SHADOWS OF PAST—When members of the Northville Historical Society peeled away the plastered walls of the old library building on the historical site off Griswold, they found outlines of three rows of church pews etched in the wood where the ends of the benches had been attached to the walls a century ago. The building was original built as a church about 1845, according to Society spokesmen, by members who broke away from the Presbyterian Church here. The church lasted but a few years, and the building subsequently served a long series of uses, the best known being the library. The building, which originally stood off Wing Street on the site of the Northville Square development, was moved and is being prepared for conversion to a museum in a historical village setting by the Society. The building will be open to the public immediately following the parade on Wednesday.

Few Staff Additions

College OK's $6.9 Million Budget

A $6.9 million budget, with about 85-percent representing personnel expenses, was unanimously approved by the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees Wednesday night. The record-high budget, which calls for very few staff additions, represents nearly $700,000 increase over the previous 1972-73 revised budget of $6,289,915. Last year's budgeted outlay was scaled down from $6,615,178 to reflect a reduction in income. Projections indicate the bulk of the budget income in 1973-74 will be derived from two sources—state aid ($2,762,700) and local property taxes (2,194,970). Based on a state equalized valuation of $1,563,881,346 for the college district, the 1.77 voted millage will produce $2,768,070 of which $573,100 is committed for debt retirement.

The Schoolcraft district covers the Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville, and Plymouth public school districts. Northville voted to join the college district in 1963, two years after the college was founded.

Calling it basically a "continuation" budget, W. Kenneth Lindner, vice-president for business affairs noted that the budget provides additions of only two clerks, two custodians, one maintenance person and possibly two new faculty members.

The latter may be necessary with the addition of four new instruction programs: industrial security, medical lab technology, climate systems technology, and piano.

Because 85-percent of the budget is tied up in personnel services (including salaries) and about 9-percent in fixed costs, it leaves only about 5-percent of "discretionary money," said Dr. C. Nelson Grote, college president.

He was referring to an observation by Trustee Leroy C. Bennett that the budget leaves relatively little room for monetary adjustment.

Pointing out that the full authorized levy of 1.77 mills is necessary to offer "the same level of programs and services during the coming year," Dr. Grote said the balanced budget "does not reflect the monies cut from requests which more adequately reflected our needs in 1973-74."

It was explained that last year $758,600 of the income went to debt service and, since this debt service requirement has dropped to $573,100 for 1973-74, the $185,500 difference is being channeled into the operating fund.

Dr. Grote also said the projected budget income includes a $100,000 special state grant (the measure has received approval of both houses and is presently in committee). This money, which appears to be a

'Buy at Home' Vallier Demands

"It's about time we change," snapped Schoolcraft College Trustee Archibald Vallier last week in punching holes in a practice of buying goods and services outside the college district.

The outspoken official, who years ago earned himself a reputation for not mincing words while serving as a member of the old Wayne County Board of Supervisors, was in high form Wednesday as he repeatedly demanded that the college strive to "buy at home."

Too often, he charged, the college has been "going to Detroit" when equally good or better purchases might be made within the district from college taxpaying businesses and professions.

Vallier also ripped administrators for not obtaining more bids on used college equipment, and he charged a supplier with shortchanging the government by incorrectly reporting equipment depreciation allowances.

Out-of-district purchasing, the trustee said, had become increasingly embarrassing as more local businessmen understandably question

Won't Take Action

Northville township planners have decided not to take any action following their review of plans for three new schools to be built in the township.

According to Planning Commission Chairman James Nowka, it "was determined at the special meeting (held June 13) that the planners could not take any definitive action (on the plans) because of the prerogatives of the school district."

Major concern expressed at the special meeting between planners and school superintendent Raymond Spear was over where the front of the middle school is located.

School officials maintain it is located on Franklin Road while planning consultants for the township have assumed it is located on Waterford Road.

Adjacent property owner to the school site, Mrs. Margaret Tegge, who is also deputy township clerk, objected at the meeting to the site plans because, according to township ordinance, the school was located 20 feet too close to her property line.

Whether or not the school was, in fact, located too close to her property line hinged on where the front of the school was located.

If the front was located on Franklin Road, as the school district maintains, the site meets all ordinance requirements. If, however, the front was found to be on Waterford Road, the building would have been too close to the property line.

Where the front of the school actually is located has not been solved since planners decided not to take any further action, school plans will remain as they are.

Spear has stated that plans

Fourth's Events Filled with Fun

Carrying the theme, "American History in Action," Northville's annual Fourth of July parade will get underway at 10 a.m. tomorrow (Wednesday).

It triggers a holiday-packed series of events that concludes at dusk with a spectacular fireworks at the high school.

"We're counting on one of our finest shows," said John Buckland, parade chairman for the sponsoring Northville Jaycees.

The parade starts at the Beal Street entrance at Northville Downs and then travels on Main Street east to Rogers, Rogers to Cady, Cady to Wing, Wing to Fairbrook, Fairbrook to the Center Street entrance of the Downs.

Sixty-five parade units are scheduled to participate, headed up by Detroit Tiger pitcher Jim Perry serving as grand marshal. Participants include bands, floats, equestrian teams, antique and classic cars, clowns, elephants, drill teams, color guards, majorette groups, and special entries.

"Many new units will be making their appearance in Northville this year, giving the parade a wide variety of units," according to Buckland.

The 65-unit parade will be judged by five panelists from the reviewing stand at the city hall. They are Frank Ollendorff, city manager; Raymond Spear, superintendent of schools, and area residents Robert Treat, Don McNamara, and Tom Broderick. Judging is under the chairmanship of Al Simon.

Twenty-six prizes in eight categories are to be awarded.

Children wishing to participate in the decorated bicycle portion of the parade should be at the Center Street entrance to the Downs at 9:30 a.m. on the Fourth, emphasized Buckland.

No motorized bikes of any kind will be permitted in the parade, he said.

A tentative listing of the 1973 parade lineup is located on Page 7-C. Any group or organization not represented may contact Buckland at 349-0773 to arrange for last-minute entry.

Following the parade, the Jaycees will hold their chicken barbecue, which has become increasingly popular over the years, in the city hall park beginning at 11 a.m.

According to the barbecue chairman, Pete Magnan and Ron Hellier, the menu will include barbecued chicken, beans, cole slaw, potato chips, roll and butter, and coffee or coke.

Adult portions will be offered at $2.25 each and children's portions at $1.50.

Eating facilities will be provided in the park.

Area residents are reminded that a special feature this year provides delivery dinner orders to large family gatherings or parties of 10 or more at no extra charge. These orders should be made immediately by calling Magnan at 349-4328 or Hellier at 455-8626.

While the Jaycees are serving chicken they'll also be sponsoring a "Dunk Tank." For a quarter, the participant gets three chances to hit a small target with a softball. A "lucky" pitch sends the tank sifter into 500 gallons of ice cold water.

Volunteers are still needed to try their luck as sitters, said Chairman Jim Totzkay, who would welcome calls at 349-7185.

Another popular event planned by Jaycees will be the Watermelon Eating Contest slated for 1 p.m.

Open to all area youngsters 12 years old and younger, the contest will be located in the parking lot behind the city hall, according to Contest

Chairman Dick Shannon.

Contestants will each be given one-eighth of a watermelon to consume in the quickest possible time. The contest will be conducted in heats of eight youngsters each.

Winners of each heat will receive a prize. There is no entry fee for the contest, but parents of each participant must be present at the time of the contest, Shannon emphasized.

SAVE THE TREES is an underlying goal as engineering for the proposed municipal parking lots north and south of Northville Square goes on. Every effort is being made to save as many of the trees located on the property as is possible, City Manager Frank Ollendorff has assured councilmen and planners.

BIDS FOR the sale of $10-million of school bonds will be opened at a special meeting of Northville School Board at 8 p.m. Wednesday, July 11. Proceeds from the sale will be used to construct and equip two elementary schools and a middle school and to purchase a high school site. Sale of the bonds was approved by voters on June 11.

TRASH PICK-UP for the City of Northville residents who normally have their trash collected on Wednesdays will be made on Thursday this week. The change was made necessary due to the Fourth of July holiday. Thursday route pick-up will be made as usual.

Reh-Cash Vows Recited In Double Ring Ceremony

The wedding ceremony uniting Denise Lynne Reh and James H. Cash, Jr. took place June 8 at 7:30 p.m. at Our Lady of Victory Church, Northville before an altar decorated with arrangements of white and blue mums, gladioli and carnations.

The Rev. John Wyskiel read the double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Reh of Waterford Road, Northville. Her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Cash, Sr. of 11 Mile Road, New Hudson.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of her own creation. The dress of polyester lutesong featured a high neckline empire waist and a train. It was trimmed with panels of lace and pearl buttons. A tiara adorned with pearls held her full length veil.

Organist Tom Berry sang "Ave Maria" and "Sunrise Sunset".

Mrs. Teri Baur attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of pink flowered polyester seersucker and carried pink tipped carnations. Baby's breath formed her headpiece.

Bridesmaids Rhonda Ellis of Northville, Suzanne Reh, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Lynda Cash, cousin of the bridegroom wore gowns of blue flowered polyester seersucker, carried blue tipped carnations and wore baby's breath in their hair.

Serving as his cousin's best man was Jeff Cash. Jeff Pratt of Whitmore Lake, Kim Reh, brother of the bride, and Gary Cash, brother of the bridegroom, were the ushers.

Mrs. Reh chose for her daughter's wedding a full length gown of blue and white flowered polyester. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cash, wore a long gown of blue flowered polyester. Each had a wrist corsage of blue tipped carnations. Mrs. M. Haack, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore an aqua crepe dress and a carnation corsage.

A dinner reception for 175 guests was held in the church hall.

The four-tier wedding cake which was the focal point of the reception dinner was made by Chef Leonard Stec of Schoolcraft College and featured cherry, raspberry and strawberry filling between chiffon layers. It was frosted in white with blue trim.

Following a wedding trip to Columbus, Ohio, the newlyweds are residing near Brighton.

Clark-Jackson Rites Said in Farmington

Gloria Rose Clark and Ron Jackson were married in a late morning ceremony on June 21 in the Farmington home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mayer.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Eural Clark of Farmington, formerly of Northville, and Mr. and Mrs. Basil Jackson of Detroit.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Reverend Hugh Stewart of the Farmington Hills Presbyterian Church. Attending the couple were Corine Kay Mayer and Robert Benjamin.

Following the marriage service, champagne luncheon was served at the Mayer home for the immediate families.

The couple will live on Mackinac Island for the summer and will then return to Farmington where both are employed by the Farmington Schools.

OFF TO A SMASHING START—When a tree came crashing down during last week's damaging thunderstorm and wrecked their honeymoon car, things seemed to be getting off on the wrong note for Carol Nuottile and Charles Konopaski. However, the two were married Friday night at St. Paul's Lutheran Church and were able to leave on schedule in a borrowed car. When damaged, the car was parked at the bride's parents' home at 16795 Northville Road, site of the wedding reception. The tree was cleared away in time so wedding guests attending the reception had a clear path of entry.

Summer Music Festival Opens Today

Schoolcraft College's seventh annual summer music festival opens today, Tuesday, July 3, with the first of three chamber music concerts to be presented by the faculty of the summer music school.

All programs in the series will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Waterman Campus Center on successive Tuesdays through the 24th of July. On that date the festival will conclude with a concert by the Festival Court Orchestra.

The faculty, composed of members of the Detroit Symphony and the College, will perform a variety of works for different combinations of instruments. The July 3 program will open with the Overture on Hebrew Melodies by Prokofiev, performed by

Oliver Green, clarinet, Allen Shaffer, piano, and the Festival String Quartet. Mozart's String Quartet No. 21 in D Major, K. 575 and the Quintet in E-flat Major, Opus 71 for Winds will be performed. Percussionist Norman Fickett will be featured in the Suite for Percussion by Armand Russell.

The July 10 program will open with the Quintet in F Major for Oboe, String Trio and Piano by J. C. Bach with soloists David Marriotti and Robert W. Jones. Pianists Donald Morelock and Allen Shaffer will perform the Fantasy in F Minor by Schubert for piano duet.

The highlight of the program will be a chamber version, for five solo instruments, of Richard Strauss' popular orchestra tone poem "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks".

The final chamber concert on July 17 will open with Morelock's performance of the Piano Sonata No. 12 in F Major, K. 332 by Mozart.

Morelock has just returned from Vienna where he participated in a month-long workshop with Mozart and Schubert specialist Paul Badura-Skoda.

The Festival Woodwind Quintet will be joined by pianist Shaffer for a performance of Poulenc's Sextet for Piano and Winds, and the Festival String Quartet will conclude the chamber series with Beethoven's Quartet No. 9 in C Major, Opus 59, No. 3, "Rasoumovsky".

Members of the Festival String Quartet include James Waring and Inez Hullinger Redman, violins, David Ireland, viola, and Mario Di Fiore, cello. The Festival Woodwind Quintet consists of Clement Barone, flute, Marriotti, oboe, Green, clarinet, Paul Ganson, bassoon, and Eugene Wade, French horn.

The Festival Court Orchestra will again be under the baton of Richard Saunders, Director of the summer music school and festival, and will conclude the festival with a concert on Tuesday, July 24.

The program will feature the Symphony No. 29 in A Major, K. 201, by Mozart, the Siegfried Idyll by Wagner in its original version for fifteen solo instruments, and the Divertissement by Jacques Ibert. The Court Orchestra is made up of members of the Detroit Symphony with the summer music school faculty assuming the first desks.

All four concerts will be given in the Waterman Center on the Schoolcraft College Campus on Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile Road in Livonia. Spacious, free lighted parking is available near the Center. Information on tickets may be obtained by calling the summer music school and festival office at 591-6400.

VEGETARIAN COOK—Mrs. Natalie Weaver, a teacher of vegetarian cookery for the past 25 years, is shown in her kitchen preparing a fresh vegetable and fruit salad. Mrs.

Weaver often invites new-found vegetarians to her home for extra instruction in fixing meatless dishes.

for Northville Family

Meatless Meals A Way of Life

life without meat. To those of us who have been raised on hamburgers, pork chops, hot dogs and pot roast, the thought of not having meat in our diets might be rather frightening. However, a family like the Arthur Weavers of Northville wouldn't have it any other way.

The Weavers are vegetarians and have been all of their lives. "My children are third generation vegetarians," said Mrs. Natalie Weaver proudly. "I am convinced it is a healthy way of life."

Mrs. Weaver is a registered nurse interested in nutrition and an accredited cooking instructor for the Public Health Association of the Seventh-Day Adventists.

Her husband, Dr. Arthur Weaver, is associate professor of surgery at the Wayne State University medical school. Many people in the Detroit area and throughout the United States know Dr. Weaver for his anti-smoking clinics.

"I am interested in preventive medicine. If I could put my husband out of business, I would," Mrs. Weaver said with a laugh. "I feel sorry for people who spend so much money at the doctor and can't afford to buy the correct food."

In connection with the Adventist Church, Mrs. Weaver has conducted vegetarian cooking classes for the past 25 years. The last three years, her classes have been open to the public.

"We don't do the cooking schools to get people off meat," she said. "The basis of a vegetarian diet is variety. Each of the things we vegetarians eat offers some nutritional value."

The vegetarian diet is based on the basic four. That includes at least two milk products, two proteins, four whole grain cereals and four vegetables or fruits daily. "So, you can see, a vegetarian diet is open to variety," she said.

People who eat meat base their menus on the meat to be served and vegetarians often use a fruit or vegetable or grain as the basis for a meal, she pointed out.

In her years of vegetarian cooking, Mrs. Weaver has perfected at least 1,000 recipes. Many of them are reproduced for her cooking class students.

"We do make meatballs, stroganoff and spaghetti," she said "and most people are surprised by that. There isn't anything I won't try to duplicate. I love ethnic cooking."

The basis for most of those dishes is gluten which is made from a mixture of flour and water.

Mrs. Weaver explained she mixes the two together and then holds it under running water to wash the starch out. The remaining blue-gray rubbery substance is gluten.

"I usually make large amounts of it at a time and freeze it," she said. "It's most dangerous to be a vegetarian unless you know what you are doing," Mrs. Weaver cautioned. "That is one of the reasons we decided to open the cooking classes to the public."

She added that people, unless they know the proper way to prepare them, should not fix dishes from the prepared vegetarian products on the market.

There are several kinds of vegetarians, Mrs. Weaver explained. She and her family are oval-lactal vegetarians which means they will eat eggs and some dairy products. Some vegetarians will eat fish and poultry and others will eat only vegetables, fruits and grains.

The Weavers have six children and none of them has ever had meat, their mother said. "We have never told them they can't have meat, but they all are too tender-hearted toward animals to try it."

According to Mrs. Weaver, the most popular vegetables among vegetarians and the non-vegetarians who take her cooking classes are peas and carrots. "We vegetarians do, though, learn to like the things that are good for us," she said.

Many of the recipes Mrs. Weaver has developed over the years use nuts. For breakfast, she said, nuts and fruit is mixed with cereal and nut meal is used in vegetarian roasts and loafs.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Weaver said, there are not many stores in the area that sell vegetarian products and those wishing to buy them have to go to health food stores.

"The Adventist School at Southfield and Fenkell does operate a store with little overhead, so I usually buy there. I will buy a case at a time," said Mrs. Weaver. It is at the school that Mrs. Weaver teaches her classes.

She admitted the term "health food", as applied to vegetarian cookery, bothers her. "It is a way of life. It's the joy of living. If you are healthy, you have to get more out of life," she said with enthusiasm.

Can being a vegetarian be a problem when eating out?

Many of the 1,000 recipes for vegetarian dishes perfected by Mrs. Natalie Weaver do not use the commercially prepared meatless products.

According to the cooking instructor, a vegetarian housewife who plans meals carefully and shops carefully can feed a family of six for less money than a family of the same size who eats meat at each meal.

Some of the recipes she has developed over the years which do not use special vegetarian products are given below.

A section of her cookbook entitled "Interesting Ways with Vegetables" includes parents. "They live near Lapeer," Mrs. Weaver said, "and plant a huge garden. Both are vegetarians and are in their eighties."

Everyone in the Weaver household is vegetarian — even the family poodle.

"We feed her what we eat and she does very well. I've had her at the vet's and he said there's no problem caused by her being a vegetarian," Mrs. Weaver said and added their canine's favorites are apples, lettuce and carrots.

Citizens, Officials Welcome Shopping Center

Although efforts to rezone property to permit construction of a regional shopping center were heatedly opposed by citizens in both Farmington and West Bloomfield Townships, reaction to the regional center in Novi has been far different.

Of the more than 150 people present at Wednesday's rezoning hearing, only seven registered their dissent when Mayor Joseph Crupi called for a 'show of hands of those opposed to the new center, and the council's 6-1 decision to rezone the property was greeted with applause.

The Novi News Thursday contacted the presidents of four Novi homeowners' associations to get their reactions to the fact that a regional shopping center will be located at the corner of Novi and Twelve Mile Roads.

Also contacted were former Novi City Manager George Athas and Northville City Manager Frank Ollendorff.

Here is what they had to say.

"Personally, I'm elated and I believe the community as a whole is happy about it," said

MACK PORTER, president of the Village Oaks Homeowners' Association. "I can't see anything but benefit to the community. It will provide jobs for our young people and make shopping much more convenient. Our women are tired of having to drive to Westland or Northland to get to a major department store."

BEN WRIGHT, president of the Meadowbrook Lake Homeowners' Association, said that his reaction to the shopping center is "very positive."

"It's a good positive step forward for the City of Novi," said Wright. "I like the fact that it's broadening our tax base and it also provides much needed services and conveniences for our citizens."

As president of the newly-organized Northern Novi Civic Association, MRS. MARTHA HOYER reported that the reaction of the people in the North End seems favorable.

"The people up here are tired of having to drive so far to get to shopping facilities," she said. "There is also talk about the advantages to the tax base that the shopping center will provide. We feel that the shopping center will more than carry its fair share of the tax load."

Mrs. Hoyer also said that she hoped the center would encourage development of the North End. "There's a lot of vacant property up here which we would like to see converted into residential developments, although we're not afraid of getting commercial development up here either," she noted.

"I'm happy to see the shopping center coming to Novi."

MRS. INA GORMAN, president of the Orchard Hills Homeowners' Association, called the news that the regional center is coming to Novi "the greatest."

"I'm glad they (the city council) finally did something rather than put it off some more," she said. "All the more in our subdivision have been anticipating it for some time. We would rather have a shopping center than any more of these multiple family developments of condominiums and town houses. I'm elated. At last we're going to get something which will be of some use to the citizens of Novi."

GEORGE ATHAS, a representative of the Chapparral Organization which owns large tracts of land in the North End, called the shopping center the "greatest thing that ever happened to Novi."

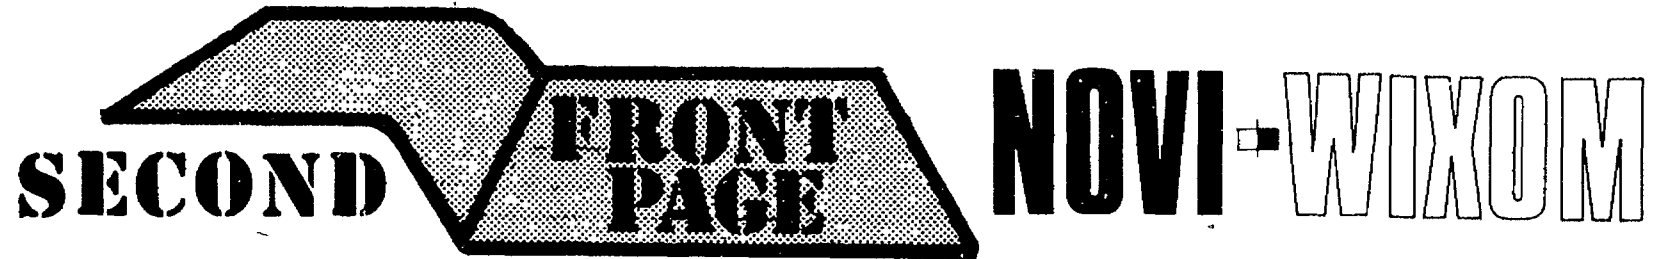

"First as a citizen and taxpayer, secondly as a member of the planning board that helped get this thing started, thirdly as a former city manager, and now as a developer in this area, this is the greatest thing that ever happened to Novi," he said. "By virtue of the rezoning, the city council has improved Novi's posture immeasurably. Both the bonding capacity and property values have risen a great deal. The fact that Hudson's will now move on site has made the city much more financially stable and, within a few years, could conceivably eliminate the need for additional millage." Northville City Manager FRANK OLLENDORFF said that the "Northville-Novare" needs a large shopping center. "It's a good thing for the citizens of the entire area," he said.

"I don't think that it will have any negative impact on our own commercial

Novi Gets Regional Shopping Center

WIXOM LIBRARY BOOST—Jane Wahamaki, Barbara Phillips, and Cathryn Olson examine the beginnings of the proposed Wixom Public Library. The City recently received more than 3,000 books on long term loan from the Michigan State Library Board to get the Wixom Library off to a good start. Mrs. Olson (far right) is chairman of the Wixom Library Board appointed by Mayor Gilbert Willis to establish a City Library.

Anticipate Completion by 1976

In what could well prove to be the single most important decision in the history of Novi, the city council last Wednesday granted the rezoning request of Shopping Centers Incorporated (SCI) that will enable them to proceed with plans to develop a multi-million dollar regional shopping center at the corner of Novi and Twelve Mile Roads.

Following the meeting Stuart Finney, SCI project head of the Novi development, told The Novi News that formal announcement of the decision to locate the giant regional center in Novi will be made within the week.

"The decision to locate the project in Novi was made some time prior to April, but we couldn't tip our hand until our rezoning request was approved," he said. "Now that we've got the zoning, it will just be a matter of drawing up an official announcement and releasing it to the press."

Speaking from Dayton-Hudson headquarters in Minneapolis Thursday afternoon, Finney reported that no starting date or construction timetable had yet been established, but revealed that SCI hopes to have the center "operative" by the latter part of 1976.

Many details have not yet been determined, Finney said. "We're in the process right now of taking soil borings and making topographical analysis to determine just exactly how we will locate and build the center on that property. Once we've made those determinations we will be able to get into design criterion and will be able to give more specific answers."

The center will be constructed on a site of approximately 100 to 125 acres. Amount of retail space is expected to be in the neighborhood of 850,000 to 900,000 square feet, although Finney stressed that those figures are very rough estimates at this time.

Northland by comparison contains approximately 1.2 million square feet of retail space.

Finney noted that the architect had been instructed to leave room for expansion of the center. He declined, however, to reveal the name of the architect. "We've been talking to an architectural firm and have asked for conceptual drawings, but no contract with any architect has been made and I don't want to make any disclosures at this time," he said.

He also declined comment on prospective tenants, saying it was "premature to comment on specifics" at this time.

It has long been widely accepted knowledge that Hudsons, Sears, and J.C. Penney will have major retail outlets in the development.

Total cost of the regional center, including the cost of the acreage, will be somewhere in the neighborhood of $25-30 million, Finney reported.

Wednesday's public hearing to consider the SCI rezoning request was in strong contrast to similar hearings in Farmington and West Bloomfield Townships where strong citizen opposition to the center led to rejection of the rezoning requests and ultimately forced the center into Novi.

Both Novi officials and citizens, however, are overwhelmingly in favor of having the center located in the city. Of the more than 150 citizens present at Wednesday's hearing only seven indicated their dissent when Mayor Joseph Crupi asked for a show of hands of those opposed to the center.

The council's 6-1 decision to grant the rezoning - Councilman Edwin Presnell cast the lone dissenting ballot - was greeted with applause.

The bulk of comments made in opposition to the granting of the rezoning were made by Mrs. Janet Lynn, a member of an environmental impact group named Citizens Council for Land Use Research and Education, which successfully led opposition to the regional center in West Bloomfield Township.

Two city councilmen took exception with Mrs. Lynn's request that a decision on rezoning be delayed until a total environmental impact study could be completed.

Councilman Lou Campbell disagreed with Mrs. Lynn's contention that the center would have a regional impact. "As far as traffic goes, we will be drawing from the expressways and as for surface traffic, surveys indicate that any problems would be within our own city limits from expressway

In Radtke-Keyes Case

Police Eye Suspect

Arrest of a gas station attendant for the strangulation murder of a 17-year old Milford Township girl last Wednesday has refocused police attention on the still unsolved murders of Kathy Radtke and John Keyes which shocked the Novi-Northville area in 1971.

Walter L. Corbin, 27, of Milford, was placed under arrest at 2:30 a.m. Thursday

School Board

Reorganizing

It's a pretty good bet that LaVerne DeWard will be re-elected president of the Novi Board of Education Monday at the annual reorganization meeting.

At least that's the indication this newspaper has been given by board sources. Not so easily guessed is who will be the new vice-president. Bruce Simmons has retired from the board, leaving that post open for someone else. Trustee Ray Warren is the present secretary.

The 8 p.m. meeting will be held on Monday at the Novi Middle School.

by detectives from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

He is charged with the murder of Debbie Bingham who was found strangled to death in the trunk of a car in Highland Township shortly before dawn Wednesday.

Novi Patrolman Jack Grubb, who headed up the investigation of the Radtke-Keyes murder, told The Novi News Saturday that Corbin had been a prime suspect in the slayings of the 17-year old Novi High School girl and her 19-year old Northville boy friend.

"He was one of the four or five main suspects that we had in the case," Grubb reported. "And he was one of three suspects that we were never able to eliminate. We couldn't prove he did it, but we were never able to prove that he didn't do it, either. He's never been eliminated as a suspect."

Grubb noted, however, that no charges have ever been made against Corbin in conjunction with the Radtke-Keyes slayings.

Corbin was first considered as a suspect in the Radtke-Keyes murder after he was arrested for kidnapping a Howell woman from Van's Texaco Station in Wixom in April of 1971. When the body of Kathy Radtke was found in a northern Oakland County lake in May of that year, their investigation of Corbin was intensified.

"At that time we were receiving information from every police department in the state whenever there was any type of crime which was even vaguely similar to the Radtke-Keyes murders," Grubb reported. "We knew that Kathy Radtke had been kidnapped and since the Howell woman had also been kidnapped, we investigated Corbin pretty thoroughly."

Corbin was sentenced to two and one-half to five years in Jackson State Prison in July of 1971 after pleading guilty to a charge of attempted kidnapping, dropped from the original kidnapping charge.

He was paroled May 5 after serving 22 months of the sentence. The body of Debbie Bingham was found 39 days later.

Novi Detective Lieutenant Richard Faulkner said Saturday that the department will renew its investigation of Corbin as a suspect.

Mistake Corrected

It was incorrectly reported in the June 28 edition of The Novi News that Wixom Mayor Gilbert Willis defeated Wesley McAtee in the 1970 Wixom mayoral election.

Willis defeated Charles McCall in the 1970 Wixom mayoral race.

McAtee was elected Mayor of Wixom in 1962 and served until 1970 when he did not seek reelection. He was subsequently defeated by Lew Coy for Oakland County Commissioner in November of 1970.

Both McAtee and Willis have filed petitions for the upcoming 1973 Wixom mayoral race.

Council Gives OK To Zoning 'Swap'

What amounted to a swap of zoning designations was completed Wednesday as the Novi city council gave its approval to two separate rezoning requests for property in the Ten Mile-Haggerty Road area.

The zoning of a 10-acre parcel on Haggerty Road was changed from P.O. (professional offices) to R-2-A (multiple family residential) and the zoning of a similarly-sized parcel on Ten Mile Road was changed from R-2-A to P.O.

The action came at a joint special session of the city council and planning board.

In requesting the P.O. zoning for his property on the south side of Ten Mile Road, Victor Almas told the council and planning board that professional offices along Ten Mile would be more attractive than apartments.

"I have had a number of inquiries from doctors and dentists who would like to locate in that area," Almas reported.

Almas' rezoning request was supported by Edward Vettel, Novi's planning consultant from Vilcan-Leman.

"I have had a number of inquiries from doctors and dentists who would like to locate in that area," Almas reported.

Almas' rezoning request was supported by Edward Vettel, Novi's planning consultant from Vilcan-Leman.

Vettel called the requests zoning change a "logical land use" and noted that professional offices would serve as a good transition from busy Ten Mile Road traffic to the single family residential section to the south.

The planning board unanimously recommended that the council approve the rezoning and the council accepted the recommendation and granted the change to P.O. that Almas had requested.

More controversial was the rezoning request for the property on Haggerty Road.

Selwyn Smith, owner of the parcel located on the west side of Haggerty and south of Ten Mile, told the council and planning board that he was requesting the rezoning to R-2-A because he had been unable to attract any potential tenants for professional offices.

Planner Robert Bretz objected to the rezoning on that basis.

"Just because there is no market at this time for professional offices in that area, I don't think it's our duty to zone property so that it will sell at this moment. The property in question is directly across the street from industrial property and I think the professional offices will provide a good buffer between the industry to the east and the multiple family further to the west."

The planning board recommended that the council grant the zoning change, but the margin was only 4-3. Donald Gleason, Edward Leffler, William Weber, and John Roethel favored the rezoning, while James Cherfoll, Edward Dobek, and Bretz felt the

Last of Pair Dies at 104

William Tiffin, who was born just a few months after the inauguration of President Ulysses S. Grant, died Wednesday at the age of 104.

He may have been the oldest resident in Michigan.

The white-haired man who wore a perpetual smile died at the Whitehall Convalescent Home in Novi where he had been living since the death of his 94-year-old brother, Charles on May 17.

Dedicated bachelors both, the two brothers were inseparable.

They lived alone in a little white frame house at the southwest corner of Maple and Wixom road opposite the Wixom Cemetery where both are now buried.

Of the two brothers, Bill was the quieter. But he seemed friendlier. He loved to hear others talk, however, and he laughed often. The Detroit Tigers had no greater fan. He rarely missed listening to a play-by-play description of the games.

While Charles was the gardener and handyman, Bill was the cook. And, insisted his brother, Bill was a good cook whose dishes would set to envy any woman.

Until recent years he was doing his cooking on a woodburner that produced some especially fine chocolate cakes. The woodburner was replaced by a more modern stove.

He was born May 2, 1869 in Tillsbury, Ontario to William John and Grace (McCouly) Tiffin. A farmer most of his life he lived in Walled Lake, Novi and Grace for most of his 104 years.

Funeral services were conducted at the Casterline Funeral Home on Friday afternoon, with the Reverend Robert Warren, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Wixom.

BACK INTO PLACE—The tower on the old library building was hoisted back into place this past week as Northville Historical Society members stepped up efforts to restore the building now located on the city-owned historical site off Griswold Street on what formerly was Ford Motor Company property. Basements under both this building and an adjacent old house, which also was preserved, have been completed.

July Fourth Market Set for Mill Race

Sneak preview of the restoration work on the old Northville Library, antiques, craft sales and demonstrations will highlight the Fourth of July outdoor flea market sponsored by the Northville Historical Society.

The flea market begins immediately after Wednesday's parade and will be held on the grounds of the Mill Race Historical Village restoration site on Griswold Street across from the Ford Motor Company.

The sale and show will continue throughout the afternoon and into the early evening hours, historical society spokesmen report.

Northville Historical Society will be selling lemonade throughout the day and will also have a booth for persons who wish to join the society or make a donation towards the restoration of the buildings.

All proceeds from the sale will go towards restoration of the historical buildings.

On July Fourth, the old library building will be open for the public to see the progress the historical society has made towards restoring the library.

Demonstrating spinning will be the John Teeters; chair caning and rushing, Sue Mynatt; macrame and ceramics, Jane Kaake; weaving and macrame, Jessie Hudson; and weaving and painting, the Fees.

Antiques will be sold by dealers from Northville, Ypsilanti and Toledo, Ohio.

Mary Stern will have a booth of household usables and collectables, Agnes Hodge will be selling crafts and the Braggallas will be offering baked goods. Marie Bonamici will be selling jewelry and collectables.

Mrs. Bonamici, member of the historical society, promises, the outdoor flea market "will be fun for the whole family."

News Around Northville

The Northville Senior Citizens' annual picnic will be held on Tuesday, July 10, at the Scout-Recreation Building, 215 West Cady. Supper will be served at 6 p.m.

All senior citizens attending should bring a table service and a passing dish, other than meat. Meat will be furnished by the Recreation Department.

Kerr House for senior citizens at 211 West Cady will be open Monday through Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. each day.

According to Senior Citizen Club President Mrs. Richard Sharon, the house is being opened extended hours on a trial basis and senior citizens are invited to participate in the activities available at the Cady Street facility.

The days since May 19 have been busy ones for Mr. and Mrs. Elden Biery of Jamestown Circle.

In May, they departed for a trip to Scandinavia where they visited Norway, Sweden, Finland and Denmark. Mrs. Biery said it was spring then and "just beautiful."

Soon after they returned to Northville, it was time to pack and leave for Cocoa Beach, Florida, to attend the wedding of their son Don.

On June 18, Don was married to Judy Kunda of Cocoa Beach at the Riverside Presbyterian Church. A champagne reception at Surf's restaurant followed the ceremony.

Others attending from Michigan included the Daniel Bierys and the Lance Hahns. Lance served as Don's best man.

The F.R. Bourgons, former neighbors of the Elden Bierys, now of Sarasota, Florida, also attended the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Biery will live in Cocoa Beach.

Traffic safety experts are bracing themselves for what they expect to be one of the most dangerous July Fourth holidays on the highways.

More than three million motorists are expected to pour onto the state's highways during the 30-hour midweek holiday seeking a spot for relaxation "away from it all".

Last year when the Fourth fell on Tuesday a record 47 persons were killed on the highways.

Statistics show that when most of the deaths occur the victims are within 25 miles of home.

So if you're planning to drive, anywhere, this Fourth of July, drive carefully.

Better still, why not stay home and enjoy the fun and entertainment arranged for area families by the Northville Jaycees.

What's better than an old-fashioned Fourth at home, especially one that's both safe and fun-filled for your family?

The community of Northville lost one of its best friends and staunchest boosters with the passing of Con Langfield.

During the past 15 years or so Con has retired from active participation in local governmental affairs. So many newcomers were not familiar with the man who once served as village president and who found great joy in passing out ice cream bars to community youngsters following Memorial Day services at the cemetery.

Whenever Con went, and he had travelled the world, he would tell people about Northville, Michigan, his home town.

Con enjoyed great success as owner of Northville Laboratories, the company partially hidden behind his Fairbrook street home, where he made extracts, flavorings and ice cream toppings.

And you never toured Con's plant without getting several sample bottles, and for the women, some "Connie" perfume, a formula created by Con the chemist.

I'll never forget the first time I ever met Mr. Langfield. It was in the early fifties and I was working at The Plymouth Mail. My boss was Sterling Eaton, a close friend of Con's.

Con wanted to give Sterling a ride in his new Lincoln Continental, the first of the Mark series and the first purchased in this area.

I went along and was properly impressed.

For lack of anything else to say I asked the question that usually occurred to me when I considered the merits of a car.

"How many miles to the gallon do you get?", I asked Mr. Langfield.

"If I had to worry about that I couldn't afford the thing", responded Con.

He had a wonderful sense of humor and what he said made a lot of sense.

He was a soft touch for any contribution towards the welfare of Northville, especially if it involved youngsters or the Northville high school band.

Some interesting statistics are revealed in the informational booklet published by Northville's public school system for the benefit of bidders interested in the district's $10,000,000 bond issue.

For example: the district's biggest taxpayer is Highland Lakes subdivision, not yet fully developed, with a 1973-74 State Equalized Valuation of $9,543,000.

Next on the list of principal taxpayers is Consumers Power Company with an SEV of $5,959,697 followed by Kings Mill Townhouses at $5,208,612.

Others are: Northville Downs—$3,426,660 (remember some of the anti-unification forces spreading the rumor that the Downs' didn't pay property taxes?);

Ford Motor Company—$3,079,350;

Detroit Edison—$945,720;

Foundry Flask & Equipment Co.—$890,040;

Federal-Mogul Corp., Haller Division—$762,376.

Geographically speaking, the Northville public school system is composed of six different governmental units including the city and township of Northville plus parts of the city of Novi, the township of Novi, Lyon township and Salem township.

Northville township with an SEV in the Northville school district of $55,790,571 constitutes 49.46 per cent of the tax base, while the city of Northville with an SEV of $39,496,750 represents 35.01 per cent of the school district's total tax base.

Fun's Gone from Game

To the Editor:

What happened to the fun of the game of slow pitch soft ball?

I have a husband, son, son-in-law and brother playing in the Novi Rec. League.

Thursday night I saw a man from the Michigan Tractor throw a block, which he called a "slide", to break the catcher's leg. There wasn't any reason for it. He could have come in walking. But putting the catcher out would bring two other men in.

With smirking and laughing on their faces, he thought he did great. The only one who looked concerned was their pitcher. The rest stood gloating over their victory.

It must have been nice to go home and tell your family what a hero he was. Then we wonder why the children are poor sports and restless.

"Father can do it. So can I."

What happened to the fun of men playing a game? Does winning mean that much??

Men like him should be in a separate league. "Dog eat dog". The rest of the men should play for the fun of it, as they want.

If they still play. The other teams should refuse to play with them until they are off the team.

How one or two men can ruin a game. Ask the catcher. He was playing for the fun of it. Now he's on the side lines for the rest of the year.

Speaking for Myself

Should Women Go Braless?

DEANNA BROWN

YES . . .

The question of whether or not a woman "should" wear a bra exemplifies the discrimination against women in our society. A woman is expected to behave according to the rules of a male-dominated society that imposes restrictions from her role in life down to her underwear!

Women should certainly go braless if it is more comfortable for them. Many women are finding that bras are physically confining as well as culturally restricting. In some cases, brassieres do provide support, but the fact remains that bras most often are nothing more than a restriction placed upon women by our society.

Brassieres are a symbol of "graduation" into womanhood and the anxiety of adolescence is increased by an over-emphasis on breast development as a representation of femininity. Hence, the "training" bra! In our society girls are taught to wear a bra because it "looks better" or because it is immodest not to wear one.

Actually, many bras are designed to enhance the size and shape of the breast and presumably, to draw attention to the breasts. Examples of these are the padded, rocket, and push-up style bras. In these cases, I feel it is immodest to wear a bra.

A woman's worth should not be measured by the size or shape of her bustline.

Melissa A. Johnson
Brighton

NO . . .

I guess I'm not a fully liberated woman. To me, being fully underclothed is a must and I believe any decent woman will agree.

To my way of thinking, women who go braless are either unsure of themselves or are after something.

Being unsure of one's self and flaunting yourself about in some of today's scanty coverups could be most dangerous. A pretty young girl going braless is only asking for trouble. Today, people hurt others in so many ways and taking advantage is just one of them.

I also believe women who go braless are hurting themselves physically. Going braless tends to weaken the muscle tissue and create a sagging appearance later in life.

The correct bra for any woman, large or small, can only help her appearance in the way she wears her clothes. Most clothes are made to be worn over undergarments, and if these are not worn, dresses, blouses and sweaters can hang wrong and lead to a sloppy appearance.

Bubbling Batter

By JACK W. HOFFMAN

"It's always the same...they start with the glue and then get hooked on the hard stuff," lamented Novi's Number One Narc, Bob Starnes.

The police officer had reference to the addict that's been pilfering confiscated marihuana right out from under the noses of department detectives.

"If I catch the dirty rat I'll shoot him," promised Detective Richard Faulkner, who was still spitting fire over the destruction of a pair of marihuana plants detectives had been nurturing in their mobile headquarters back behind the city hall.

"We'd grown fond of those plants," he said.

Starnes was upset, too, but he was a little more civil:

"I think he oughta get due process," said Starnes, who ticked off these charges that will face the suspect if he's ever caught:

Use and addiction, breaking and entering, littering, and malicious destruction of property.

Probably worse than even these offenses was the fact that the guy had the audacity to prance across the fingerprint ink pad and leave his prints all over the place thus virtually daring detectives to catch him.

Upon examination, police concluded they were really dealing with a rat—the four-legged variety.

"Those plants were just getting a good start," Faulkner explained. "Then one morning we come in here and one of them is gone. I mean there wasn't much left but a pot of dirt. Next thing you know the other one, a three-foot high beauty, had been nibbled right down to the stem."

One of the plants, added Starnes, had become quite a conversation piece. "We got it from the new restaurant on Grand River."

"A customer gave a little plant to one of the waitresses as a gift. So they put it in the window and it started growing. Then along comes another customer who tells 'em they've got a marihuana plant growing in their window. They called us and we took it."

Once police uncovered the rat's identity, they investigated further and found a couple of glue pots had been siphoned and a used Ace bandage left behind.

"I'll tell you one thing for sure," observed Starnes, "walking around city hall someplace is one mighty high rat."

And then someone else remembered: "Use to be a Tom cat that walked by our place about 10 every morning. Come to think of it I haven't seen head nor tail of that cat lately."

"Do you suppose he's hooked, too?"

"Naw, my hunch is the Tom was the supplier and the dirty rat knocked him off."

Climaxing the day's activities, of course, will be the fireworks. The launching pad will be on the north side of Eight Mile Road opposite the high school, according to Chairman Tom Waltz. Spectators are urged to park in the high school parking lot and view displays from the south side of Eight Mile Road. To help finance these activities, community business firms and government agencies have "generously contributed," Jaycees pointed out. A drawing is planned, with the choice of a $500 Savings Bond, a color television set, or a four-day trip for two to Las Vegas given the winner.

Vallier won few of his "buy at home" arguments, however, and in fact he himself ended up recommending an out-of-district purchase from the firm he faulted for tax depreciation write-offs. Appointment of an auditor was tabled; the general counsel appointment went again to Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone of Detroit; Butzel, Long, Gust, Klein and VanZile of Detroit was reappointed labor relations counsel; the typewriter servicing contract went to M & M Typewriter Service of Detroit; sale of 21 used typewriters also went to M & M; and an asphalt contract went to Apollo Asphalt Company of Livonia. Vallier, who made an in-depth study of the college's leasing arrangement with Honeywell, Inc. for a computer system, strongly recommended extension of the lease for three years based on the company's past performance. Ironically, the trustee charged the same firm with unwarranted tax write-offs on its equipment. He told fellow board members he has informed tax officials of his discovery and urged them to make a sweeping investigation of the company's equipment depreciation practices. Honeywell is an out-of-district firm. As the unanimous vote was posted Trustee Erwin Brown, with whom Vallier had tangled over college purchasing practices, reminded him that Burroughs Corporation has a plant in Plymouth and also deals in computers. College administrators came under Vallier's verbal gun when sale of used typewriters to M & M came up for a vote. "I don't like the idea of one bid," he declared, indicating his displeasure when administrators (College President Nelson Grote and Vice-President W. K.

Lindner) were unable to remember names of other bidders from whom quotations were received. Lindner, in charge of business affairs, assured Vallier that he and other staffers are prepared to emphasize local purchasing if that were the official position of the board. But he reminded the trustee that the current board policy, which was produced for board inspection, does not reflect such a position.

Stolen Van Recovered in Novi

In Novi

A truck stolen out of Taylor on June 24 was recovered in Novi the following day. According to reports, thieves removed an estimated $30,000 to $40,000 worth of merchandise from the vehicle before abandoning it. Police on routine patrol observed the van parked on the shoulder of 12 Mile Road and requested a stolen car check. The check revealed that the truck, owned by the Monroe-Matic company, had been stolen from Taylor the preceding day. Stolen merchandise included shock absorbers and various automotive parts.

Police also recovered a car stolen out of Ingham County last week. The car had been stripped of its parts and left in a cornfield near Eight Mile and Garfield Road where it was subsequently set on fire. While responding to the fire call, police ran a stolen car check and discovered the vehicle had been stolen from a Okemos woman approximately six hours earlier.

A quantity of carpeting was stolen from a home under construction in the Stonehenge subdivision last week. Project foreman called police to the site of the alleged theft on June 20 at 8:45 a.m. Only the carpeting left in the living room had been taken, police noted. Value of the stolen carpeting is undetermined.

In Wixom

Police are looking for a man who allegedly walked off with 72 eight-track stereo tapes from the Calico Kitchen Restaurant last Friday. Value of the stolen tapes is $450. The restaurant manager told police that he was waiting on a couple at the cashier's desk while another man waited in line. The couple requested a bag of ice and the manager left the desk to fulfill their request. When he returned he observed that the man standing in line and the tapes, which were kept in a box next to the desk, were missing. The couple told him that the man had picked up the box and walked out the door, the manager told investigating officers. Police are checking out several leads in the case.

Eight-track stereo tapes were also the object of a theft which occurred Saturday, June 16. A Wixom resident told police he had parked his car next to his home at 29283 Beck Road late Friday night. When he returned to the vehicle at noon Saturday he discovered that the vent window on the passenger's side broken out and 23 eight-track stereo tapes missing. The thief also removed the stereo tape player from the car.

A sailboat valued at $500 is believed to have been stolen from the Finn Camp sometime between June 20 and 24. James Robert Lawson of Detroit told officers that he beached his ten foot sail boat at Sun Lake on Wednesday, June 20. When he returned Sunday morning the boat was missing. The man notified police after checking the lake to see if the boat had drifted off.

injured at 3:25 p.m. last Tuesday when he was blown to the ground by a gust of wind. According to township police reports, the man said he had just stepped from the roof of a home at 18186 Old Bedford onto scaffolding when the wind blew him and the scaffolding to the ground. The unidentified man was taken to St. Mary hospital for treatment of lower back injuries.

A 5:25 p.m., lightning hit a home at 41555 Sunnysdale. When police arrived on the scene, smoke was coming out of the attic vent. A large tree in the rear yard of the home was also downed by lightning and high winds. The fire department was called to extinguish the house fire. No injuries were reported.

Downed trees and a transformer fire were reported at 19510 Maxwell at 4:15 p.m.

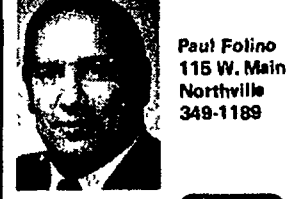

Police are investigating the theft of a boat motor and gas tank stolen from 48881 West Seven Mile Road. The theft took place sometime Wednesday. The 25-horsepower blue Evinrude was cut off of the boat, police said, and stolen along with a 10-gallon gas tank.

A car was severely damaged after a tree limb fell on top of it during Tuesday's storm. Reported to police shortly after 4 p.m., the tree limb damaged the windshield, roof, hood, right side and trunk of the auto. The incident occurred while the car was parked at the entrance to the St. Lawrence Barn area.

Nearly $400 in clothes and jewelry lost on Center Street by a Livonia man late Thursday night was recovered by a Northville woman and turned over to city police.

The man reported to police he placed the suitcase on top of his car while he unlocked the vehicle and then drove off without putting the suitcase in the car. When he arrived home, he realized the bag was missing. Shortly after he reported the missing suitcase, it was turned over to police after being found by a Northville resident.

NELSON SCHRADER

For an interesting spatterdash finish on a floor, for example the playroom, the equipment you need is very simple. First, paint the floor a solid color using black, dark green, or blue. When the paint is thoroughly dry, dip a paintbrush into red, white, yellow, chartreuse, or whatever color paint you choose. Hold a heavy stick in a horizontal position with your other hand, and with a firm, quick motion strike the handle of the brush against the stick. This will cause the drops of paint to fly off the brush and land on the floor in a series of colorful dots. One other hint: be sure you do the job while backing toward the door.

Planners Table Flood Plain Fill

Request from Arthur Jahn for permission to fill .8 acre of land within the flood plain north of his A&W Drive-In was referred to Northville township planning and engineering consultants for study.

The action was taken by the township planning commission at its meeting last week Tuesday.

Jahn is seeking to fill the land on the east side of Northville Road between the existing drive-in north to the site of his proposed bar and lounge.

Attorney for Jahn, Thomas Healy, said a miniature golf course would be constructed on top of the fill.

Township attorney Donald Morgan explained that approximately two years ago the township gained a judgment against Jahn filling the flood plain.

In March, 1972, the Department of Natural Resources granted Jahn a two-year permit to fill the flood plain, provided the judgment obtained by the township was lifted by township action.

Healy said Jahn "wants approval to proceed in accordance with the permit" from the DNR.

He added that it "would facilitate matters economically if he (Jahn) could fill at the same time as he is building the bar and lounge."

Township engineering consultant William Mosher said that the "fill would jeopardize the backwater storage which helps minimize flooding in the area."

Both consultants are expected to report back to the township planners on their study of the property at the commission's July 31 meeting.

Planners also recommended approval to the township board of levying a charge for lot and land splits which come before the planning commission.

Currently, there is charge made for splitting lots.

Recommended charges include a flat fee of $50 plus any additional costs charged by the planning and engineering consultants for reviewing of the proposed lot or land splits.

Lot and land splits affected are only those which come before the planning commission.

Splits which currently are handled by the supervisor (division of one parcel into two) or fall under the subdivision act (division of one parcel into five or more resulting lots).

Township Sets Dates To Open Bids

Opening of bids for construction of two water main extensions and a sanitary sewer extension have been set by Northville township.

On Tuesday, July 10, bids will be opened for construction of 455 feet of water main along Six Mile Road. The 16-inch water main will serve Revival Tabernacle Church located just east of Northville Commons.

Estimated cost of the project is $50,000.

Tuesday, July 17, bids will be opened for 470 feet of 12-inch water main and 633 feet of eight-inch sanitary sewer.

Both the water and sewer extension will serve the Tack Room, presently under construction on Seven Mile Road across from Northville State Hospital.

Estimated cost of the sanitary sewer extension is placed at $16,400, while the water extension along Seven Mile is pegged at $10,000.

Bids will be opened at 11 a.m. both Tuesdays in Northville township offices, 301 West Main Street.

Construction of all three extensions is expected to begin yet this summer with completion scheduled for the fall.

In a related matter, the township planning commission gave its approval to a site plan submitted by Thomas Sechler for the Tack Room.

In Northville Commons

Seek New Address

A move is underway in Northville Commons to change the mailing address for the subdivision from Plymouth to Northville.

Beginning July 9, a petition will be circulated among homeowners asking them to approve the change.

Provided a majority of the families sign the petition, the change from the Plymouth to Northville mailing address could take place by the end of the summer.

According to Northville Postmaster John Steimel, the petition would be submitted to the district postal manager for his consideration and approval.

"Normally if the public wants the change, it is approved by the district manager," Steimel said. "The process of approval takes about 30 days."

Initiating the petition drive are three residents of Northville Commons which is located in the Six Mile - Bradner Road area. They are Tom Murphy of 42135 Westmeath Court, Ron Housman of 42115 Westmeath Court and Jim Roth of 41752 Camden Court.

Currently, the men plan to circulate the petition only among the 170 families in Northville Commons. However, if the drive is successful, it may be extended into the Northville Colony area south of the Commons.

According to Mrs. Murphy, a lot of residents say they would prefer having their address changed to Northville "but no one ever did anything about it before."

She explained that the Plymouth mailing address "is very confusing. You tell people you live in Northville township and then give them your Plymouth address."

"The longer we wait (to change the address) the harder it will be," Murphy concluded.

for all three of the new schools have been approved by the state department of education and that he has two opinions from attorneys general which note that "school districts need not abide by local ordinances."

Planners agreed to send a letter to school officials urging them in the future to submit site plans for new schools in advance to the planning commission for review by township consultants.

Commissioners also indicated they hope the good relationship between the township and school district will continue.

PIPE-SMOKING Novi Mayor Joe Crupi might not have scored as well as the Wixom mayor, but sartorially speaking he was every bit as sharp. Crupi tied for third in the second flight with two others. Some 47 golfers competed despite a steady morning drizzle out of a field of 54 entries. Bob O' Link Owner-Pro Midge Cova and his assistant, Dave Zielinski had the course in good shape for the 18-hole tourney. All golfers found the short front nine relatively easy, but the back nine proved a very tough test. (See more pictures on page 11-B.)

MOST NATTILY-DRESSED golfer at Friday's Sliger Publications Golf Tournament at Bob O' Link was Mayor Gib Willis of Wixom. Looking like Gene Sarazen, the Mayor proved he could hit the ball, too. He shot a nifty 83 playing with Bill Sliger and Bill McAllister both of Northville. Rain fell most of the morning making the soggy course play long and tough. But all the contestants agreed that while it might be too wet to work in the yard, it wasn't too wet to play golf.

COVER-UP—This golfer came prepared with umbrella and ball retriever.

FIRST-OFF—Northville's Vern LaVassaur was the first to tee-off in the morning. He shot a fine 76, but a score-card error caused his disqualification (see sports page).

SMILING COUNCILMAN—Rain didn't bother Paul Folino, a member of Northville's city council. He tied for first in the second flight with the unlikely score of 42-62—104.

STARTING TIME—Jim Landquist of Novi (right) was in the first foursome along with LaVassaur, Mike Hlohenic and Leonard Parsons. He fired the best front nine of the day, a 35. But disaster struck on the back nine where he carded a fat 50 for a round of 85.

Fertilizer Meal

Feed Your Lawns!

"All lawns need fertilizer," says Harold Davidson,

Michigan State University horticulturist. "If you don't believe it, spread some on a small patch and wait to see the results."

Davidson recommends one of three fertilization programs to keep your lawn looking green and healthy all summer.

One plan — use a commercial lawn food. Davidson suggests following the manufacturer's directions to the letter. "This fertilizer should be applied early in the spring," he notes, "and repeated three or four times during the year. The lawn should be watered thoroughly after each application."

If you've been using a complete fertilizer for the past three to five years, you will probably need to add only nitrogen to your lawn, according to Davidson. He advises using a pound of nitrogen for every 1,000 square feet of lawn in the spring before the grass turns green, repeating the process early in July and again in early September. "Water each 1,000 square feet area separately immediately after each application or the grass will be burned," he warns. Don't apply nitrogen to damp turf.

A ureafoam fertilization program can also be used after a few years of using a complete fertilizer, points out Davidson. This method is somewhat more expensive than the others, but it saves time and labor.

One application of Ureafoam (five pounds per 1,000 square feet of Kentucky bluegrass; 10 pounds for the same area of Merion bluegrass) is enough for the whole season.

This could result in scalded or "sunburned" fruit.

Also, when the tomato plant is staked the fruit production is decreased because one root system has to support the entire plant. If the plant is allowed to grow on the ground, suckers will often root and supply additional nutrients and moisture to the plant and its fruits.

"Research has proved that unstaked tomato plants will supply as much as 10 pounds more fruit per plant than staked plants," says Draheim.

Staking May Sunburn Fruit

"The next time you consider staking tomatoes, think about the possibility of having fruit that is smaller and scalded," says Gerald E. Draheim, Wayne County extension horticulturist.

Many urban gardeners stake tomatoes because they want to get more plants per square foot. Although the practice does save space, Draheim points out that some problems may arise.

Staked tomatoes lose their bottom foliage and sometimes the foliage around the fruit.

Says Water Thoroughly

Watering is essential to growing vegetables successfully, but many home gardeners are unsure about the proper way to do the job. Sprinkling a garden seems easy, but how much water should you use? And how often should the job be done?

Michigan State University horticulturist J. Lee Taylor says that it's better to water your garden thoroughly about once a week during dry periods than it is to water it lightly more often.

"Add enough water to thoroughly moisten the soil to a depth of at least six inches," Taylor suggests. Light waterings don't supply enough moisture for the roots to develop deeply.

GARDEN LILIES

Time was when lilies were considered difficult to grow and many varieties were virus-infected. The last 25 years of hybridization have resulted in great changes so that today disease-free lilies have fewer requirements and much greater tolerance.

Most gardens can successfully grow new types, particularly the hybrids of magnificent beauty. In other years, poorly grown imported stock caused many failures. This was due to shipping long distances which led to weakness, diseases and lesser tolerance to our garden conditions.

Any soil that will accommodate vegetables, annuals and perennials is good for lilies. The ideal soil for most varieties is a well-drained loam, rich in humus and well-aerated. Drainage is probably the most important requirement. Plants will respond to good soil preparation.

Lilies like good air at the roots and for that reason the choice of a site that has slightly sloping ground is best. Plant especially among low growing shrubs or low shrubby perennials. This will permit greater moisture for the roots and keep the soil from baking. Avoid any locations where bulbs have not done well before. Also keep clear of heavy shade, areas open to strong winds or places with exposure to reflected heat, such as walls and fences.

Depth of planting is a variable factor, although most varieties are set between five to six inches deep. In that event, spade down well to a depth of twelve to fourteen inches, the deeper the better. The exception is the Madonna Lily which only needs a covering of one inch of soil. A general rule is to place bulbs in the ground at three times their own depth and cover with soil liberally mixed with sand. They can be set somewhat shallower in heavy soils and deeper in light, sandy soils, always straight up in planting position.

After planting, very little care is required during the growing season. Well-drained soil rich in humus will only need watering if the season is unusually dry. More moisture should be applied at flowering time. Mulches are also extremely helpful to keep the soil temperature more even, as well as to conserve moisture. There are various suitable materials for mulching but peat moss, clean well-rotted manure and leaf-mold are the best.

If lilies are doing well in a location, leave them undisturbed for a number of years. It is good policy to dig them up and separate the clumps every three or four years since the bulbs do multiply underground. If it is necessary to move the plantings, do so if possible at the time they have blossomed and before the stems die down.

Your local dealer can advise you about selection of varieties for particular uses. For example, some lilies are more adaptable for the rock garden. Other drought-resistant types are ideal for a dry, sunny location. Still others are used for naturalizing in woodland.

Most varieties are excellent for the herbaceous border. Finally, many lilies are suited for cut flowers in the home.

If you are still skeptical, because of previous failures with older lilies, then arrange for a trial planting. You have nothing to lose.

How to Repel Moles?

Get Rid of Grubs

Are moles making a mess of your lawn? The best way to get rid of them is to eliminate their food source, according to John Newman, research technician at MSU's Department of Entomology. "Moles use grubs for food," says Newman, "If you get rid of the grubs, you'll get rid of the moles."

grubs," Newman continues, "but once you do, you'll eliminate the resident population of moles."

Baiting and trapping are not generally recommended for killing moles, but there are some other methods of control.

"Mothballs placed deep within the tunnels will repel moles," says Newman. "And a rotating pinwheel placed at the entrance to a tunnel will also repel them, because their ears are sensitive to the constant vibrations."

Put 'Em Outdoors

A summer in the great outdoors can give your house plants a lift, according to horticulturists at Michigan State University. These plants can be kept on porches or terraces or used in garden borders.

Not all house plants will thrive outside. African violets aren't hardy enough to stand the natural environment.

Here are some suggestions for handling house plants that like the outdoors:

—Wait until there is no chance of frost before moving your plants.

—Flowering plants usually do best in a semi-shaded spot. Make sure they're protected from the wind.

—Sink pots to the rim. Set them on gravel or sand to ensure good drainage.

—Lift the pots about once a month to keep the roots from growing down through the drainage holes.

—Dig the pots up before the first fall frost. Repot the plants if necessary.

—Don't return to the house plants that have become diseased or infested by insects.

green survival
it begins with you

The environmental crisis we face is so critical and so overwhelmingly immense in scope that Americans have good cause to stand back helplessly and wonder what on earth they can do as individuals to help.

One answer is for each of us to look upon our homes and businesses as "micro-environments" and begin there. It's true! The individual homeowner or businessman can do much to purify the air, abate noise, stabilize soil and clarify water.

Bill Gives Juveniles Second Chance

LANSING—Court records of juveniles could be cleared away if the young person involved keeps out of trouble for five years after a conviction and if a bill in legislature becomes law.

Sponsored by Robert Richardson (R-Saginaw) and Daniel S. Cooper (D-Southfield), the bill passed the Senate without negative vote. It moved to the House Judiciary Committee where indications are it will become law.

The idea is that a young person who gets in trouble should not have to carry the stigma of the incident his entire life if he shows he can get along in society. The five year period seems ample time for him to demonstrate that he deserves to have the record expunged and be free from the problems which can result from a court record even though it is years old.

Similar legislation has been passed for older people, and Sen. Richardson argues firmly that juveniles are even more entitled to a second chance. If the bill passes the House, they will have it.

A BI-PARTISAN effort to insure honesty and competence on the part of automobile repairmen in Michigan has been launched in the Legislature.

Almost identical legislation is being pushed in the House and Senate respectively by Rep. Earl Nelson, D-Lansing, and Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo.

The bills hope to serve two purposes. One is to guarantee good, honest work on automobiles. The second is to build more confidence in auto repairmen among the general public.

AUTOMOBILES and engines have become so complicated that only a very tiny percentage of the population has understanding and equipment needed to repair their own.

This means that most people are at the complete mercy of the mechanic.

This lack of understanding breeds suspicion, even where there is no grounds for it, for there are many honest repairmen.

These goals could be accomplished if laws are adopted: —license all auto mechanics and repair shops in the state.

—require a written cost estimate for all repair work before the car owner signs the mechanics lien.

—prohibit charging a higher price than the written estimate without express permission of the car owner.

—require the mechanic to return replaced parts at the request of the customer.

—require car owners to receive all documents they sign when they sign them.

IT WOULD also be harder for the legitimate repairman to operate, and the dishonest ones would become more evasive.

Those who perform minor work such as oil changes, lubrication and the changing of tires would be exempt from the licensing.

Auto repair shops would pay a $250 license fee, mechanics would pay $100 a year for their license and apprentices would pay $50. Revenue from the fees would pay the cost of administering the program, which would be run by the department of state.

Nelson says there is no doubt many repair shops and mechanics are doing an honest and competent job of serving the public. But he says the legislation is needed to protect consumers from those who are not.

"We cannot sit back and wait until auto repair shops voluntarily begin the practices outlined in these bills," he says. "We had hoped the industry would police itself, but obviously this hasn't happened."

THE BILLS are complicated and far reaching enough that it's doubtful any action will come before this fall.

If and when it comes, it will affect every person who drives a car in Michigan.

It might not mean cheaper repairs for a car, but it would mean the hapless owner would be more sure the work done on it was both necessary and competently done. That isn't too bad in itself.

The envy of outdoor lovers, the Avery family live in the upper peninsula where they love their life and the country.

This appreciation has been turned into two books with father Hoyt Avery and sons, Ron and Tom as well as Hoyt's father, Norton, all putting together some outstanding color pictures of scenic places and things in Michigan's northern peninsula.

The newer title is "Copper Country - God's Country," a presentation of 58 color illustrations with descriptive material. Another title, "Slow Me Down, Lord!" presents similar scenes and ideas.

Careers with Horses (parts reprinted from Horsemen's Yankee Pedlar.) Most people can list a few jobs that would be called a career in horses. Instructors, trainers, jockeys, and farm managers and many more that most people are familiar with.

A new area of combining horse skill into a meaningful livelihood is in the expanding world of therapy. Juvenile delinquents benefit from experience with animals. Mentally retarded and mentally disturbed patients respond dramatically to work with horses and dogs. The now world famous success of Mary Wolverton and her Morgan stallions in rehabilitation of Viet Nam amputees into working cowboys, competing trail riders and showmen has sparked new interest in horse therapy all over the world.

There are schools of therapy springing up all across the country working with victims of polio, meningitis, cerebral palsy and accidents. Anyone who has a yearning to help others, learn some new skills and utilize their love of horses has this exciting new field to explore.

Horses and the arts is also another growing area. Artists who can capture the likeness of a horse, have always enjoyed a place in society.

Babson Report

Fertilizer Sales Shattering Records

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass. The current heavy demand for fertilizers in both domestic and foreign markets has created substantial shortages in many sectors. Furthermore, even where supplies are available, shipments are being hampered by a serious dearth of railroad hopper cars as well as a shortage of fuel.

Despite heavy rains, flooding, transportation difficulties, and the fuel insufficiencies, fertilizer sales are expected to shatter all previous records during the present crop year. In fact, consumption of some 8 percent to 10 percent more fertilizer is anticipated.

As a result of the powerful demand, shipments of most types are far in excess of production, thereby pushing inventories down to new low levels. Paced by larger crop plantings and heavy export orders, 1973 should be a banner year. Fertilizer statistics for calendar 1971 and 1972 showed a healthy advance in sales and a marked rise in net income.

BOTH RESEARCH and development and general operating costs declined during those years while profit margins increased. Producers, however, are still mindful of the deep deficits in 1968 and 1969, and are seeking further gains before building new capacity. Agricultural exports in fiscal 1973 (ending June 30th) will total about $11.1 billion while imports are estimated at close to $6.8 billion. Obviously this is one of the few sectors of the economy where America enjoys a trade surplus.

Although these results were aided by the $1 billion of grain shipped to Russia, our exports of farm products have been steadily rising over the past few years.

THE AMERICAN farm business is the world's leader in production of food and, now that the U. S. Government has cut farm program subsidies and provided for the release of some 40 million acres, further notable increases in exports should follow as a consequence of the potential step-up in farm output.

In particular, expansion is anticipated for such basic crops as corn, soybeans, and wheat.

In summary, the 1980 forecast of U. S. exports amounting to $18 billion and imports of some $9 billion may appear to be overly optimistic, but the experts are steadfast in pointing out the potential of agribusiness and its immense importance to our balance of trade. Fertilizers as well as other agricultural chemicals and equipment will be required in considerably greater volume.

WHILE IT IS TRUE that nitrogen, phosphate, and potash nutrients (the principal fertilizer products) are sold and applied both individually and in combination, mixed or multinutrient fertilizers still account for the bulk of sales.

Nevertheless, it should be noted that the direct-application materials are growing more rapidly than the mixtures owing to the fact that they can be applied separately as needed rather than once a year. The most rapidly growing products of all are the ammonium phosphates.

Bulk blending by the retail distributor is gaining in importance as are the liquid mixtures because of the greater ease in handling and the savings in price.

THE RESEARCH Department of Babson's Reports feels that the principal investment vehicles for participation in this revitalized industry are the common stocks of International Minerals & Chemical, the world's largest producer of fertilizers, and Monsanto Company, a diversified chemical manufacturer that is also the biggest supplier of crop-protection chemicals and a leader in herbicides. The former is speculative grade, the latter conservative; both are traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Other major producers of fertilizers among chemical firms are Allied Chemical, W. R. Grace, Freeport Minerals, Stauffer Chemical, American Cyanamid, and Texasgulf. There are still several large oil companies in fertilizers, as well as Borden and U.S. Steel.

On Really Getting High

REVEREND ROBERT SHOAF
GREEN OAK FREE METHODIST CHURCH

You'll never get higher than Heaven! If you never get that high, it'll be your eternal catastrophe. Without apology, Christ unequivocally insists that faith in Him is your personal and only way of ever getting that high. And, for no other reason came He into the world; to save, not to condemn.

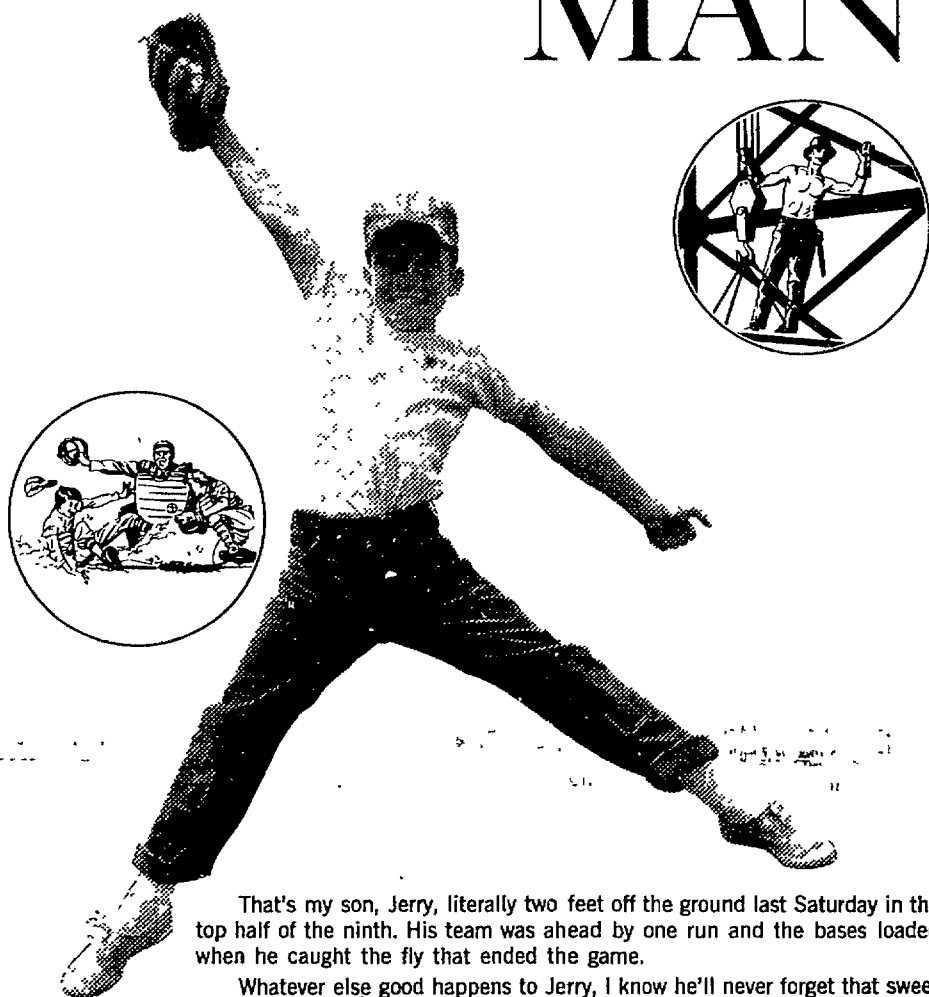

Is Christ a liar? All men, yes, Christ never. Christ, then, as He so clearly says is the Son of the Living God, the only one with the authority and power to save man's immortal spirit and provide it with an everlasting existence in heaven on high.

At this point, two alternatives are available to you: to agree or to disagree. If you agree, take action as quickly as you can so that you may be reconciled to the God, who, from the beginning, has sought to draw men - to Him. Express your sorrow for failing to do right, ask Him to forgive you, believe that His Son's death and resurrection will take you to heaven, and begin a life of service to Him motivated by love and appreciation.

If you disagree, you, of course need do nothing. As it has always done, time will surely prove the point. Only it is so pitiful to see lives with fantastic potential for happiness and fulfillment spent in a lifetime of futility, frustration, and perplexity. And, it is saddening to know these benighted souls will spend eternity as they have spent their earthly residence: with great light surrounding them, but never seeing it. Christ is the light of the world!

BOY---then MAN

That's my son, Jerry, literally two feet off the ground last Saturday in the top half of the ninth. His team was ahead by one run and the bases loaded when he caught the fly that ended the game.

Whatever else good happens to Jerry, I know he'll never forget that sweet thrill of victory.

Years from now, when faced with a tough situation, that memory could be the inspiration for another triumph. The things that happen to a boy do shape the man.

That's why I've always taken Jerry to our church. I want the smell of candles on the altar, the blend of voice and heart in hymn and litany, to be a part of his life. I want for him the joy that comes from understanding God.

My father did the same for me.

How about you?

Death Haunts Highways

This year's midweek Fourth of July holiday could well be the most dangerous of any in recent history with an estimated 3.2 million motorists expected to drive 282.5 million miles over the 30-hour period, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Despite the shortness of this holiday, a combination of many motorists driving near home and others rushing to resort spots could cause traffic fatalities to soar this July Fourth," said Fred Rehm, Auto Club general manager.

"The first danger—near-home driving—is confirmed by State Police statistics which show that roughly two out of every three fatal accidents over the last five years have occurred within 25 miles of the victims' homes," Rehm said.

He noted that with the average motorist expected to drive only about 90 miles during the July Fourth holiday, a potentially lethal situation could develop since many drivers tend to be more relaxed and less conscious of traffic safety when traveling in familiar surroundings.

"Secondly, we anticipate many motorists taking their families to a resort or camping area the weekend before the Fourth and then returning to work that Monday and Tuesday," Rehm explained. "Tuesday night they will set out to rejoin their families for the Fourth, and possibly they will be less alert than they should be due to work fatigue and eagerness to reach their destination."

Rehm pointed out that this dangerous after-work rush situation is considered by Auto Club as a main reason why last year, when July Fourth fell on a Tuesday, highway deaths reached a record 47 during the 102-hour holiday period.

This year's July Fourth holiday officially begins at 6 p.m. Tuesday, July 3, and ends midnight Wednesday, July 4. Extremely heavy traffic volumes are not expected, as usual, over this holiday due to its short duration. Peak travel times will probably be in the morning and from late afternoon to early evening on Wednesday.

"Since many persons will probably be taking extra time off from work either before or after the Fourth, we do expect higher than normal traffic volumes over a 10-day period from Friday, June 29, to Sunday, July 8," Rehm said.

He emphasized that fears of possible gas shortages should not deter any motorist from traveling during the July Fourth holiday.

"While there are several service stations that are reducing their opening hours or limiting purchases to conserve fuel supplies, we are not aware of any motorist being stranded as result of not finding gas," Rehm said.

Rehm added that false alarm over gas shortages has been cited as a main cause behind an estimated 10 percent drop in tourism in the Upper Peninsula, as well as a five percent decrease in Mackinac Bridge crossing during the first two weeks in June.

"This is an unfortunate situation," he noted, "because of all the sections of the state, the Upper Peninsula is probably in the best shape fuel-wise. Many U.P. stations are operating with an excess of gasoline due to this summer's decline in tourism."

Rehm said motorists could minimize any inconveniences in finding gas this July Fourth by taking these two precautions: stop for gas when fuel tanks are half empty, and fill tanks during daylight hours to avoid searching for an open station at night. In terms of highway safety, Auto Club notes that these four factors could help reduce traffic deaths over the 30-hour July Fourth holiday:

1. An estimated 15 to 20 percent more State Police officers will be on duty than on a normal Tuesday and Wednesday. Police will concentrate on patrolling high-accident areas and easing traffic tie-ups.
2. Auto Club's "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" Holiday News Service will broadcast highway information hourly from 3 p.m. Tuesday to 11 p.m. Wednesday to more than 130 Michigan radio and TV stations. Reports will include traffic conditions, congested areas to avoid, available motel and camping space, the gasoline supply situation and safety tips to keep drivers alert.
3. Motorists are urged to concentrate on safe driving, especially by wearing their safety belts at all times and by avoiding alcohol. By taking these two latter precautions, highway travelers could help cut fatal accidents by more than 50 percent, Auto Club estimates.
4. REACT and other civic groups will be providing free coffee and safety information for holiday travelers at seven freeway rest areas. The locations are:
 - Eastbound I-94, south of Battle Creek, near Helmer Road, from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. July 3-4 and from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. July 4-5.
 - Eastbound I-94, west of Jackson near the Deering exit, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. July 4.
 - I-94 in Port Huron, Water Street exit, all day July 4.
 - Northbound US-131, south of Kalamazoo near Portage, from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on June 30 and July 1 and 4.
 - US-131, north of Paris, Manchester Roadside Park, all day July 3-4.
 - Eastbound I-96, west of Lansing near Grand Ledge exit, from 4 p.m. to 3 a.m. June 29 and from noon to midnight July 3-4.
 - Westbound I-96, southeast of Lansing near Okemos exit, from 4 p.m. to 3 a.m. June 29 and from noon to midnight July 3-4.

As over the Memorial Day weekend, the state's worst traffic trouble spot this July Fourth will probably be on I-75 around Flint due to a 21-mile-long road-widening project between the I-75-US-23 merging point and Birch Run.

While work in that area is suspended on weekends and will be stopped from 2 p.m., Tuesday, July 3, to Thursday morning, July 5, traffic at peak travel times is expected to slow down considerably around Flint because of the close proximity of construction equipment and ditches.

Shippers using the Zilwaukee Bridge, which carries I-75 over the Saginaw River near Saginaw, have agreed to curtail bridge use during peak travel times from Friday, June 29, to Sunday, July 8. Bridge opening will be eliminated on July 3 from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. and from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. on July 4.

As usual, the State Highway Department has ordered all road construction stopped throughout the state from 5 p.m. Tuesday, July 3, to Thursday morning, July 5.

Humans 'Accidental' Victims

'Swimmers Itch' is Spreading

It's summer in Michigan and that means multitudes are enjoying this state's bounty of fresh water. Unfortunately, some of those hitting the water are coming out with more than they went in with. They come out with that painful, red rash popularly known as "swimmer's itch."

Noting that swimmer's itch is similar to—and often mistaken for—skin eruptions due to poison ivy, chiggers, or mosquitoes, Dr. Harvey D. Blankespoor, a biologist in The University of Michigan Museum of Zoology, says this problem that has been ruining summer vacations for decades appears to be worsening.

"This disease used to be thought of as something restricted to the remote waters of northern Michigan," says Blankespoor, "but research conducted recently by a U-M doctoral student indicates it has been spreading steadily southward."

Based on information compiled by the Michigan Water Resources Commission, the student's report found that, during the years 1939-43, swimmer's itch was reported in 22 lakes; only one of these lakes was in the south half of the Lower Peninsula. During 1960-63, of the 90 lakes reporting outbreaks some 29 were in southern Michigan. From 1964 to 1967, the total for the state had grown to 104 with 47 in the southern half.

"While there seems little doubt the disease is spreading, this is not the only factor affecting the increase in lakes reporting swimmer's itch," Blankespoor points out.

"More people are using more lakes for recreation and this heightens the possibilities of being exposed to the disease. Further, public awareness about swimmer's itch has advanced over the years and the likelihood of the problem being reported has gone up accordingly," the U-M researcher notes. Blankespoor, who works with the swimmer's itch program of the U-M Museum's Mollusk Division, is a research associate and visiting assistant professor in the zoology department.

Swimmer's itch is a snail-borne disease caused by a parasitic flatworm that lives in certain birds, Blankespoor explains. Outlining the parasitic cycle, he says the eggs of the flatworms reach the water through the droppings of infected birds.

In the water the eggs hatch and the larvae quickly enter snails. Inside the snail they multiply, undergo several changes and emerge as microscopic, free-swimming larvae called "cercariae". When a bird contacts the water, the cercariae penetrate it, migrating through the circulatory system to the blood vessels of the liver and intestinal tract, where they grow into mature flatworms. Once they begin laying eggs that are excreted by the birds, the cycle is complete.

"Humans are actually 'accidental' victims of the parasite," Blankespoor notes. "The cercariae can't differentiate between people and birds, so they use their secretion that dissolves tissue to penetrate the skin of the luckless swimmer. Since man is an inappropriate host, the parasites die very quickly. But by then the damage is done."

"Though dead, the little cercariae have a distressing effect. Wherever one of the creatures entered, a small red pustule appears. The presence of the foreign substance under the skin gives rise to an intense itching sensation."

"Each infected snail is capable of shedding thousands of cercariae," Blankespoor says. "If a swimmer ventures into an area where there are many infected snails, then, he may well wind up with thousands of little reaction sites."

"Severe doses of swimmer's itch can put quite a strain on the body and may require hospitalization," he continues. "Medicinal counterattacks to control the itching are largely ineffective, although some lotions may give temporary relief." Sedatives sometimes must be administered to allow the afflicted person to sleep. The rash and its symptoms usually disappear in about a week, leaving small scars that may remain for several weeks.

Compounding the problem is the fact that many of the infected snails tend to shed cercariae, which can survive a day or more in the open water, early in the morning on warm sunny days—the very days ideal for swimming. The parasites gather near the surface of the water where they need about 15 minutes to enter a swimmer. They can also enter if the skin is allowed to air-dry.

"On his own, the swimmer hasn't much of a chance of identifying an infected area," Blankespoor notes. The vast majority of snails either do not support the disease or are uninfected, he says, so simply spotting a colony of snails means very little. And some of the snails which carry the disease favor sandy beach areas while others favor weedy, mud-bottomed areas. The presence of cercariae can only be determined through microscopic analysis.

"Probably the best preventative measure a swimmer can exercise is to towel off immediately after leaving the water," Blankespoor says.

Bad enough on an individual basis, swimmer's itch also has larger implications, Blankespoor notes. The disease is not confined to Michigan; it is also common in Minnesota, Wisconsin, northern Iowa and the central provinces of Canada.

"If an area becomes badly infected, local resorts may be forced to close their beaches," Blankespoor points out. "This can adversely affect local tourism and, when all cases are considered collectively, can have an impact on a state's economy."

The traditional method of controlling swimmer's itch—using chemicals to poison the infected snails—is not without drawbacks, according to Blankespoor.

"These chemicals, or molluscicides, are often expensive and sometimes highly toxic to fish and other desirable aquatic animals," he maintains. Additionally, some of these molluscicides, such as copper sulfate, build up in the bottom sediment of treated lakes. The long-range effects of this accumulation are not known.

"Part of the difficulty is knowing where to spread the chemical," the U-M snail expert says. "If the wind causes the cercariae to drift a long ways, something yet to be experimentally demonstrated, then the outbreak could occur far from the original source. All the treatment would be wasted on the wrong spot. We don't know the role of snails in the aquatic ecosystem well enough to encourage indiscriminate poisoning."

Blankespoor believes extensive research is the key to a sound swimmer's itch control program. "Through our program here at Michigan, we hope to fill in some of the knowledge gaps so we can develop a safe, effective method of handling the problem," he notes.

For example, he observes, it is not clear how the infections get started every spring. Some have argued that infected birds returning in the spring reinfect the local snails. It was generally thought that cold water either killed all snails weakened by carrying the parasite or killed the infection itself.

Seeking answers to these questions, Blankespoor tested some 50 experimentally infected snails last winter. The infected snails were placed in cages beneath the ice.

"When I examined the snails this spring, only six of the 50 had survived," he reports. "However, of those six, two remained infected and soon began shedding cercariae." Blankespoor says that his experiment proves cold weather can kill the infection in snails, but, more importantly, it also proves snails can survive the winter with their infection intact.

Blankespoor plans to conduct snail research throughout the summer. On a regular basis, he will place marked, uninfected laboratory snails in some of the waters likely to be infected. By periodically recapturing these snails he hopes to find out if, and when, they become infected through the droppings of birds. He hopes to correlate this information with the species of birds inhabiting the areas.

"Nearly all the literature of 15 or 20 years ago states that waterfowl, especially ducks, are mainly responsible for spreading the disease," Blankespoor says. "Yet swimmer's itch has increased while the number of waterfowl has apparently decreased."

"We know that some passerine (perching) birds, such as grackles and starlings, can also carry the disease," he continues, "and their numbers have dramatically increased over the last few decades. I believe our research may well reveal that in many places the passerine birds are the chief source of the infection." Blankespoor will be examining birds this summer to help determine which ones actually harbor the disease.

The parasite causing swimmer's itch was first discovered in the 1920's at the U-M Biological Station near Pellston, Mich. Since that time, roughly 20 different kinds of flatworms known to penetrate the skin of man and produce a rash have been identified.

Horse's Mouth

Portraits of a daughter and her equitation mount hang in many homes. Horses are the motif in everything from drapery material, Christmas cards and picture puzzles. Photography also can support an astute horseman, combining art and horsemanship.

There is growing concern for horsemen in what the legislature is doing to the horse industry and there are people now employed by horse groups and councils just to watchdog their state legislature to see if any bills pertaining to horses are slated to come up. If a person has an interest in the working of government and in horses they may well be able to combine the two fields into a living.

Selling is big business - grain companies have realized a tremendous upsurge of horse business. There will be more and more effort on the part of grain companies, tack and equipment manufacturers and drug companies to get a piece of the horse boom profits. Displays at fairs and horse gatherings are getting more common and each is manned by an attractive and horse-minded person who can talk intelligently about his company's virtues. The "hard-sell" is on, and if you are a good talker there may well be a place for you.

Horse trailers are increasing in number and so are pre-built and pre-fabricated horse barns. Again, if you have some knowledge first hand about horses you may well find a place in selling these items to horse people.

Journalism reflects more and more interest in horses and horse people. Magazines devoted to our life style of living and selling all the things manufacturers can dream up as being indispensable to modern life have realized that horse people are the most affluent and buying segment of the population.

If you think about it, there are very few talents that can't be applied to the horse world in some form or other. Finding your niche may take some imagination and perhaps relocation to another part of the country but if you want to combine your job and your love of horses it certainly can be done.

Perhaps this article will set your feet on the "horse trail" into your future career.

Hartwick Pines Park Holds Last Virgin Stand

Editor's Note: This is another in a series on selected Michigan State Parks which offer unusual features to campers. The series will run through Labor Day.

The saga of Michigan's early lumber days and camping go hand in hand at Hartwick Pines State Park, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The park, seven miles northeast of Grayling on M-93, contains 9,138 acres, including some 80 acres of virgin white pine and hemlock, the last remaining stand in the Lower Peninsula.

Camping, history, hiking, fishing and canoeing are offered in this park, a favorite of many.

Besides the towering trees, an attraction in themselves, a kitchen mess hall, workshop, logging wheels, chains and a museum remind visitors of the lumbering in this area in the last half of the 19th century.

Some nine miles of hiking trails, not all of them marked, wander through the woods. One of the best-known leads to the unique chapel in the pines which offers a solitude all its own.

Fishing is excellent, since the AuSable River, one of the state's famed trout streams, runs through the park.

The AuSable is equally popular for canoeing.

Although one of the smaller state parks with 46 modern campsites, it attracted 163,879 persons last year with 4,833 permits issued, making it one of the most popular in the Lower Peninsula from standpoint of usage.

Hartwick Pines State Park was named for Maj. Edward E. Hartwick, who died of illness in World War I. His widow purchased the property in 1929 and gave it to the state. The park was dedicated in 1935.

If Hartwick Pines State Park campground should be full, other state parks in the vicinity include Higgins Lake State Park North and South, with 203 and 506 campsites respectively; Otsego Lake Park, 201 campsites and Rifle River Recreation Area, 128 campsites.

There also are five privately operated campgrounds in the Grayling area. Prices range from $2.50 to $5.50 a night.

Choo-Choo, Lumber Washed Out

Rains Cancel Showdown

Rain, rain, and more rain hampered play in the Northville Recreation Department's Mens' Softball League last week.

Wet weather forced cancellation of both the Tuesday and Thursday schedules and by the time Friday afternoon rolled around a grand total of just three games had been played. But fortunately, Recreation Department Director Robert Prom decided to utilize the facilities at Ford Field on a relatively dry Friday night and with three games being played at Ford Field and three more going on at Thomson Memorial Field, nine of the 12 games slated for last week were finally played.

Most important of the three games which were not played was the eagerly-awaited showdown clash between Choo-Choo Car Wash and the Northville Lumber.

As a result Choo-Choo lost its opportunity to enlarge its lead over the Lumber to two full games. And the Lumber lost its opportunity to hand Choo-Choo its first loss of the season and pull into a tie for first place with the defending champions.

Each of the top three teams in the American League - Choo-Choo, Lumber, and Con Langfield - posted victories last week as the standings remained pretty much unchanged.

There was some position swapping in the National League, however, as John Mach Ford and Greenfield Die each posted victories last week to pull ahead of Manor House Realty-Keith Heating which lost its only game and fell all the way from first to third.

Choo-Choo had an easy time of it in retaining its undefeated status by defeating a Northville Jaycee team beset with a couple of key injuries. Final score showed the league leaders on top 13-1.

The Jaycees could muster just four hits off the pitches of Choo-Choo's Don Philippi, one of the league's top tossers. The Choo-Choo hitters, meanwhile, were having a field day against the Jaycees, stroking out a total of 15 hits.

Ray Kelly banged out a single and a home run to pace Choo-Choo, which also got two hit performances from Rich Adams, John Albers, John Bida, Jim Weston, and Philippi. Vince Hanson collected a pair of singles to account for half the Jaycees' hits off Philippi.

The Lumber also won last week, but, unlike Choo-Choo, they had to battle every foot of the way before finally wrestling a 4-1 victory from Plymouth State Home.

As usual, the Lumber relied on the considerable pitching prowess of Jerry Levan to gain the decision. Perhaps the top hurler in the league, Levan gave up just four hits in leading the Lumber to the win.

The Lumber hitters were led by Stan Nirider, who stroked a pair of singles, and rangy shortstop Dan Parker, who poked a pair of two-baggers. Mark Johnson's double was the only extra-base hit for the State Home.

Con Langfield, the third place team in the American League, coasted to an 8-4 triumph over a Presbyterian Church team which is still looking for its first win.

Jeff Jones hit a two-run homer for the winners to share hitting honors with Steve Puckett who had two singles and a triple in four trips to the plate. The Presbyterians got three hits apiece from both Larry Myers and Jim Curl, but lost the game in spite of the fact they outhit Con Langfield 13-12.

Other American League teams posting victories last week were the Jaycees, Plymouth State Home, and Exotic Plastic and Rubber.

The Jaycees rallied for six runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to sneak past a

L'Esperance, Jaycees Take Over

Torrid Novi Race Has New Leaders

Time Magazine has it. Sports Illustrated definitely has it.

And now, some will have you believe, The Novi News also has it.

What is "it?" "It" is the black mark....the kiss of death....the old jinxeroot. The worst thing that can happen to a major political figure or a national sports hero, so the rumor goes, is to have his picture on the cover of either Time Magazine or Sports Illustrated.

Within a week the political figure will be involved in a major scandal and the All-American halfback will be held to a total of 12 yards rushing by the front line of Vassar.

Players in the Novi Parks and Recreation Commission's Mens' Slo-Pitch Softball League are convinced that the same thing is true of The Novi News. If your team receives headline recognition - look out. Disaster is at hand.

They've got a pretty good case. Each week for the last four weeks the Novi League has had a new leader, whose rise to the number one position has been duly chronicled with headline coverage. And each week for the past four weeks, the headlined team subsequently has been beset with more problems than a drunk on roller skates going up a down escalator.

Latest team to fall prey to the jinx is the Michigan Tractor team, which moved into first place two weeks ago. Ever since, it's been rough sledding for the Tractor-men.

Not only did they lose a 6-5 decision to a J. P. Realty team which had won just two games all season long, the Tractor-men darn near lost to the Novi Police team which has won just one game so far this year.

As a result - you guessed it - Michigan Tractor is no longer leading the league.

That highly dangerous position is now held jointly by L'Esperance Electric and the Novi Jaycees - both of them with 7-2 records. And just a half game behind the front-runners with 6-2 records are Michigan Tractor and the Novi Inn.

At one point last week, all four teams were tied for first place as the Novi League is experiencing its tightest race ever.

Biggest game of the week was the victory of J. P. Realty over Michigan Tractor.

The Realtors scored three times in the second inning and picked up two more in the fifth to take a 5-1 lead over the Tractor-men who were able to collect just one run and two hits off Realtor pitcher Ed DeBrule in the first six innings.

But with their backs to the wall in the bottom of the seventh inning, Tractor finally came to life and scored four times to knot the score at 5-5 as Mark Gretel and Bob Riedel each contributed doubles to the rally.

J. P. Realty won it in the top of the eighth as two errors sandwiched around Ken Beers' two-bagger enabled Roy Link to cross the plate.

Michigan Tractor loaded the bases in the bottom of the inning, but DeBrule got Jerry Purdon to fly out for the final out.

The Realtors were sparked offensively by Beers and DeBrule who collected three and two hits respectively to provide nearly half of the team's 11-hit total. Rick Mullen had two singles to become the only Tractor player with more than one hit off DeBrule.

The Tractor-men almost lost a second game last week when they met the Novi Police team. This time, however, it was the Tractor team which pushed across a run in the first extra-inning to secure the win. Final score showed Tractor on top 8-7.

At the end of six innings, the Crime Fighters had taken a 7-4 lead and had Tractor on the verge of its second straight defeat to a second division team. But once again the Tractor-men rallied in the seventh to knot the score and send the game into extra innings.

With two down in the top of the eighth, Tractor's Dick Rutherford collected a double and Mike Huhn followed with another double to drive him home with what proved to be

Suburban Wall, Rexall Lead Little League

It was a key week in the Novi Little League.

In the Babe Ruth Division, Suburban Wall suffered its first defeat of the season, but still managed to hang onto first place ahead of Schudnell and surging Sinacola squad which pulled into contention with a pair of wins in last week's action.

And in the Major Division, Rexall, the season-long leaders, strengthened its grip on first place by beating their closest rivals in an all-important contest.

The big news in the Babe Ruth Division was that Suburban Wall finally lost its first game of the season. Schudnell took on Suburban Wall Wednesday and came out of the game with a 4-3 victory.

Ordinarily, the win would have propelled Schudnell into a first place tie with Suburban Wall. However, two days earlier, Schudnell had been upset by Sinacola. After two weeks of play, the Sinacola record stood at 2-2, but last week the Sinacola players looked like world beaters, as they won both their games to advance their record to 4-2 and move just a game out of first place.

Score of the Sinacola-Schudnell game showed the Sinacola squad on top by a comfortable 9-3 margin. The second Sinacola win came Thursday, as they registered a 6-0 whitewashing of R & L Wall.

Suburban Wall picked up an easy win Friday when West Oakland Bank was forced to forfeit when not enough players showed up at the game.

In the Major Division Rexall and Bain Brothers Landscaping showed the way, winning seven of the ten games played.

Rexall opened its week by sweeping a double header from General Filters. After winning the first game 9-6, the Major Division leaders came back to register an 8-5 triumph in the second game.

Rexall's biggest win of the week came Thursday, however, when it dumped the Novi Firemen 10-8. The Firemen entered the week in second place and could have cut into Rexall's lead with a win, but it wasn't to be, as Rexall reestablished its superiority.

The Firemen won two other games last week. After edging Michigan Tractor 7-6 on Monday, they came back on Thursday and bombed the Novi Party Store 12-0.

In spite of their 2-1 record for the week, the Firemen still dropped a notch in the standings. Replacing them in second place was Bain Brothers Landscaping which swept a pair of double headers to advance its record from a mediocre 6-4 to a much more respectable 10-4.

The Bain Brothers' pitchers gave up just three runs in sweeping two games from General Filters on Wednesday. They won the first game 5-1 and then came back to win the nightcap 5-2 as Jeff Norton socked an out-of-the-park home run.

Bain Brothers rounded out their week by taking two from Michigan Tractor on Friday. Score of the first game was 12-2. Score of the second game was not reported.

In the final Major Division action, Novi Party Store picked up a forfeit victory over BV Construction Saturday morning.

Results from the Minor and Pony Divisions were sparse, as only three games were reported to The Novi News.

In the Pony Division, Spartan Concrete recorded an important win by knocking off Ecco Tool 17-15. Spartan Concrete entered the week in first place, while Ecco Tool had been in second place.

In another Pony Division game, Harrison Well sunk Firm-Built by a whopping 27-2 margin.

Only one Minor Division game was reported, but it was an important one. J. S. Trudeau knocked off Herb's Mower 17-6. Herb's had started the week tied with Lynch Precision for first place in the division standings, but as a result have fallen back into a virtual tie with J. S. Trudeau for second place.

Managers are reminded that for the results of their games to appear in The Novi News, summary sheets must be filled out and turned in to Bob Gillick as soon as possible.

Seek Football Alumni

Former varsity letter winners at Northville High School are still being sought for an Alumni Football game slated to be held here early in September.

Mike Zayti and Jerry Imsland, organizers of the game, say there is still room on the 30-man squad which will play the Detroit Catholic Central Alumni. The game has been tentatively scheduled for Saturday, September 8, at 8 p.m. on the Northville High School field.

If successful the game could become an annual event.

Coaching the Northville squad will be Ron Horwath and Dave Longridge. And according to Zayti, there's enough grid talent around to make the Northville team a good one.

Those interested in playing should contact either Zayti, Imsland, or Phil Jerome at The Northville Record. Record phone number is 349-1700.

Runner-up—Bob Prom of Northville, trophy and $50 gift certificate at Freydl's Men's Store in Northville;

Third prize—three balls each to George Grant of Novi and Elmer Warner of Brighton.

Second Flight—Undecided, sudden-death play-off must be conducted between Paul Folino of Northville and Laverne DeWaard of Novi; winner receives trophy and $100 gift certificate at Lapham's Men's Shop in Northville, runner-up receives trophy and $50 gift certificate at Coe's Men's Store in South Lyon.

Third prize—two golf balls each to Joe Crupi of Novi and Phil Ogilvie and Keith Trumbull of Northville.

Finally, for the highest score posted, a 73-89—162, by Jack Wikman of Novi, three golf balls.

Sharply-dressed Gib Willis, Mayor of Wixom, took some kidding about his plus-fours, but he proved that he knew his way around Bob O' Link. His Honor shot an 83, best score turned in by an elected official and thereby won a special prize, dinner for two at The Drawbridge in Northville.

The two saddest faces at the tourney belonged to Vern LaVassaur and his playing partner, Leonard Parsons.

LaVassaur, a veteran par-shooter around Northville, turned in a 75, which was about to be declared the winning score. Paul Vandenberg and Jerry Flannigan had already gone to the first tee for sudden-death play for second place. Vandenberg won the play-off. Then it was discovered and confirmed by LaVassaur that he had scored a par-5 on the 17th hole, which Parsons had recorded as a "four".

The error occurred because Parsons thought the 17th was a par-four hole. LaVassaur didn't notice the mistake when he turned in his score card.

Under U. S. G. A. rules, which prevailed for the tourney, a score reported lower than actual results in disqualification.

"You have no choice. I have to be disqualified", said LaVassaur. An apologetic Parsons just shook his head in disbelief.

But a similar mistake, made by Touring Pro Tommy Aaron and overlooked by Professional Roberto DeVicenzo cost the latter the Masters Championship at Augusta a few years ago. So it happens to the best of them.

Brighton Argus Staffer Dennis Keenon, who underwent hypnosis to see if he could improve his golf game for the tourney, shot an 84. That was two strokes better than a practice round he played at Bob O' Link prior to the two sessions with Tod Hornkohl, Brighton high school teacher who is a professional hypnotist. "Maybe it helped", said Keenon.

Bob O' Link's back nine took its toll. Not a single contestant shot as well on the back side as the front. Some scores really soared. Novi's Jimmy Landquist, a sweet-swinger, scored the front nine with a 35. He shot a 50 on the back nine that included a nine on the 18th hole.

Councilman Folino had a respectable 42 on the first nine. Then he sagged to a 62!

There were no birdies for the foursome of Keenon, Jones, Evan Falkenhagen and Vincent Stuckey on the 13th hole. But they swear they nearly hit a fox that ran in front of the green as they were hitting their approach shots.

Jaycees Announce Jr. Champ Winners

More than 100 youngsters between the ages of eight and 18 from Northville, Novi, South Lyon, Salem, and Brighton participated in the third annual Junior Champ Track Meet sponsored by the Northville Jaycees.

The meet was held Saturday afternoon on the Northville High School track. Jaycee Chairman Tom Barber called it the best Junior Champ meet yet, both in terms of the number of participants and the quality of the performances.

There were separate events for both boys and girls and the competitors were divided into five different age groups: PeeWees (8-10 year olds), Juniors (11-12 year olds), Preps (13-14 year olds), Intermediates (15-16 year olds), and seniors (17-18 year olds).

Ribbons were given for the first three finishers in each of the three younger groups, while the first three finishers in the two older divisions received medals.

Winners of the individual events in the Intermediate and Senior divisions are now eligible to compete in the State Junior Champ Meet in Utica on July 14. Barber indicated that the Jaycees will take a group of 20 to the State Meet.

Barber expressed thanks to Robert Prom, head of the Northville Recreation Department, who helped the Jaycees secure the facilities, and to Ralph Redmond and Paul Bedford, Northville High School track coaches.

Redmond was the meet coordinator and Bedford served as official starter.

fast-improving John Mach Ford team 10-9. At the end of six innings, the Car Dealers held an 8-4 lead, only to see the Jaycees come back to gain the win with a six-run surge climaxed by Dave LaRoux's triple.

John Mach Jr., Ray Beckstein, Bob Ojinski, and Lenton Groszpit all had three hits apiece for John Mach Ford which outdid the Jaycees 19-11. Omar Harrison paced the Jaycees with three one-base runs.

Plymouth State Home rallied for seven runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to come from a 4-3 deficit and move to a 10-4 conquest of the VFW.

Norm Angner's home run was the big blow in the State Home's rally and he shared hitting honors with Mark Johnson and Ray Courter, who had three hits apiece. John Dodd and Mike Meyers had two hits apiece for the Veterans.

The Veterans lost another game in the final innings when they played Exotic Plastic and Rubber. Former Northville High School star Scott Stuart singled in Tom Seamark with the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning to break an 8-8 tie.

It was the second hit of the game for Stuart, who had earlier belted a triple. Jim Daniels with four hits led Exotic. Dan Kelbert had three hits for the Vets.

Taking over the lead in the National League was the John Mach Ford team, which avenged its narrow loss to the Jaycees by blasting out a 13-2 decision over Greenfield Die. The game was close until the fifth when the Car Dealers scored seven times. Lenton Groszpit had a single, double, and home run to pace John Mach at the plate, and he also limited the Greenfield Die squad to just six hits from his pitching position. Jeff Nast had two of the six Greenfield Die hits.

Greenfield Die remained in contention for the National League lead, however, by trimming Manor House Realty-Keith Heating 9-4, thanks largely to a six-run fourth inning rally. Terry Mills, Max Rogers, and Ken Hinkel each picked up a pair of hits for the winners, while Jim LaPlante had three safeties to pace Manor House.

Posting their second win of the season were the Northville Newcomers who belted Northville State Hospital by a 17-3 margin.

Jim Armstrong had three hits and Larry Pond stroked a home run to pace the Newcomers, while Jim Allen with three straight doubles was the only State Hospital player with more than one safety.

ALEX AT MEADOWBROOK—Former Detroit Lion Alex Karras was the center of attention last Tuesday at Meadowbrook Country Club in spite of some rather obvious other attractions. Karras was one of the celebrities who participated in a special Charity Golf Tourney sponsored by the

the winning run.

Ed Butler, T. B. Harbin, and Bruce Place had two hits apiece and Pat Alexander poked a home run to share hitting honors for the Police. Chris Hathon, Mike Huhn, Bob Riedel, and Dick Jones each contributed two hits to the 14-hit Michigan Tractor attack.

In the only other game played last week, the Novi Jaycees survived a five run rally in the seventh inning to defeat Jamaican Pools 14-10.

Big Phil McNary paced the Jaycee attack. With a two run homer in the first and a solo shot in the third, the big first sacker upped his league leading home run total to six—three more than his closest competitor.

With McNary blasting the ball and pitcher Todd Price holding Jamaican Pools at bay from the mound, the Jaycees had built up a 14-5 lead at the end of five innings. But with two outs in the top of the sixth Councilman Louie Campbell's Jamaican Pools squad finally came to life.

Gary Guldner opened the surge with a home run. Steve Elliot and Bob Fedorka followed with singles, Tony Stines belted a triple, Pete McClain stroked a double, and Keith Heathcock rapped out a single before the Jaycees were finally able to quell the uprising and clinch the 14-10 triumph.

Sharing hitting honors with McNary for the Jaycees were Jerry Fortenberry with three hits in three trips to the plate and Jim Cherfoli who had a single and a double. Bob Fedorka had three hits for the Pools.

South Lyon has had an active Big Sister since 1971. Each member is assigned a girl between the ages of five and 16. Purpose of the organization is to give the girls adult woman companionship.

ANTIQUE'S RUNNING AGAIN—Thanks to John Richter, blind mechanic of Novi, this 50-year-old garden tractor owned and used by the Hock Nursery Sod Farms of Lyon Township is "running like a clock again," a firm spokesman reported this past week. One of the oldest machines he's worked on in nearly a half-century, Richter exclaimed when the photographer showed up, "Isn't she a beauty!" The antique is a Standard Twin. Parts are no longer available, so Richter had to improvise by making some of them himself.

Tips on Making Pulla

By NANCY DINGELDEY

Last week's story in the "Novi News" about the Finnish summer celebration of "Juhannus" stirred a little something in me that said I should take one more swat at making their delicious coffee bread "pulla".

It's not that I haven't tried before but I gave up making anything with yeast in it because I couldn't turn out anything but "sinkers". It's disheartening to say the least to spend a day making a delicious-looking batch of yeast dough only to have them "clunk" on a dish after baking.

So I left the yeast dough to the pros.

But I have a neighbor who took me under her "wing" and said "look sweetie, anyone can make this stuff." And since she's a Finn, we naturally started out on a big potful of pulla dough.

Helen Mack cannot only turn out a great pulla but among other things she is the only person I know that can pick a handful of four leaf clovers in nothing flat. And in my yard too!

During many conversations I have seen her stoop over and pick a little green good luck charm. Now me...I would have to sit on the ground and really concentrate and probably never find one.

Getting back to the baking. By the time everything gets mixed, the dough raises, is shaped and baked, a whole day has gone by but the results of the day are well worth it. Five very large braided breads filling the kitchen with a most delightful aroma are the reward.

The extra bonus for me is that I found out what I've been doing wrong all these years...I

Wixom Newsbeat: About Pulla

got carried away with the flour. According to my mentor 'tis better to have the dough a little sticky than smooth.

For those of you who might like to try your hand and treat yourself to something really tasty, here is the recipe. It comes from Aini Karell, another one of our good Finnish neighbors.

The one ingredient that makes "pulla" so distinctive is the cardamom seed. It is best to buy the "ball pod" variety and take the seeds out yourself. The flavor is much fresher. The shell of the pod is paper fine and the seeds inside are small and black. Use about twenty-one pods. Fold the seeds securely in several folds of waxed paper and smash very fine with a hammer.

Then, mix two packages of yeast with two teaspoons of sugar and enough warm water to dissolve the yeast. Let rise a short while.

Mix together in a very large pot...four cups milk, one-half pound margarine, two cups sugar, one and one-half tablespoons of salt and the crushed cardamom seeds.

Warm together to lukewarm then add yeast mixture. To this, add flour using about two cups less than five pounds of flour. After the addition of the flour, knead in a half pound of pure butter. Besides increasing the flavor, you will, notice this addition will produce a less sticky dough.

Let raise in a warm place until double then turn out on a very lightly floured surface. Divide dough into five sections representing five pullas. Divide each section into pieces to be rolled out, joined, and braided.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees while pullas are raising in their pans for 20 minutes. Brush tops with beaten egg and sprinkle with sugar before baking. Put one pan on each shelf in the oven and bake 15 minutes. Then reverse pans and bake for another 15 minutes.

Have a pot of coffee ready and enjoy!

Dorothy Thompson, librarian at Wixom School, will be heading the summer library program for children again this year. Beginning Wednesday, July 11, Dorothy will be at Wixom School at 1 p.m. beginning with a story hour followed by open time for the children to browse through and check out books. The program will continue from 1-3 p.m. each Wednesday concluding August 15.

Other action for the kids during the summer months in Wixom are those programs run by the Parks and Recreation Department. The recreation portion has been running since June 25 and will run through August 3. Held at Wixom Elementary and starting each morning at 9 a.m., Monday through Friday, kids are able to learn arts and crafts as well as participate in sports and a variety of other activities.

For the older kids, free golf and tennis lessons begin this week. Golf instructions are held at the Hickory Hill Golf Course each Tuesday and Thursday with tennis instructions carried on at the courts at City Hall on Monday and Wednesday. Check at City Hall for time for the various age groups.

A good contingent of scouts from Wixom Elementary School joined other scouts from the area for the week long Scout Camp held at the Multi-Lakes Conservation Club from June 18 through June 22.

Young Brownies had their first taste of camp life complete with tents, cooking out, and a huge variety of activities based around a theme of Indian lore. Older Brownies and Girl Scouts also had an overnight stay which always proves to be the highlight of the week for them.

Wixom was also well represented by Scout Leaders with Melva Allred instructing and directing at the archery range. Jane Fitzgerald was one of those spending the week with a unit and making herself comfortable on the ground for the overnight

Also there for the week was Marian Boszynski who has taken over the duties as the coordinator for all the Scout units at Wixom during the coming school year. Even I had my pinkies in the pot by teaching macrame in the arts and crafts area for the entire week.

Chief Nisun Seeks Grant

Northville township Police Chief Ronald Nisun announced this week he is applying for a traffic grant. Nisun said he is currently in the process of filling an application for the grant with the Office of Highway Safety Planning of the Michigan State Police.

The grant would be a "matching fund" type with costs shared equally by the township and state.

Nisun said he is in the "beginning stages of applying for the grant" and that he envisions it will include additional manpower for the township police force to establish a traffic division.

The chief also added that applications are currently being taken for township police reserves.

Applicants should be between the ages of 25 and 40, community minded with a clean criminal background. He said the township is also in need of volunteer dispatchers for evenings and weekends as part of the reserve program, although dispatchers need not meet the same training requirements as police reserves.

Township police reserves are paid, following successful completion of required training.

Application forms for both police reserves and volunteer dispatchers are available at the township police department Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Removes Year-Round School Obstacle

Senator Pursell Pushes Through Bill

The Michigan Legislature has passed, by lopsided majorities, a bill sponsored by Senator Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) that removes a major obstacle to using public schools on a year-round basis. Senate Bill 279 allows school districts who adopt year-round schedules to receive their full allotment of state aid funds. Under a provision of the current state aid law state monies are not paid to school districts for students not scheduled to attend classes on the fourth Friday in September.

Pursell's bill will allow aid payments for enrolled students even though they are scheduled to be on vacation at that time.

"I am delighted with the support for this bill in both houses because it shows strong interest in modernizing our school systems and saving perhaps millions of dollars in capital costs for buildings," Pursell said. "With many families living on a more varied schedule than in the past, the year-round concept may be more in tune with today's life styles."

"I do want to emphasize that the actual school days for each student will still total 180 days. We are simply making it possible, for districts to divide the year in different ways," Pursell continued. "My bill is permissive only. It is still up to the local board of education to determine their own school calendar."

"We estimate that the year-round concept would save districts up to 20 per cent of building and site costs and this kind of savings should be welcomed," Pursell said.

Police Eye Murder Suspect

"I can't say that the case will be re-opened because it's never been closed," stated Faulkner. "But we will be looking into any possible connections with great care."

Detective Sergeant Gordon Nelson will be assigned to the case, Faulkner indicated.

At this point all evidence against Corbin in the Radtke-Keys case is purely circumstantial, but police report that there is a sufficient amount of circumstantial evidence to merit an intensive investigation.

There are strong similarities between the kidnapping of the Howell woman, the Radtke-Keys murder, and the recent strangulation of Miss Bingham.

All three cases involved kidnapping.

All three women had been bound hand and feet with cord.

Debbie Bingham was strangled with a piece of cord from venetian blinds which was still around her neck when police found her body last Wednesday. Kathy Radtke also had a piece of venetian blind cord around her neck when police found her body.

There is circumstantial evidence which links Corbin to the Radtke-Keys murders.

"We know that he was born and raised in the Napier Road area of Northville so we know that he was very familiar with the area in which we found John Keyes' body," said Grubb.

"We know that he was an avid hunter and fisherman and thus was well acquainted with the lakes area of Northern Oakland County where we found Kathy's body," Grubb continued.

"And we also know that he was a gas station attendant at that time and thus had access to the four-wheel-drive type of vehicle which was involved in the Radtke-Keys murder," he concluded.

Both Faulkner and Grubb pointed out that their investigation will begin slowly. "We don't want to do anything that will hamper Oakland County's investigation of the Debbie Bingham murder," said Faulkner. "We'll be working very closely with them and with the Michigan State Police."

Grubb admitted that Novi Police have other evidence that he is not at liberty to discuss at this time. That evidence could involve a shower curtain and an antique rifle found at the lake where Miss Radtke's body was located.

Novi Gets Regional Center

feeder routes," said Campbell.

Campbell expressed confidence that SCI is "a large developer interested in the environment" and will live with whatever restrictions may be imposed by the city, state or federal governments. "I believe SCI wants to be a good neighbor in this region because you will be their customers," Campbell stated. "We have no downtown area for shopping and as a home rule city we must plan our own future and what is best for Novi, taking into consideration not to harm our neighbors on any of our boundaries."

Councilman Denis Berry was more curt, telling Mrs. Lynn that he appreciated her interest but wished she would go back to West Bloomfield and take care of her own problems.

Berry's remark drew applause from the citizens at the hearing.

Berry further quoted the mayor of Westland as saying that without Hudsons there would be no Westland. Berry noted that there have been three police calls and one fire call from Hudsons' Westland in the six years it has been in the City of Westland.

"It's a big relief to me to know that we won't have to make any appreciable increases in either our police or fire departments due to the shopping center," stated the councilman. "As for the taxes, the mayor of Westland told me this morning that everything the city has it owes to Hudsons."

Specifically, the council Wednesday approved the rezoning of approximately 110 acres from its existing R-1-F (small farms) to C-B (central business district). At the request of city planning consultant Vilcan-Leman, SCI dropped approximately 40 acres from their original rezoning request to provide a buffer between the center and property owners along Meadowbrook Road.

The 40 acres will be rezoned at a later time to facilitate SCI's plans to develop a professional office-commercial district along 12 Mile and a professional office-multiple family residential district along Meadowbrook Road.

Councilman Presnell's opposition to the rezoning was based on what he termed "shady business shenanigans" in the way SCI obtained options on property along Meadowbrook Road.

said Berry.

Councilman Edwin Presnell noted that times change and that he now felt that R-2-A is a proper zoning for the property should retain its existing P.O. zoning designation.

Haggerty Road parcel.

The zoning request was granted by a 6-1 margin as Councilman William O'Brien cast the only dissenting ballot.

"I feel that the P.O. is a good zoning for that area," said Cherfoli in explaining his vote. "It offers a nice buffer between the residential and industrial zonings. Just because he can't sell it at this time is no reason why we should change his zoning for him."

The council disagreed with the opinions expressed by Cherfoli and Bretz, however.

"I liked the idea of having professional offices in this area because I felt that the people in all the subdivisions down there had a need for doctors, dentists, and other professional services," stated Councilman Denis Berry.

"But now that we've rezoned the property on 10 Mile to professional offices, I see no reason why we can't allow this man to have his R-2-A zoning. We met the need for professional offices when we rezoned the other property," development here in Northville. Our business district will continue to be the friendly, community-oriented type shopping district with easy parking and good, easily-recognizable merchants.

"The work that we've done to improve the shopping district in Northville, will make it a great deal different from the type of shopping provided by a regional center. I think the Hudson's development will compliment, rather than detract or compete our own commercial district."

"is that I would have preferred to see a development of this magnitude within our own school district so that we could benefit from its tax base. I would rather see it in Northville so the school district would benefit, but I'm happy to see it coming, nevertheless."

The Northville City Manager offered one note of caution, however. "I just hope that it isn't the first of many. I don't want to see a shopping center at every major intersection. One or two would be good - any more than that could destroy the character of our communities."
