

Unification: Trustee Switches, Frid Sees Fallacy

LEONARD KLEIN

Klein...

"I was wrong and I admit it," says Northville Township Trustee Leonard Klein, referring to his voiced opposition to unification when it was first proposed several years ago.

"And I'm convinced that if those who now oppose a single government would carefully analyze the situation they would come to the same conclusion as I have: duplication of government is a waste of taxpayers' money," he asserts.

"I used to think that the township was a viable government that could operate on one mill. But after serving on the planning commission and now as a township trustee, I can see that just the opposite is true.

"Proponents of township government keep saying it is more (responsive.) I just can't understand what they're talking about.

"If they're talking about our 1-mill tax limitation, they are kidding no one. That limitation is a farce; we're already collecting something they call excess of roll, and it's costing taxpayers an additional half-mill of taxes, beyond the so-called 1-mill limitation, and the people didn't vote for it.

"Now they're talking about a new law at Lansing that will permit us to bill residents for garbage and trash collection maybe 1½ mills, without a vote; and the township lobbyists are bucking for a new 5-mill Frid...

"I am not necessarily opposed to unification, but I do question many of the assumptions (proponents) make to citizens of the City of Northville."

That in a nutshell sums up the position of Norman Frid, a resident of the city who has been critical of unification and who was a leader in the petitioning drive to bring the matter to a vote in the city.

Most arguments he has heard point to benefits to be derived by citizens of the township, but few, if any, logical reasons have been given to convince him and other city residents that they will benefit equally, he says.

"For instance, the One Northville Committee talks about lowering the taxes in the city. But what they are actually suggesting is to lower the taxes with monies (race track revenue) that are already in the city."

To suggest to residents of the city that their taxes are being lowered because the township will be sharing costs is, in his opinion, illogical and dishonest. "No one has shown me any figures of the money the township will be sharing with us."

None of the race track revenue is used for operational purposes in the city now, he notes,

EDITOR'S NOTE—The comments above represent the fourth in a series of interviews with citizens and officials about the May 7 annexation question. Leonard Klein, Northville Township trustee, tells why he now favors unification after originally opposing it, and Norman Frid, a resident of the city tells why he cannot, until he has been given more convincing evidence, offer his support for the proposition.

Playing It Safe

Michael Salmeto, 44163 Brookwood, isn't particularly superstitious but he's taking no chances on the eve of his 16th birthday tomorrow—Friday the 13th. If he could cross his toes, he'd do that, too. Incidentally, two other Northville high schoolers will celebrate their 14th birthdays tomorrow—Nicholas Pyett and Shirley Ghannam.

Local Concern Voiced

Preliminary County Plans Told

A preliminary planning format for Wayne County was introduced to Northville and Plymouth officials Monday night at Plymouth by Maurice W. Roach, Jr., assistant director of the Wayne County Planning Commission.

Attending the special meeting in the Plymouth city hall were representatives of Northville's city and township planning commissions, the township board and the city council. Also present was Northville's representative on the county board of commissioners, Mrs. Mary Dumas.

Although purpose of the presentation by Roach was to present and explain the preliminary written document, local representatives indicated by their questions concerns over possible usurpation of local planning by county, regional and state agencies.

Specifically, some of them saw the county study as an extension of suggested mandated land use plans and policies by the state and federal government.

In his cover letter to the document, County Planning Director Francis P. Bennett explains:

"The attached draft report is being presented to you by the Wayne County Planning Commission for your review and comment. It will not be presented to the Wayne County Board of Commissioners as a set of recommendations until after such comments have been received and analyzed....

"One purpose for the preparation of this report is to assist the County Board of Commissioners in making those decisions that affect the long range improvement of the County of Wayne.

"Another is to provide a basis for working jointly with the local units of government throughout the county on the subject of a better county for all of us. In view of the fact that several legislative proposals are before the Congress of the United States and the Legislature of Michigan which deal with land use plans and policies, we feel it would be desirable to work with local planning commissions throughout the county in advance of the passage of these laws. In that way, we can respond jointly and intelligently to deadlines set by state or federal laws rather than reacting hastily."

Among some of the goals suggested by county planners are:

- Retention of about 50 square miles of agricultural land.
- Obtain a total of ten miles of open space, in addition to

Township Board OKs $391,425 Budget

"With one dissenting vote, Northville township board members voted Tuesday night to adopt the 1973-74 budget.

Highest in the township's history, the balanced budget calls for expenditures and revenues of $391,425, up from $325,075 budgeted last year. Final budget session was held Saturday when trustees completed the document.

Voting against adopting the budget was Treasurer Joseph Straub who said he "strenuously object (to) (salary) raises included in the budget and methods of granting those raises."

No residents were present at the budget hearing.

Straub also voted against levying one mill for township tax

A motion to leave $30,000 in excess of roll in the budget as revenue but to make the public aware they are in reality paying nearly one and one-half mills of township tax rather than one mill was passed with Trustee Charles Schaeffer dissenting.

Schaeffer said he did not believe the township "should be levying excess of roll. Avoiding fractions is not germane anymore."

Originally, excess of roll was allowed to prevent fractions of mills.

However, as Schaeffer pointed out, computers make the rounding out unnecessary. He also noted that the "township's one mill tax was deliberately made uneven. The one-mill became 1.01 mills just to include the excess of roll."

Millage rates for county, township, school and community college are all rounded out, with the township gaining 4 mills in taxes.

Straub, who brought up the original objection to levying the excess of roll, said he objected to "having it in the budget if the public is not aware of it. Tax bills do not show it."

Trustee John MacDonald said the township was "relying on the excess of roll by including it in the budget."

Clerk Sally Cayley said she felt the "township is entitled to it," while Trustee Richard Mitchell said he was "not convinced that if the township did not take it on us."

Unification Gets Chamber Backing

Northville Community Chamber of Commerce went on record this week in supporting the unification of the city and township, President N.C. Schrader disclosed.

In a meeting of the chamber's board of directors Monday, eight of the nine board members voted to endorse and urge passage of the proposition to appear on the May 7 ballot.

Arthur Jahn, who has indicated a wish to resign his position as a director, was not present at the meeting. The chamber has more than 100 members.

Other members of the board of directors, including Schrader, are:

Margaret Zayt, David Biery, Gleen Long, Gerald Stone, Richard Lyon, Carl Johnson, and Les Bowden.

"After giving the matter a good deal of study and consideration," said Schrader, "we came to the conclusion that unification of the two municipalities is the wisest decision that voters and this organization can make."

"We are convinced that uniting the city and township is in the best interest of the entire community, both city and township. Any delay in unification will not only be costly for taxpayers but it may very well create irreparable division of our common interests and goals."

Joseph Straub Appointed

With three members abstaining, Northville township board members appointed Treasurer Joseph Straub as the board's representative on the Northville Area Economic Development Committee.

Voting for the appointment were Supervisor Lawrence Wright, Straub, Trustees John MacDonald and Leonard Klein.

Trustee Charles Schaeffer abstained and was quickly joined by Clerk Sally Cayley and Trustee Richard Mitchell. Mitchell said he was "reluctant to endorse any board member as representative to the commission." Mitchell, in previous meetings, has suggested a conflict of interest might exist between the committee and the township board.

Clerk Cayley said that documents she has found from past years show the board appoints someone to the committee and not the commission.

MacDonald, reading from a letter sent to the board by its attorney Donald Morgan who was asked to research the matter, said "the letter states that membership in no way impairs the responsibility of governmental units. There are no facts which point to a specific conflict of interest."

MacDonald said that a conflict of interest does not

Town Hall Series Set

Humorist Heads Season

Syndicated columnist Erma Bombeck will kick off the 13th season of Northville Town Hall in October.

Her appearance, along with a new location for the lectures and luncheons, was announced today, Thursday, by Town Hall Chairman Mrs. Jack Doheny as the "amazing" Kreskin closed the current season.

Lectures and luncheons for the 1973-74 series will be held at the Thunderbird Hilton in Plymouth. Mrs. Doheny announced.

Town Hall is a non-profit venture sponsored by Our Lady's League of Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville.

Proceeds from the series are divided between Our Lady of Victory Church and several charities in the Northville-Novi, Plymouth, Farmington and Livonia areas. Each charity is selected by a board of advisors which consists of representatives from each community.

Besides Mrs. Bombeck's talk on October 11, Town Hall patrons will be able to hear the music of Detroit's "Fat Bob" Taylor, the singing plumber, author-social worker J. A. Browne and fashion designer Donald Brooks.

Erma Bombeck is probably best known for her nationally syndicated newspaper column, "At Wit's End" in which she explores the funny side of life with her husband and three teenagers. Of her role as housewife and mother, Mrs. Bombeck explains it is generally one of "housewife, garbage hustler and pretty face."

In addition to her newspaper column, she has written for many national magazines and has to her credit several humorous books.

Bob Taylor, although born in Canada, now claims Detroit as his home. He began his singing career while serving with the United States Air Force and from there, moved on to night club appearances and opera.

Taylor turned to plumbing as a career when singing jobs were not plentiful. It was on a plumbing job he gained the tag "Fat Bob". The designation was, to tell him, apart from two other Bobs.

Taylor is known to many Detroiters through his appearances on J. P. McCarthy's radio shows as well as many other local and national television appearances. He will be at Town Hall on November 8.

A former teacher and clergyman, J. A. Browne will concentrate his slide presentation on March 14, 1974, on the subject of transactional analysis which is the study of transactions between people.

In his presentation, Browne uses the theory of personality as developed by Dr. Eric Berne which labels the components of personality as parent, adult and child. Browne believes his criteria for being named an expert in the field are that he is "single and from out of town."

To close out the 13th season, Northville Town Hall will present Donald Brooks on April 26, 1974. He will discuss "My Fashion World", and in his talk will describe some of his experiences which have made up the famous "Brooks Look."

The tickets for the season are, as last year, $12 for all four lectures and $16 for the luncheons which follow each talk.

To order season tickets for the lectures, which will be in the Thunderbird Hilton Grand Ballroom, Town Hall Series, to Mrs. Donald DiComo, P. O. Box 93, Northville, 48167.

For luncheon tickets, a separate check for $16, also payable to Northville Town Hall Series, should be mailed to Mrs. Richard Booms, P. O. Box 93, Northville. The luncheons are scheduled for the Thunderbird Hilton Essex Room.

Individual luncheon and lecture tickets will be sold when available. Information about individual tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. DiComo at 349-7727 or Mrs. Booms at 349-0170.

Women to Discuss Common Concerns

Northville area women are invited to attend the "Women's Conference of Concerns" which will be held at the Detroit Hilton on Saturday, April 14.

The conference is being organized and planned by a group of Detroit women including Mrs. Detroit City Councilwoman Erma Henderson.

Workshops will be held and the subjects to be discussed in them include education, land use, transportation, housing services, taxation, social services, crime and justice and political awareness.

Hours of the conference will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Workshop leaders will discuss problems and provide information and answer questions in the morning.

Following lunch, the workshops will cover ways of implementing "laws" now existing or enacting necessary legislation.

The registration fee of $7.50 includes the luncheon. Local women may make reservations with Mrs. John Schaupner at 349-0782.

Elect Jacki Merwin

Jacki Merwin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Merwin of Northville, was recently elected state president of the Children of the American Revolution. The state meeting was held in late March at Marshall.

Miss Merwin, a member of the Plymouth Corners Society of the CAR, will be formally installed with the other state chairmen on Easter Sunday at Mt. Vernon, Virginia.

Other Northville residents were elected to state posts and they include the following: Terry Lapham, recording secretary; Susie Siebenaller, organizing secretary, and Mimi Merwin, director.

At the awards luncheon held during the state convention, the Plymouth Corners society received an honorable mention in the state's American Music Contest, third place for Mountain Schools support and second place for publicity coverage.

In Our Town

By JEAN DAY

NORTHVILLE TOWN HALL is moving to new, larger quarters in the Thunderbird Hilton on Northville Road next season. For the first time, both the lecture and the celebrity luncheon following will be held in the same location.

At today's concluding Town Hall program of the current season at Northville High School, Mrs. Jack Doheny, retiring chairman, is announcing the expansion plans for the upcoming 13th season. The TH committee is particularly delighted, she says, that prices will remain the same, $12 for the four-lecture series and $4 for each luncheon.

The committee, in holding the price line, is counting on additional ticket sales to be able to continue to offer top fare. With Erma Bombeck, widely known humorist-columnist, opening the series October 11 and fashion designer Donald Brooks closing it, there seems little doubt that the committee has another successful season ahead.

Northville Town Hall has been a highly successful venture ever since its inception in 1961-62 under sponsorship of the Altar Society of Our Lady of Victory Church. In 1961 a small group of 13 women headed by Mrs. Robert Rahaley wrote Keedick Agency and contacted for the first speakers. The series opened at the P & A Theatre with John Mason Brown. Bennett Cerf was the concluding speaker.

Luncheons were held first at Lofy's in Plymouth, later at Meadowbrook Country Club, Thunderbird Inn, Mayflower Meeting House and, presently, at the Farmington Holiday Inn. Both the lectures and luncheons drew capacity crowds. About five years ago the decision was made to move the lectures to the high school.

Keeping pace with the expansion were the Town Hall Awards. From the beginning, it has been a policy to share part of the proceeds with community organizations. Mrs. Roy Mattison, a member of the TH committee from the beginning and now its historian, reports that over the years $22,000 has been donated to 22 different area charities in addition to Our Lady of Victory. Mrs. Mattison, who now is serving on the awards committee, points out that King's Daughters, and the Plymouth Woman's Club Loch Rio Girl's School project at Belleville have been award recipients from the beginning. Others have been the Livonia Youth Symphony, Plymouth State Home projects and Northville Historical Society.

Looking back on Town Hall's 12-year history Mrs. Mattison adds that "we've always had a profit with only one season in which we just about broke even."

Town Hall also traditionally has been an organization that welcomes newcomers. Purchase of a season ticket is all that is necessary to "become involved" in a community-wide project. Mrs. William Miron will take over for the upcoming 13th year with Mrs. J. Thomas Handy as vice-chairman.

ONE NORTHVILLE informational coffees are being scheduled in the community to explain why advocates of unification feel unity is "the way to go." Three families in Northville Commons who have invited friends in this week include the Thomas Murphys, 42135 Westmeath, who hosted a group Wednesday afternoon; Dr. and Mrs. George Berquist, 41979 Banbury Court, who have a meeting for 8 p.m. today, April 12; and Mr. and Mrs. John Hobart, 42131 Brampton Court, who have a group coming in at 9 p.m. this evening.

Mrs. Frank Jones, One Northville area chairman for Northville Commons, asks anyone who would like to have a gathering to receive more information or who would like to attend a meeting to call her at 349-4611.

POLICE BLUE—naturally—is the color of the tickets being sold throughout the community for the upcoming First Annual Policeman's Ball of Northville Police Officers Association. It's set for Friday, April 27, at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth, with dancing to the music of Eddie Santini's Soundmen from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. A floor show with the Taylor Dancers also is planned.

Tickets at $8 a couple now are on sale from off-duty officers. Dance Chairman Bruce Deacon adds that all proceeds after expenses will be divided between the NPOA and local charities. He may be reached at 349-4551 for ticket information.

REGISTRATIONS will be taken at the door this Saturday morning for the day-long conference on the emerging roles of women scheduled by the Women's Continuum Office of Schoolcraft College. "You've Only Just Begun!" is the upbeat title of the conference which begins with registration at 9 a.m. Registration is $1 and includes a keynote address by Lorraine Beebe, chairperson, Michigan Women's Commission, and director, Michigan Consumer Council.

A talk also will be given by Patricia Silea, Executive Director, Michigan Women's Commission. In the afternoon workshops will be held on careers, career decision making and human potentials.

Advance registrations for the day include a mother-daughter team from Northville, Mrs. Jean Stearns and her daughter, Julie. Others in the Highland Lakes community signing up include Mrs. Noreen Swanson and Mrs. Janet VanVoorhis.

HIGHLAND LAKES fashion show to benefit the HL firemen's fund was a sell-out last Saturday with about 150 couples attending, the committee reports. There was a profit of $300 realized from the work of residents—all models were from Highland Lakes. Resident Jimmy Clark played for the event while another resident, Eugene Fogel, narrated.

"CHILDHOOD MEMORIES" was the title chosen for the spring district business meeting of "area" Jaycee Auxiliaries co-hosted by the Northville Jaycettes with the Plymouth group last week at Cooke Junior High.

Northville's energetic Jaycettes, in charge of the decorating, inserted fun into a program that includes serious plans for community service by carrying out childhood themes. Kites and balloons decorated the cafeteria while each table had "ice cream sodas." Jane Shannon was decorations chairman.

Mrs. Robert Hilton, a hostess, was a beribboned little girl while Mrs. John Buckland, president, was a clown. Mrs. Thomas Lang, in charge of the local Woman of the Year contest, was a football player. She was named Northville Jaycette of the Year at the program. She also had served as the Jaycette chairman for the kidney donor program.

Mrs. Samuel Hall was named Northville Spokette of the Year, an award going to a first-year member of the Jaycettes who had made outstanding contributions. Mrs. Hall, a Northville Jaycee Auxiliary director, had helped with several orientation projects and worked on Fourth of July Jaycee-sponsored community festivities.

Honor guests at the meeting included Woman of the Year award winners from district auxiliaries. Mrs. E. O. Weber, Northville honoree, attended, among those congratulating Lee Parker of Gibraltar, named district winner. Mrs. Parker was cited for overcoming her own handicap and teaching others in a handicap workshop in her community.

Garden Clubs Learn

By MARTHA ROEMER

"Cooking can relax you if you have the right attitude. Be happy when you cook, ladies, and you will produce happier dishes and your family will be happier, too."

Those words are the philosophy of gourmet cook Madame Charity DeViscountess Suczek.

Madame Suczek was the guest speaker this week at the annual Tri-Club Brunch hosted by the Northville branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association at the First Presbyterian Church of Northville.

Cooking, maintains Madame Suczek, is made up of three things — science, art and psychology.

"When you cook," she said, "you change the molecule structure of things and that is physics. This happens when you heat an egg, when you cook it and when you mix it with other things."

Of the artistic aspect of cooking, Madame Suczek said, "You cook dishes to perfection and serve them to look appealing. This is artistry."

"Psychologically, don't look at cooking as a chore. If you are upset, don't go into the kitchen. Instead, go somewhere and take a deep breath. Every meal should be a banquet," she said, "and good meals should keep a family going on an even keel."

Madame Suczek has studied cooking all over the world and has had a very distinguished career in the field of gourmet cuisine preparations. She has had radio shows, taught at universities, given lectures throughout the country and now teaches gourmet cooking classes in Birmingham.

"Cooking," she said, "has been a tremendous experience for me. I didn't start doing it professionally until after my husband died in 1957. Now, it is wonderful. It has opened up the doors to all of the arts, painting and music and literature. Through cooking, I am learning all the time."

While she spoke of her experiences and gave many cooking hints, Madame Suczek prepared two dishes. One was a chicken dish favored by Italian opera composer Gioacchino Antonio Rossini and the other was a dessert fruit dish prepared in a chafing dish.

While she cooked the chicken, Madame Suczek said, "always soak chicken in lemon juice for one or two hours before cooking it." The lemon juice, she explained, is an astringent and tenderizer all in one.

"Always use unsalted butter in cooking," she said. "Salt is a preservative and butter must always be fresh. Also, if you use butter with salt in a sauce, it will give the sauce extra weight."

The dish, La Fricassee De Poulet, can be prepared entirely in an electric skillet and will serve four or five people.

Newlyweds Move to Northville

Two of Northville's newest residents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Richard Brodie who were married on March 23 at the First Baptist Church of Lincoln Park in a double ring ceremony

The Reverend Robert D. Terpstra of Holland, Michigan, performed the ceremony for the former Martha Jane King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon B. King of Lincoln Park, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brodie of Allen Park.

The altar was decorated with two candelabra and bouquets of gladioli for the 7 p.m. ceremony. Mrs. J. Doyle Barton was the organist and Mrs. William Brodie, the bridegroom's sister-in-law, sang Wedding Song, My World and Our Prayer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory which featured a long train. Her veil was fingertip length and she carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow roses, lily of the valley and heather.

Mrs. Edward Cook was matron of honor in a floor-length silk organza gown with an ivory bodice and a navy skirt. She carried a long stemmed yellow rose and yellow heather.

Bridesmaids Mrs. Bruce Rumley, Ruth Rumley, Mrs. Lawrence Warner, Mrs.

Randy Meredith and Deborah Allen wore gowns like the matron of honor's and carried similar flower arrangements. James Brodie served his brother as best man. The ushers were William Brodie, Bruce Rumley, David Wright, Edward Cook and Robert Koopman.

Guests from Tennessee, Iowa, Canada and Michigan attended the wedding reception which was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

The couple chose a wedding trip to Montreal, Canada, and the Eastern United States and are now at home on Base Line Road.

The bride will graduate in June from Wayne State University with a degree in nursing. Her husband is a graduate of Monroe Community College and the Wayne State University School of Mortuary Science. He is presently on the staff of Casterline Funeral Home.

Students and Jaycees

Seek Food for Mission

Northville High School students and Northville Jaycees project to help Mother Waddles "Feed a City" will continue through Wednesday, April 18, according to Jaycee project chairman John Swienkowski.

Announcements will be made in area churches on Palm Sunday, April 15, that the high school students will collect canned goods from door-to-door on April 16 and 17 to be donated to Mother Waddles' Detroit campaign to "Feed a City" for Easter.

In addition to the door-to-door collections, Northville Jaycees will have a truck in the Northville Downs parking lot from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. on April 16, 17 and 18. At those times, individuals who have not been contacted by a high school student may make contributions of canned food.

In making the announcement, Swienkowski expressed the Jaycees' thanks to the students and officials of Northville High School for their assistance in the project.

AAUW Collecting Books for Benefit

If you're an avid reader running out of shelf space, the members of the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women have you in mind as they search the Northville area for good used books to be sold at their 19th annual book sale.

The sale will be held at Westland Center on May 3, 4, and 5.

According to the sale chairman, Mrs. F.R. Hanert, books (hardcover and paperback), magazines, sheet music and records in good condition are still needed.

AAUW members have collected, sorted and marked nearly 12,000 good quality used books since last fall for the May sale.

Proceeds from the sale of the books will be donated to the National Fellowship Fund which awards stipends, scholarships and fellowship grants to outstanding American women for doctoral study and research.

In addition to the national contribution, the Plymouth chapter sponsors two full-tuition scholarships for area women.

Individuals wishing to have books picked up at their home may contact Mrs. Norman O. Norgren, 34-4723, or Mrs. Hanert, 453-6966.

REFLECTIONS OF WINTER—With a thin layer of ice beginning to form around its edges, this pond on Beck Road reflects what most Novi residents hope was one last glimpse of winter weather which descended on the area last week. The cold streak, and light snowfall interrupted the arrival of spring and forced cancellation of several sure signs of spring, such as Novi High School's first Southeastern Conference baseball game.

For School Board Member

Recall Campaign Gains

Petitions asking for an election for the recall of School Board Member William Ziegler will be circulated in Novi beginning this weekend.

Circulators of the petitions, according to Mrs. Audrey Murphy who is coordinating the recall campaign, hope to have enough signatures within a week to force an election on the matter.

"We're shooting to get the recall question done in time so it can appear on the regular school board election ballot in June," Mrs. Murphy told The Novi News Tuesday.

According to recall procedure, once the petitioners have attained the required number of names, the petitions are presented to the Secretary of the School Board (Ray Warren). The Board then has 30 days in which to certify both the validity of the petition and the signatures on it.

At the end of those 30 days, if the petitions are determined to be valid, the Board must set a date for an election within 35 days.

Mrs. Murphy noted that the recall question might not appear on the June ballot, but expressed confidence that the Novi Board of Education would move swiftly in validating the petitions and setting the election to coincide with the regular June election date.

"I feel the Board will move as rapidly as possible so it can put the question on the June ballot and thus avoid the expense of holding a special election," she said.

Nix Novi Multiples

A request for a zoning change that would have permitted construction of additional multiple dwelling units near the Smokler development at Eight Mile and Meadowbrook Roads was rejected by the Novi city council Monday.

In a joint public hearing with the city's planning board, the council by a 4-2 margin rejected the requested rezoning from R-1-H (country homes) to R-2-A (multiple family dwellings) for the 4.7 acre parcel owned by the M.O.P. Investment Company.

The requested rezoning was for a long, narrow strip of property 1,100 feet deep and 195 feet wide located north of Eight Mile, immediately adjacent to the east side of the Opposition to Ziegler's continued presence on the School Board apparently stems from an incident which occurred in June of 1972 when he was arrested by Novi police and charged with larceny under $50.

Ziegler entered a plea of "nolo contendere" to the charges when his case was tried last month in the 52nd District Court. The plea means, literally, "no contest." It is a plea which does not admit guilt but subjects the plaintiff to prosecution as if he had admitted guilt.

Judge Martin Boyle accepted the plea and fined Ziegler $50.

Mrs. Murphy reported she had undertaken the recall campaign in response to numerous phone calls from Novi citizens.

"There are a large number of people who are very upset that Mr. Ziegler has refused to resign from the School Board," she said Tuesday.

"We feel that his credibility as a member of the Novi Board of Education has been destroyed," she continued. "Our children come home from school and throw it up in our faces as an example of a

Creek Dispute Throws Snag In Paving Plans

The paving of Meadowbrook between Nine and Ten Mile Roads, slated to get underway this spring, has run into a snag which could conceivably delay the project indefinitely.

Novi's city council was informed Monday that the Meadowbrook Lake Subdivision Association has retained the legal firm of Cummings and McClorey to represent their interests in the matter.

The council was further informed in a letter from Bernard McClorey of Cummings and McClorey that the residents of Meadowbrook Lakes "have indicated a firm intent to exercise all legal rights and privileges" in the matter.

Involved is the proposed relocation of the Ingersol Creek which flows westerly across Meadowbrook Road from Kaufman and Broad's Village Oaks subdivision into Meadowbrook Lake.

The creek is part of the proposed Patnales Drain project which calls for the creek to be rerouted approximately 200 feet north of its existing location.

The objection of the Meadowbrook Lakes residents is not to the paving of Meadowbrook Road, but to the proposed relocation of the Ingersol Creek. However, since the paving project must include provisions for a bridge across the creek whatever its location, the two projects are inextricably combined.

McClorey pointed out this interdependence in his letter to the council. "The costs incident to the construction of the bridge over the Ingersol Creek may be money wasted if the final route and configuration of the Creek is not as presently represented," he noted.

He then suggested the council consider temporary paving of the portion of Meadowbrook Road which is in question so that city funds are not committed "in a road design which may not adhere to the final requirements of the Patnales Drain project."

The Meadowbrook Lakes residents have two major objections to the relocation of the creek. First, they feel that the proposed rerouting would adversely affect their use and enjoyment of Meadowbrook Lake and its adjoining parks. In addition, they contend, their property values will also be adversely affected by the rerouting.

Secondly, they feel the creek is being rerouted to benefit the interests of Kaufman and Broad and that this is being accomplished to the detriment of the ecology of Meadowbrook Lake.

Originally, Ingersol Creek flowed southeasterly across the K&B property. At K&B's request, however, the location of the stream was altered. Although still crossing Meadowbrook Road at the same point, instead of flowing southeasterly, the path of the stream was extended due east to Meadowbrook Road and then south down Meadowbrook until it finally rejoined the original stream bed leading across the road into the lake.

The creek presently follows that original relocation.

In March of 1971 K&B proposed an additional relocation. It is this second relocation which the

Paving Faces

Other Threat

Although the opposition of the Meadowbrook Lakes residents to the rerouting of the Ingersol Creek represents one potential snag for the Meadowbrook Road paving plans, it is not the only source of possible delay for the project.

When bids for the construction of the road were received two weeks ago, the low bid of $447,850 was 19 percent higher than the cost of the project as estimated by Novi's engineering consultants, Johnson and Anderson.

City Attorney David Fried told the Novi city council Monday that there may be a statute which prohibits acceptance of a bid which runs more than 10 percent over an estimated project cost. He will issue his legal opinion at next Monday's council session.

If after studying the statute Fried decides that the city cannot accept the low bid of $447,850 for the construction of the road, the project will have to be rebid.

Fried's comments were delivered Monday as the council heard a report from Johnson and Anderson representative Charles Fenske, who had been asked to explain why the estimated cost of the project was so far out of line with the bids submitted by the construction companies.

During the ensuing discussion, J&A was strongly criticized by Councilman Louie Campbell.

"It appears that the estimated cost of the project did not accurately represent the actual cost of the project," Fenske told the council. "Regrettably, our estimate was wrong."

Fenske attributed the discrepancy to increases in

Wixom Appoints Board

Wixom's City Library came even closer to becoming a reality Tuesday with the appointment of a Library Board by Mayor Gilbert C. Willis.

According to law, a library board must have at least five members, and the first board members must be appointed in staggering terms of one, two, three, four and five years. This allows for the board to have one new appointment each year.

The five Wixom women named to serve and their terms are as follows: Mrs. Barbara Phillips, one year; Mrs. Glenda Bradley, two years; Mrs. Jane Wahamaki, three years; Mrs. Nancy Dingeldey, four years; and Mrs. Catherine Olson, five years.

'Much Work Needed'—Accreditation Report

Novi High School made history last week by gaining the coveted North Central Association accreditation in record-breaking time.

But that doesn't mean the school is perfect—far from it. Robert E. Hall, chairman of the evaluating team that visited Novi recently, made fact plain in what overall was a laudatory written report of the team's investigation. Plenty of work remains to be done, he indicated. "This writer," said Hall in the report, "and the evaluation team found themselves trying to evaluate two separate items of importance—(a) objectives and philosophies and (b) subjective problems that hung in the air like a sword on a hair."

Objectively, the team found Novi "to have a young enthusiastic staff who had made a real effort to make a self-study which was sincere and realistic for their school size. The staff seemed geared to the education of students although philosophies differed as to how to lead the staff in the upward flight with growth."

But he cautioned: "The 'Novi Cares' slogan we saw displayed was real, it now behooves the administration to better determine how to lead the staff in the upward flight with growth."

Hall said a number of staff members, although not outwardly discouraged, "showed some frustrations regarding budget control, new programs which would add to their teaching assignments and recognition beyond some monetary reimbursement."

"The new programs were geared to the students, a plus factor for Novi, but below the surface a concern reared that new programs would eventually add more assignments, thereby, hindering progress."

"A small staff," he continued, "can now handle the assignments adequately but all seemed to be aware that more new courses were to be offered (one in science and science teachers were yet not aware) and no assurance that further preparations would be shared."

The chairman pointed out that the faculty is doing a "fine professional job despite the lack of adequate guidelines and knowledgeable budget allocations."

Hall said the team-management concept, if believed in must be further strengthened and be in evidence throughout the building.

"Communications," he said, "must be improved by all parties involved including custodial services, teachers, administrators, counselors."

"We were impressed by the surveys made in anticipation of this self-study. We hope that the results of these surveys will be utilized and that parents are drawn into the area of planning and discussion more each year. The community school concept is exceptional and we hope that the vision Novi has becomes a reality for we feel that if 'Novi Cares' the community must be involved."

"Without complete knowledge of your scheduling and internal affairs we might suggest an examination of the use of other qualified personnel who could teach classes of a specialized nature such as: home economics, Prick peaches all over with a fork. Blend grated orange rind into butter and heat in a chafing dish. Saute peaches, gently turning them in butter sauce and baste. Take care that the butter does not burn.

"When you have a recipe that you are going to cook," said Madame Sucek, "get organized in advance. Have all of your ingredients out ahead of time so they are all room temperature. When you blend things together, they must all be the same temperature. Otherwise, that throws everything off. Everything has to be ready. A kitchen must be organized."

The dessert which Madame Sucek showed the women is cooked at the table in a chafing dish.

"This is loads of fun," she said. "You don't have to be in the kitchen, you can be with your guests and you don't miss a thing."

"But," she warned, "don't practice on your guests. Let your family be the guinea pigs."

Holy Week Services Told

Palm Sunday, April 15, and Maundy Thursday, April 19, will mark the beginning of the Easter celebration in many area churches.

Special events and services have been scheduled for those two days by many Northville and Novi churches.

The First Presbyterian Church of Northville has scheduled two Palm Sunday services, one at 9:30 a.m. and another at 11 p.m.

The Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church will hold its annual White Breakfast on Wednesday, April 18 at 9 a.m. The public is invited to make reservations for the breakfast at the church, located at 200 East Main Street.

The confirmation class will be received into the church at 7:30 p.m. on Maundy Thursday and communion will be served to all parishioners of the Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m., it was announced by the Reverend Lloyd Brasure.

According to the Reverend Charles F. Boerger, St. Paul's Lutheran Church will receive the confirmation class into membership at 10:30 a.m. on Palm Sunday.

A vesper service will be held in the church on Maundy Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The church is located at the corner of High and Elm Streets in Northville.

Those attending the 9:30 and 11:25 a.m. Palm Sunday services at the First United Methodist Church of Northville will be permitted to take on of the symbolic palm fronds from the branches which will be in the church. The sermon topic for the Reverend G.C. Branstner on that day will be "The Price of Prophecy."

A continuous communion service will be held at the church from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. The Methodist church is located at Eight Mile and Taft Roads. Those attending on Maundy Thursday are invited to "share in the service, stay as long as you like, and go when you wish" by the church family.

Maundy Thursday will be celebrated at Living Lord Lutheran Church in Novi with a communion potluck and Holy Communion celebrated in the meal setting. During the evening, the movie The Supper will be shown.

Located at 40700 Ten Mile Road, the church has as its pastor the Reverend Jim Liefeld.

The Church of the Holy Cross Episcopal at 46200 Ten Mile Road in Novi has scheduled Palm Sunday services at 7:30 and 11:15 a.m.

At both services, Holy Eucharist will be served and there will be the blessing and the distribution of palms.

The Reverend Leslie Harding of Holy Cross has also announced that Holy Eucharist will be served at 10:45 a.m. on Monday through Wednesday during Holy Week and again at 7 p.m. on Maundy Thursday.

Novi United Methodist Church has planned a worship service with drama for 10 a.m. on Palm Sunday. The theme for the service is Early Christians and Jesus' Last Week.

The 11:15 a.m. adult discussion class on Palm Sunday will deal with the topic, Our Responsibility for Jesus' Death.

Maundy Thursday events, reports the Reverend Philip Seymour, will include an all-church lenten dinner at 6:30 and at 7:30 p.m. there will be a family communion celebration where both members of Novi United Methodist Church and non-members will be welcome.

St. William's Catholic Church in Walled Lake will have a solemn procession and mass at 9 a.m. on Palm Sunday. Paschal meals, by reservation only, will be held at the church on Holy Tuesday and Wednesday at 7 p.m.

The solemn liturgy will be said at 8 p.m. on Maundy Thursday.

Salem Bible Church begins the pre-Easter week observances with a guest speaker.

Missionary Rex Cobb, who leaves shortly for South America where he will work with the unevangelized Indian tribes, will bring the message at 7 p.m. on Palm Sunday. He is an independent Baptist missionary.

The Rev. Ivan Speight will preach at the regular 11 a.m. worship on April 15.

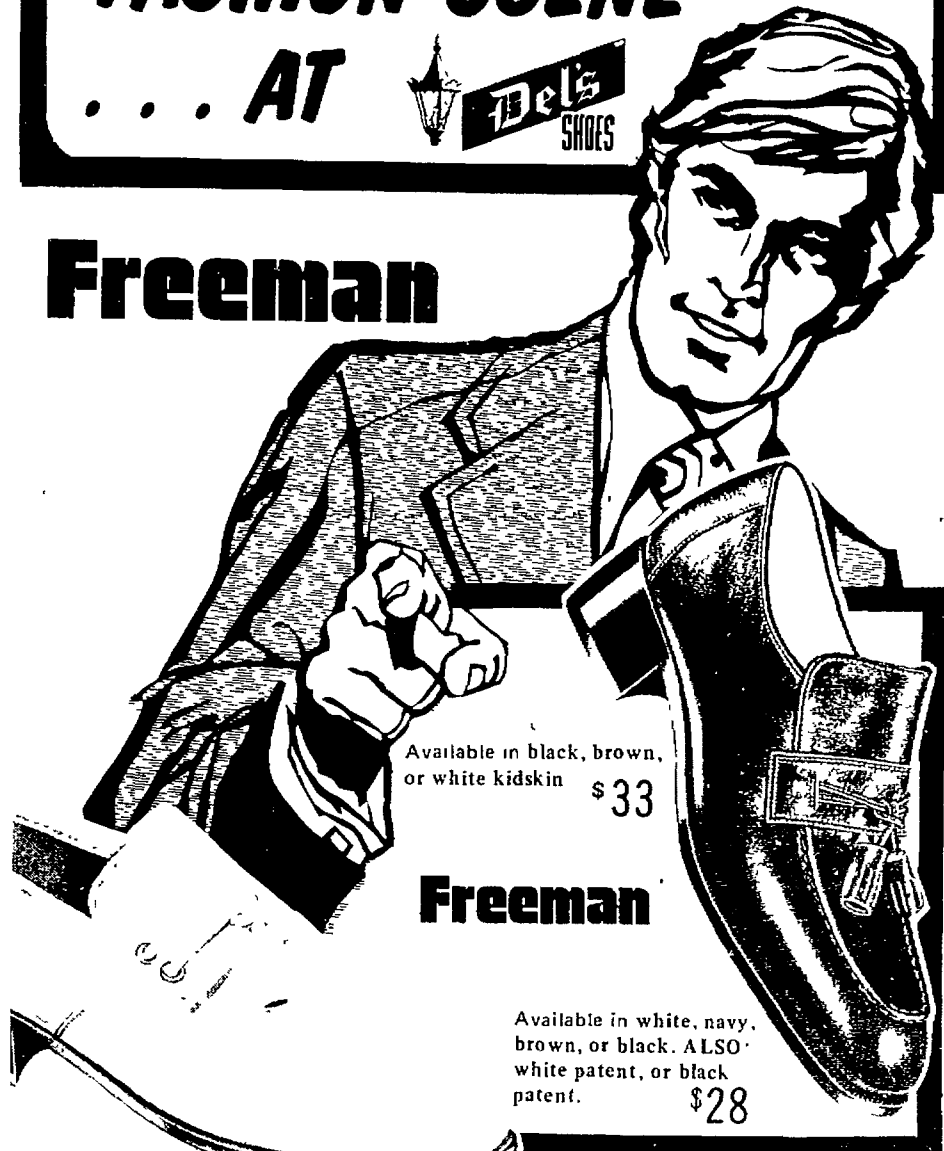

Good Friday services at Salem Bible Church include the entire community and will be held from 1 to 2 p.m. April 20 with Pastor Speight speaking.

double standard. If the citizens look the other way in this instance, we are condoning the very things we teach our children are wrong."

Mrs. Murphy said she anticipated little trouble in getting the required number of signatures.

"I have people who'll be circulating petitions in most subdivisions," she said. "We've got petitions going in the Clarke Subdivision, Pioneer Meadows, Meadowbrook Lakes, Echo Valley, Willowbrooks One,

Two, and Three, Olde Orchard, Orchard Hills, Village Oaks, and in the Walled Lake area."

"I think we can also get petitions going in Lakewood and Highland Hills Mobile Home Park."

To force an election, recall petitions must be signed by 25 percent of the number of voters who cast ballots in the last election for state governor.

Approximately 2,400 Novi people cast ballots in the last governor's election, so Mrs. Murphy feels that 600 signatures will be more than sufficient to force an election.

"The School District is smaller than the overall city," she noted. "Since we only need 25 percent of the number of voters in the district of the official to be recalled, 600 names will be more than enough."

"We hope to get a lot more than just 600 names," she added. "We want Mr. Ziegler to know how much people are against his continued presence on the School Board."

Out of the Past

FIVE YEARS AGO

An empty runaway school bus plowed through a utility pole and snow fence, streaked across Center Street at the high school entrance, leaped a high embankment and crashed into a house. But for the fact that the usual heavy traffic to the school had not yet begun, the bizarre accident might have been disastrous.

The curfew placed on Detroit in the wake of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King spread to Northville on the fringe of western Wayne County. Businesses in town were all closed by 8 p.m. Whether or not the curfew would be continued would be decided by Governor George Romney.

The mail went through as usual despite the work involved in moving the Novi Post Office from Novi Road to the present location on Grand River.

A potential dentist and a potential teacher shared top academic rolls of Northville High School's graduating class. Named valedictorian was Charles Keegan and Diane Holdsworth was named salutatorian.

TEN YEARS AGO

Northville School Board members gave unanimous approval to a preliminary 1963-64 budget that, for the first time in district history, predicts expenditures over the $1 million mark. The preliminary budget foresees expenditures increases of over $80,000 and a deficit of just over $8,000.

Plans calling for relocating Northville's municipal headquarters from its present city hall to temporary quarters at 122 North Wing Street were approved. Manager Bruce Potthoff was given the official "go ahead" on a plan that will introduce 24-hour on-duty service at the temporary city hall for fire and police calls.

The Northville Presbyterian Church announced plans to expand its Christian Education facilities with the addition of a 9,000 square foot unit. The new $120,000 addition will adjoin the south end of the present building.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Northville teachers asked the board of education for a seven percent increase on their present salary schedules. In their request, the teachers urged the board to consider percentage increases in the future. They pointed out that they didn't feel that across the board increases were fair to teachers near the top of the salary schedule. An eventual goal of $5,000 minimum and $11,000 maximum salary is sought by the teachers.

Trend homes made their debut in Northville in the proposed 250-home subdivision located on Base Line Road at Novi Street. The subdivision offered three bedroom brick houses ranging in price from $14,990 to $16,300.

The Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company offered patrons whole chicken fryers for 35 cents a pound, a two pound pack of bacon for $1.27 and semi boneless hams for 79 cents a pound.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The special spring sale of veal at the Kroger Company store in town featured veal shoulder roast for 39 cents a pound.

One hundred and eighteen ladies attended the joint Garden Club Spring Luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. The Garden City Club was hostess to the clubs from Northville and Plymouth. Arrangements of roses, snapdragons and carnations centered each of the tables.

The Wayne County District Four Spelling Bee took place in the Northville High School gymnasium. On hand to present awards was Northville Superintendent of Schools R. H. Amerman.

Symbolic Flower

The Buddy Poppy has been the symbolic flower of Memorial Day since its first sale by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in 1922.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

To meet a pressing need, the village council purchased a new fire engine, 400 feet of new fire hose and an electric siren to take the place of the old fire bell. The hose will be carried right on the truck and that will do away with the laborious job of having to take the presently used fire hose cart to fires. The whole outfit, complete with siren will cost the village $3,950.

The recent snow storm was quite a surprise to Northville people. The ground and trees and shrubs were covered with a mantle of purest white. Some were heard to remark that they never knew of a snow storm so late in the season, evidently having forgotten the one that visited all sections of the state on April 16, 1904.

School Board OKs Contract Renewals

Contracts for all principals, assistant principals and administrators were renewed last week by Northville School Board members.

Two-year renewals were granted to the five principals, two assistant principals and Director of Business Earl Busard and Director of Instruction Miss Florence Panattoni.

A one-year renewal was given to Administrative Assistant Irwin Sutter. Superintendent Raymond Spear and board members explained that the one-year extension "reflects no dissatisfaction with his performance of duties."

However, he has only been on the job for four months and one of his major roles is in negotiations and negotiations haven't really begun," Spear explained.

All extensions are effective July 1, the board indicated.

limitation so that they can provide other services.

"Look, the Michigan Township Association is fighting for its life; it wants to keep township government and it knows the only way to do it is to provide townships with ways to raise taxes. And they're going to do it at Lansing...and they're going to do it without my vote and without your vote. You call that responsive?"

"If they're talking about acting quickly on citizen requests, that's ridiculous. I sit on the board, and I know what's happening. We had some people come in a few weeks ago and ask for a vibrating machine so that household articles could be inscribed to prevent burglaries. We voted to provide the machine. Now I understand it's bottled up, for some reason or another, and the people still don't have it."

"I remember when citizens, at the direction of the board, made a study of police protection and reported their recommendations to the board. It went into the waste-basket. Is that what they call being responsive?"

Klein said he fears many township residents may be making the same mistake that he once made in believing that 1-mill provides all the money used by the township.

"That 1-mill barely covers the cost of our police chief and two patrolmen," he says. "It brings in only about $60,000 in taxes. But our budget is something like $380,000. All that money from other sources, and what kind of services are we providing? Hardly anything; it's going for salaries...for duplication."

Although he sees economy of government—both in the city and in the township—as a sound reason for supporting unification, mutual planning "is just as great or an even greater reason" for uniting, he declares.

"We've got to plan as one: historically we are the same and socially we are the same. We even have the same name. What we do in the township affects the city, and what the city does affects us. Why in the world should we plan separately and have all this duplication?"

"How long do you suppose the present downtown Northville could maintain its quaintness, its close customer-merchant relationship if the township started planning its own central core? Not long, I'll tell you. It'll become a ghost city overnight. You'll see boarded up windows, fly-by-night stores, and eventually slums."

Isn't it more logical, he asks, to let the present central business district remain the "core" for the combined area, with development of some complementary service centers in the township?

"If we let the core become a blight...and that's what will happen, mark my words...it's going to be just like a disease and it will spread to the township, and then where are we? Neither of us (city or township) will have something to be proud of. We'll just be one big blight on the landscape."

Jointly, the city and township, he suggests, can more effectively deal with "all this forced zoning and planning you see starting to develop. The state, the county SEMCOG...all of them want to tell us what to do, how to plan."

"And townships are the first to be stepped on because they're the weakest. Look what the county's already telling us what they're going to do with our sheriff's patrol. The first to go is the weakest link, and township government is about as weak as you can get," involving the city and township of Northville.

"It's no secret," he points out, "that Livonia would like to part of the township over in the Haggerty Road area. It's a real plum for them. Once that expressway's in they will have a narrow, landlocked strip between the expressway and their western border (Haggerty Road). To make it usable, especially as an industrial corridor, they'd like part of our township."

"We're talking about a part of the township that is mostly raw acreage with relatively few people living on it. So it wouldn't be any big problem for them to pick it off."

"Okay, so we turn down unification. That doesn't mean that someone else can't gobble up some of our land. We're sitting ducks, and I'd much prefer going with Northville (city), which is, after all, part of our heritage, than being eaten away here and there from the outside."

Klein says he can appreciate misgivings of some residents "because they equate city government with Detroit." You can't blame them for being concerned. They moved out here, or have always lived here because they don't like the kind of city represented by Detroit.

"What they don't consider, though, is the fact that we're going to grow, our population's going to boom (our 1966 township master plan calls for 50,000 people) no matter what happens on this (unification) issue."

"How in the world do they think ineffective government can cope with that kind of growth, with the services that will be demanded. It will be chaotic."

"And if city residents think they can sit snugly back and go along as if what's happening next door won't affect them, they're sadly mistaken. We're in this boat together. If one of us swamps, it will drag the other under."

"All you have to do is look around and see what's happened to some of the other communities that didn't have some real clout. I'll tell you this: separately we're both dead. We might as well kiss everything we love about this community goodbye."

The trustee concludes his remarks by advising the voter to consider "tomorrow" as well as "today" when going to the polls.

"After all, 'tomorrow' is awfully close. And if we make a mistake today we may live to regret it tomorrow."

Frid...

adding that the operation of the city is financed through the 10.2 millage tax rate.

Proponents, he argues, "play with figures" in suggesting that the millage rate can be reduced because the township will be paying part of the taxes. What they should be pointing out, he insists, is that the reduction will occur because race track revenues, presently earmarked for capital improvements, are to be shifted to operational purposes under unification.

"We could reduce city taxes right now if we wanted to use (race track revenues) for operation. So what have we gained?"

The argument, "one government is cheaper than two," is not sufficient evidence, he insists, to gain his support for unification.

"We already have a city government; it is functional, it is viable, and it is relatively close to us."

"Bigness does not always improve the quality of life, or the quality of service. It makes it more remote in many cases. It may also make a larger administrative structure, which eats up some of the so-called tax savings."

Furthermore, Frid points out that expansion of existing services to encompass the larger, proposed city will cut down the lifetime of existing equipment. "It's going to cost extra money to replace this equipment, to provide the additional equipment necessary to service the 18-square mile district."

The present size of the city, he says, is ideal and he fears enlargement will diminish the city residents' voice in government.

"We have the closeness, the compactness, the ability to have a good say in the city government."

To illustrate his point, Frid cites the recent council consideration and adoption of the recreational vehicle ordinance. "Just about every one of the complaints that were voiced and registered against the ordinance were taken into consideration by the council and were accommodated in the ordinance finally passed."

"Now I wonder if in a much, much larger city, government listens to the individual this way. I question it. I'm afraid we may lose this closeness, our effectiveness.

"You see, I'm looking at this from the standpoint of a citizen of the city, and the advantages for me in the larger city don't seem to be there. All the advantages appear to be for the township."

Financially, the existing city is in an excellent position. With unification its financial position will be jeopardized, its services diluted, he suggests.

"The city of Northville," he points out, "has purchased its sewer capacity for 9,000 people in the city. I heard this the other night by Mayor (A.M.) Allen himself. The township passed their share up; they wouldn't buy it. Now they're buying excess capacity from Livonia. But we (city) have already looked ahead to the future and purchased our share."

"Most of our streets are paved. I can think of only one or two that aren't, our sewer system is here and it is adequate, we have a DPW that collects our garbage and does the work for us. And we already have this, as well as the intimacy and closeness with the city council."

Frid, a Clarenceville teacher and a life-long resident of Northville, presently can see but one advantage to unification. It concerns the parimutuel (race track) rebates presently received by the city.

"With a small city, with say 9,000 people, you could run into a situation where state representatives might decide that they can't any longer allow these rebates to go only to those few people. They might decide to rewrite a law to spread the money out over a larger area because they also represent the larger area and can't afford to lose those votes."

"Look, I'm going to be frank about it. I'm calling the shots as I see them. I would like to be convinced that for the city of Northville this (unification) would be a good thing. But I haven't seen it; they haven't shown me anything to convince me."

"And I look at big cities and they all seem to get into trouble; they get old, have no monies to repair themselves, to upgrade themselves. But the City of Northville isn't faced with those kinds of troubles; we do have the monies to upgrade, and we're a nice city—not so big that you can't really talk to your city manager or the council.

"Whether you could or could not do the same thing in a larger city, I'm not sure, but I do know that the larger the group the more remote they become from the average citizen. And this concerns me."

Frid sees no dangers in separate governments. Both, he contends, will be responsive to the needs of their citizens.

Nevertheless, he recognizes that township problems will directly affect the city, and that, perhaps, the problems of the city will affect the township. But to suggest that unification, with one planning body, will give the present city resident or the present township resident "a voice in what the other does" isn't necessarily so, he says.

"I'm afraid I will have less of a voice in my city government, not more. There already is a larger population in the township, which means my vote, as a resident of the present city, is going to be diminished by these larger numbers."

Concerning jointly operated services, Frid says "there's going to come a time when they (township) will want to operate their own services. But when that happens we (city) won't be hurting because we will have the facilities—city hall and community building—which can support the city's (ultimate population)."

Frid suggests city residents "use a little logic in analyzing these (proposed) millage figures and try to decide what is going to be the best for the city of Northville."

Dispute Snags Paving

Meadowbrook Lakes residents are objecting to

According to the second plan, instead of extending east to Meadowbrook and then south back to the original stream, the Ingersol Creek would be extended due east. Thus, the original stream across Meadowbrook Road would be abandoned and the creek would cross Meadowbrook at a point approximately 200 feet north of the original stream.

The Meadowbrook Lakes residents feel that such a relocation of the creek channel would in effect give K&B additional buildable lots since the stream would no longer traverse their property

If Ingersol Creek is being rerouted for the benefit of K&B, McClarey suggested, "there are legal implications relative to the creation of the benefit to a private developer by the use of public funds" which will finance the Patnales Drain project.

At this point there is some question as to exactly what the final plans for the Patnales Drain project are. McClarey informed the council that he had discovered that no petition for the alteration of the course of the Ingersol Creek had been filed with the water resources commission of the Department of Natural Resources, even though such a matter is "clearly within the jurisdiction and control of the commission."

It is known that the Patnales Drain project has not yet attained the easements it will need for the relocation of the Ingersol Creek.

Norman Plank, president of the Meadowbrook Lake Subdivision Association, noted that the Association holds a 20 foot easement completely around the lake and that it can therefore block the proposed relocation by denying access of the new channel across its 20 foot easement

Plank acknowledged City Attorney David Fried's contention that access across the easement could be gained through condemnation proceedings, but also said that such proceedings can be tied up in court for several years.

Meanwhile, the status of the Meadowbrook Road paving, particularly as it applies to location of the bridge across the creek, remains up in the air.

music, phased electives in English, and social studies. "We would also like to suggest a review of the philosophy of dropping the fourth year of English."

Following are, very briefly, the general appraisals of each area investigated and reported by the evaluating team representatives:

PHILOSOPHY AND OBJECTIVES—The statement of philosophy appears to be sound. The staff indicates general agreement on the philosophy by students, community, board of education and themselves. Serving on committees, a phone survey, and feedback to the staff before the final writing of the philosophy and objectives was very thorough.

CURRICULUM—appears to be satisfactory for the present size of enrollment. However, the program of studies will have to be re-evaluated and expanded as the school and community grows.

Boy Writes Tribute To His Aunt

Editor's Note: Subject of feature stories in this newspaper in the past, Laura Diekoff, the handicapped lady who brought happiness to dozens at Christmas-time with her home-made Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls, died recently. One of her nephews, nine-year-old Paul Hesse, composed a poem in school following the funeral. It is titled, "Laura Diekoff".

Here she lies
Waiting to go to the castle in the skies.

She looks so pretty, when fast asleep and she doesn't make a single peep.

Don't start to cry, just kiss her goodbye.

I know she'll be alright on a cold and gloomy night.

Just be brave like me because I see,

She'll be fine yes sir, body and vine.

Just wait and see How she will be.

ACTIVITIES—A diversified and balanced program of extra classroom activities conform with the philosophy of the staff and to the objective to help provide for and encourage use of leisure time.

GUIDANCE & COUNSELING—The personnel are well qualified with excellent educational credentials and valuable outside employment experiences. The department appears to be well organized and the counselors have different enough personalities to relate to the different students.

SCHOOL PLANT & FACILITY—Novi Senior High School is situated on an attractive and adequate site for the size of the school. But the present site of Novi Senior High School does not appear adequate to handle additions of classrooms, swimming pool and auditorium.

STAFF AND ADMINISTRATION—The board of education and the administration are employing and maintaining a full qualified staff of professional and supporting personnel.

The superintendent provides strong leadership in the best interest of the community and its children and is responsive to the needs of the school staff. The addition of an assistant principal is definitely an asset and hopefully will free the principal to allow him to be an educational leader in the school.

BUSINESS EDUCATION—The students have an opportunity to obtain training which should help them to succeed in the world of work or obtain a basic education helpful in college work.

ART DEPARTMENT—Consists of adequate selection of courses ranging from beginning drawing and crafts to advance painting and media. The art instructor has a positive, relaxed approach which creates and maintains a pleasant, non-threatening classroom atmosphere.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS—Novi's English department has the good fortune of having teachers who enjoy each other's company, are willing to share ideas, accept criticism and building curriculum without friction.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE—The staff is dedicated and well prepared, and the language department is effective.

CONSUMER AND HOME MAKING—Consists of one teacher, one room and seven course offerings. The major theme of the objectives is consumer education and appears to be met in each course.

HEALTH EDUCATION—At this time the school is not meeting the requirements set up by the University of Michigan accreditation standards. Health units do not meet the requirement of 90 hours of instruction.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS—The overall quality of the industrial arts program, in effectiveness to the student needs, is good. The department has designed a program to aid in developing an awareness of knowledge and skills required for career education.

MATHEMATICS—Teachers are the strength of this program. They are concerned about problems and feel the need for some help in solving them. The program is well taught but it is limited in scope.

MUSIC—There has been some headway made in realization of the philosophy and objectives in the music department. The present teachers are dedicated and enthusiastic in their work, and are striving to provide a good music program.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION—The program appears to be an integral part of the educational process in the school system. Novi, also, has excellent extra-curricular activities, and staff is well qualified and appears to have a good rapport with the students.

SCIENCE—Two of the three instructional areas are well designed for classroom presentation and individual experimentation. The curriculum seems to reflect the desire of the department to meet the needs, abilities, and goals of the student and community.

SOCIAL STUDIES—Teachers are well qualified and possess understanding of their subject field, and the objective of the department appears to be within reach but there is a need for additional curriculum diversity.

SPECIAL EDUCATION—The total program is adequate in this size school district although the services are presently centered in the elementary schools and the middle school. The facilities for special education services must be expanded to eliminate waiting lists.

DRIVER EDUCATION—There is a good, highly organized curriculum for both the classroom, and on the road phases presently being taught.

LIBRARY AND AUDIO VISUAL—Physical facilities were adequate before the concept of instructional materials were introduced, however, this is no longer true. The librarian has the professional training necessary for developing the concept of an instructional center relating to all curriculum areas.

SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY—Problems of the community connected with Novi's rapid growth and the positive feelings towards school expressed by parents invite and commit Novi High School to serve as a center of community activity and to emphasize the need and value of involvement as educational priorities.

Police Blotter: Probe Break-Ins, Thefts

In Northville

Two business places were broken into and an attempt was made at a third business place sometime between Saturday and early Monday morning.

Roof top entrance was gained to Gamble's Hardware at 117 East Main Street after unknown persons removed a skylight.

The break-in and theft were reported to police shortly after 8 a.m. Monday. Taken was $200 from cash registers in the store.

A second break-in, which occurred at Northville Lumber on Base Line Road, was reported at 7:45 a.m. Monday.

Police said a side window was broken to gain entrance to the building. Taken was a half inch drill motor from the showroom. Value of the motor was placed at $80.

Investigating officers also said the safe had been rifled but nothing was discovered missing.

An attempted break-in at Allen Monuments, 580 South Main Street, was discovered at 2:30 a.m. Monday during a routine check by police.

A window was broken out on the north side of the building but no entrance had been made, police reported.

Theft of $3,700 in cash from the Palace Restaurant, 333 East Main Street, is under investigation by city police detectives.

The money was discovered missing Saturday morning and detectives say the theft occurred between Friday and Saturday.

Arrests are pending in the case, according to Corporal Bruce Deacon of the detective bureau.

Slippery roads during Monday afternoon's snowfall contributed to two accidents which took place between 3 and 3:30 p.m. on Eight Mile near Randolph Street.

One youth was injured after the car he was driving east on Eight Mile hit a slippery spot, struck the curb and rolled over just east of Randolph.

Police said the accident took place at 3:07 p.m. He did not require medical attention.

At 3:22 p.m., a two-car accident occurred at Eight Mile and Randolph after a westbound vehicle stopped and another westbound car slid into the rear of the vehicle.

Three persons received minor injuries but refused medical treatment.

An unattended car left running in front of Lorenz Rexall Drug Store at Main and Center streets rolled backwards across Center Street and struck a traffic light post.

Police said the accident took place shortly after 11:10 a.m. Saturday. Damaged was the traffic light on the Southwest corner of the intersection.

A 15-year-old Northville township youth, missing since April 2, was recovered in less than two hours Sunday morning by city police and officers from Livonia.

According to reports, parents of the boy had received information their son was sleeping in a car parked on Center Street. They requested city police assistance in checking the vehicle at 1:40 a.m. Sunday.

Police said they found a man sleeping in the car but not the missing boy. The man was arrested for vagrancy and, through questioning him, police obtained several places where the youth might be staying.

After checking out three leads, police came up with an address in Livonia and contacted that department which recovered the youth at 3:15 a.m.

Aesthetically, burgundy and blue may go together, but to a policeman, the colors don't quite match.

An Ann Arbor man, Roger N. Ratliff, learned a lesson in aesthetics from Northville City Police last week.

Ratliff was stopped April 3 shortly after 11:15 a.m. on West Main between Wing and Center streets after a police officer spotted burgundy and blue license plates on his car.

Police said Ratliff had a 1973 license plate on the rear of the car but an expired 1972 plate was on the front.

He was arrested and his car towed away after police also found Michigan State Police held a bench warrant for his arrest.

In Township

A train derailment at the viaduct on Northville Road and Five Mile is under investigation this week by township and C&O Railroad police.

Three cars from a northbound freight train went off the track shortly before 12:30 Sunday afternoon. The derailment took place just as the train was approaching the overpass.

No one was injured in the accident.

The derailment is the latest of several which have occurred in the Northville-Novi-Wixom area in the past several months.

A 19-year-old Southfield youth was injured last week Wednesday at 9:20 p.m. after he lost control of the car he was driving.

Steven R. Worpell was taken to St. Mary hospital and treated for injuries.

Township police said Worpell was eastbound on Seven Mile Road near Northville State Hospital when the front tire of his car struck the curb.

Worpell said the car then headed north across Seven Mile and struck two clumps of trees before ending up on its side.

Police issued him a ticket for failing to use due care while driving.

A rash of break-ins and attempted break-ins were reported to Michigan State Police and Township police during the past week.

State police troopers investigated an attempted break-in at a barber shop at 41124 Five Mile Road. Reported at 8:45 a.m. last week Tuesday, the attempted break-in took place at the rear of the business.

Unknown persons used a pry bar to try to force open the door, troopers said.

A beauty shop next to the barber shop was also the target of an attempted break-in.

Township officers said pry marks were found on the rear door last week Wednesday afternoon.

Unknown persons ransacked a home Friday afternoon at 15465 Haggerty Road after forcing open a garage door and door to the house.

Township police said two coin banks were missing but theorize drugs may have been the object of the break-in.

since medicine cabinets throughout the house had been rifled.

Thieves smashed a window at 42800 Seven Mile Road to gain entry to the home sometime Wednesday or Thursday and took an electric stove.

Police said the interior of the home also had been ransacked.

More than $500 damage was done to a home at 19374 Malvern Court after vandals broke into the home twice between Wednesday and Thursday evening.

Windows were smashed to gain entry both times, police said, and light fixtures were broken, door walls smashed and obscenities written on walls and ceilings.

In Wixom

An 18-year old Wixom man was arrested last week after police stopped an alleged larceny of lumber while it was in progress.

Charged with larceny over $100, a felony, is Albert P. Cavallaro, Junior, 18, of 2750 Hillcrest Street. Cavallaro was arraigned on the charges in 52nd District Court and exam was set for Friday, April 13.

Wixom Police Chief George VonBehren credited the alertness of a private citizen for the arrest.

"One of our citizens observed something peculiar going on around a home under construction and called police," reported the Wixom Chief. "It was that report which enabled us to make the arrest. When we can get our citizens to be observant and help us by reporting suspicious activities, our job is made that much easier and we can be that much more effective."

The incident which led to the arrest of Cavallaro took place Wednesday, April 4, at approximately 1:20 a.m.

Police received a call from a citizen reporting a possible breaking and entering of a home under construction at Teaneck Circle and Roxbury Run. A squad car was dispatched to the location.

While traveling east on Loon Lake Road approximately 100 feet west of Teaneck Circle, police reported seeing a pickup truck with a camper back pulling away from the site of the reported larceny with its head lights out.

Police approached the vehicle and pulled in front of it to prevent its escape. Cavallaro, the reported driver of the truck, was taken into custody and placed in the rear of the squad car. Further investigation revealed a large number of 2x4's stacked in the back of the truck and Cavallaro was then arrested on the larceny over $100 charges.

According to police reports, there were over 200 2x4's in the rear of Cavallaro's camper. Value of the stolen lumber was estimated in excess of $300.

A 3-speed English racing bicycle was reportedly stolen from a residence at 2028 Hazel last week.

According to the complainant, the bike was stolen from a garage behind the home.

In Novi

A 17-year old Farmington youth has been charged with negligent homicide in conjunction with an automobile accident in which one person was killed and two others were hospitalized with serious injuries.

Richard Young, 17, was arraigned on the negligent homicide charges before 52nd District Court Judge Martin Boyle last week. Exam date was set for April 16.

Young is the alleged driver of a car which was involved in a fatal accident last February. In that accident Neal Macino, 15, also of Farmington, was killed. Macino was a passenger in Young's car.

The car, westbound on 14 Mile Road, allegedly went into a spin after passing a school bus and crossed over the center line into the path of an eastbound vehicle.

Two men traveling in the eastbound vehicle suffered serious injuries and one of them, according to police, was not released from the hospital until last week.

Donnie Lee Potter, a Walled Lake man, has been charged with fleeing the scene of a property damage accident and reckless driving as a result of an incident which occurred April 5.

According to police reports, Potter was traveling east on South Lake Drive at a high rate of speed when his vehicle crossed over the center line striking a vehicle driven by 70-year old John Sawyers of Walled Lake.

Potter failed to stop for the accident, police reported, and instead continued east along South Lake Drive and struck another vehicle two-tenths of a mile past, the original accident. The second accident occurred, police said, when Potter sideswiped a car driven by 20-year old Michael Boyd Combs while attempting to pass on the right-hand side.

Council Acts

Wixom Law Bars Fluoride

An ordinance unanimously passed Tuesday by the Wixom City Council rejected state-enforced installation of fluoride treatment into the city's water system.

At the council meeting on March 27, City Attorney Gene Schnelz told the members that, according to a 1968 Public Act, if the city did not adopt an ordinance to reject fluoride in the water system, the state would have the authority to step in and install plants to inject the chemical into the water after July 11, 1973.

Schnelz explained to the council that it could, at any time, reverse the action if it felt it necessary and go ahead and permit the fluoride injection.

In other Tuesday night action the council:

—accepted the bid of Doubleday Brothers for four voting machines at a cost of $2,044 each.

—accepted the bid of Eureka Fire Hose for 1,200 feet of fire hose at a total cost of $2,058.

—authorized the city clerk to advertise for garbage and rubbish removal for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

City Accidents Decrease

Total accidents occurring within the City of Northville decreased during the first two months of 1973 when compared with the same time in 1972.

The figures were recently released in the City Police Department's monthly activity report.

According to Lieutenant Louis Westfall, head of the city's traffic bureau, accidents have declined 11 percent, with a total of 42 reported through February, down from the 47 reported during the first two months last year.

However, injuries received in accidents have increased. To date, 17 persons have been injured, up 21 percent from the 14 injured during the first two months of 1972. In February, 1973, eight persons were injured in a total of 22 accidents.

Of the 22 accidents investigated, 18 took place in traffic. Thirteen involved two or more cars, two included motor vehicle and pedestrian, and one involved a car colliding with a parked vehicle, fixed object or running off the roadway. Four accidents took place in parking lots between two or more vehicles.

During February, police also issued a total of 242 violations, bringing the year-to-date total to 514, up from 388 issued through February, 1972.

Moving violations totaled 160 during February; parking, 253; and non-hazardous, 82.

Hazardous moving violations included speeding, 62; improper turn, 37; disobeying traffic signal, 19; disobeying stop sign, 13; improper lane usage, 5; failure to yield right of way and drunken driving, 4 each; following too closely causing accident and improper passing, 3 each; driving without due care, 2; and all other hazardous violations, 7.

Non-hazardous violations included defective equipment, 37; no operators license, 20; no registration on person, 18; improper plates, 2; fail to identify self at accident scene, 1, and all other non-hazardous violations, 4.

Crimes Increase Slightly

Although calls to Northville City Police decreased by more than 100 during February when compared with the same month in 1972, several categories of crimes continued to increase.

The figures were recently released in the department's monthly activity report by Police Chief Samuel Elkins. Total calls received in February were 344, down from the 453 received in February, 1972.

Categories which showed an increase included assault and battery, six compared with two; larceny from a building, five compared with three; larceny from motor vehicle, three compared with none; unarmed robbery, one compared with none; carrying concealed weapon, one compared with none; and narcotic violations, two compared with one.

While Wayne county may find money thin to provide adequate patrol protection to its unincorporated township areas, it promises to do a better job this year in the park system.

According to Undersheriff Loren M. Pittman, a permanent year-round park patrol has been established for the first time and should be on the job within a week.

In the past the Wayne County Sheriff Patrol has begun its patrol of the sprawling parkway (from Northville to Dearborn) about Memorial Day and quit about Labor Day.

Now a 17-man staff will be assigned to this duty on a regular 12-month basis.

Pittman says that in the past the park patrol has always been behind in its work. "By the time our patrols start in the spring, the troublemakers are entrenched," he points out.

Now that the patrol unit has been funded for year-round duty Pittman believes that the operation will be more efficient and professional and that people can enjoy the parks, both summer and winter, with less fear of trouble or disruption.

The long-awaited opening of The Drawbridge seems to have arrived at last.

Preview dinners with numerous area residents as special guests were scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The Drawbridge is certain to become another famous Northville attraction—like the Old Spring, the rolling hills, the Downs, the cider mill and, another newcomer, the Mill Race.

The real test, of course, will be the food. Let us hope it is as delicious as our cold spring water and that the future holds nothing but success for The Drawbridge and its owners.

Saturday I toured Winterthur

Museum with Dr. and Mrs. Harold Wright and my wife.

Collectors and fanciers of Early American antiques are undoubtedly familiar with the famous Henry Francis du Pont museum in Wilmington, Delaware.

But it was all new to me. I was the amateur in the company of those whose hobby it is to study, view and occasionally buy Early American products.

Fortunately, nothing's for sale at Winterthur.

But I must say, even for one who wouldn't know a Queen Anne from a Chippendale, the tour was most interesting.

First of all, it takes all day—with a brief break for lunch. And you could go back every day for a week and still not see everything.

Winterthur was originally the DuPont home. In 1951 it became a museum. And Henry set out to make it the finest assemblage of Early Americana in the world. I'd say he succeeded.

The old homestead has been expanded to include 150 rooms and nine stories. Many of the rooms have been moved hundreds of miles from their original settings and rebuilt into Winterthur.

It's packed with furniture hand-crafted by our forefathers, who most certainly possessed talent that no longer exists.

And there are original examples of textiles, silver (including a set of tankards made by Paul Revere in 1772), pewter, ceramics, paintings and prints.

In addition the grounds are beautiful. Some 1,000 acres including outstanding gardens make the whole setting something to behold.

Whether antiques catch your fancy or not, a trip to Winterthur is like going back two hundred years in American history.

You can do it in a day if your legs are in good shape.

'Fiorilli Distorts Facts on Library'

To the Editor:
In response to Mr. Fiorilli's statements before the Rotary Club on April 3 in which he accused the "ladies of the Library" of "backroom politicking" may I suggest that Mr. Fiorilli is either unaware of the facts concerning our efforts to provide an expanded Library for our community or he prefers to distort them for his own purposes.

Anyone who uses the Library regularly is aware that it is inadequate and overcrowded. Our Board has in the past month made formal presentations to the City Council, the Township Board, and the School Board outlining our findings on the most expedient and economical method of expanding our facility. In our firm desire to keep the Library above and separate from the Annexation issue, we have been very careful to make our recommendations and appeals publicly and to emphasize that, since we serve both the City and Township, the Library should not be used politically by those campaigning on either side of the Annexation question.

We have not engaged in any "backroom politicking." We are not trying to "force the township out of their present quarters" since, if Annexation fails, the Township has already announced their intention of building a new Township Hall. The accurate fact is that we began investigating the Community Building for use as a Library in 1970 and made our first public recommendation on the matter in April, 1971, long before the space was occupied by the Township and long before Annexation had even been considered. Our need for more space has become critical now due to the rapid growth of the Library in the past three years. Our recent expansion into the Mezzanine

Superstition

In Case You've Not Noticed, Tomorrow's Friday the 13th

JACK HOFFMAN

WISE . . .

If we start with the premise that superstitions have been, are, and always will be an indelible part of man, it follows that the wise man will "play it safe" and live with what he has.

Oliver Wendell Holmes once wrote, "We are all tattooed in our cradles with the beliefs of our tribe; the record may seem 'superficial,' but it is indelible. You cannot educate a man wholly out of the superstitious fears which were implanted in his imagination, no matter how utterly his reason may reject them."

And George Eliot observed: "A peasant can no more help believing in a traditional superstition than a horse can help trembling when he sees a camel."

So we're superstitious, so what? Thoreau contended, "Men are probably nearer to the essential truth in their superstitions than in their science."

While I am not ready to agree that superstitions are more exact than is science, it is interesting to note that many of the Astronauts, scientists all of them, carried "lucky" charms of one kind or another into space.

Are they fools, Mr. Peterson, or simply ordinary men taking ordinary precautions?

If "playing it safe" is bad, then why, pray tell, did you sign your column, "Roland Peterson," instead of the customary 13-letter "Rolly Peterson"?

Jack W. Hoffman

ROLAND PETERSON

UNWISE . . .

If you're superstitious, you're not going to like what I have to say one bit. Better flip over to the column right next to this one. You'll find that more to your fancy.

It won't be more rational, however. Because anyone who believes in superstitions or supports the idea that superstitions have any validity has to be a little tetchy, or scared to death.

Open up that dictionary that has been accumulating dust on the shelf. You'll find superstition defined as "A belief founded on irrational feelings, especially of fear, and marked by a trust in or reverence for charms, omens, signs, the supernatural, etc."

Irrational feelings. That's about it. I once resorted to superstition. Every time I'd play ball, or a team I supported played, I would try those little things—wearing the same smelly shirt after a victory, elevating my right arm over my head until the victory string ended, avoiding cracks in the sidewalk....

Each one of those ridiculous antics was abandoned, however, when I lost a game. In other words, my head cleared and I came out of the irrational night.

This is the way it usually happens. Rational human beings soon throw off these childish habits. Only those with infantile hang-ups continue to look under the bed to make sure the Boogie Man isn't there.

Ring around the Rosey

By JACK W. HOFFMAN

Lots of us who moved to Northville to get away from the "mistakes" of other communities would do well to consider those mistakes as we listen to those who argue that unification is an awful choice to make on May 7.

Take E. G. O'Brien, a township resident, for example.

O'Brien grew up in the village of Wayne and Nankin Township and eventually became a Jaycee member and village councilman there.

"In the 1920's... Wayne was a country town of about 4,000 people like Northville is today," he recalls. "Because of the similarities of Wayne 30 to 40 years ago and Northville today, I chose Northville to raise my family. I enjoyed my youth in Wayne. I thought my family would enjoy the small town atmosphere of Northville. I was right."

During his youth Nankin Township was farmland, he remembers, "and I went to school in Wayne with the sons and daughters of Nankin farmers."

But by the time World War II rolled around all of what he cherished most about the community quickly changed.

"It (Wayne and Nankin) was the center of the arsenal for democracy. It never went to bed. Traffic on the streets, in the bowling alleys, restaurants and bars was the same at midnight or 3 a.m. as it was at noon. Faces and shifts changed, but one shift and its faces replaced another on the streets."

"The beautiful farmland of Nankin was invaded by builders and quick buck artists. Poor and quick construction of homes, streets, sewer and subdivisions was the order of the day. There was poor inspection, if any, and no full-time trained and professional governmental control."

Like Northville Township today, many residents hoped the problems would go away without changing the governmental structure.

"As a member of the Jaycees and a councilman at the time, I and many others were concerned that our homeland was being ruined. The future cost of correcting errors being made, if they could be corrected, was staggering."

"The high costs of correction are being borne today in Wayne and Westland, but poorly planned use of land will never be completely corrected at any cost."

"The Jaycees and other interested groups undertook a drive to incorporate Nankin Township and Wayne as a city. We tried not once, but three times. We wanted a single city with professional management, and control of land use to a reasonable master plan, zoning ordinance and building codes, and inspection with teeth in it. Three times we took a shellacking on unification at the polls."

According to O'Brien, the arguments that defeated incorporation were much the same as they are in Northville today:

- Higher taxes will result.
- The village people will run the township.

News From Lansing

By R. ROBERT GEAKE
Michigan Representative

One of the first representatives I met upon arriving in Lansing was a young personable long-haired attorney from Ann Arbor named Perry Bullard. Perry became the best known of our group of freshmen representatives last week when he was photographed smoking marijuana on the University of Michigan campus, which is part of the district he represents.

Notoriety from this event has all but eclipsed his introduction of legislation last week which would permit the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages in student union buildings at state universities. Such a law could have far-reaching effects in Michigan, extending to community colleges such as Schoolcraft where students are already pressing the Board of Trustees for this right.

Ordinarily such a bill would be buried in a House Committee never to be heard from again. But this bill has been referred to the Committee on Colleges and Universities whose vice-chairman happens to be a freshman Democrat from Ann Arbor—Perry Bullard.

The bill comes at a time when I have been seriously considering measures which would go in the opposite direction. For example, the rising auto accident toll among young people where drinking was a factor is leading some of us to believe that the recent law allowing 18-21 year olds to drink alcoholic beverages might better be repealed.

Recent passage of a resolution by the Michigan Senate limiting travel expenses of its members has been followed up in the House of Representatives with the introduction of a similar, but tougher resolution by a Republican colleague of mine, Representative F. Robert Edwards of Flint. I am one of several co-sponsors.

Our resolution would severely curtail expenses, and covers all travel and not just out-of-state travel. The proposal would require that any additional expenses be approved by the committee chairman and the Speaker of the House upon "specific petition" of the Representative, including a written explanation of why the additional expenses are needed.

In addition, they will be required to file a complete report on their trip within 30 days including a breakdown of expenses. Any advance funds would have to be approved in writing.

•We don't need the city services in the township.
What was the result? What happened? Nankin Township (that part outside of the Village of Wayne, which became a city within its old village boundaries) struggled along with township government until about 10 years ago when it incorporated as the City of Westland. By that time the beautiful farmland and old country roads, like North Wayne Road and Ford Road, were covered with uncontrollable and uncorrected blight.

Asks O'Brien: "Will anyone in Northville or Northville Township trade what we have here today for a place in Wayne or Westland? Not today you won't."

"But without care and attention by all of us we will get it by default 20 or 30 years from now, or less. Wayne and Westland had the opportunity 30 years ago that we are faced with today. They blew it."

Because he doesn't want to see the same problems occurring in Northville, O'Brien will vote for unification of the city and township.

He explains: "The pressure on Northville to grow because of central city pressure outward cannot be controlled. The very best we can do is control HOW we grow. That requires full time professional hard-headed planners and administrators acting for the entire community."

Wayne and Westland, he notes, today have two city governments to support and they are both now fighting lost causes. "Once city government at the right time could have controlled and directed the growth of what in all logic could have been ONE beautiful community," he asserts.

"The short term argument of higher taxes was a compelling for too many people.

"In my opinion the people of Wayne and Westland have paid more in the long run through the ruination of their community and depreciation of their property both monetarily and in the quality of life than any short-term penalty could possibly have warranted."

'Let's Use Park for Horseback Riding'

To the Editor:
Recently I took my first horseback ride on Maybury Sanitarium Grounds, whereupon, I and three others were seized, informed that we were on private property, and given summons to appear in District Court 35.

My property immediately adjoins the Maybury grounds and this was the first time I had ridden on the property. All of the others with me were also neighbors to the property. We rode in Maybury because we have had great difficulty with riding on the township's dirt roads. We have been buzzed by cars trying to scare the horses by seeing how close they can come without hitting the horses. This is a great danger not only to the horse but also the rider. Not only can a horse be killed by a car or injured seriously, but the rider can just as easily be hurt or killed. When one driver was stopped after having buzzed a horse and rider, he stated, "I don't have to look out for horses. They'd better look out for me or suffer the consequences."

My question to the readers is this. If we cannot ride safely on the township's dirt roads and we're not allowed to ride in Maybury because the law says so, or so a few influential people have made it say, where can we ride? Northville is horse country. Horse lovers let's stand together! We must find a place to ride safely and without danger of receiving a ticket for doing nothing but enjoying a peaceful ride. We had no alcohol, no dope, and no intention of bothering any of the buildings on the property so they can catch them red handed, let's see that the land is safe to use and use it.

The officer also told me that the whole reason behind Maybury's being closed to the public lies in the mechanics of political power. He thought Maybury would be open to the public maybe next January. What good does it do now? In the past the land has been used for riding. Why all of a sudden the big crack down? I feel that if you live in the township you should have access to the riding land available. A card could be issued identifying the rider as a resident and therefore entitling him to riding privileges. Anyone else who tries to use the property would have to be issued a guest permit or receive a warning. This would control those who use the land for drinking brawls and dope.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Helmick

About Unification

To the Editor:
The failure on the part of the Township Clerk to have the budget properly prepared only serves to dramatize the fact that we need competent management of our tax dollars by those individuals who are trained in budget preparing. Frankly, it seems inconceivable to me that in this modern day and age that we still rely on untrained personnel to prepare budgets which significantly affect our very lives. I, for one, have had enough on this nonsense and will vote "YES" on May 7th.

Thomas D. Armstrong
46000 Pickford Ct.,

Thomas M. Curran
19911 Schoolhouse Ct.

To the Editor:
With taxes biting into our incomes more and more with each passing year, how can any concerned citizen honestly be against some sort of plan that would use governmental services in their most economical and efficient way in the Northville area.

Two city halls, two fire departments with two chiefs, two police departments with two radio systems, two jails, two fleets of cars, two mayors, two councils...in fact two everything it takes to run a municipal government—all this complexity and duplication operating a few blocks from each other, in separate areas both too small to utilize municipal services efficiently.

Any Northville citizen still unconvinced of the waste and duplication of maintaining two governments where one will do, might look thoughtfully into the Westland or Farmington Township situation. An honest look into either of these situations should convince the thoughtful Northville voter, that our best future lies in a political unity that brings together town and township into one, efficient, money saving unit.

Eugene S. Guido
20390 Westview Dr.

To the Editor:
Our public officials who spoke out in favor of unification are to be commended. I know of no other community that has faced the annexation question that has had members of the Township Board, School Board and the City Council all recommending a "YES" vote.

Bernard R. Bach
20336 Woodhill

To the Editor:
A spokesman for the anti-unification group seemed concerned that he had no "VIP's" on his side. Could it be that those closest to government are honestly trying to do what is best for our total community? I think so and I will vote "YES".

'Distorts Facts'

area offers temporary relief at best.

Further, regarding the suggestion that the Community Building with 14,000 square feet has more space than the Library could use, we refer Mr. Fiorilli to our published report which states that, using minimum American Library Association standards, we should have a facility at least twice the size of our present Library to serve our current population and, at our present rate of growth, will require a minimum of 12,000 square feet by 1975. It is our feeling that the Community Building is large enough for use as a Library for the next ten to fifteen years and it is to meet these future needs that we are making our presentations at this time.

Finally, Mr. Fiorilli, one who states that his opponents have created a credibility gap should be certain that he has not left himself open to the same accusation. To state the facts clearly, the Library Board, consisting of five women and two men, three city residents and four township residents, has not taken a position on the Annexation issue but remains dedicated to the purpose of providing a fine Library for the entire community which we will continue to serve regardless of the results of the May 7th election.

Bouquet for Novi

To the Editor:

Apparently nice things don't make interesting reading or the Detroit News interviewed all the sour residents of Novi.

If people want paved streets, planned recreation areas and street lights, try a city—like Detroit.

If however, they want open spaces, rabbits in their backyard, fresh clean snowfall or to see beautiful horses grazing along the roadside, Try Novi!

Or how about a school principal or a superintendent that are willing to listen to you? Or a police force that can't be beat? And how about the Councilmen, Planning Commission, Board of Appeals and all the other committees that give of their time because they want to make Novi an even better place to live—and receive no monetary payment for this?

Like any community we have our share of crime, drug problems and growing pains. And I am not for a moment suggesting we ignore this. But there's much good to be said for this community and the people in it.

Let's hear it for NOVI!

Officials Get County Plan

other organized and active recreation, to ensure its permanence.

• Work toward land use decisions and developments that provide for a full range of living activities within the reach of all the population—both as to travel time and distance and as to economic means.

• Assist local units in broadening the employment base both as to number of jobs and as to variety of employment types to ease dependence on manufacturing.

• Work toward a system of public transportation throughout the county properly related to regional needs.

In pointing up their concerns, county planners note that the aggregated population projections to 1990, as suggested by community master plans, represent 4,760,000 people as compared to the 1970 county census of 2,666,751—an increase of about 80-percent.

They conclude that because of the lack of coordination between the communities making up the county, their aggregate master plans would necessitate the accommodation of this 80-percent population increase in "only 15-percent more residential land."

Furthermore, based on these aggregate master plans, the report notes, county wide there would be 1-percent less land for commercial activity, 26-percent less land for recreation, education, open space, etc., and 183-percent more land for industrial purposes.

"The problem is that there are practical limitations to the demand for the several categories of developed land uses that comprise a region, and each of the communities cannot expect to corner the market.

"The frustrations resulting from not achieving local goals could be endured by the communities except that frequently large sums of capital are invested wastefully, and land use allocations turn out to be unrealistic and disorganized."

County planners, in noting that "interdependence among the several local communities that make up the county has not been built into local planning efforts, conclude that coordinated planning efforts are necessary to achieve a more realistic county balance of land uses.

Other Threat

the cost of labor and increases in construction costs due to the enactment of new federal health and safety standards.

Campbell rapped J&A for not coming back to the council with the revised estimates prior to the letting of bids. "There was a 15 percent increase in labor costs between the time of the original estimate and the time we advertised for bids," stated the councilman. "I want to know why J&A didn't come in and present us with revised figures."

"We've paid J&A $330,000 over the past 21 months and I think we should be getting better results than what we've been given here," he continued.

Campbell's remarks received applause from Meadowbrook Lakes residents in the audience as J&A is also the consulting engineer for the Oakland County Drain Board which is overseeing the Patnales Drain project.

Several other members of the council, including Mayor Joseph Crupi, defended the engineers, however.

"I feel we've got qualified engineers and to chastise them for a job they did as conscientiously as possible is out of line," stated Crupi. Councilmen William O'Brien, Donald Young, and Denis Berry also issued statements supporting J&A.

Even if Fried should decide that the council can accept the low bid, there is some question as to what action the council should take. Several council members supported accepting J&A's recommendation that the low bid be accepted, while several other councilmen felt that new bids should be requested.

Crupi, Berry, and Young favored accepting the low bid.

"I'm fearful that if we ask them to submit new bids they'll be higher than the bids we have now," said the Mayor.

Young noted that if the city takes the time to readvertise for new bids the developers will have filled their schedules with other paving projects and would be less likely to try to pare their bids down as low as possible.

Taking an opposite point of view was Councilman Edwin Presnell. "Now, that they know what other companies have bid for the job, I think that you'll find these fellows will start really sharpening their pencils to get down to a bid, that's going to be lower than what we have now," he argued.

Nix Multiple Zoning

that the Master Plan called for "low density" housing in the area.

"However, when the Smokler property was rezoned for multiples, the action had a direct impact on this property," stated Vettel. "Since the property to the north and to the west of this parcel is presently being developed for multiple use, we find that granting an R-2-A to this particular property would be appropriate."

Vettel's recommendation did not receive the support of either the planning board or the council, however.

Leading the opposition to the R-2-A zoning was Ron Birou, a member of the Planning Board.

"As far as I'm concerned we were wrong to have allowed Smokler to build those multiples in that R-1-H area," said Birou. "Somewhere we've got to draw the line. If we keep rezoning property to R-2-A just because it's adjacent to another multiple development, eventually the whole area will be engulfed with multiples."

Birou further noted that the narrow configuration of the property would present major problems for an attractive multiple layout; that it was easily saleable to the M.O.P. Investment Company, that there was no hardship involved on the part of the owner; and that he could see no benefit to either the city or the surrounding property owners if the parcel were to be rezoned R-2-A.

The planning board by a 7-1 vote recommended rejection of the rezoning request to the council. Donald Gleason cast the lone dissenting ballot.

The request won support on the council from Councilman Edwin Presnell. "This property owner is paying taxes on this piece of land and he should have a right to use it to his best advantage," stated Presnell.

The majority of the opinions expressed by the council were in concurrence with those ideas expressed by Birou, however.

The council voted 4-2 to reject the rezoning. Presnell and Mayor Joseph Crupi cast the votes against rejection of the request.

because of the "inconsistency in salary raises for employees," pointed out that raises included in the budget range from "zero to 20.87 percent."

The treasurer continued that it "depends on who you are (to get a raise) and they make any kind of excuse to do it."

Clerk Cayley countered, saying that Straub's statement "is not true."

Supervisor Lawrence Wright said that in the short time he's been supervisor, "I've noticed a great many inequities."

Schaeffer pointed out that he and Trustee Leonard Klein, who are making a study of employee fringe benefits, have "suggested that the duties of the office personnel be examined and we develop job classifications and salaries to go along with them. Then the township board would only be concerned with wage ranges."

MacDonald explained that "part of the problem is the people do not know who they are working for."

Schaeffer said he agreed with Straub that raises were not granted by any one method. He said the "supervisor, clerk and treasurer should develop salary range and job descriptions."

MacDonald said there was "some logic behind the wide ranges of salaries but it does not look good to the employees."

Klein said he understood that some of the larger raises granted this year were to bring the salaries in line with others.

MacDonald and Straub noted that "there will still be some left which are not in line."

The township budget anticipates revenues of $391,425. Included are property taxes, $59,000; delinquent taxes, $1,500; excess of roll, $30,000; revenue from general administration, $36,800; and licensing and enforcement, $8,000.

Federal revenue sharing and state rebates total $131,125 and building department revenues are anticipated at $125,000.

Expenditures increased the most in general administration department, with $77,285 budgeted, up from $38,625 budgeted last fiscal year.

Salaries for supervisor, clerk and treasurer remained unchanged, with the supervisor being paid $12,500; clerk and treasurer $10,000 each.

Police department budget was placed at $61,100, up from $59,300 last year. Chief Ronald Nisun was granted a $2,000 increase to $14,500. Salaries are also included for two patrolmen, however, provision has been made to hire at least one additional man with funds placed in contingency under general administration in the budget.

Expenditures for fire department are pegged at $24,500, down from $33,000 budgeted in 1972-73; building department, $63,300, up from $44,825; recreation department, $19,668, up from $14,478; expenditures for township boards and commissions, $20,050, up from $14,650; library, $20,522, up from $19,287; public works, $11,500, up from $11,000; township hall, $9,000, down from $12,250; cemetery maintenance, $600, up from $500; and legislative expenditures, $9,000, down from $11,850.

Election expenditures are pegged at $1,000, attorney fees, $12,000 and auditor, $3,000.

arise "until a specific case may arise."

Mitchell said that if Straub wanted to attend the development corporation meetings "on his own, that's okay with me."

In other business Tuesday, action on appointment of members to the township building authority was tabled.

Trustees also approved an amendment to permit church height to exceed 25 feet in residential districts and authorized the clerk to sign final plat for Highland Lakes Subdivision Number One.

Supervisor and clerk were also authorized to sign a revised agreement with the City of Northville covering the Fish Hatchery project.

A bid from Ron Johnson at 17071 Northville Road to provide quarters for the ambulance service at $150 per month, was accepted by trustees. The same bid had earlier won approval from city councilmen.

Mustangs Chances Hinge on Pitching

5 Starters Return From Crack '72 Club

With five starters returning from the team that went all the way to the semi-finals of the MHSAA baseball tournament last spring, you'd expect that the 1973 season would be a bright one for Coach Chuck Shonta and the Northville nine.

Unfortunately, it ain't necessarily so.

The problem is that even though the Mustangs lost only four starters from their 1972 squad, each of those losses was an important one. Gone are Dale Griffin, the fleet, ball-hawking centerfielder who shored up the outfield, and Rick LaRue, the slick, savvy shortstop who is now playing ball for Eastern Michigan University.

Even more importantly, however, the Mustangs lost Scott Evans and Jeff Moon, their matched pair of 6'3", 195-pound flamethrowers who were responsible for the greater portion of the Northville success with their prowess on the mound.

It is their absence which throws a pallor over the chances of the 1973 edition of the Mustang baseball team.

"There's no doubt about it," admitted Shonta last week. "The big question mark this year is our pitching. It's hard to replace a couple of pitchers like Moon and Evans, but if we can come up with some respectable pitching we ought to be able to do all right."

And that in a nutshell sums up the prospects of the Northville baseball team. If the pitching comes through, the Mustangs could have an outstanding season.

With the exception of the pitching department, the 1973 squad should be improved over the 1972 team. Defensively, Shonta feels the team will be just as strong and offensively, he feels his present team will be superior to last year's crew.

And that's not all either.

"I think we've got a lot more depth and better overall team balance," he commented. "I'm going to be able to substitute a lot more this year because I feel we've got some pretty good ball players sitting on the bench."

Typical of the depth of the squad is the catching position where Steve Serkaian and Bill McDonald return from last year's team to share backstopping duties.

"It's amazing how evenly they're matched," remarked Shonta. "If one guy outshone the other in any particular area, I might be able to pick between them, but they're both very even in ability. I won't decide who the starter will be until I see them in warm-ups before the game."

Shonta will also platoon his first basemen, who also alternated as starters on the 1972 team. But unlike Serkaian and McDonald, Todd Eis and Dan Coleman are as different in ability as night and day.

Eis is only a so-so hitter, but is adroit with the glove. Coleman is just the opposite. At 6'2" and 220 pounds the junior first sacker hits the dickens out of the ball, but tends to be a bit shaky in the field.

"Hoss," as Coleman is known to his teammates, was blasting the ball at a .600 clip for the junior varsity last year before Shonta decided that he could use some of that hitting on the varsity.

The rest of the infield is set.

Returning to the second base position is John Sherman, an outstanding defensive player who Shonta hopes will improve his hitting this season.

Lone newcomer to the Northville infield this year will be shortstop Wally Reed, who will try to fill LaRue's shoes. A 5'7" bundle of enthusiasm, Reed has never played high school ball before, but has won the starting shortstop job at least temporarily with his hustle, good glove, and strong arm.

Perhaps the strongest position in the field is third base where Bart Taylor returns to his fourth year as a starter. An All-Western Six Conference and All-Metro Area selection last year, Taylor is primed for another top season.

Two of the three outfield positions will be handled by newcomers.

Perhaps the best of the ballhawks is rightfielder Randy Oginski. Like Coleman, Oginski started the 1972 season on the junior varsity, but was brought up to the varsity midway through the year due to his hot hitting.

Oginski, who was hitting at a .360 clip for the jayvees, found he liked varsity pitching even better and finished the season with a .406 mark, including back-to-back home runs in the district playoffs against Stockbridge.

"Randy's one goal is to be a big league ball player," commented Shonta. "He's got a strong arm and he can really hit the ball."

Replacing the departed Griffin in centerfield will be Jim O'Brien, another product of the junior varsity. O'Brien's forte is defense and his speed. Gary Emerson, the jayvee coach, states that O'Brien can bunt his way on base and is fast enough to beat out a lot of infield hits.

"If an infielder bobbles a ball," said Emerson, "Jim will be on first."

Fittingly, Shonta plans to use the junior centerfielder in the leadoff position.

Ted Marzonia will be the leftfielder. "He could do a good job for us," commented Shonta. "His hitting's questionable, but I think he'll perform well defensively."

As for the pitching situation, the Northville coach feels that Joe Bishop, who hurled the junior varsity to the Western Six co-championship last year will solve at least half the problem.

"Joe's looked very good in scrimmages so far," observed the Mustang mentor. "He's only 5'8", but he's very quick and he has a good curveball. He pitched one inning in a scrimmage we had last week and he struck out three guys on 10 pitches. He threw the ball right by them."

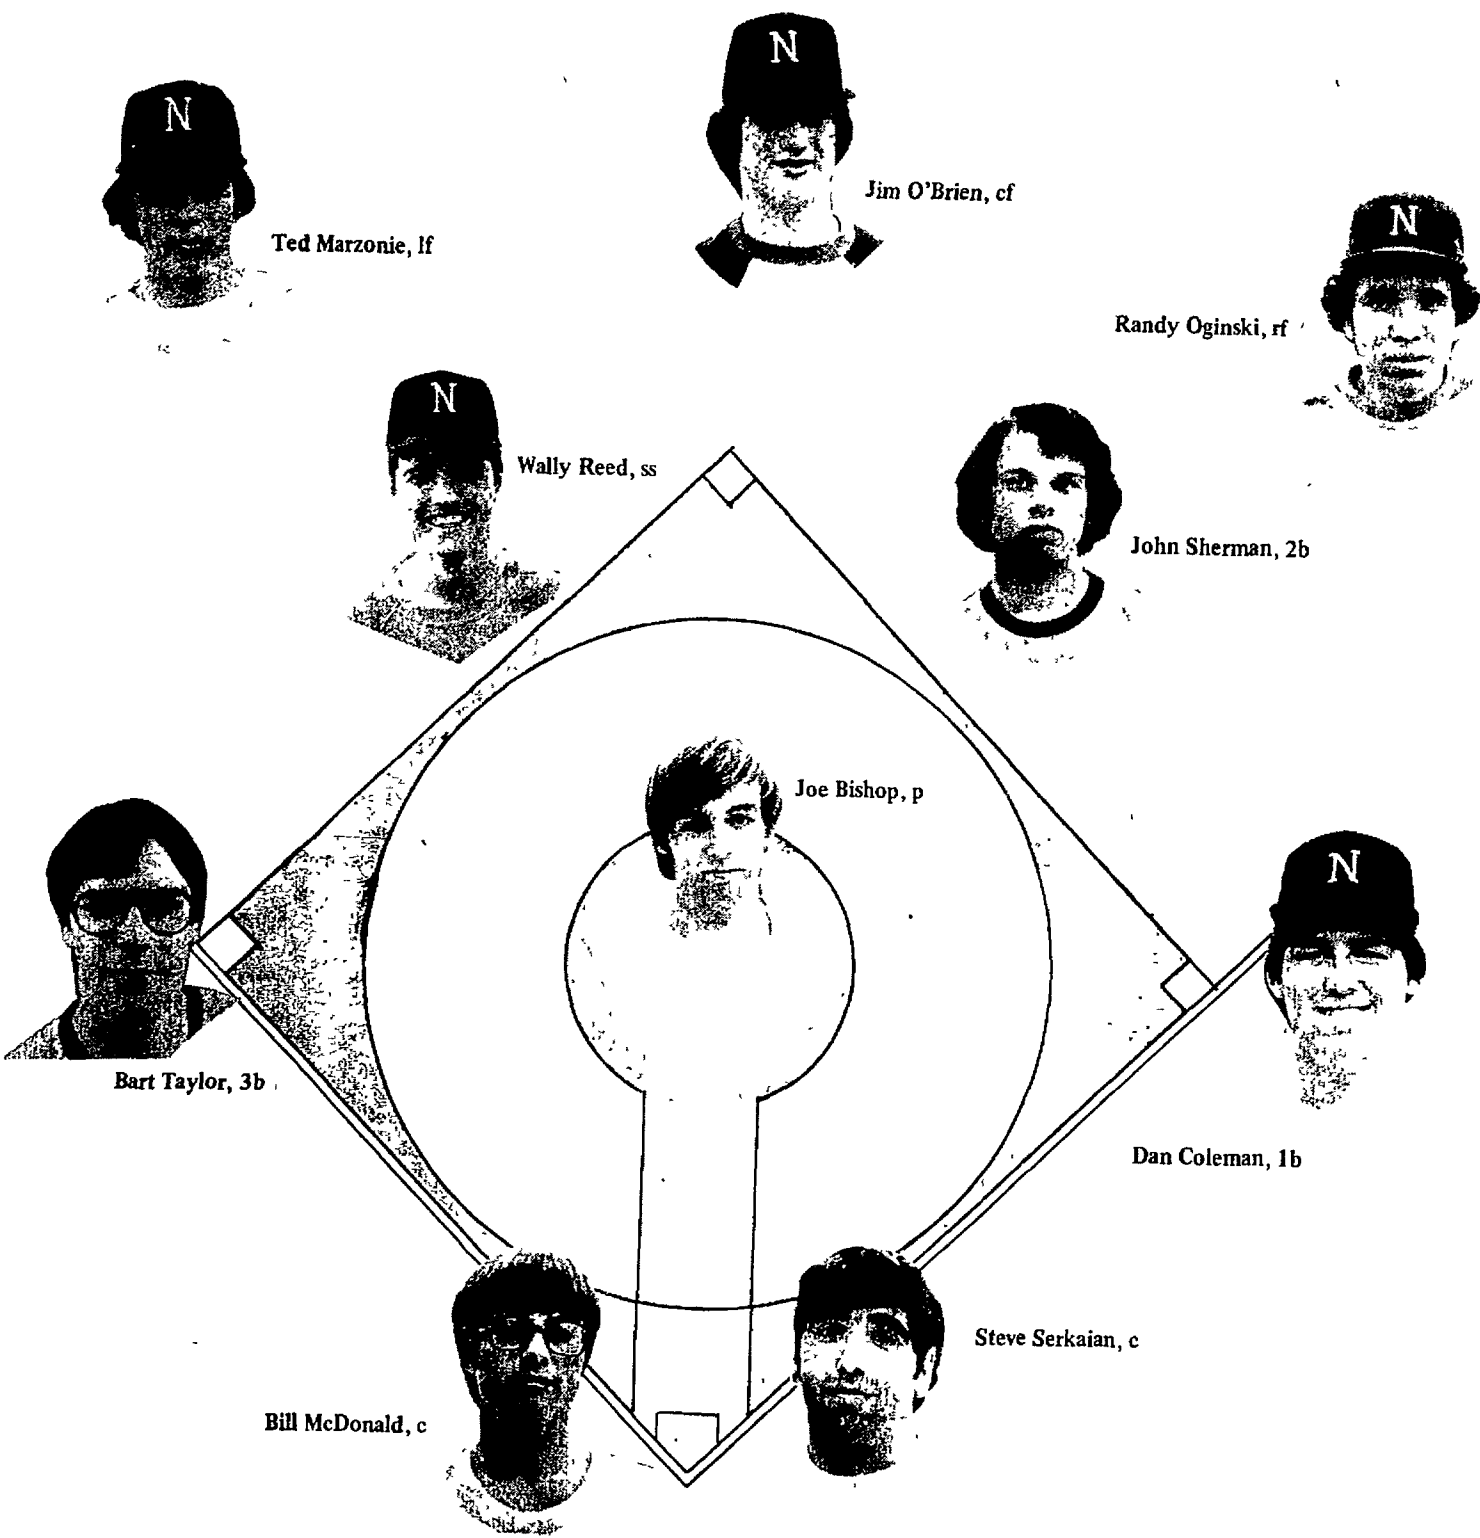

The other pitching spot will be manned by Ed Kritch. A junior who won a starting berth in the outfield last year as a sophomore, Kritch has been transferred to the mound to try to fill the void left by the graduation of Moon and Evans.

"Ed's not particularly fast, but he throws a good curve ball and throws up a lot of junk," observed Shonta. "Potentially, I think he can be a winner, but he needs experience."

Both Kritch and Bishop are left handers.

Shonta will also use Taylor, the third basemen, on the mound from time to time, primarily in relief.

"How well we do is really dependent on our pitching," concluded Shonta. "If Joe and Ed come through, I think we'll do all right."

'Attitude' Boosts Hopes of Novi Nine

Five starters from the 1972 squad have graduated as have the team's top three hitters and the only players to be named to the Southeastern Conference All-Star team. But is Novi baseball coach Rick Trudeau unhappy?

Far from it. In fact, Trudeau feels the 1973 edition of the Novi baseball team will be stronger than the 1972 version and with any kind of luck could be right up in there battling it out for the SEC championship.

The reasons for Trudeau's optimism are three fold: Number One is the presence of a three-deep veteran pitching staff; Number Two is a vastly improved team "attitude" toward the game; and Number Three is the addition of a pair of transfer students who have converted the left side of the Wildcat infield from a big question mark to a big plus.

The most important factor, according to Trudeau, is the team attitude.

"There's no one really outstanding team in the SEC this year," asserted the second-year Novi coach. "Nobody has a clear cut advantage in talent and I think there'll be three or four teams battling it out for the title. In a tightly balanced league such factors as team hustle and desire are going to go a long way toward determining who ends up on top."

"We lost a lot of seniors last year, but there were a couple of them with such poor attitudes toward the game that they tended to pull the whole team down with them. This year our attitude is much improved."

Trudeau is also basing his hopes for success on the quality of his pitching staff, which he feels will be one of the best in the league.

Heading the Novi mound corps is John Pantalone, a hard-throwing senior who has already made the All-SEC football and basketball teams this year.

"John doesn't have a real strong curve, but he's a lefthander and he changes the speed of his fastball very effectively," reported Trudeau. "I think he could be one of the league's top pitchers."

On a par with Pantalone is Dave Brown, a big strong right-handed junior who is probably the best natural athlete on the team. And backing up Pantalone and Brown will be Mike Riley, a junior up from the junior varsity squad who Trudeau will work into a regular three-man rotation.

Bill Barr and John Henson, a pair of sophomores, add depth to the Novi pitching staff.

Only one starter from the 1972 infield returns, but Trudeau is more than satisfied with his 1973 crew, due largely to a pair of transfer students who'll be manning the shortstop and third base positions.

Shortstop will be Jerry Cockrell, who came to Novi from Tennessee last fall, while Tom Celani has won the starting berth at third base. Both players figure prominently in the Wildcat attack.

Probably the fastest athlete in the school, Cockrell will be the lead-off hitter in the Novi batting order. "Jerry's a good hitter and with his speed he should make us a good first inning scoring threat," said Trudeau.

Built along the lines of Yogi Berra, Celani is slated for the clean-up position in the Novi attack. He's not a long ball hitter, according to Trudeau, but he always gets good wood on the ball and hits a lot of line drives.

At second base will be Tim Assemany, who won the starting job last year as a sophomore, and gave Trudeau a steady, consistent workman-like job, though hitting only .176 a year he should improve this year.

Two juniors - Ron Buck and Kevin LaFleche - are vying for the starting job at first base with Buck having a slight edge. Both are big, strong athletes, who Trudeau hopes will supply power to the batting order.

Novi has traditionally had outstanding backstopping with Tom VanWagner and Bob Pisha taking All-SEC honors in 1971 and 1972 respectively and Trudeau feels he has another potential All-SEC selection behind the plate again this year with Eric Hansor.

A 5'11" junior, Hansor backed up Pisha last year and will as strong on offense as he is on defense.

The make-up of the outfield will depend on who's pitching. The only regular member of the outfield will be Dan Kardell, who'll be stationed in left field. Fast and a good gloveman, Kardell hit a highly respectable .417 in the SEC last year and will bat in the number two slot behind Cockrell in the batting order.

In center and right field will be the two members of the pitching staff who aren't on the mound. When Pantalone is pitching, for example, Brown and Riley will be rounding out the Novi outfield.

All three are capable hitters. Pantalone hit .293 in the SEC last year, but overall he rapped the ball at a .389 pace. Riley, according to Trudeau, is the best power hitter on the squad and will bat either third or fourth in the line-up.

But the best hitter of all could prove to be Brown. The big junior hit only .204 overall last year and had 26 strikeouts in 54 trips to the plate, but Trudeau thinks he has solved the problem.

"Dave just wasn't making contact with the ball last year and we couldn't figure out why," he reported. "There was nothing wrong with his swing so he went to the eye doctor and discovered he has poor sight in his left eye. So far this spring he's been rapping the ball consistently and we expect he'll be one of our top hitters."

Trudeau does have one major concern with his 1973 team, however, and that concern is experience. "We've got a new player at almost every position except second base," noted the Novi mentor. "and frankly we just haven't had enough time to learn how to work as a unit."

Compounding the problem is the fact that Novi's baseball facilities are grossly inadequate. Due to the poor physical condition of the field, the Wildcats were able to practice outside on their field a grand total of just four times during the entire 1972 season and have been outside just once so far this spring.

Still, Trudeau remains optimistic. "If we can overcome our inexperience, we should do all right," he said.

Coach Praises Non-Point Winners

3 Mustangs Place at M.S.U.

Bill Witek, Jim Porterfield, and Guy Cole each placed among the top five finishers in the Spartan Relays at Michigan State University Friday, but Northville track coach Ralph Redmond was just as pleased with the performances of some of his non-point winners.

"Witek, Porterfield, and Cole really came through with some very fine performances," said the veteran Northville cinder coach. "But I'd have to say the thing that really made the day seem particularly worthwhile was the way some of our younger boys came through."

"It's no surprise when a Witek, Porterfield, or Cole comes through in a meet like that - they're very fine athletes," he continued "but what was surprising was that some of our less established performers served notice that they intend to do something for us in track this year."

Seventy-seven Class B and C track teams from across the state competed in the Spartan Relays and Redmond figured that Northville's total of four points placed them about (twenty) in the meet. Wyoming Rogers won the title with 20 points, while Ionia and Monroe Catholic Central tied for fourteenth place with six points apiece.

There were 42 schools which failed to score at all.

Top Northville point-getter was Guy Cole who picked up two points with a fourth place finish in the mile run. The confident junior distance star, who is beginning to establish himself as one of the state's better Class B runners, turned in a 4:38.4 clocking to finish almost seven full seconds behind Ionia's Dave Stebbins, who won the event in 4:31.7.

"Guy was in a pretty strong field," reported Redmond. "What was nice about his performance was that it was the second straight week he's run beneath 4:40 (Cole had a 4:34.4 last week in the Huron Relays). We'd like him to run faster than 4:40 consistently and perhaps get down into the mid 4:20's about the time the state meet comes up."

Witek and Porterfield rounded out the Northville scoring with fifth place performances in the pole vault and shot put respectively. Witek's performance was particularly impressive because he had to contend with an injured leg and was facing what Redmond called the finest Class B pole vaulting field he'd ever seen. Led by Charles DeWilde of Grand Rapids Catholic Central, two vaulters cleared 14 feet, while Witek's 12 foot vault was good for fifth place.

"Bill would have done even better," reported Redmond, "except that he was competing on just one leg. He has a slight muscle pull in his upper leg and we had the MSU trainer wrap it for him. If he'd have been healthy I think he would have been much closer to those 14-foot vaulters."

Porterfield copped fifth place in the shot put with a 46'9 1/2" put and Redmond thinks the sturdy junior also could have done even better.

"Jim was having trouble right at the end of his release," explained the Mustang mentor. "He tossed the shot almost a full foot farther last week at the Huron Relays and he's going to be up around 50 feet before the year is over. He got off some real beauties in his warm-ups, but just couldn't hit it right in the finals."

But while Cole, Witek, and Porterfield were scoring all the points, several other Mustangs drew Redmond's praise for their performances at the Spartan Relays.

The two mile relay team of Tom Coram, Robbie Foust, Mike Anisbigian, and Kevin Kofler finished seventh with a 8:39.9 clocking and was singled out for praise by Redmond.

"I was particularly pleased with Foust," said the Northville coach. "He dropped his 880 time from 2:15 to 2:10 and he's beginning to develop the kind of range that will permit us to use him anywhere from the 880 to the two mile. He could develop into a good one for us."

Sprinter Bill Pettit and high hurdler Don Pickren both made it into the semi-finals before being eliminated, giving Redmond hope that they will develop into strong dual meet performers before the season is over.

Bob Bloomhuff turned in a 54.8 clocking in the 440 to serve notice that the Mustangs will be competitive in that event.

And Bill Shaughnessy, just a freshman, long jumped 18'4" - a mark that becomes even more impressive in light of the fact that the top long jump in Friday's meet was a 20'6" effort. "Who knows," said Redmond. "Maybe Shaughnessy's going to come on to be a real fine long jumper for us."

Northville students whip up 75-cent 'Welfare' meals during live-in

23 Try Welfare Diet

"I couldn't live on welfare and I don't know how they (welfare recipients) can survive on it," observed Andrea June this past week. She was one of 23 high school age students, members of the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, who lived in the church from Sunday evening (April 1) until Friday (April 6) on a "welfare diet" of 75-cents per day.

The "welfare live-in" project was an attempt by students to gain a clearer understanding of what it is like to be on welfare and to better understand the problems of welfare recipients, explained the Reverend Dick Henderson, assistant pastor.

"In addition to living at the church on this allotment of money, we also had discussions, talked over welfare fact sheets, and one evening invited in three welfare mothers to discuss the subject with us," he said. Among some of the facts that students found most surprising were these:

- Less than 1-percent of the welfare recipients are able-bodied employable men.
- Less than 2-percent of the 15 million people on welfare have cheated in their welfare allowance
- More white people are on welfare than black people.
- Of the 15 million people on welfare, about eight million are children under 16 years of age.

"Probably the most disappointing fact that we learned," said Pastor Henderson, "was that 75-cents per day we allowed ourselves for food, was far too high."

experience this way:

"It was a good experience except that we know that we will be off of welfare on Friday and it's not like we're really being poor. Most of the people on welfare know that they will probably be poor for the rest of their lives. We know that's only until Friday so we don't get the real idea."

variety of games and activities that include a cake walk, flea market, and ping-pong toss. Question Arises

May School Use Park?

May Northville School District use five acres of a park in Northville Commons for play area for the proposed elementary school in the subdivision?

Northville School Board members and Thompson-Brown said yes, however, Mark Lysinger of the homeowners' association said it's questionable.

Speaking to board members last week, Lysinger said that no agreement exists between the homeowners and the school district and that the "association was unaware of any agreement" made between Thompson-Brown and the school district.

Site of the proposed elementary school in Northville Commons is 8.3 acres, too small for a school and play area, Superintendent Raymond Spear said.

However, Spear pointed out that Thompson-Brown had agreed to let the school district use the adjoining five acres for a play area provided that the district would not place any playground equipment on the parcel of land.

Lysinger told the board members that homeowners in the Commons "pay taxes on the land."

School administrators reported later in the week that official minutes of the school board show Thompson-Brown agreed to let district use the land for play area.

Lysinger said at the school board meeting that he would bring the matter up with the homeowners' association to see if such a provision was included.

The cost of such permit will be one (1) dollar.

Section 3.20 (10) Where unusual hardship or technical difficulties of a lasting nature prevent meeting the requirements of Section 3.20.3, the City Manager or his assigns may issue an annual permit to waive the requirements of Section 3.20.3 only. The cost of such permit will be five (5) dollars.

Section 3.20. (11) Decisions of the City Manager and his assigns pursuant to Section 3.20.9 and Section 3.20.10 may be appealed to City Council by the aggrieved applicant or by any owner, tenant or lessee of any property abutting that of the lot for which a special permit is issued. No fee will be charged for such appeal. The final decision of such appeal shall be in the form of a resolution either reversing, modifying, or affirming, wholly or partly, the decision or determination appealed from.

Section 3.20 (12) This ordinance does not repeal or affect the validity of other ordinances of the City dealing with the apparatus covered herein.

Alcoholism Named As Major Problem

Seven percent or 9 million adults in the United States have alcohol-related problems.

"That figure alone is enough to alert us to the fact that alcoholism is indeed a major problem in our country, and that we should be doing something to stamp it out," according to Dennis Dildy, president of the Northville Jaycees who have launched an educational program called "Operation Threshold."

The Northville chapter recently was given a grant by the United States Jaycees to conduct the program here in conjunction with the district court probation department.

"Maybe your readers would be interested in seeing some of the other statistics," said Dildy, in detailing the following:

- There are 95 million drinkers in the United States.
- 50-percent of the homicides are alcohol related.
- 3 to 5-percent of the total alcoholic population come out of skid row.
- 36,000,000 people are directly or indirectly affected by alcoholism through their families, friends or close associates.

- 1 in 5 persons report that someone close to them—most often a family member—drinks excessively.

- 240,000 workers for the federal government have alcohol-related problems (excluding the armed forces).

- About 57-percent of males aged 15 through 20 drink.

- About 43-percent of females aged 15 through 20 drink.

- Total American membership in Alcoholics Anonymous is 218,398.

- Lost work time in business, industry, civilian government and the military due to alcohol abuse and alcoholism is $10,000,000,000.

- Cost of property damage, medical expenses, and other overhead due to alcohol abuse and alcoholism is $3,000,000,000.

- 50-percent of the traffic fatalities are alcohol-related.

- 28,000 traffic fatalities in the United States are alcohol related.

Majority Boycott Meat

By NANCY DINGELDEY

Somewhere along the line I have learned not to get too carried away with the first warm breath of spring and scurry out to uncover my flower gardens. In other words, the place still looks a mess and will until I'm pretty certain that the snow shovel can be put away for the season.

What with the price of food soaring with each passing day, more and more Wixomites are thinking about turning to the soil...the Victory garden of the 40's. And that's not such a bad idea. One gal told me that during that Victory garden era her family didn't have a speck of grass around the house. Every piece of ground was a place for a vegetable.

The Ball and Kerr glass canning jar manufacturers are probably delighted with the sudden re-interest in canning and preserving and it could be that glass jars may even be a scarce commodity this summer.

A rather quick check around town found a great majority of citizens following the meat boycott last week. Some felt a little more strongly about it than others and even avoided chicken and fish. Instead they served entire meals using only vegetables with deep fried eggplant claimed by one to be "really great."

The opinion shared by most was that meat is not the only culprit blowing holes in the shoppers' budget. My sampling showed that people felt that everything found in a supermarket was far more expensive, with onions and potatoes as well as eggs outrageously priced.

The "in thing" to do now is to see what can be concocted for the least amount of money without father and the kids sneaking out the back door for a quick trip to the local hamburger joint. It means returning to the all-day type of cooking done by our mothers and grandmothers.

Not to confuse the issue but last week it was reported that the "Beautiful Wixom" Committee of Michigan Week was offering a sugar maple tree for $15, planting included.

Since last week, however, the picture has changed and the committee has had to withdraw the offer due to circumstances too involved to explain here.

It took some fast footwork and some phone calls but the committee has come up with a replacement offer. Fifty red maple trees at least ten foot tall and one and one-half inches in diameter will be ready for sale this Saturday. The trees will be potted, ready for your own spade work and will cost $18.

Again, the girls to call to reserve a tree are Marybeth Bissell at 624-2978, Bev Wallers at 624-3726, or Marjio Naragon at 624-5596.

Lillian Spencer, one of Wixom's "best traveled" ladies is back home after a twelve day stint in the Hawaiian Islands. She joined an agricultural tour of people, mostly from the East coast. First stop was Hilo, the "big" island of Hawaii, famous for its volcanoes. She saw the lava flows and the steam rising from the craters but "no eruptions" the day she was there.

Then it was on to Kona with its cattle country, ranches, and coffee plantations followed by Maui. According to Lillian, Maui is a beautiful island but not much more. The mountains and rock formations are the things to see there. Two days on Kauai found the group exploring the "little Grand Canyon." "It really is just that — Grand Canyon but on a much smaller scale," commented Lillian.

Honolulu is another story as far as she was concerned. "All the islands must have been really beautiful in years past...a regular paradise. All that's there now are hordes of people."

"You'd have to pick your way through crowds of people just to even see Waikiki Beach, there aren't any grass shacks or hula girls on the beaches, and even the pineapple plantations are disappearing."

Biblical Answers For Troublesome Times

? The Lord Prayer states, "...lead us not into temptation." Does the Lord tempt people? D. H.

Satan is the tempter who wars against God and His people through temptation. In God's perfect planning for our lives, He allows Satan to tempt us in order to strengthen us and give us victory. JAMES 1:12 says, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life..."

Stained Glass Creates Decor

By NANCY DINGELDEY

One of the most intricate projects in the decor of the new Drawbridge Restaurant in Northville probably will go unnoticed by most patrons.

And unless a person is particularly interested in the subject, a series of sermons given by Reverend Lloyd Brasure of the Northville Presbyterian Church has been either forgotten or dismissed.

The same holds true for those dining in the Viking Restaurant of the Holiday Inn on Ten Mile Road.

There is one thing that all three places have in common. That denominator is stained glass. The pieces gracing each place have been executed with the same painstaking care by the same man.

The artisan who created the stained glass pieces is Richard "Dirk" Thompson of Detroit. Along with his brother-in-law, John Nedrosick, his sister Henrietta, who is secretary-treasurer of the company, a son and a nephew, they are the nucleus of the Thompson Glass Company.

There is a certain "mystique" surrounding glass craftsmen. Most knowledge of this ancient art, which dates back to the Phoenicians, is passed down through the family. Certain "tricks of the trade" are not readily shared.

Dirk's father learned the art as an apprentice in Amsterdam, Holland. He began his training at the age of fourteen. He continued his trade after coming to Detroit, retiring from "active duty" at the age of 85, but continuing as head of the company until his death two years ago at 90.

Glass has been "in his blood" ever since Dirk can remember.

"I was raised in the shop," and under the tutelage of his father, he grew in the business. His high school days were spent in the commercial art field and some of his most magnificent creations have been those which he hand painted.

The six enormous panels in the sanctuary at the Presbyterian Church took six months to complete. Usually the architect on new buildings draws up the designs that will be included in the windows. However, in many cases, it is Thompson who draws and paints the "mock-ups" to be submitted for approval.

After that comes the task of drawing out full-scale patterns of the job, the selection of glass as to color and texture, and their placement within the design. Each is an art in its own right.

Then comes the deft touch of the craftsman as the glass cutter comes in contact with the raw material on its way to being transformed into a superb piece of art whether it be a magnificent, inspiring church window or a glass panel in a private home.

Asked if there was one work he considered to be outstanding, Thompson replied, "No, they are all individuals and meant to express a certain feeling."

After all the glass pieces are cut, the work is laid out on yet another pattern. It is at this time that John takes over for the leading process. A working frame to encase the lead is constructed with each piece of glass fitted into place and held by lead strips shaped to fit. The lines of lead run smoothly throughout the piece so as not to distract the eye from the design. All the lead joints are then soldered and grouted for stability.

A great portion of time is spent in restoring old glass windows. Seven windows at the Presbyterian Church were restored and placed in the new building. Broken glass was removed and replaced as was the lead stripping which deteriorates with age.

The Drawbridge Restaurant required several existing pieces to be restored as well as new glass panels to be made in their quest to develop a dining atmosphere from an old church.

Far removed from the traditional "cathedral" or stained glass window are the four Viking panels separating the salad bar from the dining area at the Holiday Inn. Each Viking is different but all have a helmet and shield. The lead separating the glass on the legs appears to be the lacings of the boots. Done in vibrant red background with shades of gold creating each Viking the only other color is the vivid turquoise triangles forming the eyes.

Thompson is a man who is proud of his work, who can look to church, synagogue, restaurant, or home and know that it is something more than light dancing through some pretty pieces of colored glass.

Dirk Thompson prepares another colorful stained glass window

"What with all the hotels, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and McDonald's Hamburgers, the only thing that reminds you that you're away from home are all the gorgeous flowers", she continued.

The coast line is really spectacular even though Honolulu is congested and very commercial. The group did take the Pearl Harbor cruise and had a good time eating and shopping. One day was spent visiting a Polynesian Village where all the various tribes are represented with their dances and traditional tribal dress.

"I'm glad I went now because I can really imagine what it will be like in a few more years. But I think I'll go back to Bermuda next time", she concluded.

Elna Salo and Auggie Pilo spent last weekend singing themselves hoarse at the Region Two competition of the "Sweet Adelines".

They spent two days in Detroit at the Hilton while the actual competitions were held at the Masonic Temple. Both girls sing with the Inter-Lakes Sweet Adelines. Auggie is a lead singer while Elna usually sings alto

The "afterglow" which followed the competition Saturday night really rocked the hallways, rooms, and ballrooms of the Hilton. Between 1,500 and 2,000 gals joined the competition which was won by a group from Ohio.

Congratulations to Beverly and Peter Paisley on the birth of their second son who was named Charles Taylor (after the two grandpa's).

Beware!

Thieves Switch Price Tags

A lot more may go on in those store dressing closets than crawling in and out of girdles.

"You better believe it," warns Novi Police Chief Lee BeGole, a cop who has seen more than his share of "wierdos" during his career.

One of the latest fads among thieves is the practice of price tag switching in his hometown, Detroit, and it may spread this way, he fears.

"Our stores had better start looking out for these creeps."

Often, though, they are people who think shoplifting is awful, but who see their own brand of thievery as "innocent fun."

"The gal comes into the store, picks out two or three dresses and goes into the dressing room. While climbing in and out there in her privacy, she's also switching tags—putting the least expensive tag on the most expensive dress."

Some of them, according to BeGole, don't even go into the dressing room.

"Right there, amid the hustle and bustle going on about her, she switches tags on panties, on nightgowns, even on toasters."

And according to the chief, there's no sex discrimination: "Men do it, too."

Best preventive?
"Know your merchandise, put on tags that aren't easily removed, and when in doubt about a price, check with another salesman."

By SLIGER STAFFERS

Two men picked up the new canoe and hoisted it up over their heads and then marched quickly out of the store. They were caught when they came back to steal the paddles.

Shoplifters.

They come in all sizes, ages and life-styles. And they're growing in numbers...not just the bold ones, the canoe thieves, but also the ones whose hearts flutter, whose fingers tremble when they pocket a comb or a comic book or a candy bar.

Shoplifters.

They are robbing stores and customers alike...a $3 billion dollar heist every year, and it's growing!

And so is the concern. In community after community across the nation, a mounting drive to stamp out shoplifting is underway.

This area included...even though most police agencies agree it is not yet a critical problem here. Nevertheless, police have pledged their support to assist local area merchants in clamping a lid on this crime before it gets out of hand.

Promises Claude Lawson, a South Lyon police officer:

"We're ready to do whatever we can; but prosecution must start with the merchant."

"To prosecute, a witness must be absolutely sure that the suspect did in fact take an item without paying for it. He must be willing to go into court, identify the suspect, and state that he took that carton of cigarettes without paying for it" for example.

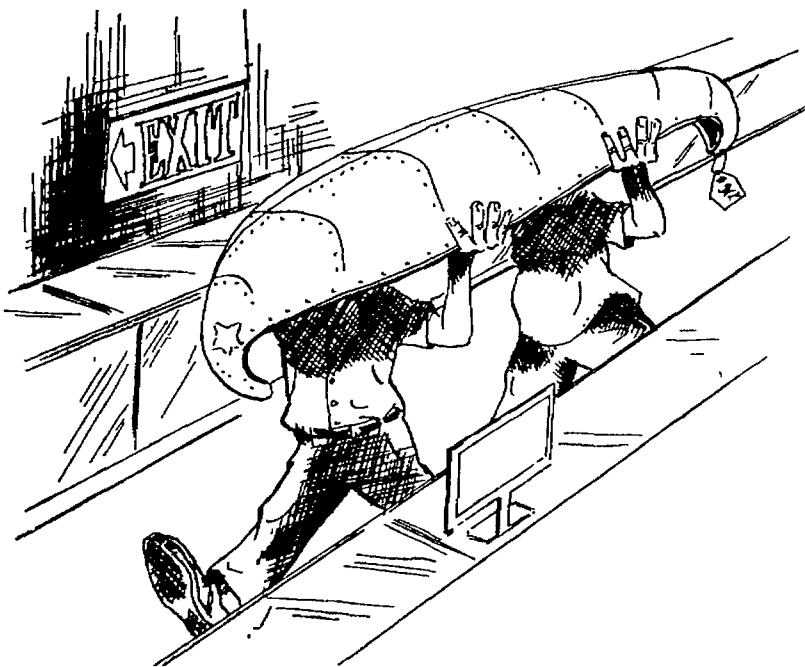

While many merchants have been reluctant in the past to go beyond a scolding, a warning, they are changing; prosecutions, they promise, will increase.

When shoplifting reaches a point where merchants must consider raising prices to offset the losses there is little choice left to them, they agree.

"Two-percent is a bad shoplifting problem...$2,400 in one year," says Steve Showerman of Showerman's IGA store in South Lyon. "We catch a lot, old and young alike. I think our total is at that 'bad' point."

In Northville, it's mostly students—grade school through high school.

At the grade school and junior high level, reports Patrolman David DeLauder, the city's juvenile officer, there are more boy shoplifters than girls and, ironically, "sixty-percent of those caught have the money on them to pay for the items they have taken."

Their reasons given for shoplifting are "they've heard that it was easy or they do it just because they wanted to."

Mainly, they take things like balloons, yo-yos, squirt guns, toys, and comic books. Their prime targets are the dime store and the drug stores.

At the late junior high and high school levels, most of the shoplifters are girls, says DeLauder. And, interestingly, "they don't have the money on them to pay for the items as often as the younger kids do," he adds.

Their reasons for stealing: one-half say friends told them it was easy and to do it on a dare; others say they shoplift because they can't afford to buy it.

Mostly, they take cosmetics, toiletries, nylons, cigarettes, pens, and sunglasses. Most involve items costing under $2.

children," he explains. "They want their children to grow up knowing right from wrong."

But parents of high school students brought in "already have brought up their children and apparently feel they have taught them right from wrong, and many times they believe the police are wrong in picking on their children."

"Up until recently shoplifting has been as isolated problem in Novi," says Police Chief Lee BeGole.

"But with the coming of the Meadowbrook Plaza at 10 Mile Road and the Roman Plaza at Novi and Grand River we are beginning to encounter our first serious problems."

The majority of shoplifters in Novi, says the chief, are juveniles but relatively few of them are Novi residents.

"We don't patrol the stores at all," explains BeGole. "Many of our apprehensions are the result of traffic stops. Policemen may stop the car for speeding or for some other violation and find the items in the car. If the youngsters are unable to produce sales slips our officers check further."

Novi attempts to point up the problem of shoplifting through an educational program in schools supervised by Youth Officer Robert Starnes. "So far it's been pretty effective, and he's had no repeaters."

Most adults recently caught shoplifting, says BeGole, were successfully prosecuted "with the exception of a couple of older ladies who had tendencies toward kleptomania."

Shoplifting is very costly, says Robert Herbst, owner of Uber's Drug Store in Brighton. He estimates his losses at over $10,000 annually.

"It's definitely a problem," he asserts. "They're (kids) stealing me blind on candy, gum and magazines."

Most of the shoplifters in his store, he says,

Cut Flowers Enjoy Pop

Your cut flowers like to drink soda-pop too! It keeps them looking good longer.

According to Michigan State University horticulturists, soft drinks like 7-Up and Sprite extend the vase-life of flowers by providing them with citric acid and carbonation that help control microorganisms affecting stem firmness. The sugar in the pop helps sustain the life of the flowers.

To use this unique preservative, mix equal parts of water and the soft drink, and add half a teaspoon of bleach to each quart of the mixture. The bleach combats bacterial growth.

Dust Plants

Dusting, washing or polishing the foliage of your house plants improves their appearance and may improve growth, say Michigan State University horticulturists.

There are many plant polishes available in garden stores or floral shops. Always follow the manufacturer's recommendations.

Wipe the leaves first with a soft, damp cloth to remove dust. Then gently apply the polish to make the leaves shiny and attractive. Be sure plant is not wilting when leaves are polished.

The Gardening Way

DAHLIAS HAVE THEIR PLACE

Each year interest mounts as new Dahlia forms are developed. They are a far cry from the specimens found growing wild on high sandy sections in Mexico, single flowers in yellow and red shades. Later Professor Andreas Dahl, a Swedish pupil of the famous botanist Linnaeus, contributed so much to ultimate development that the flower was named in his honor.

Today there are so many class descriptions in a wide range of color and form...Anemone types with their raised cushion-like effect, ball shapes in a spiral arrangement, cactus groups which are fully double, collarettes with the same or contrasting colors, dwarf and miniature forms, just to mention a few. The large-sized fully-double Formal and Informal Decorative flowers are most popular, as are the short Pompons two inches tall.

Generally your local source of supply can advise as to the best varieties for the area, or a local unit of the American Dahlia Society. However, if you are a fancier and desire new or scarce types, you may have to consult a dealer in another part of the country.

There is a general trend toward small-medium flowers for the average home gardener, ranging from four to six inches. They serve every garden purpose and also supply fine cutting material for home decoration. This type is excellent not only for the Dahlia enthusiasts but for the beginning gardener who can grow gorgeous blossoms without scientific disabbling.

Dahlias are adaptable for landscape and borders, as well as for bedding effects with annuals and perennials. Selection of early and later varieties will extend the season and offer color in the garden when you need it most.

There are various ways in which these magnificent flowers can be grown well. You can purchase roots, green plants and pot-roots ready for planting or you can work with rooted cuttings. The most common method is to plant roots in separate holes six inches deep, laying the roots flat. At first, cover with about three inches soil, adding more earth gradually as the plants develop until the level of the surrounding soil is reached.

In selecting a suitable place for planting, sun is the first requirement. When planting in rows, allow two to three feet between plants. This distance should be reduced to 1½ to 2 feet when a massed bedding effect is desired. Even less space is needed for low-growing types. Tall and medium-height varieties will require staking. Stakes must be set in at time of planting, a few inches beyond the roots, about six feet long for tall types.

An excellent soil consists of about 50 percent or more of sand. The addition of humus offers moisture retention. The result should be a soil on the neutral side or only slightly acid. If you are in doubt, the soil can be tested with an inexpensive soil kit or a sample sent to your state agriculture station. The application of a commercial fertilizer 5-10-5 or 6-10-4 two or three weeks before planting will supply that extra boost for best results.

'Arbor Week' Set April 22-28

Again this year the Michigan Association of Nurserymen will take a leading part in the observance of Arbor Week—April 22-28.

The nurserymen's nationwide "Green Survival and the Environmental Crisis" program gives added emphasis to observance of Arbor Week in Michigan.

The importance of trees to maintaining and improving the quality of man's environment is set forth in Governor William Milliken's executive declaration identifying April 22-28 as Arbor Week.

Trees and other plant life not only have great aesthetic value but do much to improve the air man breathes by taking carbon dioxide out of the polluted atmosphere and giving off oxygen which is mandatory for animal life including man, nurserymen emphasize.

This is pointed out in Governor Milliken's declaration calling upon all citizens of Michigan to observe Arbor Week by planting trees about their homes, schools and places of business.

Northville's Beautification Commission concurs and is urging citizens of Northville to help beautify their community while improving the environment by planting trees.

Have any ornamental trees or shrubs that need to be moved?

Transplant them now, while they're still dormant! Here are some suggestions for doing the job:

—Consider whether or not the plant really needs to be moved. Is it crowded or in a location that doesn't satisfy its requirements? Would it be more attractive or useful somewhere else?

—Take into account the size, age and condition of the plant. Small, young, healthy plants usually survive transplanting best.

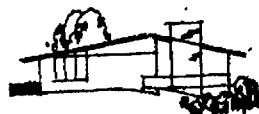

—Select the new site carefully. Make sure it's a place where the plant will look good and grow well. Be sure that there's enough room above and below the ground for the plant to spread out as it grows. Do not plant trees under overhead wires.

Transplant Those Shrubs Now

—When you dig up a tree or shrub, try to avoid injuring the roots. To find the right spot to dig, go out 9 to 12 inches for each inch of trunk diameter. Start from the outer edge of the crown and remove soil gently until you reach the main roots. After you cut the rootball, trim and shape it. Pin burlap around the ball.

—If you can't replant immediately, keep the tree or shrub moist in a protected area. Cover it with moist peat, wet leaves, burlap or plastic.

—Dig the hole for planting a foot or two wider and as deep as the ball.

—Place the plant in the hole and position for best effect. Fill it with good soil until it's about three-quarters full. Water it well.

—After the ground settles, fill in the depression with more soil.

No Yard Space?

If you have a windowsill, balcony, patio or sunny indoor corner, you have room for a minigarden of vegetables.

Green onions, radishes, small vined tomatoes, leaf lettuce, peppers and eggplant; spices and herbs such as chives and parsley; and ornamental vegetables like bright red rhubarb-variety swiss chard and kale are all easy and inexpensive to grow in containers.

Also turnips, beets, carrots and leeks are well adapted. Summer squash grow in containers, but require a large container. Large vined tomatoes and cucumbers should be staked.

For youngsters, the easiest, most fruitful container vegetables are radishes—which grow quickly—green onions and leaf lettuce. "Tomatoes are a little trickier, but can be successfully grown by children."

Any container will do—

battered bucket, wooden box, bushel basket or clay pot—as long as it is large enough to hold the plant, when fully grown. For chives, use a six-inch pot. Radishes, onions and miniature tomatoes grow well in 10-inch pots. A five gallon plastic trash can is easy to handle, spacious enough for larger vegetables and suitable for outdoor patios.

Drill four or more ¼-inch drainage holes, evenly spaced along the sides near the bottom of the container. To aid drainage, spread about one half inch coarse gravel in the bottom before adding soil.

The soil mix should be light and sterile. Buy an artificial soil mix at a nursery, or garden supply center, or mix your own, using equal amounts of vermiculite and peat moss. To reduce acidity, add 14 ounces (about two cups) ground limestone to each two bushels peat-vermiculite mixture. Add one cup 5-10-10 fertilizer for each two bushels of soil mix.

Beware of 'Miracle' Men

Lansing Coming of Spring marks the appearance of miracle plant con-men who prey on home gardeners and landscapers. "Don't be taken in by these racketeers" is the warning sounded by Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, Agricultural Director B. Dale Ball and the Michigan Association of Nurserymen.

Home gardeners are warned against high pressure salesmen and mail order advertisers using fancy names for ordinary shrubs and plants and making exaggerated claims for their plant material.

Beware of glowing word descriptions and faked photographs of climbing vine peaches, giant climbing strawberries, 1,000 giant red roses on a single bush, flowering shade trees that grow roof high in a single year, etc.

"All consumer complaints, including verbal misrepresentations are received by the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office and appropriate action is taken," said Assistant Attorney General Edwin M. Bladen. "It is our experience that purchasers who deal with established local merchants can see what they are buying and are not misled by photographs or lurid verbal pictures."

"One cannot expect to get high quality stock at ridiculously low prices," said Dean F. Lovitt, chief of the plant industry division of the Dept. of Agriculture. "Purchasers should always demand a certificate of inspection with the stock as their assurance that it has passed inspection for insects and disease. Local nurserymen usually are familiar with local conditions and the varieties likely to do well in an area, and their advice can be helpful."

LANSING—Perhaps the most open political secret in Lansing these days involves the future of Gov. William G. Milliken.

He hasn't announced it yet, in fact he most surely won't make it official until sometime more than a year from now, but the governor is going to run for another term.

It's hard to know when he made a real commitment to the idea. In the 1970 election there were a lot of people who would have been willing to be a lot of money that Milliken would serve out his current terms, hand the nomination to Lt. Gov. James Brickley and go back to Traverse City.

But he has been dropping broad hints that he'd like another term since last summer when he was pulling every political lever he could find to pry his transportation package through the legislature.

THERE IS PROBABLY a whole series of factors involved in his decision. He seems to have developed a real feel for the job so that he enjoys it fully. The legislature is doing his bidding more now than at first. The ghost of George Romney has long since been laid to rest. It's been a long time since someone asked him whether he had "leadership ability" or not.

Milliken has always wanted to be governor rather than to seek national office. He turned down an offer in 1966 to run for the U.S. Senate and opened the door for Robert Griffin in what proved to be a winning campaign. So if he wants to stay in politics he would most logically want to stay on as governor.

Then there is the national scene to consider as well. The Republicans are looking to hold a real battle for the party presidential nomination in 1976. If Milliken wants to have a say in whom the party picks, he'll need to be more than a successful store owner from Traverse City.

There is surely one other factor in his decision too—it looks like he can win another term. The polls show him holding up quite well and Democrats are talking privately about how tough it will be running someone against him in 1974. When you are on top, the temptation is much less to leave.

That leaves the question of what will happen to Lt. Gov. James Brickley. Brickley took a pay cut to run for lieutenant governor in 1970 and some people thought he ran with some sort of promise that he'd get first crack at the governorship when Milliken quit.

But another four years of waiting might be an awful lot to ask of someone with ambition. He could, of course, run with Milliken again. Or he could run for attorney general, especially if Democrat Frank Kelley turns down another term to make money in private practice.

Or he could take a judgeship somewhere along the line. No matter what he decides, there's little danger he'll end up starving.

SOMETHING NEW will happen in Michigan at the end of April. We'll go on daylight saving time with most of the rest of the nation.

In case you've forgotten, Michigan voters made that decision last November when they voted to adopt daylight saving time. That reversed a decision they made by the narrowest of margins four years earlier.

Actually, the state did experience one summer of daylight saving time after Congress passed the Uniform Time Act and before we exempted ourselves from the act. The act says everybody will observe daylight saving time unless the state expressly exempts itself. And it specifies any state going on "fast time" will do it along with the rest of the country.

WHAT THIS MEANS is that Michiganders can go through the minor confusion which hits people all over the country when the time comes to change the clocks.

The question is always "Which way do we move the clocks this time?"

It's easier if you remember the concept behind "fast time"—that is to provide more hours of daylight time in the evening after work which people can spend outside while the sun is still up. So clocks are moved one hour ahead in the spring when DST starts and then one hour back in the fall when DST ends.

If all else fails there is the old slogan to help remember what to do with the clock—"Spring Forward. Fall Back."

Babson Report: Strikes Played Down

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass.—Over recent years labor walkouts have become desperately costly for all concerned—the unions, the companies, the workers, and often the public.

As a result, there has been a growing trend toward the kind of management-labor negotiations that take up issues as they arise and hence avoid crisis bargaining that often leads to prolonged strikes, plant shutdowns, financial embarrassment for the workers involved.

In the old days when wages were relatively small and worker benefits usually the exception, it was often worthwhile for both unions and workers to suffer through an extended strike to gain high basic pay rates and fringe concessions throughout an entire industry.

There are great differences today, however, with working wages at far higher levels and most companies observing a fair coverage of benefits. Even a brief stoppage can put employees in a severe bind, particularly with so many families living up to their income.

If a bread-winner's salary is stopped, it does not take very long for bank accounts to dwindle and bills to pile up. Mortgage payments, rents, utilities, charge accounts, taxes, time payments on cars and appliances—they all make extremely heavy demands.

SUCH HUGE problems are raised by strikes that the unions, the companies, the employees, and the public are turning against the whole concept of work stoppages. Neither unions nor workers look with favor on compulsory arbitration, and most Administrative and Legislative representatives have managed to avoid calling for strictures on the right to strike. But there has been plenty of work done behind the scenes in an effort to make expensive walkouts a thing of the past, and some of the results are beginning to surface.

In mid-March the railroad industry—long plagued by ineffectual bargaining procedures and constantly recurring crises—suddenly announced contract agreements concluded nearly three months early, with unprecedented negotiation by all the rail unions at the same time.

Of course, the critical situation existing in so many railroad systems and pressure for antistrike legislation in Congress helped bring the agreement into being at that early date.

ABOUT TEN DAYS after the surprise move in the rail industry, a novel and historic agreement was drawn up by the United Steelworkers and top steel industry negotiators including a no-strike clause on national issues and a promise to submit unsolved issues to arbitration.

The most significant feature of the arrangement is that it has already been signed, sealed, and accepted by the steel rank and file although the present contract does not expire until next year.

MAJOR employers in all industries will be watching the results of the early bargaining agreements in both rails and steel. A General Motors spokesman has hailed the steel innovation, saying it will remove the need to stockpile as a strike hedge if the plan works out.

Full Moon Marks Easter

A full moon that sets the date for Easter, some of the brightest stars and the zodiacal light mark April's astronomical displays, notes University of Michigan Hazel M. Losh.

The full moon, occurring on April 17, determines the date for Easter, Professor Losh explains, because over 1,600 years ago church leaders decided that Easter should fall on the first Sunday after the first full moon of spring (vernal equinox).

Easter falls on April 22 this year, but it can fall on any day within a 35-day period between the first day of spring to April 25.

April's stars include 10 of the 20 brightest in the whole sky, the Michigan astronomer says. "Toward the west are the remnants of the brilliant assemblage that adorned the southern skies of mid-winter, such as Betelgeuse and Rigel in the constellation Orion."

Sirius, the brightest star of the heavens, can be found in the southeast in the constellation Canis Major. Near the meridian are the stars Procyon, Castor, and Pollux, with the former residing in the constellation Canis Minor and the latter two in Gemini. Rising in the southeast along the zodiac soon after sunset is Virgo, a constellation which contains Spica, the "Queen Star of the Spring."

Professor Losh points out that the lustrous zodiacal light may be seen in the west at dusk. Broadest near the horizon, this softly luminous triangle tapers toward the zenith. The strange glow is believed to be caused by sunlight reflected by interplanetary dust.

are girls, although he more often catches boys. Their chief target: cosmetics.

The biggest heist was the theft of some $85 worth of power tools by a group of boys, who were returned to the store with their loot by their parents.

Only about 50-percent of the parents of children caught appear concerned, however, apparently because it is a problem they don't want to face up to, he says.

Although Herbst prosecutes those caught (including "hardcore" 10, 11 and 12-year-olds), he questions whether or not it helps. He likens prosecution to a traffic ticket: "It's a good reminder, but if you drive fast it doesn't necessarily change your driving habits."

In an effort to cut down on shoplifting, Herbst sponsors recreational programs for youngsters and a shoplifting awareness program over a local radio station, but apparently this isn't helping, he admits.

His chief gripe is that newspapers fail to carry court proceedings, which he believes would be a "real deterrent."

Shoplifting, according to Dan Schmidt, manager of the Brighton D&C Store, "is a year-around problem that doesn't hinge on seasonal changes. With the Brighton Area Schools being on split sessions, this gives kids more time to spend uptown in the stores."

While Schmidt admits shoplifting has become a problem, he clings to the theory that "preventive measures" is the best solution. "We try to make it difficult for youngsters to shoplift so they won't be tempted."

Most of his problems deal with boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 16. Boys tend to steal padlocks, caps, and capguns, while girls go after clothing. Sunglasses are another item that is frequently taken.

"The thing that disturbs me," says Schmidt, who has been in business 21 years, "is that kids brag about their shoplifting. It's a stage they go through—they don't realize the seriousness of what they are doing."

Other merchants and policemen place much of the responsibility on the shoulders of parents. They note that many fail to question their children if they come home with new items when they know they had no money, and others, if their children are apprehended, are defensive and play down the crime.

Parents who do this, insists Chief BeGole, do their children more harm than good.

When a young first offender is brought into the Northville Police Department, parents are notified and generally an agreement is reached between the parents and the police, and the child is reprimanded at home.

Bill Stanford of Spencer's Drug in South Lyon says "Our biggest problem for the past year has been with young girls who steal cosmetics."

But another related problem has developed involving vandalism.

"We lost between $250 and $300 in merchandise recently when we had to throw out goods damaged by vandals. They turned bottles over, sprayed shaving cream over other items, and so on," explains Stanford.

If the shoplifter is of high school age, Northville police must decide whether or not to send them on to juvenile court.

"The attitude of the offender and the parents are studied, as well as the home situation," explains Officer DeLauder. "Most often, first offenders are handled in the department. There's an overload of juvenile complaints going into juvenile courts and a lot of them, unfortunately, are dismissed."

Although shoplifting in area communities primarily involves juveniles, police fear the number of adult shoplifters will grow with burgeoning populations.

"None of us want that to happen," asserts Chief BeGole. "So we're going to hit them (shoplifters) hard whenever we can. Stealing is a crime no matter how small the item, and it's about time the public realizes crime is a menace at every level."

Goodbye Toothless Grin

New Mouthpiece Protects Athlete

Your son won't have to take a chance on a toothless grin if he participates in rugged, collision sports.

All he has to do is slip a lightweight piece of plastic over his upper teeth, say dentists at The University of Michigan, reporting on the results of studies they have done on the efficacy of modern mouthguards.

They really work. In fact, they are so effective the U-M dentists can practically guarantee in most instances that your son can survive literally years of collision sports such as amateur football, hockey, soccer, basketball or boxing and still keep his smile intact.

The major reason is the evolution of the mouthguard. It has been adapted from a block of hard wax or rubber clamped between the teeth to a transparent, energy-absorbing covering which fits comfortably over the upper teeth.

Faculty members at the U-M School of Dentistry say these new mouthguards not only protect the upper and lower teeth, but also prevent concussions by stopping the transmission of force through the jaw and skull.

The new-generation mouthguards are barely noticeable when worn, allow the athlete to talk or take a drink of water and yet they will not fly out at the first hard jolt.

The devices work because the custom-fitted plastic covering both absorbs energy and spread the impact of a blow over the upper teeth and jawbone. The guard also cushions contact between the upper and lower teeth. For this reason they are sometimes prescribed for patients who grind their teeth while sleeping.

The U-M dentists began several years ago to evaluate the various types of commercial mouthguards available, to both judge their effectiveness and to see if they could be improved upon. Participating in the research were Drs. William C. Godwin, Robert G. Craig, and Brian R. Lang with the aid of dentist in the Ann Arbor area, dental students and U-M Athletic Department officials.

The research, described by Dr. Godwin as the most extensive clinical investigation of mouth protectors in the United States, has covered several seasons of various sports, more than 1,000 athletes and many more thousands of mouthguards.

The U-M dentists tested, in the laboratory and on the playing fields, more than a dozen commercially-sold mouthguards plus making their own custom-fitted versions out of a variety of plastic materials.

The various mouthguards, mounted on casts of upper teeth, were battered by 3/4-inch steel ball bearings fastened to a pendulum. They also were scientifically stretched, torn, squeezed, and ripped as well as worn and chewed by athletes from grade school through college varsity sports.

The results, according to Dr. Godwin, are that most of the commercial mouthguards give significant protection, some more than others, but any mouthguard is better than none.

The U-M dentist also came up with a mouthguard of their own design which they believe combines the best energy-absorbing and impact-spreading properties.

Some of the commercially made mouthpieces, sold to parents or coaches, require some expertise in forming plastic or waxes, plus sometimes time-consuming baking or boiling to cure the device.

Dr. Godwin said that literally anyone can vacuum-form the U-M type mouthguard once a cast of the upper teeth is obtained. The recommended equipment, devised by the dentists, is a tank-type vacuum cleaner attached to an old fashioned wide-surface shower head. The cast costs about $3 in materials, and most private dentists Dr. Godwin has worked with are willing to donate their time to make the casts. Once the cast is obtained it is kept on file in the athletic department office.

To replace mouthguards worn out or lost during the season requires an 80-cent, 5-inch square of polyvinylacetate plastic, which is softened in boiling water, dropped over the teeth cast on top on the shower head, and vacuum-formed instantly.

After cooling a couple of minutes, the guard is trimmed to a horseshoe shape and is ready to slip over the teeth. The process takes about seven minutes from start to finish and can be done by coaches, assistants, managers or cheerleaders, Dr. Godwin said.

Horse's Mouth

This column is open to news of all breeds of horses and ponies. Send your questions, comments, and horse show news to "Horse's Mouth", care of South Lyon Herald, South Lyon, MI 48178.

The American Horse Protection Association, Inc. recently sent out a bulletin offering $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person involved in an illegal round-up and slaughter of approximately 60 wild horses on the "public's" land in Southeastern Idaho.

The mangled bodies of eight mustangs found in February at the bottom of the Lemhi Mountains were all that were left of one of Idaho's few wild horse herds. The rest had been hauled away for dog food.

These supposedly protected animals were chased down by helicopters and snowmobiles. The nostrils of the horses were tied with metal rings to subdue them.

Two Federal laws and a state anti-cruelty law were broken in this merciless hunt.

The American Horse Protection Association had asked that all interested parties please write letters to their congressmen, etc. in hopes of getting some criminal action taken against the men involved in this terrible act.

Here is an answer received by one of our readers from the United States Department of the Interior, March 20, 1973.

"This is in response to your letter to the Secretary of the Interior regarding the round-up of horses near Howe, Idaho.

"The Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service have been conducting a thorough investigation into this incident. A complete joint report is expected within the next few days.

"Since criminal charges may be involved, details of the results of the investigation cannot be disclosed at this time.

"The horses involved in the round-up which were shipped to North Platte, Nebraska are under government custody and are being cared for by the Valley Veterinary Clinic. The investigation team is attempting to follow up any leads on the location of any other horses which may still be in the vicinity.

"A meeting of the National Advisory Board for Wild Free-Roaming Horses and Burros established under the provisions of PL 92-195 has been scheduled for March 21 and 22 in Denver, Colorado. A statement on the Idaho Case will be made at this meeting.

"The Bureau of Land Management shares your concern over this incident. You can be assured that the Idaho round-up is receiving

Do you think $301 is too much to pay for an Easter Basket?

...Tell it to the Judge

That's what a $2 Easter Basket will end up costing you when you "don't have the time" to pay for it. So you walk out the door with the basket under your coat.

At least you try to walk out. But you are caught and prosecuted for SHOPLIFTING.

So you pay $100 fine. You pay lawyer's fee of $80. You pay $9 for court costs. You lose $110 in wages for five days spent in jail; and then you pay the $2 for that little Easter Basket.

That's a total of $301 Kind of expensive, huh! You can complain to the judge or maybe the jailer.

Postal Service Going Downhill?

MARK FORD SALES in South Lyon announces the appointment of Steven D. Herald, as service manager. Herald, of Peer Road, recently completed four months' active service with the United States Army Reserves in Fort Ord, California. He is attached to the 170th Support Battalion at the Livonia Reserve Base. The South Lyon High graduate (class of 1969), studied service management at Schoolcraft College and was employed for two years in parts and service at John Mach Ford Sales in Northville. He is married to the former Nancy Patterson of Peer Road and is the son of the David Heralds of Pontiac Trail.

THE GRAND OPENING this weekend of a new modular model home at 5619 East M-36 at the corner of Chilson Road was announced recently by F. D. LeBlanc, president of LeBlanc Realty of 20531 Grand River Avenue, Detroit.

The firm will build in most areas of Michigan and offers eight different floor plans with a wide range of option including family rooms and basements. Prices range from $13,750 to $28,900.

Eugene LeBlanc, vice-president, pointed out his firm is unique because it is a general real estate company which can sell the lot owners a new home and at the same time offer him the full facilities of the real estate company to help dispose of the old home.

"Such a combined operation for lot owners has long been needed," he said. "Now, the family who has purchased a lot and wants a new home on it can transact the entire operation all in one place with one firm."

Model hours will be from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily and Sunday.

"Economy achieved at the price of necessary and efficient (mail) service is not economy. On the contrary, it is an abuse of a public trust."

That was a remark of Congressman William Broomfield in giving testimony recently before the Subcommittee on Postal Service of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

According to Broomfield, who serves this area, "The price of a first class stamp deserves first class treatment and right now the public is not getting it."

He pointed to "intolerable" mail delays throughout Oakland County as a prime example of the deterioration of postal service across the country.

Sold Since '22

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Buddy Poppy sale has been conducted nationwide since 1922. The proceeds are used exclusively for the aid, relief and comfort of disabled and needy veterans, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

"It is not unusual for first class mail to take four to seven days to travel from one point to another within my Congressional District. Magazines, periodicals and business circulars are delivered weeks or months after they were posted," Broomfield declared.

Broomfield blamed the delays on some 40,000 job vacancies, the failure of highly-publicized automated equipment to take up the slack and a policy of regionalized mail handling that has bottlenecked local mail.

"In an unsuccessful attempt to reduce costs, the Postal Service has pared service to the bone. Collections and delivery schedules have been drastically reduced. An increasing number of businessmen have turned to

He told the investigating committee that, "My Congressional District was suffering severe postal problems even before the new Postal Service was formed two years ago. Incredibly, the situation has gone from bad to worse."

"Before Congress provides any additional subsidies to the Postal Service," he continued, "the public should receive in return minimum service standards. This should include next-day delivery within a city, three-day delivery anywhere in the country and a regulated collection and delivery schedule."

"Eventually, the Postal Service should be able to pay its own way. But, that will not happen overnight. In the meantime, the American people are being short-changed."

"I have absolutely no reservations over the loyalty of employees in local post offices, for it is evident that the breakdown in service occurs at the regional office."

That's the opinion of Congressman Marvin L. Esch, in commenting on the breakdown in mail service.

"I have received numerous complaints from individuals and businesses throughout Michigan which demonstrate the need for an immediate effort to improve postal service."

"Close to 50 businesses have written in the past month of their experiences with delayed mail which ended up costing them a great deal of money."

"One theme seems to run through their letters—they have been forced into using private delivery services, or expensive messenger services because the postal system just is not reliable anymore."

According to Esch, the Postal Service "here in Washington is failing to respond to truly legitimate worries about service and the adequacy of the system."

"While all of us recognize that the volume of mail is enormous (some 350 million pieces a day), we feel that the Post Office should be expanded and streamlined to handle these volumes of mail. While private postal services expand at tremendous rates and handle their increased volume efficiently and reliably, the Postal Service just gets worse and worse."

Although his past efforts apparently have fallen on deaf ears, Congressman Esch served notice that he is renewing a demand for extensive hearings into poor postal service.

He invited constituents within his Second Congressional District to write him, outlining their first-hand experiences with poor postal service.

"The more specific your letter (such things as postmarks and dates of receipt, amounts of money lost because of delays in receipt, etc.), the more powerful a cause can be made to the Postal Service for immediate improvement," he said, adding a hope that "not too many of your letters will be 'lost in the mails.'"

Honor the Dead

"Honor the Dead by helping the living" is the slogan of the annual Veterans of Foreign Wars Buddy Poppy sale. Proceeds are used entirely for the welfare of disabled and needy veterans and the survivors of deceased veterans.

Holy Week: Time of Challenge

Lloyd G. Brasure
First Presbyterian Church of Northville

Holy week nineteen seventy-three is a far cry from the events of that first seven day period in the history of Christendom. Next week the faithful minority who observe Church functions, will gather in Churches of various orders and pay homage again to the Saviour Who was crucified and later reported raised from the dead and ascended into heaven. The history of the human race has recorded unnumbered effects on lives and cultures because of that single life of one called the Christ. Many there are who can testify now as they did in the days of the early Church, that God has spoken to his people again and with power. This has been done in many ways, but at this season of the Christian year, the believers will give thanks to God for His unspeakable gift of love and example, of sacrifice and forgiveness through the life of Jesus Christ.

As we do remember Him in private prayer, lives devoted to goodness, worship in the congregation, communion on Maundy Thursday, Union services on Good Friday, and rejoicing on resurrection day, Sunday, we must be aware of the challenge that falls on us. We who have found God in Jesus' Name must be always conscious of our mission. First, to care for our own household; then to be in the world as a servant called to patience, forgiveness, humility, courage, and getting along with all of God's children. The witness to God's truth today must be as an example that they may know of your faith by your works. Let your light so shine before men.

May your life be given strength and hope when you have pain and sorrow. If despair overwhelms you, may there come a prayer in your heart for the power of God's healing of the broken heart; and when calamity descends, may there be a consciousness of the spirit of our Lord Who comforted the distraught and called all people unto Him. God has given us many problems in this life but He has also shown us the way to pass through the valley of the shadow, and has counselled us to be of good courage. Read the scriptures, find the lives of His saints who have overcome the darkness of this world with the light and trust of eternal love.

May Easter week 1973, though different from that first one, be a resurrection of your life as you find new life in Christ.

Face of Christ

In art or sculpture it is called a Christus, an artist's interpretation of Our Lord.

In a passion play the leading role is the Christus . . . again an artist's interpretation.

Through the centuries there have been many faces, many interpretations. Yet all so easily recognizable . . .

. . . Because we know Christ not by sight, but by the qualities of His life for us. We are drawn not to a face but to a heart, a Heart that loved and gave and promised and fulfilled.

However simple or crude someone's sketch of the Master . . . in seeing his Lord we see ours. We are not critics, but believers.

Chief, Division of Range"

A "How To" horse demonstration clinic for the amateur horse owner is slated for Tuesday, April 24, from 7:30 - 10 p.m. at Woodcreek Farm. The farm is located on Ann Arbor Road (M14), east of Curtis Road, six miles west of Plymouth.

Admission is $1 and children must be accompanied by an adult.

Demonstrations on "How To"...manage and manner your horse from the ground include longe line, lead line, tips on grooming and trimming, where and how. Under points on horsemanship areas covered will be English and western, leads, timings and workoffs, proper equipment and dress, general locomotion (forward and backward), ring manners during show. An added plus is "anything you wanted to know but were afraid to ask".

For further information contact Jim Schweighauser, 455-2936 or Cora Fuson, 665-2525

HORSEMAN'S INSTITUTE
Of special interest to horse lovers is the "Horses A to Z Institute" which will be held June 18th through the 22nd at Leelanau Schools in Glen Arbor. The program consists of a complete horse school dealing with 26 topics which cover various phases of horsemanship, management and training.

Complete dormitory facilities and food services will be provided at the Leelanau Schools for those enrolling in the program. Stabling is also offered for students who wish to bring their own horses for use in the Institute.

The purpose of the Institute, in brief, is making an interest in horses pay, whether for business and profit or for recreation and sport. Subjects are based on a lecture, demonstration and laboratory basis: a student may choose those courses which best fit his needs, rate of development, and interests. A sampling of subjects includes: stable management, trail riding procedures, basics of nutrition, riding styles, advantages and disadvantages of horse careers, investing in horses, hunting and jumping, horseback games, quality stables, achieving the winners' circle, and curing vices and bad habits. Special programs in English and western riding will be offered, along with formal dressage drill.

"Horses A to Z" is staffed by professionals in the field. Instructors include Jack Brainard of Rochester, Minnesota, a member of the judges' committee of the American Horse Shows Association; Frances Raker of Rockford, Minnesota, owner of one of the largest riding academies in that state, will teach equitation and riding school management; Dr. Victor Myers, University of Minnesota veterinarian, will lecture on special and common health problems; and Dr. Jim Dollahan, Dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls, will conduct classes in horse breeding and management.

Although the classes in horsemanship, management and training will last only five days, the farrier school connected with the Institute will extend to 10. Larry Oatman, instructor of farrier science at the Technical Education Center in Anoka, Minnesota, will teach techniques of horseshoeing.

The program is geared for all age levels, with classes for amateurs as well as professionals. For a copy of the school brochure, contact Glen Heiney, Circle H Ranch, Glen Arbor, MI 49636.
