

Property Tax Proposal Draws Skepticism

MRS. MARIE MILLER

R. ROBERT GEAKE

Geake

Although he has strong reservations about the ballot proposition on property tax reform, R. Robert Geake of Northville, Republican candidate for state representative in the 35th district, nevertheless personally will vote for it.

"I am campaigning neither for or against Proposition 'C'," Geake told The Record in an interview Friday, "but I myself plan to vote for it."

"The value of Proposition 'C' will be its tremendous help to older people, people on fixed incomes who are unable to keep up with rising property tax assessments and rising millages."

However, the big problem with the proposition, according to Geake, is that "it will transfer to the state operational funding of K through 12 programs, and with state funding, undoubtedly, will come state control."

Geake said Republican

Governor William Milliken is wrong in believing the proposition, if passed, will not result in loss of local control.

"His (governor) belief is that the legislature could make legislative rules permitting money to be passed back to the local districts without strings being attached. Frankly, I'm surprised at his naivete or if he really does believe this is possible."

"I know the experience in mental health has been very

Miller

Calling the ballot proposition on property tax reform a legislative "cop-out," Marie Miller, Democratic candidate for the 35th State Representative District, is convinced approval of this proposal (Proposition C) would be foolhardy without approval, also, of the graduated income tax proposal.

Interviewed Friday by The Record, the Wayne County assistant prosecuting attorney voiced strong reservations about Proposition C, insisting that it "must be considered in tandem" with graduated income tax (Proposition D).

"If voters believe they can have property tax relief on 'C' and not vote yes on 'D' I think we'll be in very great trouble," she declared.

"Proposition 'C' was not written with enough

Rowdyism mars Homecoming Here

Future homecoming activities may be moved from evening to afternoon hours because of several incidents which took place during last Friday's celebration.

Meeting Monday night, school board members learned eggs had been thrown at the marching band during the parade and that a school employee was beaten during the game.

Superintendent Raymond Spear explained that the crowning of the homecoming queen was the only event which took place as scheduled.

"The parade was disrupted with egg throwing and only two of four class floats were eligible for judging," he commented.

Of the beating which took place at the football game, Spear said it is "the first incident like this in the local community."

Spear suggested the board may want to consider holding homecoming activities in the late or mid-afternoon hours or utilizing a stricter form of enforcement at games.

Charles Kehrer, supervisor of buildings and grounds for the school district, was beaten by three youths at 8:45 p.m. Friday.

Kehrer was attempting to stop the youths from entering the bus compound gate and asked them to use the next entrance.

He was knocked to the ground, struck on the left side of the head and threatened with a knife, Kehrer told police. He received a cut above the eye and facial injuries.

The three youths, whom he does not believe are from Northville, escaped across Eight Mile Road into the high school parking lot.

Spear asked, "Must we go by the way of so many other districts and deprive students of an evening homecoming because of a few who disrupted the activities?"

Eye Multiples

For Sites

In a rather short meeting Tuesday night, planners received two letters from property owners indicating their desire to build multiple units in the future.

Both letters were received and filed by township planners with no further action taken until formal requests are brought before the commission.

Letters were received from George Nanos pertaining to property located on Pickford Road east of Valencia. Nanos said he was considering construction of multiple units on 24 acres of property which is served by water and sewer.

Trustee Richard Ambler said it is a "serious situation, but they (the three youths) violated the civil rights of others" who were not involved in the disturbances.

"If the youths (involved in the beating and egging) are apprehended, I hope the parents support what action the board takes," Ambler continued. "I don't feel we should discontinue evening activities because a few are disruptive."

Acting Board Chairman Stanley Johnston commented that such acts continue "because those people who are caught are let off too easily. It's about time they be dealt with accordingly."

Spear explained that many of the band uniforms hit by eggs cannot be cleaned and

Debate Slated Sunday

Abortion Reform in Spotlight

One of the most controversial state propositions appearing on the ballot November 7 will concern abortion reform.

And that topic will take the pre-election limelight here Sunday evening in a public forum.

Sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, the 8 p.m. program will be held in the social hall of the church. It will include "an examination of the moral issues," according to Assistant Pastor Richard Henderson.

Panelists will include: Opposing abortion reform, the Reverend Stanley C. Kukulski, Catholic chaplain at Northville State Hospital, and Mrs. Patricia Nixon, a mother speaking as the "voice of the unborn."

Supporting abortion reform, the Reverend David

E. Church, a Methodist minister who is member of the Michigan Clergy for Problem Pregnancy Counseling, and Dr. James Labes, on obstetrics and gynecology physician at Sinai Hospital.

"This program is open to the entire community in hopes that we can help people consider carefully the moral implications of this issue and their vote," said Mr. Henderson.

"We do this because we feel that our church has a responsibility to help the people of this community in making moral decisions. This is a particularly difficult question and we feel that the community should be well informed on both sides of the argument."

"We are not trying to sell one particular stand on this problem but we hope that through the exchange of opinions and ideas those who are present will be better informed and able to make a more intelligent decision about abortion reform."

Persons with questions about the program are invited

"RETIREMENT" officially begins at noon November 20 for Northville Township Supervisor Gunnar Stromberg and Clerk Eleanor Hammond, neither of whom is running for re-election. For both the future holds a brand new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stromberg, Northville residents for almost 16 years, sold their home on Whipple Drive and moved to Northville Forest Apartments last May. They also ordered construction of their new home at Port Charlotte, Florida, where they have had their lot for 12 years.

Their Florida home, Mrs. Stromberg reports enthusiastically, is at 1217 Southwest Lakeview Boulevard, right on a canal. Scheduled for completion November 1, the home should be ready for the Strombergs when they leave right on the 20th.

The very first things they plan to buy, Mrs. Stromberg adds, are "a lightweight boat for fishing and four cots for our grandchildren." The Strombergs' son and his family live in Livonia but are making plans for Florida visits.

While Ann Stromberg mentions regretting leaving friends and organizations -she was a member of Northville Woman's Club for 12 years--she is sure many friends will follow the maps her husband has made to visit. In addition, they already know their canal neighbors and other friends in Florida.

THE CRISPEN Hammonds expect to move about Thanksgiving to their new home now being completed in Cheboygan. Mrs. Hammond says the construction by Northville builder Tony Bauss is a "modified Swiss chalet" and is on a lot right on Lake Huron. The Hammonds have been vacationing in the area for six years; so they know they like it.

Mrs. Hammond adds, however, that "it's an exciting time in the township and in that way I hate to leave."

She is looking forward to a Christmas-season visit with their son, Gordon, and his two daughters in Oklahoma where he is stationed with the Air Force. Captain Hammond now is studying at the University of Oklahoma for his master's degree in meteorology. A career serviceman, he previously was commanding officer at Greenland's weather base.

The Hammonds plan to visit their family in Wisconsin at Thanksgiving. They also are going to be working on finishing details of their new home and unpacking. Because he is an accountant, Crispin Hammond's retirement may be part-time. He plans to work at busy seasons.

"Our things all are in barrels as we've already moved out of our home on Timberlane," Mrs. Hammond points out

After the first of the year, when they are settled, she says they plan to tour the United States for four or five months, first going south and then west--and the next year they're looking forward to a trip to Europe.

A FARM in the Parshallville-Hartland area is the new home of the David R. Christensen family, who moved Tuesday from Shadbrook.

Ann Christensen, who is in her second year as regent of Sarah Ann Cochrane Chapter, DAR, says the farm seemed the right place for their four young sons. They also have a baby daughter.

Located close by Tom Walker's grist and cider mill, the Parshallville farm is near six antique shops, Mrs. Christensen adds.

The Walter Rhode family of Middletown, Ohio, purchased their Shadbrook home.

ANOTHER ACTIVE DAR member and national officer, Mrs. George Merwin, returned Saturday to her home in Brookland Farms after attending a national board meeting in Washington, D.C. Following the session, she and Mrs. Robert Willoughby of Plymouth drove south to Williamsburg, Virginia, They participated in DAR ceremonies at the celebration of Yorktown Day.

Returning home on the famed Skyline Drive, they found the trees still beautiful with autumn color--but ice covered, as was the road in spots.

Also back from an automobile trip south are the Leonard Kleins. While he attended convention meetings in Atlanta, Ruth Klein toured the city and admired the much-written-about architecture of Peachtree Center.

FORMER NORTHVILLE residents on the move are the Levi Eatons, who make their home in Bristol Village, Waverly, Ohio. They have been visiting their son, Frank and his family in West Palm Beach, Florida. Directly after they return to vote in November, they plan to leave for Green Valley, Arizona, stopping enroute to visit their daughter and her family in San Antonio, Texas.

Alice Eaton, a life member of Northville Woman's Club, sent her best wishes to the organization as it began its 80th Year of Nostalgia. With Eleanor Hammond, she also had been one of Northville State Hospital Auxiliary's most active volunteers.

A STATE honorable mention award from the Michigan Questers has been presented to the Base Line Questers for the antiques chapter's donation of $134 to the Northville Historical Society for its restoration project. The funds were raised at a silent auction with members donating antiques for the purpose.

At Monday's chapter meeting Mrs. Thomas Lovett showed figurines from her Staffordshire collection and presented a research paper on Staffordshire. Mrs. John Burkman, hostess, added a pair of miniature dogs to the exhibit.

NORTHVILLE FAMILY Square Dance Club began a new year with the first dance last Saturday at Northville Presbyterian Church. There was a trend to ankle-sweeping skirts for both little girls and some of their mothers.

Mrs. Keith Pixley, president, welcomed club member families as well as Dave Palmer, who has been the caller for many years. Other board members are Mrs. John Frew, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Charles Kohs, Mrs. Roy Herald and Mrs. I. M. McLeod.

Next of the group's five meetings a year will be November 11.

LWV Offers Voting Tapes

Voter information on local, state and national candidates and issues for the November 7 General Election is available on cassette tape.

Tapes may be borrowed by the blind and physically handicapped in Wayne County from the Wayne County Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, according to Mrs. Eunice Tuttle, head of the library.

Northville residents may borrow a tape which contains biographical information and responses to questions by candidates for national, state and county offices and local issues.

The tape was recorded from the Voter's Guide, produced by the Northville-Plymouth League of Women Voters.

Other tapes available include information on State Proposals A through E and a recording of material produced by National League of Women Voters entitled "Pick a President."

Tapes are mailed to individuals, on request, who cannot use conventional printed materials and may be returned to the library postage free.

Persons requesting tapes may call the library at 274-2600 or 722-8000. Tapes may be used on any cassette player, Mrs. Tuttle said.

The Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped is located at 33030 Van Born Road in Wayne.

Nobeoka, Japan, and Stig Berggren of Skelleftea, Sweden. Alan is wearing a "barong tagalog", a Philippine shirt, and Michiko is dressed in the traditional Japanese kimono.

Three Students Find U.S. Different from Homeland

What's it like to come to the United States for the first time, live with a new family and attend a foreign school? Three foreign exchange students now at Northville High School have very definite reactions to the question.

"You feel a little, strange when you first get here and when you meet your family for the first time," said Stig Berggren of his arrival from Skelleftea, Sweden, last August.

Alan Chu, of Manila in the Philippine Islands, noticed the climate. "We landed in Alaska first," he said, "and it was so cold. Back home it gets very hot."

"My city is warm, too," said Michiko Ochiai. She added that she had brought no winter clothes with her and was surprised at the climate. Her winter jacket was sent to her by her mother recently which made her "very happy." Michiko is from Nobeoka, Japan.

Stig, who is from a city with a population of 25,000 in the city proper and an additional 35,000 in the surrounding area, noticed the difference in traffic. "There were such big cars and so much traffic, and the houses were so big," he said.

Each of the students has noticed certain questions which American students have asked most.

"They ask if I sleep on the floor," said Michiko and explained that at home, she does.

Alan said at least one person was surprised when he said they do have ice cream in Manila. "One of the biggest plants is right there," he explained.

"I get the standard question from the guys about the Swedish girls," Stig said. "That's always first."

Although Alan said the school system in the Philippines "isn't really much different than school here", the other two students said there are differences.

"At home there are longer days. We go from 8:15 a.m. to 4 or 5 p.m. in high school. We have nine years of gymnasium and three or four years of college. Here you go to the same classes every day. In Sweden you go to the same classes by the week," Stig said.

Michiko said that in Japan, there is math every year during school. "I have it here, too, but it is harder in English," she added.

Major differences between American teenagers and those in their own countries have been noticed by Michiko and Stig.

"Some of my friends here smoke," said Michiko. "In Japan we can't smoke."

According to Stig, social life in Sweden is quite different than it is here in the States. "Here, when you have parties, you invite everyone. At home you often visit friends at home. Everyone meets in town and then they all go to someone's house to play records, and party."

Alan said the things that impress him least about America is that people "seem so wasteful" and that the kids often dress "so shabby."

"There seems to be such a big thing here about hashish and other drugs," Stig said. "In northern Sweden, they don't have that problem. Here, it seems, most people have tried it. There they speaking frequently about the dangers of it in the schools."

Smoking, was what Michiko said she was least impressed with.

Stig said he was amazed with the game shows on television, especially "Let's Make A Deal." "They give so much money on one show, even cars," he said. In Sweden, he added, there are only two television channels and they are government operated.

Alan said, of American cooking, that he does not like "the desserts because they're too sweet."

"Pies," said Stig, "are very strange. I don't like them. Almost all of the food here is different from Swedish cooking."

Michiko is in America on the Cultural Exchange program and is living with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holman. Both boys came to Northville through the Youth for Understanding exchange program. Alan is staying with the Charles Wheatley family and Stig's American home is with Mr. and Mrs. William Maher.

Torch Drive Eyes Goal

The 1972 United Foundation Torch Drive campaign in Northville, now in its last days, is being conducted in conjunction with the overall Torch Drive campaign which has as its goal to collect $32 million in contributions.

The drive began October 7 and will end on Friday, October 27. It is being conducted in businesses and in a door-to-door residential campaign.

Northville's divisional residential chairman is Mrs. Robert Yanover of Eight Mile Road. She said the goal for her portion of the campaign is to go over the $3,645 collected in the residential campaign last year.

Assisting her are three other Northville women, Mrs. Connie Condon, Mrs. Ronald Kozub and Mrs. Richard Roberts, who are acting as area chairmen. In all, Mrs. Yanover said, there will be "about 200 women or more" who actually assist in the campaign by making door-to-door collections.

"There are three goals of the residential campaign," she said, "to reach the people who don't give at work, such as housewives and retirees, to thank the people who do give at work and to inform residents of the services available from the 164 agencies that benefit from the campaign."

Mrs. Yanover, now in her second year as divisional chairman, stated that 95 per cent of every dollar collected goes directly into the agencies supported by the United Foundation.

The business campaign for Northville and surrounding areas is headed by James R. Hayward of Northville. One of his workers is Northville City Manager Frank Ollendorff.

The goal, Hayward explained, is to increase the amount collected in larger businesses last year by five per cent. "All indications are that there will be a substantial increase over the amount collected last year," he said.

Greeting visitors to the Novi Jaycees' Haunted House is this frightening-looking 35 foot monster. The giant ghoul is only the first of the horrors which will confront visitors to the Haunted House, however. Inside guests will encounter the Doomed Tombs, Witch's Den, Headless-hanged Man, and the Monster-filled Maze. The House is located on Novi Road between Nine and Ten Mile Roads and will be open every night from now until Halloween. If you're uncertain as to the exact location, the Monster (above) will be happy to show you the way.

OK New School Study

Committee Formation Seen Soon

In the face of increasing enrollment the Novi Board of Education directed Superintendent Gerald Kratz Tuesday to prepare for the formation of a new building concepts committee.

Recommendations from Kratz are expected to be presented to the board within four weeks.

Once formed, the committee—which probably will include both professionals and citizens—is expected to spend the winter months deciding what new school building or buildings are needed next, gathering data and developing concepts for incorporation into these facilities, Dr. Kratz said.

Development of building specifications probably will begin in the spring, it was disclosed.

Dr. Kratz said he probably would consult the Bureau of School Services prior to making his recommendation next month, and he voiced hope that a representative of the Bureau would be available to make a presentation to the board at that time.

Pressed by Trustee Robert Wilkins for his observations about the district's future needs, the superintendent said it appeared to him that a new comprehensive high school may have top priority. And if this proves correct, following study, officials will have to consider future use of the present high school, he added.

Present Novi school facilities, Dr. Kratz told board members, will accommodate up to 3,000 students (present enrollment is 2,150). However, he noted that enrollment increased by 12.2 percent this September over the previous September, and

Wixom Council

Veto Building Fees

Although it was the subject of considerable discussion, proposed new building fees for the city of Wixom failed to come to a vote by the city council due to lack of support.

City building official Carlton Oldford told Council of the changes he made in the schedule during a public hearing granted the matter at the regular council meeting on Tuesday night.

The fee for residential building permits was raised from $10 to $12 a square foot. This, Oldford said, was still not as much as surrounding areas asked of builders. He said that the communities of Farmington and Novi charge $18 and Southfield's fee is $18.50 for each square foot.

The charge for a minimum building permit was raised to $15 from the former $5 because, Oldford said, he has to pay a building inspector $8 an hour and the city is losing money" due to the low fee presently in effect.

Oldford noted changes he proposed in the reduction of residential performance bonds. Presently, it costs $100 for a Wixom resident to build a structure valued under

Council Hears Audit

The need for a comprehensive study of Novi's accounting requirements and existing accounting capabilities with a view toward adapting and modernizing the present system was foremost among the recommendations made to the city council Tuesday as it heard the annual auditor's report.

"The city's continued growth has substantially increased the necessary accounting and other clerical functions in all departments," the council was informed. "In order to maintain internal controls it appears that certain systems and procedures should be revised and if possible automated."

The recommendation to study the increasing demands on the accounting department was one of 11 recommendations made to the council in the auditor's report. Required by state law on an annual basis and prepared by Arthur Young and Company, a Bloomfield Hills accounting firm, the audit gave Novi a clean bill of health in the preparation of its budget reports.

"Nothing came to our attention that indicated any improper or illegal action," the auditors reported. "City personnel and officials are to be congratulated for their cooperation during the audit."

The 11 recommendations were made to correct what the auditors termed "material weaknesses and/or deficiencies" in Novi's accounting system.

The areas pointed out in the report were as follows:

• Special Assessments: The audit revealed a discrepancy between the totals of Novi's special assessment districts and the actual amount of

Boyle

"I feel I am handling this court in both an efficient and an effective manner."

So spoke District Court Judge Martin L. Boyle, whose 1st Division bench serves the Novi-Wixom-Lyon-South Lyon area.

The incumbent judge supported his contention by adding, "We have one of the heaviest caseloads in both criminal and civil areas of any district court in the State of Michigan and we are current in our caseload. We're within 90 days to trial in our civil cases. Our traffic trials come up within two to four weeks of receipt of tickets. Our misdemeanor trials come up without any greater time lag than that and of course our felony hearings come up within the 12 day limit set by law."

Judge Boyle claims the support of 200 practicing attorneys and cites 22 years of legal background in his bid for re-election.

Asked how he reacts to criticism, specifically charges of leniency, directed toward his court by local law enforcement officials, the judge responded:

"We're open to law enforcement agencies. I'm constantly in contact with policemen, chiefs and personnel in every law enforcement agency in this area. We're communicating and we constantly evaluate any problems that may arise. I believe there is an efficient,

MARTIN BOYLE

TERRANCE JOLLY

Terrance K. Jolly, candidate for 52nd District Court Judge, first division, serving Novi-Wixom-Lyon-South Lyon area, entered the race opposing incumbent Judge Martin L. Boyle because:

"It appears, in my conversations with local law enforcement officials, that this court is currently not being handled in either an efficient or effective manner.

I was asked to run by the city councils and by the police officers of Milford and Novi. I have police support because of the apparently poor handling of traffic violations and other criminal matters and the backlog—according to secondary sources—of civil cases. The civil case backlog appears far worse in my opponent's district than in other divisions of the 52nd, for example."

Jolly, a Novi resident who claims widespread area police support, has served as an assistant United States District Attorney under James Brickley (now lieutenant governor) and Ralph Guy. His primary area of operation in the Eastern Michigan district was in narcotics abuse, rehabilitation and enforcement.

The 31-year old attorney believes that narcotics is responsible for "approximately 70 percent" of all crimes in Michigan. Combating narcotics abuse is Jolly's top priority in addition

In Haunted House

Northville Jaycees Boast A Sure-Bet Hair-Raiser

How long has it been since you've had a good, old fashion scare?

With Halloween coming up it's the season for ghosts, goblins, witches and black cats.

So Northville's Jaycees have collected as many of these scare creatures as possible and are displaying them at their "haunted house", 131 West Dunlap Street, next door to the soon-to-be-opened Drawbridge Restaurant.

And for just a quarter youngsters, oldsters and middlesters can enjoy a scare or two while contributing to the many charitable activities conducted by the Jaycees.

Jaycee President Dennis Dildy and Sam Hill, project chairman, report that 10 Jaycees have worked some 200 hours creating a maze of passageways, a Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde room, and a vampire room.

The Jaycees almost didn't have a haunted house this year. The project, sponsored by many Jaycee groups throughout the nation, is the major fund raiser for the local young businessmen's group. Last year their haunted house on Nine Mile road (since torn down) attracted 12,000 visitors and raised $3,000.

Efforts to use a vacant house on state-owned property on Eight Mile road failed at the last minute, although local officials supported the Jaycees. Finally, the city granted use of the Dunlap street house that will soon be removed.

And Dr. Joseph Sinkwitz

whose dental offices are temporarily located in the house, granted the Jaycees permission to construct their scare passages around his offices.

The Jaycees believe their "haunted house" is the finest ever. They promise a host of horrors.

It opened for scares last night (Wednesday) and will remain open tonight and Friday and next Monday and Tuesday from 6 until 9 p.m. and this weekend on Saturday and Sunday from noon until 9 p.m.

Refreshments are on sale and special groups, such as scout troops, may make reservations in advance by calling 349-4328.

And if you'd like to make it a night of haunted houses, you can visit the Novi Jaycees' haunted house on Novi road between Nine and Ten Mile.

HALLOWEEN SHIVERS—Ghosts and ghouls and other creatures of the night have taken up residence at 131 West Dunlap Street and, with an assist from Northville Jaycees, have converted the place into a haunted house just in time for Halloween. Visitors, if they dare, may tour the house and meet its new occupants each evening through Halloween night. "Bring a friend," advise the Jaycees, "because in a place like this there's safety in numbers."

Council Appoints Athas

The appointment of former city manager George Athas to fill his own term on the Building Authority was approved by the Novi city council in a 4-2 vote Tuesday.

The usual action of appointing someone to fill his own vacated term was brought about by a clause in the Articles of Incorporation under which the Building Authority was established.

According to those Articles of Incorporation, a city employee may serve on the Authority, but his seat is automatically vacated at the time he leaves the city's employment.

Thus, when Athas, who has been a member of the Authority since its inception, resigned as city manager earlier this month, he was necessarily removed from the Building Authority.

Last week Mayor Joseph Crupi read a letter from Authority Chairman William Duev requesting that Athas be reappointed. Such action, the city attorney ruled, would not be in conflict with the Articles of Incorporation.

Opposition to the reappointment of Athas came from several councilmen who contended that the intent of the Articles of Incorporation was that the city manager be a member of the Authority.

"When we drew up those Articles," said Councilman Denis Berry, "it was our intention that the city manager be a standing member so he could act as a connection with the council. If we appoint George (Athas) we're violating the intent of those Articles."

Further opposition came from Councilmen Edwin

Presnell and Louie Campbell, who argued that more time should be taken before making the appointment in order to allow other citizens to be considered for the post.

Presnell's motion to table the motion appointing Athas died for lack of a second and the council then proceeded to approve the appointment by a 4-2 vote.

Presnell and Campbell cast the dissenting ballots. "George's abilities are not the issue," Presnell stated. "What's at issue is the intent of the Articles of Incorporation."

Novi Cub Scout Pack 240 Orchard Hills School

The weather disappointed the pack for their outdoor pack meeting at Meadowbrook Park Thursday, as they met on a cold dark evening around a campfire. However, the heat from the fire did not penetrate a large enough area to encompass both boys and parents. The boys were enthusiastic and enjoyed everything. The parents bore up bravely.

The meeting opened with a flag ceremony followed by a short introduction by the Acting Pack Master Bill Fear. Skits were rendered by Den 4 and Webelo 2. The skit produced by Den 4 was entitled "Purchase of Manhattan Island" complete with Dutch traders and Indians. The Webelo Skit was on Citizenship Voting. One candidate was Christopher Columbus, as discoverer of America and his opponent was Leif Erickson, the Plunderer. Both candidates had campaign managers and Leif Erickson won. Both skits were amusing and interesting as well as timely.

The campfire induction ceremony for Webelos and Bob Cats was most impressive. The older cubs were in Indian garb and Indian drums accompanied the ceremony. "Acheha" resided at the ceremony. Many awards were presented by the Pack Master and Awards Chairman Marilyn Rice. A Den flag was presented to new den mother Mrs. Lillian Irwin of new Den 1. Den 2 members Rick Olson, Paul O'Neal and John Olson were presented SOAR badges. John Olson also received his Wolf Patch and one gold and one silver arrow; Denner Badge was presented to Paul O'Neal, also one year pin; Assistant Denner Badge was presented to Rick Olson and also his one year pin.

Senior Citizens

The Novi Senior Citizens met October 24 at the Novi Elementary School. Mr. Le Roy Crites, president, has fully recovered from recent attack of flu and was able to preside. It was nice to see him back.

Following the meeting cards and bingo were played and co-hostesses Mrs. Mildred Davis and Mrs. Anna Ortwin served coffee and goodies. Everyone is asked to watch the paper for further developments. If any Senior Citizens who are not yet members have questions they should call Mrs. Nancy Liddle at 349-2219.

First Baptist Church of Novi

At the Young People's evening meeting, a film entitled "TV and Thee" was shown. Adults were invited to view also. The high schoolers will attend the Teen Rally at Cobo Hall on Saturday night. The bus will leave the church at 5:30 p.m.

For those wishing to contribute to the Matching Grant Fund, designate your gift as such and give it to Mrs. Ridenour.

The annual Michigan Sunday School Convention begins Thursday at Cobo Hall and continues through Saturday. Please inform Phil Baynes of your plans to attend.

Special music in the Sunday evening service was a solo by Mrs. Gerry Wallace singing "Unworthy" accompanied by Miss Peggy Stewart. Miss Stewart also played a piano solo "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

A baptismal service is planned for November 5 after the evening service. Any questions should be directed to the Pastor. A meeting with the candidates will be held following the morning worship service on that date in the Pastor's study.

The quarterly business meeting was scheduled for Wednesday evening at the regular prayer service time. Rev. Roy Grindall, who has been ministering at the First Baptist during the summer months, was suddenly called back to his pastorate in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Property Tax Proposal Draws Skepticism

disappointing The intent of the legislature in passing Act 54 (mental health) was that state monies would go directly back to the communities and be administered, where they are needed by the community mental health services board. In actual practice the spending of that money is still controlled by the director of mental health, who tells them what their budget is and how it should be used, and demands accountability and changes that the state believes are needed.

"I think the same thing would happen in education...the theory that the money will come from the governing body—either the State Board of Education or the legislature—but that the control will be left to the local school districts is pure pipe-dreaming."

Nevertheless, Geake said he will support the proposition for two reasons:

"First, because the income tax is a fairer way of supporting public schools than the property tax, particularly, as I've said, for older people and people on fixed incomes. Secondly, people are no longer willing to vote millages for their public schools and yet more money is needed...and I sincerely believe that."

Under the ballot proposition, the funding formula will be left to the legislature, "and all of the formulas I hear discussed provide for some state-wide equality...equality of educational opportunity, equal amounts of money behind each child."

"This means that in the 'richer' districts—those districts that have a higher assessed valuation, where parents earn more and Northville and Livonia are those kinds of districts—will send more to Lansing than they will get back for education and the result will be less money per child."

"I see the role of a legislator from a district like this as trying to protect what we've already got. So that what we will really be asking for is special privileges, grandfather clauses, in order to preserve financing for our area."

"I guess I really feel that Detroit, because of its large population, has more direct representation through its legislators than any other one city or region now. And while I understand their problems and I am sympathetic to them and I would not be out to chisel them, I still feel the first responsibility of any legislator is to represent his own district. I would be fair to other parts of the state but also to get all I could for our area."

Chairman of the Schoolcraft College board of trustees, Geake opposes the state proposal permitting graduated state income taxes

He supports the proposition giving financial assistance to the veterans, and he personally will vote in favor of the abortion reform proposition—although he believes the latter is a "personal" matter and that no candidate should campaign for or against it.

Experience in public elected office is the single, most important reason Geake claims to be better qualified than his opponent.

"In terms of education and understanding of the issues," he said, "I honestly believe my opponent and I are equally qualified. The thing that separates us is experience—experience in public office, experience in handling of budgets, experience in working out compromises with other intelligent, elected delegates from both political parties. The ability to do this you only learn through experience."

A psychology consultant having worked much of his life in the mental health field, Geake believes this background will be a great asset in Lansing.

"The present legislature has 28 lawyers (a reference to his opponent) but not one individual who can claim any first-hand knowledge or the understanding of the emotional needs of the emotionally ill or the tremendous training or educational needs of the retarded."

"Yet, after education and welfare, mental health programs constitute the largest outlay of state spending and the need for these services, at one time or another, touches one of every three families."

A related matter to mental health which Geake said he is anxious to work on as a legislator is drug abuse.

"Abuse of drugs," he said, "is a major problem in our society. It's a problem not only because of its tragic effect on the user but also because of the other kinds of crime that their use creates. Drug abuse leads to theft from homes and stores to support expensive drug habits and to crimes of violence by persons grappling for the tremendous illegal profits."

Geake said he supports three major ways to combat the drug abuse problem: Control drug traffic, improve education about drugs and drug abuse, and treatment and rehabilitation.

"I'm particularly interested in treatment and rehabilitation programs because this is where our present drug programs fall down. We do have successful withdrawal programs but we're finding that we don't have vocational training for them and there aren't jobs for them, with the resulting effect that they drift back into the drug culture."

Vocational education is another of Geake's platforms.

"One of the big problems in this state and in the nation is that we're still graduating too many kids who have no marketable skills. They don't plan to go on to college and many of them, perhaps, should not go on to college and yet they have no skills or knowledge that makes it possible for them to go out and find a job in today's society. This is, of course, one of the great strengths of the community college."

"I would want to see more diversified programs at the high school level. I also would like to see a lot more emphasis on vocational training."

Admitting that the legislature can do "practically nothing" about cross-specificity in what it attempts to do. I can foresee, if we pass "C" and don't pass "D", we will have an increase in the flat income tax to the extent of 8-percent, perhaps, on individual incomes and an estimated 17-percent on corporate income. I don't see corporations sitting still for that kind of legislative approval, and of course it will be up to the legislature, based on "C", to come up with some kind of funding plan.

"With or without, 'C' there's also the possibility of a value added tax—a real problem for business—and it very often ends up becoming a consumer tax."

"I really feel it's unfortunate that there has to be a piecemeal educational financial reform through referendum. I think, by far, our legislature has let us down in so far as making real substantial tax reform progress. It's really unfortunate that in our technological age we can't resolve this problem legislatively."

Asked if she has a fear as does her opponent, that Proposition "C" may mean loss of local school district controls to the state, Mrs. Miller said the word "fear" is too strong but nevertheless she said "the issue exists" whether or not Proposition "C" passes.

"I certainly would like to see that we continue to keep a certain amount of local control. I think, philosophically, we have to look to see where we are. Are schools an extension of the family and neighborhood, or are they going to be an extension of the state? This is where we lie to keep our focus.

"I've heard my opponent talk about his reservations but I don't know how he resolves them, if he does, since he supports 'C'."

Mrs. Miller said she has "not come out with solid support" for either proposition "C" or "D."

She supports the bonding proposition for veteran aid, and she "supports the basic concept" of abortion reform proposal.

"Just as her opponent sees his background training as an aid in seeking specific improvements in mental health programs, Mrs. Miller is convinced her background as a public nurse and as an attorney involved in juvenile problems will be significant advantage in seeking social services improvement."

Noting that her opponent emphasizes that the legislature already has an abundance of attorneys, she said, if elected, she would be the only lawmaker with both a legal and a social services background.

"There's need for revision of the Michigan juvenile code", she said. "I've worked very intensively with that for the past two years. It deals with the services for abused, neglected and delinquent children. I think that it must be overhauled. There is a move afoot to study it, and there isn't anybody (in the legislature) who knows as much about this area as I, having worked with it on a practical basis."

"Of course, my background—which has been very deep in a personal fashion—would be an asset in dealing with anything as it would affect health services and direct social services.

"I would like to have a hand in our criminal code revision."

"Family court is another example of an area in which we definitely need some state-wide revision. I definitely think we should have one court dealing with divorce problems and problems of children because very often, especially in large counties such as Wayne, there is some breakdown of services because they are now handled by different courts."

"For example, probate court handles guardianships circuit court handles divorces, juvenile court handles delinquency and neglect. And very often these problems dovetail. Some of these things have been discussed in the past but they haven't been acted upon. I want to get them moving along."

In the field of education, Mrs. Miller suggests that immediate attention to financing of schools, emphasis on vocational education, and teacher preparation would be her chief concerns as a legislator.

"We must consider the number of children who do not go on to college," she said. "We should be preparing our youngsters more adequately through vocational education."

"As for financing, some of this is out of the hands of the legislature. For example, equalization. This will be decided by the Michigan Supreme Court and possibly even by the U.S. Supreme Court. But the legislature will have its hands full in terms of how to finance education."

She offered no specific financing plan, however.

Uncertain as to whether or not it should be dealt with legislatively, the matter of teacher preparation nevertheless is of prime importance to the state in view of the surplus of teachers.

"I think it is unfortunate that young people spend so much time preparing for a (teaching) career and come out of college only to find that they are unwanted. I think there has to be a little more coordination and surveys of needs and projection of needs so that these youngsters can be better guided into markets where they will be used. Maybe it's a matter of moving along programs legislatively, looking at federal funding for vocational education, etc.—making sure we use federal funding to the best of our capacities."

"Truly, we all pay for federal funds and we ought to make the best use possible of those programs which are offered by the federal government."

Concerning her opponent's stated opposition to cross-district busing, Mrs. Miller said it is "unfortunate" that the busing issue must be raised in view of the fact that the matter is out of the hands of the legislature.

"I do not support mass cross district busing for the purposes of integration. But, on the other hand, I think sometimes candidates simply have been trying to 'out-bus' each other and I think it is unfortunate that we use small children as a political tool this way. I oppose that kind of continual upheaval over the issue...basically a Constitutional issue that lays with the courts."

Crime hasn't appeared to be an issue in her campaign for election, she observed, even though she has some personal interest in this field.

"There are some things regarding criminal control, if you want to use the term, that we must direct ourselves to. Again, are we using federal funds adequately."

"We don't have enough assistant prosecuting attorneys in Wayne County and there are a number of cases being dismissed because we lack personnel. Also, there are some areas in procedure and evidence that we should direct ourselves to. One is the polygraph (lie-detector) I've had the frustration of having the defendant taken...and the defendant would not consent to having them admitted and that's his prerogative under the law. Perhaps there might be some legislation that could be passed that would safeguard the individual taking the polygraph."

While citizens of her district haven't raised many questions relative to crime, she nevertheless is convinced they are concerned. And she, personally, is concerned chiefly about the preponderance of crime committed by youths.

Facing up to the matter of drugs, which often is related to crime by youths is of primary importance to her as a prospective state representative.

"I think we must recognize that delinquency often progresses to crime."

"One solution might be to use our voluntary probation officers, in our local courts, with younger offenders."

Under existing law any youngster under age 17 must be handled by the juvenile court. That precludes bringing them into our local district courts.

"I think we should allow these courts to handle these matters. Ideally, I think it is good to have youngsters working with probation officers in their home grounds because those people know the community and the kids know they have to be a little more responsible to somebody. We lack the facilities at the county level to handle these cases in the same intimate fashion."

As for welfare reform, she is convinced the "real reform" must come at the federal level. "We've failed very badly on the federal level to address ourselves to this question. It's just a mess. But how much we can straighten it out at the state level, without some help at the federal level, I really don't know."

In her work with the juvenile court, Mrs. Miller said she is aware of "some isolated cases" in which misuse of welfare funds occurs, i.e., "when we know that the natural father is living a few days away and no doubt he is contributing funds to the mother even though she is receiving ADC. But to say that fraud is rampant I am in no position to judge."

"I have been in homes of people who are on welfare and I can say truthfully say that I don't see anything about their standard of living that I would at all admire. I've seen people struggle very hard with the stipend they are receiving."

"Nevertheless, I know that the area of abuse needs a great deal of attention."

effective and a cordial relationship between the courts and law enforcement agencies. We also have a very good relationship with the prosecutors' offices and work with them on a day-to-day basis.

"In isolated cases, officers or prosecutors may have felt we were too lenient or made a wrong decision. We handle more than 10,000 traffic cases each year, for example, some 400 of which we try. Not everyone is happy with the results of each case and officers, chiefs and prosecutors don't hesitate to come in after cases have been heard to discuss them with me."

In court operations, Judge Boyle feels he has an excellent, "outstanding" staff working with him. An area in which he hopes to expand his court is in localized volunteer probation offices under professional direction. Young first offenders are his chief concern.

He wants to see probationary efforts for youthful (17 and over) offenders, but claims generalizations cannot be made regarding handling of first time offenders.

"You have to fit the sentence to the individual in every case," he maintains. Recognizance bonds are used in most cases heard by Boyle. These personal bonds are proved effective in his court's experience, he says. "We haven't had any felony bail jumpers. You do get some in misdemeanor cases, but we have been effective in picking them up. I don't feel, in the case of traffic offenders, that they should sit in jail while awaiting hearing."

He adds, "Traffic offenders are not criminals, they are citizens who have violated a traffic law. I don't think they should be inconvenienced or punished by confinement before trial simply because they don't have bail money immediately available."

Boyle worked with the Traffic Information Association (TIA) of Oakland County in their recent study of the problem driver. His specific area of concern was drinking drivers. Of the County's recent decision to get tough with these drivers, the judge says:

"I have been impressed with their (drinking drivers) numbers in my four years on the bench. Fines and confinement are not enough in many cases. I follow a policy of probation and treatment, counseling, AA meeting attendance and the like when I feel it is warranted.

"We work constantly with other judges for as much uniformity as possible, especially in this area."

As to a comment that police don't feel the judge will accept guilty pleas, Boyle says: "We are trying less than five percent of the traffic cases that come before us—a few hundred of between 10,000 and 12,000 annually—and I do accept these pleas when I am sure that the defendant knows what he is doing when he tells me he is guilty."

While his public records are "always available to the press", Judge Boyle does not feel that publication of case dispositions "necessarily has any deterrent effect on crime." He pointed out that he is "the only judge that I know of" who submits annual budget and caseload reports to local media for publication.

Jolly

to his duties as judge, if elected

"One thing I plan to do is to institute evening sessions to deal with traffic cases. More vicious crimes could not be handled this way for security reasons, but it would give lesser violators a chance to appear without having to take time off from work and should increase guilty pleas and improve relations among police, court and community," Jolly claims.

He would hope to establish a "relatively firm" calendar to assure appearances and hearings on a schedule. Another plan Jolly hopes to institute is a voluntary probation department to establish a one-to-one community volunteer to youthful offender ratio under the guidance of an experienced probation officer.

"I would institute a 10 percent cash bond program," the candidate said in answer to question on recognizance bond use, "which would establish a fund to enable local police to track down a fugitive. This money would be returned upon disposition of the case."

"These bonds," he went on, "would include curfews of time and geographic travel limitations. This district court has had a terrible record on bail jumpers and I would hope my program would be a major step toward reducing this problem."

While Jolly favors stiff monetary fines (fitted to individual cases, he explains) for first offenders, he also expects to get progressively tougher with repeat violators. He explained that drunk drivers appearing a second time before him in a relatively short period of time would be apt to be required to take counseling and similar treatment offered the problem drinker, but would also find his license in jeopardy within the requirements of the law.

Jolly considers the Novi News court disposition listing "a definite crime deterrent" and hopes to institute programs to insure better press availability of court records "than is now the case."

As the contender explains it, "I should be judged by the public on how quickly (within reason) and efficiently and effectively I move cases. The best means of this is to make reporters welcome for both daytime and evening court sessions and to make all my public records accessible to the press at all times."

Accessibility is a key to the performance of a district court judge, Jolly says. "I want people to be able to identify with their court."

"This type of program," he continued, "would be a service to all concerned because police and attorneys would know that, when they are scheduled to appear the case for which they are scheduled will be heard. It seems to me that it will be especially beneficial to those persons required to take time off from work and for those who will not have to do so because they can appear in the evening."

Wixom Newsbeat

Voc Ed Center Cooks up Delight

By NANCY DINGELDEY

For those who enjoy the savoring of fine food, the relishing of the final morsel with as much enthusiasm as the first, this past Thursday had to be the day set aside specifically for us.

The gamut of delicious dishes was run from Greek to Japanese, from French to good old American.

The comment coming from Lillian Spencer's was "It was all so very good I couldn't stop eating." Lillian hosted a going-away luncheon for Sharon Green at her home Thursday for a group of fifteen. The ladies joined for the delicious luncheon and left Sharon with many fond memories of Wixom. She was presented with a beautiful jade ring and a gift certificate during the afternoon.

Later in the evening, Sharon was again the guest of honor at a pot-luck dinner held at Irene Zacardelli's. Made up of the group of her weekly ceramics class plus several friends and neighbors, she received a gift certificate from the girls.

Again the food was "scrumptious" with each lady preparing a favorite recipe to share at the table.

Meanwhile, at the Voc Ed Center another luncheon was being held. It was the first in a series of special luncheons prepared for the public by the students enrolled in the Food Service Department of the Center.

The luncheons will be served on the third Thursday of each month and are called international buffets. For those of you who enjoy food with a foreign flair, it is a must to attend at least one.

Thursday's luncheon honored the Voc Ed's principal John Xenos and those of Greek heritage. The menu featured "mashi warak" or stuffed grape leaves, "rishta addis" (lentil soup), a variety of shish kebabs, lamb curry, and mashi kussa, which was a delightful stuffed marrow squash. Greek background music made the luncheon even more authentic.

On the "other side of the menu", the guests were also offered such delicacies as beef wellington, chicken tetrazzini, lasagna, French pancakes stuffed with creamed chicken garnished with a scrumptious Mornay sauce, and the entire event topped off with delightful French pastries.

Next months offering at the Voc Ed Center will feature foods from the Far East including China, Japan, and Korea.

The entire luncheon is served at a cost of $2 per plate and if there is one final note, it is that you arrive early. There's always plenty of food, but the dining room is getting to be a very popular place so that table space and parking space is sometimes hard to find.

After being unable to pass up any of those luscious offerings and with full tummy I had to worry about dreaming up something for the family for dinner before leaving for the monthly get-together of the "Gorge-Us Gourmets". Diets were thrown to the wind that day!

Letter for the day was "J" and "K" was thrown in for good measure. The ladies departed from the usual of cooking a dish from the country to a night out on the town. And "J" standing for Japanese and "K" for Korea, the group met at the Yamoto Restaurant in the Leland Hotel for an evening of typical Japanese food.

From the menu, the group ordered a variety so everyone could taste something different. Ellen Callahan's mother, Mrs. Pepper was the only brave soul to order sashimi — a VERY typically Japanese dish of thinly sliced raw fish which included tuna and a cute little octopus. I don't know if I sampled an arm or a leg. Well, it's nothing to write home to mother about but at least I can legally say that I've eaten octopus — no matter how small the bite.

We sampled tempura which is deep-fried butterfly shrimp with a deliciously exotic sauce, teriyaki, shogayaki, and sukuyaki that was absolutely fantastic.

With the exception of the raw fish, every dinner was well worth the experience.

Also on Thursday night was a fine display of fireworks at Western High School prior to the Homecoming activities on Friday. Named Princess for the festivities and receiving her cape and roses during half-time was Jill Taylor. Western was sorely defeated by Pontiac Northern 26-6, but the fans braved the chill night and cheered the team on right to the end.

And what would Homecoming be without floats. Hours of hard work and planning went into the creations with the Seniors coming out on top with a pirate ship complete with "blazing" cannon.

A lunar module and space man won second place for the National Honor Society with third place going to the German Club with their depiction of the Pied Piper.

It's that time of year again — the ghosts and goblins, witches and great pumpkin robberies — eerie sounds and fiendish noises and the Haunted House. Youngsters and grown-ups alike are bound to get goose bumps as they weave through the maze created by the Walled Lake Area Jayettes.

The annual Haunted House created this year is at 4684 South Pontiac Trail and for 25 cents, it's an experience for anyone. The creepy place is waiting for you and will be open tonight (Thursday) through Halloween.

'Fan Out' Completes Job in 30 Minutes

Within 30 minutes, 1,245 families representing 2,523 bus riding students, or 69 percent of the student body, can be notified of changes in bus routes due to weather emergencies.

Called the "fan-out," the procedure is one, if not the most, complete in the state, according to Earl Busard, business director for Northville Public Schools.

The fan-out was to undergo its first test run this week.

It begins with Busard notifying five persons, who in turn notify five or six other persons and continues until all 1,245 families have been contacted.

The fan-out will be used when weather conditions make back roads impassable and buses travel on main roads only, whether it be to pick students up in the morning or drop them off after school.

When parents are notified via the fan-out or radio stations WJR, WCAR, WKNR and WXYZ that schools are open but buses will be traveling main roads only, normal bus time schedules will be used. Automatically, the announcement of main road only bus routes means there will be no bus runs for kindergartners.

Busard said Kindergarten classes will be in session for parents who wish to take their children to school and pick them up.

Main roads traveled include Meadowbrook area, picked up at Seven Mile and Meadowbrook, Smock, pick up at Smock and Seven Mile and Marilyn and Seven Mile; Brookland Farms, pick up at Novi Road entrance to subdivision.

Others include Westview, pick up at Eight Mile and Westview; Connemara, pick up at Taft and Nine Mile and Connemara Drive and Nine Mile, Shadbroke and Edenderry, pick up at Seven Mile and Valencia and Edenderry and Seven Mile.

Students on Bradner and Franklin Roads will be picked up at Six mile and Bradner and Franklin and Bradner, Northville Estates, Eight Mile Road at entrance, Taft Colony, Main Street at Clement, Glenda Avenue, Glenda at 10 Mile, Kings Mill, Northville Road entrances, and Dolson and Ogg, Novi Road at Galway.

Taking students home from school during severe weather, buses will not run on Six Mile west of Sheldon, Napier, Ridge, Beck, Taft, Nine Mile, Haggerty Road between Seven and Eight Mile and West Main Street, Busard stated.

Students will be dropped off at the closest intersection to their home, he commented.

OK School Study

that future enrollments are likely to increase at this or a greater rate.

Noting that a new comprehensive high school would take some three years to complete, Dr. Kratz agreed with Wilkins that it is imperative that planning for new facilities be started immediately.

Trustee Gilbert Henderson echoed this observation, reminding the public that too often school districts don't prepare new facilities until after the districts are flooded with additional children, thus requiring emergency measures. He noted that the local district's new middle school was completed late, necessitating temporary split sessions.

In reporting that the official membership count, upon which school aid is based, totalled 2,148 students by the fourth Friday in September, he noted that "with all the new construction underway in the community, we have a total of 19 students—14 elementary, four secondary and one special education student—who have enrolled on a tuition basis."

"In most cases, the parent has requested enrollment on a tuition basis indicating the date the family plans to move into their new home."

Dr. Kratz reported the district has a total of 108 instructional staff members and 61 non-instructional staff personnel.

The superintendent also pointed out that approximately 50 percent of the 1972 Novi High School graduates are now enrolled in two or four-year degree granting colleges or universities.

Pucksters Set Sports Dinner

Northville's Hockey Association will hold its third annual sports dinner Thursday, November 2, at 7 p.m. in the Thunderbird-Hilton in Plymouth.

Guest speakers for the dinner will be Detroit Red Wing Coach John Wilson and Red Wing radio announcer Bruce Martin. Several Red Wing players will also be at the banquet.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling Chuck Smith at 349-5984.

WHICH CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE SUPPORTS THE BIG CORPORATE POLLUTERS?

(TAKE A LOOK.)

Professional polluters need professional help somewhere . . . Why do a favored few cause so much of the pollution of our environment? How do these big money interests continue to run roughshod over all of us in their eagerness to promote their self interest? Who lets them continue to make profits while dumping wastes at will, flooding our wilderness area, poisoning our lakes and streams, and smothering our air with every type of noxious waste? Can something be done? A concerned Congress can stop the corporate giants before it's too late. But more importantly, an individual congressman can do it by voting for the environment. Marv Stempien, Democratic candidate for the 2nd Congressional District, is that kind of dedicated legislator . . . but contrast the record of his Republican opponent. Just who has been protecting the big money men who seek profit before any other ecological consideration? Take a look!

Carpets and rugs are made of many different types of material that run the gamut of animal, vegetable and man-made fibers. The principal animal fiber is wool while cotton is the principal vegetable fiber. Man-made fibers include rayon, nylon, acrylic, modacrylic, and polypropylene olefin. The man-made fibers have been especially developed and can be engineered into controlled shapes, sizes and patterns. These are both numerous and beautiful. Remember that a carpet made of a fiber blend will always be most like the predominant fiber.

Motorcyclist Hurt in Crash

In Township

Floyd R. Sullivan, 17, of Timberland Road remains in critical condition at St. Mary hospital following a motorcycle accident at 2:50 p.m. Friday.

Township police reports said Sullivan was driving a motorcycle southbound on Clement Road when he passed one vehicle and slammed into the side of another southbound car which was attempting to turn left into a driveway near Neeson Street.

The car, driven by Bonnie A Hunt of 46957 Curtis Road, swung around on impact, police said.

Witnesses told police Miss Hunt was signalling for a left turn and began to turn when she was struck by Sullivan. Sullivan sustained a broken arm, broken ankle, facial cuts and a concussion.

Two break-ins are under investigation by township police.

A home at 42227 Sunnydale was broken into after unknown persons chisled a lock on a garage door. The break-in was reported October 18.

Missing are a meat grinder, can opener, knife sharpener, combination, glass top coffee table, camera, and attachments and a man's ring. Value of the missing articles is in excess of $350.

A stereo and eight-track tape player along with two speakers and five guns were stolen in the break-in of a home at 15870 Haggerty Road. The break-in was reported October 10 and value of the missing items is $565.

Mark Johnson, 18, of Northville Road was arrested Friday night by township police and charged with larceny from an auto.

Johnson, who was arraigned the same evening, and pled not guilty in 35th District Court, is free on $1,000 bond.

Police said the charges stem from the theft from a car in September. Another arrest is pending, officials said.

John J. Murray, 35, of Detroit was arrested Sunday night on charges of consuming alcoholic beverages on state land, trespassing and malicious destruction of property.

Township police were called to Northville State Hospital after a guard tried without success to evict Murray from the grounds.

According to reports, the guard told Murray he would not be allowed to visit a friend since Murray allegedly had been drinking.

Township police arrested Murray while he was driving his car around the grounds. According to police, Murray kicked in a section of a wall while being held at the police station.

Police are investigating circumstances surrounding the discovery of a 17-year-old Plymouth township girl at 11:30 p.m. Friday lying in the roadway on Beck between Six and Seven mile roads.

The girl was taken to St. Mary hospital and treated for facial cuts, bruises and a dislocated shoulder.

Residents of the area told police a few minutes earlier she had knocked at the door of a home on Curtis Road and asked to speak to the maid. She left the home when she was told there was no maid at the home.

The girl told police she had been drinking with friends and doesn't remember how she got to Beck Road.

COURT NEWS
In 35th District Court October 17, Denis R. James of 46155 West Seven Mile Road pled guilty to a charge of careless driving and was fined $39.

James was ticketed by township police October 2 following an accident

In Northville

The break-in and subsequent arson of a home at 1017 Fairfax Court is being investigated by city police detective bureau.

The home, which is under construction in Thompson-Brown Lexington Condo Home section off Taft Road, sustained between $200 and $400 damage about 5:30 p.m. Friday.

According to reports, a screen door had been cut to gain entry to the home and papers were stacked on the floor next to a wall and ignited. Both the floor and wall were damaged.

A youth told police he was playing in the area when he noticed the fire and saw a man escape into the woods. The man was described as in his late 20's, wearing a blue shirt and blue pants.

Police extinguished the fire.

Two vehicles were damaged by vandals last week who sprayed paint on them.

The incidents were reported to police last Thursday. Both had been sprayed with blue paint while they were parked on Ely Drive.

Auxiliary Officer James Whitcomb received a dislocated shoulder October 18 when he tripped and fell while attempting to break up a fight behind Northville High School.

According to reports, the fight took place after the bonfire held that evening at the school.

FIRE CALLS

COURT NEWS
James H. Schmidt of Livonia pled guilty to an added count of reckless driving and sentencing was deferred pending a report from the probation department.

The action came October 19 before 35th District Court Judge Dunbar Davis.

Schmidt was arrested by city police September 9 on charges of fleeing and eluding police officers following a chase in which Schmidt's and several police cars were damaged.

The original charge was dismissed after he pled guilty to the added count of reckless driving.

Terry Dees of 47235 11 Mile Road was bound over to Wayne County Circuit Court following an examination.

Dees, who was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed weapon August 14, will appear in circuit court November 2.

He was apprehended by city police following a high speed chase through Hines Park.

In district court October 17, Chester E. Kirk of Detroit was fined $104 after he pled guilty to added charges of driving while ability impaired.

Kirk was arrested July 28 for drunken driving and the charges were dismissed after he pled guilty to the added count.

Two men were found guilty of being drunk and each was fined $39. They are Gerrald J.

St. Clair of 18745 Ridge Road, arrested June 22, and Edward C. Wizinsky Jr. of Dearborn Heights, arrested July 28.

Ben G. Wood of Taylor was fined $54 (suspended) on charges of vagrancy. Wood was arrested February 22 by city police and pled guilty to the charges.

In Novi

With police still seeking to apprehend a man who has allegedly exposed himself to pre-school-aged children several times in the past few weeks, two reports regarding suspicious automobiles near Novi youngsters received special attention last week.

Novi Middle School, Principal Robert Youngblood told police one of his students had reported being tempted to enter a car by an unknown man. The man, as described by the youngster, had long black hair and a goatee, wore a brown suit, was approximately 25 years old, and drove a brown Nova with a broken head light.

Patrol units were dispatched to the area of the reported incident at the time school was dismissed, but no evidence of the car was detected.

Police also traced the license number of a car seen stopped on a school playground to a Detroit salesman. After interviewing the owner of the car, police determined his innocence.

"We don't mind chasing down leads like this one at all," commented Novi youth officer Robert Starnes. "We commend the citizen who spotted the car and submitted the license number. We're perfectly willing to chase down every lead we get. It's better to give us a lead that doesn't trace out than to see something suspicious and not report it."

A similar case of malicious destruction of property was reported by Chester Zielinski of 2054 Oriand.

Zielinski told police that he had been gone over the weekend and when he returned Sunday evening he discovered that a small rock had been thrown through the front window of his home. Value of the broken window was placed at $50.

August Frank Varady, 24, was arrested on charges of being drunk and disorderly last week. The arrest was made on the westbound I-96 expressway. Wixom police had been asked by the Michigan State Police to investigate a vehicle pulled up onto the median. Their investigation led to the arrest of Varady.

Arrested on charges of drunken driving last week were Ronald Roy Brant, 26, of Milford, and Annie Lee Hollis, 33, of Detroit.

A man who reported the theft of a fire arm last week faces possible felony charges, police reported.

Leo Raymond Shea, a South Lyon man, told police a .38 caliber, six-shot revolver he had brought to work to sell was stolen from his locker before the sale could be consummated.

Subsequent discussion revealed that Shea had purchased the gun in Arizona, where there are no firearm restrictions, and then transported it through several states to Michigan without registering it, a felony according to the law. In addition it was discovered that Shea has previously been convicted of a crime which would prohibit him from owning a gun.

No charges were brought against Shea, however, as the gun was no longer in his possession due to the theft and the court would not prosecute unless his possession of the gun could be proved conclusively, police reported.

Police are investigating an apparent attempted breaking and entering of a residence at 112 Maudlin. Owner of the home told police the screen on a window had been torn out and the window had been cracked.

In Wixom

A Mobil Oil credit card stolen from a Wixom resident has been traced to the west coast.

David Crippen of 1278 Flamingo told police his Mobil Oil credit card had been stolen from his home. He had been unaware of the theft, he reported, until he started receiving bills from the company in excess of $100.

The card was being used by a person driving a car with California license plates which was found to have been stolen from California. By contacting the Santa Monica Police Department in California, Wixom police learned that the stolen car had been recovered in Freeport, Texas, from a car dealership. The stolen vehicle had been traded in for a new Oldsmobile and the man reportedly had told the dealer he would return with the title for the car the following day, but never came back.

Police say they hope to make an arrest in the case.

Rocks were used to break three windows out of a cabin in the Finn Camp last week, according to police. The breakage was reported to police Wednesday, October 18.

A similar case of malicious destruction of property was reported by Chester Zielinski of 2054 Oriand.

Zielinski told police that he had been gone over the weekend and when he returned Sunday evening he discovered that a small rock had been thrown through the front window of his home. Value of the broken window was placed at $50.

Arrested on charges of drunken driving last week were Ronald Roy Brant, 26, of Milford, and Annie Lee Hollis, 33, of Detroit.

It's a Lonely Path

Heartache is a lonely path for Harvey Ritchie of Northville as he makes the slow journey to a neighbor's house after fire gutted the interior of his home—just five months after another blaze destroyed his North Center Street business place. He's carrying a pair of child's shoes, one of the few items spared damage in the house on Spring Drive.

Blaze Damages Ritchie's Home

For the second time in five months, fire has struck in the lives of the Harvey Ritchie family.

The family's home at 821 Spring Drive caught fire about 7:30 a.m. Monday, gutting the basement. The main floor of the home was severely damaged by smoke.

On May 17, Ritchie Brothers Laundry at 331 North Center was demolished by an early morning fire. Arson was listed as the cause of the laundry fire which wiped out the business owned by Harvey and his brother Richard (Skip) Ritchie.

Police and firemen were summoned to Monday's fire at 7:35 a.m. after Ritchie tried unsuccessfully to extinguish the flames. Smoke was reported pouring from the home when police arrived at the scene.

The fire began in the southeast corner of the basement when a four-year-old boy, whose family lives with the Ritchies, accidentally set the fire while playing with matches.

The fire spread rapidly, engulfing the stairway in flames from floor to ceiling. Ritchie received facial burns while attempting to extinguish the fire.

The youth, along with his two brothers, sister, mother and Mrs. Ritchie escaped without injury.

Firemen remained on the scene for more than one hour

Council Hears Audit Report

 money required to meet expenses. For example, the auditors pointed out that a special assessment of Novi Heights had been fully collected but is still $6,000 short of expenses. Similar deficit positions were seen for the Seeley Road and Orchard Hills assessment districts. The balance of the funds to close the assessment could be taken from the General Fund as a budgeted item, the report suggested. Building Department: With the increased demand for building permits, building department employees are frequently recording the permits in the cash receipts journal either out of sequence or grouped together and entered as a single line item.

This method should be changed to provide adequate control over permits and allow numerical checks for each and every recorded building permit, the auditors told the council. Sewer and Water Department Customer Billings: Two areas of possible savings were discovered in the way the sewer and water department processed its billings. The auditors felt that the city's practice of completely checking bills for the Huron Rouge system was excessive and that spot checks of randomly selected bills would be sufficient.

The second recommendation urged that the city consider automating customer sewer bills for the Walled Lake system. Presently the work of preparing, posting, and reconciling the billings is being done by hand. Automation of the system would lead to savings in man hours of clerical help. Sewer and Water Department Deposits: Customer payments are occasionally being held in the department for extensive periods of time, the auditors reported. Such a practice increases the probability of loss and decreases cash funds. In the future deposits in the bank should be made on a much more timely basis. Sewer Tap-in Fees for the Walled Lake Arm: A $600 tap-in fee for the Walled Lake arm is not being charged in accordance with the city ordinance, the council was told, as only newly constructed buildings are being charged the $600 fee. Either the ordinance should be amended to exclude those already hooked into the sewer or those users should be retroactively assessed the fee. Purchasing: According to the city charter all purchases of material or equipment in excess of $10 must have a purchase order. The city has only been issuing purchase orders for items in $1,000. The new schedule would propose that this be changed to $25. Oldford added that this was being done because often "the structure costs less than the bond required." However, fees for the commercial and industrial building in the city were raised in the proposed schedule. During questioning by the Council, Oldford said that "in 1971 and 1972, the building department lost over $2,000." When council members expressed negative feelings toward the schedule, Oldford said, "Then your proposal would be to take out money from the general fund to keep the department open." At least two Councilmen, Robert Dingeldey and Dr. Val Vangieson, expressed an interest in tabling the schedule until a time at which Council and Oldford could work out a schedule of fees which would be to everyone's liking. Dingeldey said he felt the fees would discourage homeowners from making improvements on their property. "I think the homeowner is being taken down the road," he said. Dr. Vangieson said the idea of the inspection charges "bothered" him because the city offers that service for the safety of the people. "It would be a shame if we charged the citizens for every police call or fire call," he said in comparison. Councilman Howard Coe made the motion to approve the proposed new fee schedule. The motion failed as no other member of council would support it.

excess of $50, however, with items of less than $50 being recorded in a log book. To comply with the city charter, the auditors recommended that purchase orders be issued for every purchase over $10. Cash Disbursements: To improve controls the auditors recommended that all invoices be checked for clerical accuracy prior to payment and, when paid, invoices be stamped to prevent duplicate payments. They further recommended that the duties of preparing and mailing the checks be given to two different people. Compliance with Budget: To comply with state regulations, the city budget should be formally amended by the council whenever a departure from the original budget is made. Fixed Assets: The city was told it should maintain detailed fixed asset records for all assets under its control, acquired through purchase, construction, contribution. Such an inventory would include chairs and desks as well as buildings, permanent easements, and roads. Purchasing and Receiving: The auditors recommended that the city discard its policy of using the packing slips with delivered materials instead of a receiving report form. Prenumbered receiving report forms should be used to document the receipt of all incoming material.

Schoolcraft College's crack soccer team picked up three victories and a tie in its last four outings to pull into a tie with defending champion Macomb Community College for first place in the Michigan Community College and Junior College soccer league. Schoolcraft now has a 5-0-2 record in league play, while Macomb's record stands at 6-1.

News from the Castle

(across from the Palace, that is...)

Guess what we first found out by way of Jean Day's column?... that McAllister's didn't even get an also ran at the Delta Gamma decorating bazaar. Well, we'll tout our own horn and take credit for it anyway—best someone should really learn to tell it like it is. Here is some good news for pre-holiday fixin up your ole castle. We will be allowing a "trick-or-treat" savings on all material, fabrics, wallpapers, furniture, etc., for the month of November! Now this sale does not apply to any of our clients we are working with nor any of our valued consultations with the sale! Just a plain discount on any items you select and purchase on your time—not ours! So, do your own thing and see what you get, baby. The sale will apply to all our interior designer wallpapers, fabrics, Baker and Milling Road furniture. So, Sweetie, you can't get them candied apples anywhere else! For somebody who is supposed to be in Florida working, we just can't get caught up here. We suppose Michigan Bell is happy though, with all the dialing going on. Talked with Virginia Bake this morning and it looks like they will be moving to Hough Park in Plymouth. (Oh, yes, and have you noticed the ole Bake home on West Main? Yellow and white with the blue door. The Harris' certainly have outdone themselves on a re-do of that gem. The inside is mostly Greeff and beautiful.) Virginia said she wants a whole new look and I told her fine, we certainly wouldn't duplicate any of our other homes in that area we are working with. The Merrills are just down the block, the Spruhans and Conns are a couple of blocks over with the Ott's a little further south and the Murphys about in the middle. So, it should prove interesting...and always rewarding when you work with Virginia Bake. Mrs. Chase is re-doing her fine ole place out in the hills. Northville's fine older residents are indeed a pleasure to serve and a joy to work with. It seems to be a vanishing breed. Flo McDermott finally got the master suite put together. The moving of the dining room wall has been a pet peeve of hers for years...when she accomplishes it (and she will) we're going to come back and have a drink on that! Oh, maybe we'll first fall overboard instead. We are offering a "goodie table" at 50 percent off items prior to the November 1st sale. These include Greeff and other select lines of merchandise. So dearies, get your brooms ready and make a landing at McAllister's. Sir Robert Bruce & Lady Beverly (Bruce & Bev, that is)

Ban Trick or Treat?

SCHMIDT

YES...

From a police officer's point of view, I believe trick or treating should be discontinued.

On the 31st of October, the children in this city, as well as in others, will again be on the streets after dark ringing door bells and yelling "trick or treat."

The worst part of all this is that some of them will be given apples with razor blades in them, candy with pins sticking out of it and even candy with LSD placed into it by means of a syringe. LSD can also be placed into oranges and other fruit that is handed out to the little beggars on this supposedly joyful evening.

Some parents don't even care enough about their children to go out with them on a night when they could easily be given these little treats or be hit by cars going down the road at various speeds. Believe me, they do go at various speeds no matter where they are or who is in the way.

Every year we read about some child being beaten up by older juveniles who want their candy or being hit by a motorist who didn't see the youngster running across the street, anxious to go on to the next house and ring the doorbell and yell "trick or treat."

Some of the costumes parents dress their young ones in prevent the children from seeing two feet in front of him, let alone an oncoming car.

These are just a few of the reasons why I believe we should do away with this yearly event that causes these types of tragedies which are increasingly occurring to our youngsters.

Corporal Robert Kramer
Northville City Police Department

NO...

Halloween is "trick or treat" night. Should we take this wonderful night away from children? They have been looking forward to this night since last Halloween. I say no.

Cannot children go out just one night a year for happiness? Cannot parents and neighbors give of their time just one night for children? Drivers, for just one night, can you not take the time to be extra careful? In regards to the few isolated cases of tampered treats, cannot parents take the time to screen the children's bags of treats and throw out anything that is not sealed?

We have been trying to make our children more creative. At school the children are busy coloring, painting, cutting, and pasting. Each child is trying to make the neatest Halloween creation. Imagination flows rampant. But what is Halloween without "trick or treat?"

Halloween is a night given to creativity. Children love to dress up. Oh, what fun they have that night, as they go from door to door dressed as princesses, rabbits, clowns, spacemen, or even ghostly ghosts.

And then later, the reward, for being good little "trickers" comes when they are savoring their delicious treats. It is a time to teach that vandalism doesn't pay.

Come on people! All it takes is time to make "trick or treat" safe for our children. Let's keep "trick or treat" in Halloween.

SPEAKING

for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

A major New York newspaper, Long Island's Newsday, announced recently it is dropping the practice of endorsing candidates.

Newsday declared that a newspaper shouldn't be telling its readers for whom to vote; that endorsements suggest bias; that it's difficult to maintain independence and endorse; that unions shouldn't endorse, so why should newspapers.

When I read the announcement, I thought to myself how comfortable the Newsday publisher must feel with that monkey of responsibility neatly whisked off his back.

Privately, however, I felt that he'd been given bad advice; that he was cheating his readers by abrogating a responsibility; that he was like a mother who only sees and touches her child when it is clean and ready for bed.

Newsday just knocked the belly out of journalism.

But wait. That's my reaction. And I was reminded a few days later that it is not shared by everyone.

The same clipping that I had read was enclosed in a letter to me from a local reader with this added comment:

"I believe it is time newspapers become accountable to the public and that the information in the attached article is worthy of your consideration".

I won't use the reader's name, although I'm sure she wouldn't mind.

Personally, I can't think of a single privately-owned business more accountable to the public than this nation's newspapers.

And it's impossible for me to imagine how accountability can be strengthened by shedding the practice of printing personal conclusions reached after studying qualifications and observing performances of those who seek and hold public office.

Yet many others share the opinion that newspapers abuse the power to influence.

I think all of us (and publishers are readers of newspapers, too) enjoy reading editorials with which we agree. It gives us reassurance.

But when we take strong exception to an editorial, we suspect the writer is an idiot sitting in an ivory tower totally isolated from reality; or, even worse, that self interest and personal gain are involved.

The job of publishing a newspaper weekly or daily is a multi-pronged responsibility.

There are readers, advertisers, employees and the newsmakers, themselves, to be considered.

And there is an over-riding community responsibility that, in my opinion, when assumed distinguishes one newspaper from another.

I believe the newspaper that acts as a watchdog, that periodically nags, criticizes, implores and praises; that on the one hand can encourage citizens to run for office, then criticize them for doing a shabby job; that gets totally involved in what its community leaders are doing and how they perform; that endorses candidates, backs or opposes proposals, supports or fights bond issues; I believe that newspaper will live the hectic life of the mother who washes diapers, cleans noses, sweats out fevers, and dries tears.

The satisfaction comes when the kid's all cleaned up and ready for bed.

Overall our goal is to keep our news' pages full of local stories and pictures concerning a variety of subjects.

We strive to make these stories both interesting and informative; and as complete as time and space allow; and as objective and accurate as humanly possible.

On our editorial page it is our intention to challenge the reader to face the issues and candidates head-on; to base our opinion on logic and reason; to produce response.

We do not pretend to have the power to influence the reader. But we do expect that the reader is entitled to information that we have gathered either by interview, study or firsthand observation.

The reader knows it's opinion; and he knows the press is not infallible.

But unless he's been going to every single local meeting and has taken the time to study all the issues and talk personally to the candidates, it's a better source than none at all.

Naturally, we hope the trouble is worth it.

We intend to keep it up.

There's a letter on the next page from Joseph Fiorilli that deserves response.

Fiorilli is a close observer of community affairs and a man who once offered his talents (which I believe to be considerable) to the township as a candidate for supervisor. His party label, not his credentials, was most responsible for his failure at the polls.

This rebuttal is offered not because of Fiorilli's criticism. He's disagreed with our stand on several occasions. And response, like Fiorilli's, is what helps shed light.

But in this instance, I believe misunderstanding exists.

First, this column rarely "attempts to create impressions". I try to tell it flat out, like it is, at least in my eyes.

And there's no doubt in my mind that existing township hall facilities are adequate for many years to come. Sure, I'd rather see our two governmental units (city and township) join together.

But whether they do or not, I'm definitely opposed to spending $500,000 that will introduce nothing but more costs.

The present facility provides more than adequate space, ideal location, convenient parking, reasonable rent. And for less than one-tenth the cost of a new building, air conditioning and dropped ceilings could be added for temperature and sound control.

As for a future lease, I suspect if Fiorilli was a member of the township board this alternative

'What's Wrong with Kids?'

To the Editor:

I would like to know what is wrong with some of the kids today. I don't mean the biggest majority who are good kids. I am talking about the ones who have a mean or malicious streak in them.

These kids have no respect for anyone's property. They cut across and through anybody's property. If they see something they want they take it whether it is nailed down or not. If they feel like breaking a bulb (which has been replaced many times) in an outside light they do it. If they want a bike (which by the way was in the garage) they take it, then throw it in the Mill Pond. Just by chance it was fished out of the Pond, turned over to the police and we got it back.

If you ask them, "Please don't cut across my lawn," and they take a dislike of you then look out; because you are really in for it.

I'm really afraid to see Halloween come because anything can happen. There will probably be a lot of eggs and rotten tomatoes thrown at houses. It has already happened in my neighborhood with rotten eggs.

The thing that has prompted me to write this letter is as follows:

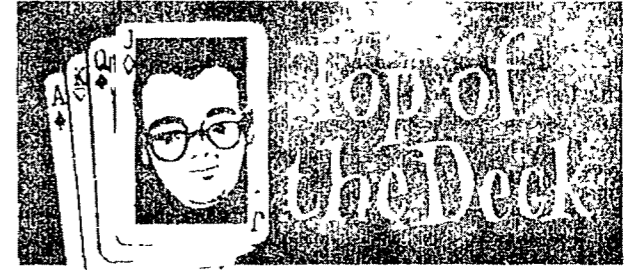

My children and myself helped my parents plant a big garden last summer. My kids and I planted pumpkin seeds thinking maybe they could make a little bit of money (I have been laid off for a long time and can't afford to give them money). We were lucky and last week we picked about a hundred nice pumpkins. We put them on our front porch all sorted by size and covered them up with a quilt.

Well, some mean kids came along after dark and cut almost all of the biggest ones in half. They must have had a big butcher knife because the pumpkins were not smashed; they were cut in two.

Some people will probably say that this is just kids having a little fun but I don't agree. When they destroy or

The big packing houses, which recently squeezed a favorable ruling out of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, make me gag...and there's no telling what they'll do for my kids.

That's because the court's ruling, boiling down, means you and I soon may be munching on eyes, lips, snouts, spleens, stomachs and other equally unpleasant animal by-products.

The court, as you may have read, has said Michigan's high meat composition standards can no longer be enforced because they exceed the standards of the Federal government.

So the packing houses, apparently, can now stuff entrails into our sausages as they have been doing right along in other less particular states.

It's a bunch of baloney.

I for one don't want any buffed up frank spitting (or looking) me in the eye...and ol' man Armour and his packing house compatriots will get no sympathy from me when my kids learn what's inside their breakfast sausage.

It may be different in other homes but in ours the kids are already squeamish about what they eat.

Good gracious, my boys sterilize the necks of their camping canteens between swigs.

A fly lands on a plate and we've got to capture and release the bugger unharmed, then place the scrubbed dish in antiseptic isolation for two weeks before it can be used again.

Frankly, blows have been struck when one kid nibbled on another's cake or, worse yet, accidentally used the wrong fork.

And lately one daughter has turned vegetarian because she can't stand the idea of eating what once was a "nice animal who never hurt anybody."

In that kind of climate you can imagine their reaction when they learn what is about to happen to their favorite food—the hotdog. Pity the packing houses.

The argument of national manufacturers of our sausages, of course, is that Michigan's higher standards mean they must process, pack and label two separate kinds of sausage—the untainted variety for Michigan and the "you name it" kind for the other states.

Naturally, it would not occur to the manufacturers that the problem could be resolved if they upgraded the product for the entire nation.

That being the case why don't you join me in demanding that our Congressmen stamp out entrails. Meanwhile, ask your kids how they like their eyes—medium or well done?

would have been thoroughly explored by now. It's my opinion that the present membership hasn't pursued this course for obvious reasons.

Finally, The Record did not protest the creation of a Building Authority, nor was it indicated that the Authority would cost the taxpayers money.

In itself, the Authority means nothing until it proposes a project.

Then it could become expensive to the taxpayer. A Building Authority has the power to build whatever it chooses with the approval of the township board and levy whatever tax is necessary to finance the project without approval of the voters.

And therein rests the difference between a Building Authority and the Northwest Wayne County Sanitation Authority to which Fiorilli refers. The latter permits different governmental units to work together in financing mutually needed public services.

Unlike the Building Authority, it does not have taxing authority.

That's why, despite a need (particularly in the future) for rubbish disposal facilities, that sanitation authority progress is stalled.

Townships cannot afford the service without a tax levy and they do not have the authority to make such a levy without a vote of the people.

'Will Voters OK Township Hall?'

To the Editor:
Let's clear the air on Township Hall or no Township Hall.

Does the Township have a right to Township Hall? If most assuredly does. The Township is a bona fide legal entity and as such should have its own governmental complex.

Will the Township Hall cost additional tax levies? The question is not whether it will cost more money, but, whether we, the Township residents, are willing to approve a possible increase or be satisfied with temporary offices on a permanent basis.

The Record has made attempts to create the impression that the present offices of the Township are a temporary expediency until annexation becomes a reality. A fairer position in your recent editorial would have recommended a delay on the creation of a Building Authority until the question of annexation is settled. While the Record protests that the Building Authority may cost the taxpayers money, interestingly, no protests were made about the formation of the Northwest Wayne County Sanitation Authority as to whether this new Authority would cost the taxpayers an additional tax increase.

A final question: Should the Board of Education decide not to renew the Township Office lease; or, if the Northville Library should find it necessary to expand into the Community Building where the Township Office is presently located; or, if annexation should be turned down, doesn't it seem reasonable that a new Township Hall complex will become a necessity?

Joseph J. Fiorilli complex, "because this might result in an increase in taxes." Why is Mr. Vander Molen against an increase in taxes for township municipal facilities, yet not against an increase in taxes which would surely accompany annexation? Is this not a case of the right hand not knowing what the left is doing?

To the Editor:

It has been obvious for a long time that the property tax as the basis for financing public education has reached the saturation point with most Michigan citizens. All one need do in order to illustrate that fact is examine the number of millage defeats all around the state in the last couple of years.

The millages that are passing are mainly "renewals" intended only to avoid total disaster for most school districts.

The property tax for schools has had it! So have the people footing the bill for ever-increasing property taxes.

We now have an opportunity to do something dramatic about our taxes and our schools, by supporting Proposals C and D on the November Ballot.

These proposals, if adopted, will be two very important things. First, the Constitution of the state of Michigan will be amended to reduce the limit on property taxes for schools from the current 50 mills to 26. This means, in effect, that all property taxes for schools will be eliminated, although local citizens may still vote for up to 6 mills for "enrichment" programs.

Second, the Constitution will be amended to allow for a graduated state income tax to finance education. Such a graduated tax is currently prohibited in Michigan.

We need these reforms badly. And we need to accomplish them by amending the state Constitution so that we have a guarantee of tax relief and reform.

A "YES" vote on Proposals C and D on November 7 will accomplish both of these constitutional guarantees.

Paul Osborn

Northville Ed. Association

How Early?

To the Editor:

As we are all aware, the 6th of October was the final day of voter registration, with the general election to be held on the 7th of November. The recent decision of the Michigan Supreme Court has struck down all voter residency requirements. Therefore, there are no longer any residency requirements in Michigan. These are all facts.

However, on the 3rd of October, three days prior to the voter registration deadline the staff and certain patients at the Plymouth State Home voted.

Voted in the general election by absentee ballot. How can people be deprived of their rights? How can our local elected officials just toss aside any persons right to vote, with the excuse that such absentee voting must be accomplished early. How early?

As a candidate for the office of Clerk in Northville Township on the Democratic ticket, I cannot believe the actions that have occurred. If this occurs under the present clerk, can we expect more of the same from her hand-picked successor.

This matter has been taken to the County Election Commission. Why in a democracy are we afraid of the ballot box? Or is Northville Township a DEMOCRACY!!!

Sincerely,
Michael Peter Frice

'Nit Picking'

To the Editor:

There have been numerous times when I have been opposed to actions taken by members of the Township Board of Trustees. Now I find myself in full agreement with at least one action.

Mr. Frice has called our clerk's action in regard to registration procedures a "whim". I would like to know why he thinks the citizens of Kings Mill and Highland Lakes should receive preferential treatment. The township offices are centrally located and available to anyone who wishes to register. I am sure these same citizens would get to town for a "Bargain Sale". If they are not concerned enough to register they wouldn't vote anyway.

If the clerk sent a deputy to Kings Mill and one to Highland Lakes she would certainly be obliged to do as much for every other subdivision and perhaps set up a temporary office on a few street corners in other populated areas. Really!

No, Mr. Frice. You are wrong and your petty nit-picking does no credit to you or to other candidates of the Democratic Party, some of whom have been very dedicated, helpful, concerned citizens of this community since long before your arrival.

Sincerely,
Rose Williams

To the Editor:

On behalf of the members of the Northville-Novu area, FISH, I'd like to thank you for the recent series of articles in your newspaper about the FISH and our current problems. The woman who recently wrote to the Editor stating that she had volunteered but was not contacted was right; of late we have not been properly organized. But we're human and we keep trying.

With the publicity supplied by your paper and the hard work of several FISH, the "Emergency" meeting held on October 4 was a great success. Because the Northville-Novu people do care, as I suspected all along, the FISH Steering Committee is once again adequately staffed to assure that the organization runs smoothly.

I wish we would get back to the times where we had a little respect and yes, a little fear of the police, teachers and others with authority

Offensive Blunders Doom Mustangs

For the second time in the last two games, Northville's defensive unit had good reason to consider some sort of legal action against the offensive team.

Something like "non-support," or, "aiding and abetting hostile forces" would be appropriate charges.

The Mustang defenders, who seem to get a little bit better with each passing week, gave up 213 yards - all of it on the ground - to Farmington Harrison Friday. But every time the Hawks got within smelling distance of their goal line, the Northville defense got stingier than John Wayne at a Democratic fund raising dinner.

It was the Northville offense which gave up the points. Two key blunders gave the Hawks a pair of touchdowns and enabled them to take a 13-0 victory over the Mustangs Friday.

Both Harrison touchdowns came in the second half. The first was the result of a fumble which the Hawks' Mark Bentivolio covered on the Northville seven yard line. And the second came midway through the final period when Craig Perkins hauled in an errant pass on the Northville 24 yard line and galloped into the end zone with it.

The loss to Harrison brings to an end Northville's second full season in the Western Six Conference and left the Mustangs still looking for their first league grid victory.

The game itself was something short of a masterpiece, as each team repeatedly made costly turnovers. Northville lost three fumbles and had two passes intercepted, while Harrison lost two fumbles and had one pass intercepted.

The first key turn-over came at the end of the first quarter. The Hawks had driven to a first and ten situation on the Northville 12 yard line only to see their drive halted when halfback Dave Thorne fumbled after an eight yard gain and Northville recovered.

A second Harrison drive was thwarted shortly later when tackle Steve Serkaian covered another fumble on the 36 yard line.

Northville's closest brush with a touch down in three weeks occurred moments later. Sophomore halfback Doug Crisan carried twice to the 49 yard line and then quarterback Bill McDonald and Bart Taylor teamed up on a beautiful 43 yard pass play that carried down to the Hawks' eight yard line.

McDonald darted six yards to the one on a third down play, but with fourth and one yard to go for the touchdown, Harrison's Mark Bentivolio darted through the Northville line and forced a fumble on the hand off between McDonald and Crisan.

The remainder of the half saw Harrison drive from their own nine to the Northville eleven, where Jim Harkins' 30 yard field goal attempt hit the cross bar and bounced back toward the playing field.

Harrison gained 107 yards rushing in the second quarter alone, but left the field at the half tied 0-0 with the Mustangs.

Harrison put the winning touchdown on the board early in the third quarter and, not surprisingly, it was the result of a turn over set up by a turn-over.

John Sherman, Northville's line defensive safety, picked off a Pagnucco aerial on the eight yard line and returned it to the 13. But on the Mustangs' first play, Bentivolio - who spent only slightly less time in the Northville backfield than the Mustang halfbacks - got to McDonald at approximately the same time the hike from center did and the ball squirted loose and was recovered by Harrison on the seven.

Two plays later Sam Pink darted over the goal line from three yards out for the game's first score.

The Mustangs couldn't come back.

Thanks to a couple of penalties they drove from their own 31 to the Harrison 34 before a fumble ended the drive.

The Hawks wrapped up the victory moments later. Northville regained possession of the ball on their own 16 yard line, but on the very first play Perkins picked off Crisan's halfback pass and ran it into the end zone to run the score to 13-0.

Led by the running of McDonald, Northville moved the ball down to the Harrison 12 yard line in the game's waning moments. But the Mustang signal caller was then sacked twice for losses totalling 13 yards and was forced to surrender the ball on the 30 yard line, as the Hawks wrapped up their second Western Six victory.

The Mustangs, who are now 1-5, will journey to Brighton Friday to meet the winless Bulldogs. Last year's game between the two squads ended in a 6-6 tie. Game time is 8 p.m.

day is rapidly approaching. "We can't win if we don't score," said Shonta of his 13-0 loss to Harrison. "That's the whole thing in a nut shell - we just can't score."

"We could have beaten Harrison. They moved the ball on us, but when it came right down to crossing our goal line, our defense stopped them. They scored both their touchdowns off our offense."

"We've been shut out three games in a row now. I don't know why it is but we just can't seem to get that ball over the goal line. We spent the whole week working on plays within the 10 yard line, but when it came right down to doing it, we failed. We had the ball on their one and on their 12, but we couldn't put it in. With those two touchdowns we could have won."

"My biggest disappointment was the play of our offensive line," Shonta continued. "I thought at the start of the season it was going to be our strong point and that we'd have trouble with our backs. But it's been just the opposite. Crisan is doing a fine job for a sophomore at running back, but our line hasn't been that strong."

"Some times they'll really blow their men right off the field and the next time they'll get blown out themselves."

In fairness to his line, Shonta admits that injuries have played an important role. Tom Johnson, the tight end, watched the game with a cast on his leg. Bill Potter is just returning to action after three games on the sidelines with a badly twisted knee. Guard Steve Serkaian has been playing both ways though hobbled by injuries, and Jim Porterfield is still limping from the huddle to the line of scrimmage with a twisted ankle.

Perhaps the key player in Northville's loss was Harrison's Mark Bentivolio, whose ability to penetrate the Mustang line led to both Hawk touchdowns and ended both Northville threats.

"He was quick as a cat," commented Shonta. "He's probably the best nose guard we've seen all year. He was anticipating the snap and he guessed right more than he guessed wrong and really hurt us. As soon as he saw that ball wiggle he was through our line."

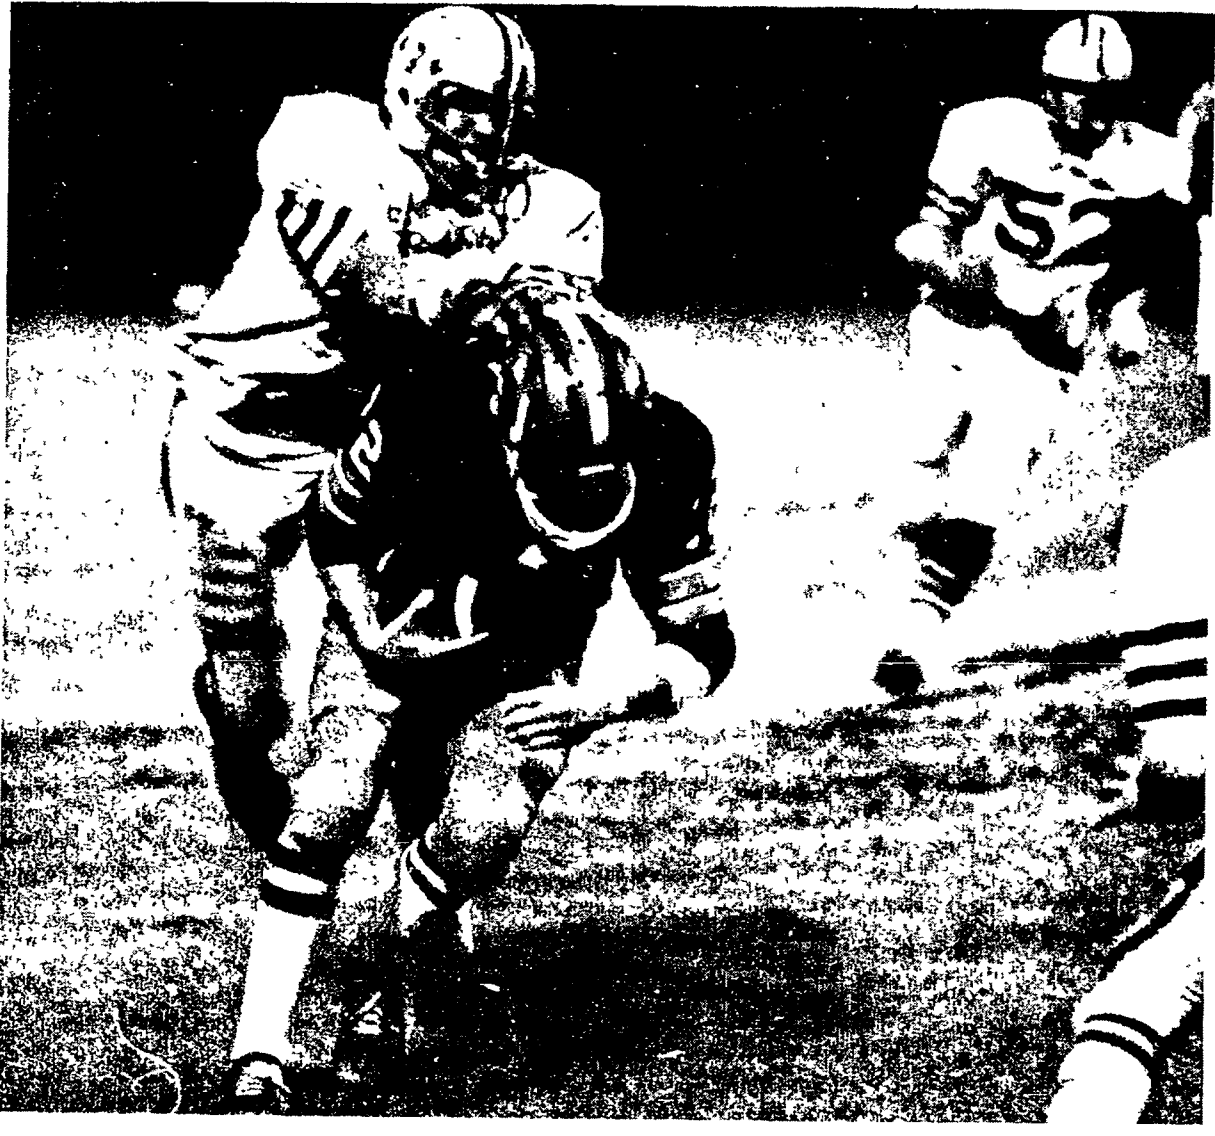

"In fact, their whole team was very quick," he continued. "But they weren't able to score on our defense. If we could just have got our offense going we could have won."

END OF THE ROAD — This Farmington Harrison tackler won't win any awards for technique, but no one could argue with the effectiveness of his tackling form as his hearty shove successfully grounded Northville's Jim O'Brien after an 18 yard return of a third quarter kick-off.

Harriers Take 2nd In League Meet

Close as a hen's teeth. That's the way Northville cross-country coach Ralph Redmond described his squad's loss to heavily-favored Livonia Churchill in the Western Six Conference championships Tuesday.

He was right.

The young Mustang runners had given the defending league champs quite a run for their money over the three mile course at Wixom's Hickory Hills Golf Course.

The Chargers won the meet with a total of 34 points, while Northville was just six behind with 40. Third place Waterford Mott had a distant 82 points.

The amazing thing about the championships was not that Churchill won - that was expected - or that the Mustangs finished second - that too was pretty much expected. The amazing thing was that the Northville harriers would come as close as they did.

After all, during the regular season Churchill had taken Northville apart 22-33 in a dual meet, taking first, second, third, fourth, and sixth.

Nevertheless, Redmond was displeased with his team's performance.

"I'm despondent," he reported. "It would have been different if it hadn't been so close. The toughest ones to lose are the close ones and believe me this was a close one. One man here or there could have meant all the difference. We could have won and we didn't. That's what hurts."

The league individual championship went to Waterford Mott's Don Bennett, while Churchill's Mark Priebe finished second.

The two top Northville runners took third and fourth places in the meet. Guy Cole came in third with Tom Coram right behind him. By finishing in the top seven, both runners qualified for the all-league team.

Kevin Koffler, a sophomore in his first year of cross-country, was the next Northville finisher, crossing the line in eighth place, while Tim Taggart and another sophomore, Tim Hurley, rounded out the Northville scoring in twelfth and thirteenth place respectively.

"It was a major improvement over what we did last year," added the Northville coach. "Last year we were third and had 77 points. We cut that figure almost in half."

Saturday Redmond will take his team to Holly for the Class B regionals. His goal - to finish either first or second and thus qualify the team for the state meet.

"We set two goals at the start of the season," he reported. "We wanted to win the league meet and finish either first or second in the regionals. Well, we didn't win the league. We're going to have to make up for it Saturday in the regionals."

Mustang of the Week honors go to offensive guard-defensive linebacker Tim Rice. "Tim's been improving steadily on both offense and defense throughout the year," said Coach Chuck Shonta. "His last two games against Churchill and Harrison have been outstanding." Rice, a 5'9", 190 pound junior, had seven first hits and 10 assists in Friday's 13-0 loss to Farmington Harrison.

Livonia Churchill all but wrapped up the Western Six Conference championship by recording a 12-0 victory over Waterford Mott in their showdown clash Friday.

Quarterback Bob Blaes tallied both Churchill touchdowns the first on a 14 yard sprint in the second quarter and the second on a one yard drive in the fourth quarter, but the real winners of the game was the tenacious Charger defense.

Recovering two fumbles and intercepting one pass, the Churchill defense limited the Corsairs to 109 yards of total offense and did not allow them to penetrate beyond their 28 yard line.

The Churchill defense has now recorded five straight shutouts and hasn't been scored upon since their opening game when they topped Thurston.

Number One! Wildcats Smash Saline

"They're good, second best in the league," chortled Assistant Coach Rick Trudeau, placing his emphasis on "second best" when asked about Saline.

He and Head Mentor John Osborne had received the congratulations of Hornet Coach Merv Ward and had ridden the shoulders of their victorious charges to the sidelines for the now familiar dancing chant in the endzone. "One, two, three, four, forty-two!"

92-13. And in the stands another now familiar chant: "We're Number One!"

Novi had just polished off its last major obstacle in the path to the Southeastern Conference championship—first in the history of the local high school—and now the jubilant coaches were answering post-game questions of the press.

But it was Saline's coach who summed it all up in congratulating Osborne following Friday's game: "You've got a great team."

And indeed he has. Previously, rated among the top five "C" teams in the state, Novi's easy victory over ninth ranked "B" Saline should move the Wildcats still higher in the ratings. . . and even if by some fluke it doesn't. . . there is no doubt in the minds of local fans: "We're Number One."

Not only did the Wildcats defeat their major opponent—previously unbeaten Saline—but they did it in the same overwhelming fashion that marked their other five triumphs this season.

Furthermore, the win came in the Hornets' homecoming, just as the previous week's victory was notched in defending champion Chelsea's homecoming.

Tomorrow the Wildcats will get their chance to perform before their own homecoming crowd, hosting fourth-place Dexter before closing out the league schedule next week at Ypsilanti Lincoln.

Exploding early—a Novi trademark this season—the Wildcats scored just six plays after the opening kickoff.

Taking the kick at the 13, Novi marched to the Saline 31 where Quarterback Steve Lukkari rifled a perfect pass to End John Pantalone for the touchdown. Then Lukkari put his toe to the first of his six perfect extra points of the evening.

In its first crack at the ball, Saline picked up just four yards before punting to midfield. And Novi came right back, as Halfback Jim VanWagner returned the punt to the Saline 11 and five plays later Halfback Gary Collins smashed over from the 2.

Down now 14-zip, Saline bounced back, capping a 30-yard drive on the ground with a 19-yard fourth-down aerial from Quarterback Bill Farrell to Halfback Scott Skinner, who tightroped over the goaline at the sideline marker

But the Hornet breather was shortlived because on the first play of its next attack, Van Wagner took the ball on an optional drive play and scooted down the right side line—71 yards—for the third Wildcat score

And there were still more than three minutes to play in the first quarter

A pair of interceptions—one by Saline at the 6 and one by

Novi at the 44—highlighted the second quarter until with just 18 seconds to go Lukkari fired a beauty to Pantalone in the corner and Novi had a 36-yard TD

The Wildcats had more surprises for Saline in the second half

On third down from its 30 in the opening series, Farrell's pass was intercepted by Roger Pelchat and the tall

Novi end galloped 38 yards for the touchdown

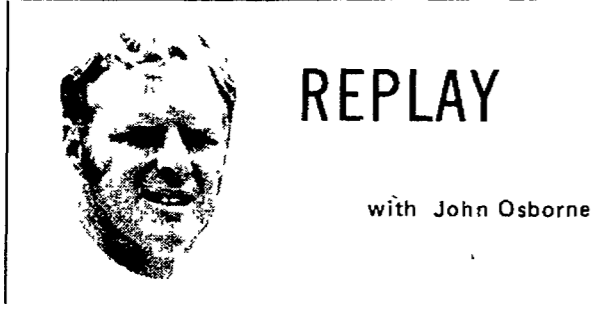

Later in the same period, Pelchat picked off another Saline pass to set the stage for Novi's final score. On third down from the Saline 38, Lukkari passed to Van-Wagner who made a beautiful finger-tip catch for the TD

In the final quarter, after losing possession on a fumble inside Novi's 7 and after giving up an intercepted pass at the 12, the Hornets finally scored in the dying minutes on a nine-yard pass from Farrell to Skinner

with John Osborne

With victories over Chelsea and Saline in the bag and his team apparently headed for the first Southeastern Conference Championship in the history of Novi High School, how did Coach John Osborne feel?

"Beautiful! Excellent! For the first time in two weeks I almost feel relaxed," admitted the Novi mentor from his home Monday.

And then Osborne offered a perfect illustration of why coaches get ulcers.

"Of course, that's the very problem we have to guard against - overconfidence. I don't think there's any doubt that we've met and passed our two big tests. But we've still got to win two more games to take the conference championship and three more games to finish an undefeated season. Those were the goals we set at the start of the year and we can't let up now."

Prior to the Wildcats' 42-13 thumping of Saline, Osborne had admitted that he had thought his team could swamp South Lyon and Chelsea, but he doubted that they could do the same with the Hornets.

"I guess I was a little surprised with the final score," he admitted. "Their pre-season reports said they had three men who could do 4.7 in the 40 and we didn't have anyone anywhere near that fast. That and the fact that they looked very strong in the game films we saw made us think it was going to be a very close football game."

"I thought the game would be decided by who could defend the other better."

"Offensively, they run a power I," Osborne continued. "They primarily use their power to blast their way through the line and it has worked well for them. But the slanting of our front five defensive linemen shut that off pretty well. I thought our front five played another fine ball game."

Osborne spoke particularly highly of the play of sophomore tackle Ron Buck. "Ron had a poor game in one of the games they scouted pretty extensively and we had the feeling they would try to pick on him. That's exactly what they did, too. But Ron really crossed them up. He played a truly outstanding game. He really messed up their power dive play. I'd have to say he was one of the major factors in our victory."

Osborne also lauded the play of defensive back Rober Pelchat, who intercepted three passes, converted one of them into a touchdown, and ended a Saline threat by intercepting another pass in the end zone. "A fantastic performance," said Osborne.

Novi's offensive efforts were marked by an increased emphasis on passing.

"They were letting Lukkari run parallel to the line of scrimmage as much as he wanted to," explained the Novi coach. "They were jumping the pitch men (Boyer and VanWagner), but didn't worry about Steve unless he turned upfield."

"What that did was put a great deal of pressure on the defensive back. By putting the defensive halfback on the pitch men that gave Pantalone a chance to go one on one against the other defender. And by letting Lukkari run along the line of scrimmage that halfback also had to look out for the run. It's too much for one man to handle. People have been so concerned with shutting off Boyer and VanWagner all year that they've been overlooking Lukkari's passing and Pantalone's receiving. We've had six touchdown passes in the past two games against the two best teams in the league."

Little Leaguers Win Three More

Northville's little league football teams keep getting better and better. For the second week in a row all three Colt teams posted victories.

Victims of the Colt attack were the Romulus Flyers

Wildcat

The Colt varsity squad kept its undefeated streak intact by posting an 8-0 triumph which ran their season's record to 7-0. A third quarter sweep around end and the subsequent two point conversion provided all the scoring in the hard-played contest.

The junior varsity Colts returned the opening kick-off 69 yards for a touchdown and never let up as they ran to a 28-0 conquest of the Romulus squad. The Colts added two more touchdowns in the first quarter to pile up a quick 22-0 lead and then coasted to their fourth win against two losses and a tie in seven games.

Completing the blitz of the Flyers were the Colt freshmen, who notched their fourth win in seven games with a 28-14 decision.

Three long runs gave the Colt frosh a 20-0 half time lead, and they upped that margin to 28-0 with a safety and another end around play in the fourth quarter, before relinquishing a pair of Flyer six-pointers in the final moments of the contest.

42 AND COUNTING—Surrounded almost completely by his players, Novi Coach John Osborne leads his team through their weekly post-game victory stomp. After each victory, the Wildcats take a quick time out in the end zone and count off the number of points they scored. The 42 points stomped off against Saline Friday were probably the most satisfying. But the record of 64 points against South Lyon was without a doubt the most tiring.

State Title Eludes Golfers

Northville's hopes of winning the state Class B golf championship died in the wind and the rain and the cold at the Marshall Country Club Saturday

Winners of all their dual meets over the past two years and winners of every major golf tournament in the state of Michigan over the past two months, the Mustang linksters finished a badly-beaten tenth in the twenty-one team field that qualified for the state finals.

A bitterly disappointed Al Jones, coach of the Northville team, reported the news.

"We started out playing badly and we continued playing badly all the way to the end," he said. "It was without a doubt the very worst round of golf we've played all year."

Indeed. With the exception of Bob Simmons who turned in an 81, each of the Northville golfers turned in his poorest round of the year, as the team score soared to 353 - 28 strokes behind first place Saginaw MacArthur

"Did you see who won the Class A title," asked Jones, a note of irony in his voice. "West Bloomfield. And we beat them just last week. And Thurston finished third and we've beaten them twice this season."

The Mustangs went into the state meet as heavy favorites. The simple truth of the matter is that regardless of the results of the state tournament the Northville team has been far and away the best team in the state this year.

Not only had they won all four major prep tournaments - two of them by lopsided margins - and posted a 21 stroke victory over their near rivals last week in the regionals, the Mustang foursome had also exhibited a fondness for the Marshall course on which the state tournament was played.

The Mustangs won the Marshall Invitational earlier in the year with a four man total of 306 - a new school record. John Hlohenic, perhaps the ace of the Northville team, had led the way in that tournament with an amazing round of 70 - another school record. In addition, John Marshall had shot a 77, Brian Mills a 78, and Bob Simmons an 81.

But those scores bore no resemblance to the ones carded by the Mustangs Saturday. Simmons repeated his 81, but Hlohenic and Marshall soared to 89s and Mills had a 94.

Part of the problems, according to Jones, was the weather.

"The only way there could have been worse playing conditions was if there had been about five inches of snow," stated the veteran Mustang mentor. "I know the weather conditions are the same for everyone, but as far as I'm concerned the weather conditions hurt the good golfers far more than the bad ones."

"Their games are that much more intricate," he continued. "Their adjustments are much finer than the average golfer. There is just no way that that was a legitimate test of golfing ability."

Jones proceeded to question the decision which made golf a fall sport instead of a spring sport

"I think it was much better when we started in bad weather and headed toward good weather," he said. "As it is now I think the golfers tend to lose their concentration at the end of the season. They've been playing since March and as the weather gets down to the freezing point there's a tendency to say its time to put the clubs away for the winter. It's just not as good this way. Our last three meets have been played in 32 degree weather."

"The people I feel sorriest for," Jones continued, "are the kids. They've had a great season - there's no two ways of looking at it. They've probably had one of the finest seasons any golf team in the state has ever had. They're the ones who are disappointed about not winning the championship. It's the only thing they haven't won."

"I just wish they would have had a better day to play golf. I'd have felt a little bit better for them if they'd had a better day," Jones concluded.

It was showdown time all the way across the board for SEC teams last week. While Novi and Saline battled for the number one position four teams all with 2-2 records, battled for third, fourth, fifth, and sixth places, and even the two last place clubs, Lincoln and Dexter, squared off against each other. Chelsea retained at least a mathematical chance of being for the league title by rolling over Dundee 25-6. Bruce Gustor scored twice and quarterback John Mann scored on a three yard run and tossed a nine yard pass to account for all the Bulldog touchdowns. South Lyon squandered a 20-8 lead at the end of three quarters and dropped a 22-20 decision to Milan. Larry Russell opened Milan's scoring with a 43 yard punt, but Tony Kerns came right back to score for the Lions. Fullback Ray Givens who finished the game with 135 yards in 14 carries gave the Lions a 20-8 lead with scoring runs of 43 and nine yards in the second and third quarters. But a nine yard pass to Dave Keller and a 31 yard run by Russell pulled the Milan back to a 20-20 tie with two minutes left, and Pat Snyder rammed over a two-point conversion to give Milan the victory.

In a battle of tail enders, Lincoln recovered five Dexter fumbles and converted one of them into a score to take a 6-0 triumph. Dave Swadlow scored the winning touchdown on a seven yard run.

OBITUARIES

Illness Claims Naomi Robinson

Memorial services were held Tuesday morning at St John's Episcopal church in Plymouth for Naomi Ann Robinson, wife of Dr. Orlo J. Robinson, president of the Northville board of education.

Mrs. Robinson, 49, had been in ill health for four years following surgery for cancer. She died Sunday morning.

Active in various community affairs, Mrs. Robinson was life member and past officer of the Mothers Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Robinson, who were married in 1945, moved to Northville in 1948 when Dr. Robinson began his practice with the Atchison Clinic. Their home is at 718 West Main street.

As Naomi Ann Jacka of Crystal Falls, Michigan, Mrs. Robinson was an honors' graduate of Eastern Michigan University in 1945. As a senior she was elected campus beauty queen.

After graduation and marriage, Mrs. Robinson taught commercial courses at Walled Lake high school for a brief period.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Robinson is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Jacka of Crystal Falls; three daughters: Mrs. Christine Ann Turf of Boulder, Colorado; Amy Louise, a freshman at Oakland University, and Elizabeth Ann, 8, both living at home; and a son, Ralph S., a senior at Michigan State University; two sisters, Mrs. Edna McCreary of Long Beach, California, and Mrs. Margery Strand of Corpus Christi, Texas, and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Robinson was born in Crystal Falls on July 16, 1923.

Officiating at Tuesday's 11:00 a.m. memorial services at St. John's Episcopal church was Father Robert Shank.

Interment was Thursday (today) at Evergreen Memorial Cemetery in Crystal Falls, where family graveside services were conducted.

The family has requested that friends make contributions to either St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth or the American Cancer Society.

Arrangements were by Casterline Funeral Home.

This photograph of Mrs. Robinson was taken four years ago with her daughter, Elizabeth, now 8.

3 School Polls OK More Precincts

OK More Precincts

Ten projects approved by voters in the June bond issue, including dividing the district into six precincts, were given the green light Monday night by school board trustees.

Administrators were authorized to proceed with the projects, not to exceed a total cost of $169,000.

Superintendent Raymond Spear said he hopes the precinct divisions will be made in time for the June, 1973, election. Three polling places, including Amerman and Moraine elementary schools and the school board office, will be used.

"Population of the school district will justify the formation of the precincts," Spear commented.

Acting Board Chairman Stanley Johnston said the division "eventually will have to be done and it will be cheaper to do it now."

Trustees explained that one of the benefits from precincts will be the ability to tell where bond issue and millage requests are being defeated.

Other projects authorized Monday include money for future school site options, site improvements and door replacement at Main Street Elementary, speech facilities, roof repair and storage areas at the high school, purchase of classroom furniture, door replacement at Amerman Elementary and paybacks to the 1970 bond issue.

School board members referred to the physical facilities sub-committee a request from the City of Northville planning commission.

The commission is asking how possible future rezoning of land on Taft Road may affect the school district.

The sub-committee will evaluate the request, meet with the city planners and make recommendations to the school board.

At Plymouth State Home

Residents Cast Ballots

For 25 residents at the Plymouth State Home, the Presidential Election is already over.

Those 25 persons cast their votes October 3 by absentee ballot, voting for the first time ever.

The election was held within the legal limit for absentee ballot voting.

Conducting the absentee election was Deputy Township Clerk Margaret Tegge who, along with Democratic and Republican challengers, went out to Plymouth State Home.

The residents many of whom cannot write and some of whom are blind, were assisted in voting by an employee of Plymouth State Home.

Until a recent court interpretation, persons in institutions were not eligible to vote. Mrs. Tegge said that she has sent absentee ballots to a number of patients at Northville State Hospital but that there are no plans to conduct an election there similar to that at Plymouth State Home.

While several other communities in Michigan have institutions within their boundaries, Mrs. Tegge believes Northville township has a greater number of voters registered from the local institutions than any other community in the state.

Broomfield: Vietnam Peace Near

Saying he thinks a breakthrough is near in Vietnam talks, Republican William Broomfield, who is seeking election to Congress in the 19th District, criticized the Democratic controlled Congress for hamstringing anti-busing legislation and for a major deficit in the national budget.

Third ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and ranking member of the Asian and Pacific Subcommittee, Broomfield said, "I think important news will be breaking soon (in the peace talks)."

But he would not speculate further on the issue.

The Birmingham resident said he has not changed his position since the August primary. In other words, he aligns himself 100 percent behind President Nixon's Vietnam policy—gradual withdrawal, the bombing of North Vietnam and the mining of North Vietnamese harbors.

A negotiated settlement, a cease-fire must come, he says, before the United States pulls out of Vietnam. This, he maintains, is the only way to secure release of American fighting men held captive in North Vietnam.

"I favor internationally supervised elections," Broomfield added.

The United States, he said, would lose leverage, if it were to withdraw immediately in hopes that the North Vietnamese would be charitable and release American prisoners of war.

While standing by the President's Vietnam policy, the Birmingham Republican chastised Democrats for recently killing anti-busing legislation and for jacking up the national debt.

"One of the greatest failures of Congress," he said, "was the failure to pass guideline legislation to prevent massive busing."

The administration-supported legislation was defeated by a filibuster in the United States Senate, after the anti-busing legislation was passed by the House.

"I favor reform in the legislative process in the Senate so that filibuster rule would be eliminated," he said.

Specifically, he favors a simple majority requirement to close off filibusters, which would eliminate the two-thirds majority requirement now on the books. Such a change would have meant the anti-busing legislation would have been put to the vote in the Senate.

Broomfield also rapped the Democratic controlled Congress for failing to be fiscally responsible during the recently adjourned session by refusing to set a national debt ceiling.

"It costs $23 billion a year," he said, "to finance our national debt."

Answering charges of his Democratic opponent, Broomfield said his anti-busing amendment "was never intended to be a cure-all. It was an amendment to the President's, higher education and moratorium bill, designed to give the President time to consider guideline legislation."

The Broomfield amendment, as it is known, calls for a halt in implementation of Federal District Court decisions with respect to school busing until appeals have been exhausted.

The United States cannot be world policeman, the 16-year congressional veteran maintains.

"I think for too long we've acted in the role of world policeman," he said "I'm opposed to that I think that these countries have a responsibility for their own self defense."

He wouldn't lop off all military assistance, however "I do support a reasonable military assistance program in areas that affect our national security," Broomfield said. And military

Montgomery Claims

'My Opponent's a Follower'

"My opponent tends to be a follower, a rather passive congressman I think there is a pressing need to make the Congress take a more activist role in seeking solutions to the nation's problems, instead of merely accumulating the problems until the public has made up its mind and a very substantial majority have agreed some action should be taken."

The speaker—George F. Montgomery, former Michigan legislator and the Democratic candidate seeking to represent the new 19th District in the U.S. Congress.

"I think the nation has elected too many delegate spectator-types to law making bodies, particularly the Congress," Montgomery continued "That accounts in large measure for the failure of legislative bodies to do their job."

"We can see they are not solving the problems confronting the people, because the people have gotten frustrated with legislative bodies and have taken a lot of these issues to the courts. That's why the courts are burdened down with issues now that are really not the proper concern of the courts."

To Montgomery, busing, which he opposes, is a significant example of legislative failure—failure primarily of Congress and state legislatures and also school boards.

"It gets right down to a money problem," said the Democratic candidate who is now teaching political science at Oakland Community College.

"In the 50's during the Eisenhower administration," he explained, "federal aid to education in substantial amounts would have been of tremendous assistance in keeping big city school districts from deteriorating even if it came in the early 60's during the Kennedy administration."

"But we had to wait until the mid 60's with the Johnson administration to get any substantial commitment of federal funds. By then it was somewhat late."

Montgomery contends the Nixon administration when it took office was in a position to help enormously. But it has failed even to hold the line.

"As a congressman of the 50's, and my opponent has been in Congress for the last 16 years, instead of voting against education money as he did, I would have voted for it!"

Montgomery opposes cross-district busing. "I think it is educationally, logistically and economically unfeasible as a solution," he said. "What we need to do is make the schools in every single district capable of performing the job."

"We should not load onto the schools any additional burdens, such as the burden of making allowances for segregation that exists in housing patterns," Montgomery continued "What busing advocates are really trying to do through cross-district busing is attempting to correct inadequacies in the integration of housing by asking the schools to do it on a temporary basis, five days a week for five or six hours a day."

Even under normal conditions, the Democratic candidate contends, busing is not conducive to the best performance in the classroom. In his experience as an elementary school teacher, Montgomery said, it took students who were bused 45 minutes to one hour to unwind in the morning and their day was clipped off at the end because the teachers and students were slaves to the bus schedule.

"Busing over greater distances," he said, in reference to massive school busing to achieve racial balance, "and with the additional factors involved—differences in economic character of the neighborhoods, differences in race, the length of time involved in busing—all these factors make busing even less desirable educationally."

Money, Montgomery says, more money, is necessary to solve the problem of unequal education.

"We've allowed these districts to go down the drain essentially," he contends, "and if the busing controversy brings anything in focus, probably the only benefit will be it has forced the suburban parents to look at the inner city schools. They've mostly made the judgement those schools are not good enough for their kids. If they're not good enough for our kids, they're not good enough for anybody's kids."

Equal funding is not enough, Montgomery maintains. There should be compensatory funding, with the federal government taking the lead.

"The federal government provided 43 percent of the operating money for Michigan schools in 1971-72," he said.

"I really think the federal government, since it gets 75 cents out of every tax dollar, ought to be shouldering about one-third of the burden and make it a true revenue sharing program, with the federal, state and local governments being able to come up with a third each."

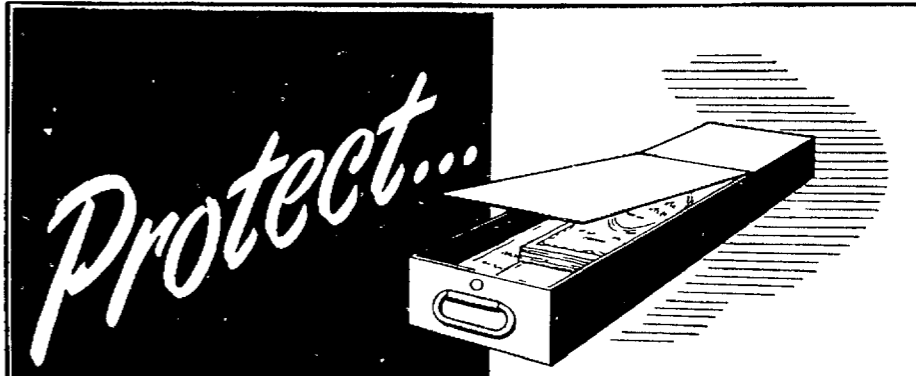

Furthermore, Montgomery said in explaining the need for compensatory money for schools, "It is easier for the schools to educate my children than it is to educate a child from a deprived home in the center city."

"I give my children a lot of benefits at home, like a lot of other suburban parents do. We have television, we have books, both parents are college educated, we give our children vacations, dancing lessons, music lessons. They've had two years of cooperative nursery before they went to kindergarten. We've more than given our kids a head start. And we have a continuing interest in the schools."

Not so in the inner city situation, Montgomery says. "There is not as much parental support for education, where other factors involved make the school's job difficult, where the children are coming from an educationally, perhaps an economically, culturally deprived background."

Nixon, Montgomery says, has been largely jaw-boning on his promise to channel $2.5 billion to the troubled city school districts. "Most of the money had been appropriated previously by the Congress and has been impounded by the administration and has not been distributed," he said.

Congress also is responsible for failure to adequately support center city school districts, Montgomery said. In this respect, he said

To generate the additional monies needed to finance education, Montgomery said he would provide a balanced budget, which he believes is necessary, by chopping military expenditures.

"Anyone of us who has been in the service knows that there are all kinds of inefficiencies in the service," he said. "Most of the money we could cut at this point, however, would be in new weapon development, such as the B-1 bomber I see absolutely no need to fund another bomber program," he stated.

Such a move, he continued, would save billions in the next few years and would not risk the country's security. "We have the capacity to wipe out all the other nations of the world three and one-half times over," Montgomery pointed out. "If we build another bomber, we might increase that capacity to four times over."

Montgomery, in fact, favors a 5 to 10 percent cut annually in the $80 billion defense budget, for three or four years at least.

Another substantial saving, he continued, would come with cessation of hostilities in southeast Asia. "I think we should have been out already," Montgomery said, referring to Vietnam.

"In October 9, 1968 candidate Nixon said any administration that can't get the war over with in four years doesn't deserve another chance. Four years have passed. He's had a chance to implement his secret plan and we're still engaged in a war."

Figures noting Nixon has withdrawn 500,000 of 550,000 troops from Vietnam are deceptive, Montgomery said. Presence of civilian personnel to service helicopters, for instance, has increased sharply, he points out.

"We have doubled the Navy in waters around Vietnam," he added, "and we have substantially increased our air force. We list as withdrawal from Vietnam the air wings that have been moved from Vietnam to Thailand, and they're still making the same missions every day."

What we need to do, says

DEMOCRAT: GEORGE MONTGOMERY

Montgomery, is stop bombing, cease fire, get the people out. "Once we do that," he added, "we'll be able to get the return of our prisoners. I think world opinion will assistance, he adds, is also justified when outside aggression is involved.

What has created major problems in foreign affairs, he contends, is United States involvement in the internal affairs of other countries, such as Vietnam, Rhodesia and South Africa.

"We've got our problems to settle here without trying to get involved running other governments and telling them how they should be run," he stated.

This does not mean, Broomfield pointed out, that he favors abandonment of interests. America does have a major role to play in foreign affairs, he asserts, but other major countries must share this responsibility, if peace is to be achieved.

Furthermore, the Congressman says, America's treaty agreements, many of them put into effect during the Eisenhower-Duller period, must be reviewed in light of the 1970's.

Another key issue in this election year, Broomfield said, is the need for welfare reform. "This is an area that desperately needs revision, with particular emphasis on taking care of those who absolutely need the help, but putting more emphasis on work incentive."

The tax structure, he added, also sorely needs revision. "I would hope the Ways and Means Committee would concentrate on this and come up with a new program, so that some of these people avoiding income tax would have to pay their fair share," he said.

"I also favor giving more flexibility to federal programs where cities can make their choice as to priorities on the basis of what is best for that specific city," Broomfield said.

"There's no question," he said, "with the limitation on taxes in the larger cities, that some help has to come from the federal government."

To provide more money for beleaguered cities, he said he voted for the federal revenue sharing bill which recently passed.

"I think we're moving ahead very well," Broomfield said of current attempts to provide a better environment for Americans. "I think we are recognizing that this is one of the major problems in this country and it is getting attention from Congress."

The Congress, he noted, recently passed an $18 billion anti-pollution bill over the veto of President Nixon. The bill calls for spending the money over a five-year period.

"I voted for the anti-pollution package," he said. He said he has also asked for re-evaluation of the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline and formulation of a national land use policy.

"I asked for further studies of the Trans-Alaska pipeline," he explained, "because of the problems that have been indicated would result if this line is built. So I have been one in the forefront urging the Secretary of Interior to hold up until all the facts have been submitted on this."

The land use policy that he is advocating, Broomfield explained, would be a national master plan, so that over-population of certain areas in the United States would not occur.

One of the means for dealing with megalopolis, he pointed out, is the new town concept. "I do feel this is something that will be in the future and I think we have to look toward that," he said.

Broomfield has co-sponsored a bill that would authorize the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to devise new and stronger water control standards, but Broomfield is in sharp disagreement with the EPA's William Ruckelshaus in his firm demand that automotive companies adhere to the 1975 deadline for compliance with the federal government's emission control standards

"He's got to be a little realistic in regard to what can actually be accomplished," Broomfield said. "It's one thing to set goals, but I certainly feel the automobile industry is working very, very hard to meet those goals." Said Broomfield, "I certainly would step in and try to cooperate, if I felt that industry could not meet these goals, and ask for an extension (of the deadline)."

Studded Tires On Last Tread

This winter may be the last season that studded snow tires are legal in Michigan if proposed legislation is approved, according to Automobile Club of Michigan

Any legislative action would still permit tires with metal studs to be used on Michigan roads from November 1 through April 30, 1973.

Alarmed over evidence that studded tires cause serious highway pavement damage, both the state Senate and House of Representatives have passed measures banning studs. A joint conference committee is expected to meet after November 27 to iron out differences between the two bills.

The House ban against studded tires would exclude the Upper Peninsula while the Senate version is a statewide restriction.

Currently, studded tires are permitted in 45 states and the District of Columbia. Minnesota, Louisiana, Mississippi, Utah and Hawaii ban their use.

Michigan motorists driving with studded tires in Ontario face a $20 fine plus $3 court costs.

Minnesota permits studded tires on out-of-state cars if studs are legal in the motorists' home states. Utah allows non-residents to drive with studded tires for a maximum period of two weeks. Violators face fines up to $50 in Louisiana and in Mississippi, up to $100.

Legislation to ban studded tires in Michigan is supported by the Michigan State Highway Commission, the State Police and the Michigan Good Roads Federation.

Highway officials estimate that pavement damage caused by studs to date will require $250 million in repairs over the next nine years. The projected expenditure, officials add, is equivalent to all the state revenue available for construction on non-Interstate highways such as M-21 and US-131.

Should Michigan ban studs, owners of studded tires can have the metal cleats removed and continue driving legally, Auto Club points out. Tire dealers say that studs can be removed at about the same cost as inserting them, about $12 for four tires

Straining Housewives' Blood Pressure Up

Housewives who feel "housework is often a strain" and that they "haven't done very well in running the house" tend to have higher blood pressure than those who are satisfied with their role, according to a University of Michigan study.

"Whether these attitudes caused the high blood pressure remains to be proven," says Dr. Louise S. Hauenstein, psychology research associate. "We can, however, show a consistent relationship across socioeconomic areas.

"In fact the response that 'housework is a strain' was an

HUNGRY HORSE

When two horses, used for hauling freight, wandered away from their sleigh about 70 years ago, they probably had no idea at the time that they would one day be world famous!

The two horses, which unconsciously made history, struggled through snow which was belly-deep, for almost a month. They wandered along the south fork of the Flathead River in western Montana and when finally found were almost starved to death. It took a lot of oats and hay to bring them back into working condition.

Thus the name "Hungry Horse" was given to an area which contains a creek, a lake and a mountain.

Now a huge government dam has been built on the area and has taken the name of Hungry Horse Dam, which is attracting tourists that would have made these same horses blink unbelievably.

from the Pastor's Study

'It's A Mystery'

Rev. Donald McLelland
First United Methodist Church
South Lyon

Why did I get myself into this bind again—writing a 'Pastor's Study'? Every time I write one I promise this is the last time, never again. Not worth it, yet a commitment is a commitment. There's got to be a text somewhere.

It's an odd-ball kind of a column. It's never the same Runs about as consistently as water through a rapids. I pick it up on some Thursdays and the column is good (glad to be a part of it) and then the very next week (well that's something else again).

I ask myself, why be a part and it dawns on me, "because you are a part". The column is a cross-section of contemporary Christian faith—small no doubt, but an accurate mirror.

One column is written in the strident demands of the dogmatist who seemingly has never heard of human need. "The truth-over the truth", and again, a column is written where need is plastered all over the column but the writer doesn't seem to remember from basic theology that "if faith without works is dead—works which aren't done to the greater glory of God are equally empty!"

And then there is that column I wish I had written. It says it all. The right balance, the apt illustration, the concluding line that sticks with you for the rest of the day. That's the day reading is more than a professional exercise — it's a devotional experience.

And then I know why I keep plugging away, every time my turn comes up - even when I've mentally resigned. The Pastor's Study is a serial - a story never complete in one issue, ever needing that next episode; and yet it's more, the Corner is a mystery because the serial is a mystery. It defies telling, "God loved the world so much..." and yet in feeble words it's all there.

One writer speaks of the 'ought', the necessity today for men to hear clearly and impellingly the Divine Imperative which is at the heart of all community life — of any kind of realistic ethical or moral setting. And again, and from a completely different viewpoint another speaks of this same Divine Imperative only in terms of need, of the 'conscience' which any community must have if it is to stay vital. And both speak to me, of the call which we all, like Jonah, would sooner run from; for it is the narrow way of responsibility. So, where can I begin today? "In the beginning God..."

No! That's been covered already and will never really be covered. Thank I'll begin with the imperative.

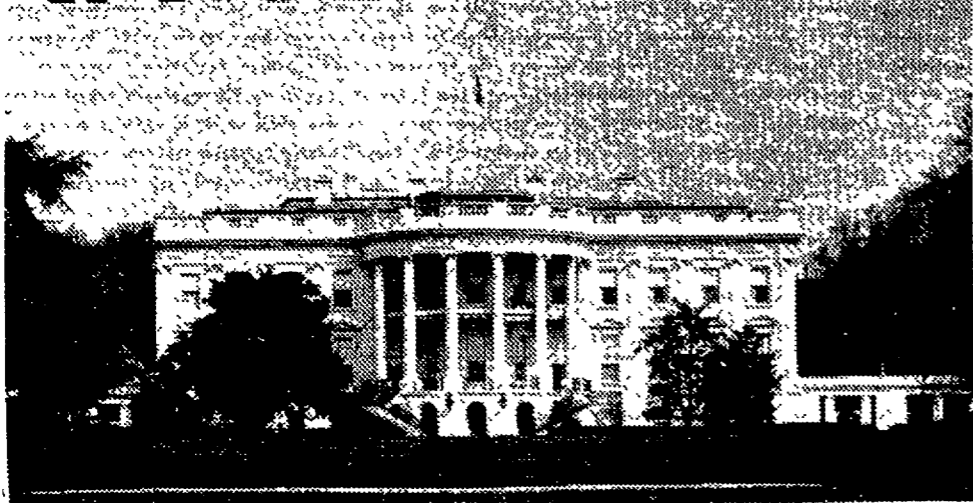

One day Jesus was caught up in a debate with some of the outstanding teachers of the community. They were slightly irritated at the way he had been interpreting religion to those with whom he came in contact. So they decided to hang him on his own words.

One came forward, "Master, which is the greatest commandment in the Law?" He answered, "'Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind.'" That is the greatest commandment. It comes first. The second is like it: "Love your neighbor as yourself." Everything in the Law and the prophets hangs on these two commandments.

When Jesus began his reply to his critics he taught them that faith is both simple and complex, easy to understand but easier said than done. Faith is a paradox.....

No column this week. I quit. It's all been said and far better than anything I could add or detract. If we only had ears to hear, eyes to see.....

If You Lived Here...

... how would that affect the state of the nation, and the course of history?

We should thank God for the responsibilities we DON'T HAVE, and then seek His strength in fulfilling those we have. It may be the by-product of democracy, but we often become too engrossed in the responsibilities of others—not enough in our own!

If I have a home and a family, it is part of a community, and my community part of a nation, and my nation part of a world. Then, for my abilities, my task may be as great as that of the President of the United States.

It was a president who said he had been driven to his knees many times by the knowledge that his strength was insufficient for the day.

We all have days like that—most of the time!

DRIVE 200 YEARS INTO THE PAST THIS WEEKEND.

Visit Lexington Commons this weekend and you'll see the best of what used to be. Because we've built Lexington Commons in the historic City of Northville, with its 200-year-old shops, mills and tree-shaded sidewalks.

Our community is equally impressive: Magnificent Colonials and new ranch models with dual-faced fireplaces, arched entry-ways, hobby rooms and more.
Including a unique community commons with a rustic shelter, walking paths, tennis courts, ice skating rinks, and safe places for your children to play.

And with our Guaranteed Sales Plan you can, in effect, trade your present home in on one of our new models.

Come see it all this weekend. Open 1-8 daily and Sunday, 12-5 Saturday (closed Thursday). Or call 477-4220 or 349-4340.

Your share of history can start as low as $48,350. And we have some homes available for immediate occupancy.

County

Wayne County Board Chairman Robert E. FitzPatrick has warned against "misconceptions" regarding Proposition F, the jail construction proposal that will be on the November 7 election ballot.

"Questions have been raised as to whether new jail facilities are needed in view of the fact that the population of the present jail has been reduced in recent months," FitzPatrick noted in a statement issued from his City - County Building office.

"Some people believe this shows that the jail population can be held down by the courts and that, therefore, a new jail is not needed. However, this is not the case. As result of the orders issued by the three-judge Circuit Court panel, a new jail must be built. The court has ordered that the State jail and housing codes be met with regard to floor space and air space per prisoner. That is impossible at the present jail because the space simply is not available there."

FitzPatrick noted that the recently-completed Wayne County Correctional Needs Study reported that the court would permit continued use of the present jail "provided a definite time table for ultimate elimination of the old jail could be established in conjunction with the construction of replacement facilities."

The report recommends phasing out the old jail by 1985.

"Therefore," FitzPatrick stated, "it is not a question of whether new jail facilities are needed. The only question is how the new jail facilities—which are required by law—will be financed."

"Financing through millage derived from Proposition F would be the most economical means by far. All alternative means of financing would require issuance of bonds. This would at least double, and perhaps triple, the ultimate cost of the facilities, due to the interest costs involved."

Proposition F proposes a five-year property levy of 6-10ths of 1 mill (60 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation) to finance new jail facilities. The levy would raise a total of $39 million.

The proposal was placed on the ballot along with Proposition G which would finance construction of additional juvenile justice facilities.

Proposition G proposes a five-year property levy of 4-10ths of 1 mill (40 cents per $1,000 of equalized valuation) to finance an out-county Juvenile Court and Youth Home. The Juvenile Court complex on eastside Detroit would also be improved. The levy would raise $26 million.

Dwyer

Calling the action of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals 'shocking', Robert E. (Bob) Dwyer, wrote Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, as a citizen, requesting vigorous action to nullify the ruling which allows inferior meat products conforming only to federal standards to be brought into Michigan.

The court ruled last week that Michigan's high standards which exceed the federal standards are no longer to be enforced with regard to meat products shipped into Michigan.

Dwyer is a candidate for legislature in the new 52nd District (including Salem Township).

"It is my understanding that the Constitution of the United States assures the powers of health and public safety to be those of the states," Dwyer declared in his letter. "This being the case it would seem their action which amounts to delivering the sixth largest market in the nation to the giant corporations that control this industry, violates the constitutional rights of citizens in Michigan."

In his letter to Kelley, Dwyer declared that, "failing in the appeal will assure that should I be successful in November's election, legislation will be introduced requiring labeling of all products failing to meet Michigan standards so the consumer here will know if he is eating eyes, snouts, entrails and glands in his meat products."

Geake

State representative candidate Dr. Robert Geake of Northville called for welfare accountability at all levels of government in a speech Monday evening sponsored by the Jaycees in cooperation with local League of Women Voters and American Assoc. of University Women chapters.

Geake is running in the new 35th District which includes all of Northville Township, all of the City of Northville in Wayne County, and approximately half of Livonia.

"The welfare program in Michigan has been coming under increasing criticism in recent years due to the spiraling costs, particularly those costs associated with the Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) program," Geake stated. "Last year over $519 million dollars went to welfare in this state, and this does not include the matching portion from the federal government which, after all, is our money, too."

"Originally, our welfare system was intended to lend a helping hand to those who were temporarily down and out or who had met unforeseen misfortune. But now welfare has become a way of life for thousands of citizens and a billion dollar 'business' continually eating away at the taxpayers."

This year the legislature has, for the first time, made some new rules which attempt to control some welfare cost, he said. The cap or ceiling on ADC expenditures was a step in the right direction.

"Now we must follow through with better investigative procedures to clear the welfare rolls of those who are not deserving of public maintenance," declared Geake.

"This piecemeal approach to welfare spending controls will never adequately replace the need for total revamping of the welfare system. You can bet the so-called 'liberals' will be doing everything they can to prevent needed reforms."

"If elected, I will be doing everything in my power to see that welfare costs are controlled and that able bodied welfare recipients are required to accept available work. I will be working to eliminate rules which encourage fathers to leave their families in order to make them eligible for welfare too."

Esch

The House of Representatives has approved legislation originally sponsored by Congressman Marvin L. Esch (R-Michigan). The bill would expand the Youth Conservation Corps and would make it a permanent program rather than just a pilot program as had previously been the case.

Esch originally sponsored legislation to establish the Youth Conservation Corps in 1970.

"I introduced this legislation after consultation with the Wilderness Society, the Sierra Club and ENACT (an environmental group at the University of Michigan)," Esch explained. "It provides an opportunity to attack many of our problems at once—it provides employment for our youth while at the same time assisting to preserve the environment. It provides a unique opportunity to utilize the idealism of youth in a practical project of worth for the entire nation."

Esch pointed out that although 124,000 applications were received during the first year of the program only 2,600 students were hired. Last year 3,000 were hired. The bill approved by the House would expand the authorization for 1973 to 25,000 and for 1974 to 50,000.

"The Youth Conservation Corps carries out projects in National Forests, National Parks, State forests and recreation areas. It provides much needed improvements in the parks, forests and wildlife refuges. The Education and Labor Committee noted, "The Youth Conservation Corps brings returns both in human and natural resource terms."

"I am proud to have had a hand in creating this successful program," Esch said. "It provides me with a great deal of satisfaction to know that this program which I introduced three years ago has been almost unanimously acclaimed as a success."

Coleman

Michigan's Civic and Consumer Council of the Detroit Metropolitan area, has announced support of Judge Mary Coleman of Battle Creek for one of two vacancies on the Michigan Supreme Court.

Council chairman, Henry Dodge of Detroit said that his organization endorsed Judge Coleman on the basis of her outstanding qualifications, especially in the area of juvenile justice.

Judge Coleman, an active Battle Creek citizen, has served as Calhoun County's Probate and Juvenile Court judge since 1961.

The Michigan Civic and Consumer Council, active in legislative matters for 20 years, and currently serves approximately one million people in the Wayne, Oakland and Macomb county areas.

Dumas

Ability to perform and the willingness to represent constituents in the 19th Commission District.

These are the two most important issues in this campaign, declared Mrs. Mary Dumas this week as she stumped the district for votes.

"My opponent started his campaign by stating 'It's not what you say that counts, it's what you do'—and I agree. My record of nine years of service and involvement in this district of Livonia, Northville, and Northville Township indicates what I have done to help solve the problems and fulfill the needs of these communities."

Noting that her opponent "has changed his tune to 'it's not what you do but who you know that counts,'" Mrs. Dumas said, "My opponent says I'm not of the same political party as most of the present Wayne County commissioners. He's right: I'm a Republican and I believe in the two party system of government."

"But I have spent more time discussing county problems with the Democratic County Commissioners, the county officials and heads of county institutions than he has. I have been attending county commission and sub-committee meetings for months..."

"Where was my opponent all this time? County commissioners and county officials did not even recognize his name when it was mentioned."

"I have worked on a good many worthwhile projects, committees and board with Democrats and Republicans in this community and the whole 19th District."

"As chairman of the District Court House Bond Drive Committee and serving both Livonia and Northville as a trustee on the Schoolcraft College Board, I am now a member of the SEMCOG Council on Regional Development—appointed by Commission Chairman Robert Fitzpatrick, a Democrat..."

Having walked local neighborhoods and spoken to residents of the district, Mrs. Dumas said she is convinced voters expect six specific requirements of the candidate they vote for and she is prepared to meet them:

Gilmore

Wayne County Circuit Judge Horace W. Gilmore and Recorder's Judge Robert L. Evans have won endorsement by the Wolverine Bar Association for election to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Judges Evans and Gilmore are the Democratic Party nominees. Both judges have the endorsement of the Michigan AFL-CIO, the UAW, and the Michigan Federation of Teachers.

In addition, Judge Gilmore has the support of the Michigan Building Trades Council and the endorsement of the Detroit Free Press.

Judge Gilmore has served as a Circuit Court trial judge for more than 15 years. He was elected in 1957, re-elected in 1959 and again in 1966.

He is chairman of the Michigan Committee for Revision of the Criminal Code and president of NARCO, the Narcotics Addiction Rehabilitation Coordinating Organization.

Judge Evans has been a judge in the Criminal Division of Detroit Recorder's Court since 1968. Earlier, he served as judge of the Inkster Municipal Court. He is project director of the Recorder's Court Drug Abuse Program and served as presiding judge of Recorder's Court in 1971.

Griffin

The Senate has passed a Public Works appropriations bill supported by U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich) that will triple funds available to the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission.

Griffin had testified before the Senate Appropriations Committee in June and urged more funding for the Commission in view of Michigan's unemployment rate. He said that increased funding would be a great economic boost to the 59 Michigan counties which are covered by the Commission's boundaries.

"The Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission was created to help stimulate orderly growth in an area much of which has lagged behind the nation as a whole in economic development. With this increased funding, many more supplemental grants will be available for such needed programs as industrial parks, airports, vocational training centers and local recreational facilities."

The Commission covers a three state area. In August Griffin urged it to expand to add 14 more Michigan counties that proposal was adopted by the Commission.

"I urged expansion so that the boundary lines of the Commission would be identical to those of Michigan's economic development districts. Now that that has been accomplished and this funding has been made available, I am hopeful of some major favorable economic developments in this area," Griffin said.

Jolly

"Our candidate recently received overwhelming support of Milford community leaders," claimed Tim O'Hara, campaign manager for Terrance K. Jolly of Novi who seeks the 52nd district court seat in Oakland County

That support, he said, grew out of a function held for James Dunleavy, a candidate for county commissioners. In addition, Jolly has received the support of the commander of the American Legion post in Milford, he said

Elsewhere on the campaign trail, Jolly spoke to the Novi Rotary Club October 18, focusing attention on his prosecution of drug pushers throughout Michigan. He told Rotarians of his personal experiences while serving an assistant United States attorney for the Department of Justice.

(Jolly presently a trial lawyer was appointed by the present Lieutenant Governor, James H. Brickley, when he (Brickley) was the U.S. Attorney for Michigan)

Earlier, Jolly spoke to members of the Multi-Lakes Conservation Club in Walled Lake, relating experiences in enforcing fish, game and wildlife laws for the federal government

"The effectiveness of any wildlife preservation," said Jolly, "is dependent in great part upon the tremendous support and encouragement that state officials received from conservation clubs such as this one"

The Novi candidate was given the "Unofficial" endorsement of Multi-Lakes on the basis of his past performance in enforcing conservation laws through the State of Michigan, O'Hara reported.

Jolly has been scheduled to speak soon before the Kiwanis Club of South Lyon on the question of drug abuse

In a luncheon October 17 with South Lyon Mayor Vincent Weinburger, City Clerk Norma Wallace, Police Chief Grant Dale and others, Jolly indicated his willingness "to immediately institute court proceedings on a bi-monthly basis in the South Lyon area" in an effort to bring the court closer to the residents

"This would, of course allow the South Lyon police more patrolling time in their area of responsibility, rather than attending court sessions in Walled Lake," Jolly said

Jolly added that since court facilities are available he would prefer traveling from one local community to another to make it easier on potential witnesses, local residents, and police officials

"Hopefully, this will increase citizen participation in court proceedings," he said

The luncheon with Novi officials was arranged by Michael Biber, Lyon Township resident who is coordinating Jolly's campaign in that area

Plunkett

At a conference called by Oakland County Prosecutor Thomas G. Plunkett last week, more than 30 Democratic County candidates for office in the November 7 election voiced their strong opposition to cross-district busing of school children and the recent decision by Federal Judge Stephen Roth.

The democrats were led by Plunkett and congressional candidates, Daniel S. Cooper and George F. Montgomery.

Plunkett said, "Republican candidates are politicking almost exclusively on the busing issue and telling voters that Democratic candidates are for busing. That's an out-and-out fraud."

"Our first duty as office holders and representatives is to the people of Oakland County and it is time that the citizens of the county knew the real facts about where we stand on the busing issue."

"We are opposed to busing and no Republican candidate can mislead the voters by saying otherwise."

Searchlight

In issuing its 60th anniversary Civic Searchlight, the Voters Guide of Wayne County, in conjunction with the Oakland Citizens League, announced results of its candidates' evaluation

Ratings include
No Rating — either the committees have not had sufficient information to make an evaluation or believes the candidate simply does not measure up to the minimum standards of qualification necessary for office

Well Qualified—Represents the committees' opinion that the candidate has special qualifications for the office he is seeking

Preferred—Always used jointly with "qualified" or "well qualified" to indicate the committees' preference for one candidate over others competing for the same office or, in some instances, to designate an outstanding candidate

Here are results involving local area candidates:

24th State Representative District—Clifford H. Smart, Republican of Walled Lake, preferred and well qualified, William J. Kabzinski, Democrat of Commerce Township, qualified.

19th U.S. Representative District—William S. Broomfield, Republican preferred and well qualified, George F. Montgomery, Democrat, well qualified, Henry Lloyd George of Novi, American Independent Party, candidate did not respond

Wayne County Commissioner, 27th District—Paul Lada, Democrat, preferred and well qualified; and Brian G. Arrowsmith, Republican, well qualified

Oakland County Commissioner, 24th District—Lev L. Coy, Republican of Wixom, preferred and well qualified, and William R. O'Brien, Republican, of Novi, qualified

52 District Court, Oakland County—Martin L. Boyle of Milford, well qualified, and Terrance K. Jolly of Novi, well qualified

Stempien

House Majority Leader Marvin R. Stempien (D-Livonia-Northville) has secured adoption of an amendment to return to the Michigan Civil Rights Commission authority to investigate and enforce statutes banning discrimination against women.

Stempien's action followed a ruling by Wayne County Circuit Judge Charles S. Farmer that the Civil Rights Commission does not have the jurisdiction or the authority to investigate or enforce the civil rights law when sex discrimination is the issue

Judge Farmer based his decision on the technicality that the words "sex discrimination" were not in the title of the law creating the Civil Rights Commission and that because of this the Commission has no powers in that area.

The Livonia Education Association endorsed the candidacy of Representative Marvin Stempien for the Second District Congressional seat

Following interviews and a review of both men's records, the interviewers concluded that Stempien's excellent representation of Livonia's interests was a determining factor.

"In education, he has successfully gained over $15 million in special aid when Nankin Mills was annexed, he was chief sponsor of the year-round school pilot program, as well as sponsor of the gifted children program vetoed by the Governor. He has supported more equitable taxation, including senior citizen relief, and has supported taxes based on one's ability to pay since 1964"

"While the Association has had some strong disagreement with Mr. Stempien, we, nevertheless, recognize that he has been wholly forthright in stating his position while equally willing to listen to opposing views. He has supported moderate education interests, and was perceived by the committee to be somewhat more oriented to the little man than his opponent"

Secretary of State Richard Austin toured the Second Congressional District Friday, to campaign on behalf of Stempien and the Democratic ticket

He met students at Washtenaw Community College in Ann Arbor and at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Austin spoke to U-M students and faculty in the Union Station Dining Room, and he attended a cocktail party honoring House Majority Leader Stempien at the Huron Motor Inn in Ypsilanti

"I am pleased that I have this opportunity to support this effort to help Representative Stempien to Congress," said Austin "His activities in Lansing in his three terms there have shown him to be an effective and able legislative leader who has demonstrated his concern for the social problems of our time"

Spreen

Johannes F. Spreen, candidate for Oakland County sheriff, has said he would assign women to police duties in the sheriff's department, if he is elected November 7.

Spreen said women are the most under-represented minority in police employment today and represent too valuable a resource to police departments not to be used

He said the sheriff's department currently employs a relative handful of women chiefly as jail matrons, driver's license examiners or clerks and typists in the identification and court service units.

Spreen said he would use women deputies to perform appropriate patrol and investigative functions, particularly in connection with crimes involving women and juveniles

Spreen spoke at a meeting of the Oakland chapter of the American Association of University Women. He shared the platform with Prosecutor Thomas Plunkett, and Plunkett's campaign rival, attorney Brooks Patterson, who debated campaign issues

Spreen's rival, Under-sheriff Leo Hazen, was invited but did not appear

Spreen said the opening of Oakland County's new $9.5 million jail was only the first step in correcting problems in criminal rehabilitation.

"It is very discouraging to police officers to discover that two-thirds of the people they arrest are repeaters in the world of crime," Spreen said "This tells the police officer that the corrections system isn't working"

"Based on my own experience over more than 30 years of policing," he said, "the corrections area is the most neglected area of the criminal justice system."

"As it is presently operated, it contributes more to making chronic criminals out of first offenders than any other single factor."

"We all recognize that a new building, by itself, is only a more up-to-date cage, if nothing is done to improve the performance of those who operate the building"

VanderMolen

A challenge to debate his opponent apparently has fallen on deaf ears, according to Larry VanderMolen, Democratic candidate for Northville Township supervisor

VanderMolen said he offered to debate Republican candidate Lawrence Wright but received a written reply that the "township's growing pains will present major problems of considerable importance and that neither you nor I have any of the answers at this time"

Wright's letter continued, "Therefore, my supporters and I feel that a debate would be fruitless for both of us."

"Perhaps my opponent has no proposals to help resolve the problems facing the township, but I do and to suggest otherwise is absurd," declared VanderMolen. "After all, that's what this election is all about. We are running for office to face up to these problems, and the people of Northville Township are entitled to know our positions and suggestions even stronger predictor of higher blood pressure levels than age which, like overweight, is an established factor in the condition"

Blood Pressure

The survey encompassed 508 married women between the ages of 25 and 60 in Detroit, and is part of a larger ongoing study of stress and heredity in blood pressure differences between black and white women. Trained nurses interviewed the respondents in their homes, on their attitudes toward themselves and their economic roles. The average of three diastolic blood pressure readings was correlated with their responses

"There was no appreciable difference between the average blood pressures of the housewives and the working wives," Dr. Hauenstein reported. "But within each group, we found a distinct relationship between a respondent's blood pressure and the way she perceived herself in her economic role."

For the working wives, said Dr. Hauenstein, high blood pressure appeared to be related to the attitude, "it's important to be successful at my job" combined with "I haven't done very well at my job."

A third consistent predictor of high blood pressure was the attitude that "if I had my own way about it, I would not want to quit working and spend more of my time at home as a housewife"

"It's interesting that working wives who said they didn't want to quit their jobs had higher average blood pressure than those who said they did. Perhaps it is related to some internal conflict concerning the traditional socially endorsed role of housewife and her preferred status as wage earner," Dr. Hauenstein speculated.

Most of the working wives interviewed perform both functions. But although almost twice as many working wives (34 per cent) as housewives (18 per cent) said "housework is a strain," this attitude only had a bearing on blood pressure for the latter group. High blood pressure in working wives was related to their attitude toward their job, not housework

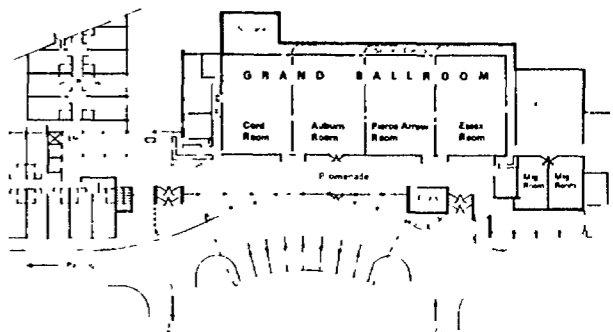

These findings are among the first of many forthcoming from the U-M psychology department's Program for Urban Health Research which, under a grant from the U.S. Public Health Service, is currently analyzing stress and heredity factors related to blood pressure. The survey was planned and directed by Dr. Ernest Harburg, director before they go to the polls

"The Republican Party knows as does the Democratic Party that the issues in the township board election are not political," VanderMolen continued "We have an obligation to our community and to the voters to thoroughly discuss the issues regardless of our party affiliation

"I would hope Mr. Wright is running for this important office for better reasons than to fill out the Republican ticket. And I am confident Republicans and Democrats of the township will look beyond the party label to judge the township candidates on their qualifications."

VanderMolen said he still is hopeful Wright will publicly speak to the issues. "Maybe, just maybe, he will give the voters an opportunity to hear him at the candidates' forum sponsored by the Civitan Club on Thursday, October 26," he said.

THUNDERBIRD BALLROOM'S COMPLETED

Business Briefs

THE NEW ballroom and the private dining room at the Thunderbird Hilton Inn, located at 14707 Northville Road, has opened, according to Chris Spohr, a company representative.

Construction of the hotel continues, with 100 rooms expected to be opened in January and another 100 rooms next April.

Enlargement of the original Thunderbird Inn restaurant and cocktail lounge are being enlarged and will be an integral part of the overall, multi-million dollar complex.

Offices temporarily located in a house on the opposite side of Northville Road have moved into the new facility, he reported.

The ballroom encompasses 11,088 square feet of floor space.

BROWN BROTHERS Construction Company of Lansing and Kensington Corporation of Novi were lowest of 10 bidders at $1.9 million for widening Interstate 75 Freeway in Wayne County, the State Highway Commission announced today.

The bid was among $5.8 million in low bids taken October 18 on 15 highway construction and maintenance projects.

WASTE WATER Treatment Company of 43980 Durson Street, Novi, is a member of the Michigan Mobile Home and Recreational Vehicle Institute (MMHRVI).

Announcement was made by Don Rokos, executive director of MMHRVI, headquarters at 19045 Farmington Road, Livonia. He said the application has been approved by the MMHRVI Board of Directors.

The MMHRVI is comprised of approximately 700 dealers, park and campground operators, manufacturers and suppliers doing business in Michigan.

The MMHRVI board of directors holds monthly meetings throughout the year. Its agenda includes a wide variety of subjects including current industry developments, legislation, consumer affairs, communication and self-improvement programs.

Levitt Sub Family Oriented

What kind of people are buying condominium town houses at Highland Lakes, the $60 million planned community being developed by Levitt Residential Communities in Northville Township?

A surprisingly affluent, largely family oriented, yet interesting mixture of marrieds and singled

This is the pattern that emerges from a recent buyer profile compiled by Levitt officials on the first 331 purchasers there.

At Highland Lakes, where more than 6,000 people will eventually live in 1,855 residential units, 1,390 of them town house condominiums, the average family income is an astonishingly high $15,409, substantially in excess of the average family income of $14,387 in upper middle income Northville, which is right next door.

Yet 27 of the first 331 buyers earn less than $10,000 a year, and more than half have annual incomes of less than $16,000, which, according to Earl Goldstein, director of marketing for Levitt, offers proof that middle income families "can afford the amenities of this open air, country-club-type atmosphere."

Goldstein figures that since most of the middle income families are young professionals, they will find no difficulty relating to higher income families living there. For example, the 31 families with incomes in excess of $25,000 per year

Married buyers predominate at the Northville Township development, which Levitt is converting from a cratered gravel mine into a wooded, hilly lakefront community. More than three-fourths, 255, of the first group of buyers are married, while 76 are single, fairly well-balanced between females, 45, and males, 31.

This disparity of married buyers to those who are single probably accounts for the fact that slightly better than 53 percent of the buyers are over 40 years of age, while about 47 percent are between the ages of 21 and 40. Only 53 perchasers are above the age of 56.

Almost two-thirds of the buyers at Highland Lakes owned their own homes before moving there, although 120 of the 331 had formerly rented "SCRATCH THEIR RECORD"—Jane Fasang, a senior at Northville High School, was dressed in the flapper style of the '30's as she rode the winning float in Northville's Homecoming festivities Friday. Built by the senior class, the float was titled "Scratch their Record" and featured a giant representation of a phonograph complete with gramophone and the playing of the Mustang Fight song. Theme for the 1972 Homecoming parade was "Nostalgia." David Duey was float chairman for the senior class.

TEACHER AIDS—Going to work this week in the learning center of Novi's Orchard Hills Elementary School will be a group of mothers who have qualified to serve as volunteer teacher aids. The mothers have undergone an extensive training program directed by Robert Rodgers, reading consultant for Oakland County Schools, and will be supervised in the center by Orchard Hills reading consultant Mrs. Donald Prine. Other mothers interested in the program are urged to contact Mrs. Todd Price at 349-7572. Above, Mrs. Price (left) and Mrs. Prine work with a trio of Orchard Hills youngsters.

At the same time, we are the only bank in the area open all day on Saturday. That's from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. That means you don't have to bank on your lunch hour or during work.

And you can sleep in on Saturdays without missing us. Customer hours instead of banker's hours. Just one advantage of small-time banking at West Oakland Bank. Shouldn't you find out about the others?

REVITALIZATION MOVEMENT—A movement to revitalize Novi's Chamber of Commerce and make it a viable force is gaining momentum. A week ago Tuesday leading members of the Novi business community met for lunch at the Saratoga Trunk and discussed plans for the new chamber. After the meeting those present posed for a show of strength and unity outside the restaurant. It is hoped that the Chamber will be an effective lobbying force in local politics and be instrumental in attracting new business and industry to the city.

 (hville school system, the average number of school-age children per unit is only 0.6, or just over one-half, while the average number of children per unit of all ages is only 0.9, or less than one, Goldstein notes.

He emphasizes that Highland Lakes' residents will be paying far more in district school taxes than is needed to educate their children.

Managers, administrators and professionals dominate the early population. There are 87 professionals among the first 331 buyers, largely teachers, educators and engineers, although four of the professionals are police officers. Another 48 of the first group of purchasers are managers. Other occupational categories include 27 salesmen, 25 supervisors, 22 administrators, 17 accountants, 17 skilled workers, and 12 self-employed owners of their own businesses. Only 28 of the new residents are unemployed retirees.

There are 51 working wives at Highland Lakes. Leading occupation for wives is teaching, 13, and clerical, 10.

One is a medical doctor, another a pharmacist, another an accountant, and one a policewoman.

Only 13 of the new residents there already lived in Northville or Northville Township. The largest number, 100, came from Detroit, while 35 came from Farmington, 34 from Livonia, 21 from Southfield, 21 from Westland, 13 from Plymouth, and eight from out of state. The remainder came from scattered Michigan communities, as nearby as Ypsilanti and as far away as Sault Ste Marie.

Five performances of Oedipus Rex will be presented by the Schoolcraft College Masque Players during the second and third weeks in November.

Ralph Viaw of Livonia will play Oedipus. Other leading roles include Christine Bohrer of Detroit as Jocasta, Gary Serlin of Livonia as Creon, and Raymond Masters of Plymouth as Teiresias. The cast will wear authentic masks and costumes and the play will be complemented with music, singing, and dancing.

The play by Sophocles is considered to be a masterpiece of dramatic art. Its plot deals with Oedipus who unknowingly slew his own father, as predicted by the Oracle at Delphi. He subsequently became king and married the widowed queen, actually his own mother. The dreadful truth was revealed to Oedipus many years later and, as a result, both he and the queen meet a tragic end.

Others in the all student cast include Mark Hlohinec, Northville, as Priest of Zeus; Chris Keyes, Northville, as Leader of the Chorus; Michael Nemchik, Livonia, as the first messenger; Robert Clarke, Northville, as the second messenger; Charles Swadling, Plymouth, as the herdsman; Judy Utley, Northville, as the old woman; Diane Fraser, Livonia, as the young woman; Don Watkins, Plymouth, as the old man, and Paul Norden, Livonia, as the young man.

Guidance Theme: Tomorrow is Now

"Tomorrow is Now" is the theme of the seventh annual National Career Guidance Week to be observed at Schoolcraft College and throughout the country October 22-28, 1972.

This year's theme reflects the present emphasis of career counseling at the college. According to John R. Weber, director of counseling, "Career planning should become a way of life. Thinking ahead is the key to facing the future successfully."

In order to meet the needs of the students, counselors at Schoolcraft offer a variety of counseling services. Two services relating to career decision-making are the Systematized Career Counseling Process (SCCP) and the Human Potential Seminar.

The SCCP involves eight to ten hours of individual sessions with a counselor. The process includes helping the student learn about himself, and helping the student explore the world of work in relation to his needs, drives and aspirations. One objective of the SCCP is to have the student develop the ability to make career decisions which he can use for future career planning.

The Human Potential Group Seminar helps the individual become more aware of his strengths, his abilities, his value system, and focuses his attention on goal directed behaviors. It is an action program directed at achieving life goals. In addition, vocational interest and aptitude tests are available as well as individual counseling.

John Weber stresses that the time to plan for your future is now. He encourages all Schoolcraft students and district residents to take advantage of the many offerings at the counseling center. For further information, telephone 591-6400, extension 235.

Members of the chorus are Pamela Wenzel, Westland; Norma Gawronski, Westland; Karen Zielke, Detroit; Daniel Williams, Livonia; John Murphy, Garden City, and others. The play is being directed by Dr. Lawrence Rudick.

Performance dates in the Schoolcraft Liberal Arts Theater are November 10-12 and 18, 19. Curtain time is 8 p.m., except on Sunday when it is 7 p.m.

Tickets are $1.50 and can be

Sheldon Salutes Education Week

The task of education today is more challenging than ever because of the rapid change in social, economic and technological conditions. Don P. Sheldon, superintendent of the Walled Lake Consolidated School District, said in an American Education Week statement.

With the theme, "Make Education Top Priority", the week of October 22 will emphasize the need for continued commitment of educators, parents and the whole community to "attend to the constant challenge of improving education for all children regardless of ability and interest," Sheldon stated.

phazise the need for continued "Each year schools expand their programs to meet community needs. Each year witnesses greater demands upon human, material and economic resources of schools and the community. Hardly a month passes without some new educational technique or program initiated or proposed. There is discussion and launching of pilot projects on computer-assisted instruction, programmed learning, "open classrooms", schools without walls", and a seemingly endless number of new methods designed to provide the kind of education needed today. So varied are the approaches, and so rapidly do they change that parents, as well as some educators, deplore the seeming lack of consistency do they change that parents, as well as some educators, deplore the seeming lack of consistency in the schools."

But, according to Sheldon, "Schools are succeeding." He cited the slow but steady decline in the last 10 years in the number of students who drop out of school and the increase in the variety and context of school courses now offered.

Walled Lake Schools, for example, offer high school programs ranging from computer technology to food service, gardening to office procedures. There are vocational upgrading courses for adults, special education for the exceptional child, a program for pre-kindergarten children and educational opportunities for senior citizens.

Argus Wins U-M Award

The Brighton Argus, a Slinger Publication, received the 1972 Excellence in Journalism Award at the recent meeting of the University of Michigan Press Club in Ann Arbor.

The citation to The Argus, edited by Roland Peterson, former staffer with The Northville Record-Novi News and a former Northville High School teacher, was based on the newspaper's service to the Livingston County community. It read in part:

"In three years under the ownership of William C. Slinger, this newspaper has become a vital force in the community with a topographically bright presentation of a good blend of news coverage. Editor Roland Peterson has shown a willingness to get involved in community problems with editorials..."

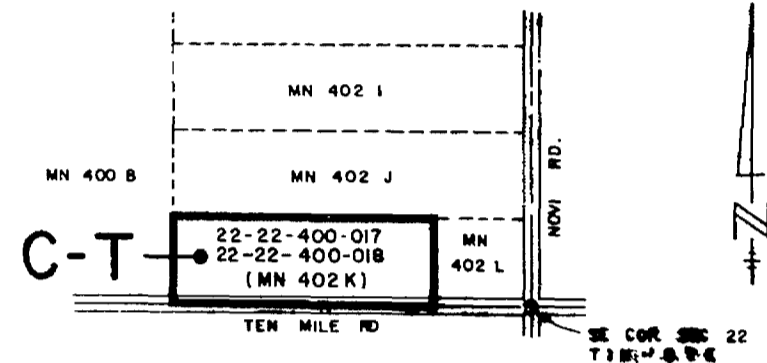

Pontiac's Oakland Press received the excellence award for daily newspapers.

Scott

ONE MAN

THINKS ENOUGH OF NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS TO LET THEM JUDGE HIM ON HIS SOLUTIONS: THAT MAN IS LARRY VANDERMOLEN!

MAYBURY

The mess at Maybury indicates the need for strong leadership in township government. When bands of roaming thieves and gangs invade the property, and vandalize the immediate area, citizens have a right to complain about the destruction created by the overflow upon their private property. VANDERMOLEN attended the recent hearing held on the Maybury Park Proposal. He challenged state officials to provide security for the homeowners in the area.

ECOLOGY

We need to protect the beauty of Northville Township. Pollution of our lakes and streams should not be permitted!

FISCAL INTEGRITY

Township officials want to spend $500,000 to build a new township hall. VANDERMOLEN favors the construction of a modest fire hall which would save the taxpayer money. During this time of financial crisis, we need to hold the line on spending.

MAKING POLITICS HONEST

VANDERMOLEN has been a leading critic of the manipulation of affairs of government by the politicians. He has pledged to fight to reform township government.

A NEW ROLE FOR THE SUPERVISOR

Your township supervisor must be responsive to the needs of the people. He should fight for you at the state and local levels of government. He should visit with the residents to check upon their needs and interests.

HOW YOUR CONTRIBUTION CAN BE TAX DEDUCTIBLE:

Your township supervisor must be responsive to the needs of the people. He should fight for you at the state and local levels of government. He should visit with the residents to check upon their needs and interests.

Under the new tax law, taxpayers may take a tax deduction for donations to a political committee. You may give as much as you wish, but for each individual taxpayer the first $50 is deductible — or $100 for each married couple filing a joint return.

Unanimously accepted COMMUNICATIONS

City Manager passed out map of preliminary plan for Maybury State Park. Urged Council to let him know if they have any comments good or bad.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITIZENS

None

LANGFIELD PROPERTY

City Manager stated that Mayor

Allen and he had gotten an appraisal and negotiated up to that appraisal price of $25,000.00. City Attorney explained terms of the agreement. Housing Commission recommended that the City buy this property to build two duplexes for senior citizen housing. Steps involved in doing this:

- 1) Property has to be rezoned
- 2) Site plan goes to Plan Commission
- 3) Council has to approve spending money

Mr. Leon Bonner and Mrs. Marilyn Bonner, of 547 Fairbrook, questioned purchasing the property before rezoning occurred, and what age and income restrictions would be made for qualifying for senior citizen housing. Mr. Bonner also questioned whether Council could be objector in ruling on zoning.

Mr. Jerry Stone, 486 Fairbrook, questioned who would take care of this property and what kind of housing is proposed.

Councilman Rathert explained that there will be a public hearing on this and these questions would be resolved then. City Manager stated that he would not like to take chance of losing this property. Once purchased, City would have to provide high quality maintenance. Councilman Vernon objected strongly to inference that the Council lacked objectivity in zoning question.

Motion by Councilman Folino, support by Councilman Rathert to set a public information meeting on this matter in two weeks.

Councilman Folino, Mayor Pro Tem Rathert, and Councilman Biery, Councilman Vernon says. Motion was defeated for lack of majority vote.

Motion by Councilman Vernon, supported by Councilman Folino that submit our offer subject to rezoning recognizing at the same time that any rezoning would be a matter of public hearing of the Planning Commission and Northville City Council.

Unanimously accepted TAXI DRIVER AGE LIMIT

Mr. Macaluso, owner of Star Cab, presented his request to lower the taxi driver age limit from 19 years of age to 18 years of age in the City of Northville to conform with State Acts regarding 18 year olds. He stated that this presented quite a problem because his 18 year old drivers may drive in other neighboring communities but not in Northville.

Motion by Councilman Vernon, support by Councilman Folino to set a public hearing October 16, 1972 on an amendment to the City of Northville Code of Ordinances regarding taxi driver age.

Unanimously accepted DRAWBRIDGE PARKING

REZONING APPLICATION-LOT 118 PLAT NO. 1, ZANDER, R. 2, TO C-1

Mr. Moelmann represented Mr. Zander as his attorney. He stated that Mr. Zander wishes to rezone from R-2 to C-1 property described as the S 15' of Lot No. 118, exc. the E 16' thereof, Assessor's Northville Plat No. 1, located between 7 Mile Rd. and Gardner St., west of South Main St. At the request of the Planning Commission, Mr. Moelmann had prepared an affidavit that will follow the title of the property, stating that the 15' is attached to and cannot be detached from Lot 112 in the case of selling the property.

Based on this evidence, motion by Councilman Folino, support by Councilman Vernon to set a public hearing for October 16, 1972 to amend the Northville Zoning Map.

Unanimously accepted REZONING APPLICATION CS6A AND CS6B, FORMER MARK LARKINS PROPERTY, FROM R-1-S TO R-2-A

Dennis Roux passed out to Council rezoning application from Planning Consultant Ron Nino and a map of his proposed plan. City manager noted that Plan Commission recommended denial of this rezoning. He occurred in that, but recommended Council set a public hearing.

Motion by Councilman Vernon, support by Councilman Folino to set a public hearing on the rezoning for November 6, 1972.

Unanimously accepted Meeting was recessed in order to have a public informal question and answer period with General Ambulance owner at approximately 10 p.m. Council reconvened at 10:35 p.m.

NORTHVILLE SQUARE PARKING

Motion by Councilman Biery support by Councilman Folino to accept Northville Square Parking Resolution.

WHEREAS, The City of Northville Zoning Ordinances requires that adequate parking areas be available for new commercial developments and

WHEREAS, A Special Assessment Roll has been confirmed against Lots 202 through 209, Assessor's Northville Plat No. 5 of the owners of said property and

WHEREAS, The City of Northville believes that any charge for the use of the parking area under this Special Assessment Roll would tend to limit the public use of this property and violate the intent of said Zoning Ordinance and said Special Assessment Roll it is therefore

RESOLVED, That said parking areas shall be free of any charge or fee for parking thereon.

OAKLAND COUNTY GROWTH POLICY

It was agreed by Council that the policy will be passed around for each Council Member to read and study then it will again appear on the agenda.

Unanimously accepted WATER SUPPLY AGREEMENT

City Manager stated that all the changes that Council and he had suggested were incorporated in the Agreement and recommended that Council approve the Water Supply Agreement with Northville township.

Motion by Councilman Vernon, support by Councilman Folino to approve Water Supply Agreement and authorize Mayor and City Clerk to execute said Agreement.

NEW BUSINESS

1 STATED MEETING CHANGE No action.

2 EDWARD ROSE & SONS (DON DEHAR) REQUEST FOR SPECIAL CONSIDERATION TO REZONE THE ALEX GORDON PROPERTY. Mr. DeHar objected to the tabling motion of the Planning Commission which is at present engaged in a six month's re-evaluation of our Northville Township Zoning Ordinance. He stated that to wait until the end of the study for any consideration of his rezoning petition would be too costly ($3000.00) for the firm he represents. Attorney Morgan stated that the board must operate under the Planning Commission Statute for Township. Therefore, it would be out of order for the Township Board to either deny or approve a rezoning at this time without a recommendation from the Planning Commission. DeHar stated "I officially for the record, speaking for Edward Rose & Sons, hereby withdraw in regards to any of the improvements of the density and I also specifically spell out my representation into the development of Subdivided Housing."

3 NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP BUILDING AUTHORITY Morgan had distributed copies of two addendums to the proposed articles of incorporation for a Township Building Authority.

Baldwin moved to insert the above addendums as presented in Morgan's letter of October 2, 1972 into the Building Authority Proposed Articles of Incorporation. Seconded by Straub.

Hammond moved to amend these articles to make the effective date of incorporation be January 1, 1973 and to authorize the supervisor and clerk's signatures and further, that the attorney then be authorized to file the Incorporated Articles with the County Clerk so that they could be duly published. Mitchell seconded the amendment. Ayes All. Then the vote on the original motion. Ayes All.

4 GRASS CUTTING IN VACANT LOTS Stromberg to contact the County. Straub moved to retroactively include item No 7 (of Old Business) on the official agenda. Seconded by Hammond. Ayes All.

ACTIVE CLASSROOM—Lauded by members of the board of education, the activity-centered pilot program at Novi's Village Oak Elementary School is triggering favorable comments from participating children as well as teachers. Called a "flexible learning environment" by Principal David Brown, the classroom itself has been changed from the standard layout under the new program, with learning stations designed to motivate children. School board members recently were given a report of the pilot program and voiced enthusiasm for it while commending teachers for their roles in successfully guiding the program to its initial successes.

As earlier Americans headed north in the search for gold, Consumers Power has explored for another vital treasure — natural gas. The search proved successful in northern Michigan, in Kalkaska County.

New gas reserves were found by Northern Michigan Exploration Company, a subsidiary of Consumers Power, and now a 12-inch pipeline has been built from these new natural gas discoveries to the company's Marion Storage Field area.

To meet the growing demands of more than 880,000 natural gas customers in Michigan, Consumers Power is using many tools of modern technology. Some are the tools found in laboratories. Others probe the earth's depths in the spirit of our early pioneers.
