

Remember Old Friends at Rural Hill

Veterans plot in Rural Hill Cemetery spruced up for Memorial Day service

By JEANDAY

"When you come here, you see all your friends. I don't think there's another cemetery like Rural Hill anywhere."

"They talk about Northville's hills — this whole cemetery's a hill."

Al Funke, chairman of the cemetery committee for the Northville VFW Post 4012, put down the new horse he had just bought at Ely's and was using to wash off the uniform white markers in the cemetery's military plot last Sunday and stopped to talk.

"About nine of us fellows from the post were out Saturday. We trimmed the hedges, filled in crushed stone around the walk and cleared the debris from the hillside."

"As one fellow said, you can't seem to get ahead, but maybe we can just stay with it."

"We like to take care of our own," Funke said, explaining that 4012 shares the upkeep of the military plots in the cemetery with Lloyd H. Green American Legion Post.

"They are coming out next Saturday to work just before the parade. This year the parade's Sunday, you know."

Jim Zito, he added, is chairman of the American Legion cemetery committee. Together the two groups maintain the plot of 56 military graves mainly of servicemen from World Wars I and II as well as the plot of Civil War soldiers near the cannon.

"We've just put a new foundation under the cannon," Funke pointed out. "The vets paid for the materials but the labor was free, a donation from Clifford Smith."

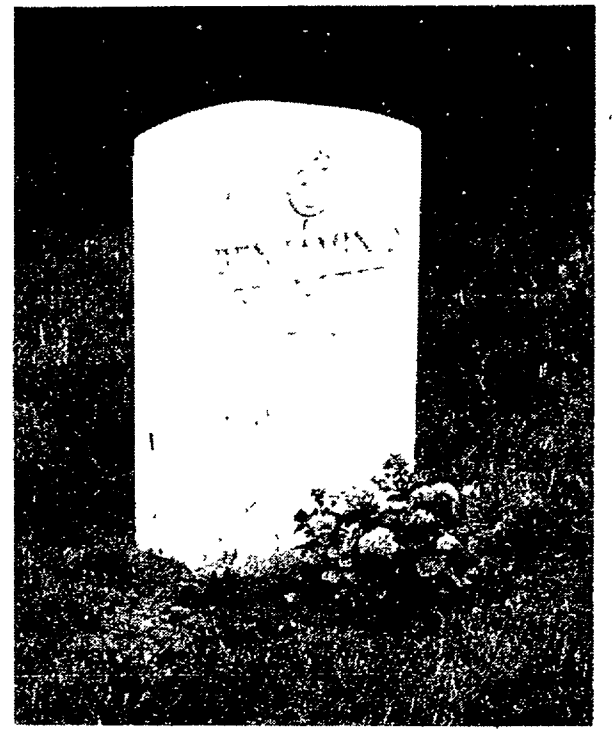

"We really don't do as well with the Civil War graves down there, but we try."

Funke waved at the neat rows of white marble markers, each marked with a cross and mentioned that any veteran — any honorable veteran — living in the city or township upon request can be buried without charge in the plot.

There's one woman among the 56 there: Margaret Rager, a Michigan corporal in the U.S. Marine Corps in World War II, who died September 30, 1968.

"I've heard he fought in the Indian Wars," Funke said, pointing out the grave of Memorial Day, 1976, will be observed in Northville Sunday with the annual parade set for 2 p.m. according to VFW Post 4012 Commander Merle Hoag. Lloyd H. Green American Legion post is assisting with vets from both forming one big parade unit. Local scouts and Northville High band also will march.

Past VFW Post Commander Lawrence McArthur and Fourth District Commander Gene Leader will speak at Rural Hill memorial tribute with the Reverend Lloyd Brasel offering the prayer.

Wreaths will be placed in memory of veterans in local cemeteries on the parade route, which will end at the American Legion home on Dunlap Street.

Council Stands On CM Decision

Despite charges of impropriety by an unsuccessful bidder, Northville City Council Monday held fast on its decision in awarding an extended services contract to Kamp-DiComo Associates on the senior citizens housing project.

That decision was challenged by Tony Ban, vice-president of Northville Contracting, who appeared before the council this week and leveled a series of accusations that triggered an angry reply by Mayor A. M. Allen that he resented the implications of Ban's remarks.

The decision will stand, declared the mayor, pending a decision by the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission on the city's proposed use of Kamp-DiComo's services.

Members of the finance commission are to take up the matter at their meeting next Tuesday. The city manager and city attorney met last week with Donald Fichter, finance commission director.

"We discussed in detail the process which we intend to use, involving bidding directly with subcontractors and full time supervision by the architect," City Manager Steven Walters said earlier. "Because of the contracting and payment control which the city will retain and the similarity between the overall process and the traditional architect-general contractor process, the finance commission staff felt there was no problem with our proposed procedure."

Continued the manager: "In summary, the finance commission staff concurred with the city that the proposed construction administration process with the architect is not in conflict with their construction management policy, would be acceptable to the finance commission, and would most likely save money over the traditional general contractor approach."

Thrust of Ban's argument Monday was that council unintentionally erred through poor judgment in initially awarding the contract to Kamp-DiComo but that if it did not reverse its decision it would be guilty of willfully circumventing the law, but even worse it would be needlessly wasting taxpayers' dollars.

Ban and three other firms had submitted bids to become construction managers for the housing project. DiComo also submitted a bid for extended services.

Ban's firm, Northville Contracting, and Construction Management submitted bids that were lower than that submitted by Kamp-DiComo. DiComo bid $109,200; Construction Management, $73,500; and Ban, $70,950.

Kamp-DiComo's bid, however, also included a charge of $16,800 for his architect's on-site inspection should he not receive the CM contract so that the total cost of the bids by Construction Management would in reality be $90,300 and Ban, $87,750.

(Kamp-DiComo also is the architect for the project).

Ban suggested that the council has "maneuvered" to call Kamp-DiComo's bid role "extended services" to get around the finance commission's policy of not permitting architects to do construction management jobs.

"I know loopholes exist in the law," said Ban, "but the service remains unchanged whether it is extended service or construction management. It is not just a matter of semantics. A rose by any

Garter Tradition

Northville High's senior prom is this Friday. At the conclusion of the dinner dance at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, boys will claim their date's garter in a tradition that goes back at least to the 1960's. See In Our Town and a story of what going to your senior prom means to two students on Page 5-A.

City Salaries Await Union Settlements

A record-high budget was approved and the 1976-77 city millage rate was fixed at 10.8 mills by the Northville City Council Monday following a public hearing attended by 13 persons.

The total approved budget is $1,415,640 — up $88,186 over projected expenditures of $1,327,454 for the current fiscal year that ends June 30. By fixing the millage levy at 10.8 mills, the council has increased the city's tax rate by .9 mills, from 9.9 last year to 10.8 this year.

Several members of the audience urged council to reconsider the proposed budget and trim outlays so that the tax rate need not be increased.

Referring to tax increases for other public services (recently approved school tax increase, the county millage hike to build a new jail, and the proposed Schoolcraft College increase), Arthur Adams said "the time comes when someone (such as the council) must stand up and say 'no' to these increases."

Adams was joined by two others in the audience, Scotty Stratton, and Eugene Sam Kunst, in calling for a roll back in anticipated expenditures.

If need be, suggested Adams, the council should consider layoffs if it cannot find any other means of

Six Terms Expiring On Township Board

There's only one member of Northville Township's seven-member board of trustees whose term of office does not expire this year.

And, two of the six remaining officials have declared they will not seek reelection.

Trustee James Nowka is the only board member with two more years to serve on his current term.

Trustee John MacDonald and Treasurer Charles Rosenberg are the board members who will not run again.

Supervisor Betty Lennox, Clerk Clarice Sass and Trustee Dr. John Swienkowski have announced they intend to file petitions for the August primary.

The deadline for filing petitions in time to qualify for the August primary election is next Tuesday, June 1, at 4 p.m. The date is about two weeks earlier than in previous years.

Trustee Richard Mitchell is completing his second four-year term on the board. He said that he has taken out petitions but has not filed yet. "I've been considering it. I want to see who is filing," he stated.

Mitchell noted that he has been active in township government since 1962, having served as constable prior to being elected trustee.

Township elections are partisan and all members of the current board are Republicans. As yet, no petitions for constable have been taken out by the incumbent, Fred Peterson, and James Schrot. All are Republicans.

One petition has been filed for constable by Ron Fader. Petitions for constable have been taken out by the incumbent, Fred Peterson, and James Schrot. All are Republicans.

Manage Special Ed Again

The Northville Board of Education decided Monday to continue operation of the special education program for mentally retarded children.

The unanimous vote came after weeks of delay while board members studied and debated the pros and cons of maintaining the program.

The biggest obstacle to a quick decision by the board was contract negotiations with the Northville Education Association (NEA) on behalf of both special education and regular teachers.

But Monday Superintendent Raymond E. Spear told the board that the negotiations were stalled at the bargaining table and that the board may as well make a decision and "get on with what has to be done."

Besides the labor situation, Spear addressed two issues which he said were major concerns of the board.

One was the long-range management of the special ed program. Spear said that the Wayne County Intermediate School District shared this concern and would take over the program itself, rather than let it jump from district to district, in the event Northville terminated its contract.

Another problem was where to house the special education students. Spear said there is available space at the old Child Development Center and some classrooms in Livonia, Novi and Farmington. He said that a maximum of two buildings outside the Northville district would be needed for the students.

Black-Spagnuolo Vows Exchanged

Carnations, baby's breath and blue satin flowers formed her nosegay bouquet tied with satin streamers.

Police Event's Saturday

Tex Beneke Draws Ball Crowd

More than 1,000 couples who already have their tickets for this Saturday's annual dance sponsored by the Northville Police Officers' Association must be looking forward to dancing to music that has become a legend.

Tex Beneke and his band will play from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on May 29 of Memorial Day weekend at Light Guard Armory on East Eight Mile Road.

The man who 30 years ago made such songs as "Chattanooga Choo Choo" and "Kalamazoo" famous with the Glenn Miller Band will be on hand with updated arrangements as well as mellow classics.

Officers John Sherman and Douglas Ritchie of the Northville POA are chairmen of the dance for which tickets may be purchased up to show day at $12.50 a couple or $7 single.

Northville officers report they have been working on the large undertaking since February. Tickets may be purchased at the city police offices or by calling 348-2920.

At the door they will be $15 a couple or $9 a single.

Tex Beneke and his saxophone, in such numbers as "Body and Soul" and "Ida, Sweet as Apple Cider" became famous with the Glenn Miller Band before World War II.

The "great thing" that was going, however, ended with the war which took Glenn Miller out of the picture. Beneke came out of the Navy and organized a large band and was given permission by Mrs. Miller to use Glenn Miller's arrangements.

After the war the Tex Beneke orchestra broke records and made famous such people as a piano man named Henry Mancini.

Beneke recently completed a three year contract at the Sahara Hotel where he played to packed audiences.

Updated arrangements by Alan Copeland include such tunes as "My Favorite Things," "On a Clear Day" and "Stranger on the Shore." Beneke still uses his original tenor saxophone played on all the Glenn Miller hit records.

"A good Sax is like a good pipe," he explains, "It gets mellow with age — at least this one has."

1960's Prom Began Garter Tradition

By JEAN DAY

SOME TRADITIONS, such as that of "the garter" at Northville High School's senior prom, are of the unwritten variety and, therefore, difficult to pin down.

However, since sometime in the late 1960's, girls have been wearing fancy, lace-edged garters to the prom — and their dates have been claiming them at the last dance. Afterward, they've been seen swinging on car rear-view mirrors or looped over dresser mirrors at home.

Local store owners are aware of the custom and stock the single satin-with-lace versions, which can be quite elaborate mementoes. They will be worn this Friday evening as couples attend the dinner dance at the Plymouth Hilton Inn for which the band is "The American Scene."

Mrs. H. O. Evans, whose daughter, Stacey, was graduated in 1969 from Northville High School, remembers that her daughter made her garter. "Don't" is her advice to this year's prom-goers. She explains that the store-bought ones "really are prettier with creamy lace, satin and embroidered flowers" than most home sewers can create.

Mrs. Francis Gazlay, whose son, Mark, also was a member of the 1969 class, recalls seeing a garter on her son's dresser after the prom.

For mothers who may not have been aware of the custom, one dance-bound student explains, "Mother, don't worry — they're worn right above the knee."

"I Wish You Peace" is the theme of this year's senior prom, which is $25 a couple, including the dinner for two. Ticket sales were reported going well the beginning of the week with more than 125 couples planning to attend.

THE ICE CREAM social to honor Miss Grace Pollock, who is retiring after 33 years of teaching kindergartners in the Northville schools, will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. next Thursday, June 3, on the board of education grounds at 303 West Main Street near Main Street Elementary where Miss Pollock had her classroom for 32 years.

"All friends, former students and their families — please come" to make this the biggest event Northville has ever had," urges Mrs. Evelyn Zeuner, secretary at Moraine school where Miss Pollock now teaches.

A recognition ceremony with presentations is scheduled for 8 p.m. Cookies, cakes and pies are promised by teachers and other friends. Mrs. Zeuner explains that a 25-cent donation minimum per plate will be asked and that donations of any amount can be placed in the wishing well gift fund.

SPRINGTIME visitors in town briefly include former residents William and Marion Crump this week. Last week Barbara Scantlin, also a former resident, was here.

The William Crumps were in Michigan to attend the annual meeting of the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers at Boyne Highlands. They were houseguests of Mrs. Charles Wilcox and now are enroute back to the contemporary home they have built in the mountains at Cullowhee, South Carolina.

Their younger daughter, Allison, they report, has received her master's degree in historic preservation from Columbia School of Architecture and will be starting work in July as assistant city manager of Cambridge, Massachusetts. She worked for the town last summer designating its historic sites.

During their Michigan visit, the Crumps also visited their other daughter, Connie, in Ann Arbor.

Barbara Scantlin now is an employee of the Colonial Williamsburg Restoration in Virginia, beginning work as a cashier in the gift shop of Williamsburg Inn. She also will be planting a choice herb garden in Williamsburg, taking back herbs she had grown here.

Since leaving Northville last fall, Mrs. Scantlin has visited her mother in Florida and spent Christmas in San Francisco where daughter Penny is based with World Airways.

She also took a 10-day trip to Greece with Edie Allan, another former Northville resident.

A NOSEGAY of the old-fashioned type decorated the doorway of the Orin Hove home on Lexington Boulevard Saturday afternoon as guests arrived to honor Mary Krause at a luncheon bridal shower.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Glenn Deibert, Mrs. Kenneth Rathert and Mrs. Arthur Witzke — all close friends of the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Warner Krause. Mary is marrying Second Lieutenant John Cast July 24 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. They will be living in Savannah, Georgia, where he is stationed. Mary is graduating from Michigan State University. Her fiancé also is an MSU graduate.

Imaginative gifts at the shower included such "today" items as a small fire extinguisher and a metal filing box for business papers newlyweds will acquire.

DEADLINE for applications for charity organizations to receive grants from the Northville Town Hall Board of Awards is June 1. Mrs. H. F. Wagenschütz, chairman, reports, urging both new and past groups to submit letters detailing worthwhile projects that need a financial assist.

Funds are available from a successful 1975-76 season, she points out, to be shared with communities supporting town hall. Letters should be sent to Northville Town Hall Board of Awards, Box 93, Northville.

HUNTER HOUSE in Mill Race Historical Village is due to receive additional funds from the Quester antiques organization. Mrs. John Burkman has received a call from Mrs. Charles Walker, national president, announcing that monies earmarked for restoration at Fort Wayne in Detroit have been withdrawn as the city does not have matching funds available and will be allocated to furnishing Hunter House.

When worthy furnishings are found, Ruth Burkman explains, they will be checked by two committees — the Quester Preservation Committee and the Northville Historical Society furnishings committee — and then will be purchased by the Questers. She anticipates the donation will be more than $6,000.

Luncheon Features League Report

Annalee Mathes, who has been reelected president of the Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Novi League of Women Voters, reported on her participation in the national LWV convention which ended May 7 in New York City at a local luncheon.

The May salad luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Jane Watts.

Mrs. Mathes spoke on the new national program adopted for 1976-78 and the reaffirmation that the league will continue to push for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The LWV announced it is planning a series of televised debates between the two major presidential contenders in the November election.

Delegates at the convention, she reported, voted to keep the League of Women Voters the official name for the next two years.

Teacher Views Co-op

By JEAN DAY

"Nursery school is even more important for child No. 3 or No. 4 in a family than for the only child."

That was one of the observations of veteran Northville Cooperative Preschool teacher Elizabeth Gazlay last week as she talked about the value of nursery school for three and four year olds.

"Biz" Gazlay speaks from 16 years' experience as teacher in the cooperative nursery which will be 25 years old next year and is one of the oldest in the Detroit area.

One of Mrs. Gazlay's two fellow teachers at the nursery is Rae Deibert, also a veteran teacher, who has been there 13 years. Third teacher is Stephanie Ruiter who has been a teacher in the nursery at 215 Cady in the scout-recreation building for two years.

Mrs. Deibert recalls the move to the then-new building from quarters in the basement of First Presbyterian Church of Northville about the time she started working in the co-op.

"I think it's good that there's now a choice of types of nurseries," Mrs. Gazlay points out, mentioning that there are preschool facilities in the area that are day care centers, primarily geared to working mothers, as well as private, creative-emphasis ones.

"When we began," she recalls, "it was the co-op or nothing."

She adds that she believes strongly in the value of the cooperative type, however, because of the mother involvement.

"I'm teaching what I believe in," she says, adding firmly that otherwise she wouldn't be teaching. A child development major, she has her BA degree from Olivet College.

In citing the value of nursery school for the third or fourth child in a family, Mrs. Gazlay points out that "when his older brother is talking about cub scouts, the preschooler can talk about his 'school' and not be lost or intimidated by the family conversation."

The only child, of course, learns to share and get along with other children.

Diane Hubbard, incoming president and mother of co-op pupil Tim Hubbard, agrees with Mrs. Gazlay that this type of preschool is important — "not just because it's cheaper" — but also because "there's input from 60 different mothers."

Mrs. Gazlay remembers that when her two younger children were in the co-op (before she started teaching) she found herself thinking, "My children really behave much better than I thought."

This opportunity for mothers to compare their children with others and to see the differences in children, the teachers and participating mothers feel, is a prime value of the co-op.

The Northville nursery has two-day sessions Tuesday and Thursday and three-day sessions Monday, Wednesday and Friday with 32 children in each.

Charges are $13 and $17 a month respectively.

This is possible, officers explain, as parents assist during school (four mothers always are present) and administer the non-profit co-op, buying equipment, renting the building and hiring the teachers.

Biz Gazlay says the nursery's equipment picked out by parents is excellent, a "plus" for the co-op.

Judy Krueger, whose daughter Karen is in the nursery, is retiring president.

She points out another "plus" of the morning sessions — the warm, flexible attitude children find in the nursery. The nursery's primary goal is stated as "the social and emotional development of youngsters."

Both Mrs. Deibert and Mrs.

Gazlay regularly have attended workshops of the Michigan Council of Cooperative Nurseries, including one two weeks ago in Lansing.

Mrs. Gazlay points out one finding of Eastern Michigan University researchers: They reported that children who went to nursery school have an advantage in starting school that lasts through fourth grade.

From the days when Mark and Martha Gazlay were in the co-op, she recalls another advantage, that of having the youngsters already friends as they enter kindergarten with each other. Now Mrs. Gazlay has her grandchild, Cristen Gazlay in nursery.

"There are whole dynasties of families who send successive children through the co-op," points out Mrs. Deibert, listing Brian DeAlexandris as the third in his family as well as Tina York, Jay Griffith, Stephen Laurette and Robbie Roux as present pupils who have had older brothers and sisters in the program.

Their mothers, who work about two times every three months, also develop special friendships that often continue, according to Ann Norris, membership mother and mother of Carole in the nursery.

She may be contacted at 349-3671 for information about registration for fall sessions.

Plans Set for All-Night Party

Graduation is approaching fast and plans for Northville High School's Annual All-Night Graduation Party are starting to gel. Decorations, food and entertainment are being planned around this year's theme, "Spirits of '76'."

Parents of the 343 January and June grads are urged to contribute $10.00 to help defray the costs of this annual graduation party. "This party is an event which exemplifies the elation of both parents and grads on the landmark accomplishment of attaining a high school diploma," commented Doug Behrend, General Chairman of the party.

Especially busy is the decorations committee. "Every day we work on the elaborate decorations that will festoon the cafeteria of Northville High School, June 8, 1976. The party is scheduled to immediately follow graduation exercises. A dinner, live band, dancing, and good food will enhance the festive decorations which depict the theme "Spirits of '76'." The swimming pool will also be open for all to enjoy.

"The decorations committee has had especially good parental participation," commented Connie Conder, Decorations Committee Chairwoman. "We're busy making three-dimensional scenery for the cafeteria walls and Bicentennial centerpieces for each table."

The party plans include an early morning breakfast which will feature delectables prepared by the food committee. The party is scheduled to run to 4 a.m.

"Parents of graduates are urged to send in their $10.00 donations so that the graduates' last senior get-together is a night they'll

News Around Northville

Two Northville-area students are among the more than 950 graduates receiving degrees at the 102nd commencement of Valparaiso University in Indiana May 16.

Kenneth A. Rathert of 450 Maplewood received his doctor of jurisprudence from the School of Law. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rathert.

Mrs. Barbara C. Boerger, daughter-in-law of the Reverend and Mrs. Charles Boerger of 220 Elm Street, received her bachelor of arts degree.

Speaker at the conferring of degrees was the Honorable Jay Protenhauer, a judge of superior court in California, who was given an honorary doctorate.

Founded in 1859, Valparaiso, located 50 miles southeast of Chicago, celebrated its 50th year of Lutheran administration this academic year.

Ontario, and Sister Helen, O.P., of Saginaw, visited her brother, Dr. "Buster" Ballard in Windsor last week. Dr. Ballard, who is recuperating from an illness, is a former mayor of Riverside, Ontario.

Government Day Gives Students Taste of Power

'Mayor for A Day'

Student Mayor David Laverty receives a helping hand from Mayor Pro Tem Martha Hoyer on the agenda before the mock council meeting which Novi students held on Government Day, last Thursday. Besides holding the council meeting, students also got a tour of the Twelve Oaks Mall shopping center and the city offices with their governmental counterpart.

The Novi School District should pay $18 a front foot toward the paving of Taft Road. That was the consensus of opinion of seven Novi students who last Thursday took over the reigns of government from their council counterparts and held a mock council meeting at which city problems were discussed.

The occasion was Government Day, an annual part of Michigan Week, and in total, 19 Novi High School government students learned what it's like running city governmental affairs.

During the past few weeks, senior students have been seeking votes from students in hopes of being elected to the council. That election was held Friday, May 14. The seven council members elected met together the following Monday and selected classmates to act as department heads and other city positions.

The council included Mayor David

Laverty, Mayor Pro Tem Richard Massuch, and council members Kenneth Kardel, Biff McAllister, David Seidel, Robin Smith, and Susan Valentine.

Others selected were: Kevin Anderson, manager; Kathryn Ossian, assistant to the manager; Janay Collins, attorney; Sandy Hyde, city clerk; Gilbert Spiers, DPW Superintendent; Mary Fisher, treasurer; Bill Miller, finance director; Scott Spielman, controller; Beth Goltra, police chief; Randy Rice, director of department of building and safety; Tom O'Brien, fire chief; and Tom Coolman, city engineer.

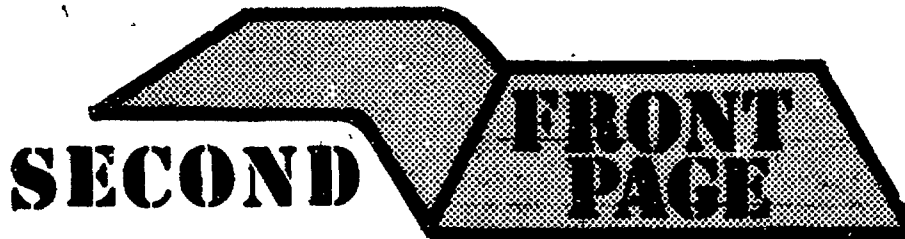

The mock council meeting was held in the morning and, after being sworn in by Mayor Pro Tem Martha Hoyer and changing such minor points as the wrong day and date on the printed agenda, the council jumped into a meaty session that included not only discussion of Taft Road, but also a safety hazard, and involvement in a youth participation committee.

Taft Road brought out the longest discussion as the mock council reviewed the background of the paving project in relation to the school district's contribution and a related sewer payback agreement which school officials have indicated in the past was unfair. Councilman Seidel pointed out, after the real Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall explained the situation, that since the city council has done what it could to make the sewer payback agreement on the 11 Mile sewer more equitable, the school district should be willing to pay a fair share on Taft Road.

"We are not happy with what the school agreed to pay," said Seidel of the $10 a front foot which the school district finally decided Library Controversy Continues

Council Gives Budget OK

Novi city councilmen Monday night placed their stamp of approval on a $2,232,441 budget for fiscal year 1976-77.

In approving the budget, council also made several changes from the original proposed budget, including exclusion of the controversial one percent tax collection fee which the manager's office had proposed in place of charging school districts administrative costs for the institution of dual tax collection.

Because of the dropping of the one percent collection fee, council approved raising the general fund tax levy from the proposed cutback level of 6.25 mills back to the previous 6.5 mills. The millage levy also includes one mill for the road fund, .9 of a mill for the special voted road program, one mill for the voted fire millage, and a full mill for the library, which is up a half-mill over last year's level. Total tax rate per thousand dollars of assessed valuation is 10.4 mills ($10.40 per $1,000 of assessed valuation). Last year's level was 8.0 mills.

In perhaps the most controversial part of the whole budget, council approved not only the additional half-mill levy for the library, it also approved 4-3 a compromise loan figure of up to $43,000 to the library board to solve its cash flow problem regarding the new library.

However, former councilman Louie Campbell said the loan approval was an expenditure of funds and questioned whether the loan had actually been approved since an expenditure of funds requires five votes affirmative. City attorney David Fried was directed to look into the question and report back to council.

The loan to the library drew the ire of some council members after recent developments came to light which required not only that the library levy the additional half-mill allowed under charter, but also receive a loan from the city to solve its cash flow problems concerning the new library. Without the additional levy and the loan, the library board could have found itself unable to pay contractor obligations totaling nearly $100,000.

The loan will allow the library to open and to purchase some additional stacks, chairs and tables, but severely limits the ability of the library board to furnish the library. The $43,000 loan represented a compromise between the library board which indicated a need for $58,000 and Mayor Pro Tem Martha Hoyer who contended no money should be spent for furnishings and recommended the loan be limited to $32,000.

Council member Romaine Roethel added that she could not support loaning money to furnish the library.

"I have obligations to other departments," she said. "If the contingency fund is depleted and a police car is wrecked up, we cannot afford to replace it."

However, Finance Director Fred Todd indicated that by watching the time when capital expenditure purchases are made, the city should not be forced to make cutbacks from other departments because of the loan. The money is to be loaned from revenue sharing, contingency and the general fund equity, according to Todd.

The loan is to be repaid by the library board through its tax levy and other income by August of 1977. The additional tax levy is expected to continue for at least two years with continuance of the additional half-mill or a portion thereof to be decided later.

The approval of the loan came despite "no" votes from council members Patricia Karevich, Hoyer and Roethel. All others voted in favor of the loan.

Council, at the request of Mrs. Hoyer, also directed that a "complete and thorough" study of the cause of the library's problem be made and reported back to the public.

Also withdrawn from the budget was the one percent collection fee which had been proposed as an expedient way of paying additional costs of dual tax collection. The Novi School Board had lashed out against the collection fee stating that the district would pay its share, but did not want residents having to pick up the tab through the additional taxes raised by the one percent collection fee. That collection fee would have raised an estimated $57,000 a year although the proposed quarter mill tax drop would have lessened taxes by $37,000

Murphy, Mrs. Haas Seek County Board Seat

Both Republican Oakland County Commissioner Dennis L. Murphy and top Democratic contender Suellen Haas last week announced their intention to run in the November general election for 24th District county commissioner.

Murphy and Mrs. Haas, both from Novi, clashed in the March special election for the seat which was vacated by Lew Coy and Murphy won the election by 125 votes in a very tight turnout.

"The vote was extremely close," said Mrs. Haas in announcing her candidacy. "There is no reason why we can't have a Democratic victory."

Meanwhile, Murphy in announcing his candidacy, said that he felt the initial contacts made with the local units of governments, as well as the county have enabled him to develop a strong base on which to serve the needs of the 24th District.

Murphy, who was appointed vice-chairman of the Human Resources Committee shortly after taking office, said he has been active in improving communications within the district as well as re-establishing the identity of the 24th District on a county level.

Mrs. Haas said that she is seeking election to the office in order to help bring southwest Oakland in touch with county government and its services.

"I have the time and am willing to devote it in a full time capacity toward representing our 24th District constituency," she said.

Mrs. Haas has been a resident of Novi 17 years. Murphy, 40, is a 1970 graduate of the University of Detroit and has been active in the Republican Party for several years.

Novi Planning Board Appointments Set

Three planning board members were selected by Novi Council in a secret ballot Monday night while six beautification commission candidates were also given the nod.

Named to the planning board were Edward Döbek, Donald Peetz and E. Roger Everett. Döbek was reappointed to a three year term. Peetz is replacing Donald Gleason while Everett is replacing James Cherfoli who resigned. Those terms are also three years beginning June 30.

Others interviewed for the positions who were not selected were Donald Gleason, Patricia Kern, John Malamis, George Athas, Elmer Heupel, Keith Milam, Frank Keupel, and William Longhurst.

Also, based upon recommendations of the Beautification Commission Chairman Joseph Toth, council approved six appointments to that body.

City Begins Crackdown

Tax Offenders Beware!

Novi officials are taking a get tough stand against personal property tax offenders.

Personal property taxes — basically a tax on machinery and office equipment owned by businesses — have long been among the most controversial of taxes and most hated by the business community. With hard times hitting many businesses, personal property tax payments have lagged and it has then become the responsibility of the city to see they are collected.

In the past, Novi has often suffered from, at times, its own attempts to help the businessman having trouble paying his taxes. In one case, city officials tried for about three years to work out an agreement with a construction company which eventually ended up owing nearly $12,000. The company recently held an auction to sell off its equipment but quick work by the City of Novi succeeded in confiscating some of the equipment before the new owners could pick it up. If the equipment had been liquidated without the city's knowledge, the city could have been faced with a costly lawsuit to recover the tax dollars. The city did succeed in working out a pay back agreement and returned the equipment.

In another recent case, the city worked out an agreement with another prominent construction company which owed approximately $72,000 from one and a half years of delinquent taxes. The city also has plans to move on two other companies with respective delinquent property tax bills of $4,000 and $6,000.

"In six months from now, we will have all of the collectables collected," said Fred Todd, city finance director who has been one of the driving forces behind the city's recent get tough policy.

A report is currently being prepared for the city council which will show how much delinquent property taxes are owed throughout the community.

Wixom City Hall Defeat Leaves Officials Pondering

In the wake of a flat denial of the voters to proceed with a renovation and addition to Wixom City Hall, city officials now ponder the direction to take in providing additional space to the cramped departments.

"The congestion at city hall will just go on until the council has had a chance to discuss the total problem," said Wixom Mayor Val Vangieson.

Vangieson said it would be the matter of three to four weeks before any decision was made as to ways of alleviating the cramped quarters at city hall.

Solutions might include the use of council chambers and the Community Building for the additional space requirements.

"Even at that," added Vangieson, "we still wouldn't have the money needed for remodeling. It was suggested that we could remodel for $100,000. Where are we going to find that money without raising taxes," he questioned.

"We're talking major improvements with that kind of money and we don't have it."

Continued the mayor, "People just don't realize the number of services the city renders its residents. As the city grows, so do the needs. Needs generate more people, people need more space."

The refusal of the voters to grant the go-ahead to the proposed $750,000 project was felt by city officials to mean they just didn't want to pay any more money out in taxes. "Maybe we didn't convince them of our need. But then, how do you counteract a negative approach," Vangieson added. Asked if he thought the city would attempt another go at the bonding issue, the mayor again said it was up to the council. He did add, however, that he thought the question would have to appear just as it had on the last ballot.

At any rate, a municipal construction proposal, even if it could appear again and be passed as early as the upcoming August ballot, would delay construction beyond the 1976 building year.

"And," said Vangieson, "no doubt the cost would be much higher. We had a good solid cost figure that we just won't see again."

Senior Prom: A Memorable Time

Couple Prepares for Date

"It's worth it," says Northville High senior Nick Pyett quietly as he talks about preparations for his senior prom next Friday night at the Plymouth Hilton Inn.

"I didn't go to the junior prom and I'm not going just for the sake of going but because I really want to."

Nick adds that he and his date, Karen Kennedy, might be considered "a couple."

"We've dated since last October when he asked me to homecoming," remembers Karen.

For the most memorable event Karen has bought a special dress. "It's a sheer cotton, mostly white with a blue morning glory print. It came with a matching cape."

Among Nick's preparations has been the selection of a light blue "tux," white shoes and ruffled shirt to coordinate with Karen's gown. "You rent the package and take it back the next day."

To cover the rental, the purchase of the $25 a couple dinner-dance ticket and Karen's flowers Nick has a job working as janitor-general handyman for Kenneth Rathert of Northville Insurance Agency.

"It's not that much, though," he declares when asked about the expenditures for the special evening for which the theme is "I Wish You Peace" from the song by the Eagles.

Nick says the evening will start with picture taking.

"I'll pick up" Karen and her parents (the Robert Kennedys of 45145 Emery) probably will take pictures, and then I'll come home and have pictures here," Nick's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Pyett of 18499 Donegal Court.

"We're going alone," Karen continues, "but we plan to stop at a party Brian's parents are giving beforehand."

Then they'll go on to the dance at which "The American Scene" group will play. By then Karen will have her flowers and Nick will have been given a boutonniere by Karen.

"I haven't bought it yet, but I will have my garter by then," Karen laughs, acknowledging a tradition that dates back at least to the 1960's at Northville High.

Novi Algebra Class Is Pilot Program

Algebra will be available next year for eighth graders at the Novi Middle School in a pilot program, Novi School Board last Thursday decided.

According to an administration report, the current math program in the Middle School does not fulfill the capacities of many middle school students. Tests of 30 selected seventh graders this year showed that their scores fell within the top tenth of all eighth grade scores which had been administered to more than 200 current eighth graders just three months previous.

While board members appeared in agreement with adding the class, they also indicated that students completing the class should be given high school credit. But according to Dr. Charles Youngbert, middle school principal, North Central standards currently do not allow high school credit to be given unless the class is administered at a high school by a high school teacher. Dr. Helen Ditzhazy, high school principal, added that if credit is given, it would increase mid-year graduates, another issue which the board may have to address.

Superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz explained that certain pilot programs can be given high school credit under North Central rules and the board approved the addition of the class with the understanding that if it is possible to give high school credit, it would be done.

Board member Robert Wilkins also pointed out that the current high school math curriculum will have to be expanded if the addition of the class is to accomplish the added goal of allowing students a chance to go higher in their study of math in high school.

Township Seeks 16 Census Takers

Fifteen interviewers and a crew leader are to be hired next Tuesday to take a special population census of Northville Township.

Those selected will be trained the following day to work in the temporary jobs for about 10 days.

Supervisor Betty Lennox has been notified by Robert McWilliam, regional director, United States Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, in Detroit that Francis Clark will supervise the Northville Township census and will test applicants June 1.

He is hoping to have applicants from all areas of the township, which will help in making interviewer assignments, with applicants to be interviewed at 9:30 and 11 a.m.

Mrs. Lennox has application forms for the jobs, which should be filled out in advance.

They are available at the township office. Applicants will be given interview times. Prospective interviewers, the bureau states, should be citizens of the United States and be at least 18 years of age.

They should be physically able to do considerable walking and climbing of stairs, be able to write legibly and mentally able to understand the instructions. Those applying must be willing to work full time until their assignments are completed.

The bureau says it will pay at a piece rate of 12 cents for each properly recorded name in accordance with instructions furnished. The average interviewer, it states, can enumerate about 200 names a day.

An hourly rate of $2.75 will be paid if circumstances warrant.

If use of an automobile is required, reimbursement will be at the rate of 15 cents a mile.

The census office anticipated that Clark will be in the township about 10 days to hire, train and have the census taken and tabulated. He is to have office space in the township-offices at 16300 Sheldon Road.

The special interim census was sought, Mrs. Lennox explained, as a revenue sharing allocation adjustment, which should be an increase, is expected as a result.

The township, however, won't collect the increase until 1978. The township bears the cost of the special census.

This cost has been estimated by the Detroit office at $2,315. From this sum the census supervisor is to certify his payrolls and charges.

June Renovation Possible

Alcoholic Center Gets Approval

A proposed alcoholic treatment center in Northville Township has been approved by the Public Works Committee of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

In a meeting May 20, the committee okayed the proposal of the Sacred Heart Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center to use the county-owned Child Development Center property on Sheldon Road.

Father Vaughn Quinn, director of the center, said Friday that it "looks very favorable, but is still not absolute" that renovation will begin in June.

Before a lease is signed, both the Board's Ways and Means Committee and the full Board must also approve.

The center will provide supportive services for alcoholics who have been through a 17-week detoxification and orientation program at the Sacred Heart Rehabilitation Center in Detroit. Supportive services include education and vocational training. Twenty-five patients will live in each of the 11 cottages of the new center when it reaches its full capacity in about two years. The first residents will move in sometime this summer, says Father Quinn.

Money for the center will come from the state and from the federal Office of Substance Abuse Services. Costs of housing and supportive services at the new center will be $17.80 per patient per day.

The Ways and Means Committee will hold a special meeting tomorrow to act on Father Quinn's proposal, with the full Board of Commissioners taking up the matter next Thursday.

other name is still a rose."

And if, as council insists, Kamp-DiComo will not be assuming the construction management role, why is the council paying more than the unsuccessful construction managers, asked Ban.

On the basis of price alone, declared Ban, the council should have awarded the contract to one of the lower bidders. Beyond that, he added, all of the bidders have had more experience in construction management than Kamp-DiComo.

Generally, when a low bidder is passed over it is usually, because he cannot offer quality work, said Ban. But in this case, he charged, all of the CM bidders offered quality that could not be matched by Kamp-DiComo in the field of construction management.

Concerning one of the council's reasons for skipping over the low bidders — namely that the two low bidders had unrealistic time limits on their proposals, Ban said that cost over-runs in the construction field approximate $3,000 per month. So if the project runs two months longer than desired, the added cost would be about $6,000. Even with this added cost figured in, the low bids are still $15,000 lower than that of Kamp-DiComo, he said.

Finally, charged Ban, the action of the council cannot survive public scrutiny from legal, ethical, or economic standpoints.

Following his remarks, council, led by Councilman Paul Vernon, suggested by questions that council had passed over Ban because it was not satisfied with his past performance whereas in the case of Kamp-DiComo council members were totally satisfied with that firm's work to date.

Council has noted that Ban lists Northville Contracting Company out of his home, that the firm is not registered with the county clerk's office or the state commerce department either in the assumed name section with the county or as a corporation with the state.

Ban contended his firm is registered and has been registered for three months.

Furthermore, by its questioning the council suggested it had investigated the qualifications of Ban and that it was less than satisfied that Northville Contracting would perform up to the standard that it demanded for the project.

sters was accepted by the board last August. The district received $2.1 million from the state to operate the program in the 1975-1976 school year, and Spear estimates next year's budget at $4 million.

Leading off discussion on the special education program, Board Vice-President Sylvia O. Gucken said she was wavering on the decision until she visited the special education classrooms in April. She said she was impressed by the students' feelings of dignity and sense of purpose.

"I think our community has a moral obligation to these students," she said. "They are residents in our community and I believe our community has ignored them in the past."

She continued, "Negotiations is an area that we have to be concerned with. But if we pass off this program, which I feel is an obligation, other districts will have to deal with it I do not see any other district around us who has any more labor peace than we do."

Trustee Dr. Robert M. Mandell agreed that the Board's responsibility to educate these children outweighed the labor problems involved.

Board Treasurer P. Roger Nieuwkoop and Trustee John P. Hobart both expressed concern that operating the special education program might stretch the district's administrative staff too thin, thus creating an adverse impact on the regular program.

But Gucken, Secretary Karen Wilkinson and President Orlo J. Robinson all said that they thought the first year — the implementation year — of any program was the most difficult, and that the first year was now behind them.

Spear also assured the board that the administration could support the program.

After the vote, Trustee Martin L. Rinehart, commended the community for its support of the program through a difficult time.

Novi Parade Set for May 31

Plans have been finalized for the May 31st Memorial Day Parade in Novi.

According to Fred Breitberg, Bicentennial Committee chairman, the parade will begin at 10 a.m. on Novi Road south of Grand River at B&V Construction and will go north on Novi Road up to Oakland Hills Memorial Cemetery at 12 Mile and Novi Roads. The Blue Star Mothers will hold short services at Novi Cemetery across from the police department offices, as well as at Novi Elementary and Oakland Hills.

Persons participating in the parade should gather at 9:30 a.m. at B&V, according to Breitberg. Two honor guards including Northville's and the Detroit VFW which is moving to Novi will be in the parade. Floats from both the Girl Scouts and the North Novi Civic Association will be entered.

Anyone having questions can contact Breitberg at 349-5689.

Wins Second in State Forensics

Suketu Sanghvi, a Novi High School junior, has won second place in state competition in his category of forensics.

The second place finish came against 24 top competitors from throughout Michigan.

Sanghvi competed in original persuasive speech, a prepared speech, of the speaker's choice which must last 7-10 minutes. He spoke on pop psychology with the theme that "a shortcut to a happy life is not good."

The second place finish came after two preliminary rounds and a semi-final round. Six speakers competed in the finals. Although there are eight regions in Michigan, three of the six finalists came from the region which includes Novi.

"I try to lighten the topic and choose a somewhat unusual topic so I won't run into someone else in the same issue," said Sanghvi of his speaking technique. "I like to give the audience some fun." He admitted that when a student gets to the final level of competition, "A lot of it is luck."

This is the second year Sanghvi has finished second in state competition. Last year while a sophomore at Walled Lake Western, he also finished second.

Sanghvi said that he plans to be back next year, and then he will be eyeing the first place trophy.

Tax Crackdown

But, according to Todd, he can only estimate that at this moment in excess of $100,000 is owed.

Only a small portion of that is owed the city, with the remainder owed school districts and other taxing bodies. But as the local tax collecting agency, the city is required by state law to collect the taxes for all the bodies.

"If these companies don't pay, the honest citizen who has real property ends up paying a larger share of the bill," explained Todd. "If we don't get the taxes, then we must either cut the budget or raise the tax rate."

According to City Treasurer Evelyn Natzel, who is cracking down in her attempts to recover delinquent taxes, there is a long involved process which must be followed to enforce collection of taxes. She estimates that by the tax deadline, only 15 percent of all personal property taxes remain uncollected. Of that amount, another 10 percent will be collected either of the company's own volition or after reminders are sent out or telephone calls are made.

That leaves about five percent which the city has to take further steps to collect. According to Mrs. Natzel, if the reminders are ignored and telephone calls reach no resolution to the problem, next step is warning of issuance of a warrant of distraint. The warrant of distraint allows the city to seize equipment on which back taxes are due.

"I wish I didn't have to go this route, but how do I avoid it?" asked Mrs. Natzel.

When she gets to that point, Mrs. Natzel personally goes to the offender and delivers the warrant of distraint and places a notice of seizure on the equipment. By law, only enough equipment can be seized to pay for the back taxes so a member of the assessing department accompanies her to place a value on the equipment.

Quite often, the seizure act results in immediate payment by the tax offender to get his equipment back. If the taxes are not paid, the city can hold an auction to sell the equipment. Any additional funds beyond what is owed are returned to the previous owner.

If the city should believe a company is leaving town without paying taxes, not only can the equipment be seized for delinquent taxes, it can also be seized with a jeopardy tax assessment affidavit to pay for anticipated taxes during the current taxing season.

If a company should succeed in liquidating its equipment and then leaves the city, if delinquent taxes are owed the city treasurer can seize equipment from that company if it reappears anywhere in the state. Otherwise, the city would have to bring a lawsuit in court against the offender.

So far, the city has never reportedly had to go so far as to sell the equipment at auction, but if the case arises, Mrs. Natzel indicates the city will follow through.

And when the new minicomputer arrives, the city will be able to keep better tabs on offenders and will not let delinquent taxes get out of hand again, according to Todd.

But as far as Todd and Mrs. Natzel are concerned, the battle has begun.

on after originally indicating it would pay $22 a front foot.

"I move that since the council lessened the amount for residents from $14 to $10 a front foot that the school district share should be lowered from $22 a front foot to $18," said Seidel.

"I think they have to pay more than homeowners because they use it more," added Seidel. Council unanimously approved the motion.

Council then discussed a traffic problem at the corner of Village Wood and Heatherbrae and determined a solution.

The council members then indicated during a long discussion with their adult counterparts in the audience, the need for recreational activity for teenagers within the community.

The students discussed creating an advisory board through the schools with participation of students from other school districts within Novi, which would advise the parks and recreation commission on student concerns and suggestions.

"It would help to pull Novi together," summed up Mayor Pro Tem Massuch. An actual meeting between some city council members and students was arranged.

Asked about preparation for the mock council meeting, Mayor Laverty said afterward that the council basically had consulted The Novi News to learn about the issues.

After the mock council meeting, the students toured the Dayton-Hudson shopping center site before a lunch at the Bicentennial Office which featured speeches by Kriewall, as well as student Denise Stipp and exchange student from Belgium, John Verhulst.

After lunch, the students left with their counterparts to learn about the functions that person performs.

Del Munson, Novi government teacher said that the government day program is good because "The students find out the members of the city council are human beings and approachable. But the realization of having high hopes must be tempered by cost considerations and this is an area the students won't really understand until they start paying the bills."

Student Mayor Laverty agreed that he was surprised to find that the city council and officials were approachable and actually listened to what the students had to say during the council meeting.

Laverty added that he is hopeful that the student advisory committee to the parks and recreation department will get off the ground.

He added that he considered the government day successful for the students who participated because "I think it will help out as they seek their career objectives."

Michigan Week Aids Restoration

BY NANCY DINGELDEY

Hopefully we've all dried out after a soggy beginning to Michigan Week. I was told it was the first time in fourteen years that actual rain fell on our parade. And here I was being so optimistic.

But that rain certainly didn't stop those hardy souls who made it through the entire day and into the night enjoying the offerings of the popular day.

The Wild West Show was something else especially when real blood ran during the evening performance. It was "fat lip Fred" and a misplaced hitching post that drew a few gasps from the crowd.

Seems the post fell "correctly" during rehearsals but not so during the "big" show. There was Fred Morehead sprawled in the sawdust when the post slipped and bonked him in the nose and lip.

He was quite the sight Sunday and although we didn't have the chance to see him Monday morning we're hoping he was all better for his "hosting" duties for the visiting dignitaries.

Monday certainly didn't turn out to be much better for our trip to Hastings. Hastings is the county seat of Barry County and has a perfectly marvelous county park featuring buildings dating back to the mid-1800's.

Included in the lovely setting by the bend of the Thorneapple River was a church where wedding ceremonies are still conducted, a restored stage coach house, a little old school house and a stone museum.

There's also a blacksmith shop and a cooper shop. The museum houses a huge number of goodies I would have loved to get my hands on as well as a variety of looms that are still being used for weaving.

In the machine shop are some tools and equipment that even Greenfield Village would be delighted to know about.

Shortly after that tour, the Mayor and Councilman Dingeldey kicked-off "stream appreciation week" by paddling their little canoe down the river. It didn't even sink! They even got to keep the handcrafted, handpainted canoe paddles as a memento of the day.

Nothing like crossed canoe paddles hanging in the lobby of city hall I always say.

I was told that Jackie Sedlar was super in her performance at the Mayor's banquet in Wixom Monday night. In a comedy-type routine, Jackie, daughter of Helen and BILL Sedlar of North Wixom Road, was a roaring success... and people that attended are still raving about her.

Getting ready for the Historical Society's yard sale and what I dubbed "elephant walk" was no easy job. Donations to the sale came from everywhere and for a while, workers thought the job would never get done.

Sorting and piling of items was done at the Tillman home on Maple Road. Corb had an unfortunate eye injury which forced him off the job for a few days. He was referred to as the "Moshe Diyan" of Wixom with his clever eye patch.

Corb was pressed into service when the job of taking all the donated clothing that had been hung on a moveable pipe in his garage needed to be moved.

The job of removing everything, hauling it to the Tiffin House and then hanging it all again was a real groaner. It was then suggested that pipe, clothes and all be "walked" down to the house.

Not only was there a "Moshe Diyan" but the garment district as well. What a comical sight it was for those drivers on Wixom Road to see three people struggling with an eight foot pipe loaded with clothes trudging down the road.

It was even more comical with Jackie Coulter in the lead carrying a step ladder — that was the holder for one end of the pipe.

Stopping traffic on Wixom Road at 5 p.m. is no easy job but drivers did take notice and kindly stopped — and probably laughed the rest of the way home.

As of Friday night, the Society had gathered close to $150 from the sale to aid in the restoration of the house. The sale continued on Saturday with double duty put in on both days. During lulls in sales, general outside housekeeping chores were attacked.

Now that Michigan Week has drawn to a close there is yet one thing to say... even though the days may not have been so great weather-wise, some innovative programs were introduced.

Carolyn Morehead and the hearty crew that worked on another chapter of Michigan Week in Wixom deserve a great pat on the back and an even greater Thank You!

Seeks Quotes

Novi School Board has approved seeking quotations for rental of an additional relocatable one or two classroom unit for use at the high school.

According to superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz, if a two classroom unit is leased, the special ed students will be using that classroom. If a single unit is leased, a different class would use the unit and other arrangements would be made for the special ed students.

The lease would be only for one year until the new high school is open.

It is unfortunate the city council finds itself entangled in a controversy involving the construction of the new senior citizens' housing development, Allen Terrace.

The issue is complicated. But clearly the council has in Kamp-DiComo a firm that it prefers to retain in a dual role as architect and for "extended services" or construction management, whatever.

Clearly, other firms have bid lower for the service. It is not clear how much lower, but at most some $21,000, probably less than that amount.

Under the circumstances a good question might be why the council bothered to request proposals on construction management, if what it really wanted was an extended services' contract with the architect that it has found most satisfactory.

There's some question of legality still involved with the Municipal Finance Commission regarding the sale of bonds on a project with the architect playing a dual role. But presumably that will be cleared up.

What the city has sought is an expert to handle the administration of a series of contracts with sub-contractors, check work progress, time schedules and generally keep the job moving. The city itself will act as the general contractor — examine the bids, hire the sub-contractors and make the payments.

But there's the lingering thought that the proposal accepted is not the lowest, that if there's a possibility that design questions would be raised by a third party it has been eliminated, and the city invited proposals and then failed to outline clear reasons for rejecting the low bidders.

It may be that the council sought outside proposals for cost comparisons. But if this is the only reason, it is highly unfair to those who took the time to respond.

In response to criticism levelled in this column last week at the practice of allowing a non-elected official to cast a vote on the township board of trustees, Northville Township Clerk Clarice Sass provides the following excerpt from a page of a township manual:

"If the deputy is acting for the clerk, then he/she may vote on all matters coming before the township board — this has been firmly established by opinions of the attorney general and by decisions in the courts".

The record should be set straight on how a story concerning negotiations between the Northville School Board and the Northville Education Association (NEA) was obtained by this newspaper.

Someone, unknown to the newspaper, submitted a "Status Report on Negotiations" to The Record.

It carried the name of Rick Cross, chairman of the teachers' bargaining team, at the bottom of the page. The reporter then checked with the teacher organization to question the report, which called the board's proposals to date "unreasonable".

The reporter then questioned the superintendent about the report. He declined comment, saying he had not seen it.

A story on the report was carried in last week's edition.

Meanwhile, the superintendent apparently obtained a copy of the same report ... but NOT from this newspaper.

The superintendent's remarks at Monday night's school board meeting, though not intended, made it appear to teacher representatives that The Record had supplied the report to the superintendent.

The newspaper declined a request to do so.

It is important, we believe, to maintain integrity with all sources of information. We observe this with the board, administration, teachers or any other sources dealing with all news matters.

There is an agreement between the board and the NEA that news releases regarding negotiations will not be made unilaterally to the press unless there is mutual agreement — or agreement to disagree and state whatever's on their mind.

Both sides have on occasion, and in devious ways, broken this agreement.

In this instance it is probable that Cross, at least, had intended his report for internal purposes only.

The newspaper used the story because it had it and its validity had been checked.

GOOD ...

Some thirty or forty years ago, the Two Dollar Bill was very conveniently used, especially, at race tracks. At that time Two Dollar Bets were the usual wagers — in fact at one of the Eastern Tracks — they would not accept One Dollar Bills at Two Dollar Windows. You were compelled to change one's to two's for convenience of counting.

In shopping the Two Dollar Bill was very convenient, particularly, with items that exceeded two dollars in cost and with the inflation in the last 30 or 40 years — the Two Dollar Bill will serve a very convenient purpose.

It certainly is more advantageous to use the Two Dollar Bill than a single in many cases again today.

In the transportation of money — it will be a great convenience. Personally, I think this will be a great advantage to the public.

In conclusion, it would be less expensive to print — one-half the cost to print a Two Dollar Bill than two One Dollar Bills.

There are cost savings, too, in transporting Two Dollar Bills instead of the One Dollar denominations.

It's often been stated that a Two Dollar Bill is lucky and many people carry one for that reason. I have one I saved at home.

Speaking for Myself

What About The $2 Bill?

GREG BOLAND

BAD ...

Basically, it seems sensible and cost-efficient to phase out $1 bills, replace them with $2's, and reduce government printing costs — especially since the $1 doesn't go very far anymore.

But my beef is with Uncle Sam for taking the $2 bill out of circulation in the first place.

Bank officials say the reason they were phased out originally is because they caused confusion. People confused $2 bills with $20 bills, and it was easy to be short-changed or over-changed with so many denominations in circulation.

The two-spot will cause the same confusion now — even more now because shopkeepers and customers aren't used to handling them.

I'm manager of a retail store, and our cash register doesn't have a compartment for $2 bills. That means we have to lump denominations together, and that means the chance for short-changing ourselves or our customers is greater.

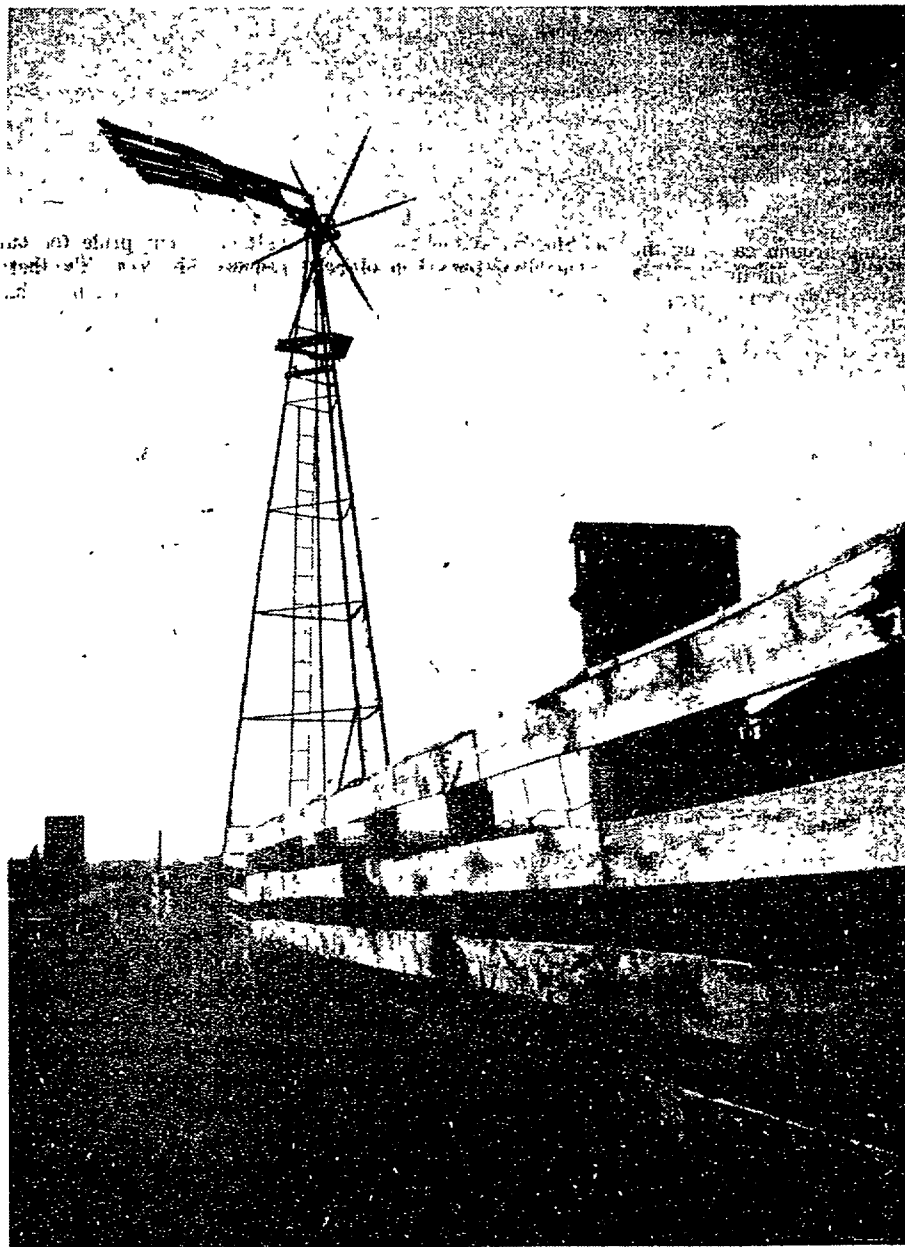

No one is accustomed to thinking in terms of the $2 bill. If a customer buys a 50-cent item and hands you one bill, you (and sometimes the customer) assume it's $1. You automatically think of giving 50 cents in change, not $1.50.

If it's here to stay, I'm sure we'll all get used to it. But, for now, it's causing a lot of confusion.

Brighton.

Some Students Do Care

To the Editor:

I'm writing this in regards to the letter in the Record two weeks ago. I go to Meads Mill Middle School. First of all the school is an open campus. All that is expected from the students is to behave on the way down and back from the store. Most people do but we know there are some who just can't pass up a chance to destroy someone else's property. Why should it be a closed campus when more than half the students are capable of handling themselves? Would it be fair to take it all away from all of us?

You mentioned the fence, well if we had the money supply you could have had the fence but unfortunately with the millage turn-down we didn't have the extra for a fence. You also mentioned smoking and our feelings are that kids are going to smoke no matter what, when or where. It's the parents' problem not the school's. If a student wishes to smoke we can't tell them what to do. It happens to be their life. We can tell the parents of students which we do if we catch them. Then suspension is taken into action. We are aware of all the destruction going on but how can you stop every person? There are 1,040 students who do as they please as lunch hour is a free hour, but it is still just a few that do the destruction.

We would like to ask you what replies you expect to hear when you call the school? "We'll do something right away", or "The parents will be called". "We don't see what we can do if you have no names. Pick six boys and girls and say you did it, so you'll pay. It doesn't work that way. Why don't you come to the school and look at the school pictures and pick the culprits out?"

We have only two head authorities and they do a great job as far as we see. They are busy all the time and do as

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

With seven kids, a dog and two cats inhabiting our place, I have learned to "cope" with all kinds of emergencies that are always as close as the locked bathroom door.

The dickens of it is that no matter how salty a father becomes there's always one more situation around the corner to test a guy's mettle. A rock through the doorwall, the dog chews on a neighbor's pet, someone backs out of the garage without opening the door, or the policeman is rapping on our door. And worse.

For example, the senior cat, who was to be "fixed" after her last litter, turned up pregnant again recently despite the insistence by her owners that "she was never out of the house." Zeke, her son, therefore has been accused, justly or unjustly.

As is her habit, Momma Cat climbed into the rafters of the ground floor and delivered her perennial litter of kittens in a nest of spiders and dust. Though her family was some 20 feet out of reach of human hands, the kittens had as much privacy as animals in a zoo. Scaffolding was erected in the laundry room, spotlights were hooked up, and every kid in the neighborhood took turns in peering down the tunnel and encouraging the furry creatures to come out.

"Daddy, the kitten is caught," announced the youngest of our children upon my arrival home the other night.

Whereupon I pried loose a chorus of admissions that family gawkers had coaxed the kittens closer to the entrance and one of them had fallen into a crack between the heating duct and floor joist. "Get him out, Daddy, the poor thing will die," they pleaded.

So old dad climbed into the scaffolding and peered down the tunnel. Nothing. Just Momma Cat's angry eyes at the opposite end and the noise of the crying kitten. "Okay, kids, I'll get him out," I told them, not realizing what I was getting myself into.

First was an elaborate stick and hook affair that did nothing but make the kitten cry louder and Momma Cat hiss in my face. Then I stuffed Zeke into the hole, thinking he might drag his kid out. But that only made Momma Cat angrier, and she charged up the tunnel after the invader who shot onto my head in trying to make good his escape.

To get a closer look, I removed a furnace pipe and then another and another, but managed to get no closer than the sharp nail that left a mark in my scalp next to those left by Zeke.

"No stupid animal is going to get the best of me," I calmly announced while banging the floor boards. "If you were half a mother you'd pull your youngster out of that hole," I shouted down the tunnel. She split at me.

Then, over the protests of my wife, I ran my ear along the family room ceiling listening for the kitten's location and then banged a hole through the plaster.

Sees No Equity In Taft Paving

To the Editor:

After giving much thought and consideration to your May 5 editorial, I feel I must make comment as a citizen of Novi and more particularly as a resident of Taft Road. Not only were the views expressed most prejudicial, but also untimely in view of the impending litigation to be filed on behalf of the Taft Road property owners. It is understandable that you should support the City's position assessment-wise inasmuch as you are their "official newspaper" and reap many benefits due to this designation. However, we subscribers feel you should look at the other side of the coin and give us equal consideration.

Your editorial cites only ONE of several cases that might be considered comparable to the proposed paving of Taft Road; i.e., Randolph Street in Northville. Mr. David Fried, Novi's City Attorney, has repeatedly stated that each assessment district must be judged independently on its own merits. Randolph, despite its paving, has remained a fairly quiet residential street.

Commercial vehicles are prohibited and a speed limit of 25 m.p.h. is strictly enforced. We have been told that such restrictions cannot be applied to Taft if and when it is paved. It already carries more than "neighborhood type traffic", endangering the lives of its residents, their children and pets.

If paved, even more traffic will be generated by those using it as a by-pass to the congested Novi-Grand River intersection and the C&O tracks. The amount of benefit to be derived by the abutting property owners under such circumstances is questionable and will eventually be settled in a court of law. Thus, it would appear unjust for anyone to try and determine same without having all the facts at hand prior to that time. We residents, too, are paying the extra millage, in addition to being assessed on a per front foot basis, plus a possible 9 percent interest rate. If you think this is "equity from an observer's standpoint", then I don't think you have observed very well.

Very truly yours,
Mary S. Wikman
(Mrs. Jack L.)

Sale Helps Hawthorn

To the Editor:

Yesterday at our rummage and bake sale to help the children at Hawthorn Center, I thought about the months of preparation by the parents of these children. So today I would like to thank the parents who worked so hard and the people of Northville who helped so much AGAIN with their generous donations.

And I would like to give a special thanks to the merchants who let us display our posters, to Krogers who, as usual, supplied many boxes and paper bags, and to Jean Day of The Northville Record who worked so admirably for this tired mother by writing columns about our annual rummage sale.

I hope some day soon we can stop bothering everyone about donations for mental health, but right now it is still a menacing problem and we must all face it as best we can, in any way we can, so the future of this state and country—the children, will grow up strong and healthy and be able to cope with life in a more intelligent way than most of us did.

Many thanks again to everyone who helped make our sale a success.

Sincerely,
Shirley Matthews

much as they can about the Franklin Road problem, but actually it's a police matter. Destroying property is not a school problem. The teachers handle the classes in a well manner but have no time to be running around catching the students doing this destruction. You seem to think it's everyone but it's not so please don't speak in the manner that it is everyone. Some care and deserve credit!

We recently had a school clean-up day. We succeeded in cleaning the inside of the school and the litter in the school surroundings and a neighbor's whose property was littered on. We would have been more than happy to do others but no one else called or tried to ask for help.

the putting up of a fence, or the dealing with the students that smoke. But we have done some things such as; cleaning up the inside and the outside of our school! We (the student council) got together and set a date for a clean-up day. So on a Saturday students who had signed up in the school office, and student council members (with the help of the faculty) grabbed their sponges and buckets and went to work!!!!

The school isn't spotless, but it's cleaner than it was! We cleaned the rest rooms and the cafeteria, and other parts of the school. Plus, we cleaned up A LOT of the trash outside!

Also, the old barn that was mentioned in the letter, was cleaned by a group of students on the clean-up day, as a good will gesture.

Still no kitten, just an eye full of plaster. Then another hole, another and still others until the place looked like a war zone. Finally, the little devil poked his head out and I yanked him free.

A hero's moment in the sun is short-lived. Momma Cat expressed her appreciation by dragging her kitten back into the rafters, the family is nagging me about those "awful holes" in the ceiling and my wife insists the whole room will require repainting, it's chicken pox time again, and my oldest son announced he has joined the army, the infantry of all things, and he's going off to Alaska.

What's more, someone walked off with a piece of the dismantled furnace pipe.

By R. Robert Geake

Michigan's 1975 firearm deer season was the most successful ever for buck hunters, according to figures just released by the state Department of Natural Resources. A record number of bucks, 96,890, were taken last year, exceeding the previous high for one season of 89,470 set in 1946.

Based on a DNR postcard survey of more than 26,000 randomly selected hunters who held 1975 deer licenses, last year's total is estimated at 106,970, counting the 10,080 antlerless deer that were taken.

Hunter success was high, also, as about one sportsman in seven, about fifteen percent, brought home venison. The 710,000 firearm deer hunters in 1975 was also a record, bettering the previous high of 657,500 in 1975.

Figures tabulated by the DNR show that most deer taken last year came from the northern half of the Lower Peninsula, which is also where most hunters took to the woods and fields in search of whitetails.

If you want your car personalized, now is the time to start thinking about it. Applications for 1977 personalized license plates are now being accepted by the Secretary of State branch offices.

The personalized plates cost $25 above the normal license plate fee for your vehicle. The extra funds are used to help clean up Michigan's highways.

Automobiles and pickup trucks may use any combination of six letters or numbers, except for obscene or otherwise objectionable combinations. Because of the smaller size, motorcycle license plates are limited to five letters or numbers.

The deadline to order for 1977 is June 30, 1976. The personalized plates will be mailed to owners about November 15, the date when all license tags go on sale.

trimming costs.

"I know you people (council members) worked hard on this budget, but the taxpayers have had enough," said Adams, who told council members that he is very pleased with the services he receives in the city. In the case of the "extra" trash pickup, however, it probably could be reduced without hurting services substantially, he suggested.

Stratton voiced concern over reported increases in wages for administrators, referring to an article in The Record of May 5 which listed proposed salaries for the clerk, DPW superintendent and the assistant DPW superintendent.

Council explained that the reported figures had not been approved and are not now included in the new budget. The reported salaries were working figures only.

According to City Manager Steven Walters, none of the department head salaries except his own have been set as yet and will not be set until after settlement of labor contracts with policemen, DPW employees and clerical employees. Negotiations with municipal labor unions are continuing.

Presently, the salary of the DPW superintendent, his assistant and the clerk remain fixed at the previous rate: superintendent, $18,907 plus $1,080 in longevity (no overtime); assistant superintendent, $16,598 plus $280 longevity, plus weekend overtime when assigned.

Council in its budget did include a boost in the manager's salary by roughly $5,000 — from $20,000 to $25,000, which includes fringes. Council members Monday lauded the manager for his past service and strongly defended the raise.

The new budget calls for these general fund expenditures:

- General government, $234,750.
- Public safety, $557,890.
- Public works, $319,700.
- Recreation and cultural (library), $80,400.
- Other expenses (insurance, fringe benefits and supplies), $222,900.

Other non-general fund outlays include:

Major street fund, $141,000; local street fund, $75,900; equipment fund, $151,900; sewer and water fund, $285,000; and public improvement fund (race track revenues), $674,000.

The 10.8 tax rate is expected to produce $508,158.14 in taxes based on a state equalized valuation of $47,051,680.

Concerning negotiations, it was explained that if salaries and fringe benefits exceed allocations within the budget the city will have little recourse but to call for layoffs. And Councilman Paul Vernon voiced fear that even with the budget increase insufficient monies may be available to meet salary settlements.

Basically, the new budget reflects no real increase in services but rather a general inflation of costs that occur at all levels in the public and private sector, councilmen stressed.

Councilman Paul Folino, for example, noted that in purchasing a new van recently the low bid was $4,197 whereas in previous years the cost of a van approximated $2,700. This $1400 increase, he said, is indicative of the spiralling inflation that the city faces in developing the budget.

Vernon reminded critics of the budget that it represents a significant decrease from the originally proposed budget. Originally, the budget would have required a 1.8 mill tax increase, but after several budget trimming sessions council cut it back, to minimize the tax increase.

It was noted that over the years, the city's tax rate has changed relatively little, even though under state law council is empowered to levy up to 20 mills. Here are the millage rates over the past 10 years:

1966 — 12.50; 1967 — 9.25; 1968 — 13; 1969 — 11.40; 1970 — 10.20; 1971 — 10.30; 1972 — 10.20; 1973 — 8.10; 1974 — 10.30; 1975 — 9.90; and 1976 — 10.8.

According to data prepared by the city manager, the .9

mill tax rate will produce these kinds of typical tax bills:

In Oakland County

Northville Estates or Lexington Commons North, on a home assessed at $28,000, a tax of $317, up $40; Lexington Condos, on a home assessed at $20,000, a tax of $226, up $28; Northville Heights, home assessed at $19,000, a tax of $215, up $27; Yerkes Estates, home assessed at $18,000, a tax of $204, up $26; and Oakwood Subdivision, a home assessed at $14,000, a tax of $159, up $20.

In Wayne County

Lexington Commons South, a home assessed at $25,500, a tax of $311, up $31; Yerkes & Horton additions, a home assessed at $17,000, a tax of $207, up $20; and Rogers Street area, a home assessed at $14,000, a tax of $171, up $17.

subcommittees will be made at Tuesday's meeting. Terrasi has headed the recreation study, Mrs. Rubenstein, the library, and her husband, Abe, the police.

The second item on the agenda of Tuesday night's special meeting involves an 8.9-acre site at Six Mile near Winchester given to the township by Thompson-Brown Company.

The property was given to the township by the land developing company several years ago when it began construction of Northville Commons. It contains a five-year reverter clause that stipulates the land returns to the company if the township has not started an administrative building on the site by April, 1977.

Supervisor Lennox explains that a request for an extension of the time period has resulted in a proposal by the development firm that it will give the township a free and clear title to 7.88 acres if the township will give Thompson-Brown 1.02 acres of the site for a sales' office.

The land is on the north side of Six Mile road and east of the proposed extension of Winchester. Thompson-Brown owns a commercially zoned parcel next to the township site and would also agree to provide a 60-foot easement from the township site to Six Mile and the extended Winchester road when residential development of the north side of Six Mile road begins.

Supervisor Lennox said the board has the option of either accepting the new Thompson-Brown proposal or embarking upon a building program within the months remaining between now and next April.

She said the board's legal, engineering and planning consultants had advised accepting the outright deed to the 7.88-acre parcel, which would still accommodate an administrative building and a fire station, if desired.

The board is expected to take action on the question at the special meeting.

Remember Old Friends

Frank Poutney, which states he was a sergeant in the Fourth Cavalry, was born July 7, 1850, and died April 4, 1937.

"Here's Harold Parmenter (U.S. Navy World War II, 1902-1972) — they used to call him 'Cider', and here's our past commander Ray C. Pacquin (U.S. Marines World War II, 1923-1971)," Funke continued.

Names on markers, he said, all through the cemetery were those of friends, as is natural when you've lived here since 1930.

"Charlie Murphy who died this year isn't buried in the military section — he's buried with his wife — but he'll sure be missed — by me, especially. You know, he marched last year in the parade at the age of 82."

Asked about several white marble markers that are blank, Funke explained, "They're old timers. Somewhere along the way they lost their identifications. They were buried in wooden boxes in those days."

There's also a marker without a grave, Funke pointed out, leading the way to the "In Memory" marker of Gerald Allen Holman, Lieutenant, J.G., 1939-1966, from the Vietnam War.

"I understand he was lost in the China Sea."

New graves have been added since the annual Memorial Day speeches and observances were held at the plot last year.

One is not yet marked, but white marble stones mark the graves of William Gordon Christensen, a World War II veteran, 1917-1975, and of Edgar C. Prom, of the Army Air Force World War II, 1908-1976.

Separate from the others at the center of the plot is the grave of Lloyd Harvey Green, who was killed October 2, 1918.

"I understand he was the first man from Northville killed in World War I and is the one they named the Legion post for — he was with the Red Arrow Division in Europe."

To have the green plot with its high flagpole in as good a shape as possible for next Sunday, the cemetery committee had had a load of topsoil delivered.

"We only had to pay for carting it," Funke said, "the businessmen in town are good when they hear what it's for. We have millionaire parties to support the cemetery fund and most businessmen and merchants say they're only too happy to help, but we didn't need to have a party this spring as there was enough in the fund — probably later."

"Bill Widmaier, Cabbie Myers, Lloyd Morgan and Post Commander Merle Hoag were among those coming out Saturday," Funke added, surveying with satisfaction the clipped grassy plot in front of a hillside green with fern, bushes and a few white iris.

Looking toward the curving, tree-lined road leading to the high point in the cemetery, Funke repeated another Northville resident's observation on the cemetery filled with markers of familiar names, "Mrs. Bongiovanni says they're friends just waiting for us to join them."

"It doesn't make any difference here whether you were rich or who you were."

Six Terms Expiring

remaining to file — the treasurer's post and at least one trustee seat remain without candidates.

Close observers of township politics believe, however, that more petitions will be filed at the deadline and that there will be competition within the Republican party itself for several of the board positions in the August primary.

The positions of supervisor and clerk are full time with the supervisor receiving $14,000 annually and the clerk, $11,500. Presently, the treasurer is a part-time post with an annual salary of $2,000. Trustees recently waived their pay — normally $20 per meeting — because of the township's money squeeze.

The three township officers — supervisor, clerk and treasurer — have terms of two years each. And normally, the four-year terms of the four trustees are staggered in such a manner that two terms expire each two years.

But during the past year in Northville Township the board has had to play a game of musical chairs.

Treasurer Rosenberg was elected to a four-year term as trustee in November, 1974.

But in March, 1975 he was appointed treasurer to complete the term of the late Joseph Straub.

Dr. Swienkowski was then appointed trustee in April, 1975, to fill in for Rosenberg until the next general election, November, 1976.

Supervisor Lawrence Wright resigned his post in July, 1975, and Clerk Lennox was appointed supervisor.

In August the board appointed Mrs. Sass to the clerk's post vacated by Mrs. Lennox.

So in reality only five of the seven board members were elected to office, and only three were actually elected to the post they now hold.

Mrs. Sass and Dr. Swienkowski are appointees; Mrs. Lennox was elected clerk and appointed supervisor; Rosenberg was elected trustee and appointed treasurer.

Trustees MacDonald, Mitchell and Nowka were elected to the posts they now hold.

Republican petitions must contain signatures of from 12 to 49 registered township voters, while Democratic petitions must contain from 19 to 77 signatures.

A 13-year-old girl hiking in the Walk for Mankind Saturday not only completed the 22-mile stretch but found and returned a wallet containing $103.

Debbie Paluzzi of Old Bedford Road was walking near Mill Street when she spied the wallet lying on the ground. Her dad, John Paluzzi, who was checking her progress was given the wallet.

Paluzzi in turn handed it over to police covering the area who contacted the owner.

A surprised Nathaniel Whiteside of Northville was happy to get the wallet back. He told township police he had been to the bank and realized his wallet was missing but thought he had put it down somewhere.

He never realized it had popped out of his pocket onto the ground waiting for Debbie to do her good deed.

Treasure Hunting

More and More Adults Are Discovering That The Old Children's Game Is More Fun Now Than Ever

By PHILIP JEROME

Maybe it's happened to you.

You're sitting out on your porch, minding your own business, when all of a sudden a car screeches to a halt, six wild-eyed people jump out and start racing wildly around until finally one of them yells "I've got it," at which point the rest of them all jump back in the car which screeches off at a high rate of speed.

If you'll stay right where you are instead of seeking refuge at some far-off spot, you'll probably see the same scene repeated several times before the evening is over.

Don't worry. There's nothing to fear. The crazies are not inheriting the earth.

What you have just witnessed was the arrival of a carload of treasure hunters.

Treasure hunts are becoming an increasingly popular activity for many adult groups and organizations. And if you thought that treasure hunts were something you used to do as a child, you're absolutely right.

By the time he reaches 10 years old, every child has been on his share of treasure hunts.

The teacher, den mother, or camp counselor gives him the first clue which leads to the second clue which leads to the third clue and so forth and so on until he finally arrives at the final destination where he receives some sort of "treasure". Invariably "s'mores".

But why should the kids have all the fun? No reason at all, right?

Adults have adopted the popular old children's game on a more sophisticated level, and more and more adults are discovering that the adult version of the treasure hunt is even more fun than it was when they were kids.

The adult treasure hunts usually work something like this. All the entrants — three couples to a car — meet at a designated location at a designated time and are given their first clue. That leads them to a second clue which leads them to a third clue and so forth and so on until they all arrive at a final destination where they have dinner.

Many groups and organizations are staging treasure hunts for an evening's entertainment. Many Jaycee groups have them as well as many church groups.

There's a "Treasure Hunt Club" in the northwest

Detroit area, and some couples enjoy them so much that they participate in different treasure hunts throughout the area every chance they get.

The thing that sets the adult treasure hunts apart is the difficulty of the clues. Planners of treasure hunts can't make the clues so tough that no one will get them, but if they're too easy the hunters will race through them too quickly.

For example, a clue may consist of a picture of a witch, riding a golf club, smoking a cigarette, and flying over some hills.

Have you got it yet? It's an easy one — Salem Hills Golf Course.

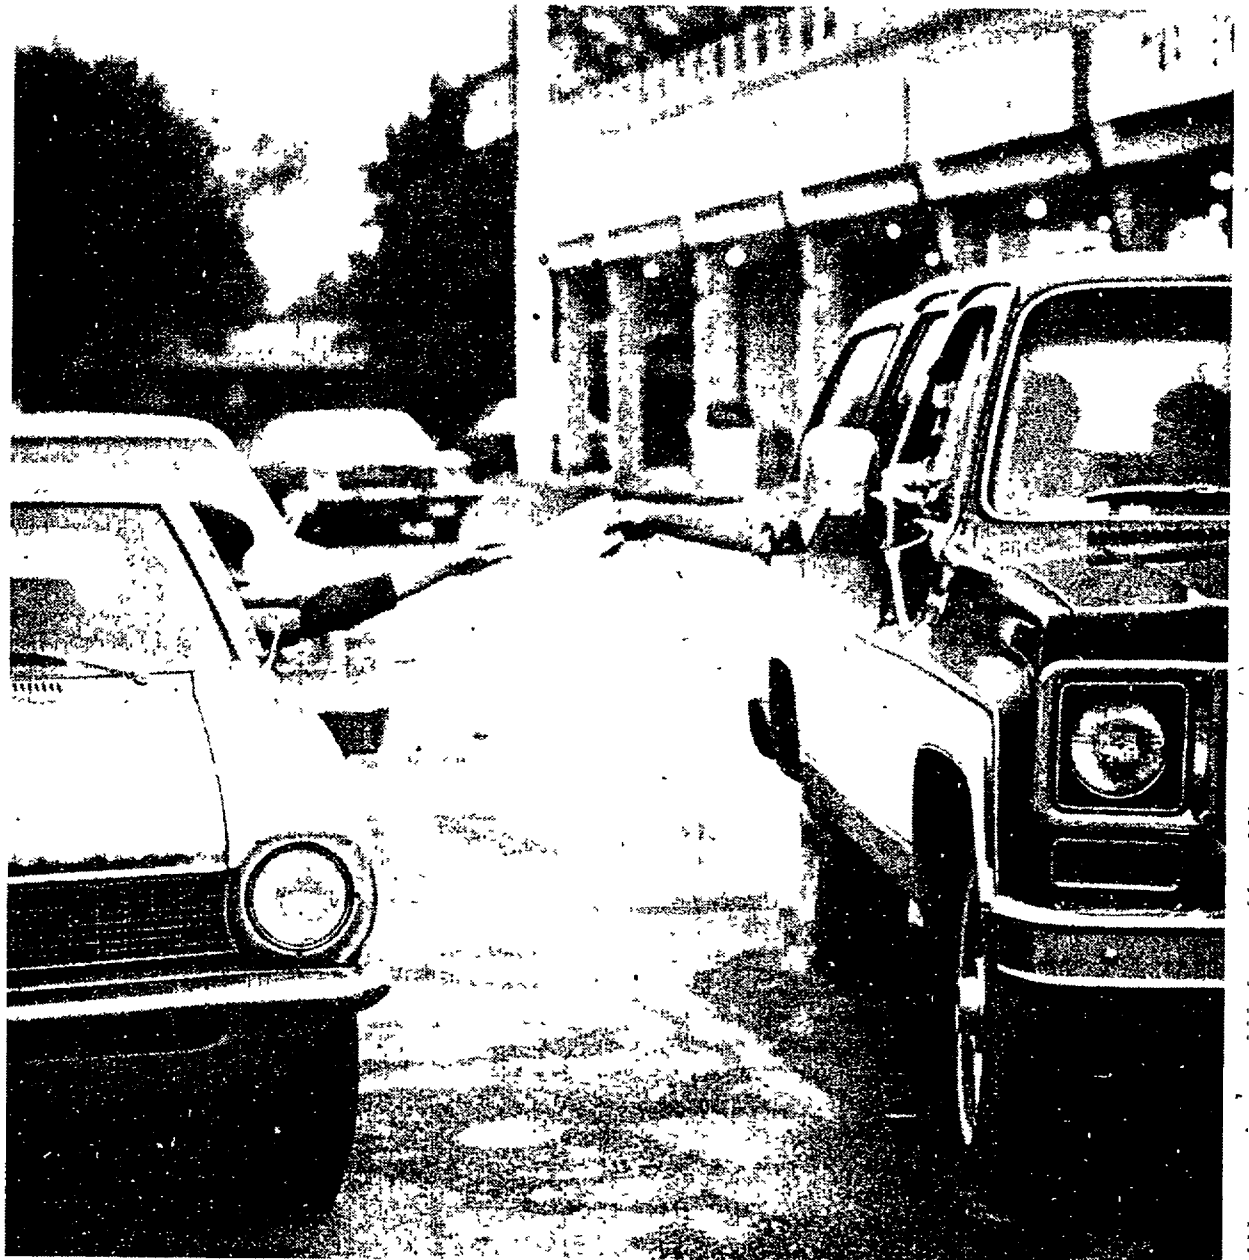

Try this one on for size. You pick up your clue at Green Ridge Nursery on Napier Road. You know that the next location is within 10 miles of that spot. Inside your packet you find five pictures — Veronica Lake, Jimmy Carter, the Marquis de Lafayette, Jimmy Stewart, and Jimmy Connors.

That one proved to be a bit more difficult for the people who participated in the Treasure Hunt sponsored by the Couples Club of the Northville Presbyterian Church recently.

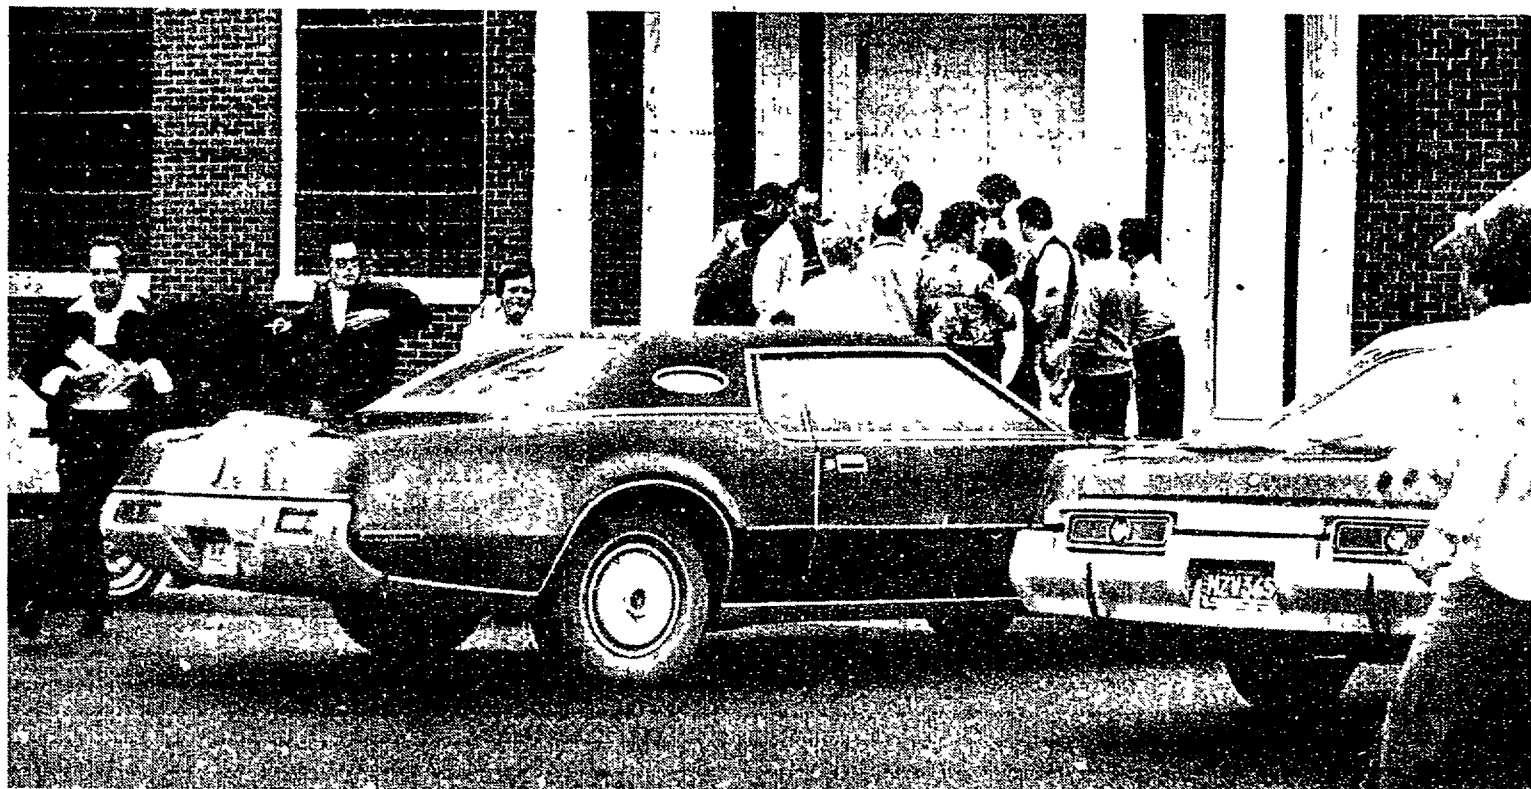

The answer — Jimmy's Restaurant at the corner of Lake and Lafayette in South Lyon.

Here's another one. Your clue consists of four envelopes. One is addressed to Richie Cunningham in Wisconsin, another to a Mr. Limpet at Coney Island, a third to Will Stockton in Georgia, and a fourth to Gomer Pyle, USMC, in California. The clue tells you that it can be solved when you figure out how to save 39 cents.

"Fairs provide an excellent opportunity for a friendly exchange between consumers and the producers of Michigan's agricultural bounty. There are nearly 50 important crops produced in our state," Ball said.

Michigan's two state fairs are the Upper Peninsula State Fair at Escanaba August 17-22 and the Michigan State Fair at Detroit August 27-September 6.

Stake Tomato Plants To Conserve Space

Many home gardeners use started vegetable plants grown for them by members of Bedding Plants, Incorporated, the international organization of bedding plant growers.

These healthy plants can be purchased in units of one, six or more, depending on the gardener's needs. They are easy to plant, and quicker crops are possible for home gardeners using these started plants.

Tomato plants are the most popular vegetable plants for the home gardener. Choose sturdy plants of fine hybrid varieties or of old reliable varieties. Plant them in your garden after frost danger is past. In addition to the red tomato, there are large yellow tomato plants, as well as cherry and plum tomatoes.

Staking tomato plants will conserve garden space.

Dwarf plants which produce medium-sized fruits have become popular for plants or for hanging baskets.

Even though tomato plants are the most popular with vegetable gardeners, pepper plants are also sought by many home gardeners. Pepper plants grow best in warm weather, so delay planting until after frost danger is past. The green bell pepper for salads or stuffing ripens to red later in the season.

Sweet frying peppers and spicy "hot" peppers can be grown from plants offered at your garden supply store.

Broccoli, cabbage, celery and onion plants are available at your garden supply store in the cooler days of early spring. They do well in your garden in cooler weather, so plant them in a sunny area in well-prepared soil soon after they appear at the store. Celery and onion plants should be planted at distances equal to the size of the celery or onion when mature; broccoli, 12 inches apart and cabbage, 18 inches apart.

Eggplant transplants, parsley and other herb transplants are available at your local garden supply store at the proper planting time. You may also find potted plants of summer squash and zucchini.

Try planting marigold plants in your vegetable garden beside vegetable rows or between vegetable plants. Marigold root systems excrete a substance harmful to certain soil nematodes which attach to plant roots in the vegetable garden, providing the garden with a natural pesticide control.

A Movable Feast—For The Eyes

Want to give your home an instant interior redecorating job? Try moving your house plants to new positions around your home as the seasons change.

Besides giving a fresh decorating touch, it's good for the plants, too. According to the new Ortho garden book, "Container and Hanging Gardens," it's wise to shift plants around to give them the light they need as lighting conditions change during the year. Plants growing well in an east or south window in the summer, for example, are best moved into a western exposure in the winter.

Small plants in pots are, of course, the easiest to move. Pots are generally lightweight and come in sizes that fit almost anywhere — on tables, sideboards or in bookcases.

For larger plants, though, you can attach a tote rope to wooden platforms on casters. A platform also helps keep terracotta-saucers off the floor. Another method is to mount the casters directly to the decorative wooden boxes for easy portability.

Carts loaded with plants can make a "permanent" dramatic display in the living room — permanent, that is, until "Old Sol" changes the season and it's time to move into the dining room to recapture afternoon sun. Carts can also be constructed so that they blend in with any decor — fine wood veneers or chrome and glass make a living room.

Try pulleys for great mobility — vertically! Using pulleys, it's possible to move plants up into the sun's direct rays in a sunny window in summer — and back down in winter. Pulleys also allow changing the arrangement of plants for different decorative effects. And, with pulleys, your ivy, heart-leaved philodendron, or wandering Jew can be raised as they grow toward the floor.

Swinging brackets mounted on the window frame allow plants to be moved in and out of sunlight as desired, according to "Container and Hanging Gardens," the latest in the Ortho garden book series.

Watering, Feeding Essential Perfect Roses Require Lots of Care

By KATHY COPLEY

Perfect roses won't just happen, but it doesn't take much effort—if you do the right things at the right time.

Roses need plenty of moisture and nutrients, both of which are most easily supplied by planting them in well-drained soil rich in moisture-retaining humus and enriched with compost, manure, peat moss, etc. If the soil is less than perfect, regular watering to a depth of 6-8 inches per week and feeding with a balanced fertilizer will help to make up for the soil's deficiencies.

Roses don't like competition for food and water. If they are near large trees or shrubs, it is too late to move them but you can give them extra fertilizer and water. If they are surrounded by weeds or flowers, clear the area out so they can breathe.

Many foliage diseases are encouraged by wet leaves. Plants with good air circulation have wet leaves for less time, so the chances of black spot or mildew are lessened. If possible, clear out or prune plants which keep out fresh air.

Many rose diseases can be eliminated or at least controlled with routine inspections and prompt action. Mildew, black spot, and rust plague rose plants, attacking the leaves first and eventually dwarfing and deforming leaves, stems, and buds. They spread quickly once introduced but can often be prevented from doing serious damage if the affected leaves and stems are removed.

Black spot begins as small black spots on the upper side of the leaf; these spots are soon surrounded by yellow halos and the leaf eventually dies. Rust begins as rust-colored spots scattered on the underside of the leaf.

Both can be controlled with a good fungicide, with benomyl and captan being among the best. Black spot is rarely active in temperatures below 55-60 degrees but moist, humid nights set it free.

A good fungicide, or powdered sulfur will help control mildew on roses as well as philox, zinnias, gloriosa daisies, and other plants which it affects. In early stages mildew does not harm the plant but, left alone, it will kill the foliage and, eventually, the plant itself may succumb.

Watering roses in the late afternoon or evening encourages fungus diseases because the leaves will remain wet through the night. There isn't any way to control natural showers, but confine manmade ones to morning or early afternoon, while the sun and wind still have time to dry the foliage.

If careful watering and use of fungicides aren't helping, check again for leaves on the ground at the base of the plant. The disease spores lie here, dormant, waiting for the proper conditions of temperature and moisture. Keeping the area free of diseased leaves is an essential step to control.

An intimidating list of bugs bother roses, but a regular spraying program should keep them in bounds. An all-purpose insecticide like malathion is excellent, as are the systemics formulated to feed the plant and kill sucking insects at the same time. Begin insect control now to prevent an all-out attack from thrips, aphids, scale, caterpillars, leaf cutter bees, etc.

Plants Need Fertilizer

The "lure" of the vegetable garden is sweeping America. A recent Gallup poll indicates almost half of the families in America are involved in vegetable gardening — with everything from a few tomato plants set among the flowers and shrubs, to large family plots of almost an acre in size.

Regardless of the size of the garden plot, the gardener's rewards are multiplied greatly by proper fertilizing. Many "newcomers" to gardening either overlook fertilizing entirely, or feel that its benefits would be marginal. The result, of course, is a garden that just doesn't produce up to its potential.

Experience alone, however, does not always impress upon home gardeners the importance of proper feeding. A common mistake among "seasoned" gardeners, for example, is the belief that garden compost will provide adequate plant nutrients.

Made principally from grass clippings and food wastes, compost is unquestionably valuable for improving the texture of the soil. It is not, however, high enough in nutrients to make a significant improvement in vegetable growth.

To get the most from any vegetable garden, it is best to use a fertilizer designed specifically for vegetables.

For further information on vegetable gardening, send for the free booklet entitled "How to grow more and better vegetables." Mail request to: Scotts, 6th and Plum Sts., Marysville, Ohio 43040.

TWO NEW businesses have just opened and two others will open June 1 in the Northville Plaza located on Seven Mile Road just west of the regional State Police Post now under construction.

The businesses will share the shopping center with A & P, Perry's Drug Store, and TG & Y department store that opened some time ago.

Newly opened is Northville Plaza Barbers & Styling Salon and Laurel Hill Gift Place. To open June 1 will be Michael's Jewelry and George's Coiffures beauty salon. The new businesses are located in the east end of the shopping center.

Barbers & Salon is a complete unisex hair cutting and styling center. It features hair painting, hairpieces and wigs.

Owned and operated by Steven Tomen, the salon will be open daily (closed Sundays) from 9 to 6 p.m. It has 11 private booths. Tomen has been in the business for 28 years, formerly operating salons in Redford, Livonia Mall, Tel-Twelve and Brighton shopping centers, Wayne Mall and Macomb Mall.

The Gift Place, owned and operated by Mary Ann Hapiak, features Gibson cards, party supplies, Fenton, Viking and Pfaltzgraff glassware, gift plants and candles.

Mrs. Hapiak's shop is open daily from 10 to 9 p.m. Michael's Jewelry will be operated by Michael Ansara of Westland. Employing three watchmakers, it will specialize in watch and jewelry repair, remounting and engraving. And it will feature a full line of Seiko watches, along with a wide selection of opal, sapphire and diamond rings, costume jewelry, charms, necklaces, clocks, crystal and silver.

Ansara has been in the business for 26 years. Four stores are owned by his family, two of them overseas.

The shop will be open daily from 10 to 9 p.m. and on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

George's Coiffures, which will be opening daily at 8:30 a.m., will feature total hair care for women, including permanents, hairpainting, blow styling, haircuts, and frosting.

THE BOARD of directors of Perry Drug Stores, Inc. have declared a regular quarterly dividend of two cents (2 cents) per share. The dividend is payable June 14, 1976 to shareholders of record June 1.

Perry Drug Stores, Inc., which is headquartered in Pontiac, operates 39 drug stores serving 30 communities in southeastern Michigan.

D & C STORES, with stores operating in Brighton and Northville among their 38 operations in Michigan, are now celebrating their 50th anniversary.

The Brighton store was one of five original D&C Stores originated in 1926. Others were in the towns of Romeo, Rochester, Lake Odessa and Marshall.

The headquarters for the newly-formed corporation was located in Stockbridge, where it remains today. J. H. Dancer became the owner-president along with P. C. Dancer and a Mr. Cowan. Thus, the new name D & C Stores, Inc.

The Brighton store has been run by two Brighton residents for the past 35 years. Ken Chappell was the manager for 22 years before Dan Schmidt took over in 1963.

A NEW BUSINESS specializing in radiator repairs has opened in South Lyon.

Harold and Miriam Rayberg (above) have opened H&M Radiator at 12076 Ten Mile Road, just west of South Lyon.

They specialize in auto radiator and heater core repair and recoring, as well as gas tank repair and auto electrical systems.

Gary Brendle of Milford, an employee of H&M Radiator, is also an experienced repairman dedicated to prompt, guaranteed service.

DR. LYLE FETTIG, D.O. of Novi has been elected as delegate to the American Osteopathic Association's next convention. The election took place at the 77th annual Postgraduate Conference and Scientific Seminar at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn.

CONSUMERS POWER Company today announced a major reorganization of its operations with the establishment of eight operating regions to serve customers in its 27,000 square mile service area in the lower peninsula.

The new service boundaries replace the utility's 15 operating divisions. The reorganization was announced by the company's president, John D. Selby.

Each region will be operated under the supervision of a general manager who will be responsible for construction, operation and maintenance of electric and gas distribution systems, energy consulting services, accounting, and customer, employee and community relations within his area.

The new operating structure is effective July 1.

MICHIGAN SEAMLESS TUBE Company has reported the second highest quarterly earnings in its history.

Acquisition of Viking Metallurgical Corporation, completed March 1, had a favorable impact on the second quarter as did a corporate LIFO inventory adjustment of approximately $300,000, or 11 cents per share.

Net earnings for the three months ended April 30 were $2.646 million, down from $3.628 million in the same quarter of 1975. Net sales in the quarter were $30.889 million as compared with $36.038 million for the same quarter in 1975.

Net earnings for the six months ended April 30 were $4.695 million as compared with net earnings of $4.909 million for the same period in 1975. Net sales for the six months ended April 30 were $61.269 million as compared with net sales of $61.768 million in 1975.

Asparagus Adds Beauty

Asparagus is lovely as a ferny foliage plant in back of the flower-border or planted to show its delicate tracery against a house wall. Even lowly cabbage can be a stunning plant in the flower garden. Especially interesting are the crinkled Savoy types and red cabbages. And, don't forget okra. This fascinating, tall plant shows its relation to the hibiscus in its leaves and beautiful flowers.

Business

The 14.3 percent decrease in sales and a 27.1 percent decrease in earnings from the second quarter last year resulted from a combination of lower volume and a less desirable product mix.

For the six month period ended April 30, 1976, sales of $61.3 million were down about one percent from the first half of 1975 and earnings of $4.7 million were only down about four percent from the record $4.9 million during the comparable six months period last year.

Michigan Seamless Tube President Carl E. Pfeiffer stated that there is a definite strengthening of incoming orders which is expected to continue to grow as the economy recovers from the most severe recession since the 1930's. "This coupled with the favorable sales and earnings being generated by the newest member of our family of companies, Viking Metallurgical Corporation, should give us a year that will be as good or better than 1975," predicted Pfeiffer.

DOUG ZIMMERMAN and Christopher Roy, Brighton Farm Bureau Insurance Group agents, have recently completed the company's intermediate multi-line course conducted at the home office in Lansing.

The course, an intensive three-day seminar, is designed to further develop agents' insurance knowledge in all lines of business.

FRIENDLY Ice Cream Corporation will open a Fine Food and Ice Cream Shop in early June at 331 North Center Street in Northville.

Being a quick service restaurant, the Friendly Shop will offer soups, sandwiches, beverages, ice cream specialties and platters. A full breakfast will be served each day from 7:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. and a complete take-out service offered.

The Georgian colonial architecture with gold and orange interior will be highlighted with a hanging black chandelier with antique brass. Brown barnboard and tangelo stool covers will accent the motif. Additional features will be an O-Gee clock and original wooden farm plaques.

In 1935 Curtis and Prestley Blake opened the first Friendly Ice Cream Shop in Springfield, Massachusetts. Since this humble beginning, the aim of the Blake Brothers has been to provide quality food at moderate prices served by friendly and capable personnel.

Today Friendly Ice Cream Corporation operates over 520 shops in 15 states and in the fiscal year ended April 25, 1975 had approximately $120 million in sales. The firm recently completed a $5 million food processing and distribution facility in Troy, Ohio which services all Friendly Fine Food & Ice Cream Shops in the Midwest.

KAY ROTARIUS, a Brighton Township resident, on May 14 assumed the position of manager of Airway Hills Subdivision, a unique development off Hyne Road.

It offers a chance to build airplane hangers on single-family residential property. The subdivision is adjacent to Hyne Field.

Mrs. Rotarius, affiliated with Howell Town and Country Real Estate, recently passed the real estate test to gain her license. She previously attended the Real Estate Institute of Russell Schools, Southfield.

Five homes have been built on the subdivision site. Nine will be occupied soon, Mrs. Rotarius reports.

THE LIGHT TOUCH

A politician ran for Congressman, but he was so unpopular, one year he ran unopposed and still lost.

Nellie bought a brand new dress, 'Twas flimsy and quite thin. She asked me how I liked it, and I answered with a grin (singing): "WAIT 'TIL THE SUN SHINES, NELLIE!"

Political Promise: If I should run for office, I wouldn't be a dope, I'd only kiss the babies Who are old enough to vote

"Isn't it grand that St. Patrick's Day comes before April 15th!" "Yeah, now we can at least wave the green before the Government takes it away!"

A traveler, passing through a small town, saw an elaborate funeral going down Main St. He stopped and a native townsman to ask about it. "Who died?" enquired the stranger. "I can't say for sure," answered the townsman, "but I think it's the one in the hearse."

Are Lawmakers Too Free With Our Tax Dollars?

By ELMER E. WHITE

LANSING—"Don't get excited about only $10,000. It's just x percent of the whole state budget — a drop in the bucket." Comment you may have heard from a legislator.

But why "only?" Why do some lawmakers and other state officials talk in terms of "small" amounts of money that "can't make a difference" in the overall financial picture for Michigan? Why don't they think that every one of the taxpayers' dollars counts?

THINK ABOUT your personal finances. If you spend "only" 1 percent of a $10,000 annual take-home pay on beer, or cigarettes or travel, for instance, it would total $100. Buy a lot of hamburger or car fixing or some such, wouldn't it?

Similarly, if the state spends "only" 1 percent of its approximately $3 billion annual budget for something — that's $30 million. And $30 million is nothing to sneeze at.

A RE-THINK is called for on the part of some folks in state government, especially considering the dire consequences predicted for some government funded programs because of money problems.

From "only x percent of the budget" to "at least x percent of the budget" is the change that's needed.

Perhaps constituent pressure is needed to make that change in some minds.

TURN RIGHT at the red light, after coming to a complete stop, unless a sign says don't do it.

Most motorists realize that effect of Michigan's new red-light turn law.

But there are other questions. Some wonder, for instance, if they also can turn left. Yes, says the Department of State Highways and Transportation, but only if turning onto a one-way street and if such turns are not prohibited by a sign at the intersection.

MUST A DRIVER turn right on red if the turn isn't prohibited?

No, says the department.

"If you do not intend to turn right, it is legal to stop in the right-hand lane if you want to drive through the intersection when the light turns green. It is not considered considerate, however.

"When the driver behind you leans on his horn because he wants to turn right, he may be legally wrong, but understandably irritated."

COME 2076, the year of the nation's Tricentennial, history seekers dredging through Michigan's Archives will discover records of 100-year-old maple seedlings planted throughout the state.

That's the goal of Bicentennial planners, who report that a batch of sugar maple seedlings, started from seeds of century-old trees near Niles, will be ready for planting in early June.

Governor William Milliken is expected to plant the cream of the sugar maple crop on the Capitol lawn June 11.

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources took orders for the seedlings last fall — including several hundred requests for some 1,000 of the tiny trees. Recipients will be asked to fill out forms describing the location of those trees for the benefit of historians 100 years hence.

MICHIGAN'S FIRST, along with Tennessee and South Carolina, to be chronicled in special Bicentennial history books.

Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Bruce Catton, a Petoskey native, put Michigan on paper in the last year as part of a National Endowment for the Humanities project that will eventually include documents about all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

"Looking around and savoring the flavor of my own state was a most gratifying experience," Catton said. His book, "Michigan: A Bicentennial History," is published by W.W. Norton & Company.

DETROIT, MICHIGAN, JANUARY 26, 1837—We're in! Michigan is now the 36th state in the Union, made official when President Andrew Jackson signed the Admissions Bill formerly approved by the Senate and the House of Representatives.

Today's victory climaxes a two-and-a-half year campaign for statehood launched by Governor Stevens T. Mason following his appointment as Acting Governor of the Michigan Territory in 1834 by President Jackson. In his message to the state legislature in January, 1835, Governor Mason declared statehood for Michigan to be his first priority.

His second was to establish Michigan jurisdiction over the "Toledo Strip," a narrow belt of land at the Michigan-Ohio border also claimed by Ohio. The prize in this territory was the port city of Toledo, expected to become a key Great Lakes trade center and a major commercial link between the East and West.

The dispute over this border became the biggest stumbling block to Michigan's bid for statehood. While both Governor Mason and Ohio Governor Robert Lucas supported President Jackson, Ohio was a state and Michigan was not. Ohio's vote in the presidential election was sure to count; Michigan's would count only if it became a state. Moreover, Ohio's statehood gave her many political advantages in Congress over Michigan as a territory.

Under these circumstances, Governor Mason knew that Congress would not authorize the population census usually required for statehood. But he also knew that if Michigan could gain statehood, the border dispute could be fought out in the courts — and on equal terms with Ohio.

Governor Mason's political strategy was to call for a state Constitutional Convention the second Monday of May in 1835, following a precedent set by Tennessee. By holding the convention and following through on the other prescribed procedures, he hoped to speed Michigan's admission as a state.

This plan was executed, and following the establishment of the new state government, Mason was elected governor in August. At this point the border dispute with Ohio flared again. Mason ordered the mobilization of troops to march into Toledo to protect Michigan's claim on the territory, and President Jackson promptly removed Mason as acting governor of the Michigan Territory.

Problems delayed the appointment of Mason's successor, and he continued to exercise his political leadership in Michigan. A direct conflict with Ohio was averted, but the border issue remained the key to Michigan statehood.

Michigan's new government legislature elected John Norvell and Lucius Lyon as Senators and Isaac Crary as representative, hoping to have them seated by Congress and thus gain at least informal approval as a state. Congress refused, however, granting them only observer privileges.

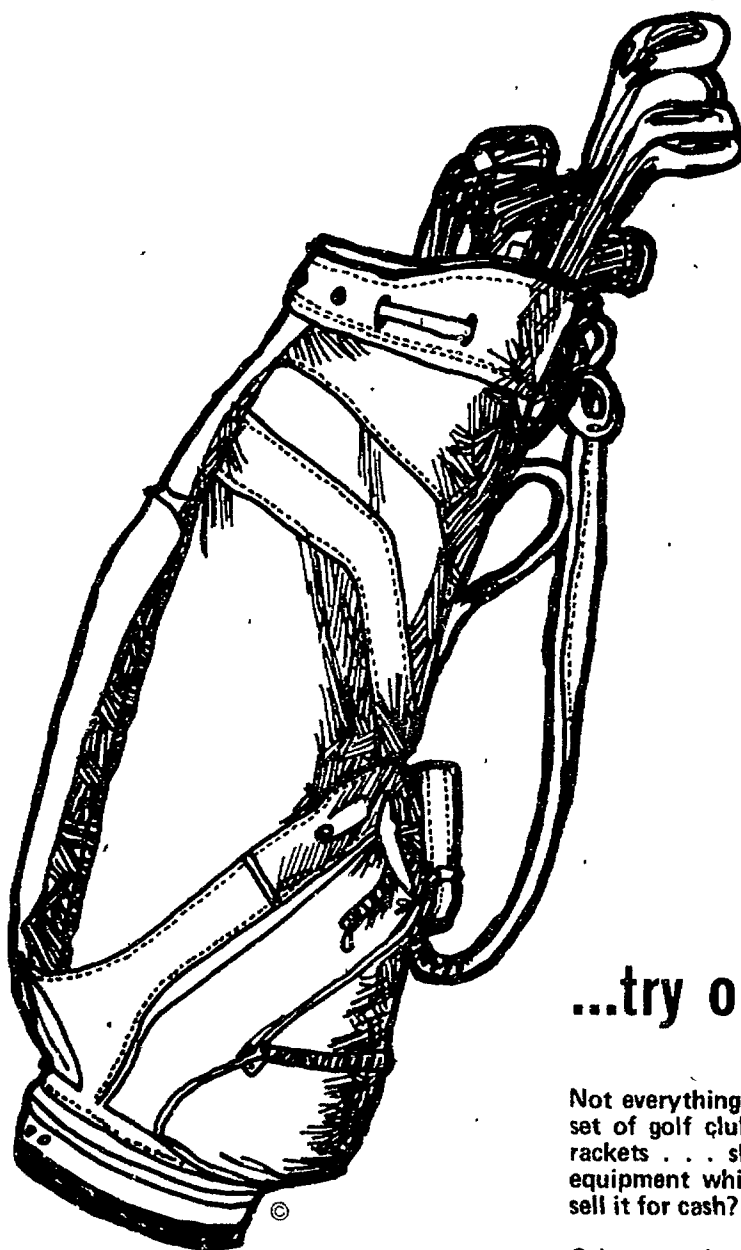

In the early months of 1836, developments clearly indicated there could be no separation between statehood and the border dispute. On June 15 of last year, Congress passed legislation that would admit Michigan to the Union on condition that Michigan give up its claim to the "Toledo Strip," accept the Upper Peninsula in compensation for loss of the strip, and hold a "convention of assent" to approve the proposal.

The convention was held in Ann Arbor on September 26, but after four days of heated debate by the 49 delegates, the proposal was rejected by a vote of 28 to 21.

In succeeding months, the futility of resistance became clear. Another Ann Arbor conference to reconsider the decision, dubbed the "Frost-Bitten Convention," was held on December 14. It approved the Congressional terms, paving the way for statehood.

On December 27, President Jackson informed Congress of the convention's decision, and on January 6 the Senate approved Michigan statehood by a 25 to 10 vote. Yesterday's approval by the House on a 132 to 43 vote sent the bill to President Jackson, whose signature today makes it official.

A Day in June

The dust-like fog lies low today
On the surface of the lake,
No ripple mars the quiet lay—
The mirrored shadows on display
The clouds and sun forsake.

The day seems warm and colorless,
The air moves not at all,
The thunderheads are over us—
The atmosphere is ominous,
It hovers like a pall.

The glistening heat like mist ascends
From the water's gray-like trace,
As stormy threatening portends—
The hush-like quiet spell transcends
To meet Zeus, face to face!

The thunder rumbles nearer,
The wind blows up a gale—
The sky above looks queerer;
Now the trees begin to wail—
Lightning flashes eerie light
To the day that seems like night;
All the birds have taken flight—
The rain comes down like hail!

The roaring thunder fades away
And calm comes in its wake;
The scudding clouds bring back the day,
The sun breaks through and lights the way
For shadows in the lake.

O, the flowers beam their happiness,
The grass is thankful, too;
The birds their cheerfulness express
In trusting song, God's world to bless,
Our faith they now renew.

"Poetry is something to share and it is every writer's responsibility to share his writing with as many people as possible."

And sharing is just what Michael Alan Corpe intends with a just published book of poetry entitled, Dreams in Silhouette.

The 64-page book that he himself had published contains a cross-section of his poetry — most of which carries a love theme.

"I hope I can encourage everyone who writes to try and put together small collections such as I have done for exposure and confidence," says the Northville young man who for the past 2½ years has been working at News Printing in the Sliger publishing plant in Northville.

"There are many more people who write, many more than one would think, and many of these are good, very good."

A native of Traverse City, 23-year-old Corpe subsequently lived in Boyne City, Harbor Springs and Oscoda. He was graduated from high school in 1971 at Oscoda where he first began writing seven years ago.

He attended Northern Michigan University for two years "before running out of money." He majored in English and minored in speech-theatre.

It was while attending the university that Corpe's writing blossomed, with the help and encouragement of his instructors.

He moved to Northville in October of 1975, having already begun planning the soft-cover book.

"A lot more work goes into a book, even a small one like this, than I ever imagined. It took me about a year just to pick the few poems I would use."

Most of the poetry in Dreams in Silhouette is short, depending on carefully selected words to convey the writer's feelings.

Here are a couple of examples of the longer works:

letters from arizona

between the hues of colour and time lacking reason or rhyme values are changed priorities rearranged concepts of self like books up on the shelf ideals will always be just dreams of destiny hope is the answer love is the reason now is the season never really knowing pretend it isn't showing the old man is a boy his wisdom another toy to begin

she is small like a child charmed like a lady innocent eyes as a fawn could make men move a star and stop the ways long, lazy, cool and beautiful her hair lounges around her head like so many shadows lips speak smilingly and all I hear is love innocently beguiling smiles follow me follow for miles so much more than love lies in the soft of her eyes

in the soft of her eyes

DIANE SOFFERMAN (left) has been named to the board of directors of Michigan National Bank-West Oakland while Arvie Athas is the new assistant manager at the main office.

Miss Sofferman, vice-president and cashier at the bank, has been with West Oakland Bank since August of 1972 and remained after the chain was recently purchased by Michigan National Bank. Previously she was with Michigan National Bank Oakland in Southfield where she had been since 1966. She is currently attending Wayne State University where she is majoring in finance and business economics, aiming at a Bachelor's degree in that field.

New duties for Mrs. Athas include aiding in management decisions. She began with the bank as executive secretary to the president when it opened in September of 1971 but left on maternity leave in December of 1972. She returned in January of 1976 and handled new accounts and information prior to the promotion.

AN ANTIQUE show is scheduled for Memorial weekend at Botsford Inn Coach House on Grand River at Eight Mile Road. Exhibitors will include Sally Burgess of Brighton who specializes in primitive furniture.

Show hours are noon to 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, May 30 and 31, with admission and parking free. Oak, wicker and bamboo items will be featured.

MOONLIGHT MADNESS in downtown Brighton has been tentatively dated for June 4. As usual, the downtown merchants will be open from 7 to 11 p.m. with special discounts available at all participating stores.

GUEST DEMONSTRATION—Municipal officials from Wisconsin flew into Northville recently to watch a demonstration of the Vactor Jet Rodder distributed here by Jack Doheny Supplies on Silver Springs Drive. "We needed a tough job to show them what the machine will do, and Bud Hartner (DPW superintendent found us a beaut' in Denton Park. We understand the storm drain there had been plugged for some time," said Doheny. "By the time we finished the machine had removed some three yards of stones and gravel." Doheny's operation recently moved into new quarters opposite the city's DPW yard.

"DAN'S PLACE", fruit and vegetable stand, will open May 28 at the corner of Seven Mile and Angle roads, one mile east of Pontiac Trail. Asparagus, rhubarb, lettuce, onions and apples will be featured items at the opening of the stand which has been doubled in size this year. Owners Dan and Linda Dowsett, who began the home produce venture last spring, are also planting six times as much acreage this year. "Pick your own" vegetables in season will include peas, green and yellow beans, tomatoes and cucumbers. The stand will be open seven days a week. Partners in the market are Ron and Sharon Weber of 6920 Seven Mile Road.

WILLIAM HERBERT, Brighton, was recently appointed to superintendent of personnel and selling at Hudson's Northland store, announces Janet Noonan of the J. L. Hudson Company.

Herbert, who was formerly superintendent at the Grand Rapids store, has been a Hudson's employee since 1969.

In other words, figure out how to address all four people at one location and you've solved the clue. A little basic knowledge is required, but anyone who watches television with any regularity will know that Richie Cunningham, Mr. Limpet, Will Stockdale, and Gomer Pyle are all roles played by characters who also played in the Andy Griffith Show.

The answer to the clue — Maybury State Park.

Other clues may involve crossword puzzles, chemical formulas, maps, and riddles.

The treasure hunter is informed in advance if he will be required to bring any special equipment that will be needed to solve the clues. Pencils are a must, while other frequently used puzzle-solvers are a dictionary, a world atlas, and a compass.

Another favorite trick of the people who plan treasure hunts is to conceal the clue. For example, you may be given a potted plant. The plant means absolutely nothing, but unless you're smart enough to figure out that the actual clue is planted in the soil, you're going to be awfully frustrated in trying to figure out how a nasturtium is going to lead you to the next clue.

Another favorite hiding place for clues is deep inside a block of ice. Usually, the treasure hunt planners will be thoughtful enough to warn you in advance to bring an ice pick, or a candle and a frying pan.

One other favorite trick of the sadists who plan treasure hunts is to put you through some consternation in trying to pick up your next clue once you've arrived at the destination. In its simplest form, this play involves concealing the clues so you have to get out of your car and hunt for it.

Since there are usually two or three other teams searching for the hidden clue at the same time you are, the trick is to pick up the next clue quietly and return to your car without tipping the others off as to its location.

Finding the clues can be much more complicated than that, however. One group of treasure hunters arrived at the location of their next clue and spotted it floating in a bottle in the middle of a small pond. The treasure hunt planners had graciously provided a canoe — without a paddle — and a long rope.

The only way to get the clue was to tie the rope to one end of the canoe, paddle out into the pond with your hands, and have another member of your team pull you back to shore with the rope.

Fun, right? To make matters worse, on that particular night it just so happened to rain, leaving the frustrated hunters twice as wet.

The types of clues are endless and limited only by the imagination of the people planning the hunt. And that's the fun of it.

Not everybody is able to solve all the clues, so each driver is given sealed copies of the answers at the starting point. The winner is the first person to finish the hunt with the fewest number of opened clues. Although some clubs offer cash prizes for the winners, most organizations simply award the victors by buying their dinner for them.

The dubious honor of planning the next hunt is also handed out to the winner in most cases.

So you think you've got the picture? Doesn't sound too tough, does it?

To see how good you'd really be on a treasure hunt, here are a few examples to test your skills.

1. Your clue consists of a copy of "Field and Stream" magazine, a pair of dice, and a $10 bill in play money.

2. Athens

Moscow
Cairo
Addis Ababa
Oslo
Salisbury
Reykjavik
Copenhagen
Accra

Quito
Amsterdam
Montevideo
Kigali
Bern
San Salvador
Bucharest
Belgrade

3. What would you do if your uncle murdered your father, married your mother? Would you grow despondent, drive your sweetheart to suicide, finally plot the death of your uncle and in doing the deed, kill your friend and your mother? Or would you decide that life is worth living and go out and buy food for dinner?

4. You'll need a scrabble board to solve this one.

Trend — 14 points (across)

Urn — four point

Hourly — 22 points

Chirp — 24 points

Drama — nine points

Root — five points

Mobster — 19 points

Mosaic — 20 points

And here are the answers.

1. The 7-11 Store at the corner of 10 Mile and Meadowbrook.

2. Green Ridge Nursery is the answer. Replace the names of the cities with the names of the countries of which they're the capitals and you'll get the answer.

3. If you're up on your Shakespeare, it won't take you long to figure out that the Hamlet Super Market in Northville is the place to go.

4. Not too tough, although it might be frustrating to keep the letters in place while in the backseat of a moving automobile. Once you've got the puzzle together, read diagonally and you'll find Cordoba — it's the Cordoba Restaurant across from the Livonia Mall.

I have often wondered why Airport Hotels do not pick up their clients' luggage at the baggage claim area as an added service. Now, I'm informed that Host Hotel in Tampa (Florida) Airport has started this accommodation for incoming guests. The rusty wheels of improvement in air service grind slowly.

According to Mr. and Mrs. Ken Rathert, the best restaurant in Middle California is just north of Solway at a place called "Pea Soup Anderson." They tell me all the food there is excellent. Ken also says that the Catholic Shrine near Sedona, Arizona, called "Chapel of the Holy Cross," is exceptionally attractive.

Built in 1956 by Marguerite Staudo in honor of her parents, it is of anodized aluminum, cement, stone and black marble. The figure of Christ is suspended from a concrete cross portraying supreme agony. I am assured it is well worth the side trip involved.

I have never known Blue Cross to give anything away free to the public. But the millennium has been reached.

There is a booklet called Foreign Language Guide to Health Care, printed by Blue Cross, that has 96 pages and covers accidents and illness in five languages to help travelers explain problems to foreign speaking doctors when abroad. It has phonetic pronunciations. It should be very helpful, and imagine, it's free at Blue Cross offices throughout the United States.

Hints for Proper Dress:

HAWAII—Dress is totally informal, sport shirts, slacks, pant suits for women are acceptable for evening wear. The most casual attitudes are emphasized. If you are attending any business meetings or conferences you might bring a sport jacket along. Two-tone men's sport shoes and white shoes are very popular.

EUROPE—Never wear shorts, especially with a sport jacket.

He would walk

Garden Book

Boosts Herbs

Here's a good idea for your flower bed or border: try growing vegetables or herbs there. You'll find that if you carefully select them, they can be as pretty as flowers, besides being tasty.

The best-selling Ortho book, "All About Vegetables," suggests a number of versatile vegetables to add color — and taste — to the home garden.

Try sprucing up that unsightly damp spot under the garden faucet, for example, with spearmint sunk in a pot to the rim. Parsley, chives, and mint also adore those damp, shady spots in your flower garden.

Chives are very attractive, when tucked neatly around rocks and in other nooks and crannies in the garden. Lettuce is another dual-purpose plant; it comes in many beautiful varieties and all are effective as borders or around a brick terrace.

Vegetables make wonderful border plants. A bed of curly kale can rival the beauty of a bed of ferns. Or, try a border of beets and carrots along a walk. You can harvest the young beet tops for greens. Leaves come in colors ranging from slightly orange to dark green and deep red.

Want a tall, tropical looking plant for a hot, sunny spot? Corn grown in a large container or in the garden looks as tropical as ginger lilies — and it's much easier to grow.

"All About Vegetables" also has ideas on vegetable groundcovers. It suggests using squash, pumpkins and melons for a groundcover on a grand scale. They are all easy and quick to grow — and are lovely additions to the large garden.

Try a flower garden that's edible as well as beautiful — it's really good enough to eat!

Northville Netters Near Championship

By KEVIN BRAZELL

Three strong showings against league rivals have put the Northville tennis team in the driver's seat in the Western Six league race.

Northville is 9-0 in the league and Churchill is 8-1. Today the two square off at Churchill in what has to be considered the biggest match of the year.

The league title is determined on a combination of the league standings and the results of the conference meet which will be this

Tuesday and Wednesday at Canton.

A Northville victory over Churchill today would give them undisputed possession of first place going into the league meet and make them the definite favorite.

Last Monday the Mustangs ripped Plymouth Canton 6-1½.

"The match was closer than the score indicated as there were a lot of three setters," Coach Bob Simpson explained.

"We were not ready to play and learned that we can't be

Greg McFadden lost, 6-3, 7-5.

Charlie Whiteside won at number four singles, 6-1, 7-6.

All three doubles teams looked particularly strong according to Simpson. Tim Kelly and Ron Angell, Steve Laffler and Steve Pyett and Tom Folino and Jeff Hodge all won.

The same crew of singles and doubles players came back strong Wednesday to thrash Farmington Harrison, 7-½.

All the Northville wins in the match were in straight sets except for Laffler and Pyett. Hodge and Folino were the only losers.

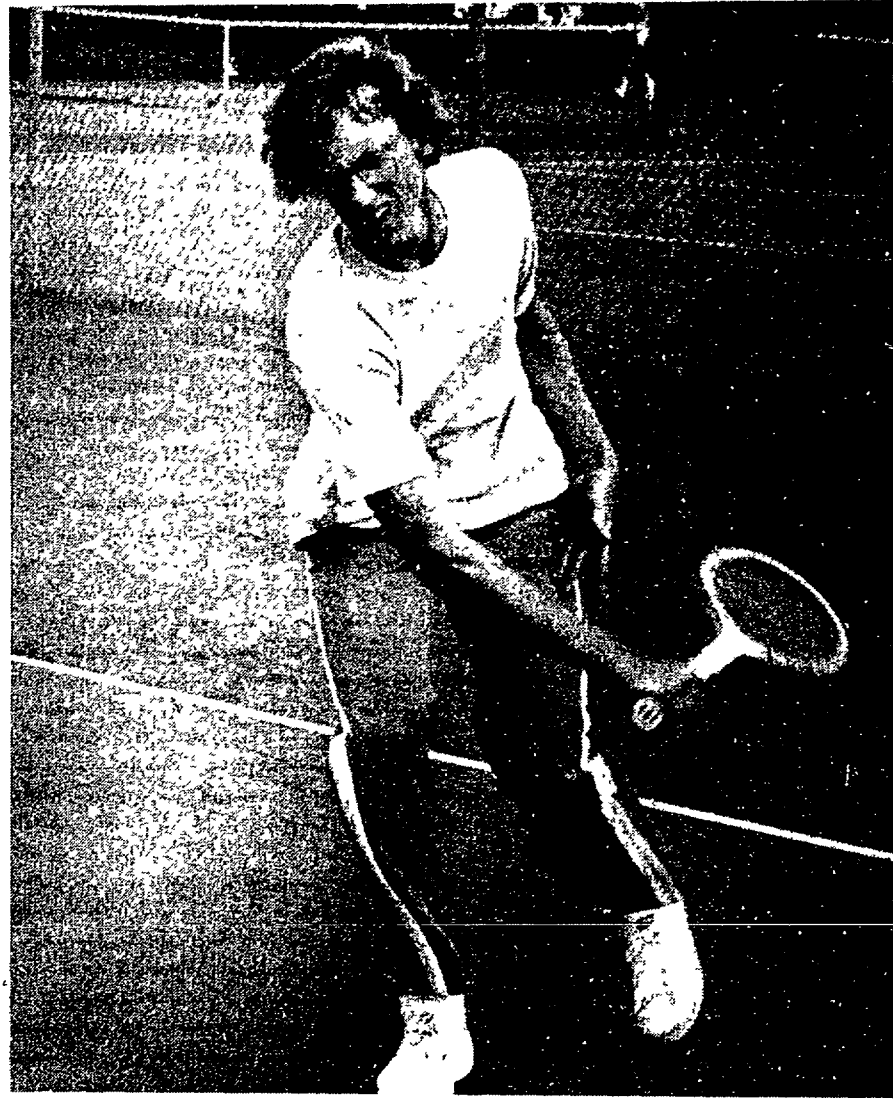

Saturday, Northville placed third in the Plymouth Salem Regional behind Southfield and North Farmington.

"The play and sportsmanship displayed by everyone there was just super," appraised Simpson.

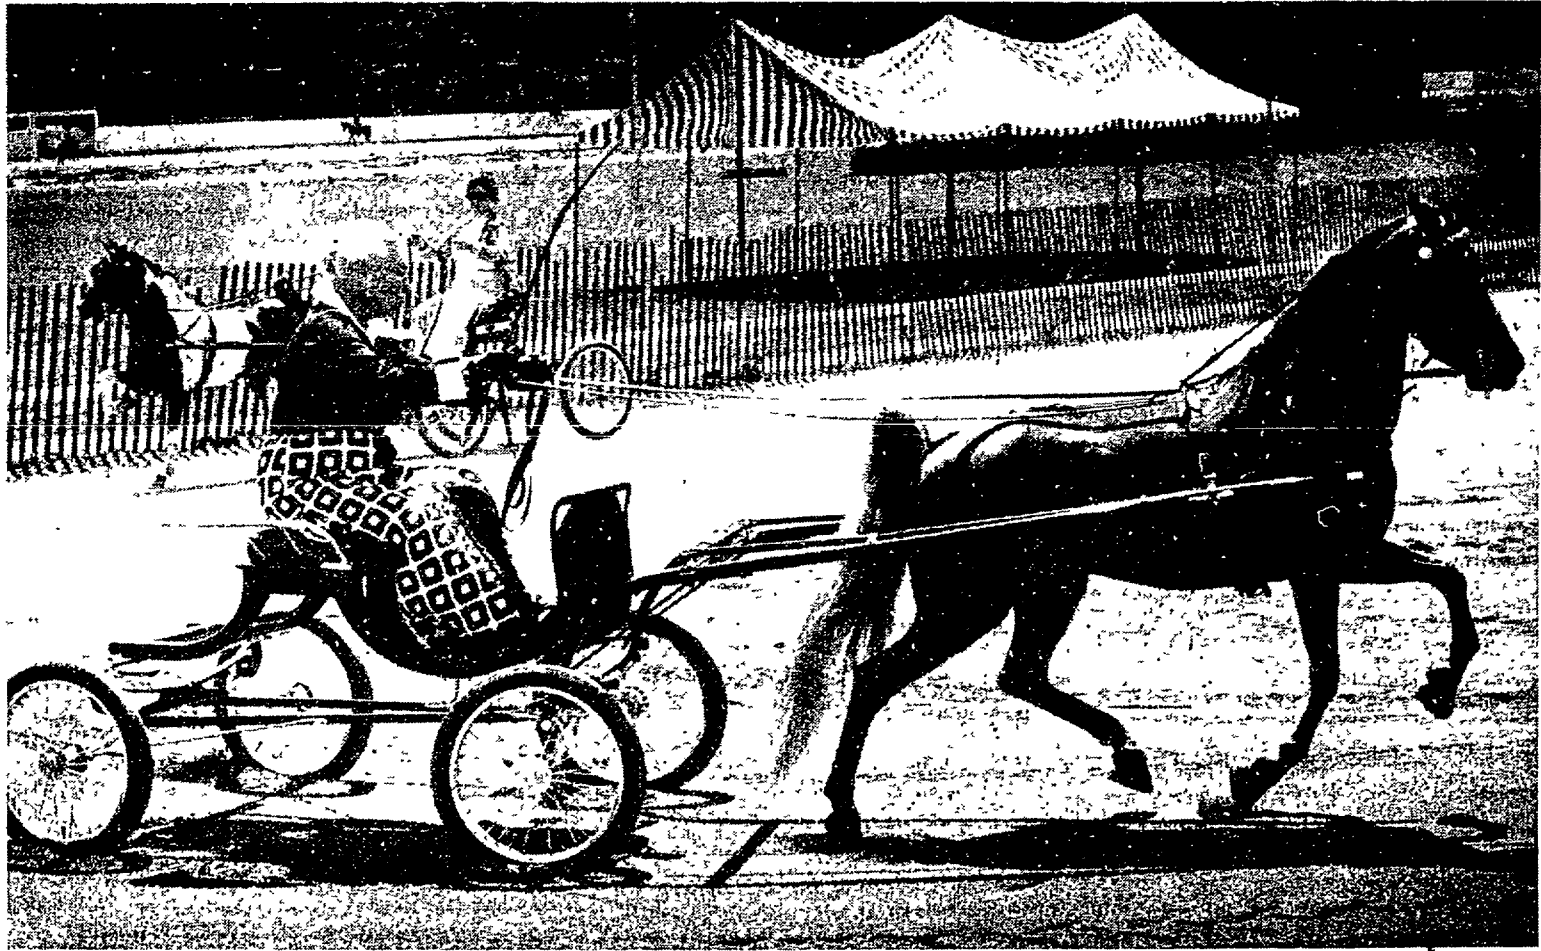

Kelly and Angell were the only Mustangs to make it as far as the semi-finals but everyone that Northville players lost to went into the semis.

Northville bounced back from their disappointment at the regionals to defeat Waterford Mott, 6-1½, Monday.

McFadden was the only loser playing number one singles. Castillo, Horst, Whiteside, Kelly and Angell, Laffler and Pyett and Folino and Hodge all won in two sets with most of the scores either 6-1 or 6-2.

Horse Show This Weekend

More than 335 horses will invade Northville this weekend for the prestigious American Saddle Horse Association of Michigan Horse Show which is co-sponsored by the ASHAM and the Northville Kiwanis Club.

"Right now we have 335 horses registered but the number is going up daily. Last year we had 372 and I think we will top that this year," claimed Eleanor Pedersen the secretary for the show.

The three day event will open Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Northville Downs. Saturday the show runs from 8:30 a.m. until about 10 p.m. and Sunday from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

General chairman of the horse show for the Kiwanis is Bob Schron.

The show will feature entries from throughout the midwest exhibiting in the Saddlebred, Arab, Half Arab and Registered Pony classes.

Dr. and Mrs. Rooker from Davidson will be bringing 23 horses to the show.

There will be horses coming from as far away as Akron, Ohio.

Judges for the show will be Ronald Meridith from Waverly, West Virginia and Nelson Green from Lexington, Kentucky.

"You can not have a good horse show without good judges, and we have good judges," explained Pedersen.

Numerous local area horse-owners will be exhibiting in the show and vying for the Nelson C. Schrader Memorial Challenge Trophy.

Admission to the show is one dollar, with children 12 and under free, when accompanied by an adult.

Tickets may be purchased in advance from local service groups or at the Old Mill Restaurant and will also be available at the gate.

The one dollar ticket is good for all three days of the show.

Title Hopes Banished

Two weeks ago, Northville sat on top of the Western Six standings but after a dismal week and a half of play the Mustangs have been mathematically eliminated from a chance at the top spot.

"We've been in a late season slump and just have not played up to our ability," commented Coach Bob Kucher.

Dave Heckerel allowed five hits and eight walks as Northville lost a key game to Plymouth Canton last Tuesday, 2-1, in eight innings.

Northville, behind the home runs of Bill Piccolo, Jim Niemi and Greg Armstrong, beat Farmington Harrison, 8-4 Wednesday.

Don Funk went the distance to record his fourth win.

Four errors and four wild pitches enabled Milford to score all their runs as the Mustangs lost, 3-2, in a pre-district game which eliminated Northville from further state competition.

Heckerel, victim of his own wild pitching, picked up the defeat.

Saturday was the high point of the week for Northville as they swept a double-header from North Farmington.

The Mustangs scored all their runs in the second inning with the help of Bryan Reigner's double and Ed Talbot's two bagger in the first game to down Farmington, 6-5.

Funk was again the winning pitcher for the second time in the week.

With the score tied, 3-3, in the seventh, Reigner collected a pinch hit single to score Pete Wright with the winning run in the nightcap.

Senior Jim LaPlante, pitching for the first time since May 8, scattered seven hits and was backed by good defense to lift his record to 4-0.

Waterford Mott mathematically eliminated Northville from title contention by ripping the Mustangs, 9-3, Monday.

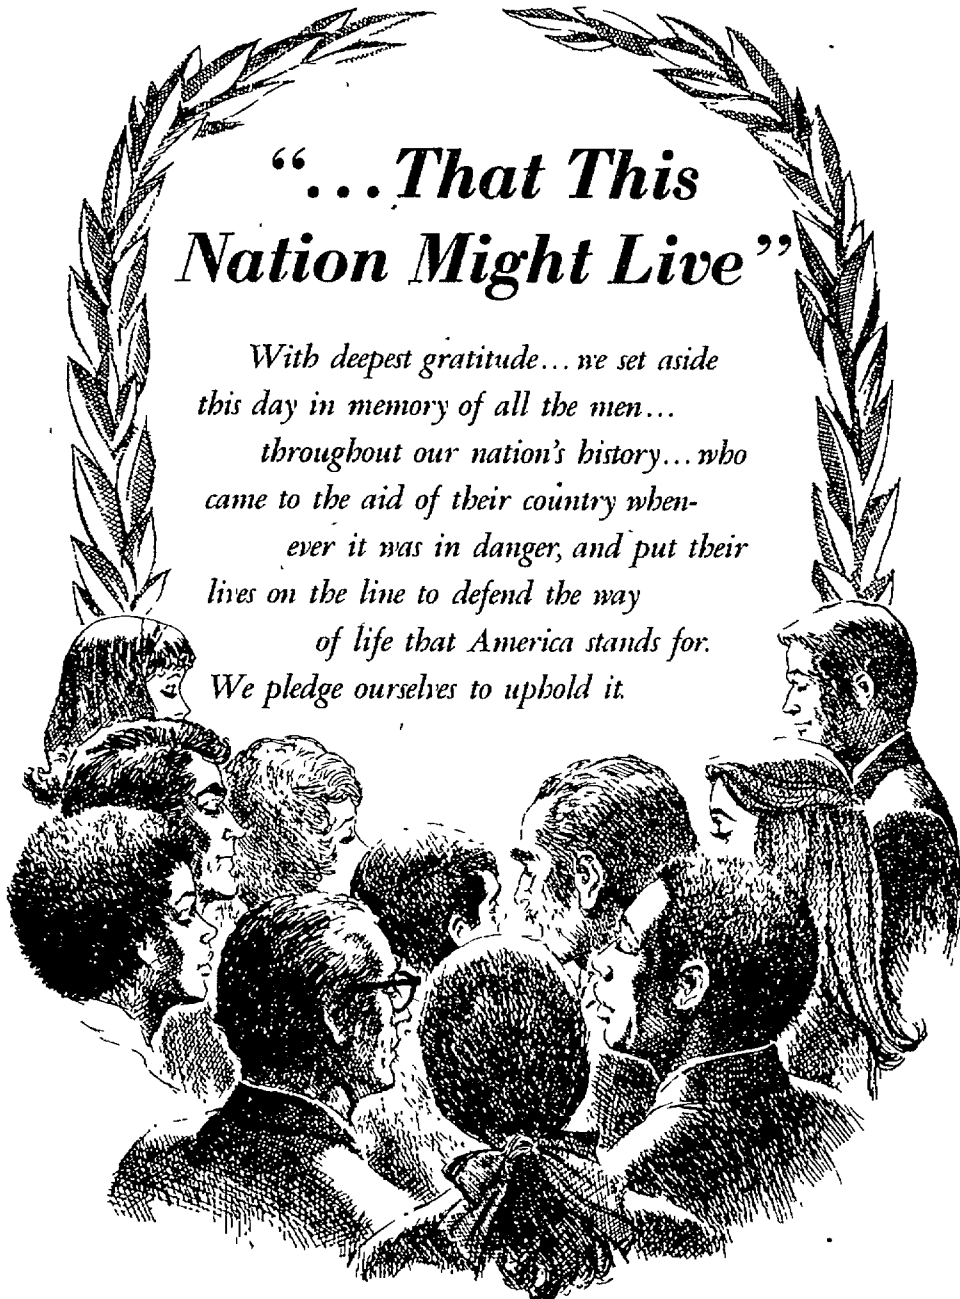

Five hits, three errors and six walks in the first three innings allowed Mott to get off to a quick, 8-0 lead which proved insurmountable.

The loss drops Northville's league mark to 5-4, which still leaves open the possibility of a second place finish if they can knock off revenge-minded Churchill today in Livonia. Kucher's club ripped Churchill earlier in the year, 11-2, which propelled them into the league lead.

Northville's only earned run off Mott came in the seventh when Reigner and Piccolo put together back-to-back doubles.

Novi Nailed by Two League Foes

Novi continued to receive poor pitching and play shoddy dropped a pair in Southeastern conference play last week.

Brighton came to town eyeing to revenge their early setback at the hands of Novi and to remain tied with Chelsea for the league lead. The Bulldogs did just that, clouting Novi, 9-2.

Scott Parsons started and gave up seven of the Brighton runs in five innings before giving way to John Buck. Novi picked up one run in the fifth when Norm Free was hit by a pitch and then came home after singles by Randy Wroten and Buck.

Free singled and was followed by a walk to Wroten and Giorgio before coming home on Rick Pretty's sacrifice fly in the sixth.

"Brighton needed the game badly to stay in the league race. They just played like they wanted the game more than we did," explained

Coach Rick Trudeau.

Brighton and Chelsea are now tied at 10-2. Surprisingly both teams have lost once to the Wildcats.

Friday it was Lincoln's turn to feast on the Novi pitching as they scrambled away with an easy, 7-1 victory.

Dave Beall started and gave up all seven runs in two innings. Three hits, four walks and two Novi errors in the two innings put the game out of reach early.

Buck came on in relief in the third. The usual catcher did an outstanding job hurling four innings of shutout ball not allowing a hit but it was too late as Novi could only manage one run.

Novi got their lone run in the fifth. Greg Porter led off with a single and stole second and then moved to third on Buck's basehit and scored on a single by Pretty.

Novi will be in action tomorrow against South Lyon at home. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

Novi Gals Keep Losing

The Novi girls' softball team lost four times last week with two of the games decided by errors in the last inning.

A week ago Friday the Ladycats fell victims to 17 errors as Saline whipped Novi, 13-3.

Ricci Mulligan went three for three at the plate, including a pair of doubles, but that was far from enough to make up for the team's shabby defense.

Last Tuesday the girls traveled to Brighton to play the league leader. However, it was a long bus ride home. A Ladycat overthrow to first base allowed two runs to score, giving Brighton a come from behind, 14-13 win.

Brighton with a tight defense committed only two errors to secure the victory. Annie Robinson was the only Ladycat with three hits.

Friday Novi played their best defensive game of the year, committing only three errors in 35 attempts but were outthit by Lincoln in the 10-5 loss.

Malisa Faulkner had two hits including a home run and Mulligan played a flawless defensive game at shortstop for the only Novi highlights. Livonia Ladywood tripped Novi, 12-11, Saturday, to eliminate Novi from District competition. Again it was an overthrow in the last inning that paved the way to the locals' defeat.

Mulligan, Robinson and Lily Jolgren, combined for nine hits in Novi's fifth consecutive loss.

"We out hit and out fielded them and yet lost," stated the disappointed Coach Russ Gardner.

That made the seventh game this year the Ladycats have out hit and out fielded their opponent and still lost, pointed out Gardner.

With three games left, Mulligan leads the club in four offensive categories: hits with 26, batting average at .428, runs scored with 29 and doubles with five.

Singleton and Gould Do Well at Regionals

Dennis Singleton and Bob Gould have advanced to the state track finals to be held in Grand Rapids on June 5 based on their strong performances in the regionals Saturday.

Ironically, both Singleton and Gould broke the Northville school records despite not finishing first in the final heats.

Gould finished second in the two mile finals with a clocking of 9:42.3 which was six seconds better than the old school mark which he held.

"It was really an exciting race to watch as four boys were jockeying for position all the way. Arlo Sist of North Farmington and Gould broke away and finished one and two," said Coach Ralph Redmond.

Gould is hoping to improve on his 14th place finish at the state meet of a year ago. Singleton had an easy time winning in the prelims and the semi-finals but found the competition tougher in the finals.

Singleton ran the high hurdles in 14.8 seconds which also broke his own school record.

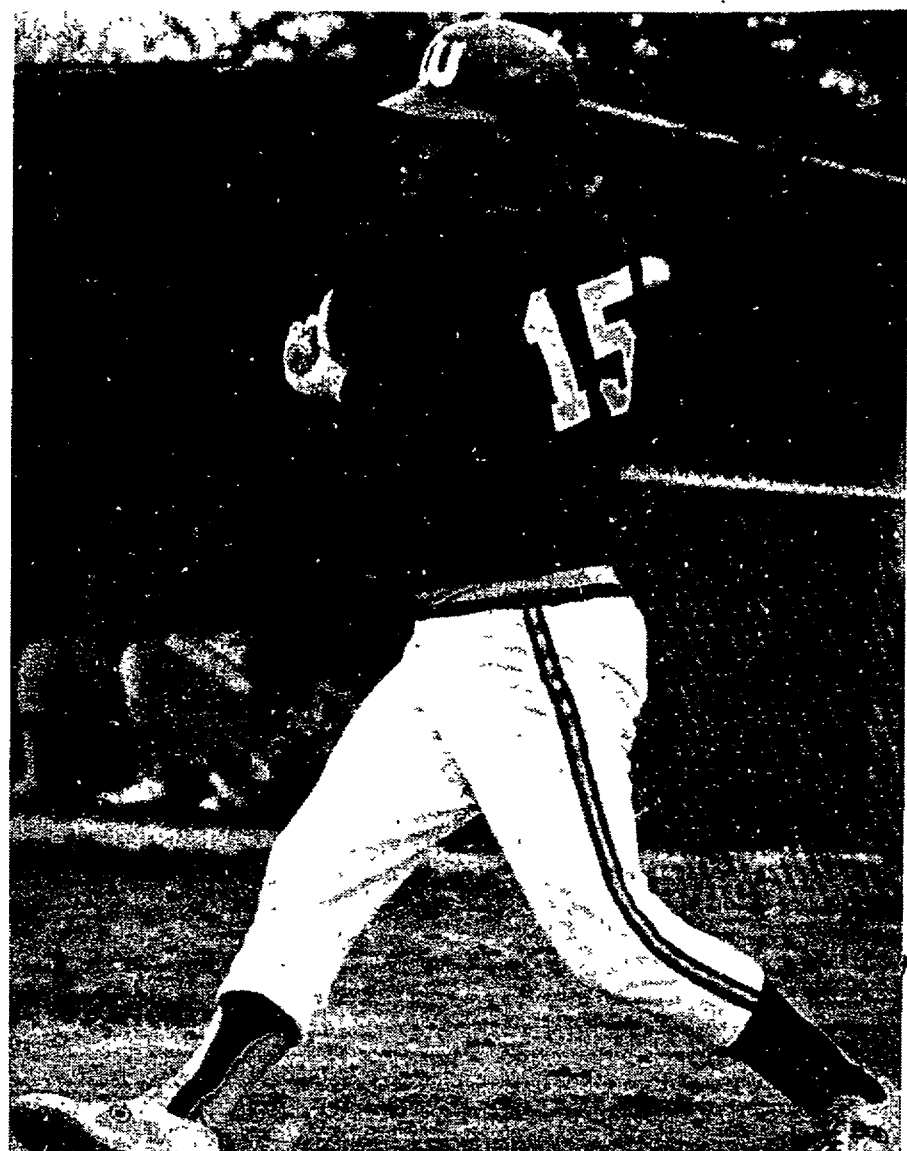

Gary Hicks of Bishop Borgess and Mark Meinchack of Stevenson finished ahead of Singleton.

The 440 relay team of Singleton, Kevin Corcoran, Earl Bingley and Bob Sweeney also fared well even though they did not qualify for the state meet.

The relay team finished fifth with a time one-tenth of a second off Northville's best mark.

In team totals the Mustangs placed 11th out of 17 teams. "I was very proud. I thought we ran very competitively," stated Redmond.

Earlier in the week Singleton and Gould captured the only two first places as Livonia Churchill romped the Mustangs in the last dual meet of the year.

John Buck, a hitting catcher turned relief pitcher

Galyon Will Go to State

The Wildcat's inability to win the relays and distance events again led to their downfall as South Lyon defeated Novi, 71-61 last Tuesday.

Ben Galyon was first in the shot-put and the discus while teammates Andy Raddant and Jeff MacDermid were first in the long jump and pole vault respectively.

Bryant Hammond was first in both the high and low hurdles and Tom Morris captured a pair of first in the 100 yard dash and the 220.

Novi finished 10th out of 16 teams in the Regionals Saturday with Galyon the only Wildcat to qualify to go to the State meet. Galyon finished third in both the shot-put and the discus.

Tom Morris was fifth in the 220 but did not qualify for the state meet.

Coach Del Munson was particularly happy with the 10:33 flat time turned in by freshman Jeff Johnston in the two mile run.

"Everybody that ran at the Regionals ran their best times of the year," stated Munson. A disappointment was Raddant who fouled in the long jump. Munson felt he would have had a good chance to place at the State meet.

Galyon, Morris, Raddant and Hammond will be representing Novi in the All-Oakland County Varsity meet and Johnston and Glenn Caudell will compete in the County freshmen meet.

Novi will also travel to the league meet today at Milan.

Novi Budget Receives Council OK

leaving a net increase of $20,000. The dual tax collection costs were estimated by Todd at totaling $8,000 or higher.

However, Todd had said that the city was not being reimbursed by the school districts previously for the cost of collecting taxes and the additional monies brought in by the collection fee would not yet have enabled the city to recover proportionate costs incurred by collecting the school district's taxes.

Council members noted that the school districts involved will be charged directly for added costs of the dual tax collection although Councilman Philip Goodman indicated he wanted all costs of collecting taxes for the schools billed directly.

"If Mr. Todd is not able to come to an agreement with the school district, I will propose that we rescind that action," commented Mrs. Roethel about the dual tax collection provision.

Council members voted 5-2 in favor of not levying the collection fee with Goodman and Mayor Gilbert Henderson opposed.

The new budget includes an increase for the parks and recreation department from $5,000 in the current budget up to $17,000. The police department will be receiving the greatest share of the budget at $912,000 which is up from last year's $854,000.

Second largest portion of the budget goes to the building department, a cost justified department, with $416,000. The DPW follows at $140,000, which is up from the current budget figure of $37,000. The DPW will be purchasing two pieces of equipment totalling about $61,000 cost. An accounting change of $39,000 is also included.

Former councilman Denis Berry questioned city officials extensively from the audience about justification of the finance department's 1976 budget which is up from the 1974-75 figure of $62,000. It was explained that the change included not only the $21,000 salary for the finance director, but also the combining of the treasurer's office and the finance department.

Transfers Approved

The request of six teachers for transfer within the Novi School District was approved by the board last Thursday.

Approved were the following transfer requests: James Fry from grade six at the middle school to the new elementary; Rebecca Hurst from grade 1-2 at Orchard Hills to the new elementary; Joan Pelham from grades 4-5 at Novi Elementary to grade six at the Middle School; Rita Traynor from grade four at Orchard Hills to the new elementary; Lynn Serenson from grade six at the middle school to grade eight math at the middle school; Carol Smith from grade 4-5 at Novi Elementary to grade six at the middle school.

The board has also approved the reinstatement of three administrative personnel, Assistant High School Principal Charles Nanas, assistant Middle School Principal Paul LePae and Community Education Director Milan Obrenovich.

They had been pink-slipped earlier in event a 3½ mill school millage proposition had not passed.

Both County Questions Pass

Both the Oakland County Parks and Recreation millage renewal and the Wayne County Jail won on the county level, following trends seen respectively in Novi and Northville.

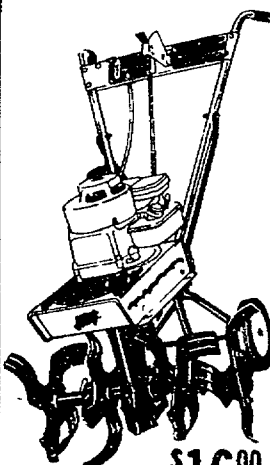

Unofficial final totals showed the quarter mill parks and recreation renewal winning in the county 102,798 to 73,237. The half mill levy for five years to construct an annex to the Wayne County jail was approved 275,785 to 164,274.

In Novi, the parks and recreation question carried 1,525-1,287 but in nearby Wixom it went down 465-449. The county jail carried Northville and Northville Township 2,096 to 808.

In local questions, a $3.6 million bonding proposition in Novi was approved by voters 1,652 to 1,190 but Wixom voters nixed bonding for city hall improvements and an addition 589-345, creating some headaches for the cramped city administration (see story, Novi-1).

Ford, Carter Win Mock Primary

A mock primary held by the three fifth grade classes from Village Oaks Elementary in Novi chose Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter as the victors in the respective Republican and Democratic parties.

With 91 students in the three classes, President Ford captured 27 Republican votes to Ronald Reagan's seven.

For the Democrats, Jimmy Carter tallied 24 to Mo Udall's four votes. Henry Jackson was given three votes and George Wallace two.

On the county parks and recreation commission quarter-mill renewal, the proposal passed 44-12. The Novi city water bonding proposal fell 33-30.

"We found out that the kids had really talked with their parents about the candidates — especially on the three Jackson votes since he is not running and yet they had heard enough about him to choose him as their candidate," said fifth grade teacher Gregg Balko.

NOTICE OF MEETING TO HEAR OBJECTIONS TO APPORTIONMENTS OF COST OF ABOVE INTRA-COUNTY DRAIN

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the cost of the Hudson Sanitary Drain, to be located in the City of Novi, has been tentatively apportioned as follows, to wit:

Public Corporation	Tentative Percentage of Cost
City of Novi	100 per cent

Section 483 of Act No. 40, Public Acts of Michigan, 1956, as amended, provides that the Final Order of Apportionment shall not be subject to attack in any court, except by proceedings in certiorari brought within 20 days after the order is filed in the office of the Oakland County Drain Commissioner, the Chairman of the Drainage Board for the Hudson Sanitary Drain, and that if no such proceedings shall be brought within said 20 day period the legality of the assessment for the drain shall not thereafter be questioned in any suit at law or in equity, either on jurisdictional or nonjurisdictional grounds.

Chief Nisun Finds Body of Woman Drowning Victim

In Township

The body of an unidentified woman was found Thursday afternoon in the Johnson Drain near Six Mile and Beck Road. The body, snagged in a fence crossing the drain, was located by Chief Ronald Nisun of the Northville Township Police.

According to the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office, death was attributed to drowning. The body, it was reported, was felt to have been in the water for several months.

Those officials further stated the body was that of a white female, 35 to 40 years of age, with long brown hair. They further identified the body by saying she was 5' 7" and weighed approximately 120 pounds.

The victim was found wearing a long-sleeved blue turtleneck shirt, white underclothing, blue jeans, and orange socks. There was an inexpensive gold ring on her left hand.

Members of the Michigan State Police Crime Lab and Michigan State Troopers were also involved in the investigation.

A house on Whipple Drive formerly owned by Robert Matthews was totally destroyed by fire Saturday. The house had been vacant since the Matthews' moved to Florida less than a month ago.

New owners were in the process of moving in their belongings and were not yet occupying the home. When Township Police responded to the dispatch call, they found the home engulfed in flames.

Cause of the fire is as yet undetermined.

A passenger in a car driven by Christopher Allen of Livonia received only minor injuries in an accident involving two other cars. Daniel Waldecker of Livonia was treated and released after the accident on Six Mile and Northville Roads.

Allen was eastbound on Six Mile and apparently crossed the center line on the curved road. The driver of the second car, William Chizmar of Northville told police Allen's car crossed the center line and sideswiped the left side of his car.

The driver of the third car saw Allen's car strike the second car and lose control. He said it slid sideways into the path of his car and although he attempted to avoid the collision, the Allen car skidded into his.

Eight people were injured when a school bus from the Plymouth State Home crashed broadside into a van last week. The school bus carrying nine students and three employees was westbound on Six Mile.

The bus driver was attempting to make a left turn onto Sheldon Road and apparently did not see the van traveling eastbound on Six Mile. The driver of the van suffered only minor injuries.

Five of those injured were transported to St. Mary Hospital by ambulance while doctors from the home attended to the lesser injured who were treated and released.

The driver of the bus was ticketed in the incident.

Four hubcaps and a full tank of gas were reported stolen from a 1975 Thunderbird parked in the parking area of the Innsbrook Apartment complex. The incident occurred between 7:30 p.m. Thursday and 9:45 a.m. Friday.

The owner placed a $194 value on the missing items.

A female patient of the Northville State Hospital escaped from the facility sometime May 17. The exact time and method of escape was not known.

The inmate, a forensic patient considered dangerous is still being sought by officials.

A male patient of the same facility left the grounds at approximately 8:45 p.m. Saturday. The patient was later picked up and held by the Northville Township Police prior to returning the man to the hospital.

A 19-year-old patient was returned to the state hospital by his mother one day after he walked away from the institution. The man was last seen on the grounds at 12:30 p.m. Friday.

Michigan State Police are still seeking two female escapees from the women's section of the Detroit House of Correction. The exact time of the escape is unknown although the matron of their section said they were accounted for at 6:30 a.m. Friday.

One inmate was serving a sentence of 3 to 10 years for larceny of a person with an additional 90 days added to the sentence for a prior escape.

The second woman was serving 30 days for a larceny of under $100.

In Northville

Two Detroit youths were arrested last week by Northville City Police after they had attempted to steal a battery from a piece of heavy equipment stored in a yard on Griswold Street.

Police immediately responded to the call and apprehended the two before they reached their vehicle.

One of the youths told police the battery in his car was dead and when nobody would help them they went looking around for one. They said they saw the tractor and decided to pry the battery out with a tire iron.

The 18-year-old was booked, printed and lodged prior to examination. The juvenile was booked and taken to the Wayne County Youth Home after his mother refused to pick him up.

Four more ten-speed bicycles were reported stolen during the past week. Police said the reports came from various parts of the city. In three cases the bikes were parked at the homes of the owners.

Value of the bikes ranged from $150 to $170 each.

In Novi

Fire Department officials are investigating what they call suspicious circumstances relating to a fire which destroyed a home under construction on the south side of Welch in Novi Thursday blazing for an estimated 20 minutes.

According to fire chief Duane Bell, the fire had been blazing for an estimated 20 minutes before it was noticed and the fire department called. The two story structure had caved in before firemen arrived. They extinguished the blaze within 10 minutes of arrival.

Bell said the department is suspicious of the fast manner in which the fire destroyed the house. In addition, a second house next door was found to have suffered extensive water damage when an unknown subject turned on water pipes on the second floor causing four inches of water to accumulate in the basement by the time firemen arrived. Bell estimated the water had been on for several hours but could not say if it was related to the fire.

Bell said that an investigation is continuing to determine if arson was involved in the fire. The house was owned by Greenspan Construction Company, according to Bell. The second house, also owned by Greenspan, was scored by flames from the fire.

Novi Police thwarted an apparent breaking and entering in their own community only to find that their action also figured into solving a Wixom B&E the same night.

According to police reports, officers were on patrol the night of May 22 when they observed a vehicle parked at Joe's Market, 47375 Grand River.

One of the suspects, a 16-year-old Livonia youth was reportedly observed with his right arm inside a broken window. A 14-year-old youth was standing outside the car while a 21-year-old, later identified as Allan Giacobbi of Livonia, was inside the car.

Found inside the car were four cartons of beer, as well as 38 cartons of cigarettes and other items with a total value of $235. Upon contacting the owner of Joe's Market, police learned that nothing had been taken from the store. The only damage suffered was $80 to a window. Checking with Wixom police, Novi officers found that the items had been taken earlier that night from T&G Party Store in downtown Wixom in a breaking and entering.

All three subjects were placed in custody. The juveniles were released to their parents while Giacobbi was held in Oakland County Jail and later arraigned. The juveniles are to be petitioned to juvenile court.

Police report at least $2,000 damage done to three pieces of construction equipment parked at the Raintree Model Homes and owned by Boscoe and Volpe Construction. A claw hammer taken from one of the vehicles was used to smash in gauges as well as breaking batteries and doing other miscellaneous damage to the vehicles. Police are investigating.

Eleven-year-old Pat Pittman of 41046 Malott received a non-incapacitating injury and was taken to Botsford Hospital when he reportedly swerved his bicycle into the side of a car while going east on Meadowbrook near Malott. The accident happened Friday, May 21 at 3:36 p.m.

A bicycle valued at $127 was taken May 22 from the Village Oaks parking lot where it had been parked. It was described as a three speed Raleigh.

Reported stolen from a car parked in the 24500 area of Bashian was a citizens band radio, Lear tape deck, Cannon camera and lens, as well as other miscellaneous items with a total value of over $1,500.

A value of over $1,000 was set on items taken May 19 from three cars parked in a driveway in the area of 41900 Tamara Drive. Items taken included a citizens band radio, antenna, eight track FM tape deck, leather jacket and a portable Panasonic radio.

In Wixom

Warrants were obtained Wednesday by the Wixom Police for two men charged with larceny at the Ford Motor Company. The men were arrested after they were observed by Ford security guards removing articles from the plant.

Wixom Police were dispatched on reports of the larceny in progress with the subject confined to the lot. According to reports, Ford security forces had been observing the area near the pedestrian entrance to the garage area.

A man, later identified as Charles Justin of Garden City, was spotted carrying a gas tank from the building apparently storing it near the entrance. Justin then left the building and reportedly moved very rapidly toward the fence.

The guard watched as Justin threw several grey colored bags over the fence. As the guard approached the fence he told police he observed a second man carrying grey bags from the fence to a parked car.

The suspect was stopped by the guard and produced a Ford ID card identifying him as Antonio Patino of Westland. Patino led guards to his car where he was then asked to open the trunk.

A grey colored bag containing a variety of contraband articles was found with a second grey bag found under a car parked behind Patino's.

Wixom Police, on the scene, apprehended Patino. Charles Phillips, head of Ford security forces and a second guard returned to the plant in an attempt to locate Patino's accomplice.

Justin was found in the motor repair area of the plant and was identified through the description of the guard as the man seen carrying the gas tank and the grey sacks from the building.

Guards also noticed four new Michelin radial tires mounted on Patino's 1964 Pontiac car. It was felt by Ford officials that the tires could have been taken from the plant since that type of tire is not available on the market.

A check of the lot number on the tires showed they were shipped from Italy to the Wixom Ford Plant. Officials are still investigating that aspect of the case.

A Highgate youngster was injured when the small trail bike he was riding was struck by a car at Hickory Hill and Loon Lake Roads. The accident occurred May 18 at 8 p.m.

The driver of the car, Edward Chepin of Wixom, told police the youth apparently disregarded the stop sign at the base of the hill and drove into the middle of the street. Chepin further stated he was unable to avoid hitting the youngster.

Chepin hit the bike, knocking the youth into a ditch. The youth, driving without an operator's license, was treated for minor injuries.

Thirty-five sheets of 4' x 8' plywood valued at $250 was taken from a house under construction in the Highgate-on-Lake subdivision. The builder told police the incident occurred between 6 p.m. May 18 and 7 a.m. May 19.

The owner of a 1974 Lincoln Continental parked at the Maple North housing complex reported it stolen.

According to police, the owner stated she had locked the car at 10:30 p.m. May 16 and at approximately 7 a.m. she found the car missing.

Two attempts were made to steal cars from the Ford Motor Company employees' parking lot by forcibly removing the ignition switches. Both attempts were reported to have occurred between 5 p.m. May 13 and 4 a.m. May 14.

Wixom Police were notified of the larceny of 15 eight foot door walls from building sites at the Village Apartment complex. Value of the missing items was estimated at $1,575. Building officials are unsure as to when the doorwalls were taken.

This diagram shows the various routes by which solar energy can be converted to electricity.

Northville Site in Running for US Lab

By PATRICIA BERNARDO

It's a job that's never been done before," says Wayne County Planner Frank Bennett about the planned federal Solar Energy Research Institute (SERI).

And, he adds, just setting up the new project is such an enormous undertaking that it will probably be three to five years before the Institute is ready to settle down in a permanent home, perhaps in Northville Township.

The federal Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), which will fund SERI, plans to start its operation early in 1977. But the Institute will occupy temporary quarters for its first few years, rather than commit itself to a new building too early in its development.

The first thing SERI must do is assemble a staff. The most important members will be scientists, people Bennett calls "geniuses, even super-geniuses" is the field of solar power.

SERI will initially employ 49 to 76 people, including administrative and clerical personnel.

This group will then have to define its goals and review solar energy research already conducted in the United States and throughout the world. Complex computer programs will be written to conduct simulation experiments. Management systems will be set up. Bids for a multitude of contractual services will be taken.

Only then will SERI be ready to design a building to meet its needs and get on with the experimentation and cost analysis which will be its primary work.

There is a possibility that SERI will never get beyond this planning stage. Congress has funded the project for only three years. If there is no longer support for solar research at the end of that period, Bennett says ERDA "will be in a position to back out."

A Michigan group called MERRA (Michigan Energy and Resource Research Association) is hoping, however, that SERI will develop into a $50 million program with 1500 employees, and that it will be located in this state. Three hundred acres of farmland on the west side of Sheldon Road between Five and Six Mile Roads is one site under consideration.

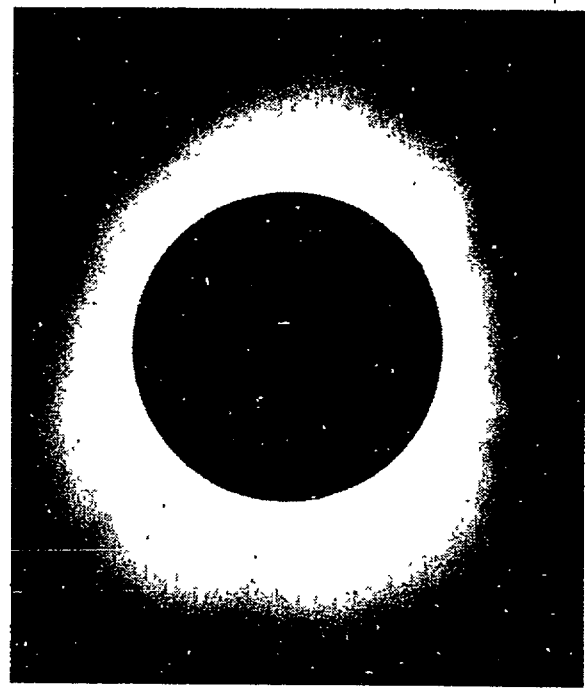

The technology needed to harness the sun's energy has already been developed. Dr. Henry V. Bohm of MERRA says, "The biggest problem of solar energy is the economics." The real mission of SERI, says Bohm, will be "cost consciousness." If solar power is to become widely used, it must be competitive in price with other energy sources, such as coal and gas.

Nation's future energy may radiate from the sun

Experiments will be conducted (mostly at field laboratories in sunnier places) but SERI employees will do mostly "desk work" according to Bohm.

Computer simulation permits scientists to test some of their ideas without going to the expense of a laboratory set-up. Data analysis and feasibility studies will be SERI's major emphasis.

Bohm believes that Michigan is the ideal location for such work. He feels that the technical expertise which put the cost of the automobile within the budget of the average family can help make solar energy cheap enough for widespread residential and industrial use.

The MERRA proposal to ERDA will offer five-year options on three sites in Wayne County for the permanent SERI location. One is the Sheldon Road site, one is in Romulus and the other at Willow Run airport.

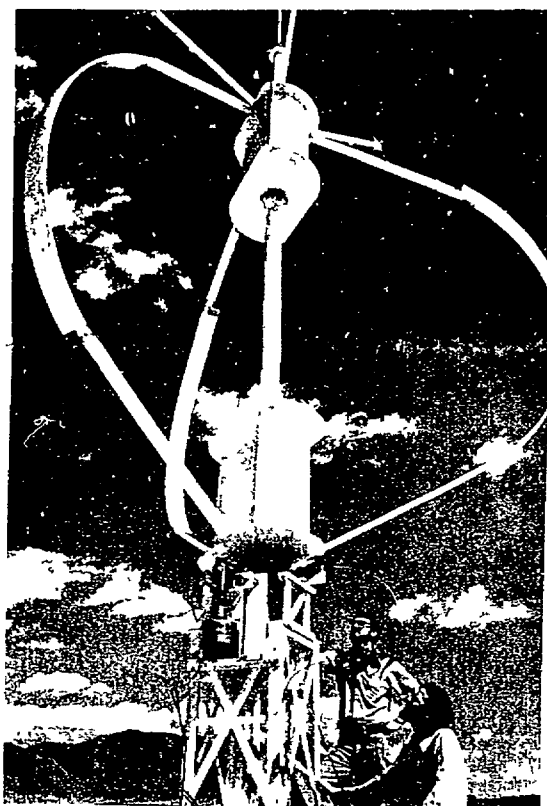

Bennett says that everyone in the county agrees Northville is the best of the three.

MERRA has not yet decided on a building to propose as an interim site. Bennett says they are looking for a large, flexible building centrally located among the three proposed permanent locations.

The Child Development Center on the east side of Sheldon Road was considered but then ruled out. An architect's study, commissioned by MERRA, found that adapting the buildings there to SERI's use would not be economically feasible. Bennett said that the separate cottages were not ideal for SERI's purposes, and that the Wayne County proposal would be stronger if the Institute could be offered a facility under one roof.

MERRA is working with a $220,000 grant from the state legislature to develop Michigan's bid for the

Bottling Works Tapped Northville's Natural Resource

Silver Springs Water—A Reservoir of History

"They came from all over the state, mostly from the Detroit area, to visit our place and fill their bottles with our water," says Mrs. William Beamer of Grosse Pointe, whose late husband founded the famous Silver Springs Bottling Company of Northville way back before the Great Depression.

The bottling company, which went out of business in the Fifties, tapped the great reservoir of crystal clear water that lies deep beneath the land just east of the railroad opposite the city's DPW yard.

This same table of water is believed to be the source for the water that flows constantly from Northville's historic well along South Main Street.

Today the Silver Springs site is the location of Jack Doheny's new municipal equipment supply warehouse.

When Doheny built his new warehouse a few months ago, he was reminded of the old wells on the property and he uncapped one of them. "It's supplying us with all the water we'll ever need," he reports. "You couldn't ask for better drinking water. We had the state test it and they're amazed how good it is."

Though the Silver Springs Company no longer exists, the name lives on: Wayne County's only natural lake, located in Highland Lakes subdivision and formerly called the Yerkes Lake, is now called Silver Springs Lake; a major street in the subdivision is named Silver Spring; and the new elementary school in Highland Lakes is named Silver Springs.

Mr. Beamer established the Silver Springs Company in Detroit before World War I. "He got his water from some other spring originally, but I'm afraid I don't know where it was located. After serving in the Army Air Corps, he returned and then bought the spring and building at Northville. It was there that the business really boomed," says Mrs. Beamer.

Incidentally, Beamer was not the same Beamer, the creator and star of the early Lone Ranger radio series, though the two men were constantly receiving each other's mail. And Mrs. Beamer put to rest speculation that "the great horse Silver" was named for the bottling works.

"Oh, those were such grand days," recalls Mrs. Hugo Manley of Orchard Lake, widow of the man who was general manager of Silver Springs in Northville for all of its lifetime for Mr. Beamer. "The weekends were the best time. We had a wonderful caretaker by the name of Stark (W.D. Stark), I believe, who kept the place immaculately clean.

"It was a wood frame building with a circular drive. Mr. Stark had lilacs and petunias growing along the drive. Inside the building was an open, flowing well. He built a walkway and rail around the well, put a glass cover over it and the customers and tourists could look down and see the water bubbling up.

"It was from that open well inside the place where we got our water. At first it was put in five-gallon jugs, later in gallon and half gallon bottles."

Mrs. Beamer remembers that the Silver Springs bottles were very popular throughout the Detroit area. "Back during Prohibition, it wasn't unusual to see a Silver Springs bottle of water on one side of a restaurant ice box and a Silver Springs bottle of clear gin on the other," she laughs.

The inside open well was lighted for visitors, she says, remembering that there was an apartment "upstairs for the local manager" while the bottling operation was downstairs.

Water was sold by Silver Springs salesmen to homes, restaurants, and to many resorts in Northern Michigan. There was limited out-of-state distribution as well. Generally, those customers who visited the plant brought along their own bottles to be filled.

Though initially Silver Springs was a water bottling company, later it became a soft drink industry supplying a variety of soft drinks all under the name of Silver Springs. "There was a Silver Springs ginger ale that was as good or better than the Ginger Ale you probably drink," says Mrs. Manley. "I can tell you this: those soft drinks made Northville pretty famous."

An April 13, 1928 article in The Record noted that an 8,000 square foot addition to the plant here and the installation of $15,000 worth of machinery made Silver Springs "one of the finest bottling plants in the country."

Continued the news story: "Sometime ago work was started on the plant, the company having decided to move its soft drink establishment from Detroit to Northville so as to have the bottling works for the soft drinks it manufactures right at the source of the purest water supply in the state.

"Not only is the company producing the purest

soft drinks manufactured, but it has also increased the bottling capacity for the water supply.

"For years the Silver Springs Water Company has provided many Detroit homes and establishments with the pure, clear water from the springs just east of Northville (center of town)."

The company, according to the story, would handle 1500 cases of water daily as well as produce 1000 cases of bottled drinks each day.

Mrs. Beamer, who reports her husband purchased the Northville springs from the Annis Fur Company of Detroit, recalls that Hal Johnson was the manager of the soft drinks division for her husband's company. It was he, she believes, who lived for a time in the apartment above the factory here.

Her husband's Detroit plant was located on Oakman Boulevard and, for a time at Third and Baltimore next door to a Detroit livery stable.

According to Mrs. Manley, a case of one-half gallons of Silver Springs water contained six distinctive bottles. Her husband, having risen in the company from deliveryman to chemist to general manager, helped design the bottle and was instrumental in marketing of the water. The water was used in making the soft drinks.

Years later, Silver Springs took on the Nesbitt franchise, also bottling that firm's brand name soft drinks in Northville. By the Fifties, however, with a disappearing water supply and a declining trade in the water business, Beamer sold the bottling plant to Paul McKinney.

McKinney, now a manufacturer's representative in Bloomfield Hills, says "we continued to bottle water there for four or five years but for some reason or another the water became steadily worse," and eventually the operation was discontinued and he leased the building to John Burkman of Northville who manufactured slate table tops for pool tables there until the building burned down in the Sixties.

Both McKinney and Burkman believe the water supply for the old Silver Springs wells is the same as the source of water for nearby Northville Spring.

"I have a hunch that gas from the nearby storage tanks somehow leaked into the water supply and spoiled the water," Burkman says, who explains that in addition to the open well inside the old plant two additional wells were located at the rear of the plant. Others believe it may have been caused by the gravel mining operation in what now is the Highland Lakes area.

The two rear wells, believes McKinney, were older and seldom, if ever, used. It is one of these rear wells that Doheny uncapped and is now using. The open well was long ago filled with broken glass and dirt and no longer exists.

Northville's water supply in the vicinity of Silver Springs became internationally famous as a result of the once famous syndicated comic strip called, The Nebbs. The characters, the setting, even the name, Northville, were used in the strip read from coast to coast as well as abroad.

Lending credence to the theory that the same water that supplies the Northville Spring supplied Silver Springs is the fact that about the time Silver Springs water supply began to diminish the same thing began to happen to the Northville Spring water.

Most oldtimers believe the Northville Spring existed long before Silver Springs, perhaps long before the turn of the century. People traveled to Northville throughout the state to obtain water from the Northville Spring, and today they continue to come.

Several years ago the flow of water from the Northville Spring all but stopped. Despite exhaustive tests, municipal officials were unable to determine what happened. So temporarily they hooked the Detroit water line up to the spring so that water continued to pour from it. Even then people from Detroit continued to travel to Northville to fill their jugs with water when actually they could have filled them with the same water from their taps at home in Detroit.

Signs were erected to explain that it was Detroit water, but oldtimers from Detroit and elsewhere wouldn't believe the signs, insisting, upon questioning by Northville Record reporters, that it was still the same "pure, sweet water" they obtained here years earlier.

Finally, the Northville Rotary Club, which years earlier erected the first covered roof over the community's flowing well, could no longer stomach the unintentional hoax. The club financed the sinking of an adjacent new well and hooked it up to the old Northville Spring.

Today, the water is pure and sweet but it no longer flows naturally, though many citizens are unaware of this fact. Just south of the Northville Spring, buried beneath the soil, a pump works day and night to produce the water the "way it used to be."

For Novi Road Widening

Garrett Among Low Bids

A bid for the widening of Novi Road was one of 10 low bids totaling $735,000 for 10 of the Oakland County Road Commissions construction projects, according to Fred Harris, chairman.

The $230,400 bid of Sterling Garrett Contracting Company of Walled Lake was lowest of 17 for widening Novi Road to five lanes from I-96 to a point north of 12 Mile Road in Novi. The widening is in anticipation of the opening of the Twelve Oaks Mall at 12 Mile and Novi Road and the developer is paying two-thirds of the cost of the road construction. The remaining share will be divided equally between the road commission and the City of Novi.

M&B Equipment Company of Novi was lowest of eight bidders at $194,000 on a project to reconstruct and pave the gravel portion of Haggerty Road between Grand River and Twelve Mile in Novi and Farmington Hills.

Board man Construction Company of Highland was lowest of nine bidders at $49,900 for applying bituminous overlay on 14 Mile Road from Novi Road to Haggerty in Novi, Walled Lake and Commerce Township.

Detroit Concrete Products of Novi submitted low bids on two projects. Its bid of $20,648 was lowest of eight for widening existing 20 foot pavement on Freedom Road from Grand River to the Farmington city limits to 22 feet and application of bituminous overlay to the widened project. It also was low bidder at $67,796 for bituminous overlay on General Motors Road near Milford.

Germany in 1940. His first LIFE cover was published in 1942. In 1958 he was named as one of the world's ten great photographers.

First president of the American Society of Magazine Photographers, Halsman in 1965 was one of three photographers representing the USA in the exhibit "Twelve International Photographers" in the New York Gallery of Modern Art.

Two Halsman portraits, Adlai Stevenson's and Albert Einstein's, were used on U.S. postage stamps. He has also directed films and a number of television commercials, and has published six books.

Hot Council Items

Novi Sets Aside Licenses

Class "C" liquor licenses are hot items in Novi and Novi Council recently fed the fires by setting aside two of four available liquor licenses for the coming J. L. Hudson store and the Novi Associates Development Area.

lock ourselves into," Donald Fullington, owner of the Depot Restaurant on Novi Road north of Grand River indicated his disagreement with the council reserving all of the remaining liquor licenses for new business while turning its back on the establishments that have been located in Novi for some time

The decision to allocate the licenses is intended to allow one for the Hudson store plus a second to help Novi Associates which owns the property around the mall to entice a top hotel or motel establishment to the periphery property.

In addition, the council passed a resolution of intent which also specified that one license would be held for use by a bowling alley with a lounge and/or restaurant. The final license available is "reserved for a restaurant or hotel-motel-motor inn that represents a proposed use satisfactory to the Novi City Council."

Originally, the city administration proposed that while the first license should go to the Hudson's store, the second should go to use in the Twelve Oaks Mall also.

However, council member Patricia Karevich persuaded the council not to specify that the second license should be in the mall portion.

"If you put two in there, I feel you're not getting full use of that license," she said.

However, councilman Philip Goodman said that the only way to get a major hotel or motel into the area might be to make the license available to the area owned by Novi Associates.

The motion to approve the resolution was passed 6-0 although council member Robert Schmid at one point commented, "It seems maybe we are locking ourselves into something we don't want to

2 Incumbents Run

Two incumbents will face five challengers in the Walled Lake School Board election June 14.

Robert E. Cooper, 2875 Warner Drive, Orchard Lake, and Warren L. Williams, 2664 Red Arrow, Union Lake have filed for re-election to their four-year seats, the only seats to be decided.

Other candidates who filed petitions before the deadline Monday are: Jeanette M. Brand, 5691 Paradise, Union Lake; Allen J. Green, Jr., 235

Spring Park, Walled Lake; Neil E. Kessler, 2572 N. Trail Court, Walled Lake; Patricia Ann Jackman, 4528 Bethune, West Bloomfield; and Kenneth L. Tucker, 335 Arvida, Walled Lake

The Walled Lake School District includes the city of Walled Lake and parts of the cities of Wixom, Novi, Farmington Hills, and Orchard Lake, as well as parts of the townships of Commerce, West Bloomfield, White Lake and Novi.

Traffic Light Ordered

The Board of County Road Commissioners thinks it's a good idea to separate train and vehicular traffic.

So the county road board has ordered the Oakland County Road Commission to install a traffic light at the easterly intersection of Pontiac Trail and Wixom Road. A C&O railroad track passes diagonally through the intersection.

"Tests last year indicated the intersection didn't quite qualify for a light," said Fred L. Harris, chairman of the county road board. "Since then, we have widened Wixom road, increasing traffic volumes to a point where we can now justify a light."

Harris was unable to estimate just when the light will be installed. He said that depends primarily on how long it takes the public utility to provide electrical power at the location.

Oops! Land Missed In School Switch

Two parcels of land north of 10 Mile Road and east of Glenda Street in Novi totalling 40 acres, created quite a furor recently as Novi and Northville officials had thought the property was by accident never transferred into the Novi school district.

But Novi officials now say it was a big mistake and had been included within the Novi school district boundaries all along. Reportedly, the supposed mistake was called to the attention of the school district by the Novi city assessor.

Both Novi and Northville school districts took immediate action to transfer the land, which has no homes on it, into the Novi school district.

According to a spokesman for the Novi superintendent's office, a check with the Oakland County Intermediate School District verified that the property had been in the Novi school district all along.

Police Plan A Magazine

A new magazine published by the Novi Police Officers Association and Novi Police Lieutenants & Sergeants Association is crammed full of helpful information for the Novi resident and businessman.

The Sixth Gate, as it is called, contains, among others, stories about what it is like to a policeman's wife, and why you should have a number on your house. There are down-to-earth "how-to's" — reviving a person with a cardiopulmonary resuscitation and dealing with a bad check.

The magazine is written, photographed and edited entirely by police department personnel.

The primary purpose of the magazine was to raise money from advertisers, but says the editor, Patrolman John Zimmer, "we wanted something worthwhile — something that citizens wouldn't throw out the first day."

The staff wanted to make the publication a sort of reference volume. A directory page in the front was carefully compiled by police dispatchers to list telephone numbers citizens most often need.

Pictures of 25 of Novi's 26 police officers appear — everyone but Zimmer who, as editor, modestly declined to be photographed.

Copies of the magazine should appear in each of the 6000 mailboxes in Novi. In addition, free copies will be available at the Novi Police Station and various businesses in the area.

M-275 on Agenda

An update on the progress of the M-275 freeway which runs along the east portion of Novi and Northville will be the subject of a public meeting planned for Thursday, June 24.

Scheduled for 8 p.m. the meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Walled Lake Western High School, on Beck Road.

Intent of the meeting not only is to update the public, but also to provide an opportunity for public discussion of the draft environmental statement for the proposed location of the freeway from I-96 north to M-58 in Oakland County.

The department is also encouraging citizens to drop in and talk with representatives of the highway department in the cafeteria at Western High school from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, June 17.

Requests for copies of the draft environmental statement may be submitted to: Jack E. Morgan, Manager, Public Involvement Section, Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation, P.O. South Lyon Couples Honored at Mass

The deeply moving words of the marriage ceremony, "I now pronounce you man and wife", seemed almost to reverberate through the sanctuary of South Lyon's St. Joseph Catholic Church on May 16 as 17 couples were honored at a wedding anniversary Mass. A total of 670 years of shared years were represented.

Focusing on the sanctity of the sacrament of marriage and the marriage vows, Monsignor Albert Matyn addressed the couples and the congregation on the blessings of spending so many years together. He also commented that faith in God and each other provides the strength needed to face the trials and tribulations experienced sometime in all marriages.

Singled out for special deference were those couples who are in their 60th year of marriage. They are: John and Frances Croci of New Hudson who were wed on July 29, 1915; Frank and Catherine Marzolf of South Lyon, May 30, 1916; Joseph and Hattie Zella of Ann Arbor, August 16, 1916 and Albert and Bessie Mundinger of South Lyon, November 28, 1916.

A lifetime member of the parish, Mr. Zella was unable to attend the Mass on Sunday due to illness. He has the distinction of being the first altar boy to serve at the first Mass held in the original St. Joseph's Church in South Lyon. That building at the corner of North Lafayette and Abel Streets was erected in 1910. The young Joseph helped dig the basement for the edifice.

Following the homily at the 11:30 a.m. Mass, all of the couples who were celebrating 25 or more years, divisible by five, were called to the altar to receive a scroll containing a Papal Blessing in Latin. They were also presented with small silver plaques with the symbolic cross and double wedding bands.

At Communion time, the honored couples were the first to receive the bread and wine — the only ones to be served both forms.

Also honored during the service were Oswald and Rose Hetu of Northville, 50 years of marriage; Carl and Johanna Lamberjack of South Lyon, 45 years; Donald and Mary Cooper of New Hudson and Leonard and Emily Klebba of South Lyon, 40 years; Robert and Veronica Beupied of South Lyon, 35 years. (Mr. Lamberjack was ill and unable to attend.)

Special emphasis was put on the importance to the family of the keeping of marriage vows and relatives of the anniversary celebrants were seated with them during the Mass.

Charles A. Smith of Novi, elder emeritus of Central Woodward Christian Church and past president of the Detroit Council of Christian Churches, delivered the Sunday message at Livonia Christian Church in the absence of the minister, the Reverend William Hass. Russell Bark was the service leader and Arthur Smith presided at the communion table.

Mr. Hass attended a convention last week at Adrian. In his absence next Sunday while he is on vacation, Dr. Stanley Harbison, teacher of theology at Eastern Michigan University, will deliver the message. Austin Kea will be the worship leader at the 11 a.m. service.

Shut-in Day Scheduled June 6

"The main idea is remembrance," stresses Mrs. C. H. Morse of Walled Lake as she points out that Sunday, June 6, is national shut-in day.

For the past 10 years the former teacher has served as a one-woman liaison with the Shut-In's Day Association in New Jersey to remind people to remember shut-ins with a token of kindness.

This year she has contacted her pastor at Walled Lake Baptist Church for help and also has sought names of shut-ins in nursing homes in Novi, Howell and Union Lake who would appreciate a card or visit.

She urges anyone who knows a shut-in to make a personal visit or telephone call if possible or to send a card, flowers or token gift.

The association, she explains, has names of people who will send cards and friendly notes when she is given names of lonely or discouraged shut-ins. She adds that the "turnover in the list is tremendous and there are people with no friends or relatives left. We have a couple of people who are over 100."

Mrs. Morse, who used to teach in Bedford Township near Temperance, Michigan, herself became limited by arthritis which caused her hip to be locked. She and her husband now live in an apartment at her daughter's home in Walled Lake.

Both civilian and war veteran shut-ins are remembered by the non-sectarian shut-in association with those on the list receiving cards on holidays and their birthdays, Mrs. Morse explains.

Mrs. Morse may be contacted at 624-7486 for information about the program.

New Members Goal Of Baptist Crusade

Orchard Hills Baptist Church at 23455 Novi Road launched a campaign a week ago Sunday to enroll in Bible study persons who are not now enrolled in such a program in any other church.

The Reverend Thomas L. Martin, pastor, reports that the campaign has resulted in the enrollment of 83 new persons.

The campaign, he states, had been begun on an intensive basis and will continue on a slightly less intensive basis for three more weeks. It will be a continuing emphasis of the church on a permanent basis, he adds.

The concept, he says, is to enroll "anyone, anywhere, anytime" who is not in a Bible study and wishes to begin.

"It is a reflection," he continues, "of the church's conviction that systematic Bible study is important to the growth and development of persons into everything that God intended for them to be."

Launching of the campaign at this time is part of a Metro Reach program being conducted by area Southern Baptist Churches. Orchard Hills is a member of the Southern Baptist Convention, the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

Orchard Hills, he adds, now is 11 years old, and invites anyone interested in becoming part of the Bible study program to call the church at 349-5665, or the pastor at 437-6970. It meets at 9:45 a.m. Sundays with worship service following at 11 a.m.

MERIT!

'Enriched Flavor' process prompts unprecedented response to taste of new low tar MERIT.

Smokers are talking about a new kind of cigarette.

It's MERIT. The remarkable new low tar cigarette made with the 'Enriched Flavor' process.

MERIT has only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today. Yet, taste tests proved that MERIT delivers as much—or more—flavor than cigarettes having up to 60% more tar.

If you smoke, you'll be interested in what people like yourself are writing to us about MERIT.

SERI contract. Dr. Bohm, a physicist and former Wayne State University provost, is the full time director of the effort.

Bohm lists several reasons why SERI is so desirable, and why competition among states for the Institute will be so stiff.

SERI would provide diversification for Michigan's economy. It could possibly absorb some displaced automotive industry workers.

"It will be a tremendous economic magnet," says Bohm. He foresees a light industry growing around the Institute which would be environmentally clean.

Finally, SERI would be a prestigious institute and would attract attention from scholars and businessmen around the world.

The very existence of an organization like MERRA may give Michigan an edge in the ERDA bidding. John Mogk, president of MERRA, says the association is one of a kind in this country.

MERRA has members from the three major research sectors — business, government and universities. Mogk says that cooperation among these sectors will be vital to SERI's success.

MERRA was set up in 1974 as a clearing-house for information in the new and expanding energy field, and to undertake energy research projects.

A non-profit corporation, MERRA is open to any organization with a research facility and an operating budget over $1 million. Each member organization contributes $10,000 annually to support the Association.

Members of MERRA include the Office of the Governor, the Legislative Council, the Michigan Public Service Commission, Department of State Highways and Transportation, Office of Economic Expansion, Michigan State University, Michigan Technological University, Wayne State University, the Dow Chemical Company, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company and the Environmental Research Institute of Michigan.

MERRA has worked on two research projects so far, using personnel from member organizations. One project studied more efficient use of energy by industry and another the re-use of wood wastes.

"There isn't any other place where they've had this experience," says Mogk.

SERI has now become MERRA's "number one priority," he says.

MERRA is also working with the University of Michigan and the United Auto Workers in securing the SERI contract.

Proposals for SERI are due at ERDA by July 15. The contract will be awarded by December.
