

Area Man Claims Synthetic Gas Discovery

COPYRIGHT, 1974 — Sliger Publications, The Northville Record-Novl News, Brighton Argus, South Lyon Herald

An inexpensive, apparently marketable substitute for gasoline that could have world-wide repercussions has been invented in the basement of a home in the circulation area of the Sliger Publications.

What's more, serious negotiations between the inventor and a multi-million dollar Detroit-based corporation are underway following several hours of successful testing under the watchful eye of corporate executives.

A skeptical staffer of this newspaper accompanied the inventor to one of the meetings last week in the corporate headquarters, posing as the "secretary" of the inventor.

Among those present for this initial discussion of payment and royalties was the chairman of the board—one of the richest men in the world—and two of his top aides.

The scope of the invention is staggering, so much so even millionaires who are privy to it are frightened. They are caught up in the mind-boggling situation of not knowing for sure if they are paties for a colossal hoax or if they are indeed on the doorstep of a phenomenal discovery that dwarfs the products of even Thomas Edison.

They cannot afford to dismiss it out of hand. And therein lies story enough to tease any imagination: What if the man is no crackpot, what if he really has hit upon the substance that has challenged but eluded thousands upon thousands of scientists the world over?

"If it's for real...and we saw that it works, my God, do you have any idea what it means?" a vice-president remarked after riding in a 1974 Monaco, fueled by the invention.

"Hell, just to set up the distribution mechanism for something like this would represent a staggering investment," he said.

The chairman of the board agreed, but talk of millions failed to wrinkle the brow of this veteran of business and finance. Instead, he toyed with the inventor as a cat would a mouse and, in the end, quibbled over a few thousand in "good faith" money.

"You will make millions on this and we'll make a little so you shouldn't be afraid to gamble a little, too," he told Jerry Atwelle, the 37-year-old inventor. "Afterall, before this is over we'll have invested a million dollars for all the tests we'll have to make. That's money out of our pocket. And if

Wednesday afternoons are slow around weekly newspaper offices. So when old friend Jerry (that's not his real name) called from a local bar and wanted to talk, it was a welcome excuse to escape from the office.

But what followed left the reporter reeling, and not from his bourbon.

Jerry had invented a synthetic gasoline. "Sure, Jerry. I'll run right back and write the story. Have another drink".

And so the unbelievable began to unfold.

SETTLEMENT DAY in Northville Township is set for Tuesday, March 19. The meeting begins at 8:00 p.m. in the township offices, 301 West Main Street. Although the township's budget will not be ready for adoption, trustees will set meeting times, dates and places, designate depositories for township funds and hear reports from the supervisor and treasurer.

JAMES KIPFER accepted appointment as Northville's Michigan Week chairman, it was announced this week.

NORTHVILLE SCHOOL District recently received praise from the Michigan Department of Education for its year-round school program. "We are encouraged with your excellent progress this year," Dr. John Porter, state superintendent of instruction, told the district.

CHAMBER of Commerce members are urged to attend a meeting next Thursday, March 21 at 10 a.m. at Northville Downs to discuss plans for this summer's annual Northville Fair.

School Asks 3-Mill Renewal

School's Gasoline Dwindles

"We have enough gasoline to operate the school district buses until the end of the week," Earl Busard, business director for the Northville School District, commented. "We're expecting a delivery Thursday (today) but we only have 1,500 more gallons coming for the month of March and that's all. We use 350 gallons each day for transportation." According to Busard, the school district will receive 3,435 gallons of gasoline less than is needed this month. With 21 days of operation of the transportation fleet required, he is anticipating enough fuel for only 11 days. "The school district will be asking the state to release some of the emergency reserves," he said. "We're not alone in this situation. Any district which has expanded in population is in the same bind."

Even though Northville operates no bus older than 1970, "we still only get five miles to the gallon," Busard explained. Allocation of gasoline for the district is based on 81 percent of fuel delivered in 1972. Busard has drawn up a plan to curtail transportation in the event of a fuel shortage.

With a need for 7,350 gallons and a delivery of only 3,915 gallons this month, the plan goes into effect the third day no gasoline delivery is assured, when the district has 1,100 gallons of fuel left. On the first day the plan is implemented, the district would cancel all recreation and senior citizen bus runs, field trips and team buses scheduled for the next five days.

Day two—discontinue all secondary morning school bus runs. Day Three—discontinue all secondary runs to take students home. Day Four—discontinue all elementary school morning bus runs. Day Five—discontinue all

County OKs Lease For Township Hall

Lease for renting Northville township hall facilities at the Wayne County Child Development Center has been approved by the county board of commissioners.

Paul Silver cast the lone dissenting vote on the agreement saying he felt the buildings should be used only for public business and that he did not feel a township hall fell within that meaning.

County Commissioner Mary Dumas spear-headed the move at the county level to rent the facilities to Northville Township.

Under terms of the five-year lease, the township will pay about $1,000 per month rent. The county has the right to terminate the lease at the end of the second year and has the option of renewing it at one-year intervals.

The board of commissioners also has the right to review any sub-leasing of the premises.

Exact amount of rent charged to the township will be negotiated by the Building Division of the County Board of Auditors, county spokesmen said.

Leasing of the fire hall building is awaiting the outcome of the city and township public safety study, Mrs. Dumas said.

Supervisor Lawrence Wright said he is waiting for a copy of the lease agreement from the board of commissioners to which the township board must agree.

Once it has been passed by the township board, remodeling can begin. The center is being closed permanently on July 1 but the supervisor said remodeling could begin before then.

Wright added that cost of renovating the facilities and placement of offices will be covered in the community feasibility study

Voters to Decide Issue Saturday

Renewal of three mills for operation of Northville School District goes before voters Saturday in a special election. School officials are anticipating a tight turnout with only 1,600 of the district's 8,700 voters expected to go to the polls.

Polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and ballots will be cast at three locations within the district.

Voters should check their school election registration cards to find out the precinct in which they live and where to vote.

Precincts one, three and five vote at the School Administration Office, 303 West Main Street. Precincts two and four vote at Amerman Elementary and precinct six votes at Moraine Elementary. Paper ballots will be used in the election.

Absentee ballots may be obtained between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. from the School Administration Office.

Renewal of the three mills for a period of five years is expected to produce $387,000 for operation, based on the district's state equalized valuation (SEV) of $126,000.

Superintendent Raymond Spear said the district "cannot maintain the current program for the 1974-75 school year with 300 more students and 18 more teachers without the renewal of the millage." School Board President Stanley Johnston added that the district "needs the three mill renewal if we are to keep pace with costs."

"SEV is up and we derive more income from the three mills," Johnston added, but "we spend all of the SEV increase with the increasing

Township Board Decides Tuesday

May Ask 1-Mill for Operation

Decision on whether or not Northville Township will seek a one-mill increase in operating funds for the 1974-75 budget year is expected to be made by trustees Tuesday.

If approved by trustees, the millage request would be placed before voters in the April 23 special election along with the three-mill proposed levy for creation of a public safety department.

Trustee John MacDonald, who asked that a decision be made Tuesday following the board's settlement day meeting, said the issue "must be resolved before April 23 and put on the ballot."

"We should get authorization for a half, one or one and one-half mill levy before we get ourselves in a bind in October or November."

"If we place it on the August primary ballot, candidates will be tied to the issue," he continued, "and if it fails, we have shut the door on possible options by asking that late." MacDonald added that September is the deadline for deciding what millage a government will levy.

First draft of a proposed budget presented to trustees at their meeting Tuesday night showed expenditures at $457,500 and revenues of an estimated $360,700.

"The difference in revenues and expenditures is a significant amount," MacDonald said. Trustee Richard Mitchell said that most of the proposed $122,600 budget for the police department "can come out of the public safety millage if approved by voters."

Supervisor Lawrence Wright said that if the township seeks operational millage it will not be levied until the December, 1974, tax notices and "we may have to go into deficit."

State to Check Petitions Next

Validating of annexation petitions probably will take place "within a month or two," spokesmen for the Michigan Boundary Commission have informed petitioners.

And, depending upon the outcome of the validation procedure, it appears the public hearing on the question of annexation of the Township of Northville to the City of Northville will take place in July or August.

Petitioners learned these possibilities upon filing petitions containing 1,089 signatures in Lansing last Thursday morning.

The procedure now calls for the state to check with city

Northville's Elizabeth Beard

She Paddles Her Own Canoe

By JEAN DAY

Because it "looked like spring" one of Northville's most avid canoeists last Thursday hoisted her 13-foot aluminum canoe atop her car and headed for Proud Lake recreation area.

Miss Elizabeth Beard thinks she may have been the first canoeist on the Huron River this year. While it may be remarkable that this first is chalked up by a woman, it's an even greater distinction that the honor goes to a woman who admits to being almost 70 years old!

"But I feel exactly as I did when I was 20 years old," explains Miss Beard who canoed with her friend, Miss Louisa Lockeman of Grosse Pointe.

The two met in the 1940's during World War II when Miss Beard read a newspaper article about the Michigan Canoe Club of which Miss Lockeman was president.

Miss Beard recalls that she learned to canoe while a student at University of Michigan. Since then, she claims, she has canoed over the years at some time during every month of the year.

The Rifle River near Omer, Michigan, was a canoe-camping location for an outing Miss Beard headed when she served as Girl Scout leader for a high school troop in which her niece, Nancy Beard, was a member.

"All the nature lore that my children learned, they learned from Aunt Betsy," declared

Miss Beard's sister-in-law, Mrs. Paul Beard.

With another brother, Allen, Miss Beard owns an island consisting of an acre of land in Georgian Bay. There's a cabin with a hand-pump and a "chic-sales" outhouse on it, Miss Beard notes while relating how one reaches the spot in a rented boat.

In addition to camping out in the primitive setting, Miss Beard includes her sleeping bag when she takes off for Washington, D.C., as she did last month.

A national board member of LAOS, a voluntary member of overseas service of the Methodist denomination, Miss Beard attended a board meeting February 10-16.

Because the organization had been donated a large home for its headquarters in Washington, Miss Beard took her sleeping bag to sleep upstairs in sleeping quarters "with the other kids."

She first became a volunteer in the organization during the 30 years she worked at Maybury Sanatorium as secretary to Dr. W. Leonard Howard, the director.

A staff physician, Dr. Wilbur Steininger, and his wife learned of the work of LAOS in Bolivia in South America, in a medical magazine and served a volunteer stint there.

When they returned, Miss Beard took a six-week leave in 1964 and "wrote the thank you notes for gifts as a missionary wife doesn't have time for that amenity."

Explaining that many special advanced gifts are sent missions from individual donors, Miss Beard says the missionary's wife in this region near Lake Titicaca 30 miles from LaPaz was too busy "being everything else including auto mechanic" to write notes.

Miss Beard was there long enough, she mentions with satisfaction, to see her notes bring in additional funds.

The nature lover also recalls that the State of Michigan also had aided the Lake Titicaca region by stocking the waters with Michigan trout. "I've rarely seen such fish as grew in that high altitude," she remembers.

Before the organization moved to Washington, LAOS was located in Jackson, Mississippi, and Miss Beard also offered her services there doing the "chore-type" jobs of filing and sorting. She still returns to Jackson to help friends there.

Because it happened just before she left last fall on a trip to Mississippi, Miss Beard almost had forgotten that Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority with which she had affiliated during her days at U of M. had honored her as a 50-year member.

Before attending the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Miss Beard used to catch the interurban to attend high school in Detroit. In those days the train ran out Eight Mile Road, she recalls.

Both she and Mrs. E. A. Chapman, a lifelong friend, affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma, but, says the youthful senior citizen again, "I feel just the same as I did when I was a one-year member!"

In Our Town

By JEAN DAY

PROGRESSIVE DINNERS are being held for Saturday, March 23, by both Northville Newcomers Club and its group for former members, Northville Alumni.

"It's pure coincidence that we both chose the same evening," notes Mrs. Kent Mathes, an alumni planner.

Newcomers Club, which is limiting its dinner to 60 couples, is "coding" reservations, explains Mrs. George Kausler, president, so that groups gathering at one home for punch join different ones for dinner for maximum mingling.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Willoughby and Mr. and Mrs. William Bohan are punch party hosts.

Hosting the dinners are the Ray Riddels, the Kauslers, Robert Holloways, Albert Geislers, Richard Bohns, James Nields, Ransom Halls, William Rasmussens and the Howard Fithians, who are party chairmen.

The groups will mix again for dessert at the homes of the Jarrie Kissels and the Robert Wobermins.

The gourmet evening is to begin with the punch and hors d'oeuvres at 7:30 p.m. At 9 p.m. dinner of onion soup, spinach salad and chicken tetrazinni with wine will be served.

Reservations at $7 a couple are to be made with Margie Fithian, 349-5736.

NORTHVILLE NEWCOMERS Alumni will welcome all interested former Newcomer Club members at the dinner which will begin with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. William Craig on Fonner Court east.

Dinner hosts will be the Harry Hartshornes, William Mahers, Kent Matheses and Fred Millards. After dinner, about 10 p.m. the group will continue on to the Kenneth Rosselots.

Reservations at $3 a couple for cocktails and a potluck dish are to be made with Sandy Craig, 349-5562, or Shirley Millard, 349-5556. Deadline is March 18.

Former Newcomers interested in remaining on alumni lists are asked to register with Mrs. Mathes.

FASHIONSCOPE '74 is an upcoming activity for the women's group of Northville Newcomers. It is to be held from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. next Wednesday, March 20 the first day of spring at the Drawbridge.

Fashions by Claire Kelly will be modeled by the following members: Mrs. Edward Perpich, also party chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Spade, Mrs. Thomas Hanson, Mrs. Charles Peltz, Mrs. Bruce Pegrum, Mrs. Jesse Gerrard, Mrs. Jarrie Kissel and Mrs. Glenn Hague. Coffries will be by Bellas.

Reservations to a limit of 150 are being taken now by Mary Jane Hague, 349-6125.

For the April 17 meeting, landscaping and gardening tips will be presented by Milo Hunt of Green Ridge Nursery.

Newcomers Club also has set a May 4 date for its dinner dance to be held at Meadowbrook Country Club. Guests and former newcomers are invited.

All residents of Northville are welcomed by the Newcomers Club for any three of the first five years they live in the community, explains Mrs. Kausler. She adds that spring sports, including golf and tennis as well as men's softball leagues are starting.

NORTHVILLE HIGH School's Jazz Ensemble under the direction of Robert Williams will be presenting the program for the final meeting of Northville's Woman's Club, a tureen luncheon at 12:30 p.m. this Friday at Northville First Presbyterian Church.

Northville High School has had a jazz ensemble group every year for 20 years under Director Williams.

"I feel the blues and jazz idioms are unique contributions to music," he explains, mentioning that his own involvement with dance and jazz groups began as he played every night and Sundays when he was a student at Northwestern High School in Detroit.

"It's a marvelous experience for any musician," he points out. He adds that most of the materials, music and equipment for the Northville High jazz ensemble has been earned by members of the group playing at dances and jazz shows.

The ensemble has performed at many benefits for area groups.

"We are anxious to bring back the live performing ensembles to the public," Williams says. He received his BA degree from Wayne State University and his master's degree from University of Michigan.

A veteran of the Marine Corps with service in the Pacific in China, Japan and Korea, he came to the Northville schools in 1953.

He will be introduced by Mrs. Donald Williams of the program committee. Mrs. E.F. Maloney and Mrs. Roman Pawlowski are luncheon chairmen.

The regular meeting of the club will follow the luncheon and program. New officers then will be elected at the annual meeting which concludes the afternoon's business and the club's 81st year.

'COMPANION' GARDENING was introduced to members of the Northville branch Woman's National Farm and Garden Association at a meeting Monday at the home of Mrs. Rahsan Anisoglu.

The program, "Ecology Around the House and Garden," was presented by Mrs. James van Buren and Mrs. J.J. Demott.

"Marigolds, they suggested, can border a vegetable garden and keep rabbits out. Plants of the onion family, they continued, can be grown near lettuce and tomatoes for protection. Herbs can be grown in home gardens, the speakers advised, and mixed together to replace moth balls.

Such vegetables as bean sprouts may be grown on moist paper toweling right in the kitchen in only 10 days, they instructed.

Mrs. Warner Krause exhibited braided and crocheted rugs and told how to make them from fabric scraps. Purses, placemats and stuffed animals also were shown.

Mrs. I.M. McLeon was chairman of the day, assisted by Mrs. Gerald Gernet, Mrs. Lee Laruwe, Mrs. Harry Hartshorne and Mrs. Richard Kelly.

A December 5 date for its popular Greens Mart has been announced by the branch.

Mrs. Gene Cushing, branch president, with Mrs. William Weidner, Mrs. Warner Krause, and Mrs. Charles Herbstreit attended a winter council meeting of the Michigan Division, Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, in Somerset Inn in Troy.

This senior citizen enjoys nature along the Huron.

Fete Marian Kellogg At Retirement

MARIAN KELLOGG

Mrs. Marian Kellogg, 310 Orchard Drive, has retired after 22 years of service in the accounting office of Northville State Hospital.

She was feted by more than 40 fellow employees and friends at a retirement dinner on Saturday, March 10 at the Danish Club of Detroit.

Joining the hospital as the cashier a few months after it opened in 1952, she saw the population increase from about 50 to 2,200 patients. Now, however, with the possibility of shorter periods of inpatient care and an increased use of community resources, the inpatient population has been reduced to only 750 with an increased emphasis on aftercare services.

In her latest position as an account executive, Mrs. Kellogg, with other staff members of the accounting office, also was responsible for the maintenance of the accounting records of the more recently established Northville Residential Training Center on the hospital grounds.

"Travel and northern vacations in our cottage, with visits at the cottage by two daughters and their families are among my retirement plans," she told friends attending the dinner.

Vegetarians Offer Class In Cooking

An opportunity to "beat the high cost of meat and reduce saturated fats in your diet" is offered in upcoming vegetarian cooking classes.

The cooking school idea originated with Dr. Arthur Weaver, associate professor of surgery at Wayne State University and a Northville resident of Ridge Court.

Better known for his anti-smoking activities, Dr. Weaver is a life-long vegetarian. His wife, Natalie, is a certified cooking school instructor for the public health association of the Seventh Day Adventists.

Open also to those who are not vegetarians, the cooking school is a public service of the Adventist school. Preparation of protein vegetarian entrees will be demonstrated.

Topics include "A Balanced Diet and Physical Vigor," "Abundant Proteins from Vegetable Sources," "Facts and Fallacies about Fats," "Weighing What You Want to Weigh" and "Exciting Ways with Vegetables."

Donations will be received to cover cost of materials.

After what they've done to some kid's feet hanging's too good for them.

It's criminal how shoes with so many beautiful memories can do such ugly things. But that's how they're built. Baby shoes with features that actually harm a baby's foot. Maybe the other shoe makers don't know how to meet the critical needs of a child's growing foot. But Jumping-Jacks does. And that's why we believe in them. They construct shoes according to these needs. Like Jumping-Jacks' "Cuddlers" with their one-piece moccasin construction that covers the bottom, wraps around the sides, and securely cradles baby's foot. And they're unlined. So the shoe is softer, lighter, and more flexible letting baby's foot breathe. We have Jumping-Jacks for both boys and girls, from tots to pre-teens. And we know how to measure and fit Jumping-Jacks the right way. When your baby outgrows that special pair of Jumping-Jacks shoes, we hope you will hang them. Not only for the right things they've done, but for all the wrong things they haven't.

Novi Fights Off Rising Waters As Run-off Swells Walled Lake

Combination of a large and sudden spring thaw along with heavy rains last week led to a situation which threatened parts of Novi with near-flood conditions.

Several roads were washed out, the dam at the south end of Meadowbrook Lake suffered extensive damage, and the high waters along the shores of Walled Lake led to sandbagging operations and the evacuation of two threatened homes.

By Monday, however, Administrative Assistant Edward Kriewall told the Novi City Council that conditions had "stabilized".

"We're just hoping that we don't get any more rain," Kriewall added.

Most of the problems were connected with the Walled Lake arm of the Huron-Rouge system which receives a major portion of Novi's storm water run-off. The Walled Lake arm flows south from Walled Lake through Walled Lake Creek into Meadowbrook Lake and then south into Northville.

Another flooding problem across Grand River, east of Novi Road - was not related to the other problems. Kriewall reported that the flooding across Grand River was apparently caused by an Oakland County Road Commission storm sewer which failed to operate.

When attempts to unplug the sewer failed, the county road commission filled the road with slag to bridge the water which was approximately three feet deep in spots.

As a result of the flooding problems, the council is discussing plans to contact the Oakland County Drain Commission to ask for a complete review of Novi's drainage problems.

Noting that the Drain Commission is presently preparing plans for the Patnales Drain which will flow from the east into Meadowbrook Lake, Councilman Louie Campbell called for the commission to extend its study to the Walled Lake arm.

"In order to do a responsible job with run-off into Meadowbrook Lake, the effects of the other major tributary must be considered," stated Campbell.

"If we hope to provide for adequate drainage, the entire upstream situation must be clarified."

Mayor Robert Daley noted that the run-off problem will become worse in the future as Novi and surrounding communities continue to develop. "If we don't study the situation properly now, we'll be letting ourselves in for much more serious flooding problems in the years ahead," he commented.

According to Kriewall, the problems with the Walled Lake arm were created by an unusually early and unusually sudden spring thaw. "We got a lot of snow during the winter and the thaw hit suddenly so that we received a great deal of run-off all at one time," said Kriewall.

"Walled Lake is a relatively large body of water which provides storm drainage for a substantial portion of southwest Oakland County," he added.

The problem was already becoming evident as early as a week ago Monday.

Run-off from Walled Lake is directed into Walled Lake Creek through five tubes which run under South Lake Drive. By Tuesday, however, it became obvious that the five tubes were not able to handle the increased run-off fast enough to prevent Walled Lake from flooding, and three additional tubes were inserted under the road by the Novi DPW.

Even with the additional tubes, however, Walled Lake overflowed its banks. Water covered sections of South Lake Drive and the Novi DPW secured sand bags from the Civil Defense officials and the Oakland County Road Commission which were used by citizens to fortify homes in the area threatened by high water.

The problem continued to get worse through Wednesday and Thursday as steady rains contributed to the problems created by the run-off from the spring thaw.

The effects of the heavy run-off were felt all along the Walled Lake arm.

Kriewall reported that by Friday there was some concern that the dam at the south end of Meadowbrook Lake would not be able to withstand the heavy load.

The dam was fortified by the DPW department to prevent the erosion which was eating at the earthen sides of

Ditching Gets Emphasis

Council Adopts Road Program

A tentative program for improving the condition of Novi roads was adopted by the Novi City Council Monday.

Primary emphasis of the program will be placed on upgrading road maintenance, by providing proper drainage through an extensive ditching program. Financing is to come from the one mill road fund approved by Novi voters in the spring election of 1972.

Specifically, the council by a 5-1 margin adopted the report and recommendations made by the Road and Sewer and Water committees following a meeting held last Thursday in the city offices.

"We sat down with the idea that we weren't going to leave until we had hammered out some kind of definite road program for the city and that's exactly what we did," commented Councilman Louie Campbell who submitted the report.

Others present at the meeting, which began at 4 p.m. and lasted approximately five hours, were Councilwoman Romaine Roethel, City Manager Harold Saunders, Administrative Assistant Edward Kriewall, DPW Superintendent Robert Shaw, Road Improvement Committee Chairman Russell Stroud, and Russell Button.

Number one on the list of recommendations submitted by the committee and adopted by the council was the rebidding and purchase of a ditching machine.

Earlier this year the council had advertised and received bids for a hydraulic excavator (ditching machine) at the request of DPW Head Shaw. Opposition to the purchase of the piece of equipment by several councilmen, however, resulted in no action being taken on those bids.

Shaw told the council at the time that the excavator could be used to cut ditches along more than 20 miles of roads immediately with only minimal clearing and brushing operations required.

Other recommendations submitted by the committee and adopted by the council were:

• hiring three additional men on a temporary basis for the sole purpose of implementing the ditching program; and

• financing of the program (salaries, materials, etc.) to come from the one mill road fund.

The committee further recommended that the roads in the northern section of the city be given top priority. Upon completion of ditching and graveling operations in the North End, Shaw will determine which roads in the rest of the city will receive priority treatment using present maintenance costs, traffic volume, and hazardous conditions as criterion.

The lone dissenting ballot in the 5-1 vote for adoption of the report was cast by Councilman Edwin Presnell who stated that he had no objection to the rebidding of the excavator, but was opposed to the program.

Voting in favor of the program were Mayor Robert Daley, Councilwoman Roethel, and Councilmen George Athas, Philip Goodman, and Campbell. Councilman Denis Berry was not present at Monday's session.

Intermediate School Boards OK Annexation of 237 Acres to Novi

Annexation of 237 acres of property within the Northville School District to the Novi School District was approved without dissent by the joint intermediate school boards of Oakland and Wayne counties Tuesday afternoon.

The decision becomes effective July 1.

Two parcels are involved, both of which are located on the south side of 10 Mile Road between Taft and Novi roads. They include the 160-acre parcel owned by the Novi school district at the corner of Taft and 10 Mile, and a 77-acre parcel located on the eastern edge of this Novi school property and owned by a group of persons represented by Leonard Herman.

The 160-acre parcel is to become the site of a new comprehensive Novi High School and a municipal office-library development. The 77-acre parcel is zoned for residential development.

Interestingly, chairing the meeting of the joint intermediate boards was LaVerne DeWaard, president of the Novi Board of Education and a member of the Oakland County Intermediate Board. Although he chaired the meeting he was unable, under state law, to vote. Thus, with four members absent, the vote was 5 to 0 in favor of annexation with one abstention (that of DeWaard).

The expected protest by the Northville Board of Education to the annexation petition did not materialize because Monday night Northville decided to withdraw opposition if Novi agreed the annexation would be the first of a two-phase effort to straighten out the school boundaries.

The two-phase concept was already part of the Novi plan, which calls for the 9½ mile line to become the common boundary of the school districts west of Novi Road. According to DeWaard, the Novi board intends to petition for annexation to the 9½ mile line as soon as, or perhaps before, the new high school is completed.

(Occupancy of that new high school, which is still in the educational specification stage, is still two years away. Incidentally, a public meeting is planned tonight (Thursday) in the high school commons on proposed specifications. Parents wishing to learn more about proposals for this school are urged to attend this 7:30 p.m. meeting.)

Following meetings with residents of the Northville district who live north of 10 Mile Road, Northville Superintendent Raymond Spear said he believed the "citizens would support the transfer if it was the first of two phases and certain conditions were met."

A handful of people who live north of 10 Mile Road attended the Monday night meeting of the Northville board and said they favored the second phase of drawing the line between districts at 9½ Mile Road.

Conditions favored by the Northville board and residents are being con-

SANDBAGGING—An unidentified Novi resident labors over a row of sandbags which were laid last Wednesday in an attempt to keep rising water from Walled Lake away from homes along South Lake Drive. More than 40 residents pitched in to assist with the sandbagging operations which alleviated flood damage only slightly.

Willowbrook Homeowners Renew Fight

Claiming that promises of home repairs made six months ago have not been kept, members of the Willowbrook Community Association have asked the Novi City Council to stop construction in Willowbrook Subdivision Number Two.

Object of their ire is Dave Pink, president of Commonwealth Enterprises which is constructing the new subdivision.

"We met with Dave Pink six months ago and he promised that our complaints regarding ditching and home repairs would be taken care of," charged John Beech, a Willowbrook resident.

"It's been six months now and that work has still not been finished. We are now demanding that the council take action to force Mr. Pink to live up to those commitments."

The request from the Willowbrook Community Association that Pink be shut down by the council reopened an issue which received a good deal of council attention last summer.

At that time the Willowbrook homeowners complained that Pink had not properly installed the ditching and water was standing stagnant in the ditches.

After several weeks of discussion, the council decided to withhold certificates of occupancy from Pink until the ditching problems were taken care of. Pink then went to court to force the city to release its hold on the certificates of occupancy.

The matter was supposedly resolved early in October at a meeting between city representatives, Willowbrook residents, and Pink.

According to Beech, however, promises made by Pink in that meeting have not been kept and the homeowners are now requesting that the council take stronger action.

Beech told the council Monday that he had a tape recording of the promises made by Pink at that meeting. His statements were supported by Councilwoman Romaine Roethel who said Monday that "some of the wildest promises you ever heard" were made by Pink at the meeting.

Dennis Wolcott, president of the Willowbrook Community Association, told the council that the homeowners are requesting the action at this time because Pink is now bringing in dirt to fill adjacent flood plain in preparation for new construction.

"Since a number of the present home owners are residing in their homes with temporary occupancy certificates," said Wolcott in a Mayor Gilbert C. Willis announced Tuesday that a three year lease was signed last week with the Board of Commissioners of Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority for parcels 43 and 44, the area behind the VFW hall.

The property runs north to Glengary Road and is adjacent to Hickory Hills subdivision. Leased for $1, it is subject to restriction against any permanent structure being built.

The first public announcement of the new recreational property came as David Ladd, president of the new Wixom Jaycees organization, and Kathy Nelson, auxiliary president, offered the services of members to the community. Other Jaycees and auxiliary members were introduced.

Earlier Bill Wade on behalf of the Jaycees presented a jar of jelly to the mayor, who proclaimed March 17-31 as Jaycees Jelly Week with jars to be sold at $1 in the community for aid of handicapped and disadvantaged children. Mayor Willis then asked the

Novi Youth Wins Scouting's Highest Award

Novi's First Eagle Scout Exhibits Stamp Collection Project

Fifteen-year old Kerry Fear won scouting's highest honor when he was presented his Eagle Scout award at a special Court of Honor Monday night.

He is the first Novi scout ever to earn the award.

A sophomore at Novi High School, Fear has been in scouting for four years and has been working specifically for his Eagle Scout award for the past two years.

In order to qualify for the award, a scout must earn 21 merit badges, serve as troop leader for six months, and plan and carry out a conservation and a community service project. Once those requirements have been completed, the applicant must appear before a board of review for an oral examination.

If his application is accepted, it is forwarded to national boy scout headquarters in Brunswick, New Jersey, for final review and approval.

George Brand, district executive for the Ottawa district of the Clinton Valley Boy Scout Council, reported that only one out of every 100 scouts ever attains the Eagle award and that only one out of every three boys in the United States ever becomes a scout.

"When you consider that only one of every 300 boys in this country ever wins an Eagle Scout award, you have to be impressed," commented Brand.

'Let's Recognize, Solve Problems'

"The main thing is that we recognize we have problems and let's get on and solve them," Northville School Board vice president Martin Rinehart commented Monday during a discussion of student discipline problems. His remark was triggered by a reply from Superintendent Raymond Spear to a question from Trustee Andrew Orphan. Orphan said he believed it was "wrong that we had to be informed (of student law violations) by the police department or parents" and that "there's a break-down in school communications." Spear challenged Orphan's comments, maintaining neither statement was true and that he was "not ready to accept that we are guilty of serious crimes. I will accept that we have problems." Orphan added that some of the "same problems being voiced now by principals came from board members six years ago." Board President Stanley Johnston said that if that is true, the whole board is then guilty of not solving them. He added that the "biggest problem is parents knowing facts and not passing them on." Spear said he has met with building administrators and will be setting up another meeting to discuss student law violations with the city police department.

The class will meet at the Newman House, south of the campus on Haggerty Road, beginning April 2. It will meet for eight weeks on Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

Developed as result of last summer's popular community gardening project, and a need for garden instruction, the course will be taught by Robert Treadway. He will be using a garden plot at the Newman House for demonstration during class sessions.

Various topics are to be included in the course: The concept of organic gardening, methods of composting, soil preparation, organic methods for pest control, use of mulch, crop selections, and literature of organic gardening.

Individuals may register by calling the Registrar's office at 591-6400, ext. 225. Tuition is $11 for residents, $22 for non-residents, and payment should be received prior to the first class session. Class size will be limited to 20 students.

For Salem's New Ordinance

Zoning Book Ready

In last week's Tuesday night's meeting of Salem Township Board Supervisor Philip Brandon reported that Salem's new zoning ordinance books were now available to the public. The charge per book will be $1.

Investigation at the meeting, however, revealed that there were at least two printing errors in the copies which have been printed so far. One mistake, according to Commissioner Floyd Taylor, occurred in the coloring of a map, the other in the omission of a map at the end of the book.

Taylor pointed out that the error in the coloring of the map could be corrected with a stencil and that an insert page containing the missing map could correct the other mistake.

Brandon reported that a meeting he attended with Washtenaw County Road Commission revealed that high road costs would mean Salem Township "was a long way from becoming paved."

"Chloride is up 9 cents a gallon over 8 cents last year," said Brandon. "It keeps going up every year and it's costing the township a lot of money."

Brandon said that discussion at the meeting indicated that it would cost the township $20,000 per mile just to seal roads in the area.

The supervisor pointed out that sealing was a different process than black topping which was a more permanent solution to road problems.

"I doubt if the sealing would last more than five years under optimum conditions," said Brandon. "The important thing is that road improvement is under discussion."

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Cergol appeared before the board to complain about swamp drainage on their property located on 8701 Chubb Road.

"According to the Cergols the owner of Salem Airport has been filling adjacent property in the back of the airfield with junk, causing about three acres of the Cergols' land to flood.

"The owner of the airport has thrown all kinds of junk in there to fill in his land," claimed Mrs. Cergol. "Other people's property has flooded too."

Supervisor Brandon pointed out that the Department of Natural resources should be contacted for information and action on the drainage problem. The township would, however, he said, investigate the Cergols' claim that discarded junk and machinery was being used to fill in the area.

The Cergols also complained of dogs running at large in their area. Cergol stated that his child had recently been bitten by a dog running loose in their neighborhood.

Supervisor Brandon pointed out that county dog catchers were understaffed and the township did not have the funds to hire a full time dog catcher of its own. However, he noted that there could be an arrangement of cooperative action between neighboring townships to hire a full time dog catcher and share his services.

the dam. Water flowing over the top of the dam flooded Nine Mile Road and forced re-routing of traffic.

An auxiliary police officer was assigned to remain at the dam Friday night and Saturday to keep an eye on developments. The problem reached a peak Saturday as additional sand bags were placed along the north side of South Lake Drive to prevent further encroachment of the waters on the homes on the south side of the road.

Mayor Robert Daley reported Monday that conditions had reached a point Friday and Saturday at which some consideration was given to requesting emergency help.

In his report to the council Monday, Kriewall noted that the level of Meadowbrook

Lake had receded two feet from its receded limit Saturday," he stated, "although had it broken loose most of the water would have been confined to open land.

"We think we're on top of the problem," he added. "But we sure hope we don't get any more rain."

Church Construction Uncovers the Past

By JEAN DAY

While building for the future, First Baptist Church of Northville has unearthed records of its 139-year-old past.

Stored in a cardboard box in a closed-in area beneath back stairs for many years, the records include a handwritten church constitution which the Reverend Cedric Whitcomb thinks probably is the original.

Also in the box was a slim volume entitled "The Life and Experiences of Nathan Noyes." He was founder and first pastor of the church. His little book was written in 1845 and "tendered to his friends."

Included in the records from the past are missionary circle minutes in varying scripts through the years, a church handbook of 1897, budgets and histories, including a year-by-year index that a previous historian compiled, probably in the 1930's when the box may have been stored and forgotten.

The box came to light as workmen removed the rear of the present church for the addition. When it is completed, the pastor points out, the three houses behind the church will be razed. Owned by the church, they presently are being used for Sunday school classes.

Pastor Whitcomb, who came to the church in 1969, reports also that workmen have found the bell in the tower to be sound. The old ladder leading to the tower, he found, is constructed of tree limbs. A bell spire is planned for the bell, which dates to 1879.

When it is housed in the new spire, the bell again will ring, Pastor Whitcomb says. The new construction will be designed to blend with the present New England look of the church.

The original design probably was influenced by the first minister's coming from Vermont, Reverend Whitcomb points out.

In his autobiography, Noyes relates that he arrived from Vermont in April, 1833, and obtained a house near Northville two miles west of town where it was "entirely wild."

Born in 1784, Noyes at the time was 49. The records show that the church was organized in February 1835 with 17 members. The names of Justin Noyes, Henry Knapp, Joseph Eddy, D. Quick, Elnathan Canfield, Susanna

Noyes, Rhoda Knapp, June Rodgers, Elizabeth Munn, Orvilla Chapman, Mary Flint, Melinda Randolph and Mehitabel Chain were listed.

At the annual meeting January 14, 1836, the record continues, Nathan Noyes, Lester Sha and Ebenezer Pennel were appointed as the building committee. They were authorized to purchase a site and erect a house.

Then in 1843 on May 1 is the notation that a deed to the present half-acre site was obtained from William and Sarah Dunlap. The church was built and went through reorganization as early as 1848.

In 1852 a range of sheds was built on the north side of the church and divided into 14 stalls for horses. These were sold to the highest bidders at auction with records revealing that a corner stall sold for $21.50 while a Parmenter paid $19.75 for another.

In 1917 is the brief notation that the sheds were removed and sold for $100—the automobile era must have arrived.

Yearly reports show other signs of progress, as, in 1880, "electric light bills are to be met by everyone bringing a penny to prayer meeting."

Basic policies also were recorded yearly.

In 1859 it was decided that all seats would be free.

In 1863 it was agreed that "those not attending regularly would be looked upon as not walking with the church...and the hand of fellowship be withdrawn."

In 1864 Reverend Mosher's annual salary is raised to $500 and the church "looked over the village assessor's book and each member was taxed according to the value of his property."

In 1889 envelopes were instituted for collections.

In 1895 individual cups were first used for the Lord's Supper.

Old budgets, too, were in the box, showing, Pastor Whitcomb says, how the church "operated on a dab of money."

As late as 1926, the minister earned $1,500 a year while the janitor was paid $180. A year's heat and light cost $200, however, and toilets were installed for $225.

Right now the records are being kept at the manse as Pastor Whitcomb hopes to be able to give them more detailed study as he has time.

Pastor Cedric Whitcomb examines old records uncovered in remodeling.

John Wilson Nominated As Intern

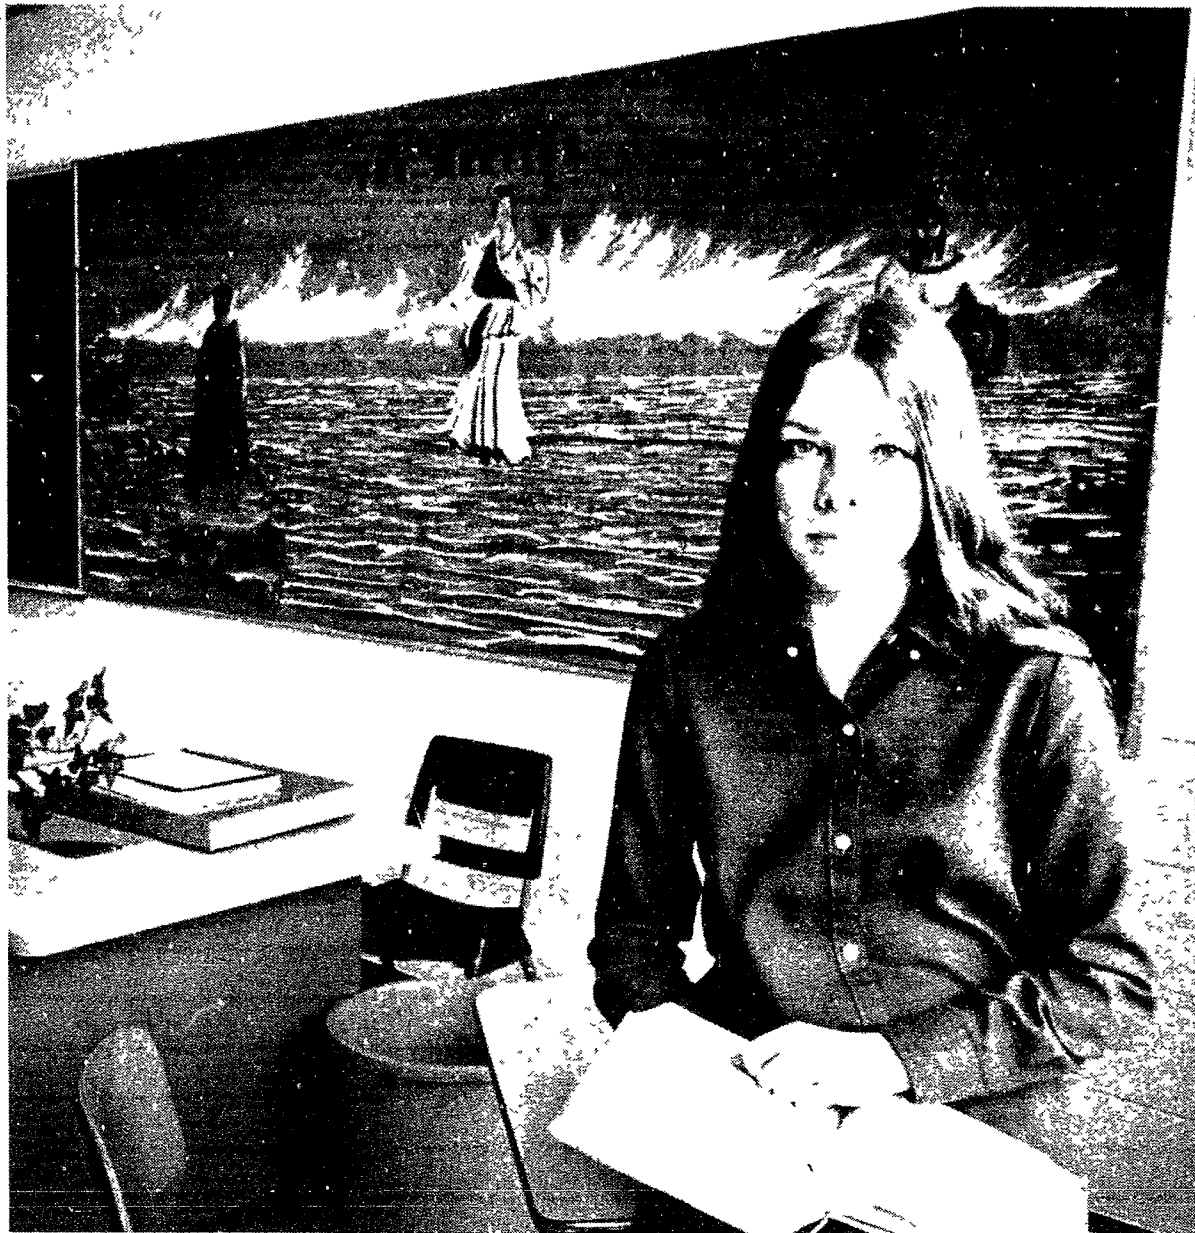

Two Madonna College students, John Wilson of Northville and Marsha Vick of Silver Springs, Maryland, have been nominated to serve summer "internships" in Washington, D.C. as employees of the Department of the Air Force.

If selected from among nominees representing several colleges throughout the country, they will receive on-the-job training in functions of the Congressional Legislation Division and participate in its relationships with the Executive offices of the president and vice president and the Congress. They will receive college credit for the successful completion of the internship.

To be nominated, students were required to have a scholastic average of not less than 3.25, be of junior status and possess excellent communication skills and research abilities. They would also be subject to a limited security check.

Wilson, a pre-law student, and Miss Vick, who majors in social sciences, were selected by the College curriculum policy committee from nominations made by faculty and were approved by the Administration.

Final selection will be made by the Department of the Air Force.

'ODYSSEY' PROJECT — For her student project on the "Odyssey", Paige Lysinger designed and painted a bulletin board for the ninth grade classroom. A student in Mrs. Nancy Brown's English class, Paige's project depicts the meeting of Odysseus and Telemachus. Other student projects included skits, plays and papier mache figures, all showing creatively that they understood the book.

Wixom Studies Recreation

First steps toward a recreation land acquisition program were taken by Wixom city council in a special study meeting last Thursday.

A recreation land feasibility study committee headed by Councilman Robert Dingley was instructed to determine locations of small vacant lots within the city, usually in subdivisions, and to determine legal feasibility of obtaining these and Edison right-of-way properties.

Council also asked for a recreational use plan for the neighborhood lots as play areas for children and parks for senior citizens.

Utilization of the small unused lots throughout the community was the first recommendation in a report made last month by the study committee which also called for a long-range purchase of a large piece of recreation land.

In other action the council voted against having a council member as a member of the planning commission. Dr. Val VanGieson pointed out that to do so gives "two shots (votes) at the same item by one person."

After a discussion of whether planning commission members should be paid, it was voted to have the city clerk poll members of all three city commissions — parks and recreation, board of appeals and planning — to determine their feelings on the subject.

letter to the council, "and little has been done by the builder to correct the present errors, we are asking the city to stop all construction until these problems are rectified." The council was also presented with a survey conducted by the association which alleged that 85 percent of the homes in Willowbrook Number Two have cracked basement walls, 75 percent have water leaking in the basement, 52 percent have plumbing problems, 52 percent have grading problems, 23 percent have problems with brick work, 25 percent have roofing problems, 42 percent have driveway problems, and 67 percent have problems with ditch drainage.

Steve DuLac, another Willowbrook resident present at Monday's council meeting, told the council that he was tired of "getting the run-around from everyone".

Novi Jaycees Set Kite-Flying Contest

Novi's Jaycees will sponsor a kite-flying contest this Saturday (March 16) to kick off their second annual "Jaycee Jelly Week" campaign.

Jaycees will distribute free kites and string as long as supplies last to youngsters from 10 a.m. to 12 noon this Saturday in the field at the corner of 10 Mile and Meadowbrook roads.

Prizes will be given in a variety of categories that include "first airborne kite" and "highest flying kite".

The kite flying festivities will serve to announce the official beginning of Jaycee Jelly Week — a state-wide Jaycee project designed to raise funds for emotionally and physically handicapped children.

Goal of the state-wide Jaycee organization is to raise some $200,000, while the Novi Jaycees have set a goal of selling 2,400 jars of jelly.

Profits from the jelly sold by the local Jaycees will be turned over to the Novi Community School District to improve special education facilities.

Jelly costs $1 per jar and can be ordered from any Jaycee or by contacting Harvey Larson at 349-7225. The Jaycees also invite any Novi citizens or service organizations to help them in their campaign.

your product proves no good, we're out a million bucks."

(Jerry Atwelle is not the inventor's real name. His real name is being withheld by request.—Ed.)

"We're not afraid to shoot craps, but you can't expect us to go into something like this blindly," said an aide who was suggesting Atwelle should share more of his secret ingredients to give his incredulous claim more validity.

Atwelle, obviously outclassed by these corporate sophisticates, bristled at the hint that he (the inventor) might be less than completely honest about his invention. "Look, my product works, I'm absolutely convinced of that and you ought to be, too.

Didn't you see it work?"

"Sure, sure, Jerry, don't misunderstand me," said the board chairman. "You must understand our side also. You come to us with something like this...you must appreciate the position it places us in. Fuel is not even in our line of business.

"A man comes to us with a new kind of piston. Okay, so that's hardware...that's something we can see and touch. We know pretty easily if it's something we can use. But, fuel? A fuel we don't even know what it's made of? Don't you see, Jerry?"

Quite suddenly one of the aides changed the subject:

"What's your background, Jerry? I mean are you a chemist?"

When Atwelle replied no, another VP observed: "I'm not surprised; ninety percent of all inventions are made by people in areas outside their own fields."

"What do you want?" asked the board chairman, quickly shifting subjects again.

Before the inventor replied, an aide said, "A quarter million dollars in an escrow account, some good faith money, a million dollars if everything (tests) works out, and royalties."

"What's this 'good faith' money mean?" the chairman asked an aide.

"Sir, I've borrowed $17,000 to keep this going," interrupted Atwelle. "It didn't happen over night. My wife and kids put up with a lot of terrible smells before I got something to work.

"I'd like to get something out of it now so I can pay some of my bills. I'm not a rich man. I've got to live. Besides, it ought to be worth something to you to tie up my product for a year. What you people suggest means I couldn't talk to anyone until after you've satisfied yourself with the tests.

"Look, how about if you don't pay me anything while you are making the tests; just put the quarter million in escrow and give me permission to talk with the oil company (he has an appointment with a major oil company later this month)."

"Now wait, Jerry, that's not necessary. There's no need to go to the oil people. You've made a wise move coming to us. We're just the right size to give you a fair shake. The oil companies would gobble you up," the chairman said.

The conversation ended amicably, but with no decisions being made except to set a date for the next meeting.

Earlier in the day, Atwelle and a friend had driven to the handsome headquarters building in their Dodge Monaco. There, in the parking lot and under the watchful eye of the executives, Atwelle's fuel was poured into the tank.

Basic ingredient is wood alcohol. But it contains five other products, one of which is the inventor's own creation. The others are products already on the market. None is a petroleum base. It is purple in color, although Atwelle has admitted the color is artificial for protective purposes.

He has named the fuel Medoline.

The inventor has used it in his own car numerous times, but the fuel is still potentially dangerous. So the executives were understandably nervous as he poured in the Medoline. And when he had finished they suggested Atwelle get inside and fire it up first.

The engine started quickly, and they climbed in for the test ride through busy traffic.

On the freeway, no longer afraid of an explosion, someone told Atwelle, "hit it." The young inventor pushed the gas pedal hard and the car shot forward with no noticeable engine difficulty. Slow or fast the car responded equally well.

Except for the smell, from the fuel itself and from the exhaust fumes, there seemed to be no difference between Medoline and gasoline. It has a pleasant odor of "after-shave lotion."

The road test ended successfully, thoroughly amazing the corporation's top officials, who also were satisfied with tests on a new generator engine owned by the corporation.

The flash point of Medoline, and the fact that it contained no petroleum base also were checked at the corporation headquarters.

Because he is worried someone might attempt to steal his secret, Atwelle frequently takes bizarre, amateurish measures to ensure its safety. He ordered the corporation's generator engine flushed out with gasoline to remove Medoline residue.

Following lunch with the VP's, Atwelle returned to his test car parked near the headquarters entrance and carefully screwed off the gas cap.

"Nobody's been fooling around," he sighed. He had placed two match sticks inside the cap before leaving for lunch. "If somebody had tried to get a sample of my fuel, the matches would have been moved," he told the reporter.

"When it comes to a new fuel you can't trust anyone," he said.

'New Gas' Intrigues Reporter

An invention that had originated as a new carburetor 28 per cent more efficient than current models had suddenly become sidetracked by an ingredient that runs engines as well as, but more economically than, gasoline.

A cheap synthetic gasoline that just happens to come along when the nation is in the depths of a gasoline shortage accompanied by skyrocketing prices?

And you get the story in a bar?

But is it a story? Jerry doesn't want the news to leak. He's already negotiating with a major company, which is naturally publicity shy.

"I want you guys to have the story first. You're 'my' paper", says Jerry.

The reporter's skepticism was obvious to Jerry. "You don't believe me? Okay. Come with me to the next meeting. I'll introduce you as my secretary. You can watch the test, ride in the car, take notes, listen to the negotiations."

So the reporter did. And he still can't believe. But the story's too good not to report, even if it is a hoax. Because if it's all a big lie, then some mighty important and shrewd businessmen have been taken in, too.

Jerry's nonchalant about his newly-invented product, like there's no question in his mind that it will pass all test.

But the negotiations are bugging him.

He trusts no one. He's tired of playing 'cat and mouse'.

He refuses to turn his product over to anyone.

While he wouldn't object to signing an agreement that would give a specific company all rights to the use of his product for a gasoline substitute, he wants rights to the by-products and he insists upon personally conducting all tests to determine what these by-products might be...such as a substitute for home fuel oil, for example.

So Jerry is waiting for just the right agreement; one that would provide him with enough money to conclude the various tests required before the product would be declared safe and practical for broad use.

Then he wants, say, $1,000,000 for the synthetic gasoline plus royalties; and the right to pursue and sell the by-product lines.

And if the company he's negotiating with now refuses to meet his terms, he'll look elsewhere.

"I don't want a job. I'm happy doing what I'm doing...experimenting with new products", says Jerry. And he's invented a few things currently on the market. But never a potential giant, like his basement-brewed synthetic gasoline.

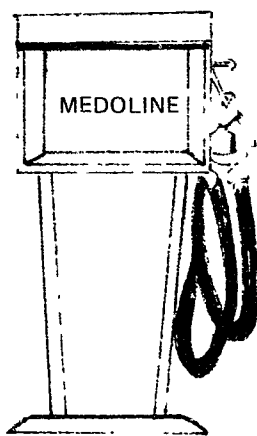

The business tycoons currently negotiating with Jerry appear to be caught up in the same paradox facing the reporter.

It can't be true; but it seems to work; it passes the tests; but it can't be true...but what if it is??

Can you afford to pass up a product...or a story...like this?

OKs Feasibility Study

Northville Township board members agreed Tuesday night to participate with the city and school board in a

LAA Baseball Teams Form

Plans for the Lakes Athletic Association's annual summer baseball program are beginning to shape up

Round-ups - at which individuals interested in playing on a team may sign up - are scheduled for Thursday, March 21, and Thursday, March 28, from 6-8 p.m. at Walled Lake Central High School

There are separate leagues for boys and girls between the ages of seven and 17 years. Last year the Lakes Athletic Association fielded approximately 60 teams as 850 boys and 470 girls participated in the program

Board Picks Rosenberg

Charles Rosenberg of Liedel Court in Highland Lakes has been appointed to the water and sewer commission to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Clifford Smith Jr.

Rosenberg's appointment was confirmed by the Northville Township board Tuesday night. Casting the lone dissenting vote was Trustee Richard Mitchell who said he objected to trustees not having the opportunity of suggesting candidates for the vacancy.

Smith's resignation, caused by increased demands of his job, was accepted with regret and trustees directed a letter of appreciation be sent to him community feasibility study. Pegged at $4,300, the township's share includes a survey of the township office facilities at the Wayne County Child Development Center. Funds will come from revenue sharing. City and school officials also have approved their portions of the $18,000 study Trustees agreed unanimously to share the cost of the study which will also cover use of the three school buildings on Main Street, school administration building, Cooke Annex and Main Street Elementary.

Recreation, library, school and senior citizen housing uses will be studied.

Several board members were cautious about participating in the study of the township hall facilities, noting that the township may have already moved in before the study is made. However, in approving the allocation of funds, trustees stipulated they wished priority in the study since they would be moving before any of the other four uses.

Trustee Richard Mitchell wondered if the township "does not have its own experts who could tell us how to use the facilities" However, other board members said the $1,860 which is pegged for the child development center building study "may save us a $5,000 mistake in remodeling."

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

Northville school district voters should support the board of education's request for the renewal of three mills at Saturday's special election.

The three-mill levy approved by voters for operational purposes five years ago expires this year.

On an overall taxpayer basis it is impossible to state whether approval of the reinstatement will or will not increase school taxes.

In fact, the question is academic. The district needs the millage to continue to operate the school system at its present level.

But it is accurate to report that in some instances property valuations have been increased; in other instances, valuations remain the same as last year. Overall, the state equalized valuation (SEV) of the school district will increase by 12 per cent or more. This hike in property values comes mostly from new building. But some of it is the result of increased property assessments in some areas of the school district.

Whatever, it means that in Northville the school district could levy the same millage as last year and receive at least 12 per cent more money for the coming school year.

So the ever-increasing property valuations accompanied by new development gives any governmental unit levying a constant tax rate against property assessments a built-in escalation of revenue.

It is the responsibility of these governing bodies, and the people who elect them, to see to it that millage levels do not necessarily remain constant.

The tax levy should represent the need, not the limit allowable.

In the city of Northville for example, the council presently is levying less than one-half its legal limit.

For three of the past four years the school district tax levy has been under its authorized limit.

In a budget as complicated as the school's it is most difficult to predict what a levy might be. State aid is a variable and so is the student count upon which such aid is based. It may be as late as July or August before a district knows for certain what it will receive in revenue from the state.

Toss teacher negotiations into the hopper and you come up with an unknown on the expense side.

But if past performances are any criteria, the Northville board has proven that it does not always levy every last mill it has the right to impose upon property owners.

This might not always be popular with teachers, who may seek either more pay or educational improvements that would cost more money.

Yet it demonstrates that the Northville board of education recognizes its responsibility to strike a medium based not upon what it has to spend, but what it believes the district requires educationally.

In 1970-71 the district levied two mills less than authorized; in 1971-72 the levy was at the maximum; in 1972-73 it was one mill under authorized; and the current year the levy is at 35.4 mills, one-half mill below the limit.

Most of the tax millage (27.98 mills this year) goes for operational expenses (7.42 for debt retirement).

And most of the operating millage has been voted a little at a time usually for five-year periods. Only 8.9 mills come to the district as its share of the county allocation.

So Saturday the board of education is asking its taxpayers to continue to provide this additional voted millage so that as much of it as needed may be levied for school operation expenses.

In my opinion the board has earned the support of taxpayers. Vote YES Saturday for the three-mill renewal for five years.

The state police complex for district headquarters, crime lab and post facilities is back on the agenda of projects for this year.

Until this week it faced possible delay in priorities established by the state budget department.

But efforts by Senator Carl Pursell and a trio of local officials preserved the project for this year's schedule.

Senator Pursell met with budget department officials last week and urged that the long-planned complex not be delayed. Some $13 million has already been allocated for the project.

And he reported that a telegram to the budget director from Township Supervisor Lawrence Wright, Mayor A.M. Allen and John Canterbury, president of the Northville Economic Development Corporation, was extremely helpful in bringing the importance of the community effort to the attention of officials.

Construction on the Seven Mile road site next to Northville State Hospital is expected to take some 14 months.

STREAKER

YOU BET . . .

Look at the streaker this way: at least it's the naked truth.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if others in our society were as candidly honest about themselves? Instead of cloaking ourselves in the image we would have others believe us to be, wouldn't honesty be better?

Just look at the hypocrisy we practice in today's society:

- We scorn porn but relish the low-cut dress.
- We ridicule street walkers but buy padded bras.
- We condemn check passers but equivocate on our 1040's.
- We abhor use of marihuana but laugh at the TV Drunk.

Yes, we buy eye shadow and lipstick and cologne and platforms and other image builders to produce artificial stature; we incur devastating mortgages to maintain neighborhood standing. Similarly, communities build stadiums to fight slums, and nations stockpile weapons to promote peace.

From the church pew to the White House, honesty unfortunately is too often supplanted by the same kind of hypocrisy that gives anonymity to this argument. No wonder we smile when the streaker flashes across the screen of our lives. The honesty of it all is refreshing.

Anonymous Streaker

NO WAY . . .

Scandalous, outrageous, ridiculous, indecent — streaking may be all these things but it's also completely impractical and sometimes even dangerous.

Consider for a moment the monetary implications of streaking. While a person might save on the wear and tear of clothes, this small advantage would be lost to the disadvantage of medication. Why? Just think of skin exposure! Windburns, sunburns and even frostbite are possible consequences. Ordinarily, a person might need cream or ointment for small parts of the body but in this case there would have to be enough for the whole body. The cost would be tremendous.

Another disadvantage would be mosquitoes on summer nights. All those mosquitoes with an entire body to bite would be enough to keep a person itching all night after a midnight run.

The advent of widespread streaking would also render some social nuances obsolete. For instance, when gals are asked out, they could no longer rely on the old standby excuse of "I haven't got a thing to wear."

In view of these things, it would be advisable to leave streaking alone; label it impractical, costly, risky, and then go out and be practical — Buy some new clothes.

Novi Plan Exciting

A master plan study has been unveiled in Novi that puts an exciting new dimension in city-school relationship. We speak of the study of the 160-acre site in the heart of the city upon which city, school and library facilities eventually are to be erected.

What is proposed is unheard of elsewhere in Michigan, and you can be sure officials throughout the state will be watching Novi closely to see if this dream becomes a reality.

The cooperative spirit between the school and the city leads us to believe the shared campus-facilities concept will indeed materialize here. Furthermore, we believe the Novi project will become a model for similar developments in other communities.

Shared use facilities are just good common sense. No longer can municipalities and school systems afford the luxury of completely separate and independent facilities.

Novi officials are to be complimented for their joint effort in commissioning a master plan that so successfully blends common uses on a single tract of land.

By JACK W. HOFFMAN

Television production may appear to be all glamor and humor on the Mary Tyler Moore Show, but in real life it's serious, exciting, hard work.

Ask Connie Tegge, daughter of Northville Township Deputy Clerk Margaret Tegge. She knows.

A native of Northville who switched from newspapering to electronic journalism after receiving her master's degree at the University of Michigan, Connie already has earned her spurs as a fine investigative reporter for WTTW, a Chicago public television station.

Carrying the title of assistant producer, she teamed up with Producer Michael Hirsh to give Chicago viewers a startling but superlatively well done documentary on the unsanitary conditions in some of the Windy City's restaurants.

The show sparked a flood of praise, including even a plaudit from the city's health commissioner whose department came under heavy fire in the documentary.

What's more, the Chicago-Illinois Restaurant Association was so impressed with the documentary it requested a tape of the program to be used as a training film.

Said The Chicago Tribune's Gary Deeb: "...the remarkable 85-minute investigative report...has to be the strongest, most determined piece of journalism ever aired on the local public station."

What did the girl, who attended Our Lady of Victory elementary School and later graduated from Ladywood High School, do?

Armed with a small still camera, she posed as a waitress for a few days to record some of the most appalling conditions ever filmed. In one place, for example, it was a contest for the food between patrons, cats, roaches and rats.

Connie, who worked two nights at the Tap Root while carrying the miniature camera, reported the cats crawling all over the place were there primarily to kill mice and rats. Cat fights are routine, she said. She recalled that one Tap Root customer amused himself by smashing cockroaches against the wall and then smearing them across his table.

The Northville girl's role as an "undercover waitress" materialized when the station got negligible cooperation from Chicago's health inspectors.

Her job and the job of her associates led The Tribune to conclude, "It's an exciting, courageous program that will gain WTTW-Channel 11 many honors and tons of respect."

Connie joined the station in September—about the same time, incidentally, that a Variety reviewer suggested the station's consumer report series "took on a harder edge, including a tough look at how used cars are sold and a delightful if limited look at toy safety..."

Before earning her MA and switching to television, she worked for awhile at The Detroit News and The Ann Arbor News.

Explains Connie's proud mom, "television has always interested her...Naturally, I was a little apprehensive about her being in a show of this kind. But I'm awfully proud of the job she did, even though I never saw it myself."

Readers Speak

She Wants Bridle Paths

To the Editor:
Why does Mr. Remer and-or the DNR continue to antagonize the local residents? It is an obvious fact that Northville and the surrounding area is "horse country" — so why do they insist upon establishing bike trails (when bridle paths already exist) in a park in the country where adults and children alike ride horses or ponies instead of bikes? I don't know what Mr. Remer observes from his house-office on Beck Road, but from my home on Napier I see at least 50 horseback riders to 1 bike rider.

Let's look at a few facts. Bikes are accepted and ridden practically everywhere — in the city, thru parks, on numerous designated bike trails, country roads, etc. Bike riders always have the option of putting their bike in their car and driving anywhere they wish to begin their ride.

In contrast, horses can be ridden only on gravel roads or on the shoulders of paved roads. To my knowledge, the closest area with bridle paths is Highland Recreation area, so all we have to do is buy a $2,000 horse trailer and hitch it to the car. Even this expensive alternative is only viable for one or two horses and riders. Riding horseback on gravel roads is dangerous and on the shoulders of paved roads even more so. Not only do some trucks, motorcyclists and cars have little or no regard for horse and rider, but every year it seems to be more popular for some of them to see how close they can come to you. I have no idea if this type of person actually realizes what a stupid dangerous "game" they are playing or if they would really like to see horse and-or rider seriously injured or killed. To help put a curb on this particular problem, I would like to see more horseback riders getting license numbers and reporting these incidents of unprovoked harassment. However, I give my thanks to the many motorists who do slow down and give horseback riders an extra few feet on the gravel roads.

Bike riding and horseback riding are both good exercise and fun, but it seems to me that bike riders have a much easier task of finding a pleasurable place to ride than the horseback rider. Therefore, I believe that Maybury State Park, which is located in an area that has more horses per acre than any state in the union, should give precedence to bridle paths over bike trails.

'Treat Annexation Fairly' He Urges

To the Editor:
Having read your editorial on March 7, 1974, I once more feel the need to impart a few of my thoughts to you concerning annexation. Or is it unification? I seem to remember your last editorial on this subject referred to unification, in spite of the fact state law makes no provision for unification.

to put your personal feelings aside and be a "reporter" of facts.

Yours truly,
Martin C. Cayley
Resident
Township of Northville

While I appreciate your obvious zeal in attempting to steer the reader in the direction which you deem correct and advantageous, I also feel that the reader might be better served if you could lead them more to a middle of the road attitude.

By presenting the facts in an unbiased and unslanted manner, regardless of your admitted failure in the past to do so, I feel you should at least try to advise your readers of "exactly" the consequences of these proceedings.

I for one can only be suspect of those who would instigate this latest effort while the law itself, regarding annexation, is indeed under investigation, your own judicial findings notwithstanding.

I can only ask that this time please try to serve the whole community and not those you deem to be "V.I.P.'s". We are all involved here and all should be treated fairly. I think if there was one lesson you could have learned from the last annexation effort was that your casting stones at certain opponents of annexation served no purpose but to add to what you describe so smoothly as "confusion and resentment" in our community.

So this time, Mr. Editor, let's play the game properly. It has been said and proven many times that people can rationalize most anything and after reading your editorial of November 29, 1973, I can believe it, but in the future try

Asks 'No' Vote Saturday

To the Editor:
Here it is, school millage election time again, and judging from the last two issues of The Northville Record, the school administration would lead us down the primrose path to believe that school income will not increase this year because the millage has remained the same. Nothing could be farther from the truth! We know that school income has gone up approximately 36 per cent during the past two years. A portion of this has resulted from new construction; but the majority of it has resulted from increased assessed valuations on existing homes and businesses. We can easily verify this from the figures on our last few tax bills.

If that has not been enough, most of us have been advised of an increase of 15 per cent to 20 per cent or more in our assessed valuations for the coming year. Complaints to our assessor bring the response that assessments are going up this way all over the area, and to maintain the same tax income, our governments and school boards should decrease the millage levied.

Recognizing that governments and school administrations will find ways to spend all available funds, we must ourselves find some way to control their spending. Fortunately, this year, the golden opportunity is before us, an opportunity to repeal a three mill school tax, and partially hold the line on this year's tax increase.

Most of us will have an increase of 15 per cent to 20 per cent or more in our property assessments this year. This is the equivalent of 5 to 7 mills. Denial of the so called three mill "renewal" will offset about half of our assessment increase and still give the school system an income increase of more than 8 per cent or 3 mills.

Let's vote no on the excessive increase that the so called three mill "renewal" would allow. There isn't much we can do now about the rest of the increase that the assessor has laid on us this year discuss the projects. The department's projects were discussed at the township's budget session last Thursday.

Mitchell added that he would like to see the township purchase a golf course, too. "Other municipalities have done this and they're good money makers"

Straub questioned, "But what will we operate on until the money comes in?"

In a related matter, Clerk Sally Cayley asked the board to approve switching insurance company coverage to Blue Cross. "We can save $300 per month and still get the same or better coverage."

Trustees approved the move by a vote of 6-0, Trustee Leonard Klein absent.

Schaeffer commented that the township has a "cash flow problem. We have the money but not in the checking account. It's in certificates of deposit."

Mitchell added that he would like to see more recreation areas in the township

As an example, trustees Tuesday voted to delay payment of a $11,646 bill from the City of Northville for operating costs of the fire department from July 1, 1972, through June 30, 1973.

"I would like to see something started like an ice rink, on the township hall property on Six Mile Road," he said

Received in February, the bill will be paid after March 28 when a certificate of deposit can be cashed. Unless payment was delayed on the city's bill, Straub said there would not be enough money to pay all the bills. He added that delaying payment would allow the township to meet its next two payrolls.

Trustees pointed out that the Recreation Department was investigating ice rinks and swimming pools and would be holding a meeting between the school board, city council and township board to

To the Editor:
I have just finished reading copies of all the Northville Records for the year 1973, selecting items for the Beautification Scrap Books.

As most readers, no doubt do when The Record is received, look through the pages, read the items of most interest, probably be interrupted and don't pick it up again for a couple days, or maybe not at all and then comes the next issue and the same routine—let me tell you—read 52 copies carefully and you'll find so much you missed that you make up your mind to change your reading habits.

One doesn't realize either just how much has gone on in this small community until you put it all together as one big story, its amazing, and I'd like to say, "Bill, Jack, Jean, Jim and all connected with The Record, ITS A MIGHTY FINE NEWSPAPER!"

News From Lansing

BY R. ROBERT GEAKE
Michigan Representative

Do the public schools have an obligation to graduate students with marketable job skills? I believe that they do and it appears Michigan is well on its way at last to adoption of a "career education" bill.

Introduced by my colleague State Representative Michael A. Dively (R-Traverse City) House Bill 4422 was adopted unanimously last week and sent to the Senate for consideration, which I expect will result in approval. Michigan will be the first state in the nation to adopt legislation requiring statewide planning for career education.

With the current economic problems it seems an especially appropriate time to be considering adoption of this type of legislation. Parents and students are both concerned that they are spending hundreds and thousands of dollars for education, only to discover upon graduation that their training does not qualify them to fill any positions which are available in the job market.

Basically the concept of career education is to prepare young people to fill their economic role, while also preparing them for other functions in life. It is designed to insure that young people be made aware of what their options are, what types of jobs are available to them, what training is required and that they are receiving education that is relevant to their job goals.

In spite of the large numbers of young people who engage in further education or vocational training after high school, it is a fact that the majority do not. Most of our young people are directly entering the working force after high school graduation, many of them beginning families and taking up their place in adult society. Yet we often hear them complain that they have not been trained for any specific job and that the education they did receive is not relevant to anything available to them.

This is the situation which probably contributed to the unanimous support of the members of the House for this bill. It is not an attempt to regulate the school curriculum but is designed to be implemented within the current structure of high school education.

The bill requires that each area of our state begin a re-evaluation process to see where the career education concept would be appropriate within the existing curriculum and then to establish a plan for implementing the career education approach at the regional level. It also calls for the establishment of a career education approach at the regional level. It also calls for the establishment of a career education advisory commission to be created within the department of education.

The commission would evaluate current state, regional, and local efforts toward career education and submit to the state board of education its findings. The bill also outlines the procedures by which the state board would designate planning districts and assist in the development of career education plans.

55 miles per hour is the posted speed limit—so better go lightly on the accelerator

Exceeding 55 MPH

Like Playing Roulette

Exceeding the new 55 mile-per-hour speed limit on expressways and back roads might be likened to playing Russian roulette. You're taking a chance.

You may not get ticketed the first, second or third time, but don't bet on the fourth. Then, again, you may get nabbed the first time around.

It depends largely on who stops you as you fly down the road. And how fast you're going.

State Police Director Colonel John R. Plants has issued a directive that troopers aren't to enforce the new limit until March 16, despite the fact that the new 55 mile-per-hour signs are up on Brighton area expressways.

But there's a catch. Sergeant Phillip Martin said you'll only get a verbal warning, if you're motoring between 55 and 70. But if you're driving over 70, forget it. You can bet on a ticket, charging 75 in a 55—which is a pretty stiff fine.

When March 16—that's Saturday—rolls around, even these limitations on State Police enforcement will go out the window. If you then go 60 on any road, you can expect a ticket.

Currently, the situation is even more chancey, if you're nabbed for exceeding 55 by the Livingston County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Charles Hards says there's no limitation on his men issuing tickets. But, he explained, his men are trying to use a common-sense approach—ticketing the guy that's going way over 55 and issuing verbal warnings to those traveling in the vicinity of 55 on posted roads.

Said Hards: "We're giving them a break, I'll be honest with you."

In a nutshell, his men are resorting to warnings now—but don't bank on future leniency.

Sergeant Martin and Sheriff Hards both said motorists, by and large, have slowed down.

Hards said he drove 55 on U. S. 23 expressway from M-59 to Flint Sunday and only two vehicles passed him. Ditto on the way back.

Besides saving gas, motorists are also saving lives—perhaps their own—by slowing down, Martin observed. He pointed out that as of Sunday, only 249 persons had lost their lives this year on Michigan roads, compared with 394 during the same period last year. That's a death toll drop of 145.

Millage Vote Saturday

number of students and staff members."

Spear noted that during three of the last four years the school board has not levied the full amount of operation millage authorized by the voters.

Last year, the board levied 19.08 mills of the 20 mills authorized locally. An additional 8.9 mills allocated by the county brings the total operation millage to 28.9 mills.

"Through efficient budgeting and continued increase in SEV, the district has been able to maintain a relatively even tax rate over the past seven years," Spear explained.

First voted in 1968, the three mill levy expired with the December tax collection. If approved by voters Saturday, the authorized operational millage would continue at 28.9 mills. Combined with 7.38 mills for debt retirement, total millage authorized next year would be 36.28.

The three-mill renewal means $3 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation. For example, homes assessed at $20,000 would pay $60 and those assessed at $15,000 would pay $45, Spear explained.

"This year it costs $1,065.19 to educate each child in the school system," he said. "Next year we estimate it will be $1,157.62."

For Annexation

State to Check Petitions

and township records to see if sufficient numbers of qualified persons have signed the petitions. Signers needed to be property owners and registered voters.

Under the law less than 200 qualified signatures were necessary for formal presentation to the boundary commission. Two years ago when annexation petitions were first presented to the commission they contained 350 signatures.

"Because two years ago the annexation petition was criticized as representing the wishes of 'only a handful' of citizens, we purposely involved more people in the petitioning process and we obtained as many signatures as we could in the week prior to filing. Although it is not necessary, we may even continue gathering supportive signatures to dramatize the backing for annexation," said the co-chairmen of the annexation campaign.

Heading up the movement from the township is Dr. George Berquist and from the city Barbara Kausler.

"It's clear to us as it must be clear to many others now in the wake of recent developments that the township is unable to meet its basic needs on one mill," said Dr. Berquist.

"The question before us, therefore, is how best can we achieve maximum financial efficiency. We are absolutely convinced a combined government is the answer. That's why we are again urging annexation."

Other officers in the annexation organization are Lee Holland, treasurer; John Hobart, public relations chairman; John Dugan, precinct chairman, and assisting him, James Clarke of the township and Annalee Mathes of the city;

The secretary is Mrs. Joann Dayton.

Committee to make the formal presentation to the boundary commission at the public hearing, Charles Rosenberg, Richard McClure, and Fred Philippeau.

According to Hobart, anyone wishing to assist in the annexation campaign is asked to contact either Clarke at 349-4558 or Mrs. Mathes at 349-7334.

Boards OK Annexation

sidered by the Novi board, DeWaard said Wednesday morning, but they are not part of the annexation decision made by the intermediate boards. "Certainly we (Novi board) will consider them," he said, "but at least one condition will take a lot of analysis."

The conditions include:

- Complete kindergarten through 12th grade facilities to which students in the area could walk; and

- Agreement from both Northville and Novi school boards that high school students could complete their education at Northville High provided that (a) students have attended Northville High for one semester; (b) parents have requested tuition status and both boards have agreed; and (c) Novi will pay tuition costs and provide reasonable transportation to a point where Northville can pick up the students.

The latter condition is the one which Novi officials may find difficult to accept, DeWaard said.

Those students living north of 10 Mile Road who wish to switch to the Novi district before the 9½ Mile boundary is drawn could do so, Spear said.

He said both boards would have to agree on the tuition status, Northville would pay the tuition and parents or Novi school district would be required to assume transportation of the students.

The superintendent explained that following a meeting with residents last week, "they were split on the two-phase approach but knew that the change was inevitable when Novi schools were built."

"Parents were also concerned that Novi had not given them a commitment as to where their children would go to elementary school and that high school students would be changing schools late in their education," Spear added.

"Although most said they'd like to remain in the Northville district until proposed Novi schools were built, they recognized the logic of the 9½ Mile boundary," he continued.

Opposing the transfer at Monday's meeting were Northville Trustees Andrew Orphan and Roger Nieuwkoop. Both said that unless the conditions and a timetable could be established for both phases, Novi could not be held to any of the conditions.

"I'm interested in tying those conditions down for the interest and protection of the citizens," Orphan commented.

Nieuwkoop agreed, noting that "phase two is not binding on the Novi board if we only make suggestions."

Concerning proposals for a new elementary school in Novi, Novi Superintendent Gerald Kratz stated last week that he will recommend soon that the next Novi elementary school be located on land presently owned by the Novi school district—adjacent to the middle school on Taft Road.

If that recommendation is accepted by the school board—and there are strong indications that it will—the new school will be within walking distance, as will the new high school and the existing middle school, of students in the 10 Mile Road area.

Jaycees to help establish recreation uses for the new property. Apparently the initial suggestion to use the land came from the planning commission through member James Lahde, now a councilman.

A joint meeting of the council with the planning commission is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 25.

In other business the council Tuesday tabled action on the preliminary plat for Highgate on the Lake until answers to questions raised by Robert Dingledey on sedimentation ponds, water levels and maintenance could be answered.

The council voted to continue purchase of garbage bags from Perfection Products for sale to residents as, Gunnar Mettala pointed out, they are of "high quality and still a good value at $7 a 100."

Lahde was voted council representative to the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) to replace former councilman Howard Coe.

Councilwoman Lillian Spencer, who is heading Wixom's bi-centennial committee, accepted the offer of George Johns, a member of the audience, to assist. She is seeking other volunteers, she announced, and plans to work with Commerce in a joint effort.

Frank Sircely offered the help of the Wixom Jaycees in the celebration.

— in an area that would be included in the second-phase of the annexation to 9½ Mile. Tuesday's annexation decision involves property on which no school children reside.

Tuesday's annexation decision did not include any exchange of assets.

Since the Novi School District already owns the 160-acre site it is not tax producing. With the annexation of the 77-acre parcel, the owners must continue to make good on their tax indebtedness to the Northville district but they do not assume debts of the Novi district. They must, however, assume all new Novi bonded indebtedness occurring after annexation.

Now He's An American Success Story

Escapee Remembers Days of Terror

By PHILIP JEROME

Like many Americans, Rey Rodriguez is enjoying "the good life."

He has a lovely, intelligent wife. A responsible and challenging job as a product design engineer with the Ford Motor Company. And lives in a beautiful $50,000 home in one of the several subdivisions which have sprung up on the rolling hills of suburban Novi.

Nothing unusual about that, of course. Except that 13 years ago, Rodriguez, then a boy of 15, was standing in a Havana bus station with a .45 caliber automatic pistol held by a member of the Cuban secret service pressed firmly against the back of his head.

Except that the terrified 15-year old son of a Cuban sugar factory engineer was able to maintain his story that the chemicals found in his suitcase were not bound for anti-Castro rebels—as, in fact, they were—through 30 hours of intense interrogation.

And except that he was whisked out of Cuba by his father shortly after his release by police and arrived in the United States the following day knowing virtually no English and with 35-cents in his pockets.

"Yes, I suppose you could say that I was a freedom fighter of sorts," admitted Rodriguez while watching the opening round of the NCAA tournament on television in the family room of his home last week.

"I fought for Castro between 1955 and 1958. And I can remember the chaos in Havana on New Year's Day when Batista's government was overthrown in 1959. And I was in training for the Bay of Pigs invasion when I was forced to leave the country, so I guess you could say that I was fairly well involved during those years of revolution in Cuba.

"I was there during some very important years of Cuban history," he said.

Rodriguez' career as a revolutionary began when he was 11 years old.

"The people trying to overthrow Batista would use the children to carry messages because they knew we wouldn't be sent to the wall and executed if we were caught," explained Rodriguez.

"In those days Castro was something of a hero. Batista was always playing hand-in-hand with big business, but Castro was an idealist who was interested in the poor people.

"After he (Castro) came to power he visited the United States to try to get guns, but the only thing the government wanted to give him was food and he turned to communism instead," Rodriguez continued.

"When that happened he lost large portions of his upper-middle class. All the doctors and lawyers and engineers got out of the country because they knew that they couldn't make money any more."

Castro's switch to communism was not the only reason that Rodriguez became disillusioned with his leadership, however. Shortly after taking over from Batista, the new Cuban dictator ordered the execution of several Cuban pilots who had flown missions against the rebels during Batista's regime.

"The pilots were just following their orders," remarked Rodriguez. "It left quite an impression on me and I started to realize that this new guy (Castro) was no better than the last guy."

It was Rodriguez' ability in science which led to his association with the anti-Castro underground. An ability, incidentally, which he inherited from his father—a top engineer who once supervised the operation of 43 sugar mills for Castro.

"Because I was a good student, the teachers in my high school made me head of the science lab and entrusted me with the keys," he explained. "I was supposed to clean the lab on weekends, but while I was doing that I also let in the revolutionaries and we would spend the weekend making bombs."

The incident which led to his capture by the G-2, Cuba's version of the Gestapo, was related to his job with the school science lab.

"It was time for Easter vacation in 1961 and we were gearing up for the Bay of Pigs invasion which was supposed to take place later that summer," recalled Rodriguez.

"I had my suitcases filled with chemicals for making bombs. But I made a very bad mistake. The bottles of sulphuric acid were capped with cork. In the bus station in Havana I checked my luggage through and they took my bags and threw them up to the top of these metal racks.

"When they did that the corks must have worked loose, because soon the sulphuric acid had eaten through my suitcase, several other suitcases, and were eating away the metal racks," Rodriguez continued.

"The next thing I knew there was a G-2 officer standing next to me with his gun planted firmly against my head and telling me not to move a muscle. Boy was I scared."

Rodriguez was subsequently taken to a prison and submitted to 30 hours of interrogation.

"They have this bright light shining in your eyes so you can't see a thing and all these voices keep firing questions at you," he stated. "I told them that I was a science student who had fallen behind in my studies because I was in charge of the lab. I told them the chemicals were for a project for extra credit over the vacation.

"They must have believed me because they let me go after I kept telling them that same story over and over again."

As soon as the 15-year old revolutionary had told his father what had happened, the elder Rodriguez decided that his son should leave the country immediately.

Two changes of clothes were packed in an

Dear Sally:
Wherein lies the teenage passion for the horse?
The Horse-Crazy Girl

Dear Not-So Crazy:
I suppose this means the teenage girl, for this addiction unfortunately seems to leave untouched most boys, whose adolescence seems to be dedicated to the motor-bike. But this girl's passion for the horse is one of the more curious phenomena of our times and never, I think, satisfactorily explained.

It seems odd to me however that it occurs in so many families with no horse background whatsoever, and why this intense devotion where girls think, dream and live horses; their ambitions and all their happiness centering round matters equine? I can't explain it — perhaps the spirit of adventure that lurks in girls as well as boys or maternal instinct or a desire for domination — I just don't know. But always when worried parents come to me for advice I give gentle encouragement adding a comforting word that as the seventeenth birthday approaches the chances are that boys and not horses will have become the major interest in their daughters' lives.

Added to this, I must say most of these girls never get

Growth, Church Appeal Concern Salem Bishop

"We started out in a little old mission about 25 years ago in Salem I built the church we're in now in 1961," said Bishop R. Lee Sizemore of 8192 MacFadden Street, Salem, as he explained how Christ Temple Church grew from a congregation of less than 20 to its present size of 75.

The church is located on Victor Lewis Street in Salem, just north of Six Mile Road, Christ Temple Church is the name of the local congregation, whose acting pastor is Vance Hopkins. The national church body to which it belongs is called the Apostolic Faith of God Live Forever, Incorporated.

The church, according to Bishop Sizemore, has its origins far back in history on the day of Pentecost. There are now congregations worldwide, he said, and the organization is one of the top money making black organizations in the country. Bishop Sizemore is the head of the northern district of the church with its 35 congregations spread across the midwest, New England and into Kentucky and Virginia. The headquarters for the northern district are located in Detroit in a temple recently purchased by the church. Bishop Sizemore will soon have his bishopric offices in the building. National headquarters are in Atlanta, Georgia.

According to Bishop Sizemore, the basic purpose of his church, is to strengthen the spiritual lives of the people and prepare them for the future. Many people, he claimed, are not sufficiently concerned about the future of the world and may be dangerously optimistic about their personal lives.

"People are not preparing themselves for the future," said Bishop Sizemore. "They keep on believing that things just have to get better. What they don't realize is that things are probably going to get a lot worse. They just don't seem to realize the deterioration of the world around them."

Much of the problem, according to Bishop Sizemore, stems from the fact that people's spiritual lives are not up to par. He said he believes that far too many people are turning away from the church instead of seeking spiritual counseling as they should.

"A lot of the problem is the poor attitude of people toward church and worship these days," said the Bishop. "Very few people turn to the church for help anymore."

However, he said he also thinks churches throughout the world are becoming much too quiet and don't advertise enough to attract and interest new members. He stated that he hopes to begin publicizing his church more, including the Salem congregation.

"Churches have become too quiet these days when they ought to be making a lot more noise," said Bishop Sizemore. "After all who has more of a right to holler right now than the churches?"

Services for the Salem congregation are held Sundays at 9:45 a.m. and Wednesdays and Fridays at 7:30 p.m. The district also sponsors a radio program in Detroit on station WDFG, 98.7, Sundays at 6 p.m.

'Lightshine' In Brighton

The Saint James Singers of Saint James Methodist Church, Detroit, will perform the religious folk musical "Lightshine" at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 21, at the First United Methodist Church in Brighton.

The group will also do selections from the Broadway musical "Godspell." The text of "Lightshine" is based on the Sermon on the Mount, but with up-to-date dialog and it's accompanied by contemporary musical sounds and beat. Music is by Buryl Red and lyrics are by Grace Hawthorne.

The Singers first performed "Lightshine" on March 15, 1973, but the group has been together for three years. During that time it has performed this and other works for church audiences around the metropolitan Detroit area. The group has also toured in outstate Michigan.

Not a professional group, nor even a church choir, the Singers is made up of people from early teens on up. Most, but not all are members of St. James Church.

The group is about 30 voices strong and is accompanied by piano, guitar, bass, drums, electric rock organ and harmonica.

Director of the group is March Benner of Detroit. Instrumental director is Lou Scovill of Novi.

The Reverend Glenn D. Essenberg, pastor of the Fellowship Bible Church, has invited the public to these services which are being held in the Hartland Music Hall, 3619 North Hartland Road, Hartland.

Besides conferring with the House and Senate committees on Veterans Affairs and presenting the opening prayers in each chamber, Pastor Reinwald was also on hand to say the dedication prayer in honor of the first issue day of a postage stamp commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mr. Reinwald was joined for the occasion by his wife and daughter. He concludes his term as National Chaplain in August.

Here's How to Choose Brokerage House

"GARDENS FOR A PURPOSE" is the theme of the sponsored garden area—literally acres of flowers and other plant life—to be unveiled at Cobo Hall at noon Saturday, March 16 when the 1974 Home, Furniture and Flower Show gets underway for its nine-day "spring into spring."

The show, biggest event coming into Cobo Hall this year, is an enterprise of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and its affiliate, the Apartment Association of Michigan, whose president this year is Paul J. Forcier, Birmingham builder and long a leader in local, state and national housing affairs.

The sponsored gardens, Forcier explained, are in addition to other hills and vales of blooming things being taken to Cobo Hall from all over the world, beginning the morning of Tuesday, March 12, and climaxing with an informal opening at the door of Hall A at Cobo next Saturday.

Among the creators of the various gardens sponsored by banks and savings & loans establishments are Bordine's Nursery, Zendt's Nursery, Landscape One, Frank's Nursery, Citywide Landscaping, Myers Landscaping, Jackson Landscaping Company, and East Side Contractors.

MIKE ANUSBIGIAN of Northville is one of the first Prudential agents in Michigan to sell the property and casualty insurance policies recently introduced by the company's subsidiary Prudential Property and Casualty Company.

Anusbigian, a special agent in the company's Northland ordinary agency, sold a homeowners plan.

Prudential Property and Casualty Co.'s initial portfolio also includes automobile insurance and personal catastrophe (so-called umbrella) liability insurance. The property and casualty coverages are currently marketed in 17 states.

Prudential started marketing property and liability insurance in Illinois in 1971, expanded to four states in 1972, and expects to expand to a total of 30 by the end of 1974.

A CARD PARTY is being hosted by the Farmington Business & Professional Association March 19 at the Salem United Church of Christ, Mary P. Samples, corresponding secretary from Novi has announced. It will be held at 3342 Oakland in downtown Farmington beginning at 7:30 p.m. Women of this area are invited to attend. Advance tickets may be purchased at Gladys Beauty Salon, 3334 Grand River, or at the door on March 19.

THE PALACE restaurant in Northville was purchased this past week by Roger Royer, presently of Plymouth but soon to become a resident of South Lyon.

With the purchase, the restaurant again begins a franchise operation as it was when it first opened several years ago. The initial franchise owner, however, sold it back to the Palace corporation and went into another business.

Royer has been with the Palace restaurant chain since before high school, working his way up from dish washer to assistant to the corporation president. The Northville restaurant is his first. He has plans to open another franchise Palace restaurant in Flint.

Owner-Manager Royer said the restaurant, located on the north side of Main Street, east of Hutton, is presently undergoing a thorough cleaning inside and out and is featuring nickel coffee.

THERE HAVE been a good many changes in the investment business over the past decade, but the basic determinants in choosing a brokerage house and an account executive (stock broker) remain essentially the same.

Of the various methods used by investors to select their brokerage connections, one of the commonest is through a definite personal tie where a relative, close friend, or neighbor is an account executive or some other member of a brokerage house staff.

Neophyte investors may ask their banker, attorney, or some leading citizen to recommend a broker. Such avenues are perfectly satisfactory provided the firm is in good financial shape and not in violation of any securities regulations.

The process of opening an account with a brokerage house is not complicated and requires only basic information such as your name, address, occupation, social security number, citizenship, age, and the name of your bank and-or other satisfactory reference.

TURBULENCE in stock and bond markets, increasing domination by institutions, internal problems such as inflated operating costs, and competition from banks, insurance companies, and mutual funds have forced many brokers to view each customer situation from the standpoint of "total potential brokerage business".

They make facilities available to customers and offer advice on commodities trading, options, tax shelters, mutual funds, real estate ventures, and securities underwriting.

The various firms which are members of the New York and American stock exchanges are only part of the brokerage fraternity. Others are members of regional securities exchanges and-or the vast Over-the-Counter market. There are firms specializing in or having specific departments for tax-exempt bonds, government agency securities, option contracts (puts and calls), or investment areas such as bank, insurance, or "high technology" stocks.

Others, although they are members of the principal exchanges, may develop high competence in "local" securities.

In the last two years, commission discount brokers have become a force on the investment scene. Such "discounters" execute investment orders at charges lower than the fixed commissions allowed by the various exchanges. While the securities industry will soon shift to "negotiated" rather than fixed commission rates, the discount commission firms are not likely to fade out entirely.

While brokerage connections based on personal acquaintance or family relationship may include a strong note of trust and confidence, many larger investors tend to shop around for a firm having the exact facilities desired. Some brokers offer more in the way of frequent contacts, research studies, and advice than others.

However, investors of reasonable competence, or those having independent investment advisors, may prefer the "Don't call me—I'll call you" principle. Should there be a conflict of philosophy or temperament between broker and investor, many brokerage houses will shift account executives.

But if the trouble persists or the back-room support is not up to snuff, the investor may want to look elsewhere. In the final analysis, you—the investor—determine what is to be bought or sold (except in a discretionary account) and the brokerage firm exists to carry out your orders.

The staff of Babson's Reports has found that for the most part relationships between brokers and customers are harmonious, particularly where the investor takes the time to select a broker who understands his investment objective and philosophy, and gets acquainted with him.

We find that brokers are generally quite willing to work with their customers. Occasionally, where a particular brokerage house may not have sufficient facilities for certain types of investments, the investor can turn to some other concern without creating ill will. Many investors do, in fact, maintain dual or multiple brokerage accounts.

'Closer to Center of Population'

Wants Wayne County Seat Moved

Citing a westward population shift, Wayne County Commissioner George Hart has urged the Board of Commissioners to move toward relocating the county seat from Detroit to western Wayne County.

Hart released a resolution in which he asks the board to study the feasibility and desirability of "relocating the county seat to an area closer to the anticipated 1980 center of population."

He based his proposal on an article of the Michigan Constitution which authorizes the Board of Commissioners, by a two-thirds vote, to place before the voters a ballot proposal to relocate the county seat.

Hart said he hoped the board would start the proposed study "in the very near future" and place the ballot proposition before the voters "at an early date so that the appropriate planning and construction may be undertaken in a timely manner."

Hart did not advocate a specific location for the proposed new county seat.

However, he noted there are 236 acres of undeveloped county-owned land across Michigan avenue from Wayne County General Hospital in Westland. He said this site should figure in the study because of its central location and the fact that many municipalities are reluctant to give up taxable land for non-taxable governmental facilities.

Hart pointed out that for many years county officials have envisioned a future out-county governmental complex in the vicinity of the hospital.

He also said that "the availability of parking should be as important as geography" when considering the location of a county seat.

Presently, he said, "Many people cannot afford convenient parking when conducting county business in downtown Detroit."

Hart, who also has been a leading advocate of locating some Circuit Court judges in western Wayne County, said he believes the present concentration of many county offices in downtown Detroit deprives taxpayers west of Detroit "of their right of equal access to public services."

In calling for a change in the county seat, Hart said U.S. census figures show the center of population density in Wayne County shifted from Detroit to Dearborn between 1950 and 1970.

In 1950, he reported, the center of population density was in the vicinity of 12th and Burlingame in Detroit. By 1960 it had shifted to the vicinity of Tireman and Kentucky in Dearborn and by 1970 it had moved farther southwest to the vicinity of Warren and Miller road in Dearborn.

"Projection of this census data by the County Planning Commission indicates that by 1980 the center of population will have shifted still farther to the west and south," Hart said, adding:

"The majority population of the county will also reside west of Detroit by 1980. In fact, many of us believe the shift already has taken place."

The 1970 census listed Wayne County's population at 2,670,312 and the Detroit population at 1,513,601.

Census figures also show the population of western Wayne County increased by 454 persons while Detroit's population decreased by some 150,000 between 1960 and 1970, Hart said.

"All available data indicates the westward population trend will continue and will make the downtown Detroit location of all major county offices even more inconvenient for the majority of county residents by 1980," Hart stated.

Hart emphasized that he was not proposing to empty downtown Detroit of county offices. His resolution also would commit the Board of Commissioners "to the principle of maintaining all appropriate county offices, or branches thereof, within convenient access of the residents of Detroit and its eastern suburbs."

Hart said there is precedent for the decentralization of county offices. He pointed out that the Sheriff's Department maintains offices in Westland as well as in Detroit and at the Detroit-Wayne County Metropolitan Airport.

In addition, he said, the Prosecuting Attorney has an office in Westland as well as downtown, and the Health Department operates 10 clinics at various locations throughout the County.

The Circuit Court probation department also has offices in Detroit, Livonia and Lincoln Park, he said.

Other departments that he said are spread throughout the county are Juvenile Court, the County Federated Library System and the County Road Commission.

Industry--and that means jobs--requires a reliable supply of electricity.

Detroit Edison

Industry must grow to provide jobs in Southeastern Michigan. And industrial expansion depends upon a reliable supply of electricity. We must maintain our system and build new plants and electric lines to meet all electrical needs. But our costs are rising fast. That's one of the reasons we have to ask for price increases. You can't take electricity for granted anymore, but we'll continue to do our best to provide reliable electric service now and in the future.

REALTORS

It's not often that you find features like a fireplace, 2 car garage and 4 bedrooms in a home as sharp, neat and clean as this and with a price of only $26,900.

Would you like to live across the street from three lakes with great fishing on two lakes and boating on the other lake? Do you want a 3-bedroom home with a two-car attached garage? But you say you only want to spend $21,900. GREAT because that's all it is.

If you can find a better 1800 square foot ranch with a family room, full basement, 2 car-garage on two acres, you better buy it because we think this house is the best buy around at only $49,500.

For the buyer who wants top quality in his home, this four-bedroom ranch has features like central vacuum, custom drapes, beam ceiling, plus all the things that you would expect like a family room, fireplace, 2 baths, and more. $63,500.

Escapee Remembers Days of Terror

old suitcase and the elder Rodriguez bought his son a watch that "he could hock for money" when he got to the United States.

REY RODRIGUEZ

"I still have that watch," Rodriguez reported last week. "I wear it every day." And so on April 8 in 1961, Rey Rodriguez boarded a commercial flight for the United States. Nine days later—on April 17—the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion took place and severe restrictions were subsequently imposed on those going in and out of Cuba.

Rodriguez' departure from Havana was not without incident, however.

"As I was walking toward the plane I recognized one of the two guards standing next to the steps as one of the G-2 men who had arrested me three days earlier," Rodriguez recalled. "When I got to the steps he said, 'Don't I know you from somewhere?' When I said 'yes, you arrested me three days ago,' he was so flabbergasted that he let me go through.

"I took my seat on the plane expecting to be grabbed and arrested any minute. When the plane took off I heaved a sigh of relief and when the pilot announced that we were in American water and couldn't be called back I yelled 'hallelujah.'"

Upon arriving in Miami, Rodriguez was shipped off with other Cuban refugees to special "freedom camps" that had been set up at various locations around Florida.

But after being shipped from camp to camp, Rodriguez decided to make his way to Chicago to try to locate his brother who had left Cuba in 1960 to continue his education in the United States.

"It was against the law for us to leave the camp without authorization, but I was determined to get to Chicago," Rodriguez reported.

"About 30 of us left camp late one night in October. Almost everyone was caught, but there were five of us who made it away successfully. It's kind of interesting because four of the five people who ran away that night went on to get college degrees," he noted proudly.

Not knowing a word of English, Rodriguez made it to Chicago and, by dialing the phone number of the company where his brother worked, was able to establish contact with his brother.

Agents from the FBI caught up with him in December, but by that time he was enrolled as a senior in an Elgin, Illinois, high school and was living with his brother and his wife. "The agents said that because I had made a good adjustment and was working to improve myself that there was no reason to send me back to the camp in Florida," Rodriguez reported. "I was always grateful that they never made me go back."

With a schedule that consisted of English I, II, III, and IV and American history, Rodriguez graduated from high school and then enrolled at Marquette University's College of Engineering.

After a dismal first year which ended with a grade point average of 2.03, the former Cuban freedom fighter found himself. By the time he had finished Marquette, he had compiled a list of honors that included the presidency of the college of engineering, editorship of the school paper, and inclusion in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

After graduating from Marquette with his Bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, Rodriguez went back and got a master's degree from Marquette in materials and metallurgy and then earned a master's degree in business administration from the University of Detroit.

He was subsequently hired by the Ford

Motor Company where he met his wife, Sallie, who was then employed as a secretary. They were married three years ago.

Presently, Rodriguez is working on the certification of catalytic converters for Ford.

Recently, he completed the residency requirements for citizenship in the United States and will be sworn in by a federal judge sometime later this spring. "I'm just waiting for them to tell me when to be there," commented Rodriguez. "I'll be the first one in line."

"You know, the United States is really something. It's a country where if you want to do something, you can do it. The opportunity is there for anyone who wants to take advantage of it. Thirteen years ago I was in a bus station in Cuba with a gun at my head. Now I'm here in Novi and know the mayor and all the city councilmen.

"Why they even appointed me to one of the city committees," he continued. "It's amazing, it really is amazing."

"I came into this country with 35 cents in my pockets and now I have a $20,000 a year job and a $50,000 house. Don't let anyone ever tell you that American isn't the land of opportunity."

Gas Pricing Stirs Protest

A "lot of complaints" about gasoline and fuel oil price disparities have been received by State Representative R. Robert Geake.

According to the Northville legislator, "the public in general is confused, frustrated and in many cases downright angry at the variances they see in the prices they pay for gasoline and heating oil."

"Since gasoline and fuel oil prices are controlled at the federal level, all I can do is try to explain the pricing policies," Geake pointed out.

Petroleum prices are controlled by the Cost of Living Council and have been for the past two years.

The profit margins of suppliers were frozen. However, increased costs of crude oil are allowed to be passed on to the consumer.

"As the cost of crude oil began to rise dramatically, due primarily to the Arab Oil embargo it became obvious that if the prices of products refined were frozen and not allowed to increase proportionately, the supply would dry up.

"Therefore, the Cost of Living Council froze the profit margin on petroleum products by ruling that whatever price was in effect for these products on May 15, 1973 would establish the margin between the supplier's cost and his selling price. This allowed prices to rise as the cost of crude oil rose, but the profit margin between cost and selling price that existed on May 15, must remain the same," Geake said.

Refiners search for crude oil to make their products wherever they can buy it. Domestic crude oil is at about $6 per barrel and is considerably cheaper than foreign crude oil, some of which costs $20 per barrel.

"Obviously a refiner whose major source of crude is domestic will have lower costs and lower prices than one whose source depends heavily on foreign crude oil," he pointed out.

"The pass-through system can work both ways as witnessed by Standard Oil reducing its prices in February. The reduction resulted from the purchase of less foreign crude than in the previous period, which resulted in lower costs and unfortunately a lower supply," Geake pointed out.

There have been isolated cases of price-gouging and Representative Geake urges anyone who suspects such practices to call the IRS office in Detroit. The number is (313) 226-7650.

College Aids 158 Students

During its first six months in operation, the newly-established Schoolcraft College Placement Office found employment for 158 students.

Of the 200 students registering with the office, 80 were placed directly, and another 60 were referred to the United Parcel Service (UPS); eight students were referred to medical staffers, four to Olsten's service, and six additional students were placed as a result of referrals by college staff members.

Collectively, it represents a total of 158 students placed by the office and, at the close of the year, another 35 employment cases were in process.

This information was contained in a mid-year report issued by Director Ron Monfette. The report also showed the inputs of the Placement Office in the number of full and part-time jobs the office has located for students and graduates.

From July, when the office was established, through December of 1973, 235 full-time positions and 230 part-time jobs were identified and cataloged. During this same period, 98 individuals registered for full-time positions and 102 registered for part-time jobs with the office.

In addition to placing students on the job, the Placement Office is concerned with a number of other placement-related functions. The office has helped 25 students complete job resumes and profiles. It has also developed two seminars, meets regularly with its 18-member advisory committee, and coordinates company visitations on campus.

Monfette believes community colleges have much to offer local employers. "Placement can breach the gap to career employment and provide fulfillment from acquired educational skills," he said. He added that he has been very pleased with the success of the Schoolcraft program to date.

'Wayne County Won't Sell Hospital'

There is virtually no danger that the Wayne County Board of Commissioners will sell or give away the County General Hospital, according to County Commissioner Paul Silver.

Silver made the declaration in a letter to Dearborn Heights Mayor John L. Canfield, who wrote Silver to protest a proposal to dispose of the hospital and seek another way to provide health care for indigents.

Two weeks ago Commissioner John Barr of Dearborn Heights called the hospital a "constant embarrassment, a dollar-wasting venture" and charged that "it does not provide the health care that taxpayers should be getting." "We are losing and wasting a fortune out there," said Barr.

He also said that reports of an independent auditing firm "say to me that we should get out of the hospital business."

In his letter to Canfield, Silver declared that "Barr does not speak for the majority of the Board of Commissioners" and called Barr's proposal a publicity stunt.

"Anyone who is knowledgeable about the needs of people and the demands placed on government to do for people what they cannot do well for themselves, would not consider the operation of any government function on the basis of a profit and loss statement only," said Silver.

"If we were to follow that kind of policy, we would have to also begin selling or giving away these United States," he added.

He also called Barr "inaccurate and unfair" to bolster his position with references to a recent decision by the commissioners to close the County Child Development Center in Northville.

According to Barr, his suggestion to close the hospital is a similar solution.

"It was decided that the multi-acre facility was far too costly and was not doing the best job for the children, so we are now closing that center and will buy services as they are needed for the children," said Barr.

"Apparently Barr is unaware of what the Board proposed, or what the Board is trying to accomplish in the phasing out of the Child Development Center," declared Silver.

"The authorizing resolution adopted by the Board makes it quite clear that the closing of the Child Development Center was not based on cost, but was predicated only on better treatment for the children, regardless of cost," he added.

"The decision we made at the Child Development Center was based on the same principles of human service that made this nation great, and when it comes to the provision of human services, this nation is certainly not a profit-making organization."

Gas Woes No Problem

The Donald Brink family of Hamilton, near Holland, had no gas woes when they made the long trip to Livingston County to present special music at the March 3 services of Fellowship Bible Church in Hartland.

"Knowing the availability of gas might be questionable, several men of the church brought their own small containers and nearly filled the tank of the Brink vehicle," said Pastor Glenn D. Essenburg.

Pastor Essenburg said the congregation has considered doing this for future special speakers and musicians.

Seeks Rape Law Reform

Senator Carl Pursell (R-14th District) co-sponsored a bill in the state senate which proposed to significantly reform Michigan's 117 year-old law on rape.

The first reform of its kind in the nation, the bill is based on the proposal of the Michigan Women's Task Force on Rape which has been working statewide to combat the rising incidence of sexual assaults.

"The goal of the proposal is to correct injustices to both victims and defendants in rape trials and to eliminate the double standard which has made it almost impossible for female victims of sexual assault to successfully prosecute for the crime," Senator Pursell said.

The proposed law would protect both male and female victims from sexual assault under specific conditions of violence, coercion and confinement.

Since FBI estimates show that fewer than one out of five rape victims even report the crime and only one out of one hundred offenders are convicted, the new law would encourage victims to seek justice and, hopefully, increase the number of convictions.

"The Crime of Sexual Assault," the proposed law would bring prosecution for rape, forcible sodomy and other similar felonies into line with legal procedures for other violent crimes such as felonious assault.

The proposal would establish four degrees of sexual assault, with punishment scaled to the amount of violence and coercion committed by the offender.

Where to Write

For details of the nature program at Stony Creek Metropark and Kensington Metropark, write "Nature Brochures," care of Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, 600 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

Sexual assault with a gun would be automatically a first degree offense.

The proposed law would eliminate the dangerous requirement in Michigan that a rape victim must "resist to the utmost" or not be able to prosecute at all.

Under the new law, a victim who submitted through fear of being killed would have a clear case for prosecuting on first degree sexual assault.

"It is hoped that the proposed law would focus the trial on the behavior of the defendant, as is customary in criminal proceedings, rather than subjecting the victims to further humiliation and terror in the courtroom," said Senator Pursell.

Kent Schedules Nature Walks

The first of four spring guided nature walks "open to the public" at Kensington Metropark near Kensington will be held on Sunday, March 17 at 8 a.m. — with persons to meet at the Nature Center.

"Individuals and families are welcome on these walks guided by park naturalists," said Thomas H. Smith, chief naturalist for the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority. These Sunday morning walks are not open to "groups," who may make appointments Tuesday through Saturday throughout the year.

Purpose of the walks is to view the coming of spring along the nature trails—from the earliest signs to the full bustle of nature's busiest season. Attention will focus on bird migration and nesting, early wildflowers, spring peepers, chorus frogs and the floral display of opening leaves and flower buds. Visitors will be invited to use their senses to enjoy the sights, sounds and smells of springtime out-of-doors.

Other spring walk dates are Sunday, April 21, Sunday, May 5 and Sunday, May 19. For additional details, persons should contact Kensington Park, 685-2417 (Milford).

Northville Basketball Coach Walt Koepke Is a Study in Motion as He Attempts to Spur His Mustangs against the Over-powering Plymouth Salem Quintet

Northville Falls in District Tourney

No Contest! Salem's Too Tall for Mustangs

Custer's Last Stand.
The Charge of the Light Brigade.
Nixon versus McGovern.

And now there's another candidate for inclusion among the list of history's most famous one-sided battles, or, to use the vernacular, "wipe-outs".

Would you believe "Northville versus Plymouth Salem"?

Though lacking the import and-or consequence of the aforementioned events, the results of Northville's game with Plymouth Salem in the first round of the MHSAA district basketball tourney at Farmington Harrison last Thursday were no less one-sided.

The Mustangs were simply no match for Coach Fred Thomann's towering Plymouth Salem five which posted an embarrassingly easy 65-47 victory that eliminated Northville from district competition.

Only by the grace of Thomann, the 6-10 former U-M star who now coaches the Salem five, was the score as close as it was. Sticking exclusively to their zone defense, the Rocks held Northville to a mere 26 points while piling up an insurmountable 51-26 lead during the first three quarters before letting the Mustangs break loose for a meaningless 21 points in the final quarter.

And the fact that Salem went on to defeat North Farmington 68-50 for the district championship Saturday was not much consolation for Coach Walt Koepke and the members of his Northville basketball team.

"It was a rather disappointing performance because we usually save our best games for the best teams," commented Koepke. "But we certainly didn't play at all well against Salem. They really blew us off the court."

Northville's loss came as no great surprise, however. The Mustangs took a modest 12-8 record into the Farmington Harrison districts, while the Rocks, by comparison, brought a 19-2 mark into Thursday's contest.

Salem's edge was in the height department as the Rocks boast a front line composed of 6-5 senior forward Bruce Johnson, 6-6 sophomore forward Jim Ellinghausen, and 6-9 junior center Eric Agardy.

Northville's own front line of 6-4 Tom Eis, 6-3 Todd Eis, and 6-2 John Boland simply could not compete with the Salem height.

Controlling the backboards at both ends of the court, the Rocks raced away to a quick 15-3 lead and ended the first quarter with an 18-7 edge over the Mustangs.

Northville pulled to within nine points of Salem at 20-11 midway through the second quarter as Tom Eis was able to move effectively inside against Agardy, but a series of turnovers — bad passes and traveling violations — thwarted efforts to cut the lead any further and Salem took a 33-18 lead into the locker room at the half.

Whatever chances Northville had for a comeback were quickly eliminated by Agardy who bucketed six field goals in the third quarter as Salem wrapped up the win by outscoring the Mustangs 18-8.

"We had scouted Salem three times and Agardy was just not that dominating," Koepke reported. "We were more worried about Ellinghausen and Johnson, but as it turned out it was Agardy who killed us."

Indeed, the 6-9 Salem center finished the game with 28 points on 11 field goals and six of six free throw tries and also hauled in a game-high 16 rebounds.

And while it was Agardy who made the biggest contribution to the Salem victory, it was Ellinghausen, the 6-6 sophomore forward, who left the biggest impression on Koepke.

"I saw Dave Debuschere play when he was in the tenth grade and he was unbelievable," stated Koepke, "but I think Ellinghausen looked just as good. If he gets that basketball within 15 to 20 feet of the bucket he puts it through the hoop and that's all there is to it."

It was Ellinghausen who helped the Rocks to their quick get-away in the first quarter as he bucketed five field goals and finished the first half with seven field goals on eight shots. He didn't shoot in the second half.

Ellinghausen finished the game with 14 points and 12 rebounds.

Thomann, the Plymouth coach, expressed pleasure with the victory.

"It was a good ball game for us because our kids were able to get up for Northville," he stated. "We know what a team like Northville can do if you don't get ready for them and our kids were up for the Northville game."

The Mustangs were paced by Tom Eis, their 6-4 junior center who proved to be their only offensive threat. Eis had 15 points for the evening to become the only Northville player in double figures.

Ed Kritch added nine points, while Todd Eis finished with eight points. Tom and Todd Eis each corraled seven rebounds to leave the Mustangs in that category, and Doug Crisan came off the bench to snare six rebounds.

Canton's Fast Get-away Dooms Wildcat Cagers

Look at it this way.

Novi's Wildcats managed to remain in the MHSAA basketball tourney as long as River Rouge and the state's top-rated team, Northwestern High School from Detroit.

Under normal circumstances, such an accomplishment would be reason for celebration. But this year both Rouge and Northwestern suffered first-round losses and, like Novi, were eliminated from the MHSAA tourney in the opening round.

Novi's 68-47 loss to Plymouth Canton in the first game of the Class B districts at Brighton came as no surprise, however. The Wildcats struggled to a 1-19 record during the regular season and were rarely even within 20 points of victory at the final buzzer.

Canton's 2-18 regular season record was not much better, but the Chiefs compiled their record playing the Class A powerhouses in the Plymouth-Livonia area.

After topping the Wildcats in the opener, Casey Cavell's Canton team went on to top Brighton 51-50 in the semi-finals before dropping a 69-64 decision to Pinckney for the district championship.

The Novi-Canton game lasted only about eight minutes. Paced by the free throw shooting of 6-2 forward Ron Lack, the Chiefs ran off 16 straight points at the start of the game before Novi finally succeeded in putting its first points on the board.

The first quarter ended with Canton on top of a comfortable 17-4 margin. The Chiefs extended their lead to 34-18 at the half and then pulled further away in the third quarter by outscoring the Wildcats 19-9 to take a commanding 53-28 lead into the final quarter.

"It was that 16-0 lead that beat us," commented Ron Flutur, the ex-Central Michigan star who has endured a long-year in his first season as head of the Novi basketball program.

"After that first quarter we were able to come back and cut their lead down to nine points at one time, but then Gary Ford and Eric Hansor fouled out and they ran away from us," continued the Wildcat coach.

"If we hadn't spotted them that big lead, I think it could have been quite a ball game."

The Novi game plan was to pressure the Canton guards with a full court press and then clutter up the middle with a sticky man-to-man defense.

"We wanted to keep them from getting the ball into Ron Lack and Dave Edwards underneath the basket, but we just weren't able to do it," stated Flutur.

"Our strategy didn't work because they were able to set up screens that picked off our defensive players and gave their men open shots at close range. We tried switching to a zone, but that didn't work either because they were able to get rebounding position on us."

Lack, Canton's fine 6-2 junior forward, scored five field goals in the third period alone as he paced the Chiefs with 24 points, while Edwards, the husky Canton ace at the other forward slot, added 16 points.

Novi was led by 6-2 junior forward Mike Collins who bucketed 12 points. Bill Barr added nine, while Gary Ford and Pat McAllen each contributed eight points to the Novi's 47-point total.

The game marked the end of the 1974 season for the Wildcats. Flutur will be losing five seniors from the squad — Rick Marchetti, Eric Hansor, Sean O'Brien, Butch Pyant, and John Withers — but will have four of his five starters returning for the 1974-75 campaign.

"I think there's going to be a major improvement next year," observed the Wildcat mentor.

Bantams Upset Wayne

Northville Botanical Products may have finished second during the regular season.

But the Northville Hockey Association's (NHA) entry in the Bantam division (13-14 year olds) of the Western Suburban Hockey League more than made up for that finish by winning the play-offs with a 2-1 conquest of regular-season champion Wayne.

The triumph of the Northville Bantams added another laurel to the list compiled by NHA teams in Western Suburban League competition this season. The Dave Pink Mites (7-8 year olds) and the Thomson Sand and Gravel PeeWees (11-12 year olds) both posted undefeated seasons in claiming Western Suburban League championships in their respective divisions earlier in this year.

Northville Botanical Products Bantams finished second in their division, but came back strong to win the play-off championship in a penalty-laden 2-1 triumph over Wayne.

Neil Bradley took a pass from Steve Kerr and tallied in the second period to give the Northville Bantams a 1-0 lead, but Wayne came back to tie it up with a goal midway through the final frame.

The Northville Bantams netted the winning goal with just 2:50 remaining as Tom Vaughn and Don Dicom set up Mike Kramer who rammed the puck past the Wayne goalie.

Following their play-off victory, the Northville Bantams split a pair of non-league games, dropping a 3-1 decision to Southfield and then beating the Southfield Choctaws 5-0.

Kramer was the lone Northville goalscorer in the 3-1 loss, while five different Bantams scored in the 5-0 triumph over the Choctaws. Don Dicom scored on a penalty shot in the first period, Kramer made it 2-0 with a second period goal, and then Northville put the game out of reach with three goals in the final period. Tom Vaughn, Steve Kerr, and Neil Bradley tallied the third period goals.

Tom Caswell registered the shutout in the Northville nets.

Having wrapped up the Western Suburban League title, Northville's Thomson Sand and Gravel PeeWees dropped a 4-2 non-league decision to Westland.

Roger Pattison gave the PeeWees a 1-0 lead, Westland went ahead 2-1, and Richard Pattison tied it up with a goal at the end of the second period. Westland went on to post the victory, however, by scoring twice more in the final stanza.

In "house league" action, Northville's Novi Drugs-sponsored entry in the Squirt division brought their league season to an end by registering a 3-2 win over the first-place Plymouth Senators. Gary Kucher fired a pair of scores and Mike Oliver netted the other Northville score.

The Novi Drug Squirts finished the season in fourth place with a 4-10-1 league record.

In a non-league game the Squirts dropped a 3-1 decision to the Farmington Hawks. Kucher was the lone Northville goal scorer in the loss.

Gymnasts Prep for State With Win over Western

There's a reason for the smile on the face of Lisa Baetz.

Northville's gymnastics coach just wasn't able to suppress a big grin after her gymnasts piled up their highest score of the year in a one-sided 87.40 to 63.7 triumph over Walled Lake Western.

"Our best previous team score was 77 and we started out the year with scores way down in the 60's," commented the Northville gymnastics coach.

"And last year when we first started our program we were getting scores in the 35-40 range, so you can be sure that we're pretty happy now that we've got our scores up in the high 80's."

"That's what I call progress," commented Mrs. Baetz with a smile.

The Northville girls had little trouble in evening their record at 3-3 with the victory over Western. Laurie Handy and Laurie Plumley finished first and third in the vaulting; Terry Albus finished first in the uneven parallel bars; and the Mustang gymnasts swept all three places in each of the other four events.

Sheila Fasang, Wendy Reagan, and Terry Rader swept the balance beam; Terry Rader, Nancy Heckler, and Laura Harbour swept the floor exercise; Kay Heath, Kim Bingley, and Charlene Benoit swept the trampoline; and Paula Dyke, Wendy Reagan, and Terry Rader swept the tumbling.

Coaches Name Todd Eis To All-Conference Team

Todd Eis, Northville's fine senior forward and team captain, has been named to a first berth on the 1974 Western Six All-Conference basketball team.

Selection of Eis to the first team makes him the first Mustang ever selected to first team All-Western Six Conference honors for two consecutive years. He was also named to All-Conference honors during his junior season.

Two other Mustangs were tapped for All-Conference honors. Senior guard Ed Kritch was named to a spot on the second team, while junior center Tom Eis, brother of the Mustang captain, received honorable mention recognition.

The 1974 All-Western Six Conference team was selected by the coaches in a special meeting Sunday night. According to the format established for selecting the team, each coach rated the top ten players in the league in order—excluding his own players. Ten points were given for each first place vote, nine for a second place vote, eight for a third place vote, and so forth down to one point for a tenth place vote.

Total votes for each player were then tabulated. Top five vote-getters were named to the first team with the next five leading vote-getters being placed on the second team.

The remaining vote-getters received honorable mention recognition.

Western Six champion Livonia Churchill paced the All-Conference team by having two players selected to first team honors. Top vote-getter was Don Braun, the Chargers' 6-7 senior center, who monopolized conference backboards and was also a capable offensive threat. Also named to the first team from Churchill was Ken Landini, a sharp-shooting 6-3 senior forward.

Joining Eis, Braun, and Landini on the first team were Mike Grace, Waterford Mott's outstanding senior guard, and John Spranger, the 6-5 senior forward from Walled Lake Western.

Named to the second team were Kritch, Walled Lake Western's 6-3 junior forward John Gabriele, Farmington Harrison's 6-1 senior forward Bob French, Churchill's 6-5 senior forward Don Forest, and Ron Lack, a 6-3 junior forward from Plymouth Canton.

The 17-players tapped for All-Conference honors were evenly divided between the six conference teams. Churchill and Mott each placed four players on the squad, Northville had three selections, and Western, Harrison, and Canton each had two players cited for All-Conference recognition.

The Mustangs have now placed a player on the All-Conference first team each year they've been in the league. Guard Bill Andrews was named to a first-team berth in 1972, while Eis was cited for honors in both 1973 and 1974

SC Matmen Finish 4th

Johnnie Jones claimed the 118-pound championship and Howard Strick finished second at 126 pounds to lead Schoolcraft College to a fourth place finish in the 1974 National Junior College Athletic Association's (NJCAA) wrestling championships at Worthington, Minnesota, last weekend.

By virtue of his victory in the 118-pound division, Jones became the first Schoolcraft grappler ever to win a national championship, and the fourth place finish in the team standings was the highest ever recorded by Schoolcraft in four years of junior college mat competition.

Coach Larry Meyer, whose Schoolcraft teams are quickly beginning to earn a national reputation, expressed pleasure with the accomplishments. "I was hoping we could finish in the top five and we ended up fourth, so I was extremely happy with our performance," commented the Ocelot coach.

"We've never had a national wrestling champion at Schoolcraft before and you had better believe that it's some kind of thrill to see your man walk off the mats with a national championship."

Schoolcraft compiled 46 points in finishing fourth in the meet. Northern Idaho took the team title with 72½ points, while Bismarck Junior College (North Dakota) and Clackamass Junior College (Oregon) took second and third with 64½ and 47½ points respectively. Black Hawk Junior College (Illinois) was fifth with 44½ points.

Jones, a freshman from Ann Arbor Huron High School, became the first Ocelot ever to win a national championship by gaining a 4-2 decision over John Phillips of Clairmore Junior College (Oklahoma) in the 118-pound finals.

Strick, who finished fourth at 118-pounds last year, made his way into the 126-pound finals this year before dropping a 14-10 decision to Ken Hilzendager from Bismarck Junior College.

Three other Schoolcraft grapplers contributed points, although they failed to win a position in the top four. Bernard Wells had a decision at 134-pounds, Mike Mirick had two falls at 158 pounds, and Fred Stanton contributed a 22-0 superior decision in the heavyweight division.

Record-Setting Freshmen Brighten Swim Prospects

Whenever Ben Lauber wants to console himself about the impending graduation of such stalwarts as Kevin Kelly, Don Cook, and Tom Cook, all he needs to do is take a look at his freshmen swimmers.

The Northville ninth graders put on quite a show in claiming their fourth consecutive conference championship last week, winning nine of 11 events and setting four new league records.

The Mustangs finished the meet with 106 points to far outdistance Belleville North which was second with 76 points. Marshall was third with 50 points, while Belleville South had 35 points and Pierce had six to round out the field.

Pacing the Northville freshmen was Jim Wright who personally accounted for two new league records and also swam a leg on the record-setting 200-yard medley relay team.

Wright won the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:24.2 clocking that broke the record of 2:27.3 set by Northville's Art Greenlee in 1972.

Wright followed up that performance by coming back to win the 100 yard breast-stroke in 1:13.0, breaking the record of 1:13.2 set by Northville's Bob Bloomhuff, also in 1972.

Wright's other record-setting first place finish came in the 200-yard medley relay where he teamed forces with Mark Morland, Jim Cahill, and Ed Donnan to take the victory with a 2:00.7 clocking.

Northville's other league record came in the 500-yard freestyle where Jim Cahill turned in a time of 6:13.7 seconds.

The Mustangs' only other double winner in the individual events was Randy Roggenbuck who came in first in both the 200-yard freestyle (2:13.9) and the 100-yard butterfly (1:07.3). Jack Riggs won the diving (162.75) to account for another Northville first place and Mark Morland took honors in the 100-yard backstroke (1:09.4).

Northville's ninth first-place finish came in the 400-yard freestyle relay where Dave Penrod, Mark Morland, Evan Donnan, and Randy Roggenbuck posted a 4:18.1 clocking.

Recording second-place finishes for the Northville freshmen were Jim Cahill in the 200 individual medley and Ed Donnan in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events.

Coach John Edwards' Mustang ninth graders finished their dual meet season with a 4-2 record.

"We got bombed by Birmingham Berkshire and lost to Birmingham Covington by two points," explained the Northville coach. "Berkshire is probably the best ninth grade team in the state and Covington is probably the second best, so we don't feel too bad about having lost to them."

"The way we figure it," commented Varsity Coach Lauber, "that puts us somewhere near third best in the state."

GOLF TIPS

JOHN KOCH

There are as many different putting styles as there are golfers. But among consistently good putters you will find these common elements of form: pointing thumbs straight down on top of shaft, club face at right angles to the intended line, feet a comfortable distance apart, stand as close to the ball as you comfortably can, ball in line of left toe, palms facing each other, keeping the putter at ground level throughout the complete stroke, weight primarily on the left side, the right hand performs a much more important role in the stroke, and most important the stroke tends to be smooth with no head or body movement. You have all winter long to start practicing these elements, so get putting.

It's Close, But Northville Tankers Take 2nd

Farmington Harrison won its second consecutive Western Six Conference swimming championship Saturday.

But it was close - darn close - and that's why Ben Lauber and the members of his Northville High School swim team were not in the least disappointed with the final results.

The powerful Harrison squad which has dominated conference dual meet competition throughout the year successfully defended its championship by running up a total of 368 points in the championship meet at Livonia Churchill Saturday.

But right behind them were the Mustangs with 344 points.

Churchill finished a distant third with 169½ points, nearly 200 points behind Harrison's winning pace.

"I think we surprised them," stated Lauber Monday. "They (Harrison) beat us by nearly 40 points in our second dual meet and we were the only team to even come that close to them, so I've got to believe that they thought they were going to have a pretty easy time of it in the league meet."

But what Harrison hadn't figured on was Northville's superior depth. While the Hawks carried a squad of 14 swimmers and two divers, Lauber carried a squad of well over 50 performers.

The Mustangs were unable to compete with the Harrison front-liners in dual meets where just the first three finishers score points. But in the league championships where the top 12 place-winners score points, Northville was able to offset Harrison's first and second place finishes with a slew of seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth-place points.

"I don't think they really became fully aware of what we were trying to do to them until after the preliminaries," commented Lauber. "Once all the qualifying times were in we figured out the possible point totals and the score came out exactly even."

"That's when Mark Holdridge (the Harrison coach) really started to sweat," said the Northville coach.

Harrison led throughout, but the Mustangs were right behind and still had a chance to win right up until the final event - the 400 yard freestyle relay.

"We didn't beat them, but we sure gave them one heckuva good meet, and we were proud to be able to do that to a team as good as Harrison," stated Lauber.

Most observers would agree that it was an outstanding conference meet as new records were established in seven of 11 events.

The meet also marked an end to the careers of two outstanding Western Six swimmers - Harrison's Mike Rado and Churchill's Ken Dove.

Rado, who won two state championships as a freshman and has been one of the top swimmers in the state over the past four years, was presented a special plaque by the conference coaches for his contributions to Western Six swimming.

Harrison dominated the first place finishes by winning seven events. Churchill won three events, while the Mustangs were able to claim only one conference championship.

Tom Cook was responsible for Northville's lone conference title as he successfully defended his 1973 diving championship by running up 447.4 points - almost 70 points more than the conference record of 378.35 he set while winning last year's crown.

Rado, who already owns conference records in the 200 individual medley (2:06.3) and 100 backstroke (56.2) added another record to his credit by winning the 200 freestyle with a 1:50.2 clocking. Rado suffered his first loss in four years of Western Six competition in the 100 freestyle, however, as he was upset by Dove, the Churchill ace.

Dove accounted for two first place finishes and two new league records. In addition to upsetting Rado in the 100 freestyle with a 49.1 clocking, he won the 50 freestyle with a blazing 22.4 that erased the 23.8 record set by Northville's John Pacific last year.

Harrison's Jeff Hornacek, just a junior, was the only other double-winner in the individual events, winning the 200 individual medley with a 2:07.4 clocking and the 100 breaststroke with a 1:04.4 which broke the conference record of 1:05.3 set jointly by Harrison's Bruce Howell and Northville's Art Greenlee last year. Howell and Greenlee finished second and third in this year's race.

The only other conference record in individual events was set by Harrison's Mark Dudash in the 500 freestyle with a 5:09.1 clocking. Other conference champions were Harrison's Todd Dolan in the 100 backstroke and Churchill's Dale Bryan in the 100 butterfly.

Harrison won both the 200 medley and 400 freestyle relays.

Lauber was pleased with the results of the meet, not only because his Mustangs had pushed Harrison down to the final event, but also because practically everyone on the team turned in a top performance.

"It's always desirable for everyone to peak at exactly the same time, but that's practically impossible to achieve," said the Northville coach. "But we almost did it in the league meet. I would say that 95 percent of our swimmers hit their best times of the season Saturday."

Lauber's strongest praise was reserved for Tom Cook, Don Cook, and his crew of divers.

"Tom just turned in another outstanding performance," stated Lauber. "To be eligible to qualify for high school All-American, you have to have a score of more than 400 points in 11 dives and Tom exceeded that by getting 447 points. All we have to do now is fill out the forms and hope the committee selects him."

Don Cook, Northville's fine freestyler and no relation to their senior diver, failed to cop a conference championship, but finished second twice and set two new Northville team records.

Cook, Don, that is, broke Kevin Kelly's team record of 1:53.3 in the 200 freestyle with a 1:51.9 clocking in finishing second to Rado in that event and then shaved nearly five full seconds off his own previous team record of 5:16.1 in finishing second to Harrison's Mark Dudash in the 500 freestyle with a 5:10.9 clocking. Dudash had a 5:09.1 time.

Easily the strongest event for the Mustangs was the diving. Not only did Cook (Tom) break his own conference and team record in defeating Harrison's Rick Kral for the championship, but the other Northville divers finished third, fourth, and fifth.

"It's an outstanding group," commented Lauber. "Tom has set some pretty impressive records, but all of them are in danger if the rest of our divers continue to improve as they have."

Joe Devereaux, only a sophomore, had 361.40 points in finishing third in the league meet - just 17 points behind the 378.35 points registered by Cook in winning the conference title in his junior year.

Scott Knapp was fourth (354.05) and Mark Owens was fifth (346.95).

While Tom Cook registered Northville's only first, the Mustangs scored four seconds and five thirds. In addition to the two second place finishes of Don Cook in the 200 and 500 freestyle events, Northville got second place finishes from sophomore Pete Talbot in the 100 butterfly and from the 200 medley relay quartet of Mark Hayne, Art Greenlee, Jeff Guider, and Mike Chaffin.

Scoring third place finishes were Devereaux in the diving, Kevin Kelly in the 200 individual medley and the 100 freestyle, Greenlee in the 100 breaststroke, and the 400 freestyle relay team of Don Cook, Kelly, Steve Luckett, and Ed Erdos

SWAN SONG — Northville's Kevin Kelly steals a glance at the clock after finishing third in the 100-yard freestyle in Saturday's Western Six Conference championships. The meet marked the end of Kelly's high school career which was highlighted by his state championship in the 200-yard freestyle last year.

Over-30 Mustangs Down Plymouth

Northville's Mustangs stayed in contention for the Metro West Over-30 Hockey League title by downing the Plymouth Old-timers 4-1 at the Plymouth Arena Sunday.

The Mustangs and Belinger-Massey are tied for second place and trail the Farmington Habs by three points in the eight-team league with just four games remaining on the schedule. The Mustangs are sponsored by John Mach Ford and New York Life.

Plymouth opened the scoring with a goal at the five minute mark of the first period, but Jerry Le Van in the Northville nets closed the door on the Plymouth Old-timers for the rest of the game.

Jim Mascotti knotted the score two minutes later on an end to end rush. Butch Bennet put the Mustangs in the lead in the second period on a pass from Billie Thomas.

Earle Weichel added an unassisted goal in the second frame before Bennet connected for his second goal of the game to close the scoring.

PARSON to PERSON

Cedric Whitcomb, Pastor

Millions of Americans are caught up in a desperate attempt to know the future. The phenomenal rise in the sale of Ouija boards, fortune-telling cards and other occult materials is only a part of the new "groping" for the future. Walter Reuther once said, "Science could bring paradise to earth by the year 2,000."

Predictions of future events occupy about one-fourth of the Bible and do not prophesy a world of gradual progress toward a materialistic paradise. The scriptures see a world torn by lawlessness, war, famines and pestilences on a scale that only God Himself can terminate.

Yet the Bible teaches that there will be a future generation with certain characteristics to indicate that the end of the age is near. There are well over twenty distinct signs that we're to look for. Each one is now in a state of fulfillment.

For example, Jesus characterized the mental state of the world just before His return. He said there would be "upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity" (Luke 21:25). To be distressed means to be under pressure, perplexity means bewilderment. That certainly characterizes this generation.

It's wrong to try to set the date of Christ's return. God alone knows. What we see happening today is in preparation for God's intervention in human affairs. Are you ready to meet Him when He returns?

Department Presents Budget

Eye Recreation on Wheels

Recreation on wheels, bringing equipment to children living far from Northville schools, is planned as part of this year's recreation program.

According to Recreation Director Robert Prom, the program is one of the innovations for the 1974 year.

Prom told Northville Township trustees of the recreation on wheels idea last Thursday when he presented the department's budget to trustees.

Noting that the "amount of money behind each child has gone down over the years because the enrollment has gone up," Prom said the budget totals $63,340, up from last year's budget of $56,117.

The township's share, based on 707 students, 163 more than last year, will be $25,075. The city's share, based on 606 students, 31 more than last year, is pegged at $21,493. Per student cost is $35.47 with funds from the city and township raising about $46,569. The remainder of the cost is raised through registration fees and receipts.

Expenditures projected for the year total $63,340.75. Wages and salaries include $20,829, up from $17,571. Salary for the director is $7,700, up from $6,000 last year.

Among other expenditures are utilities, maintenance, fees for officials, insurance and bookkeeping.

Trustee John MacDonald asked if the recreation program was at the "stage where it needs a full-time director?"

Prom said it was "close to needing one, especially with year-round school. The school district is the natural to run the program since it initiated YRS."

He added that YRS puts "a pinch on facilities since the schools are using the recreation facilities themselves. However, we have been able to arrange times for us to use the swimming pool at the high school."

Prom said he sees, in the future, a year-round recreation program "involving adults and not only students."

Township trustees took no action on the recreation budget. The meeting last week was the second budget session held by the board and township, the school approved an expenditure of up to $6,700 for the study. Pegged at a total around $18,000, the study will cost the city approximately $6,800 and the township $4,300.

Proposal to conduct a feasibility study on use of the three school buildings on Main Street was approved Monday night by Northville School Board.

Contingent upon approval of the joint study from the city Buildings to be studied include School Administration Offices shared with the township, Cooke Annex and Main Street Elementary. Ralls-Hamill-Becker-Carne school architects will be conducting the study feasibility study by the architects on utilization of the proposed new high school-middle school site. Cost of the study is not to exceed $7,200.

Although the board would not reveal where the site is located, the board said it did have an option to purchase. Monies for purchase were included in the June, 1973, bond issue.

Study of the 100-acre site will include possible use for high school and middle school facilities and a district-wide nature center

The study will include proposed uses of the buildings for recreation, school administration, senior citizen housing and library. Whether or not new buildings should be built and their estimated cost will be included in the study.

In other action, the board authorized an evaluation and

Tax Collections Equal Last Year

Nearly 96 percent of Northville Township taxes have been collected and 82 percent of Northville School District taxes were received by the February 28 deadline

Spokesmen for both the township and school district said collections this year were about the same as other years.

"They may have been even a little bit better," commented Township Treasurer Joseph Straub

Earl Busard, business manager for Northville schools, said he "anticipated more delinquent taxes this year because of the high amount of interest charged on delinquent taxes."

"However, tax collection is pretty much in line with other years," he added.

Straub said $2,755,000 of the total $2,874,000 has been received. The taxes include those for the township, Northville and Plymouth school districts, county and community college plus any special assessments

To date, Busard has received $2,575,000 out of a total $3,040,000 for general operating fund monies.

By governmental unit, Northville Township school taxes collected are 87.3 percent of the total anticipated; City of Northville, 84.6 percent; City of Novi, 77.7 percent; Novi Township, 56 percent; Salem Township, 35 percent; and Lyon Township, 24 percent.

Busard pointed out that under provisions adopted by Washtenaw and Oakland Counties, the school district is guaranteed 100 percent collection of school taxes.

Circuit Court

Move Favored

Northville City Council has gone on record as supporting the county proposal to provide circuit court facilities somewhere in Western Wayne County.

The out-county facility, which carries the strong endorsement of County Commissioner Mary Dumas, would place court facilities closer to the people and hence make it more convenient, councilmen have stated.

Presently, more than 50 percent of the county's population lies outside the City of Detroit where all the circuit court facilities are presently located

Library Needs Readers

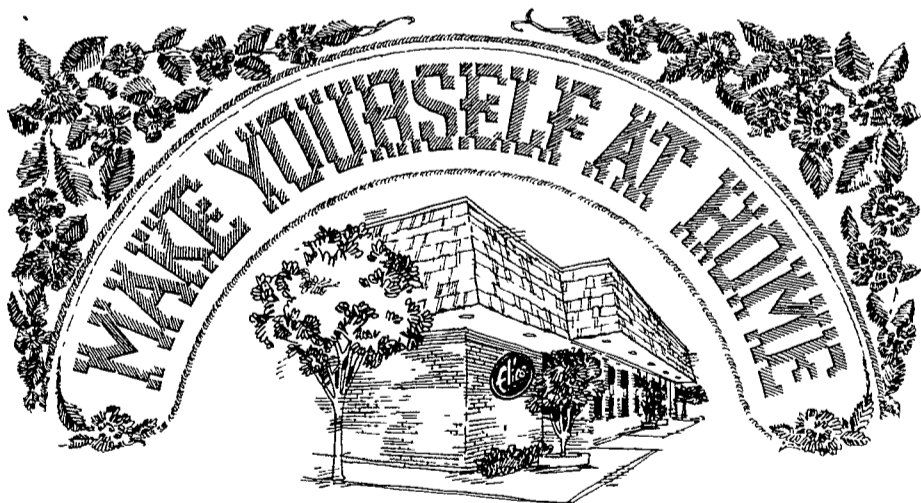

Volunteers are needed to read books to residents at Whitehall Nursing Home, Friends of the Novi Library said this week.

Currently, Mrs. Delores Carter is taking books to Beverly Manor every other week and the group is seeking someone to do the same at Whitehall.

High school students are also encouraged to participate, spokesmen for the group added. Those interested are asked to contact Mrs. Dorothy Flattery, Novi librarian, at 349-0720.

Friends of the Novi Library recently presented a book to the library, "History of the American People". Written by American Heritage, the book is available at the library, group spokesmen said.

Police Blotter

In Novi

Novi's Detective Bureau cleared up one breaking and entering last week, but saw their work load grow even larger as five more breaking and enterings were reported last week.

Police reported that they had solved the breaking and entering of a residence at 23927 Ripple Creek which had taken place on February 27.

According to police, a juvenile was responsible for the break in which resulted in the theft of drugs from the medicine cabinet. Identity of the youth was withheld by police.

An estimated $1,200 worth of property was removed from a residence at 23701 Heartwood during a breaking and entering which occurred Saturday, March 2.

According to police reports, entry was gained by breaking in a door. Once inside, the responsible parties ransacked the entire house.

Stolen property included cameras, a tape deck, four speakers from a stereo unit, and an am-fm radio.

Theft of a 1973 Yamaha motorcycle was reported by a resident at 47201 Glamorgan on Tuesday, March 5.

The motorcycle, valued at $1,100, had been left on an enclosed back porch and was stolen sometime between 10 p.m. on March 4 and 10 a.m. the following day, according to reports.

Police are pursuing several leads in the case.

A variety of items with a total estimated value of more than $1,000 were reported stolen from the Flea Market building in the old Walled Lake Amusement Park at 13 Mile and Novi Roads.

The theft was reported Sunday, March 3.

The responsible parties gained entry to the building by breaking out a window. Once inside they removed a variety of items which included knives, brass belt buckles, rings, ring-holders, watches, fishing reels, waters, and various and assorted jewelry.

A breaking and entering of a private residence at 49901 Nine Mile Road netted thieves an estimated $330 worth of property.

Stolen goods included a television set, automatic pistol, shot gun, wristwatch, and frozen steaks.

The theft occurred Sunday afternoon, March 3.

A color television set and $10 in coin were removed from a residence at 42640 Eight Mile Road in a breaking and entering which occurred early Saturday, March 2.

Police are investigating the reported theft of a pocket calculator from a Novi High School classroom.

The calculator, valued at $50, had been left on a desk during lunch break. It was owned by one of the students.

In Wixom

Thieves removed an estimated $700 worth of property from a residence at 2079 Hopkins Drive during a breaking and entering which occurred Friday, March 1.

The owner of the house told police he discovered the break in upon returning home with his family at approximately 10:30 p.m. The responsible persons apparently broke into the house by prying open a window. Once inside, they ransacked every room, according to reports.

Stolen property included jewelry, ski boots, and meat from the freezer.

A Walled Lake man reported the theft of approximately $250 worth of property from his car last week.

The man, Harold Burgin, told police that he ran off North Wixom road in the heavy fog which blanketed the area on Saturday, March 2. Unable to get a wrecker to pull him out of the ditch, the man locked his car and went home. The theft was discovered when he returned to the vehicle at 11 a.m. the next day.

Thieves cut through the roof of the convertible with a knife and then removed various items, including a fm converter radio, from the car.

Two Wixom residents reported the theft of gasoline from their cars last week.

A resident at 2900 Maganser told police that five gallons of gasoline had been siphoned from his pick-up truck while it was parked behind his home between March 4 and March 6.

Another resident reported the theft of 12 gallons from his car during the same period of time. The man told police the car had been parked in his driveway at 1425 Wren during the time that the theft occurred.

In Northville

A 21-year-old Northville man was arrested shortly before 11:30 last Thursday night after police caught him allegedly siphoning gasoline from a car.

According to reports, the man was spotted on Grace and Maplewood. He told police his car was out of gasoline and he had to get home, reports said.

He was subsequently charged with larceny under $100, a misdemeanor.

FIRE CALLS

March 8—9:35 p.m., car fire at 313 South Ely Drive.

March 10—10:13 p.m., electrical fire at 374 South Ely Drive.

Old Coins Missing

Two more break-ins, similar to the 16 which occurred last month, took place last Wednesday.

Two break-ins, both on Grace Street near Base Line, were reported between 5 and 7 p.m.

Cash and old coins, valued at $800, were taken from the two homes.

According to City Police Sergeant Bruce Deacon, "a $20 gold piece, $100 in silver half dollars and an 1887 silver dollar were among the coins stolen."

Sergeant Deacon said he feels the two break-ins are related to others which have occurred within the city. He added that residents "are not locking their doors when they leave home. The thieves may gain entrance through a locked door, but at least it's tougher to do and they'll make noise breaking in."

He said there is no pattern to the break-ins and that the persons responsible "are only in the house for a short time and seem to know at which houses no one is home."

While property damage during each month, 17 accidents occurred in traffic while seven occurred in parking lots last January, up from the three parking lot accidents which took place in January, 1973.

While property damage accidents increased, injuries dropped 16 percent this past January, the corporal said.

A total of six persons were injured in five of the accidents while during January, 1973, nine persons were hurt in six of the accidents.

During January, police issued a total of 263 traffic violations, down from the 333 written during the same month the previous year.

Leading the list were 51 speeding tickets, followed by 47 violations written for improper turns. Officers also issued 34 tickets for disobeying stop signs and 19 for disobeying a traffic signal.

In Township

Break-in of a home on Edenderry Drive is being investigated by township police this week.

Reported Friday, the theft is thought to have occurred sometime last Wednesday. Police said entry was made through the garage.

Taken from the home were three silver dollars, six English coins and a silver handled knife with a curved blade.

Unknown persons broke into a 1974 car parked on Winchester Road last Wednesday and removed an am-fm stereo radio.

Theft of the red and chrome Philco model radio was reported about 8 p.m.

Three homeowners on Bradner Road reported to police Saturday morning that their mailboxes had been damaged.

Two of them had been removed from posts and the third had been knocked down.

Driving a car with four wheels but only three tires resulted in the arrest of two youths Monday morning.

Following several complaints of a car driving recklessly on North Center Street, police found the car about 10:30 a.m.

The 22-year-old driver from Detroit was charged with reckless driving and police said he was driving on the tire rim of one wheel. His 17-year-old passenger from Westland, who police said was passed out on the front seat, was charged with drunkenness.

Break-in of the music room at Northville High was reported to police Saturday by school custodians. Police said a window was broken to gain entrance but nothing has been discovered missing.

Police Probe Break-Ins

"Why make it easy for them?" he said.

He warned homeowners to "lock your doors when you leave, even if only for a short time and have a neighbor watch your house."

Since many of the break-ins have taken place during daylight hours, he is asking residents to report suspicious people to the police department.

"If you see someone who hasn't been in the neighborhood before walking through the area, in yards or knocking on doors, call the police immediately."

Parties Fete Paris-Bound Bissells

By NANCY DINGELDEY
Snoopy was ensconced on the Arc d'Triumph instead of his doghouse and colors of the day were red, white and blue. The occasion was a surprise going-away party by the younger set for Charles and Geoffrey Bissell. School and neighborhood chums gathered at the Kimmel home for the party hosted by Kevin and Craig Kimmel. Charley and Geoff received flight bags from their friends in preparation for their flight to their new home in Paris, France.

At the same time the Kimmel party was in progress, Bev Walters and her little one Eric had a small party for the two remaining Bissell boys, five-year old Scott and brother Steve. They had refreshments and were also presented with flight bags to match those given their older brothers.

Marybeth has also been caught up in a whirlwind of parties prior to the family's departure. By the end of this week the Bissells will be bidding a fond adieu to Wixom.

Last Tuesday a small group of close friends joined at Bev Walters' home for a luncheon honoring Marybeth. Judy Kimmel, Rosemary Victory, Pam Dodge, and Bonnie Haight, all gals from the Northridge subdivision enjoyed one of the last quiet times together.

And yet another luncheon was held for Marybeth on Friday with twenty friends from throughout the city attending. The affair was pot luck and, as a remembrance of Wixom, Marybeth was presented with a pewter wine server and lots of good wishes.

These last few days have been ones of finalizing odds and ends, getting school records and making sure all the bags are packed and in order. What lies ahead for the Bissells is a bit of sight-seeing and getting acquainted with their new home before the boys are enrolled in a French school.

The Bissells will take with them lots of fond memories as well as our good wishes.

Certainly, Wixom's loss is Paris' gain.

The Friends of the Library will meet tonight (Thursday), March 14, at City Hall, featuring one of our local artisans as guest speaker. After a short business meeting, Eleanor Shieko will demonstrate and lecture on her creative work in clay sculpture. Eleanor is well known in ceramic circles for her work both as a teacher and producer of quality pieces usually including weeds.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. with the public cordially invited to attend. Not only will the meeting afford the opportunity to become acquainted with the Friends of the Library, but also to see some unusual sculpted pieces formed from the "bottom up."

There will be a treat for the youngsters in town this Saturday. The Friends of the Library are sponsoring another children's movie party on Saturday, March 23, at 11 a.m. A Disney film sure to please the kids has been chosen and will appeal to kids up to twelve years of age. This time it's "The Hound Who Thought He Was A Raccoon."

The movie will be shown in conjunction with library hours which begin at 10 a.m. and will last an hour. The last movie party found lots of kids in attendance, but there's still room for more. Bring them early so they can browse through the shelves and have time to check out books before the movie.

Also of interest to the adults is the addition of an adult paperback library. These books need not be formally checked out—just return them when they are read. And if you have some paperbacks at home that might be of interest to someone else, just drop them off at City Hall.

Three complete sets of children's encyclopedias have been added to the collection of volumes at the library and are available for use during library hours.

Some tickets are still available for this year's Western High School production of "Sound of Music". First curtain goes up tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. The musical will be staged again Friday and Saturday nights. Senior Citizen cards will be honored only on Thursday night with all other tickets costing $2.

Rule Enforcement Top Issue of PTSO

Nearly 150 people, including about 30 students, have organized a Parent-Teacher-Student Organization (PTSO) for Northville High School.

Meeting last week in the school cafeteria, the group established "what we hope will provide a communications link between PTSO, the school administration and the public," spokesmen for the group said.

With the endorsement of Superintendent Raymond Spear and high school Principal Fred Holdsworth, the newly-formed organization plans to elect officers and an executive board at a second meeting on April 14.

Buzz groups, which ranked current issues in order of importance, listed rules enforcement as the most immediate concern. General knowledge of clearly defined rules will simplify enforcement, members agreed.

Debbie Riggs, a high school student, was named acting secretary for the meeting. Giving a history of how PTSO came into being and explaining buzz groups and by-laws were Richard Bohn, Jim Drolshagen and Al Geisler. Spear and Holdsworth also addressed the group.

Mrs. Edward Hancock, acting chairman of a PTSO committee, said, "We must establish a means of working toward solutions to problems which do exist and if possible keep abreast of other problems as they occur."

Nominations for officers of PTSO will be taken at the group's April meeting and all parents, teachers, students and other interested persons are invited to attend the meeting.

Hall Control Policy Begins in Northville

As a means of "preserving the educational atmosphere," a new hall control policy has been implemented this week at Northville High School.

Announcement of the policy was made by Assistant Principal Barbara Campbell, who said it calls for—

1. Restricted classroom area during lunch hours (it will be off limits during this period).

2. Required hall passes for moving through the hall.

3. Detention hours for rule infractions.

Overcrowding at the high school prompted the action.

"Teachers and administrators have met many times to discuss the overcrowded conditions," she explained. "Discussions were an outgrowth of the department heads' concerns for preserving the educational atmosphere in spite of increasing population."

The policy is the result of their efforts, she said.
