley, was arrested February 10 by Novi police for failing to answer two traffic violations from July, 1969. He entered a guilty plea and was sentenced to nine days and fined $50.

Richard Barton, 46, of South Lyon was convicted February 13 of larceny and sentenced to five days and fined $50. Barton pleaded guilty to stealing lumber from a Holtzman & Silverman housing project on 10 Mile Road in Novi.

Council OK's Move to Hire Architect for Parking Deck

Hiring of an architectural firm to begin plans for a parking deck on Cady Street, east of Center, was approved by the city council Monday night.

In addition to voting to retain Fred Brauning & Associates of Detroit, the council also approved an initiatory resolution giving the city manager authorization to begin planning for a CBD parking blueprint.

The city council is expected soon to set the first of two public hearings on special assessments involving these plans.

Specifically, the parking proposal is part of the recently disclosed assessment plan in which downtown merchants are to be billed for half the cost of land acquisition and construction of a parking structure.

Total estimated cost of the program has been put at $350,000, of which "about half" will be for land acquisition and the remainder for construction.

Property on Dunlap, east of Center is to be purchased for parking and property on Cady, east of Center is to be purchased for the parking deck development.

The deck will provide level parking for traffic off the alleyway behind stores on the south side of Main, and ground-level parking for traffic off Cady.

Negotiations for purchase of one parcel of land has already begun.

The newly hired architectural firm, which has been retained at 10-percent of the parking deck cost (which will not be known until the project is put out for bids), reportedly will have preliminary plans prepared for council review within two or three weeks.

Resignation of Kenneth Kestner from the planning commission was accepted by the council. His term expires July 1, 1971.

Councilman Paul Folino was.

named as city delegate to the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments, with City Manager Frank Ollendorff to serve as alternate delegate.

To comply with state regulations governing gas tax rebates, the council established a separate bank account for road monies and voted necessary transfers of funds.

The downtown business refuse pickup fees were rescinded and replaced with a new schedule involving large, new containers. Previously, businesses paid from $2 to $8 per month for pickup. Under the new schedule, they will be provided free pickup of two approved containers, with a 25-cent charge for each container over two.

Merchants are being encouraged to purchase, at $170 each, new covered containers which can be automatically lifted into the city's refuse truck. According to city officials, the new containers should enhance the appearance of the downtown section, cut cost to the city, and make the pickup easier for city personnel

Novi's freshman-sophomore wrestling team was woefully overmatched against the bigger and older Southeastern Conference teams in the tournament at Ypsilanti Lincoln. Novi's performance in the conference tourney, however, does not mean it is destined to do the same in regional competition. Except for Novi and Dundee, all Southeastern teams are Class B.

Novi and Dundee will wrestle in the Class C-D regionals a week from Saturday at Adrian. The top three places in each weight qualify for the state finals the following Saturday.

The Griffin brothers, Mark and David, each won conference titles and Northville finished a strong fourth in the Wayne-Oakland wrestling tournament at Clarenceville Saturday.

The Griffin victories were a tribute to Coach Jack Townsley's strategy, who lowered each a weight class for the tourney.

Except for the final two dual meets, David wrestled at 123 and Mark at 115. Townsley dropped them down to 115 and 107, respectively, in an experiment the final two times out. And he kept them there for the tournament.

Mark won three consecutive matches by scores of 12-0, 12-0, and 6-0 — the only perfect record in the tourney. He spent the first half of the season on the bench with an injury and only got back into action in late January.

Two years ago, when the conference tourney first began, Mark was the 98-pound champion, Northville's first wrestling titlist. He is captain of this year's team.

David did a bone-crushing job — literally — in taking his three men. He pinned Lon Barkholz of Milford in 0.53 with a half-nelson which accidentally broke Barkholz' arm.

David then won 8-2 and 6-0 decisions for the title. His second victim was Chuck Wehner, half of Clarenceville's brother team which routed the Griffins two weeks ago in a dual meet. That was before Townsley put the Griffins at lighter weights, so David was actually avenging Mark's loss to Wehner. Wehner had lost only once all year.

Mark is a senior and David a sophomore.

"We were sorta down going into the tournament," admitted Townsley. "But this sure gave us something to crow about."

The tournament standings count as the final conference standings, since the conference has no complete round robin schedule in dual meets. Northville had only a 4-6 record.

The Mustangs gave Milford a tough fight for third place before Milford won at 165, 185 and heavyweight to pull back ahead. Points were awarded on a 10-7-5-2 basis for the top four medalists.

Clarkston edged out defending champion Waterford Kettering for the overall championship. Milford had the most individual titlists with three.

Northville had five other medalists besides the Griffins. Randy Marburger took second at 165, Jim Armstrong third at 130, Brian Jones third at 145, David D'Haene third at 185 and Rick Lampe fourth at 175.

Marburger wrestled at 155 most of the season and thus gave away almost 10 pounds in the 165 class.

Townsley will take his team to Dexter Saturday for the Class B District playoffs. The top two qualifiers in each weight class in the district advance to the regionals the following week. The top three from there go to the state finals.

Both Griffins are rated good bets for making the regionals, at least.

Besides Northville, seven other teams will be in the district — Brighton, South Lyon, Willow Run, Dexter, Saline, Ypsilanti Lincoln and Milan.

Things Gotta Get Better

Can Novi Cagers Endure More?

Novi has two more games to play in its second and worst basketball season ever. The Wildcats host Ypsilanti Lincoln and South Lyon in that order after being mathematically doomed to last place in the Southeastern Conference by Dundee last Friday.

Whatever Lincoln and South Lyon do, it couldn't be as disheartening as what Dundee did in a 100-66 thrashing.

Urged on by the incentive to reach 100 points, Dundee played the Wildcats mercilessly with quarter scores of 24, 21, 27 and 28.

This was the second time this season Dundee has hit the century mark. December 19's 108-63 beating of South Lyon stands as the school record for scoring.

Not that Dundee had any trouble scoring against Novi. Bill Busch tossed in 25 points, while Mike Curley and Don DeSmith added 18 apiece.

Phil McMillan, rebounding from a shooting slump, canned 22, and Tom Boyer netted 12 for the Wildcats.

Dundee held a 45-27 lead at halftime and only let up defensively in the fourth quarter in order to reach 100 points. Novi managed 25 points to Dundee's 28 in a fast-paced final eight minutes.

Novi's junior varsity, however, had an easy time clobbering its Dundee counterpart, 67-51.

The JV's were up, 58-29, after three quarters before loosening their grip in the final period. Bob Pisha slipped in 14 points and Pat Boyer clicked for 12 in a winning cause.

Milan Needs One Win For Southeastern Tie

Milan can clinch a share of the Southeastern Conference basketball championship if it can knock off South Lyon Friday. But that may not be as easy as it seemed four weeks ago.

South Lyon has won three of its last four games, after struggling through an eight-game losing streak, and could be a spoiler. The Lyon Lions thrashed slumping Chelsea, 72-60, last Friday to move into a sixth-place tie.

Milan tripped Ypsilanti Lincoln, 79-67, and Dundee rattled Novi, 100-66, to stay one-two in the race. If Milan loses and Dundee wins Friday, their classic final-game showdown the following Friday will decide the title.

Saline, still a mathematical title possibility, dumped Dexter last Friday, 91-61.

Dave Brandon improved on his league-leading scoring total by pumping in 36 points as South Lyon grabbed a 27-8 first quarter lead and never trailed.

Though stymied on the boards — each team pulled down 37 rebounds — Milan rallied with a 25-15 final quarter to turn back Lincoln. Doug Woolard netted 17 for Milan, and Butch Meggitt 22 for Lincoln.

Six Saline players hit double figures, headed by Rod White's 20, as Saline bombed Dexter with a 35-15 fourth quarter. Greg Ianni managed 19 for the losers.

Northville came out charging and pushed visiting Bloomfield Hills to double overtime Tuesday night, but it was the Barons who rode off triumphantly, 67-62.

Bedlam prevailed after the game as Andover follower: poured onto the floor and cut down the nets at both ends of Northville's gymnasium — and for good reason.

The victory clinched the Wayne-Oakland Conference title for Andover and kept the Barons on the high road to an undefeated record in league play. Andover is 12-0.

It was a heartbreaking loss for Northville, which had surged to within a wink of possibly grabbing a share of the title with improved basketball after the Christmas break.

The loss also dropped Northville into fourth place in the conference with an 8-4 record. And Coach Bob Kucher faces the imposing task of getting his boys up for Friday's contest with always-tough West Bloomfield in the Lakers' crackerbox gym.

Tuesday was Andover's night, to be sure, but the Barons had to share the spotlight with Northville. The Mustangs pushed Andover harder than any other league.

In the first half, Northville had control of the game, with burly Bernie Bach muscling his way under the boards for rebounds and dog shots. Northville forged a 30-26 lead late in the second quarter and led at halftime, 32-30.

Dick Souther, Andover's right hand, had three fouls, and John Schmidt, Andover's left hand, wasn't doing the job. Coach Hal Henderson pulled them and Northville controlled the boards.

They came off the bench, however, late in the second period to ignite an Andover comeback that closed the gap to two points at halftime.

Then the fireworks began in the second half. Kerry Cushing, Northville's 6-5 center, got into foul trouble and sat out much of the stanza. Meanwhile, the Barons were breaking successfully and had the rebound edge. Still, Northville hung close throughout the third and fourth quarters.

With 20 seconds left in the game and Andover clinging desperately to a 57-54 margin, Bernie Bach intercepted a pass and drove half-court for the bucket, cutting the margin to 57-56.

Andover Guard Scott Roley was fouled with 11 seconds left, but he missed the first of a one-and-one and Northville rebounded. Terry Mills was fouled in the melee. After a time out, he converted the first free throw to tie the game 57-57, but missed the second.

Andover rebounded but failed to get a shot off as the buzzers signaled the overtime.

Both teams scored four points in the first overtime, with Ron Hubbard netting two jumpers for Northville. Northville had the ball out of bounds under its own basket with three seconds left, but Mills rolled the ball inbounds from behind the base line and the ball went over to Andover. But the Barons missed their shot to send the game into the second overtime, 61-61.

Steve Utley gave Northville a 62-61 lead when he converted a free throw, but those were the last points the Mustangs got. Andover converted two free throws and Souther scored twice to salt the game away.

Northville's junior varsity won, 61-48, as Phil Geiger came off the bench to score 16 points. Scott Evans also had 16 for Northville.

STYMIED — Northville's Bernie Bach (54) had his shot blocked by Andover's Kurt Butler (33) in Tuesday's showdown at Northville.

As Swim Captains Go, So Goes Team-Victory

Northville's co-captains had to do the piloting in the swimming team's 59-45 home victory Tuesday night over Dearborn Riverside.

Tom Thompson took two events and Ed Zywiec won one to direct the Mustangs to their fifth straight dual meet win and a 7-1 overall record.

Thompson remained unbeaten in 15 tries this season by taking firsts in the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard butterfly. Zywiec captured the 400-yard freestyle.

Zywiec was disqualified in his other specialty, the 50-yard freestyle, costing him a chance for twin wins.

Marty Tuck of Northville was also disqualified in the 100-yard breaststroke, depriving him of a new pool record and the first place.

By that time in the meet, however, the Mustangs had already clinched the victory. Still the meet was closer than the final score indicates.

Before Gary Putrow's blue ribbon in the 100-yard backstroke, Northville led only, 36-29. Then came Putrow and Zywiec's firsts to ice it.

An earlier meet with Riverside went down to the final event before Northville squeaked out a decision. A key difference Tuesday night was the Mustangs' first place in the 200-yard medley relay with a team of Mike Ivey, Mark Dixon, Putrow and Tuck.

The medley relay team set a pool record of 1:57.0. Greg Cook's second place at 2:09.7 broke a team record in the 200-yard freestyle.

Mustangs Knock Off Clarkston

Ron Hubbard tossed in seven free throws and a field goal in the final two minutes to rally Northville to a 71-66 basketball victory over Clarkston Friday night.

This was the Mustangs sixth straight win and set the stage for their showdown with Bloomfield Hills Andover (see above story).

Hubbard finished with 26 points, the ninth consecutive time he's either tied for or led the Mustangs in scoring. Terry Mills added 14 and Kerry Kushing 12.

Northville dropped the junior varsity game, 49-45, despite Brad Cole's 17 points.

DIS-SPIRITED — A Northville cheerleader walks slowly across the floor after the Mustangs lost a double overtime thriller Tuesday night. The loss eliminated Northville from title consideration in the Wayne-Oakland Conference.

Northville's Fault

Bloomfield Loses Title But Gets Second

West Bloomfield is probably pretty mad at Northville right now, since the Mustangs lost to Bloomfield Hills Andover Tuesday night, depriving West Bloomfield of a showdown with Andover in the final season game Andover's victory clinched the Wayne-Oakland Conference title.

West Bloomfield could be expected to kick the Mustangs out of Northville in Friday's game there just for that reason. An even better reason is that West Bloomfield is the hottest team in the conference, next to Andover.

West Bloomfield knocked off Brighton last Friday, 64-61, and then measured Livonia Clarenceville, 68-32, Tuesday. That left it all alone in second place, a game up on Northville and Brighton.

Brighton is in a three-game slump, started incidentally by Northville. Brighton dropped a 66-65 squeaker to underdog Milford Tuesday — Milford coincidentally beat Northville by one point earlier this season.

Milford topped Waterford Kettering Friday, 74-68, after holding a 16-point lead through most of the second half. In the other Friday game, Andover smashed Clarenceville, 84-44. In other Tuesday action, Kettering topped Clarkston, 90-70.

Bloomfield's game with Brighton provided as much excitement as any, as Bloomfield rallied from behind in the final quarter after Brighton held leads as big as five points.

According to some observers, one Bloomfield basket was counted even though the ball didn't go through the hoop. Apparently the coaches and referees missed the play.

That could have made a difference since it would have given Brighton a three-point lead with 30 seconds to play an ideal advantage for stalling.

Don Johnston scored 24 for Bloomfield and Bob Musch 19 for Brighton in that game.

Dick Souther of Andover had the best night in the conference Friday with 25 points in a rout over Clarenceville.

Mike Monnier netted 21 and Gary Neighbors 19 for Milford, while Jerry Bell collected 16 for Kettering in that one-sided contest.

Northville's girls basketball team lost at the varsity level but won at the junior varsity against Bloomfield Hills Andover there last

Thursday

The varsity dropped a 41-28 decision, Amy Phillips scored 11 points for the distasteful Mustangs even though she fouled out early in the second half.

The junior varsity, however, eked out a 13-10 squeaker behind Sue Sligh's 10-point effort.

Rumor About Police Unfounded, Says Chief

Despite recent resignations of three police officers, Northville's police department is not threatened with a rumored disruption of service, Police Chief Samuel Elkins declared this week.

(See Speaking for The Record, Page 12-A).

One of the three posts has been filled and the two others will be filled within the next six weeks, the chief said. Meanwhile, reshuffling of assignments to assure continued full-scale service will be in effect, he noted.

Normally, Northville has a police force of 10 men and the police chief — or three sergeants, seven patrolmen and the chief.

With the resignation of Sergeant Charles Martin, effective this past Tuesday, the force stands at two sergeants, six patrolmen and the chief.

This newspaper and the Detroit daily newspapers had been told by telephone callers, who refused to identify themselves, that the department is on the verge of service disruption because of internal disputes resulting from wholesale resignations. Chief Elkins and City Manager Frank Ollendorff, anxious to nip these rumors early, disclosed reasons for resignations of the three officers and announced plans for filling the remaining two posts.

Coincidentally, similar rumors and public barbs have hit the Plymouth police department for the past several weeks. And the Livonia force is experiencing an alleged 'Blue Flu' epidemic.

Besides Martin, officers who have resigned include Ronald Wankowicz, who resigned last month after three years on the force to take a job with the Bloomfield Township police department, and Roger Rathburn, who resigned his post last week after five months to return to work at Rathburn Chevrolet.

Martin had joined the Northville department 19 months ago, coming here from the Inkster department where Chief Elkins had been previously employed.

The new officer already appointed to one of the vacancies and now on the job is Ronald Kellerman, a former deputy sheriff and earlier a member of the Northville police cadet program. Slated to fill the other two posts, based on their top testing performance and past experience, are Hugh Jordan and David DeLauder.

Jordan, a Northville police cadet, will officially join the department on March 28, and DeLauder, a sergeant with the United States Army, will join the department upon an early discharge from the service in about two weeks.

According to Ollendorff, in terms of longevity the force has seldom been in a more favorable position. Most of the officers and sergeants have been on the force three years or more — two for six years and only one less than 2½ years, he said.

He pointed out that the number of applicants for jobs on the force are up and that in several instances former policemen have reapplied for jobs after working elsewhere for short periods.

"I'm sure some of the remaining officers have gripes about one thing or another," Ollendorff said, "but I don't feel they are any different than any department experiences."

Contacted by this newspaper, two of the three resigned officers declined to detail their reasons for leaving. Here is what the three had to say:

Wankowicz — "I feel I left for a more professional police department — a larger one more consistent with what I believe is best for myself. It wasn't for more money." He declined to elaborate because "I'm still a police officer."

Rathburn — "My resignation was simply a family matter; I wanted more time to devote to my family. I had nothing whatever to do with the chief or the department. I was really happy there, and I'll miss my work." He noted that he may continue as an auxiliary policeman.

Martin — "I don't care to comment. I'm just leaving. I don't think it would be proper to comment in any way; it wouldn't be proper. All I can say is if you are getting calls something must be wrong, wouldn't you say?" He indicated that he has had several police and civilian job offers but that he has not yet decided where he will go.

According to Ollendorff, Martin had indicated a dislike for the chief and the manner in which the department is run. Wankowicz may have had similar reasons, he said.

RICHARD NORTON

Dick Norton Wins Top State Title

Richard Norton, junior high school assistant principal, was presented the coveted Jaycee Senatorship award Saturday at the Jaycee Winter State Meeting in Flint.

Presenting the award was Pat Nowak, state Jaycee president.

The Northville Jaycee is the first ever from the local chapter to win the award. This year only two such awards were made at the state meeting.

The honorary award is presented to a chapter member who has done "an outstanding job in community work." Only 10,000 such awards have been presented in the 50-year history of the national organization that over the years has involved five million members.

Norton, 35, joined the Northville chapter in November, 1961, serving the club in almost every office. He holds the unique honor of having served as president of the Northville club on two different occasions.

He has served as chairman or committeeman for every important project conducted by the Northville club during the past nine years. For his efforts he was named one of Michigan's outstanding chapter presidents in 1966.

Assistant principal of Cooke Junior High School, Norton lives with his wife, Lane, and family at 43717 Westridge Lane.

Novi Middle School

Trustees Seek Flexible Plans

After examining the proposed plan for Novi's middle school, school trustees cancelled a planned public meeting and scheduled a session to review the plans in depth, working more flexibility into what they labeled "conventional" plans.

In a meeting February 10, school board members expressed concern they were "building a junior high with the name of a middle school."

"If there are dynamic changes in education, will this building be prepared to handle them?" Trustee Robert Wilkins questioned.

Trustee Gil Henderson said "I want flexibility in instruction and the building should be flexible to handle it."

Trustee Vern DeWard questioned, "Will we spend the money now to be flexible or will we build solid walls so we cannot be flexible?"

"We must make space for the program and then if a flexible program is initiated, the space will be there," he stated.

The architect, presenting the plans to board members, said folding walls could be built into several rooms, giving the middle school flexibility in several classrooms, though any major changes in square footage of a given area could not be done as easily.

"The building should be constructed in such a way that we can do what we want with it once it is built," Henderson countered.

Several ideas on placement of folding walls in classrooms were discussed along with adding area to the gymnasium and instructional materials area, but final revisions were to come later this week as the board reviewed the plans with Superintendent Thomas Dale. Dale was not present at the February 10 meeting.

In other action, the board agreed to use the payroll processing plan of the National Bank of Detroit until the end of the present school year.

In a recommendation to the board, the administration had suggested trying the program until the end of the 1970-71 school year.

The suggestion was defeated in a roll call vote three "yes" to four "no". Casting the affirmative votes were Trustees Henderson, Wilkins and Ray Warren, while Trustees DeWard, Claude Earl, Bruce Simmons and Russell Taylor voted the measure down.

National Bank of Detroit offered the payroll service for an estimated $1,500 per year, while Michigan National Bank estimated they could provide the same plan for $1,400.

Board approved using the payroll plan until the end of the present school year by a 5-2 vote, Henderson and Wilkins casting the dissenting votes.

In other action, the board unanimously agreed to purchase drapes for the high school commons area from Visual Craft Incorporated at a cost of $258.

Tax Hike Seen In City, Township

A 10-percent increase in property taxes in the city and township of Northville appears in the offing based on preliminary estimates of county tax officials.

City and township officials have been notified that based on a survey of real property sales an approximate 10-percent increase will be required to bring assessments up to the state-required 50-percent of market value.

This means that unless a major change is made by the boards of reviews here regarding assessments and unless local tax rates are changed, property taxpayers in both municipalities can expect a hike in their assessments and ultimately similar increases in taxes.

Based on preliminary estimates, the factor in Northville Township will be about 1.11, while in the city it will be about 1.35 in both the Wayne and Oakland county sections.

These factors, when they become official late in May, are multiplied times local assessments to reach state equalized valuations (50 percent of market value).

The increased assessment (or factor) is for real property only — not personal property which is reassessed annually.

According to letters received by local officials, city assessments are averaging at about 38-percent while township assessments are about 45-percent. Theoretically, they should be at 50-percent if no factor is to be applied.

Northville Township had no factor last year. The city's factor was 1.25 in the Oakland County portion, 1.23 in the Wayne County section.

Again theoretically, the county notifications mean that with the new factors the city assessments should have been increased 35-percent since the last reassessment (1966) and by 10-percent in the township.

The letter from the county to the township was discussed by officials last week Tuesday. But because officials could not understand it, the county tax bureau was to be contacted for an explanation.

Sin or Social Necessity?

Abortion Debate Zeroes in on Moral Issue

EDITOR'S NOTE — Two years ago a panel discussion on abortions would not have been the type of meeting held in a church. But the times have changed and February 11 the "pros" and "cons" of liberalizing abortion laws were aired in a discussion at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville. Speakers included two laymen, a minister and a physician.

By Sally Burke

"Don't solve the problem, kill it," Dr. Charles Wheatley said expressing his view of those who want to liberalize Michigan's abortion laws.

"The younger generation is abortion minded. Basically what they want is that we should limit the birth rate by a method that says to the world and the individual that human life is not sacred," Dr. Wheatley charged.

"If life is sacred," he said, then "abortion is murder; if it is not, then abortion is a matter of convenience for the mother."

Though Dr. Wheatley said he sees compulsory abortion and sterilization in the next 20 years, he asked "What type of society wants the birth rate controlled in that way? If we degenerate into that state, then we are in desperate straights."

"Abortions are a convenience — birth control — pure and simple," he declared.

"And the guilt that an abortion brings leads to mental illness," he said, "with the woman developing a disgust for self."

Mrs. Kenneth Yourd asked, "If the abortion laws are not changed, will the state force a woman to have a child because she used the wrong contraceptive or no contraceptive at all?"

Mrs. Yourd said discussion should not center around whether or not there should be abortions. "We do have abortions. The law must be changed. I want to take the doctor out of the criminal code."

Abortion is one of the oldest medical procedures, she said. "It has been swept under the rug for too long. Go home and talk, talk openly. 'Abortion' should be a household word."

"Even the poorest woman has a life to live," she stated.

Robert McCauley said the Catholic Church has an unchanging position that "every man and woman must follow what their conscience dictates. The Catholic viewpoint forbids abortion because it is a sin."

"One type of abortion is allowed," he said. "Ectopic abortions are permitted because the prime intent is to remove a diseased part of the body."

In such a case, McCauley said, the fertilized egg begins to develop in the fallopian tubes rather than in the womb, eventually resulting in the death of the woman if not remedied.

In abortions for any other reason, a Catholic person would be "excommunicated from the church, as would all others who in anyway took part in the abortion."

Abortion is considered a sin by the Catholic church since it is believed life begins at the instant of conception.

"This has been proved," McCauley stated, "since there is a separate reaction from the fetus to music and to emotion. If this is in fact correct, then to terminate a pregnancy is to kill. If rather it is only a part of the body without life of its own, then an abortion is just like removing any organ of the body."

Reverend Ross Nicholson argued that there must be a distinction made "between life and human life. When life begins is not a medical question but a religious issue and a matter of conscience."

Reverend Nicholson noted the Detroit Clergy Consultation service for Problem Pregnancies does not counsel anyone "into or out of abortion. We treat people who have already decided they want an abortion."

The service discusses the routes open to pregnant mothers before "referring them elsewhere for an abortion."

Covered in the discussion are marriage, having the baby and keeping it, having the baby and putting it up for adoption, abortion and suicide.

"Many women who come to us," Reverend Nicholson said, "have the latter in mind."

The service was established, he said, "because two million abortions occur each year. Deaths resulting from abortions number 5,000 known per year, which is low in terms of the actual rate."

"Half the women who come to us are married and have too many children already or were warned never again to become pregnant for health reasons," he commented.

He noted half those coming to the service "are Roman Catholics. They are having more problems than most people because of the stand their church has taken on birth control pills.

"Abortion must be a person's own decision. We are careful not to refer those who believe life has already begun because they will develop mental problems," Reverend Nicholson stated.

Mrs. Yourd said "I can sympathize with those of you who believe life begins with fertilization, but I believe until birth there is only the possibility of life."

McCauley agreed there is "no fool proof way to solve the argument of when life begins, but the Catholic Church presumes it begins at conception because this is the safest

Abortions Ban

Three bills on abortion — each a year old — are currently in front of the Michigan State Senate's committee on health, social services and retirement. They would repeal Michigan's aged ban on all abortions. The committee is holding public hearings on the bills before reporting them back to the senate. The two final hearings will be in Port Huron February 23 and in Detroit February 27.

The committee may make a recommendation on the bills when it finishes. If it does not, as it did not last year, the bills automatically become tabled and require 20 votes to be removed from the table for debate on the floor.

The Michigan House of Representatives does not have any pending bills on abortion. Following are the three senate bills:

BILL 287 — Introduced by Senator Gilbert Bursley (R-Ann Arbor, 18th District), March 11, 1969. Considered a "conservative" proposal. Would limit abortions to situations where the mental or physical health of the mother-to-be and/or the fetus was endangered, and to cases of rape and incest. Received enough votes to come off the table last year but went down to defeat on the floor, 16-17, with two supporting senators absent.

BILL 288 — Introduced by Senator John E. McCauley (D-Wyandotte, 11th District) March 11, 1969. Considered a more "progressive" bill than Bursley's. Would leave the abortion question solely up to the mother-to-be and her physician within the limits of medical confidentiality. Did not get enough votes to come off the table last year.

BILL 374 — Introduced by McCauley, March 19, 1969. Would repeal the penalty against abortion. Penal code now prosecutes abortions up to five months after conception as a separate offense and prosecutes abortions after five months under the murder statute. Remain tabled last year.

Hope for 'Lost Age'

Mental Hospital Young Adult Unit Seen Successful

In everyday situations people are aware of the generation gap and allow for it. Yet institutions often function as if the gap was only a media myth.

The legal system, for instance, confused the matter even more by setting up different age cut-offs for drinking, voting, buying cars, marrying, etc.

"We have an intermediate population created by the 20th century," explains Dr. Kemal Goknar, M.D. "Youths between the ages 17 through 21 are no longer adolescents and not yet adults."

Dr. Goknar recognized this "lost" age group when he came to Northville State Hospital, a mental institution, in the summer of 1966. Only a half year later he pioneered a therapeutic concept, segregating these youths from the adult population at the hospital.

Now, three years later his "young adult unit" is an unqualified success.

Of 600 in-patients who have been treated, less than 15 per cent have required further treatment. Their average stay in the hospital is only three-to-four months, much lower than that of adult patients.

Dr. Goknar sees specific reasons for this:

"We do not treat these young people as patients with a problem. We treat them as total human beings within their total situation."

About 70 per cent of his patients come from broken homes (in 85 per cent of these the mother is head of the household). About 60 per cent come from the lower class, mostly inner city. About 40 per cent are black.

Patients come to the hospital not only because of psychological problems — but because of home, school, cultural and social problems.

"In fact, more than half these kids can't go back to their own homes again," Dr. Goknar points out. "When we release them we tell them they must separate from their families so they can better adapt to life."

"A whole team follows up continuing our relationship with them, and they're free to come back to talk to us."

"If you send a patient back to the same chaotic situation he came from, he'll just become a chronic patient."

In many ways, this approach seems the only sensible thing to do. But Dr. Goknar must deal with conflicts and dilemmas involving the parents.

About 75 per cent of the girls come to the hospital with promiscuous backgrounds. Yet many mothers resent the suggestion their daughters use IUD's for birth control.

"When I explained that promiscuity usually goes down, not up, with birth control devices, one mother gave her consent," Goknar tells. "But she didn't want us to tell her daughter. Here we are, performing a surgical operation, and we're not supposed to tell this girl what we're doing."

"Again we have this mysterious attitude. The girl is old enough to need to know about birth control but her mother doesn't want her to know."

Goknar says respect for the patient's maturity is a key factor in the therapy.

When birth control is explained to the girls, he notes, "their bodies become more meaningful to them. They no longer can use pregnancy as a way to punish themselves. So they're no longer promiscuous."

Similarly, the male patients, half of whom have drug problems, are given something to do. They aren't given sermons.

The "young adult unit" has a four-point program — which most patients go through:

- Complete isolation from outside contact, during which he learns the unit's rules and potential privileges.

- Supervised group activities and further encouragement to participate in things like group governments.

- Separation from patient groups and exposure to community resources like vocational, high school, or college training, and on-the-job apprenticeships.

- Placement in a healthy environment, as much as possible free from the pressures which contributed to the psychological problems.

"We let a patient know his rights as soon as he comes in," Dr. Goknar emphasizes. "We try to give him every chance for freedom of expression."

The patients do have several opportunities, from drama classes to art and music lessons to editing their own newspaper.

With the help of Louis Scholdt, community relations director, who helps channel useful donations into the hospital, the youths also have several fund-raising projects.

They operate their own cafeteria, arrange car washes and stage semi-annual talent shows.

"We're trying to get these patients ready to go back into society," Scholdt explains. "And what are people doing on the outside? They're out making money."

So everyone, including doctors and other patients, have to pay for their services.

Dr. Goknar sees a therapeutic value. "We had a show with psychedelic lights and everything," he says. "And the parents came. These parents knew about the psychedelic world but they had never talked to their kids about it. They enjoyed it and found themselves talking to their kids. That could never happen on the outside."

If the patients shouldn't go back to their own homes, Goknar finds foster homes for them. "This gives them a little more time to adjust," he says. "Usually within a half-year or a year, they are able to go out on their own."

And when they come back to the state hospital, it's almost always to say thanks.

CRAZY CROCUSES — About two months ahead of Spring these early-bird crocuses were photographed in the garden beside the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freydl, Sr., of Eaton drive in Northville. The above picture was taken January 28. Mr. Freydl reports that the buds continue to sprout despite freezing temperatures.

Columnist Jack Anderson

Muckraker Warns Press Against Getting to Close to Public Officials

It isn't criticism or the threat of censorship but the "suffering" valentines that pose the most danger to freedom of the press, according to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, associate of the late Drew Pearson.

A self-styled muckraker whose biting column appears in newspapers throughout the nation, including The Detroit Free Press, Anderson cautioned newsmen attending the Michigan Press Association convention in Lansing to beware of friendly politicians who would have reporters become their pet publicists.

POTSHOTS AT SPIRO

While taking potshots at Vice President Spiro Agnew, Anderson ridiculed, too, critics of the administration who see easy solutions to every issue. On the one hand he criticized the press for failing to challenge administrative policies, while on the other he defended specifically the Nixon administration's Vietnam stand on the grounds that the war issue, like many others, is so complex that simple solutions do not exist.

Aside from saying that President Nixon deserved support on the Vietnam issue, however, his remarks generally were derogatory, especially concerning what he said is the appalling neglect of the ghettos.

"I believe muckraking is essential in a democracy," he declared. "I think controversy is vital ... and I hope the democratic machinery never runs so smoothly and so silently that we don't have some of you grate against the massive machinery of big government."

Turning to the Vice-President's recent criticism of television and the press for unfair comment following addresses by the President, Anderson suggested that the President's speeches are equally unfair. "After all, he's an advocate. He's trying to present a point of view. And I've discovered that he quite frequently leaves out arguments that might contradict points he's trying to put across."

One of the most important function of reporters and editors is to be watchdogs, he declared, "and to oppose and to expose — but not all the time."

CENSORSHIP ISN'T THE PROBLEM

"Our greatest problem," he said, "is not censorship. I don't think there is anyone in this audience that is scared by Spiro Agnew. But the pressure that concerns me most (is) his warm embrace. I find that the people we cover, particularly our political leaders, seek to seduce us. They hug us to their bosom. And to many of us begin to adopt the views and the attitude of the people we cover."

"Why on Capitol Hill the correspondents, so many of them, are better at back slapping and back scratching and favor swapping than the congressmen who are professionals. First thing you know the correspondents begin to talk like congressmen. They become privy to backroom deals and they begin talking out of the corner of their mouths."

"And the people who cover the State Department — first thing you know they start wearing tweed jackets and (begin) puffing on pipes and contemplating every word."

This kind of "pressure," suggested Anderson, is not limited to Washington but it also exists at the state and city levels. "The people we cover take us into their circle and we begin reporting the news from their point of view," he warned.

"I sometimes think if I were an editor," he said, "I'd find somebody who detested politicians and have him cover politics. I'd find somebody who just disliked the game of baseball of football and put him in charge of sports. And (find) someone who couldn't stand women and I'd let him cover society."

The press, he declared, must be critical; it must recognize danger signals and expose errors and misconduct — just as did he and the late Mr. Pearson in exposing Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut.

"We who are responsible for passing on to the people — to the stockholders in this democracy — what the facts are have a very great responsibility to present them straight."

In today's complex society, capsule news is a journalistic failure, he suggested. An individual can get about as much information from a five-minute radio newscast as he can get by driving slowly past a well-lighted newsstand.

Reduction of complex issues into capsule news leads people to look for capsule solutions, he said.

Crime, for example, is a staggering national problem requiring $40 billion dollars to combat it and yet many people believe the problem will disappear by putting "Support Your Police" stickers on their automobile bumpers, he pointed out.

"We've got to make it clear to the American People that these solutions don't come cheaply, don't come easily. It takes more than a campaign speech. We're not going to solve crime or end racial problems by listening to George Wallace."

NATION FAILS GHETTOS

Failure to recognize and to do much about the monumental problem in the nation's ghettos, suggested Anderson, provides the ammunition for militant groups such as the Black Panthers. When black people cry out about police indifference and brutality, American sees it as fallacious nonsense; when the people in the ghettos complain of hunger, of poor schools and inadequate hospitals, others see the complaints as the rantings of welfare misfits.

The Black Panthers' plan for taking over the country, he pointed out, offers the ghettos the things the nation fails to provide.

"First they intend to bring law and order to the ghettos. And believe me if you hear cries in your neighborhood about law and order, if you hear pleas, then visit the ghettos because the people there are the victims of crime ... What happens when there is murder and robbery in the ghettos. Well, I'll tell it to you straight: the police, if they show up at all, come late and the questions they ask are perfunctory. Their attitude is, 'well they're doing it to one another so we don't give a hang."

"Now the Black Panthers and the black militants, when they get control of the ghettos, are going to bring law and order to the ghettos. They are going to give those people the security that we have failed to give them. There will be swift justice — not our kind of justice — but there will be security."

"And then they plan to feed them, to bring medicine into the ghettos — raising the money elsewhere. And then they intend to provide good schools. And you're not going to like what they teach in those schools ... they intend to use the ghettos for revolution, a base for revolution."

The Panthers' script for the takeover calls for white America to play this important role. "To send the police in with billy clubs to beat black people on the head because that will make radicals out of moderates — and that is what we are doing."

"We have to go into the ghettos and do what we have neglected to do"

The American people, said Anderson, cannot solve its ghetto problems easily. Neither can it expect to end the war overnight in Vietnam.

SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

Neither the dove nor the hawk does his country or his President a service, declared the columnist. Hawks who urge resumption of bombing invite an all-out nuclear war, and doves would stand by and watch wholesale atrocities by the North Vietnamese.

Likening the leadership in North Vietnam to Hitler, Anderson said doves ignore the truth in believing peace would reign if America pulled out.

Anderson said he voted against Nixon but nevertheless he stands behind the President's Vietnam policy — and he urged his listeners to do the same because the alternatives are, neither easy nor safe.

Washington's Preparation
When George Washington was a young man the governor of Virginia sent him to protest because a French General was building forts in territory claimed by the English. It meant a journey of 1,000 miles through a trackless wilderness in the dead of winter. Washington never hesitated. Accompanied by a small group he traveled through dark forests, over steep snow bound mountains, and across swollen rivers until he reached the French camp.

While returning, the party's horses gave out. After leaving them and most of his party in a safe place, Washington with one single companion continued on foot. They had expected to cross the Allegheny River on the ice. To their dismay they found that the ice was broken.

With one hatchet Washington and his companion built a rough raft and started across the stream. As they were struggling amid the floating cakes of ice in the swirling current Washington was suddenly thrown into the icy water. He saved his life by grabbing a floating log.

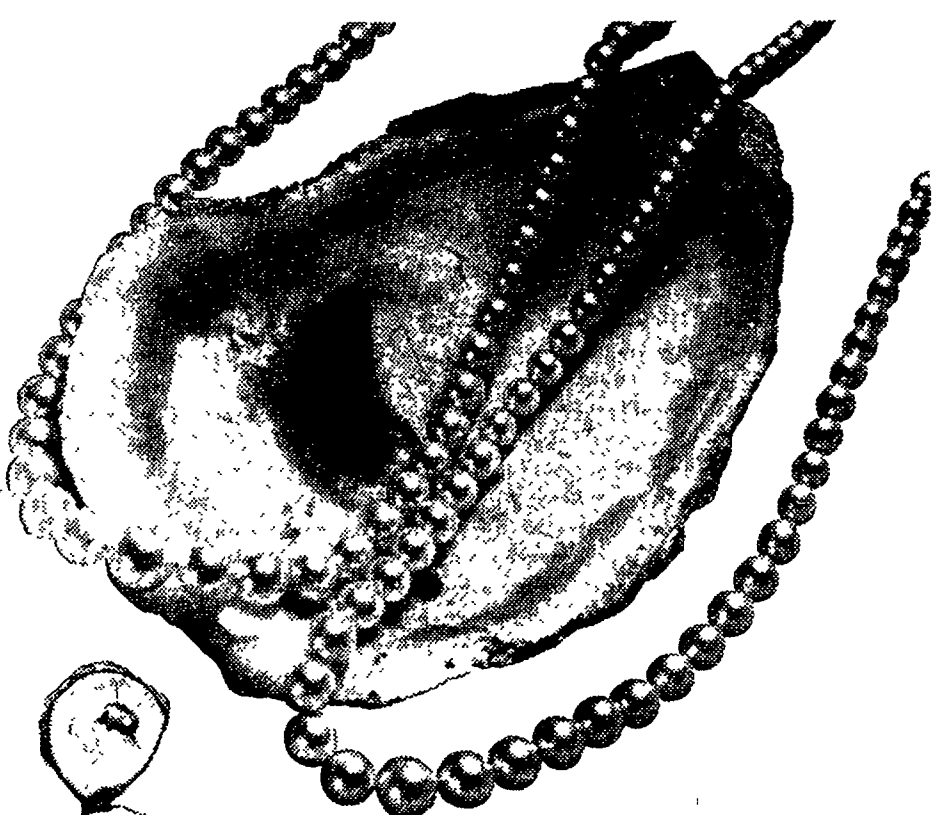

With the greatest of efforts the two men managed to reach a nearby island. Here they tramped back and forth through the cold darkness of the night, their clothes stiffening to ice. When morning arrived they finally succeeded in reaching the other shore and eventually reported to the governor.

This illustrates some of the difficulties in Washington's early life. His father had died when he was 11. When but a lad of 16, he and another youth had taken a 100 mile survey trip through uncharted forests. Shortly afterwards, he was appointed a public surveyor and spent several years living an exposed life largely among the Indians.

Such vigorous training helped to develop him into the great man which he became. Are things rough in your life? Don't waste time pitying yourself! Perhaps God is preparing you for great things ahead!

Actually all of our lives on this earth are a training period. We are building character for our use in Heaven! We can prepare for great responsibilities in the world beyond! Let us thank God for opportunities to face difficulties! "Let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus, the Pioneer and Perfecter of our faith." (Hebrews 12:1,2).

and oyster shells

A pearl is a thing of beauty—iridescent—a precious gem. An oyster shell is rather ugly—a remnant of a marine mollusk much esteemed as a delicacy. And yet both are built of identical shell-producing cells.

It is happenstance that causes tiny parasites or grains of sand to penetrate the oyster, severing the shell-producing cells and carrying them deep into the oyster to form perfect pearls.

It is no accident that some men from poor beginnings have become great leaders, statesmen or educators. Others from identical surroundings live out their lives in poverty and despair.

The difference is integrity and a yearning for excellence in every part of life—that love of God that illumines and elevates.

Your church can help you to make the most of your life. As you grow to understand God as a part of any real achievement, strength and vitality and joy will enrich your days.

State Tax Intake Ranks Third in Nation

LANSING — State and Local governments in Michigan collected a total of $3.8 billion in tax moneys in fiscal 1969.

To get a quick idea how rapid an increase in collections that represents, one need only know the total collections only four years earlier in fiscal 1965 totaled $2.3 billion.

The collections have risen 62 percent since then, with local taxes rising 53 percent and state tax collections growing by 70 percent.

The total among state taxes collected jumped from $1.3

billion to $2.2 billion while local tax collections rose from $1 billion to $1.6 billion.

MICHIGAN'S state government, by the way, ranked third in the nation last year in tax intake, with only California and New York ahead of it.

New York just barely edged California for the national leadership, pulling in $5.33 billion compared to California's $5.24 billion. Michigan's total of $2.249 billion was just ahead of fourth-place Pennsylvania's $2.226 total.

These four states accounted for more than one-third of all the state tax collections in the country and New York and California had more than one quarter of the $40 billion total between them.

The total state revenues of $40 billion for the entire 50 states compares to President Nixon's proposed $200 billion budget for the upcoming fiscal year.

MICHIGAN was one of 34 states in which the sales and use tax was the most productive source of income. The income tax topped the list in 14 states with the motor fuels tax the biggest money producer in New Hampshire and severance tax on natural resources the top in Louisiana.

But Michigan's percentage increase in revenues fell far behind the increases seen in many states. Florida collected 30 percent in taxes during the past fiscal year than it did the previous one.

A total of eight other states were above the 20 percent mark, though none of them border on Michigan.

TO PROVIDE the reader with an idea of the enormity of the $3.8 billion total collected by state and local governments in Michigan last year — the same amount of money could be used to purchase a $30,000 home for every man, woman and child in Kalamazoo and there still would be enough money left over to do the same for every person in Battle Creek.

Another way of looking at it is that it would buy a $3,000 car for three-quarters of the residents of Detroit.

If you prefer, it would buy a color television set for nearly every man, woman and child in the state of Michigan.

DURING HIS term as acting president of Michigan State University, Dr. Walter Adams developed a reputation as being the master of the off the cuff, tongue in cheek statement.

Adams demonstrated his ability again recently when he released a letter in which he ruled out any possibility of his running for governor this year.

"I know this irrevocable decision comes as a cruel blow to Sander Levin, Zolton Ferency and Attorney General Kelley," he wrote, "but I must disappoint them and my legion of admirers and well wishers around the state."

Adams' name had come up in speculation over who would be running for the Democratic Party's gubernatorial nomination. ONE OF THE FINAL decisions made by Gov. William G. Milliken in piecing together his budget message to the Legislature was a decision to boost the Michigan Tourist Council's budget to provide for more tourism promotion.

Milliken has taken an active interest in the tourism field and aids say he will work to increase tourism during his tour in office. He recognizes it, they say, as a unique opportunity to bring outside money into Michigan.

As part of his drive to hike the tourism rate, they said, he expects to contact each of the regional tourist associations personally to see what he can do to help their efforts.

Babson Report

More Gains Seen in 1970 Sales Of the Natural Gas Industry

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass.

Over the past ten years, the natural gas industry has grown rapidly due to the increasing number of customers and the greater utilization of gas, particularly by new gas appliances. The outlook for 1970 and beyond is for continued good gains.

This year natural gas sales are expected to advance in line with the projected five-year norm of 6% per annum. By 1975, the industry expects that it will have added another 7,100,000 new gas customers to its utility lines.

Gas air conditioning and total energy systems are expected to account for a fair portion of the anticipated increase. Gas air conditioning sales to commercial establishments are a particularly bright spot. Another potential market for the gas industry is the natural gas powered automobile.

CURRENTLY the money market is the foremost problem facing the natural gas industry and is likely to remain so for the near term. The high cost of new borrowings is squeezing profit margins of most companies. With the prime rate at 8½%, many of the pipelines are really feeling the pinch, as interest costs are actually higher than the rate of return that is allowed the industry by the FPC. To alleviate some of the pressure, an increasing number of companies are seeking FPC permission to up their rates of return on plant investment.

Because this is a regulated industry, and because the tight money situation is a particularly burdensome problem, many of the natural gas pipeline and transmission companies are becoming diversification-minded. In an attempt to broaden their earnings bases and use their huge internally generated cash flows more profitably, they are actively seeking entry into other industrial areas.

FOR EXAMPLE, Tenneco, which has been particularly aggressive in diversifying in late years is now often classified as a conglomerate. This company, the nation's largest pipeline operator, is now in real estate, banking, chemicals, oils, plastics, life insurance and shipbuilding. El Paso Natural Gas is another very well-diversified company. In addition to serving the far western market with natural gas, it also has interests in oil and gas production, petrochemicals, copper mining, phosphate agricultural chemicals, and plastics. Other leading pipeline companies, most of which have achieved some degree of diversification, include Texas Eastern Transmission, Texas Gas Transmission, Southern Natural Gas, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line, Northern Natural Gas, Mississippi River Corp. and Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line.

AS MIGHT be expected, natural gas pipelines that have turned to diversification have received the greatest degree of investor attention in late years. Natural gas distributors, which for the most part have been slow in widening their sphere of activities, have not been as popular with the investing public. The price action of the stocks of both the pipelines and distributors is influenced to a considerable degree by political factors, changes in money rates, and developments in the field of rate regulation. The last two areas particularly affect the pipelines.

Feeling that the natural gas industry has attractive further growth potential and that most natural gas stocks are reasonably priced relative to current and prospective earnings and dividends, the staff of Babson's Reports recommends purchase of Florida Gas, Mapco, Southern Natural Gas, and Tenneco.

Out of the Horse's Mouth

Send your questions and comments to "Horse's Mouth," care of South Lyon Herald, South Lyon, Michigan 48178. Dear Sally,

How often should a horse's feet be cleaned out and what can be done to prevent thrush?

A horse's feet should be cleaned out with a hoof pick at least once a day. Care should be taken to get way into the deep cracks on either side of the frog, this area often harbors dirt, especially towards the heel of the foot.

When the hoof has been completely cleaned, then a hoof dressing, such as "Hooflex," vaseline or pinetar should be applied to the entire sole of the foot and around the coronetband (hairline). This promotes growth of hoof and also keeps the hoof from becoming dry and brittle. I do not suggest using a hoof dressing over the entire outside hoof daily, due to the fact that the hoof breathes much like our skin and continuous use of a hoof dressing will close off this breathing ability. If hoof dressing is to be used on the outside of the wall, use about every three or four days, rather than daily.

Thrush is a fungus infection of the frog and is quite common. Just by cleaning the feet daily and applying a hoof dressing, you are already helping to prevent thrush. Your blacksmith may also be of help in this matter, by helping the horses feet trimmed a proper length with

Here's the Answer

Abortion Debate

are very few repeats."

Dr. Wheatley countered, "There are an increasing number of women who have repeated abortions. If we liberalize the law, there will be an increase in the total number of abortions with no decrease in illegal abortions; an increasing number for 'mental health' with a decreasing number for mothers health reasons; and an increasing number for those under 21-year-old and single."

"There will be no bounds in sexual relations," Dr. Wheatley warned. "The attitude will be 'enjoy then eradicate the problem'."

the heels low. This allows the horse to apply pressure on the frog when he walks, thus stimulating blood circulation to the hoof.

This trimming also makes the hoof easier for you to keep clean. Generally, the horse that has his feet properly cared for the whose stall is kept clean will rarely develop thrush.

The symptoms of thrush are a thick black discharge with a repulsive odor, tenderness around the frog and if severe, extreme lameness.

In a very light case, we may use a household disinfectant such as ammonia, clorox, or turpentine to clear it up. Hold the hoof up and carefully pour this in the bottom of the hoof. Be very careful not to get any above the hairline as it may blister the skin. Repeat this daily for a week or so. If the thrush does not clear up, check with your veterinarian as he may possibly recommend internal treatment.

Cleaning and taking care of your horse's feet is time well spent. The old adage "No feet, No horse" is still very, very true.
