Parade watching's exciting for Mrs. Stewart Kissinger and two-year-old Marianna

Crowd Salutes War Dead Here

While crowds along the downtown Main Street route of the Memorial Day 1976 parade at 2 p.m. Sunday may not have been as big as in the past, the audience at Rural Hill Cemetery observances was one of the largest in recent years.

Northville Mayor A. M. Allen, who spoke recently at the annual service in remembrance of war veterans, said he felt attendance was up at the VFW-American Legion service as the rain held off.

In Northville the weekend also held its original meaning of "remembrance" as hundreds must have visited Rural Hill during the week to place floral arrangements on graves throughout the cemetery and to plant urns with geraniums.

Simple wreaths of green leaves were placed on plots marking veterans' areas.

After a prayer by the Reverend Lloyd Brasure of Northville First Presbyterian Church, Mayor Allen outlined the history of the military plot containing 56 graves, primarily of World War I and II veterans.

It was carved out from a hillside gravel pit, he recalled, in 1949 at the direction of then-Mayor Claude Ely when it was apparent that the small plot used before World War II wasn't going to be adequate.

Remembrance of veterans who died for their country and respect for the flag were themes of talks by Past

A total of 15 persons, including one Democrat, filed nominating petitions for six board seats, before the 4 p.m. deadline yesterday.

Three incumbent board members did not file for reelection. The surprise non-candidate was Richard Mitchell, a two-term trustee. Trustee John MacDonald and Treasurer Charles Rosenberg had previously announced their intention not to run.

Lennox, 41828 Sutters Lane; Wilson C. Grier, 19733 Marilyn; and James A. Pasco, 42680 Waterford.

Republican candidates for clerk are Clarice D. Sass, 42210 Farragut Court and Rosemary Zillich, 19875 Silver Spring Drive.

A LOSS of $59,000 to the Northville school district will result from the state's decision to extend its fiscal year, Administrative Assistant Thomas Goulding told the Board of Education Monday. In other business, the Board agreed to review its policy on accepting tuition students, joined the Michigan Association of School Boards Legal Trust Fund, and accepted for study preliminary plans for next year's extracurricular program.

AN ORDINANCE change providing that all property owners within 300 feet of a property up for rezoning be notified by mail 15 days before the public hearing date is under consideration by the Northville City Council. Planning Commissioners recommended the notification policy.

A LAWSUIT has been started against the City of Detroit and the Detroit Metro Water Department on behalf of suburban communities, including Northville, contesting the five-year 39-percent water rate increase for users of Detroit water.

THE ICE CREAM SOCIAL honoring Northville kindergarten teacher Grace Pollock, who is retiring after 33 years of introducing "beginners" to school, will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) on the board of education grounds on Main Street. In event of rain the festivities, with a presentation at 8 p.m., will move indoors. The entire community is invited.

Council Revises Ordinance To Curb City Vandalism

An ordinance revision that puts more teeth in the city statute dealing with malicious damage of property has been adopted by the Northville City Council.

The revision of the law follows establishment of a $1,000 reward system payable upon the arrest and conviction of anyone found guilty of vandalism—whether it be for damage to a traffic sign or burning of a vacant building. Also, the city council is considering revision of the community's curfew ordinance (see related story). All of these measures are aimed at curbing the rising incidence of vandalism in Northville.

Actually, the revised malicious damage ordinance is not as encompassing as originally contemplated by council. At the advice of City Attorney Philip Ogilvie, the revision was modified in one of its sections dealing with penalties to cover vandalism in public parks and recreation areas only since only these areas were authorized under state law.

However, Councilman Paul Vernon, who introduced the change, has pledged to carry the local problem to the state level, urging local legislators to consider modifying state law to permit local municipalities to apply the penalty section to cover malicious damage in other places as well.

As adopted, the ordinance provides:

1. It shall be unlawful for any person within the city to maliciously destroy, damage, injure, mar or deface any building, monument, sign or structure; or fence, tree, shrub, plant, park or public property of any kind, or to commit any act of malicious damage or vandalism on or in any such property.

Further, it shall be unlawful for any person to reoccupy, use, or remain on park or public property after posted closing hours. It shall further be unlawful for any person within the city to drink intoxicating beverages or to bring intoxicating beverages on public or park property where unauthorized to do so by law.

2. Any person who violates any provision of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor.

3. Irrespective of the penalties provided in this act for violating its provisions, any person convicted of an act of malicious damage or vandalism in parks or recreation areas owned and operated by the city shall reimburse the city for up to three times the amount of the damage as determined by the court but in no case shall it be less than an amount equal to the cost for repairing or replacing the damaged public property.

4. In every case of conviction for offense of vandalism or malicious

Beef up Curfew?

Should teenagers under the age of 18 be prohibited from congregating or walking city streets after 11 p.m.?

That question is now before the Northville City Council as it considers a curfew change that would make it illegal for teenagers between the ages of 16 and 18 to be out after 11 without specifically authorized legitimate reason.

Presently, the curfew is midnight and excludes 17-year-olds.

Council is considering the change because of a recurring serious vandalism problem that, according to some officials, is costing nearly a mill ($43,000) tax dollars in damages annually.

The proposed curfew change is part of a three-step program launched by the council in the wake of the most recent vandalism—arson, destruction of drinking fountains, damage to cemetery monuments, destruction of street and direction signs, etc.

Although police and municipal officials believe much of the damage is the work of young adults, some is caused by older teenagers. "We've got to do something," Mayor A.M. Allen has said. "It's gotten completely out of hand. There's nothing safe in the city as long as these hoodlums are roaming the streets," he added.

The proposed curfew change, according to an interpretation by Councilman Paul Vernon, who introduced it, would not prevent students from attending school functions, such as dances, that may last until after 11 p.m.

A student walking home from a dance, for example, would not be a violator, explained Vernon. Nor would a teenager going to or returning from work after 11 p.m. be considered a violator. Teenagers accompanied by a parent or adult also would be exempt.

"What we're trying to stop is the congregating of kids on streets and sidewalks or parking lots; kids who have no good reason being there can be just a stone's throw from mischief. Not all are, of course, but just one bad one in the bunch can make all them party to crime," officials explain.

"Obviously, the first responsibility is that of the parent — to want to know where and what their children are doing."

Police, according to Councilman Stanley Johnston, can be expected to use good common sense in enforcing the law. They won't stop and arrest every youngster they see walking on the street unless they have

Parents Protest Plan

High School Cuts Hit

An appeal to postpone planned shifts of sixth and ninth grades to other buildings in the Northville public school system has been issued by a group of high school parents.

The plea for a halt to proposed class shifts and program reductions came about following a meeting between the parent group and high school faculty members representing the various departments.

The information-gathering meeting was held last Wednesday evening (May 26). The parent group indicated it had informed school administrators, board members and other parents of its concerns and hoped a second meeting could be held last night (Tuesday evening).

Citing sharp cut-backs in high school classroom programs based upon "administrative decisions made without benefit of teacher or departmental information or advice", the parent group issued a "fact sheet" stating it is possible 450 high school students will not be able to take courses for which they have registered.

The fact sheet challenges the proposed cuts stating that they are more drastic than administration to the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) and the community following the passage of the 3.9 operating millage request in April.

The parent group states the cuts were proposed without teacher input, that they will be harmful to the high school's educational program, and that the reductions could provide "even more severe and detrimental problems for personnel than now exist...the level of teacher morale at present is grave enough."

Among the departments cited by the fact sheet where changes and cuts will be detrimental are: art, business, English, home economics, library, foreign language, physical education, mathematics, music, social studies and science.

The fact sheet contained the names of the following high school parents: Nona Barron, Florence Hinman, Betty Hancock, Ginny and Jim Lewis, Mary Kelly, Pat Wright and Helen Schneider.

Behind Scenes with GOP Chief

President Gerald Ford's recent primary campaign in Michigan was orchestrated by a City of Northville resident — William McLaughlin, state chairman of the Republican Party.

A constantly on the move politician, McLaughlin commutes from Northville to Lansing and back to Northville almost daily. Always at the focal point of Republican business in Michigan, he is frequently conferring with state and national leaders.

In this election year his activities sharpen and his GOP role becomes all the more important. To learn more about this Northville man and about the job he holds, The Record sent its staffer Patricia Bernardo to Lansing to spend the day with him. Her candid report of the man and the job appears on Page 1-B.

MR. AND MRS. RANDALL RORABACHER

Patricia Ann Mallette looked like a pretty turn-of-the-century bride in a crystal-pleated ivory chiffon dress with Gibson girl hat and duster veil as she became the bride of Randall Jay Rorabacher.

Re-embroidered Alehcon lace decorated the bodice styled with a Gibson-girl collar and was repeated at the pleated hemline. She carried a nosegay of peach roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis O. Mallette, 301 South Ely Drive, was given in marriage by her father in the 7 p.m. ceremony May 14 at Our Lady of Victory Church.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rorabacher of 50285 West Seven Mile Road.

Father Gerard Hadad officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Music was by organist Larry Przybysz and guitarist Evelyn Brosh, who also sang. "Day by Day," "For Baby" and "The Wedding Song" were special selections.

Maid of honor Pat Wheeler wore a green floral print dress designed with a square neckline, with bishop sleeves and lace-and-green ribbons at the waistline.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Mrs. Sally Mallette Morche and Mrs. Debbie Crouse; her niece, Suzie VonOtten; and a friend, Kathy Wheeler.

They wore coral print gowns styled like that of the honor maid. All carried nosegays of daisies and baby's breath and wore straw hats with matching streamers.

Marcy Crouse, a niece, in a coral print dress with green pinafore, was flower girl. Jeffrey Crouse, a nephew, was ring bearer.

Brian Butler, best man with Kenneth Crouse, Kimm Stanek, Terri Pullin, Dennis Rorabacher and Brian Schief, a nephew, ushering. A reception for 200 guests, including those from California, was held immediately following the ceremony at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The bride, a graduate of Northville High School and Oakland Community College (as a dental assistant) is employed by Dr. J. A. Sinkwitz, DDS. Her husband, also a NHS graduate, is employed at Hydramatic Division, General Motors, in Ypsilanti.

After a wedding trip to Upper Michigan the newlyweds are in their new home in Westland.

JEANE NAGY

Engaged

The engagement of Jeane Nagy of Novi (formerly of South Lyon) and Keith Woolworth of Clio is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Nagy of Farmington.

The Donald Woolworths of Clio are parents of the prospective bridegroom.

The future bride is a 1976 graduate of Novi High School. Her fiancé graduated from Clio High School in 1975 and is employed at St. Johns, Michigan.

A 1977 wedding is planned.

Findling Son

A son, Robert George, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Findling, 46066 Sunset, May 21.

Because he was born at one minute after midnight, he became a birthday gift to his father. He weighed eight pounds, two ounces.

His mother is the former Michele Morrison.

He joins a sister, Traci Ann, three and a half, at home.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George R. Morrison and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Findling, all of Northville. Maternal great-grandparents are Mrs. Ida Morrison of Northville and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Gagnon of Almo Palms, Texas.

Three Elementaries Plan Dance Revues

Colorful, lively dances will be featured in a half-hour variety program scheduled by the Junior Entertainment Series committee of the Northville PTA for three elementaries this Friday.

The dance program will be given for children in kindergarten through third grades at Amerman, Moraine and Winchester schools.

Silver Springs, the committee states, is unable to host the dancers on this date, but it is hoped that an alternative program can be arranged there.

Dancers from Julie Marie's Art de Danse School will entertain with routines that include the Can-Can, Adagio, Jazz, Hoedown and gymnastics.

Invite Overeaters To Join New Group

By JEAN DAY

WHEN LOSING WEIGHT means needing to shed 25, 50 or 100 pounds, a crash diet isn't the answer.

For compulsive overeaters — "people who have an eating problem and are not able to stop" — a local chapter of Overeaters Anonymous is being formed. A first organizational meeting is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. this Friday, June 4, at the scout-recreation building at 215 West Cady Street.

"Joyce" is a local organizer of a nucleus group and has been a member of the Plymouth chapter, which, she reports, will assist in getting a Northville group started. She adds that members use only first names to preserve anonymity.

Main purpose of the O.A. chapters, she explains, is "fellowship and friendly understanding of those who share the common problem of overeating and try to help each other."

Since April 6, with the help of the Plymouth chapter, Joyce reports, she has been able to lose 28 pounds. She admits frankly that she has a real weight problem and still weighs well over 200 pounds but is determined that with O.A. help she will continue to lose.

She understands the O.A. organization, formed on the same type help concepts as Alcoholics Anonymous, is 16 years old and is world-wide.

Members give moral support to each other, she continues, and "help you get over the weekend — often the worst time for overeaters."

At first, she says, she was going to wait until fall to start a Northville group but realized "this is something you need all the time."

According to the O.A. brochure, there are no dues or fees for membership but groups are self-supporting through their own contributions. Only requirement for membership is a desire to stop eating compulsively.

Anyone interested in this type is invited to come to Friday's meeting. Joyce also is willing to answer questions and may be called at 348-1662.

Stephen Knapp was the bridegroom's attendant.

A reception for 125 guests followed at the Farmington VFW. Guests included the bride's other daughters, Mrs. Michael Sissen and Mrs. Charles Marino, as well as relatives and friends from Howell, Brighton, New Hudson, Farmington and Detroit.

After a wedding trip south the Blakes, both previously widowed, are living at 29605 LeGrand Boulevard in Novi.

In addition to her activities with the Northville BPW Mrs. Blake has served as expansion chairman for the new Novi chapter.

TRACTOR RACES, now a tradition, highlighted the annual Memorial Day weekend get-together of Northville Estates Subdivision association Monday afternoon. This year's winner was Kenneth Kress.

"It was really fun with a good turnout," summarizes Mrs. Don E. Williams, whose husband is association president. There was beer for adults and pop and games for the youngsters.

Richard Sievert is vice president of the association with Pat Ingle, secretary, and Joseph Petrosky, treasurer.

This week Mrs. Williams was anticipating the arrival of her sisters, Mrs. A.C. Beaird and Mrs. Delmer Huisenga (the latter with her husband), from Iowa. They are coming for the graduation of Josie Williams from Northville High June 8.

GRADUATE JUDGES of the Michigan Association of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will tap Mrs. Gene B. Cushing of Northville for a second term as corresponding secretary at the annual meeting at the Village Women's Club in Bloomfield Hills this Thursday.

A veteran of 15 years in the demanding judging organization, Mrs. Cushing has judged many area shows, including Wixom's. To be a member of the judges association, Mrs. Cushing explains, it is necessary to exhibit regularly and to attend two symposiums within a three-year period.

Also attending the 10 a.m. meeting, luncheon and program following will be Mrs. Frank Whitmyer and Mrs. Donald Parker. Mrs. Parker is a new member of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

Flower arranger and herb grower Mary Gerthey, who has lectured in Northville, will be speaking on herbs at the program. Mrs. Cushing credits the teacher-consultant with helping start garden groups at nursing homes in the area, explaining that this is a special project of the speaker.

Members of Northville Blue Lodge No. 186, F & AM, are planning a visit to the Michigan Masonic Home at Alma June 13. Worshipful Master Peter June announces there will be a tour of the grounds and the Shrine band will play.

He adds that this is the 105th anniversary of Masonry in Michigan.

Wives are invited on the trip, which is by charter bus. Reservations are to be made by June 7 with Lawrence Miller, 357-0450. They are limited to 38. Those participating are to take a picnic lunch with coffee and lemonade to be provided.

Peggy Meyer displays volunteer honor from Livonia

Laud Schoolcraft Help

She's 'Key' Volunteer

Peggy Meyer of Northville on May 21 had the unusual distinction of being one of three women to receive keys to the City of Livonia.

They were presented in recognition of outstanding volunteer service in that city.

Mrs. Meyer was honored for the hundreds of hours she has donated to the Women's Resource Center at Schoolcraft College. Currently she's serving as editor of the center's newsletter and as its public relations person.

"I felt I was representing all the women who volunteer at the women's resource center," says Mrs. Meyer, who explains that she now does much of her volunteer work for Schoolcraft at home.

She was presented with Livonia's key to the city and a framed certificate by Mayor Edward McNamara at a continental breakfast for volunteers at the Quo Vadis theater. The other top two volunteers were cited for work with PTA and Red Cross.

In choosing the Northville mother of three to honor, Livonia's LOVE (Livonia Office of Volunteer Energies) picked a dedicated volunteer.

Mrs. Meyer had taken Oakland University's Continuum Center course and had training to be a group leader there. While commuting to Rochester, she heard that Schoolcraft was starting a women's program and called Nancy Dufour, then its head, to offer her help.

A first meeting, she recalls, was held in April, 1974, and the center opened in September of that year. At first Mrs. Meyer did peer counseling in the center office. She also agreed to serve on the college women's advisory committee.

Jean Christensen, present head of the women's resource center, Peggy Meyer says, has done much to promote women's programs on campus and she enjoys working with her.

Her current newsletter job is one that can be done "at my messy desk at home," explains Mrs. Meyer of this volunteer effort, adding that she still needs to be near home with three children, Debbi, 16, Kelli, 13, and Matthew, 9, all there.

Mrs. Meyer was Peggy Hammond before her marriage to Lawrence Meyer. The family lives at 47103 Timber-lane in Northville Township.

The Hammond family moved to Northville in 1952. Peggy graduated from Northville High School and attended Albion College for two years before her marriage.

She first took accounting courses at Schoolcraft to be able to help with books of her husband's family's berry farm. Since then she has transferred to the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Her goal, she explains, is eventually getting her master's degree in adult education at U-M.

Mrs. Meyer's other volunteer activities have included work with the Northville Presbyterian Church and in the schools, particularly in the ESY (extended school year) programs.

Volunteering comes naturally, Mrs. Meyer agrees, for her mother and mother-in-law both have been community volunteers.

Eleanor Hammond, now retired and living in Cheboygan, was an organizer and volunteer of the Northwest Child Guidance Clinic and also was instrumental in establishing the Northville State Hospital Auxiliary which in the 1960's operated a gift shop and shopping cart for patients in the hospital wards. She later served as township clerk.

Sherry Meyer, Peggy's mother-in-law, also did a great deal of volunteer work at the hospital in the geriatric ward and helped establish horticultural therapy projects there.

For Peggy Meyer volunteering is a satisfying experience.

"I feel much of what I do now can evolve later into a career when my family is grown."

Artist Michrina displays view of Bunrath Castle bridge in Ireland

Artist's Landscapes on View

Memories of stone bridges, little European villages and pine forests are drawn upon by landscape artist Joseph Michrina of Northville for his paintings.

"I paint because I love it so much," says Michrina, a retired electrician, for whom painting always has been a hobby.

A three month trip to Europe, the Holy Land, through the Mediterranean and including his father's native village in Czechoslovakia have yielded ideas for many of his landscapes.

"Most of my painting is from memory," Michrina explains, stressing that he may look at films to gain ideas but does not copy photographs. He is self-taught and his style is considered unique.

A show of his paintings together with the ribbons he has won at Michigan, Livonia and Northville fairs and in art shows is on view during June at the Plymouth Credit Community Credit Union.

Featured and largest is the painting of the Czechoslovakian village where his father was born.

His work also is on display at the I.B.E.W. Local 58 credit union in Detroit. This is the local to which he belongs as an electrician.

He and his wife, Mary, live at 18451 Jamestown Circle. He has three sons and five grandchildren.

An acrylic landscape painter for the last 50 years, Michrina is self-taught. His paintings all are original.

He was born May 27, 1909, in Pennsylvania into a family of 13 children. One of his sisters, who lives in Georgia, also is an artist. Another sister is a candle maker with a shop in Gary, Indiana.

Michrina is a member of both Three Cities and Livonia art clubs.

Pink Bond Eyed As Lever by City To Fix Ditches

In an effort to put an end to ditching problems and complaints from residents in Willowbrook II, the City of Novi appears on the verge of either moving on a $45,000 bond against developer Dave Pink or striking a compromise solution to the problem.

"I have given to (City Attorney David) Fried my estimate of what it costs to reconstruct the ditches in the sub, and resurface some of the roads damaged from construction equipment," said Harry Mosher of Johnson and Anderson Engineers.

According to Mosher, that cost is almost $45,000, the amount of the bond which Pink had to put up to guarantee compliance with an earlier court ordered plan for reconstruction of the ditches. The reconstruction costs, as outlined by Mosher, would put the subdivision ditches in compliance with the court ordered ruling.

At the same time, Mosher candidly admitted that compliance with the court ordered plans would not solve the drainage problems, which plague approximately 60 homes in the subdivision.

"It certainly would be an improvement," said Mosher. "But I think the answer is to enclose the drains."

Apparently the city is hoping to use the threatened calling of the bond as a lever to get Pink to accept a greater share of the cost of enclosing the culvert. The city is eyeing use of a six inch pipe for that purpose at a cost of $13,000. While the city has agreed to pick up to $5,000 of the cost with Pink paying the remainder, Pink has agreed to this point to pay only $3,500.

"Due to this proposal was negative," Pink told the Novi News. "We felt that the amount that we were requested to pay was unfair but we did agree to pay up to $3,500 in order to get this matter resolved once and for all."

"He told me over the phone that if it came to spending $8,000, he'd rather spend it in court," said Mosher of his conversations with Pink.

Pink also told this newspaper that "We believe that we have complied with the court order as close as could be expected of anyone and we intend to defend our position if the city was to call in the bond under the court order."

Pink contended that when the issue of standing water in the ditches first came up in 1973, "It was our position that the cause of the standing water in the ditches was not due to improper ditching or culvert installation principally, but rather the discharging of the sump pumps directly into these ditches."

"Due to bureaucracy and political pressures our company was blamed for the condition of the ditches."

A following court suit brought an amended plan which Pink said he complied with as far as correction of drive culverts. Mosher agreed on that point.

However, while Mosher contends that Pink did not follow through with the remainder of the amended plan, Pink said that "we further made corrections to

'Memorial Statue'

Kathleen Hoyer, daughter of Councilman Martha Hoyer got the honor of playing the Statue of Liberty on the North Novi Civic Association float Monday during the Memorial Day parade in Novi. Pulling the float is association president LaVerne Reinke. Others on the float range from three-year-old Daniel Kotrych to 70-year-old Nate Adams who was dressed as Abraham Lincoln. The parade was one of the longest in Novi's history and ended up at Oakland Hills Memorial Cemetery where in a brief ceremony the Blue Star Mothers placed a wreath on the memorial grave for the fallen soldiers.

Three Grant Requests Stopped by Novi Council

Request by the Novi Police Department to apply for two grants was turned down by Novi Council last week.

The department was seeking to apply for a crime prevention grant and a court officer grant.

Sergeant Dale Gross explained that "the program is geared toward being a community education program."

But, Gross added, the program was also intended to help businesses as well as homeowners. "With Hudson's and 150 businesses coming in, the crime prevention bureau would work closely with them. We can prevent a lot of other problems that a lot of other communities have had."

Gross said that the crime prevention program would actually save the city money because the defective bureau would not have to investigate the crime after it takes place.

The crime prevention grant specifically would allow three experienced officers to take over the crime prevention duties while three rookie officers would be hired into the department to replace them.

Ninety percent of the funding would have been provided by the federal government, five percent by the state and five percent locally. City share would have been $5,500 a year.

Chief Lee BeGole told the council that with the shopping center coming in, the department would definitely need more men in two years and that the on-the-job training required for rookies would hurt the department. BeGole contended that the city could have three experienced officers after two years and that their training would have been paid for with federal funds.

The court officer grant, according to Detective Lieutenant Richard Faulkner, would allow a freeing up of manpower by having one new officer who would be assigned to make trips to the courthouse and save unnecessary trips by other officers who might be called to testify at a court hearing, only to find when they arrived that it had been postponed.

Faulkner said the court officer would also take over such duties as seeking warrants.

"Last year we spent 4000 hours in court time which included $10,000 in time and a half," said Faulkner. "Hopefully we will see a decrease in overtime which would allow more time for road and investigative programs."

The grant would also have included 90 percent federal funding, five percent state and five percent city. As with the crime prevention

First Attempt Failed

Library Receives Loan Okay—Again

A ruling by City Attorney David Fried overruling the previous declared passage of a $43,000 loan to the library netted an additional meeting for Novi council members last Wednesday.

But the previous decision remained the same as Mayor Pro Tem Martha Hoyer changed her vote to approve the library loan. At the previous Monday night meeting the loaning to the library of up to $43,000 at various times over the next year and a half got four affirmative votes to three negative votes. However, Fried ruled the expenditure needed five affirmative votes, as required under charter.

Mrs. Hoyer explained the change in her vote by saying her yes vote was "not to put the stamp of approval on their bonding but to back bonds issued with the full faith and credit of the city."

Mrs. Hoyer previously had been against the amount of the loan because it included some funds to furnish the library, as well as to pay off contractor obligations and make loan payments. She had favored a cutback to $32,000.

Romaine Roethel upheld her no vote, as did Patricia Karevich.

The loan, as well as an additional and allowed half mill levy by the library, became necessary recently when bonds issued and other income of the library failed to provide enough funds to pay off work done on phase II of the library. The second phase was originally to be constructed 10 years after the first

But Wixom Millage Increases

A budget totaling, $1,051,089 for the 1976-77 fiscal year was formally adopted by the Wixom City Council Tuesday night. That figure reflects a decrease of $26,085 in spending over last year.

A slight increase in millage will be added to the 76-77 tax bills, however. That increase of .21 reflects monies collected for the fire station construction fund.

Since 1973 the cost of running the city has risen .52 mills or 52 cents per $1,000 of state equalized value. Total city mills charged to taxpayers was set at 10.73 or $10.73 per $1,000 SEV.

Although the council generally gave its approval to the complete budget, certain areas generated close scrutiny and discussion by council members.

Included in the proposed budget was a line item of $17,500 for the acquisition of an additional 2½ acres of land adjacent to the Wixom Cemetery. Councilman Gunnar Mettala felt the purchase was in the best interests of the city to perpetuate the cemetery.

Opposing views to the expenditure were made by Councilmen Fred Morehead and Robert Dingeldey.

phase, but a favorable construction market persuaded the library board to construct the second phase as well as the first.

However, apparently the library board unrealistically anticipated enough funds coming to pay for the additional work. The council has since requested that a full report be made from the library board explaining the cause of the problem.

At the special Wednesday session, Mrs. Hoyer complained that the public was being misinformed when it reads that the loan from the city is only $43,000.

She later explained that the board actually owed contractors $177,000 minus $70,000 to be received from a federal grant. That $107,000 added to $15,000 additional because of a shortage in operating funds meant that the library actually was short $122,000. The city was able to lower that amount by $70,000 by raising the library levy a half mill for the July tax bill, lowering the needed loan to approximately $43,000.

She added that because the $43,000 is the peak amount to be loaned at any one time, the amount loaned will be much more because the city could loan up to $43,000 several times during the 18 month loan period. She further explained that the loan is on a revolving basis where the library pays back money to the city as it comes in and the city then loans further money as the need arises. The city council has agreed to limit the operating fund monies which the library has on hand to $2,000.

Passes Decreased Budget

Morehead pointed out that the monies could be put to a better use this year than to double the size of the cemetery.

Morehead said he felt that by enlarging the cemetery it would "lose its character and even cause it to blossom into Wixom's own 'Forest Lawn'." Additional acreage bought by the city for the cemetery a few years ago has yet to be plated.

Dingeldey said cemetery land acquisition had its valid points but the money was needed more urgently in the road improvement fund. "In order to balance the budget, we can't do both. We just have to determine the priority."

By polling the council, Mettala withdrew his motion with council voting to place the money into the road improvement program.

Lakes Agency Council funding was the subject of more extensive debate by the council with Melvin Green suggesting the entire $8,000 allocation be deleted from the budget.

Green said he felt that by the city making a contribution to the Lakes Agency Council which also includes the Alcohol and Drug Education

It's Coors vs. Korr's

Battle Brews Over Beer's Name

By WAYNE LODER

Already beer bottle collectors are seeking out the last bottles of Korrs beer to add to their collections.

The search for the bottles follows a court suit by the Adolph Coors Company which is seeking to stop the sale and distribution of Korrs Beer, which is distributed exclusively by Adell Industries of Novi.

Korrs Beer came on the market less than two months ago and it didn't take long for Coors Beer of Golden, Colorado to begin a lawsuit in United States District Court to stop distribution of the beer, which is pronounced the same as Coors. Coors was successful in getting a preliminary injunction from Judge James P. Churchill in Michigan to stop production of Korrs Beer.

The preliminary injunction allows the Geyer Brothers Brewery of Frankenmuth, which produced the beer, to bottle the remaining beer on hand for sale under the Korrs label. A representative of Geyer Brothers, who declined to be identified, said that the brewery still has 30,000 cases in its tanks of Korrs Beer.

The spokesman said he could offer no comment on why the beer was labelled under the Korrs name, stating that the brewery was merely commissioned

Girls Going Overseas

Barbara Madigan and Kathy Blackmer, both freshmen at Novi High School, will be leaving the U.S. June 20 to spend two months in Europe as exchange students.

Youth for Understanding, a program sponsored by the U.S. Department of State, selected the girls for a family living experience abroad.

Miss Madigan will stay with a family in Sweden, while Miss Blackmer will visit Switzerland.

Both girls will receive scholarship aid from Youth for Understanding.

Neither student speaks the language of the country she will be visiting, but Novi High School Principal Dr. Helen Ditzhazy expects them to pick it up quickly.

Foreign students will be arriving in Novi in August to stay a full calendar year. Dr. Ditzhazy said she is still looking for families to put them up.

Frank Saroki's A Winning Loser

By NANCY DINGELDEY

Winning on a losing ticket was the good fortune of Frank Saroki last week. Three of his losing Michigan landmark lottery tickets were drawn from the state "pot" and Frank is now $10,000 richer because of it.

Unfortunately, he was eliminated from the drawing that could have netted him up to $1,000,000. Initially fifty envelopes were drawn and each won a $10,000 prize.

Frank wasn't too worried about the drawing and the chance of becoming a millionaire. He simply laughed and said he'd worry about that later. He said he would, however, use the $10,000 he knew he had in his business, Frank's Market on Wixom and Loon Lake roads.

Remembering Don Nissen's good luck not long ago with the lottery, I can only suggest that area of town be renamed "lucky pastures." Don won his "pot" on an instant lottery ticket he bought when he owned the Red Oaks Bar.

real goodie but certainly not easy." Top stars in the winners circle were Jeanne and Denny Andrews who had those honors not long ago. Sharing in the win were Helen and Dave Schwanky and friends Frieda and Tom Rutherford.

Because the hunt could have been made for some planners offered a cheat sheet to be used in cases of emergency. The winning car made the tour without use of those assists which says something for the brains involved.

The winners were given the grand prize of $100 cash for their prowess and along with it the dubious pleasure of putting on the next hunt.

Second place and $50 went to the car of Yvonne and Don Courtney and their friends Dixie and Glen Barth. It took three assists but it was good enough to take those high honors.

Eileen and Tom Victory actually beat out brother John for third. That car with Carol and Erwin Schmidt earned $40 for their night's work. Karen and Roy Bowman with Gayle and Jerry Hieber actually made it in to grab fourth place and $25.

Jan Dulek with sons Steve and Greg participated in the Bike-a-thon on Belle Isle earlier this month. Jan said she's done it for several years now and wouldn't miss it.

The way Jan described the whole weekend made it sound really great — tent and all. But this year's soggy weekend was a little less than desirable. Jan said she cranked out 25 miles on the bike fighting wind and rain all the way.

Finally, at the urging of some professional riders, the direction of the track was changed making it just a little easier for the riders. Jan chalked up an additional 25 miles for a patch. "It was tough but even with rotten weather, great sport."

Steve and Greg both earned 200 mile patches spending almost the whole weekend on the track. The miles must be chalked up within a twenty-four hour period in order to earn the patch. But kids under 16 can't ride all night long so their 24 hours is spread out.

City Council Struggles With Tough Zoning Issue

Harry Larkin, a Walnut Street property owner, is caught in a web of a rezoning and he's appealing to council to untangle him.

Sympathizing councilmen worry because they, too, are caught up in the same web.

Larkin's property is up for rezoning from a professional office classification to the residential designation that it originally held.

Last week, in recognizing that either of two actions (approve or disapprove the zoning) could be troublesome, the council adjourned the public hearing on the matter to June 21. In the interim members of council plan to visit the site.

Originally, the property was zoned residential, but last year when the city council overruled the position of the planning commission by rezoning the Hammond property (southwest corner of Center and Walnut) from residential to PO it also rezoned the adjacent Walnut property of Larkin and his neighbor.

And although initially Larkin preferred that his property retain the residential zoning, he argued last week in favor of the PO zoning because his property is now adjacent to a parking lot and an office facility.

Now compounding the problem is that because the Hammond property and the Larkin property are zoned

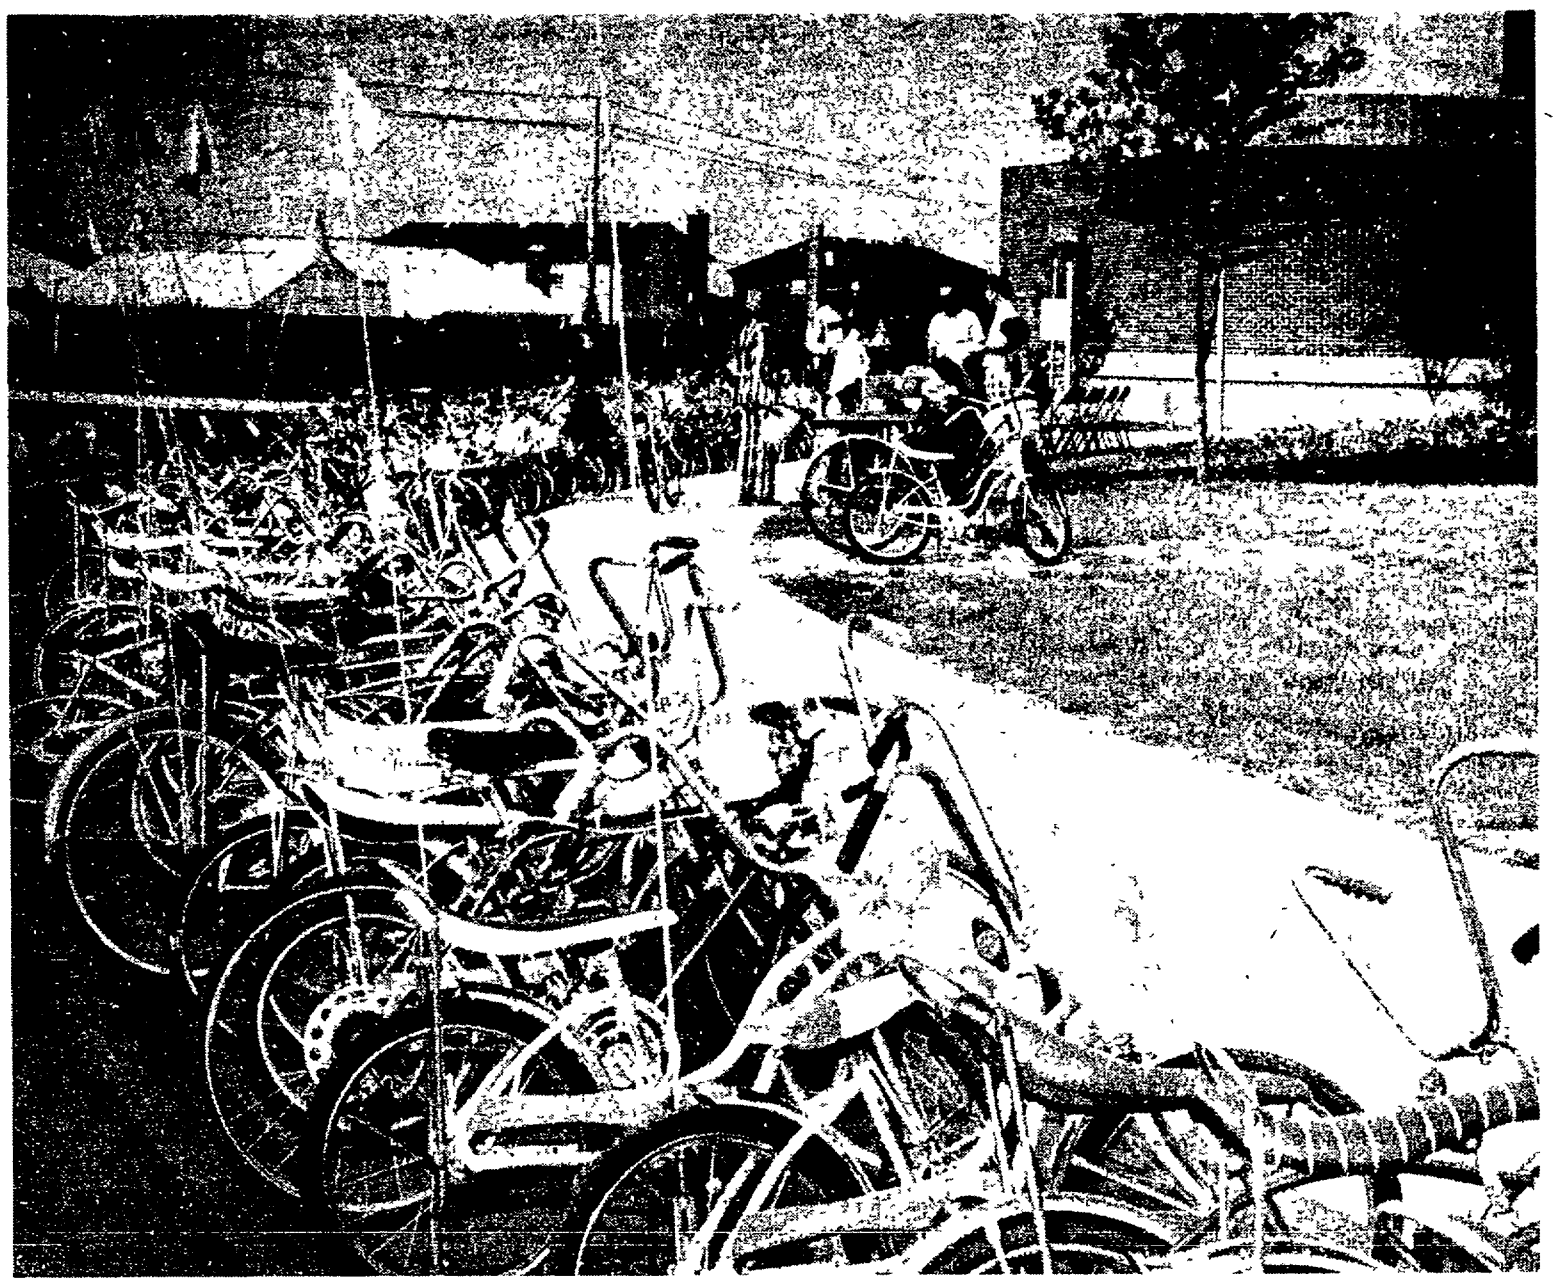

PO, no greenbelt is required on the Hammond property separating it from Larkin's property. And Larkin says if his property is rezoned back to residential, he wants the greenbelt. But, officials point out, the owner of the Hammond property cannot now be required to furnish a greenbelt since his professional office was established when no greenbelt was legally required.

(Under city ordinance a greenbelt, or an area of shrubbery or other pleasant greenery, is required between residential and PO properties but not between two PO properties).

Furthermore, should the city leave Larkin's property PO, it is of insufficient size by itself to meet PO requirements. Under PO, Larkin can continue to use the existing house as a residence under non-conforming status as long as he wishes or as long as the house remains substantially unchanged. If it were destroyed by fire, however, another residential building could not be erected, and presumably an office building could not be erected because the property is insufficiently large to meet PO requirements.

Some officials are not sure just why Larkin's property was rezoned to PO in the first place. Some believe it was intentional, others believe it was unintentional—that because of the odd lot numbers assigned to the properties at and adjacent to the corner it was difficult to tell which properties were involved.

Even the rezoning of the Hammond property was a controversial one. Planners wanted the property to remain residential, but most councilmen favored the PO classification because they saw the corner as being a natural northern boundary for PO zoning along Center Street.

BIKE REGISTRATION—About 450 Winchester Elementary students drove their bicycles to school last week so that they could be registered as a deterrent to theft. The Winchester Student Council sponsored the registration but relied on help from Township Police, Principal Milton Jacobi and parents. A film on bike safety was shown to the students and Girl Scouts provided a demonstration on riding an obstacle course.

Ball State to Exhibit Local Artist's Work

John W. Chaffee, local artist, is exhibiting in the 22nd annual Drawing and Small Sculpture Show at Ball State University. The national juried show will be up in the university Art Gallery through Sunday, June 27.

"Makah Reliquary" and "Snake Doctor" are the titles of Chaffee's pieces, both corten steel sculptures. They are two of 158 drawings and 96 sculptures selected for the show by Norman A. Geske, director of the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. Artists in this year's show are from 45 states and the District of Columbia.

Mall Displays Live Animals

A live animal display for young children will highlight a special exhibit designed to mark the "Year of the Young Child" this Saturday, June 5, on the lower level of Northville Square.

The square announces that a number of agencies and centers for young children are cooperating to present displays and exhibits in an observance of the Bicentennial Year of the Young Child.

In the past, according to the Metropolitan Detroit Association for the Education of Young Children, the Week of the Young Child was been a nationwide spring observance.

Officials Debate Bills to Raise Drinking Age

By PATRICIA BERNARDO

If an 18-year-old can fight, he should be able to vote — buy a car — and drink.

That was the argument of the Vietnam War era. And, it was this line of thinking, many people believe, that led Michigan to lower its legal drinking age from 21 to 18 in 1972.

It is still easy to find people who espouse this view. One is Wilson Grier, an ex-marine and manager of the Park House German restaurant in Northville.

"If we expect them (18-year-olds) to fight and die for their country," says Grier, "they should have all the rights and privileges of any other citizen."

But a growing number of people, including many police and school administrators, think the drinking age should go back up.

South Lyon Chief of Police Joel Allen says, "I think it would be a fine idea (for the drinking age to be raised). There are too many immature people out there, who are not able to handle drinking."

Northville Township Police Chief Ronald Nisun of Northville Township says he used the war argument himself when he was under age. "Well, we're not fighting a war now," he says. "We've learned our lesson. Let's raise it back up."

Two bills, H.B. 5640 and H.B. 5641 would do just that. They were introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives this season by Melvin DeStigter (R-Allendale).

The bills have the support of the Michigan Association of School Boards, the Michigan Department of Education and the Congress of Parent Teachers Associations.

In the local areas, the South Lyon School Board unanimously passed a resolution supporting these bills. The Northville School Board has a similar resolution under study.

Brighton Schools Superintendent Ray Keech said the proposed laws to raise the drinking age have not been discussed in his district. He says Brighton schools keep any potential problem under control by stringent enforcement of a student code.

Keech says, however, that he personally would favor a change in the legal age. "As far as I'm concerned, they could raise the age beyond 21 and it wouldn't hurt anything."

According to DeStigter's office, the move to change the present drinking age came in response to an increase in auto accidents involving young drivers under the influence of alcohol. Statistics released by DeStigter cite a 116 per cent increase in accidents involving drinking drivers under 18 and a 186.5 per cent increase for drinking drivers between the ages of 18 and 20, state-wide since 1971.

These figures alone are enough to arouse the concern of parents, educators and law enforcement officers. But teenage drinking is blamed for other evils as well.

Vandalism is thought to be caused, in part, by young drinkers. "Driving is just a small part of our problem," says Novi Chief of Police Lee BeGole. "You don't know how many times a 16-year-old throws a rock through a window because he's had too much to drink."

Beer Hill, the infamous Hines Park gathering spot in Northville is another phenomenon that makes adults decry teenage drinking. The scene of a number of confrontations between police and young people, Beer Hill is a popular spot for Northville teens and draws young people from as far away as South Lyon.

Nisun says a law raising the drinking age would give his department an additional tool to work with in stopping disturbances in the park. Most of the problems there, Nisun reports, are caused by 18- and 19-year-olds.

Even supporters of a teenager's right to drink, such as Grier, say that the 18-year-old may not know how to handle liquor. Grier's restaurant used to be a bar called The Tavern, and it was frequented by some Northville High School students. He said he made the change from bar to restaurant three months ago because of the problems young drinkers caused him.

Grier said 18-year-olds were "too destructive and too hot-tempered." Young drinkers, according to Grier, have not developed the wisdom to avoid fights, and don't have the judgment with alcohol to know when to cut themselves off.

Grier was also critical of Northville High students who came to his bar for a beer with their lunch and returned to class "sleepy and woozy." Grier believes students in high schools should be prohibited from drinking during school hours.

Perhaps the most widely voiced concern with the present legal age is that it makes alcohol more readily available to those younger than 18. This is what some call "the ripple effect." Violators under the old laws were the 18-20 group. Now according to Nisun, there are 16-, 15-, and even 14-year-olds caught drinking. "If they leave it (the law) this way, they might just as well remove the age limit all together," Nisun said.

Several students at Northville High School confirmed that it is easy for those under 18 to drink. Most drinking is done at parties, and if only one person over 18 is in attendance, he can buy beer or liquor for the whole group.

Phony I.D. is also apparently easy to come by. Some young people will lend out their driver's licenses to younger friends who bear some resemblance to them.

Magazines such as Rolling Stone, give instructions on where to send for fake I.D. cards, which one high school senior says are sometimes accepted by bar and liquor store owners.

Grier said it is often difficult to tell whether the person presenting identification is really 18, or whether he might be younger.

There is under the law a $500 fine for young people who attempt to obtain alcohol under false pretenses. But, says Grier, "Under today's courts that is strictly B.S."

Nisun says that juveniles (those under 17) who are arrested for an alcohol-related offense are usually released into the custody of their parents.

Even if there were no arguments against raising the drinking age — which, of course there are — there is a strong possibility that H.B. 5640 and H.B. 5641 are unconstitutional. The Michigan Constitution draws the line between childhood and adulthood at 18. To exclude any group of adults from privileges open to others could be discriminatory. Representative Geake said the issue will require a court decision or a ruling by the Attorney General.

Meanwhile, the question of the actual prevalence of teenage alcohol abuse remains.

The Northville High School paper, the Mustang, ran an article recently quoting a study by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

According to that study one-third of all high school students get drunk once a month. Over one million have serious drinking problems.

Those national figures do not reflect the experience of Mustang editor, Andrea June. "I hear about it (teenage drinking) more than I see it. I don't know if I've ever seen anyone drunk," she said.

Northville High Principal Ray Tarpinian says he remembers only two or three cases this year where a student has come to school intoxicated. He does not relate this to the legal age limit, however. "When the age was 21, we still had students who could get it," he said.

Kathleen Brown, Northville High School valedictorian this year, said she believes a law raising the drinking age might actually increase illegal drinking.

"The fun is in trying to get away with it. It makes it more of a challenge," she said. She believes that the novelty of drinking wears off for most 18-year-olds after a short time, and that very few young people abuse alcohol.

"Kids have pulled away from hard drugs. Drinking is their only kick. It's not hurting them as much as hard drugs would," she adds.

Like many other 18-year-olds, Brown opposes the movement to raise the drinking age. "Those of us that do want a social drink now and then will be punished for the few who can't control themselves."

A 20-year-old driver and his 19-year-old passenger were killed May 9 when this pickup truck ran off M-59 and hit a tree. A blood test performed by the Michigan Department of Public Health found an alcohol content of .10 in the driver's blood, and State Police at Brighton presume he was under the influence of alcohol.

For Fireworks

Jaycees Need More Cash

Citizens of the community of Northville are being urged by the Jaycees to help them make the Bicentennial July Fourth celebration a "bang-up" success.

The Jaycees need money to finance the fireworks display. Scheduled to be the biggest ever, it will cost some $2,000.

General Chairman John Dugan said the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce is the first to pledge support.

"The Chamber has generously offered $500. We hope that local residents will pitch in to make up the difference. It's really a community program and our other activities are costing us so much this year we need help on the fireworks," Dugan stated.

The Bicentennial July Fourth parade will be the biggest ever, featuring 60 units. The Jaycees are currently soliciting donations from area industry and business to help finance the parade and other activities included in the Fourth program.

They hope to collect the balance of the money needed for fireworks — $1,500 — from widespread citizen contributions.

"We'll take anything from one dollar up," said Dugan.

Fireworks' contributions should be made as soon as possible — preferably by June 18.

Make checks out to: Northville Jaycees; send all contributions to The Northville Jaycees, Box 241, Northville, Michigan 48167.

Full Day Planned on 4th

A daylong program of activities beginning with ecumenical church services at 8:00 a.m. and concluding with fireworks at 10:00 p.m. is planned for Sunday, July Fourth in Northville.

The special Bicentennial celebration is being arranged by the city-township Bicentennial Commission under the chairmanship of John Burkman.

The center of the activities will be Mill Race Village, the restoration project of the Northville Historical Commission on Griswold Avenue opposite the Ford Valve Plant.

A highlight will be a bigger-than-ever Fourth of July parade again sponsored by the Northville Jaycees and this year featuring 60 units. But unique to this year's Independence Day celebration, of course, will be the observance of the nation's 200th birthday.

Appropriately, the occasion falls on Sunday and will be observed with joint church services sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Northville, the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, Novi United Methodist Church, Our Lady of Victory Church of Northville and Salvation Union Church of Northville.

The Reverend Lloyd Brasure of the First Presbyterian Church is in charge of arrangements for the ecumenical services, which will be conducted outdoors at Mill Race Village. Reverend Brasure said the Bicentennial services will include choral group music under the direction of Bill Williams. Services will last 45 minutes, Reverend Brasure stated.

The parade begins at 10 a.m. followed by a host of other activities at the Mill Race Village grounds.

John Dugan is general chairman for the Jaycees activities.

Arrangements for program activities at the Mill Race have come under the direction of Nancy Bohn of the Northville Historical Society. She reports that the Flea Market and Craft Show will be open from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m.

A special observance will take place at 2 p.m. when bells will ring, the flag will be raised and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner will be followed by musket firing. Throughout the day the Historical Society will stage a white elephant sale, sell lemonade and operate a kissing booth.

All the Mill Race Village buildings will be open to the public for inspection.

In the old library building the Northville Bicentennial Players will be staging 20-minute plays on historical data concerning Northville.

The Jaycees will conduct their chicken barbecue, dunk tank and watermelon eating contest. The Mother's Club will serve refreshments and the Northville High School Band will provide music.

Meanwhile a display by the Northwest Territorial Militia will feature marches and drills and musket firing.

It will all be capped by a giant display of fireworks at 10 p.m. from the high school athletic field.

program (ADE) it was "forcing residents to contribute to a charity they might not otherwise support."

Through a complete reorganization of the program, agency spokesmen said they hoped to establish an aggressive program in meeting the needs of the various communities.

When asked his opinion by the council, Police Chief Philip Leonard said he had an extensive background in youth work in Detroit. He said he saw the worth of the program and would like a year to work with the agency.

Based on Leonard's recommendation, Green agreed to back off and view the program for a year. He withdrew his motion to cancel funding, with council adding they would like to be informed of progress of the entire program.

Viewing the budget as a whole, general property tax revenues are down $67,912 over last year. According to city officials, this is due to the single business tax becoming an inventory tax reimbursement from the state.

State revenues will balance it out somewhat since an estimated $191,950 will come to the city in the form of inventory tax reimbursements, state shared revenue, liquor licenses, gas tax and road refunds.

Other income to the city is down $131,785 reflecting a reduction in federal revenue sharing monies and CETA grants.

City expenditures are expected to remain on a similar level to spending in the 1975-76 fiscal year. No salary increases were granted to city employees although additional monies in the budget as salaries are actually cost-of-living increases.

Major changes occur in financial administration with $8,000 added to the budget for the purchase of a business machine. Cost of utilities and a larger contribution to the contingency fund caused a substantial jump in general operating expenses raising the figures from $156,685 in the current budget to $200,350.

Crime prevention and maintenance of communications equipment and the cost of the police dispatch service caused an increase of $26,879 in the police department budget over last year.

The council unanimously voted to adopt the budget which Mayor Val Vangieson had termed conservative and austere.

Dog Licenses Near

A citizens complaint about the running of dogs in the city, particularly in the Randolph Drive area, was heard by Northville City Councilmen last week.

The complaint was lodged by Eugene Sam Kunst, 568 Langfield, who noted that dogs running loose in the area are damaging property and endangering the safety of children.

Council members conceded that a problem does exist, but expressed confidence that part of the problem will be solved with the upcoming dog licensing drive in the city.

The city's community service officer will be visiting each house in the city to survey the number of dogs. Owners of dogs which have not been licensed will be fined.

Meanwhile, council has amended its ordinance related to dogs to enable the dog licensing campaign to be carried out.

Fred Fernandez shows off 'Ford' tie

Ford Tie Brings White House Call

"Hold the line please, the President is calling."

Fred Fernandez thought it was a practical joke when the call came in Wednesday morning.

Manager of Washington Clothiers, located in the Farmington Towne Shopping Center at Grand River and Halstead, Fernandez waited a minute or two and the White House operator came back on the line to explain that the President was unexpectedly tied up.

Then, suddenly, Betty Ford came on the line, apologized for the President's delay, and explained that the Mr. Ford wanted to thank Washington Clothiers for a special tie that the firm had had made and which had been presented to the President as a gift.

Actually, Washington Clothier's president, Al Kaback, had designed and made the tie for a top executive with the Ford Motor Company, who in turn had presented it to the President during his recent visit to Michigan.

The navy blue tie has the white words, "Ford 1976", printed across it along with a Colonial American flag and a modern 50-star American flag.

"The President wonders," explained Mrs. Ford, "if you could have three more made up." The extra ties, she said, would be worn by Mr. Ford's brother, Thomas G. Ford, and two aides during upcoming campaign talks. "Yes," replied the stunned store manager, whereupon Thomas Ford's wife, Janet, came on the line and expressed her elation over the President's recent Primary victory in Michigan and praised Washington Clothiers for the fine tie.

Fernandez spoke with the women for several minutes, completely "floored" by it all. "Nothing like it has ever happened to me like that," he said.

And the following day, a special package containing three special "Ford" ties was sent out by registered mail from the Washington president to the President in Washington.

DeWaard Support Given by Board

Novi School Board has gone on record supporting the reelection next Monday of LaVerne DeWaard to the Oakland County Intermediate School District Board.

DeWaard, a member of the Novi school board, was elected to the intermediate school board last year. Two positions, including DeWaard's are up for grabs.

Also running besides DeWaard are Walled Lake School Board member Betty Campion, Birmingham board member Dorothy Eicker and Farmington Board member Gary Lichtman.

The Novi Board also directed that a vote be cast for incumbents Lichtman for the second seat up for grabs. Both seats are for six-year terms. The board has five members.

Each of the 28 school boards in Oakland County will be voting for candidates to fill the two seats. School Board member Joel Colliau will be representing Novi at the election meeting.

the ditch bottoms and ditch banks. At that point in time it became obvious to the city engineers, no matter what corrections were made to the ditches the problem of the standing water would not be solved.

Since that point, numerous meetings between the homeowners, city officials and Pink have not resulted in correction of the problem.

The city last year appeared in favor of a four inch perforated pipe at an approximate cost of $6,000 of which Pink said his company agreed to pay half. But that idea was later thrown out and, according to Mosher, while the ultimate solution to the problem is a 12 inch pipe, "The six inch would help solve the problem."

Pink's response to paying a higher amount was negative. But pressure from subdivision officials kept the city in a position where it had to take some action or, according to Willowbrook subdivision president John Beach, face what could ultimately have been a lawsuit against the city to force the city to either pay to have the work done or move on the Pink bond. Attorney fees for the city to call the Pink bond could run several thousand dollars.

"The problem existed because the plans, as drawn, will not work," summed up Beach.

But Beach indicated that with the city now moving to solve the problem, the subdivision—and the 60 affected homes—will be watching and waiting.

program, the grant would last two years with a third year 50-50 funding. But if the third year funding was accepted, the fourth year 100 percent funding by the local government is required.

Council member Romaine Roethel said that "I cannot justify going after any more grants when I realize you need a new building. I'm going to go after setting aside money for a building at 10 Mile and Taft Road."

Mayor Pro Tem Martha Hoyer added that she would rather see additional manpower placed in the road patrol.

Council voted 5-2 in favor of rejecting both programs. Voting in favor of the motion were James Shaw, Mrs. Hoyer, Patricia Karevich, Mrs. Roethel and Mayor Gilbert Henderson. Voting against the motion were Robert Schmid and Philip Goodman.

670 Start, 570 Finish Walk for Mankind Here

SHORTLY after beginning May 22, the Walk for Mankind from Northville Downs, 670 walkers streamed along Center Street in close formation. As the day wore on, the march thinned out, with 570 finishing.

Pledges (6,500 of them) have not yet been totaled, but the Jaycees expect about $13,000. Sponsors of the walkers will be invoiced for their pledges in two to three weeks.

THE WALK for Mankind ran up a lot of mileage on local feet. Connie Coutts, Michelle Coutts and Sue Siebennaller stopped along the 22-mile route to cool off their hot, tired tootsies. The walk also worked up some big appetites. The 670 walkers consumed 1,400 hot dogs and 75 gallons of pop at a lunch provided by the Jaycees.

Commander Lawrence McArthur of VFW Post 4012 and Fourth District VFW Commander Gene Leader. Conducting the firing squad was "Cabbie" Myers, a veteran of 31, consecutive Northville Memorial Day parades. Marchers included a combined military unit of veterans of American Legion Lloyd H. Green Post 147 and VFW Post 4012 as well as the Northville Marching Band in uniform under the direction of Robert Williams.

After a break at the cemetery entrance for free ice cream treats, a tradition started by the late Conrad Langfield and continued by Paul Newman's Northville Laboratories and The Northville Record, the parade reassembled, continuing to the American Legion home on Dunlap Street.

On the parade route and throughout the community many American flags were displayed.

Mrs. Paul Vernon, whose husband is a Northville councilman and participated in the ceremonies, mentioned that they were flying both the Stars and Stripes and the Bicentennial flag.

An oversized 48-star flag was suspended between a home and a large tree on Dunlap Street.

Individual flags decorated each military grave in the Rural Hill veterans' section.

MIKE FAUER, one of the first to finish the Walk for Mankind, is congratulated by Jaycee Dave Llewellyn. Mike and Gregg Swayze reached the end of the 22-mile course at 1 p.m., just four hours after the start. The last walker to finish straggled in at 7:30.

Summer School Set in Northville

Summer school registration is now underway in Northville, Assistant Superintendent Florence Panattoni has announced.

The program calls for first through sixth grade classes at Amerman Elementary School and sixth through ninth grade levels at Meads Mill Middle School beginning June 21 and ending July 23.

Both programs, according to Miss Panattoni, will be completely individualized with emphasis on each student's needs.

At the elementary level, additional help in reading, math and language arts will be the focus of attention.

A reading lab program highlights the offering at Meads Mill.

"Because the program must be self-supporting, the actual scheduling of the program will be dependent on the number of responses," said the assistant superintendent.

Starting time will be 9 a.m. and closing time, 11 a.m. Transportation must be provided by parents.

Tuition fee per pupil for two hours of instruction for a five-week session is $30.

Parents wishing to enroll their children in summer school are asked to call 349-3400, extension 310.

Seminar Tonight

The Investment Seminars presented by Reynolds Securities, Inc., are scheduled to begin June 2 and continue for the next two Wednesdays in June. Each program will start at 8:15 p.m.

The programs will be held in the Community Room of Northville Square instead of the Northville Library as previously announced.

Police Blotter

Four Caught in the Act

In Novi

Four Detroit men were arrested Monday night when Novi police reportedly caught them in the act of stealing four tires from a car which had broken down on the I-96 expressway.

According to Police Chief Lee BeGole, the officers were making a routine check of the rest area on eastbound I-96 when they spotted a man placing a tire in the trunk of a car. Investigating further, police found a man crouched in the middle of the median with three other tires from the car which had broken down on westbound I-96.

Arrested for larceny and held in Oakland County Jail were Larry Williams, 17, of Detroit, Kirkland Parker, 17, of Detroit, Nathaniel Hudson, 20, of Detroit and Shariel Parker, 18, of Detroit.

The tires were valued at $400.

A charm bracelet and a sapphire and diamond ring valued at $400 were taken from a jewelry box in a bedroom from a home in the 24400 area of Glenda.

The theft occurred May 13-23.

One hundred twenty 2 x 4s valued at $250 were taken from a lot on Parkridge May 24-25.

Ninety nine dollars in auto parts stolen from a car that had run out of gas were recovered May 25 when the owners did some careful investigative work of their own.

According to police reports, the car ran out of gas in the 41300 area of 13 Mile in the morning. When the owners returned that night, they found several parts missing from the auto including a battery.

The owners then walked to a nearby residence where they asked 18-year-old Thomas Hogue of 41325 Thirteen Mile if he had observed anyone around the car. When Hogue said he had not, the owners told him it was surprising the thief had not also taken an electronic fuel pump.

Owners of the vehicle then left to purchase replacement parts and when they returned, found the fuel pump gone. When they approached Hogue, who was working on a car which was the same model as theirs, he slammed the hood shut. An old battery was observed on the ground.

Police were called and upon locating the car recovered the stolen items. A violation for simple larceny was issued to Hogue.

A pump, two hoses and a gas can valued at $340 were stolen May 20-21 from the Twelve Oaks Mall construction site.

In Wixom

Two Wixom juvenile boys were questioned by the Wixom Police in connection with the breaking and entering of a residence Thursday.

The owner of the residence told police two neighborhood boys contacted him saying they had found some of the missing articles belonging to him in their brothers' bedroom.

Police questioned the younger boy who told them a friend had broken into the house and then gave him some of the stolen articles hoping he could sell them to his older brothers.

The second juvenile was questioned by officers who admitted the theft. Investigation of the case is being continued by local authorities.

The burglary of the T & G. Party Store on North Wixom Road was cleared up Saturday when a threesome arrested in Novi in a similar burglary attempt admitted to their prior escapade in Wixom.

One adult and two juveniles were arrested in Novi on a breaking and entering charge. Articles taken in the Wixom incident were found in their car when one suspect voluntarily told police of their involvement.

Store owner Frank Saroki identified $235 worth of merchandise as that belonging to the store. Damage to the store in the burglary was estimated at $200.

Two men were arrested by Wixom Police Tuesday as they were attempting to remove building materials from a building site in the Highgate-on-the-Lake subdivision.

During a routine patrol of the area, a Wixom officer spotted a front-up truck parked in front of a house under construction. In the rear of the truck were 14 2 x 4's and two sheets of plywood.

Both men claimed they thought the materials were left-over items and were going to get thrown out. Arrested were John Crofford and Vincent Hrit of the Stratford Villa Trailer Park. They were released on a personal bond pending examination.

A routine patrol of the Grand River-Wixom Road area Wednesday netted Wixom Police with yet another suspect later arrested on a breaking and entering charge.

The police officer spotted a man sitting in the cab of a truck trailer behind the sales office of Old Dutch Farms Mobile Home.

On investigating the suspicious circumstances, the officer found a quantity of small items including several cans of beer piled in the truck cab.

Further investigation showed the sales office had been broken into. Desk drawers and file cabinets had been rifled with several sets of keys and other small items reported missing by the owner.

Wayne Reohr, 18, of Redford Township was taken to the Wixom station where he refused to answer any questions or give any further information.

Reohr was conveyed to the Oakland County Jail and lodged. He was arraigned in 52nd District Court Thursday and held in lieu of a $2000 cash bond.

Two employees at the Auto Specialties Company on Beck Road were injured early Friday morning when they were pinned between two cars.

A third employee was backing up one of the cars, said he saw the car immediately behind him. Instead of braking the car, he stepped on the accelerator, pinning the two men between the cars.

Thomas Holland of Walled Lake and Stanley Demo of Holly were transported by ambulance to a nearby hospital. It was later reported that Holland received a bruised leg and Demo a broken wrist in the accident.

In Township

Golf equipment and several other items valued at $471 were taken from a car parked in the lounge area at the Dun Rovin Golf Course on Haggerty Road.

In the incident which occurred at approximately 7 p.m. May 21, the owner told Northville Township police that a golf bag containing four woods, nine irons and a putter were taken from his unlocked car.

The man also lost a wrist watch, golf umbrella, a sweater, along with a number of golf balls and gloves in the incident.

Ted Schurman, 18, of 20058 Brynmawr in Highland Lakes has been sentenced to one year in DeHoCo for his involvement in the theft of over $1,500 in items from the home of a neighbor February 17.

According to Northville Township Police Chief Ron Nisun, almost all of the goods have been recovered. The sentencing was made by circuit court Judge Robert Colombo.

In Northville

A Winnebago motor home parked in the lot behind the Miller Dodge dealership on Hutton Street was broken into during the late evening hours Tuesday.

According to owner George Miller, a citizens band radio was taken from the dashboard of the vehicle along with a portable TV from the passenger compartment. Miller said the two items were valued at $477.

A breaking and entering at the Anger Manufacturing Company on Baseline Road Tuesday netted thieves $100 in valuables.

The company reported to Northville City Police that a stereo radio and an air chisel were taken from the shop area.

A tool box containing a variety of tools valued at $200 was taken from the basement of a home on East Cady Street. It was felt the tools were taken between noon May 23 and 9 p.m. May 26.

The owner told police some of the tools were marked with initials and others with green paint.

A Nikon camera lens valued at $300 and a model airplane engine with a value of $130 were discovered missing from the garage at a home on Baseline Road.

According to Steven Nichols, he used the garage on Baseline Road to repair auto engines but also stored other equipment at the address.

Nichols, after discovering the missing camera lens, said he asked a friend who was interested in photography if he had seen any lenses similar to his.

The friend told Nichols that a juvenile had sold him a lens which was identified by Nichols as the stolen property.

The juvenile was known by Nichols as a youngster he had sold a model airplane to and which would use the type engine that was stolen.

Northville City Police are continuing their investigation.

Junk Clean Up

Kathy Holtzman (from left), Mary Fisher and Sally Auten join Novi High School teacher Rick Trudeau in picking up junk along 10 Mile Road during the school's annual clean up day last Wednesday, sponsored by the five conservation classes. Tom Dale and Sabina O'Leary teach other conservation classes which are participating in the clean up. Trudeau estimates that from the six miles of main roads which are being picked up, approximately 1000 pounds of junk will be hauled away through an agreement with the Novi DPW.

City By-Pass Study Nears Completion

A north-south by-pass road study ordered by the Northville City Council is nearing completion, the city council has learned.

Mosher Associates, Inc., consulting engineers hired by the city to perform the work, have completed the following:

1. Preparation of copies of origination and destination area maps which visually display the effects which the freeways under construction and planned may be expected to have upon generation of traffic through the city.

2. Preparation of traffic counts for an up-to-date evaluation of present through traffic and copies of traffic count data with analysis and conclusions drawn from those counts.

3. Reviewed traffic study results and roadway requirement conclusions with the Michigan State Highway traffic engineering division.

4. Extensive field reconnaissance of areas of the city where Mosher Associates can see any practical potential for a by-pass route. Mosher has selected for production of mylar transparencies, at a scale of 100 feet to the inch, eight photographs covering the total area of possibility.

Purpose of the comprehensive study is to develop a proposal for an alternate major north-south route through the city. Council wants to divert through traffic from Center Street to an area utilizing Griswold Street.

One of the proposals that has been favored by council members in the past would extend Novi Road south along the C&O railroad tracks, across Base Line and perhaps the eastern edge of the millpond to tie in with Griswold Street.

Council members see the use of Northville Road as the major route south beyond Griswold rather than Sheldon Road and Center as has been proposed by the intercounty highway commission and SEMCOG.

Coors vs. Korrs

In Beer Dispute

to brew the beer. Geyer Brothers is named in the suit.

A hearing to settle the case is expected but no date has yet been set.

According to Ernie Brooks, patent attorney representing Coors, the company is not seeking a cash settlement. "Our interest was wholly termination in use of the name."

Brooks said that Coors is upset because of the similarity of names. "The public would naturally assume it's our product. The issue is confusion of the public."

Brooks said that he cannot predict at this time how the suit will end.

"We do think the situation is such that we will prevail," he added.

While Coors beer is not distributed in the east, the secretary to the president of Coors Beer said that the company probably found out about Korrs through "the hundreds of letters we get every day. Anytime anything happens we get letters from our friends."

She added that "I don't see how it (Korrs) could hurt us since they're so far away."

Meanwhile, Adell Industries is keeping mum on the lawsuit, maintaining a wait and see attitude while awaiting the results of the lawsuit.

Frank Adell, vice president of the company, refused to comment explaining that he did not want half truths printed. He said the company would be issuing a press release when the final court decision is made.

Adell did say that the company is appealing the preliminary injunction.

Ray Scott, attorney for Adell, also refused to comment on the dispute.

In the meantime, beer connoisseurs continue to look for the elusive and possibly final bottles of Korrs beer.

Grant Easement

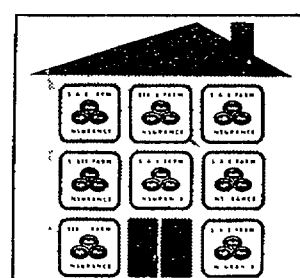

An easement along the city-owned property known as Buchner Hill, where the city plans to build the senior citizens housing development, has been approved by the Northville City Council.

The easement means the city conveys to the Randolph Drain District a strip of land along the stream that runs east and west across the bottom edge of the hill. The land is to be designated part of the drain flood area.

Speaking for Myself

U.S. Return Panama Canal?

CARL DAVIES

YES ...

In 1903 the United States acquired a perpetual lease over the five-hundred square mile area taking in the Panama Canal. This lease makes Panama a sovereign part of the U.S., with all that this implies.

In 1903 Panama was controlled by Colombia. When rebels in Panama wished to declare their independence from Colombia, the U.S. sent a warship to Panama to prevent Colombian intervention in the revolution and immediately recognized the new Panamanian government, contingent upon the U.S. lease of the Canal.

U.S. citizens have occupied and governed the Canal Zone since it was undertaken. In our bicentennial year such colonialism is unacceptable.

Third World nations, this includes Panama, recognize their failure to achieve economic prosperity is due in large part to colonialism.

The primary argument against withdrawal by the U.S. from the Canal Zone is its vulnerability to occupation by another country. The second is the possibility that the U.S. would be denied access to the Canal. Both are negotiable items.

The U.S. need not forfeit anything in terms of security. Several U.S. bases are now maintained in the Canal Zone and may be retained under a new treaty. The U.S. will be negotiating from a position of strength.

The Panamanians' main concern is self-determination. Under the new treaty being considered, the Panamanians will be self-governing in three years and will control the Canal in twenty-five years.

Ironically, failure to agree to this treaty could result in U.S. troops quelling a revolution much like the one the U.S. supported seventy-three years ago.

Marjorie Merithew

Social Studies Department

NO ...

While I do not believe that the issue of the Panama Canal is worth going to war for, I do feel that our country should do everything in our power diplomatically to maintain our control over this important shipping lane.

Granted, the military and economic significance of the canal has gradually diminished, since the huge aircraft carriers, destroyers, and oil tankers cannot use the canal; however, the key argument for retaining sovereignty lies in the feelings of average Americans toward the canal.

As Pennsylvania Congressman Daniel Flood puts: "Everyone thinks the Panama Canal is as American as apple pie. This has been ingrained in them, they believe this all through their lives, and they just don't give away something that's as close to them...which they feel is an American thing... The average American feels this so very deeply that it's over my dead body, that kind of thing... This is the feeling. You can't reason with it. It's ingrained deep, deep dyed in their hearts."

Moreover, Ronald Reagan's victory in the Texas primary was attributed chiefly to his stand on the Panama Canal.

While I am not a Reagan supporter, I believe that holding onto the Panama Canal, at least for the near future, is necessary to placate a large segment of our population which feels that our national honor is at stake if we should relinquish our control.

Grandpa Walton
(See Jack Hoffman's Column)

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

The Waltons is a favorite TV series in our house, and Will Geer is the family favorite in the nationally acclaimed show.

What's more Geer is a former Ann Arbor roommate of The Record's photographer, Jim Galbraith.

For those of you who may be unfamiliar with Geer, he plays "Grandpa" — the funny, irascible, and thoroughly delightful character in a Depression-era family that lives up on Walton's Mountain in the Virginia Blue Ridge chain.

In real life, Geer is equally loveable, Jim informs me in recalling a number of humorous incidents that occurred when Jim, Geer, an English professor, and a doctor lived together in a house on Ann Arbor's Forest Avenue.

Despite his national popularity today, Geer has not always enjoyed this acclaim. Indeed, there was a time back in the 1950's when Geer was as despised as he is loved today.

Because his grandmother had been a Communist back during the 1930's when communism was akin to socialism in the United States, Geer became a target of the late Senator McCarthy's witchhunt. In 1953 Geer was censured by the McCarthy Committee, with the result that the actor was blackballed in both Hollywood and Broadway. For 10 years his distinguished acting career lay in ruin.

It wasn't until Marcella Cissney gave him a leading role in the off Broadway production "Of Mice and Men" that he finally began his comeback. Then in the early 1960's when Marcella Cissney and her husband, Robert Schnitzer, brought their professional theater company to the University of Michigan Geer came to Ann Arbor as a resident actor of the troop.

Galbraith also was an actor and a photographer for the repertory. Jim became a good friend of Geer through the famous Ann Arbor artist, Milton Kimmitt, who wanted to do a portrait of Geer. He asked Jim to take some photographs of Geer so that he could use them in painting the portrait.

Eventually, since housing was not inexpensive, Geer and Jim and the two other men shared the Forest Avenue house and its rent.

"It was a great way to live," says Jim, "except for a couple of problems. The English professor collected cats and girlfriends in equally large numbers, and Will hogged the bathroom. He'd lock himself in the bathroom, fill the tub to the top with scalding water and then lay in there for two or three hours at a stretch reading seed catalogues. He's an organic gardener."

"What with all those cats... a dozen or more of them... and all those girlfriends of the professor, and

When Bill Crump was a member of the Northville school board, perhaps 10 years ago, there were times when our views differed on the respective roles of the press and school board members.

Consequently, it would not be inaccurate to describe our relationship as strained.

But I can't remember a more enjoyable and informative hour-long conversation than I had last week Tuesday morning with a relaxed and younger-than-ever-looking Bill Crump.

He's the most enthusiastic ex-retiree I ever met.

Still in his mid-fifties, Crump sold a thriving business two years ago that he had developed, Flow Engineering. Actually, the Crumps left Northville five years ago selling their large, family home on Timberlane and moving to smaller quarters near his business in Birmingham.

Two years ago they moved to Cullowhee, North Carolina in the western part of the state, about 50 miles south of Gatlinburg, Tennessee. They stayed in touch with Michigan by spending summers in Petoskey.

But after a full year of retirement, Crump has found a new career that challenges his expertise in business and engineering and provides the satisfaction of accomplishment without the responsibility of ownership.

Quite by accident Crump became involved in a program of economic development in the Western Carolina University School of Business.

Crump and five young men working on their master's degrees in business serve as consultants to various businesses throughout western Carolina.

The purpose of the program is to save existing jobs and help establish new ones by introducing improvements in the operating processes of the business.

It's a fulltime assignment for the students as well as Crump. The program is funded both federally and by the state. And since Crump has been directing the operation, there's a $10 per hour consulting fee charged to businesses subscribing to the service.

By listening to Crump it's easy to imagine the satisfaction he has gained from seeing his experience and the students' theoretical advice combine to produce real financial gains for a business operator.

The service is highly confidential. No one but the owner of the business may know that the economic development team is observing day-to-day operations.

The results in western North Carolina have been outstanding. And Crump has found businessmen to be highly appreciative of his advice... to such a degree that he has been asked to serve on the board of directors of several firms. If the University approves, Crump accepts the offers. Right now, for example, he's a director on the board of a small railroad line.

It really seems to provide Crump with the best of two worlds. He's a businessman again without having to take his problems home. And he's working with young people, teaching them the difference between the theoretical and practical.

Crump says the business assistance program is gaining popularity, particularly in the mid-south, because it has been most effective.

It sounds like a great idea for any section of the country.

It challenges and rejuvenates the business-wise veteran instead of turning him out to pasture. And it gives the neophyte an invaluable education.

It also provides the ulcer-ridden owner who may be busy filling orders while losing money because he either does not know how or cannot take the time to analyze and streamline his operation.

And finally, it accomplishes what it sets out to do. It provides more and better job opportunities for people.

Seeks Student-Resident Accord at Meads Mill

To the Editor:

In reference to the letters that have been published the past few weeks concerning Meads Mill Middle School I would like to make some comments.

I am a Franklin Road resident and I want to be proud of the school. However, I see things that I find dismaying. This is not only with regard to the students. There was antagonism towards the school on the residents' part before it ever opened because of unkept promises. There was controversy over the drainage system for the school, which marred the landscape and created a health hazard despite resident protests and efforts to preserve the area.

Secondly, something happened during the building of the school to the woods, which have been reduced to a few straggling trees compared to their former beauty. The school could have been built on the north side of the acreage, leaving the wooded area, or at least more than a token, for studies of birds, animals, trees, and flowers firsthand (and for exploring or gathering wild black raspberries on lunch hour).

Third, access to the school originally was planned for Bradner and Waterford Roads, not Franklin. Now Franklin bears the bulk of the bus traffic which tears up the gravel road. We do not desire paving and its accompanying taxes; the road is prettier without it and we do not want people, especially young people, to forget what an uncemented area looks like. Now that the millage has passed, how about that fence for the school? Use the money for the better functioning of the schools instead of erecting new buildings to rent out or leave vacant.

The antagonism towards the school has not been helped by the activities of a few students. These have been mentioned in the previous letters but I would like to reiterate somewhat and offer some possible inexpensive suggestions towards a solution.

This neighborhood is typical of most in that most residents own at least one dog. The majority of these dogs are friendly once one gets acquainted. My dog is outside during the day when possible, and she is kept tied unless we are out playing with her. Anyone whose field of movement is restricted, as in the case of a tied dog, becomes frightened and frustrated when someone taunts, runs at, or throws rocks from a vantage point just out of reach. This torment has occurred with children,

Handicapped Aided Here

Fifty handicapped children will enjoy day camp this summer, thanks in part to the efforts of the Northville Rotary Club and Northville High School.

The Easter Seal Society For Crippled Children and Adults of Wayne County will hold its day camp June 21 through July 29 for boys and girls between the ages of 3 and 12 years.

The Society will use its building and playground at Michigan and Middlebelt in Inkster and nearby River Rouge Park for a variety of activities including nature studies, dramatics, music, and cookouts.

Part of the money to pay for the camp came from Lily Day collections by the Rotary Club and High School. Street sales of lilies over the Easter holidays raised $445.00 for the Easter Seal Society.

Any physically handicapped child may be registered for the camp but total enrollment for the program will be limited to 50.

David V. Daugherty, executive director of the Society said "Applications are coming in rapidly." He advises interested parents to contact him as soon as possible at P.O. Box 101, 2545 Hyde Park Drive, Inkster, Michigan 48141 or 722-3055.

Will hogging the bathroom, the doctor and I soon lost our patience. What's more Will didn't like the cats and women any more than we did. The cats made the place stink to high heaven, and the women kept hanging their laundry in the bathroom.

Shortly after Christmas one year, Jim delivered some photographs he had done for a couple in Ann Arbor. Upon arriving, he found the couple playing with a full-grown male ocelot. The husband had given the animal to his wife for a Christmas present. Instantly, Jim concocted a scheme to end the cat and women problem at home. He borrowed the ocelot and the man's wife for several hours.

"She took along an empty suitcase and we returned to our place. I came through the door on the arm of the woman carrying the suitcase. The ocelot was on my shoulder, wearing this chain and collar.

"As soon as we walked through the door, I introduced the woman as my "girlfriend" who would be living with us along with her cat. You should have seen those cats of his. They humped their backs, the hair standing straight up and hissed, as the ocelot wagged its three-foot long tail and struggled to get a crack at them.

"I sent my "girlfriend" upstairs with her suitcase, and then got together with Will to tip him off. He was wild about the idea, and joined me in the living room with the professor. "My Gawd! That's an ocelot, you know," he shouted in his best British accent. "The bloody thing will eat my babies up. You can't have an ocelot and that woman in this house."

"Whereupon, straight-faced Geer replied, "If you can have all those cats and girlfriends in and out of here, I don't see why Jim's single ocelot and his one woman can be so much worse."

Finally, after a promise from the professor to get rid of most of his cats and women, they disclosed their secret and Jim's "girlfriend" and her ocelot left. Jim failed to gain the same success in breaking Geer of hogging the bathtub.

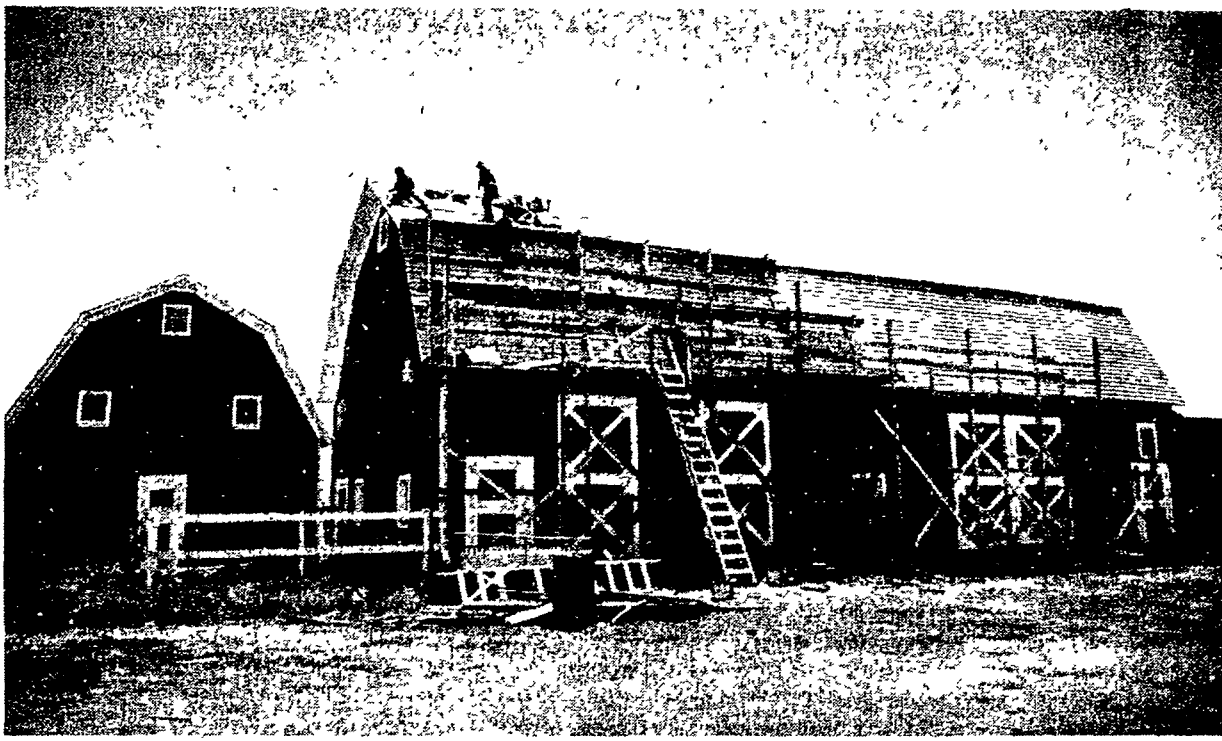

It remained for the president of the U-M's Women's League to drive Geer from Ann Arbor.

"Will was a nature lover," says Jim, "and was fond of laying under a beautiful, huge apricot tree in the courtyard of the Women's League where he studied his lines. But one day he noticed workmen about to chop down the tree and demanded they halt the atrocity. 'The tree's diseased,' they replied, but Will insisted it was healthy. They cut it down despite his protests. He had a large slab of it sawed off and took it over to the botany department and had it analyzed. As he suspected, the tree had been healthy.

"Then Will learned that the League president had ordered it cut down because it was in the way of workmen who were going to hoist air-conditioning units to the roof of the building. Apparently, it was the cheapest, easiest place to do the work."

"Old Will (I'd guess he was in his late sixties at the time, although he was constantly lying about his age) was furious. He took his slab of tree, marched into the League president's office and slammed it down on her desk and announced he was leaving Ann Arbor and would never set foot in the place again until she had passed on."

He hasn't been back to Ann Arbor since.

Friends Elect New Officers

Mary Jane Brugeman was elected president of the Friends of the Northville Library recently and will lead the group for the coming year in a variety of activities.

Acting with Mrs. Brugeman are Judy Montgomery, secretary; Carol Halverson, treasurer; Karen Brown, publicity and Sue Anger, program director.

The Friends are currently making plans for the annual Book Sale during Northville's Sidewalk Sale in July. Those who wish to donate old books to the sale may do so by bringing them to the library.

The Friends also oversee the Summer Reading Club at the library.

Anyone who would like to assist the group in its efforts to improve the library should contact Anne Vargo at 349-3020.

Animals on Display

Maybury Farm Opens

Another collection of farm animals took up residence this week in Maybury State Park's living farm, thus signaling the second year for this popular tourist attraction.

The farm opened Tuesday, and most of the animals can be touched and petted by visiting children.

To be operated again by the Upland Farm organization and managed by Bruce Webster, the farm will feature sheep, goats, cows, horses, pigs, chickens, ducks, turkeys and rabbits. In addition, field and garden crops will be planted using old farming techniques.

An orchard has been started between the farm and the Little Red Schoolhouse featuring a variety of apple, cherry, peach and pear trees. Fruit trees also have been planted along the farm lane from the parking lot.

To prepare for the summer season in the park, nearly a mile of bike trails has been paved, the barn has been re-roofed and exterior work has begun on the farmhouse. Bids are being accepted now for construction of three modern restrooms in the park, and plans are underway for the erection of a windmill adjacent to the pump house in the farmyard.

Since the park's opening last spring a total of 123,000 persons have visited the park and the farm. Many of the visitors came during the winter, which saw heavy usage by cross country skiers and hikers.

The number of hikers, asparagus and mushroom hunters, and horseback riders is expected to increase substantially this year, says Robert Remer, park manager. And biking along designated paths is certain to increase, he predicts, with establishment of a bike rental concession near the parking lot. Admission to the park and the farm remains free.

Although plans are still indefinite, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has scheduled a park dedication for June 12

Mankind Help Praised

To The Editor:

It is with considerable pleasure and heartfelt sincerity that Project Concern extends its congratulations and thanks to the warm and spirited people of Northville.

Through their overwhelming support of this year's Northville Walk For Mankind, those miles walked and sponsored when converted, will provide precious human lives with life-giving medical care.

We are especially grateful to Walk Director, Eric Booth, the members of his committee, the Jaycees and the many dedicated volunteers who helped organize and inspire such a successful Walk.

Your community should be proud of the hard work and sacrifices made by these dedicated individuals.

Project Concern also wishes to extend a special thanks to Northville's youth, their parents, neighbors and friends whose generous contributions made this year's Walk so successful.

As planned, several of the proceeds from the Walk will go directly toward vital local community service organizations and charitable causes in Northville.

Because you cared enough to be concerned and get involved, many precious human lives will be saved. To this end, Project Concern pledges its best efforts.

In shared concern,
Robert R. Lowell
Chairman of the Board

Disappointed

To the Editor:

In regards to the Walk-athon I am very disappointed in the Jaycees. They make the walk farther and don't give the ones that finish even a certificate or recognition of any kind. I hope they know they have lost a lot of walkers. Also — I would like to commend the walkers (at least 100) for their very courteous manners. I was giving them cookies and Kool-aid as they passed. I think those kids deserve a lot of credit! I for one am very proud of them and think they did a great job.

Applauded

To the Editor:

Just want to say that our community is so fortunate to have people like those involved in forming The Friends of Northville Drama. I want to thank Marian Pelt, Joan Johnson, Jay Ward and Dolores Assenmacher, who are all very busy with their own families and activities, but were so kind as to give their time, energy and talent for organization, so that the young people could have a play this year and the community could enjoy it.

Thank you for a great idea and all you put into it.

Rec Conflicts Explained

To the Editor:

The Northville Parks and Recreation Department has had numerous calls concerning the conflicting schedules of our Junior Baseball Program and our Soccer Program. Many boys and girls are involved in both programs and must choose, at time, between a baseball or a soccer game or practice.

While our Department strives to avoid conflicts of this nature, sometimes this task becomes extremely difficult. The Junior Baseball program has 69 teams, 913 children, and 11 ball diamonds to coordinate games and practices from May thru July. The Soccer program has 11 teams, 189 children, 3 soccer fields, and three other cities involved in coordinating league games and practices from April thru May.

Our Department's intentions were to minimize scheduling conflicts as much as possible. However, the growth in the Soccer program in Northville, as well as the growth of the soccer program in the other three cities of the league, caused an extension of the regular season into June and caused more games to be played during the week.

While our Department's policy is not to limit one's participation in different programs, we do try to draw attention to the possible scheduling conflicts of different programs. The choice, however, is the participant's.

In the future, we will continue to try to minimize the scheduling conflicts between our Junior Baseball program and our Soccer program. We apologize for any inconveniences that may arise from this struggle.

Sincerely,
Charles A. Froberger,
Recreation Director

dogs, and even horses. It is painful to all three and frightens all concerned. It also causes the pets to lose their good nature.

We have watched to prevent such occurrences on the street, and I'm very happy to say that we have seen and heard some students call a halt to these things, too. It takes courage to go against the others in a group but, if, as the students' letters say, the complaints of the residents are caused by only a few students, then band together, majority, against that few when you see things happening. Non-acceptance by peers of certain behaviour can often make it change. This is one way to contribute to closing the rift between residents and the school.

I gather from the residents' and students' letters that we residents lack knowledge about what goes on at the school. I was unaware of the clean-up day held by the students. Perhaps the student council could write up an occasional newsletter to inform residents of Meads Mill activities. These could be distributed in mailboxes (instead of rocks) during lunch hour.

Are there lunch hour opportunities within the school for students to participate in informal activities, for example, in sports, music, or art? One hour can be a long time with nothing to do but eat lunch, and extra activities might be welcomed. The facilities exist so why not use them? The students are on their own at lunch for the most part now, so added supervision would not be needed to add extra expense.

After the ice storms last winter, I was out cleaning up fallen branches and two students stopped to help me with a very large limb without being asked. I don't remember what they looked like but I have not forgotten the favor. I have frequently talked to some of the other students since then. I know they're not all bad. I'm not trying to make excuses either.

Perhaps, residents and students, if we make more of an effort to stop and be friendly to one another, antagonism can be overcome. As a Northville graduate I remember well the humiliation that results when a entire student body is blamed for the actions of a few. Let's work together for some understanding and mutual respect.

Thank you,
Another Franklin Rd.

A Day in Busy Life of Party Chairman

His GOP Job: To Win Elections

By PATRICIA BERNARDO

Thursday, May 20. It's a good day for Bill McLaughlin. His candidate — Gerald Ford — swept the Michigan primary two days earlier. He has not yet, he admits, "come down from the ceiling." And tonight is one of those rare nights when he will come home to Northville for dinner with his wife and four sons.

It's also a good day for me. I am to tag along with the Michigan Republican Party Chairman, asking more questions than a four-year-old, and observing an honest-to-God politician do whatever it is he does in the world of behind-the-scenes politics.

We meet at 7:30 a.m. to make the trip to his Lansing office. He is driving the new fully-equipped Dodge the Party leases for his use. His drive to work — 63 miles one way — is a long way by any commuter's standards. He's been making the trip for 12 years, simply because he'd rather live in Northville than Lansing.

He was elected to his present post by a party convention in 1969 after a four-year stint as vice-chairman. His leap to the top was practically a single bound, coming only nine years after attending his first political meeting.

He faces re-election every odd-numbered year, but his $35,000-a-year job is more secure than this fact might lead one to believe. In six elections (including two for vice-chairman) he had competition only once.

"Exactly what does a party chairman get paid to do?" I ask.

His answer is simple. "To win elections. To get one more vote than the other guy."

And to be successful, says McLaughlin, all you really need is common sense.

Ford's whistle-stop train ride through Michigan was an outgrowth of McLaughlin's common sense. He wanted Ford to talk to a lot of voters and ask for their support. "Being presidential is all right," he said, "but the first thing they teach you in 'campaign school' is to ask people for their vote."

McLaughlin takes sides in Republican squabbles, but he is a master of compromises as well. He backed Ford against fellow-Republican Ronald Reagan. But later in the day I hear him tell a Grand Rapids campaign worker, "We can't afford to gloat over the Ford victory too long, or we'll lose the Reagan people."

We arrive at Republican headquarters shortly before 9. The office is in an old slum apartment house, beautifully restored and shared with a real estate company.

McLaughlin is greeted by his secretary, Libby. She is young, enthusiastic and more wholesome-looking than Julie Eisenhower. She calls her boss, "Bill."

With reporterly cynicism I suspect her to be the daughter of a political crony. I learn later that both Libby and the other office secretary got their jobs through an ordinary employment agency.

McLaughlin settles behind an L-shaped desk to look through the morning mail. On the wall behind him is a personally autographed picture of Governor William Milliken. Other portraits of men, presumably Republican notables, abound. I recognize only the President, Senator Robert Griffin and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

The first item to get McLaughlin's attention is a telegram from Secretary of Commerce Elliot Richardson, congratulating him for his role in the primary. McLaughlin reads it aloud for my benefit, obviously pleased with the recognition.

An amendment to the new federal campaign reform law is on his desk. He shows me a six-inch thick black binder filled with legal interpretations of the law, which he says has not been updated in the last six months. He feels the new law is too complicated and requires too much bookkeeping and paperwork. A box full of notebooks in the corner of his office contain accounting information necessitated by the legislation.

McLaughlin estimates that 60 to 75 percent of the members of Congress who will be elected this year will unknowingly violate the campaign law. He says he will probably break the law himself, in spite of all his efforts not to.

"The more words you put into a law, the more loopholes you create." He feels the campaign law actually strengthened the things that caused Watergate.

For example, the party is limited on the amount of money they can spend on behalf of a candidate. But private citizens, the so-called "fat cats" like W. Clement Stone and Stewart Mott, can spend as much as they want.

McLaughlin doesn't deny that reform is needed. His solution is simply to make the parties and candidates report monthly every penny they take in and every penny they spend. Then, he says, let the

St. Patrick's Dads Boost Kids Program

Like other private and public schools, St. Patrick's School in Brighton has been hard-pressed financially in recent years, says Mike Beauchamp, a member of the parish school board.

Yet, since 1971, the school's interscholastic and intermural sports programs have expanded. Major improvements have been made in the school building and around the grounds.

How has it happened?

In large part, through the contributions of parish Dad's Club members — 45 volunteer coaches, recreation leaders, and fix-it men around the school.

As a school board member and a founder and officer in the Dad's Club, Beauchamp has seen first-hand how the Club's work has bridged the gap financially at St. Pat's.

The club was organized five years ago, Beauchamp explains, "because there was a big need for it."

"You see, the school budget — which is based on tuition paid — all has to go for education." Frills must be provided another way.

Each year, the club holds a series of fund-raising events. A large part of the proceeds — about $2,000 a year — go toward physical education and recreation equipment.

Four years ago, the Club completely refurbished the school playground. Since then, they've added basketball backboards, volleyball nets, and a baseball backstop to the grounds.

They also buy equipment for the school teams they organize and coach — boys' football, and boys' and girls' basketball.

Last year, club funds were used to hire a part-time physical education teacher which guaranteed every St. Pat's student gym class once a week.

Athletics isn't the only cause supported by the dads.

Three years ago, a school inspector from Lansing reported that the school library was lacking. The Dad's Club responded by spending $1,000 on materials and countless man-hours to modernize the room.

The library project became the first of annual spring fix-up weekends.

Each year, the dads organize an Easter egg hunt for pre-schoolers and help with the Brighton Community Olympics. This year, they're also sponsoring a baseball team in the community pony league.

So, what's in it for the dads?

"For me," says Beauchamp, "it's like the old-time spirit. You can help and accomplish so much without going through any red tape. And everything you do is needed."

DADS' CLUB—One of St. Patrick's Dads' Club gifts was this sign for parish and school news in front of the school on Rickett Road in Brighton. Club members are (l-r) Pete Gerycz, Fred Hurley, Dan Schmidt, Dan Burke, Bill Johnson, Mike Beauchamp, Ralph Thorn, and Stan Glocleck. That's this year's club President Walter Barth on the ladder.

RINGING UP A CONCERT—Practicing for their first concert are members of the new hand bell choir at First Methodist Church in Northville under the direction of Stacey Becker. A varied concert of church, classical and popular music will be presented at 8 p.m.

this Sunday, June 6, at the church. The choir began rehearsing last September after the bells were purchased with monies from special fund-raising events and memorial donations.

It's Open Door Center

New Church Meeting in Northville

A new, Northville non-denominational church, the Open Door Christian Center, will hold its third service at 10 a.m. Sunday in Northville High School auditorium.

The Reverend Earl Moore of Sterling Heights began the weekly services May 23. They are designed, he states, "to meet the needs of the total person — spirit, soul and mind."

The name for the church was chosen, organizers explain, as it is intended to be "an open door to everybody whose needs aren't being met by other church groups."

Main organizers have been

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Beetler, all of Northville, and Mr. and Mrs. Barry Egeler of Plymouth.

"It had been in our thoughts for about a year but was just in process of being organized for about two months," according to Mrs. Scott, who says she feels, "The Lord led us to them (the Moores)."

The Scotts are former members of a Plymouth Baptist Church.

The Reverend Moore's background also is Baptist. He attended the Baptist Bible Institute of Mayfield, Kentucky.

He served as a pastor in the Chicago area for six years and in Nashville, Tennessee, for two years.

He presently is an insurance company auditor but says that he would return to full-time ministry if the new church growth warrants.

His wife, Bobbi, is known as an inspirational speaker and has addressed area women's "glow" groups. It was through her, organizers explain, that her husband's background became known to them.

The Moores have lived in Michigan for two years last February, coming from Chicago where he received his auditor training after being hired in Tennessee.

"They have a daughter at home who was graduated June 1 from Warren Consolidated High School. They also have three other children, a daughter in Chicago who has two children, a son in Nashville and another in Kentucky who is a state trooper."

"We are striving," the Reverend Moore emphasizes, "to meet the needs of people that aren't being met by other church groups."

"We invite anyone to come and God will meet their needs."

Methodists to Hear Zaire Missionary

A United Methodist Missionary who has served in Zaire since 1961, Dr. Glen J.R. Eschtruth, will be the guest speaker at a special meeting at the New Hudson United Methodist Church on June 8 at 7:15 p.m. The public is invited.

Dr. Eschtruth is in charge of the medical work at Samutab (formerly Piper) Memorial Hospital in Kapanga. In addition to supervising the medical work, he has helped to establish eighteen rural clinics, and has been instrumental in setting up a United Methodist radio network in Zaire which provides communication between isolated mission stations.

Since 1970, Dr. Eschtruth has been the general medical director of the Methodist Church Zaire Conference, in addition to his duties as Medical Director of Samutab Memorial Hospital.

Born in Detroit, Dr. Eschtruth earned his bachelor of arts degree at Asbury College. He received his medical degree from Wayne State University, his surgical residency at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital and Detroit General Hospital, Detroit.

Father Harding Honored

A high mass service marked the Reverend Father Leslie Harding's 20th year in the ministry last Thursday evening at Holy Cross Episcopal Church in Novi.

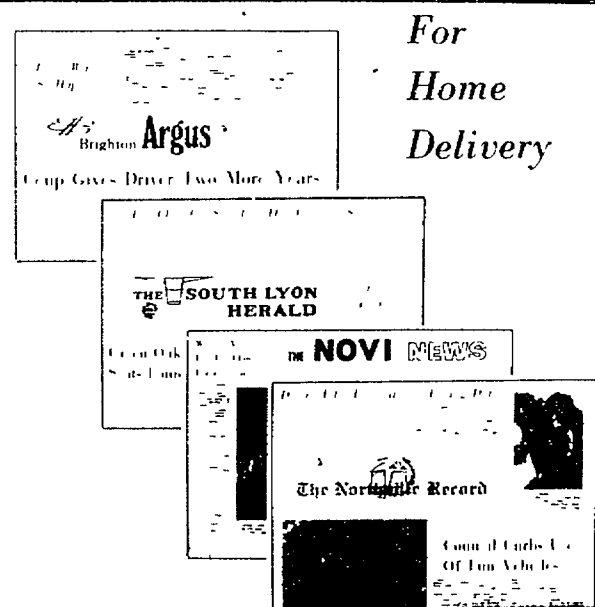

Special guest was Father Harding's father, C. L. Harding, a retired Episcopal priest in Toronto, Ontario. Preaching the sermon was Dr. John Sanders, principal of East Detroit High school and a close friend of Father Harding.

The service got underway at 8 p.m., followed by an informal reception at the church.

Father Harding has been the pastor of the Episcopal mission church in Novi for nearly seven years, having replaced the Reverend Father Jack Fricke. He came to Novi from St. Michael's Episcopal Church in Grosse Pointe Woods.

He is married, and he and his wife and their four children live at 24151 Lynwood, Novi.

'Maple Decline'

Disease Infecting 2 Percent of Trees

By GURDON K. DENNIS
District Extension
Horticultural & Marketing Agent

Maple decline is a condition of maple and possibly several other species observed first as a browning of the leaf edges (necrosis) on individual branches. Over a time the affected branches die and the tree often appears stag-headed or topped-off. Eventually the entire tree may die.

Exception must be taken to the suggestion that perhaps as many as half of the maples in southern Michigan are affected by maple decline. A more realistic percentage would be less than 2 per cent.

To date the condition appears to be associated with disturbances by man — e.g. street salting, restricted root development, air pollution, etc., and thus has generally been observed in urban situations or along roads. Maple decline has been observed in some areas for more than 15 years.

We do not know as yet the cause of maple decline. In fact, there may not be a single cause. We may be observing the tree responding similarly to a number of different causative agents. As was mentioned in the publicity, in addition to examining environmental factors as possible causes, the possibility of the condition being caused by a virus is also being examined.

It is certainly premature to make any comparisons between maple decline and Dutch elm disease. I believe it is also inappropriate at this time for owners of sugar maple woodlots or sugar-bushes to allow the existence of maple decline to affect their management plans.

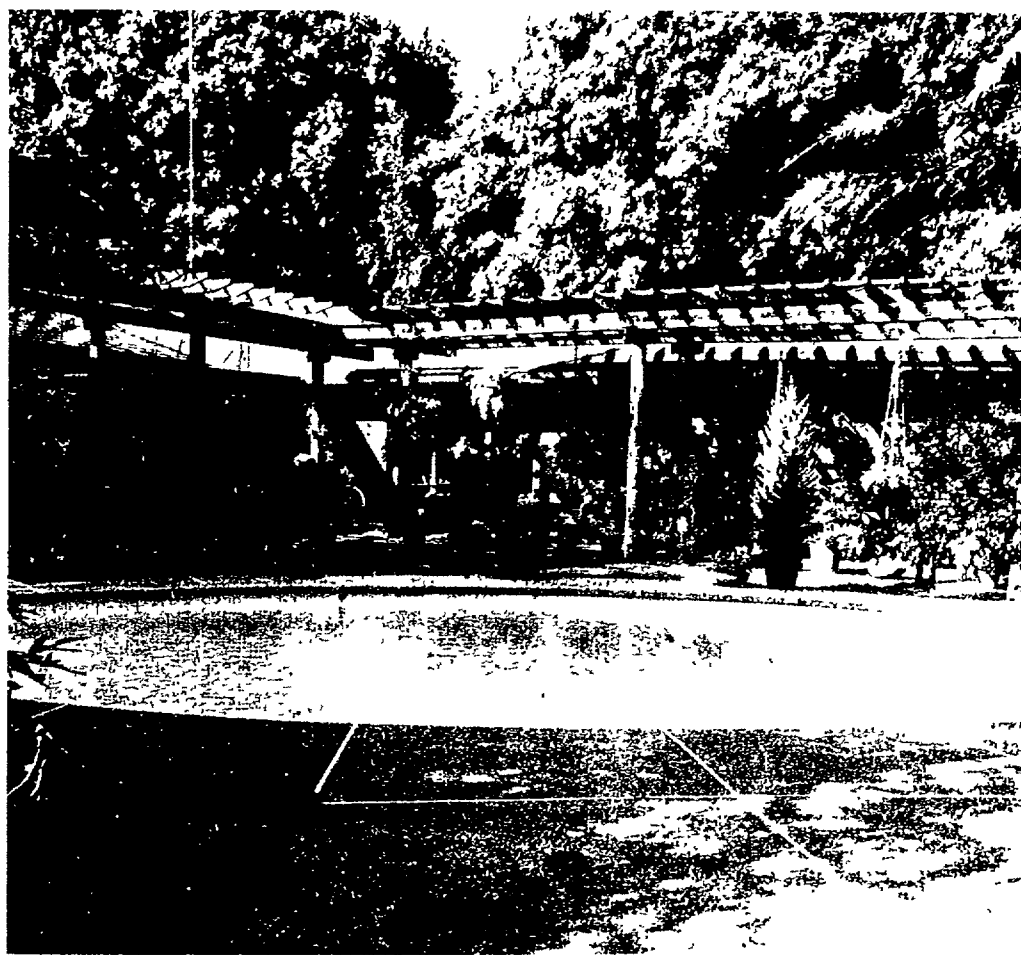

It is appropriate, however, to use caution in selecting shade and ornamental trees. We know, for example, that sugar maple does not thrive in often exhibits maple decline symptoms in soils with a pH higher than 7.5.

Sugar maples should not be planted in soils with a pH above 7.5 nor in areas where the soil will receive repeated doses of salt such as an area which received runoff from a road that is salted in the winter or where soil is compacted by heavy foot traffic or other factors.

A point to remember is that maples suffer from verticillium wilt, a soil-borne, fungus, and root rot (armillaria) also soil-borne, and root disturbance is often a factor in both these fungus diseases.

Fescues Better Around Trees

Tree root competition seems to affect bluegrasses more than it does fine fescues. Perhaps this is why fescues do so well in shade? The response involves direct battle between tree root and grass. Competition for nutrients and water may be partly determining, but a bit of "chemical warfare" in which the tree secretes substances repressive to the grass seems likely, too. Fescue is apparently less sensitive to tree allelopathy than is bluegrass.

PLANNING FOR BEAUTY. This homeowner carefully planned his backyard for beauty—and for people! Note the use of wood, concrete, potted and ground plantings and the accents of rectangular and round shapes. The trees provide a beautiful "picture frame" for this family's outdoor living room. The pool won a Gold Medal in the National Swimming Pool Institute's annual design awards.

Grass Is Universal, But...

Here's Substitute Ground Cover

By KATHY COPLEY

Grass is the universal ground covering but some spots, because of their locations, contour, or use, would look much better covered in something else.

Banks which can't be moved or watered can be planted in low maintenance plants which greatly improve the bank's appearance.

Banks leading to streams, a driveway, a drainage culvert can be work-free assets to the overall appearance of your property. Their height gives an added dimension since you can display plants on them like pictures on a wall.

The spreading habit of some plants is a nuisance in a formal border because it chokes out other desirable plants, but in an area devoted to ground covers — shrubs, flowers, herbs, succulents — this characteristic is their major asset.

Soil preparation should be the best possible. The idea of a ground cover planting is to let the plants spread without assistance from you, but without well enriched soil this spreading can be a trying experience, with weeks taking over before the plants get a strong start.

Since this soil conditioning is likely to be a one shot deal, add enough sand and organic material to give loose, well-drained soil with good abilities to retain moisture.

For a plant to multiply sufficiently for it to be an effective ground cover, the plant must be able to send stolons through the soil or root runner on the soil surface. Only loose, moist soil will do the job.

In planning an extensive bank planting, shrubs should go in first. They take the most room and, because of their size, their placement is less flexible than other ground covers. For good looks year round, mix evergreens with deciduous plants. For texture, mix small-leaved with large-leaved, flowering with non-flowering.

To avoid a jumbled look, use a minimum of three of anything — three cotoneasters, three creeping junipers, etc. If there is room for only six shrubs, choose two varieties rather than one each of six varieties. If the area is large enough to accommodate more than three of something, stick to groupings of odd numbers.

For landscaping purposes, any spreading plant which grows no taller than three feet is considered ground cover material. To avoid monotony it is wise to include plants with varying mature heights as well as colors and textures.

Even several varieties of the same shrub — like Wiltoni, Blue Rug, and Sargent's Juniper — have different shapes and colors.

Once the shrubs are chosen they should be planted in groups by species, three of this next to three of that, rather than dotted around individually. Doing this improves the appearance because it imitates nature as well as easing planning.

Each group of plants should lead visually in to the next one and, at least at maturity, the branches of some will intertwine. Finger the plantings together to form a continuous curving pattern rather than circles or lines.

Wintercreeper (Euonymus fortunei) is a rambling evergreen vine which is super-hardy. Though they have flowers and berries, they are grown primarily for their autumn color. They grow in sun or shade but retain their leaves best if grown in the shade.

Cotoneasters have delicate, graceful branches which are a pleasant contrast to the chunkier junipers. They bloom in May with pink or white inconspicuous flowers lining the branches. Birds like their red or black fall berries.

Cotoneasters have few insect pests and their controlled growth means they will need next to no attention. Bearberry and Rock Spray Cotoneaster are both excellent low-growing varieties.

There are a number of low-growing junipers (Andorra, Blue Creeping, Wilton, Waukegan, Japanese, Sargent's, Shore, and procumbens are all about one foot high) which spread to eight feet at maturity. The stems root where they touch the soil so you can speed the spreading process by putting a shovel full of soil over a few of the lowest branches.

Yews have much the same look as junipers, with Canadian and Nigra being good low varieties. Like junipers, they have few pests and need little pruning for good growth.

Flowering shrubs with a spreading character are Japanese Quince (three feet), Creeping Mahonia (one foot), Potentilla (three feet), Bunchberry, and Bearberry (Arctostaphylos uva-ursi.) This last plant is especially good in sandy areas because it tolerates poor, dry soil.

New Lawn Book

A new book about lawns is expected shortly. Lawn Keeping, by Dr. Robert W. Schery, Director of the Lawn Institute.

The book relates lawns to natural conditions, and describes in non-technical fashion, just what need be done to keep a grass community thriving with a minimum of expense and effort by taking advantage of natural trends.

voters, rather than bureaucrats, decide whether contributions and expenditures were proper.

At 9, McLaughlin meets with his all-female staff around a conference table, cluttered with telephones used by the National President Ford Committee during the primary.

The meeting is more pep talk than business. He reads the Richardson telegram, praises their primary work, and psyches them up for the work ahead — the state convention, national convention and election.

August, the month of the national convention will be the most grueling. Michigan delegates must be transported and housed. McLaughlin's staff will handle all the arrangements. As the home-state delegation, Michigan Republicans will share the President's hotel in Kansas City.

Republican delegates will be chosen during their state convention. There will be three from each Congressional district and 7 delegates-at-large. McLaughlin is certain to be a delegate-at-large, committed to Ford.

McLaughlin had told me in the car on the way to Lansing that most delegates will be the Republicans "Who have been around the longest and worked the hardest." The delegation will be heavily weighted with elected officials, and county and district chairmen.

McLaughlin feels that these traditional criteria for selecting delegates leaves out young people and blacks. And it goes against his common sense to overlook anyone when the party needs to expand its present 20 per cent following.

The meeting adjourned. McLaughlin returns to his office with National Republican Committeewoman Ranny Riecker. Their conversation has to be sandwiched between almost continuous phone calls.

McLaughlin controls the state party's annual budget of about $1,150,000. The income is the result of personal solicitation, direct mail, and fund-raising dinners. It is spent primarily on polling, contributions to candidates and the expenses of running a full-time office.

Riecker wants his approval for $1,250 worth of new forms. He asks if they are necessary, accepts her judgment that they are and signs the order.

Another item of business is installing phones for fall canvassing. But the Republicans are $89,000 in debt and Bell Telephone is demanding a deposit of $200 per line. Riecker says they need $88,000.

McLaughlin doesn't have that kind of money and before they can decide how to raise it, they are interrupted by a phone call from the White House.

Richard Cheney, President Ford's top advisor, wants McLaughlin to come to Washington tomorrow. Ford's strategists want his analysis of the Michigan primary and his advice on the primaries that follow.

McLaughlin has Libby make plane reservations. The Washington trip will crowd the next day's schedule. A Republican State Central Committee meeting starts with dinner at 7 p.m. the next evening in Traverse City.

McLaughlin will get up at 5:30 a.m. to catch an early flight to Washington; return at 2:55 p.m. and drive to Traverse City, arriving, he figures, just in time to sit down to dinner.

Riecker has other things to discuss — buying notebooks for the delegates, buying posters, and hiring extra people. But it is after 10:30 and McLaughlin has to leave for Grand Rapids where he is scheduled to speak at 12:00.

The Republican Luncheon Club is a new group, holding its first meeting at the aged and tacky

Pantlind Hotel in downtown Grand Rapids.

When McLaughlin walks in the door of the Continental Room, the 50 or so Republicans there swarm toward him, eager to shake his hand.

A large part of McLaughlin's job seems to involve eating, and I notice he skips both the salad dressing and spice cake dessert.

He has had no time to prepare a speech and while others are sipping coffee, he is making some quick notes.

His extemporaneous address flows easily and fluidly. He starts with a generous pat on the back to Ford's hometown Republicans for delivering 83 per cent of the local vote to the President.

He ends with a zealous plea to elect Ford in November and throw the Democrats out of Congress, the legislature, and the Michigan Supreme Court.

Before leaving Grand Rapids, McLaughlin is interviewed by a local radio station. He tells the reporter he thinks the present primary system is bad, that it gives New Hampshire too much influence, and that he hopes Republicans, Democrats, and political scientists will get together after the fall election to devise a new and better way of selecting candidates.

Heading back to Lansing, he tells me that he particularly objects to Michigan's open primary and the cross-over voting it allows. In 1972, he urged Republicans to stay home rather than vote for Wallace on the Democratic ballot.

"It was unfair to paint the Democratic party as the party of Wallace," he said. "Because it isn't — at least not in this state."

The very real possibility that the Democrats could have crossed over to vote for Reagan this year would have been just as unfair, he feels. McLaughlin is glad it never materialized.

McLaughlin spends the few remaining hours of the afternoon in his Lansing office reviewing the agenda for the weekend State Central Committee meeting which he will chair. He accepts and makes some phone calls.

At 7 p.m. we are back in Northville, having rolled up a total of 250 miles on the Dodge's odometer.

McLaughlin has a very short time to dash home for dinner, because he is scheduled to speak to newly elected Northville precinct delegates at 8.

I am exhausted from just watching this man at work, but as we part he apologizes for showing me a slower than typical day.

Michigan Mirror

Chamber Urges Death Penalty

By ELMER E. WHITE

LANSING—Steve Simmons died on the gallows for murder in 1830 — the last man executed by the State of Michigan.

Sixteen years later, Michigan became the first government in the English-speaking world to outlaw capital punishment. The ban was written into the state constitution in 1963, and approved by voters.

From time to time — and now is one of those times — the question of reinstituting the death penalty crops up in the state.

A Michigan State Chamber of Commerce publication, Michigan Challenge, recently printed a strongly worded editorial which said in part:

"The sooner we start executing cold-blooded criminals, the sooner Michigan citizens can see a significant reduction in crime . . ." (A Chamber spokesman says the editorial does not represent an official position of the group's board of directors.)

CALLING FOR A FOCUS of "serious attention on the problem of crime in Michigan," the publication said the legislature should legalize the death penalty for persons convicted of:

—Crimes involving use of handguns.

—Murder in the first degree, regardless of weapon used.

—Kidnapping not involving family members.

FOES OF CAPITAL punishment contend studies show there is no correlation between the increase and decrease of violent crime and homicide on one hand and the existence of the death penalty on the other.

A recent national poll, meanwhile, indicates increasing support for the death penalty for those convicted of murder.

IF ALL MICHIGAN folks were smokers, it's figured they would have puffed away nearly 137 packs apiece during 1975. That's down two packs a person from the record state high in 1974.

Nationally, the per capita consumption of cigarettes dropped seven packs per person from 1974 to 1975 — 141.7 packs compared to 134.6.

That's still a lot of smoke, especially in light of increasing demand for nonsmokers' rights.

The Michigan Legislature this session has approved measures to regulate smoking in hospitals, supermarkets, restaurants and public meetings.

THE GREAT WALLET of the State of Michigan — more formally known as the state of the budget — seems to be in pretty bad shape these days.

But do the people who pay the bills, the taxpayers, really realize how bad?

Dr. Jack Stack of Alma says he and a newly formed organization called Michigan Citizens for Fiscal Integrity intend to take the tale of the budget crunch to the people.

A second priority for the organization is convincing the governor and the legislature "of the need and the urgency for an increase in revenues to provide adequate funding for present state services and programs."

A PERSON BUYING a burial vault from a privately owned cemetery fully expects that vault will be there when he needs it. Most times, it is, of course.

And an added assurance that it will be available when the time comes is a 1972 state law requiring cemeteries regulated by the Michigan Cemetery Commission to set up merchandise trust funds.

Other regulations seek to assure that cemeteries will be maintained properly and that planned facilities that are sold before they're completed, will indeed be completed.

PROBLEMS OCCUR, according to Commerce Director Richard Helmbrecht, because current laws aren't strong enough to give the Cemetery Commission the ability to assure the special funds are kept up.

Helmbrecht, whose department includes the Cemetery Commission, called for stronger laws after an audit showed a more than $700,000 deficit in various funds which are supposed to be maintained by 16 different cemeteries.

Adequate Camp Sites Seen

Private park operators in Michigan apparently feel there now are adequate sites to meet campers' needs since the opening of new campgrounds has dropped to the lowest rate in a decade, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

An Auto Club guide for 1976 shows the 28,869 sites at 329 campgrounds listed represent a four percent increase over last year, compared with annual site increases of 10 to 25 percent since 1965.

"The private camping industry's share of the close to 70,000 sites now available in the state seems to have stabilized at about half, compared with an estimated 10 to 15 percent in 1965," stated Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

Government operated campsites also have ceased to expand. Ten years ago, state parks had 12,148 campsites, compared with 13,976 now—a 15 percent increase.

State and national forest campsites have remained at 3,079 and 2,300, respectively, since the early 1970s and the 8,200 sites in county, township and city parks also have not increased.

"The lack of expansion does not mean problems for campers," said Ratke. "Existing spaces are more than adequate to handle the campsite demand, which this year is expected to be 15 to 20 percent greater than last year."

Many private campgrounds also are benefiting from Bicentennial festivities planned in resort area communities and major population centers this summer.

Some campgrounds plan dances and sing-alongs throughout the summer along with hayrides and cookouts.

To ensure a private campground site, Auto Club advises calling ahead. Telephone numbers of most parks are listed in its 1976 guide, and a reference code on the accompanying map helps identify features found at each camp.

Further camping and recreational vehicle information can be obtained weekdays by calling the Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and Campgrounds at (313) 477-3434.

Progress

The first step is important in anything you do;
The others that come after
Will help to see you through.

The way is sometimes rocky;
You may even stub your toe,
But a lofty goal is worth it
Once you know the way to go.

The road you may be taking
May lead you far afield,
Or you may stay right where you are
To realize your yield.

It's not the distance or the climb
That matters in your quest,
It's the getting there that counts the most
When you know you've done your best.

Charles E. Hutton

Star Catcher

Once you've been a star catcher
there's no other life for you for you have drank from the milky way and painted the skies of blue witnessed the birth of a Martian and Rigellian lions you've rode trekked the plains of Venus and damned an Uranian cold floated helplessly in a derelict ship (remember, you thought you'd die) but saved by the winged Centaurians and fell in love with a Klondike spy
Once you've been a star catcher once you've flown that high your love's reserved for outer space and always wandering wide.

S.L. Beach

Last Physical

For a lovely length of his life,
Sam spent some time
Roaming about the sky,
Loping along—low and slow
And, fleeing by—fast and high.
He breezed the beautiful blue,
Having fun and feeling free—
Flying under and on top.
Then, one fateful day,
The doctor said
He had to stop.
Now, it all has ended,
But the memories are his
Of flying low and flying high
And the lovely length of his life
Spent in roaming about the sky.

BRENT BROPLY of Moore's Motor Sports in South Lyon had an opportunity to meet four-time World Motocross Champion Roger DeCoster recently.

Captain of Team Suzuki, DeCoster (left) introduced Broply to the new Suzuki RM125A motocross racing motorcycle. The cycle features a six-speed transmission, laid-down gas-oil rear shocks, an upswept exhaust muffler, and the exclusive Suzuki Power Reed Intake System to make it one of the most competitive motorcycles on today's market.

Motocross, the rugged sport of the high speed motorcycle racing over unimproved terrain, originated in Europe and is fast becoming popular in the United States. Suzuki manufactures RM-series motocrossers in four engine classes along with a complete line of high quality trail, dual-purpose, and street motorcycles.

N. J. AND MARIE McPHERSON, franchise operators of the Dairy Queen store at 321 West Grand River in Brighton, were recently presented the Quality-Purity Award by American Dairy Queen Corporation, a subsidiary of International Dairy Queen, Inc. (IDQ).

The Quality-Purity Award signifies that the McPhersons' Dairy Queen store has achieved and maintained a superior rating in all quality and purity inspections conducted by representatives of American Dairy Queen Corporation.

To qualify for this special recognition, the McPhersons' store was judged outstanding on an inspection covering more than 12 categories, including general appearance of the store, product appearance and preparation, sanitation procedures and customer service.

The Quality-Purity Award is part of Dairy Queen's continual program directed at recognizing the basics of good store operation, among which are quality, service and cleanliness.

OUTSTANDING CIVIL Engineer Award for 1975 of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Michigan Section, Southeastern Branch, was presented to Leonard L. Klein of 18450 Fermanagh Court, Northville, at the organization's annual dinner dance May 14 at Roma Hall in Bloomfield Hills.

Presented annually since 1965, the award is made to a civil engineer who had a reputation for an extended period of high quality engineering and who has been active in society affairs, Robert McDowell, president, announces.

Klein's engineering career has been spent in the manufacturing field. For more than 20 years he has been with Superior Products Company involved in the design of concrete pipe, prestressed concrete beams and other products. He has worked behind the scenes with many engineers relative to the design and use of concrete pipe and concrete products with one noteworthy instance, the society stated, being the design and utilization of the largest diameter precast concrete pipe, 17-feet, (that it's aware of) used in a Troy drain.

A 1949 graduate of Michigan State University, Klein is a past secretary, vice president and president of the Michigan Section and is one of the founders of the Southeastern Branch.

In Northville he has served as chairman of the township planning commission and as a trustee. He is past chairman of the MSU engineering school board of directors.

League Tennis Finals Today

Mustangs Top Churchill

Rudy Horst helped Northville edge Churchill

Northville won a pair of dual meets last week to remain undefeated on the Western Six circuit going into the league meet finals at Canton today.

If the Mustangs finish first or second at the league match they will capture the championship.

Last Monday Northville had an easy time disposing of Mott, 6-1½. Doug Castillo, Rudy Horst and Charlie Whiteside all won at singles, but Greg McFadden was not so fortunate, as the only loser.

Tim Kelly and Ron Angell, Steve Laffler and Steve Pyett, Tom Folino and Jeff Hodge were winners in the doubles.

"We played up to our potential with all the doubles playing exceptionally well," claimed Coach Bob Simpson. Nine of the 12 winning sets were by either a 6-1 or 6-2 score.

Against Churchill last Wednesday things were quite a bit closer, as Northville eked out a 4-3½ victory.

The victory at Churchill marked the first time the Mustangs have won on the Livonia courts.

"After the first sets things were very close, after the second sets it looked like we were history but we wanted it and did not quit," explained Simpson.

McFadden lost in three sets while Castillo and Horst had their usual fine day, both winning relatively easily.

Whiteside turned the entire match around, coming back strong to win 6-3, 6-0 after losing the first set, 6-2.

Kelly and Angell lost for the first time all year. Laffler and Pyett were victors in three sets while Folino and Hodge lost in three.

"It was very gratifying the way these young tennis players have performed so well," complimented the coach.

The Mustangs are a perfect 10-0 in league play and an impressive 14-1 overall.

Charlie Whiteside had a crucial victory at Churchill

Northville Fifth in Track

Although disappointed with the showing in the field events, Ralph Redmond was pleased with Northville's runners as they paced the Mustangs to a fifth place finish at the Western Six League Track meet last Monday.

To no ones surprise, Churchill finished first with 90 points, followed by Mott with 49, Harrison 36, Western 35, Northville 32, and Salem 15.

The highlight of the day for Northville was the first place finish of the 880 relay team. Members of the league champion relay team are Bob Sweeney, Frank Nelson, Kevin Corcoran, and Earl Bingley. Bingley and Corcoran also both showed well in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Bob Gould broke the league record with a clocking of 9:44.3 in the two mile run to place first while teammate Don Wilber finished fifth.

Dennis Singleton finished second in the high hurdles after the race was rerun because the hurdles were set up at improper distances. Singleton was third in the low hurdles and ran with Nelson, Sweeney and Tim Ellis in the third place 440 relay team.

Sweeney's 52.5 time in the 440 yard dash pleased Redmond as well as being good for third place.

Redmond is looking forward to next year's season when the likes of Brian Turnbull, Phil Reed, Tim Ellis, Nathan Hay, Craig Moreland, Bruce Lampella and Brian Prom should provide some experience.

Redmond wished to thank hard working Coach Gabryes who helped throughout the year.

Novi Win Streak Snapped

The Novi nine rattled off a three game winning streak before they dropped the season's finale.

Detroit Western traveled to Novi last Saturday and quickly jumped in front, 7-0, but the Wildcats made the best of their six hits, coming up with eight runs to pull out the victory for Jeff Laverty.

Laverty was brought up to the varsity from the JV squad and became the first pitcher other than Scott Parsons to record a win.

Randy Wroten ripped a pair of hits, including a two run triple, and John Buck's bases-loaded single accounted for two more runs.

The winning run scored when the catcher slipped on the plate while throwing the ball to third when Parsons tried to retreat after Buck missed the sign on an attempted suicide squeeze. The throw went into left field and allowed Parsons to score.

"We have lost them that way before so we were happy to win one on a fluke," stated Coach Rick Trudeau.

It took Novi eight innings to do it but they edged Clarenceville 2-1 last Monday.

Bill Giorgio received the victory with relief help from Parsons for the save.

Greg Porter singled to center to drive in Norm Free with the winning run in the eighth. Novi's other run was scored by use of a successful double steal in the fourth inning.

Last Tuesday Novi slashed Milan, 5-0, in what Trudeau termed the best defensive game of the year.

Parsons went the distance in the only shutout of the year for a Novi hurler. Parsons allowed only two hits.

Walks and errors aided Novi's cause as the Wildcats had but two hits.

South Lyon notched only their second victory of the season in Southeastern Conference play at the expense of Novi.

Five costly errors and 11 walks by Giorgio allowed the Lions to come away with a 6-4 victory.

Dave Beall, Wroten and Porter were responsible for the Novi RBI's.

"We took them for granted because we had beaten them so easily earlier," explained Trudeau.

The loss left Novi in fifth place in the SEC with a 6-8 mark and an 8-12 overall record.

Randy Wroten provided plenty of spark with his bat as Novi won three in a row

Local Girls Unlucky

The Ladycats split a pair in last week's softball action in preparing for their showdown with rival Northville.

Novi trounced Willow Run, 20-5, last Tuesday, to notch their sixth victory of the season.

Annie Robinson, Ricci Mulligan, Heather Barr, Jeanne Brown and Maryanne Balagna each had two hits with Robinson, Brown and Balagna collecting a trio of RBI's.

"We played our best defensive game of the year, committing only three errors," stated Coach Russ Gardner.

Last Thursday against South Lyon the girls were not so lucky as a five run rally in the last inning allowed the Lions to win, 17-16.

Melissa Faulkner notched four RBI's and Mulligan went three-for-four for Novi.

Sue Beall was on the hill in both contests to gain a victory and a loss.

The Ladycats finished the league season in sixth place with a 3-9 record and now stand 6-10 overall.

Redford Union downed the Northville Girls' Softball team, 9-7, last Monday to drop the Mustangs' season record to 5-8.

Chris Suddendorf, Pat Brown and Debbie Maguire all ripped a pair of hits to account for six of Northville's 10 hits.

New Hill for Derby

Soap box derby contestants will tool their home-made racers down a different hill in the Northville Jaycees annual competition for area youngsters this year.

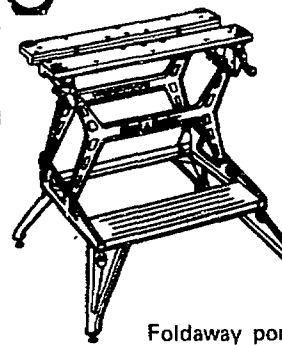

Held in previous years on Maplewood, the "race hill" this year is to be held either on North Center at Galway to the bottom of the hill or on Hillridge between the two cross intersections.

Decision on the exact location had not yet been made when the Northville City Council last week authorized any section of the race occurring within the Northville limits. Similar approval is expected from the Novi City Council.

The race is scheduled for Saturday, June 26 beginning at 10 a.m. In case of bad weather the derby is to be rescheduled for another date--Sunday, June 27 at 2 p.m.

Raddant Wins Long Jump

Novi Track Team Places Sixth in SEC

Andy Raddant league champ in the long jump

The Novi tracksters finished sixth in the Southeastern Conference League meet last Wednesday.

Andy Raddant was the only first place finisher for the Wildcats as he tied the SEC record with a leap of 21' 1" in the long jump.

"It was a quality meet with many fine performances," stated Coach Del Munson after Lincoln had won the meet.

Bryant Hammond placed fourth in both the high and low hurdles. "We will definitely miss Hammond next year. He was the hardest worker on the squad," praised Munson.

Ben Galyon was second in the discus but unexpectedly did not place in the shot-put.

The 880 relay team of Andy Raddant, Tom Morris, Joe Sylvestri and Geoff Morse placed a respectable fourth. Morris climaxed an outstanding season with a fifth place finish in the 220. Raddant was also a fifth place finisher in the 440.

Jeff Johnston ran a 10:28 in the two mile. Although he did not place, this was an outstanding time for a freshman, according to Munson.

Johnston placed 12th at the All-Oakland County Freshman Meet and was rewarded by being named "Rookie of the Year" for the Wildcats. Mike Bingham was named the most improved trackster.

Despite only one victory, this was a record breaking year for Novi.

Galyon broke the record for the shot-put as well as setting the school mark for the discus.

Raddant broke the long jump mark and tied the record in the 440.

Jeff MacDermaid and Tom Morris made it onto the record board in the pole vault and 220, respectively.

Tom Morris finished fifth in the 220 yard dash

After working his way into Michigan State University's baseball team's starting-pitching rotation, John Boland, a freshman from Northville, suffered "a shoulder injury."

Boland had starts against Minnesota, University of Miami, Maine and Wayne State.

Coach Dan Litwhiler suggests that next year should be a big one for the Spartan hurler.

The third annual All Trophy Novi Youth Assistance Horse Show will be held Sunday, June 13 at the Quad-L-Farms, 10161 Six Mile Road in Northville.

The show will start at 8:30 a.m. with admission one dollar.

All the proceeds from this show will go towards sending children from Novi to summer camp.

For more information on registration or tickets call Jody Adams at 349-2948.

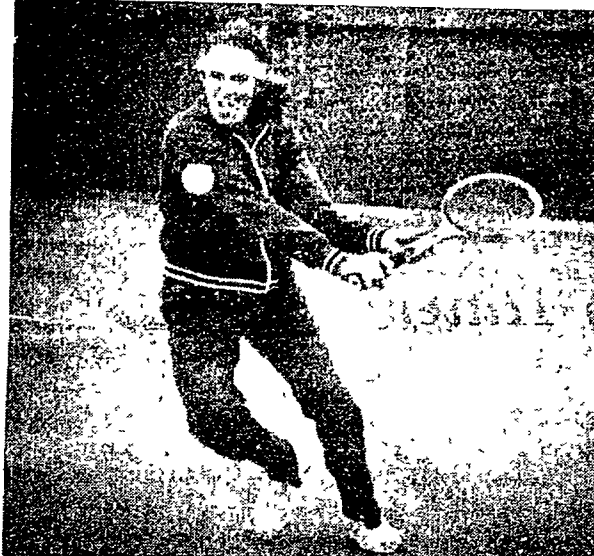

Freshman lefty Pat McAllen of Novi has lifted his record to 7-0 with the Ferris State baseball team.

McAllen boasts 60 strikeouts and a 3.12 ERA.

The local hurler is one win away from tying the record for most victories in a single season.

Ben Galyon placed second in the discus

Bill Spencer of Novi came on strong

Novi Netters Lose To End Season

The Novi netters dropped their last match of the year, 3-4, to Walled Lake Central last Monday to finish the season with a 7-5 record.

Greg Goff, Bill Spencer and Ted Wroebel were the winners for the Wildcats.

"Spencer played exceptionally well to complete a very strong second half of the season," praised Coach Dave Haywood.

Goff finished the year with the best record on the team, 13-5. Tim Kelly was 5-9;

Spencer was 9-8; Wroebel 9-4, all at the singles' spots.

Tuck and Spielman, both seniors, finished with a 9-8 mark and Bill Withers and Barry Skown were 10-6.

John DeBrule and Steve Jones were 3-6 and 4-9 respectively, playing wherever there was an opening.

With a large underclass roster, Coach Haywood is looking for better things next year.

"Withers and Skown started at number three doubles, moved up to two and even played one. I've never seen anyone with more desire to win," claimed Haywood.

On Sports

By KEVIN BRAZELL

Perhaps no other communicators use as many cliches, trite remarks, hackneyed phrases and "Poetic license" as do sports writers and sports announcers.

Dizzy Dean's classic, "He slud into third," is a crude but well-known example. Ring Lardner's vivid descriptions of locker room scenes in both boxing and baseball left the reader almost able to smell the manager's black cigar and to taste the cool beer being sipped by the victors. So many writers now copy Lardner's cliches that their descriptions are often as stale as the locker room air. In fact, parents have mixed emotions about having their kids read the sports pages. The locker room beer, champagne, cigars and cigarettes are mentioned so frequently that kids rarely grow up with any clean-cut stereotype of their favorite sports hero.

Baseball writers and announcers rarely have a better simply "take a called third strike." He has to be left "standing there like the house by the side of the road." Every close game becomes a "real barn-burner" or at least a "cliff-hanger." Scoreless innings show on the scoreboard as "goose eggs."

Long-time New York Yankee announcer Mel Allen had a degree and an excellent vocabulary. However, his "How about that?" caught on and soon Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and millions of others use it. Yet, "How about that?" actually says nothing. Joe Garigiola and Bill Cosby even today still think it says everything.

Joe G. and Howard Cosell have caught on with an equally meaningless phrase, namely "some kind of a hit." It's always "some kind of a play" or "some kind of a hit" or "some kind of a catch, or pass, or tackle, or run, or block," etc. Yet what does "some kind of a" actually mean? Why should almost every sports announcer in the country pick it up as a total necessity in their reporting?

Cosell is equally guilty of the latest grammatical monstrosity, "on the season." Hiller has a 1-3 record "on the season"; Ron LeFlore is hitting .392 "on the season"; Joe Namath has thrown 7 touchdown passes "on the season." English teachers groan and wonder why "this season," "during the season" or even "for the season" could not have been used by the sports communicators instead of "on the year" and "on the season."

If a Rip Van Winkle sports fan came back after a twenty year absence just think of the problems experienced with "red-dogging," "shooting the gap," "full-house," "go for the bomb," "D.H., P.A.T., R.B.I., E.R.A."

Remember the good old days when sports writers wrote about the "flying-wedge," the "suicide squeeze," an "alley-oop pass," a "banjo hit," a "Chinese liner" and a "round-house curve ball"? Now that was really communicating.

Bicentennial Wagon Train

Erica and Leah Brown ride the horses that carried them along with a Bicentennial wagon train. Their sister Shannon doubles up with Leah.

Girls Join Wagon Train

Three Northville girls had the opportunity recently to experience for themselves how the west was won.

Erica, Leah and Shannon Brown, mounted on horseback, accompanied a Bicentennial wagon train wending its way through Michigan.

The Conestoga parade was part of a national wagon train sponsored by the State of Pennsylvania. Wagons from throughout the country are retracing the Oregon Trail — west-to-east this time — and are scheduled to arrive in Valley Forge, Pa., July 3.

The Michigan wagons, including Conestogas pulled by teams of draft horses and mule-drawn carts, left Lansing May 5 and joined the national train in Elkhart, Indiana, May 15.

Erica, age 13, a seventh grade student at Novi Middle School and her sister Leah, age 11, in fifth grade at Novi Elementary, followed the wagon train for six days. They joined the wagons May 11 at Mendon, Michigan and rode along until May 16.

The girls were accompanied by their grandmother, Gwen Grinager of Farmington.

Shannon, a younger sister, also rode with the wagon train several miles.

At night the wagons circled on school athletic fields or public campgrounds.

The wagons from the western end of the Trail began last June. The train averages about 12 miles a day.

Case No F-841

TO THE CUSTOMERS OF CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY

NOTICE OF HEARING ON ACCOUNTING AND RATEMAKING TREATMENT OF AN EARLY RETIREMENT INCENTIVE PROGRAM

Take notice that Consumers Power Company (Applicant) filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission (Commission) on May 6, 1976 for approval of certain accounting and ratemaking treatment of costs which will be incurred in implementing a proposed Early Retirement Incentive Program.

Applicant states that as part of a continuing effort to render efficient electric and gas service to its customers and in conjunction with a reorganization of various aspects of the Company's management as a result of the energy crisis and expanded application of computer uses, Applicant proposes to implement an Early Retirement Incentive Program.

Applicant estimates that while substantial one-time costs would be incurred in the implementation of the proposed Early Retirement Incentive Program, the total of such one-time costs is expected to be more than offset by annual payroll savings achieved through net reductions in the number of employees and lower average payroll costs of employees hired or promoted to fill vacancies resulting from the Program.

Applicant proposes, for accounting and ratemaking purposes, to record the aggregate of the one-time costs incurred in the implementation of the proposed Early Retirement Incentive Program in Account 186, "Miscellaneous Deferred Debits," with a concurrent credit to Account 186 and debit to Account 236, "Accrued Income Taxes," for the related income tax benefit received by the Company in the current year. Applicant also proposes to amortize the amount in Account 186 over a 60-month period commencing with the first month in which one-time costs are incurred, through debits to Account 926, "Employee Pensions and Benefits," and credits to Account 186 for the one-time costs, with concurrent debits to Account 186 and credits to Account 236 for the related income taxes. Applicant further seeks approval for the inclusion of the net balance remaining in Account 186 from time to time in its rate base for ratemaking purposes. The accounting and ratemaking treatment requested by Applicant would, if approved, result in the recovery by Applicant from its customers over a five-year period of the costs incurred in implementing the proposed Early Retirement Incentive Program through inclusion of such costs in utility cost of service. Such cost is not expected to exceed cost reductions to be accomplished through the Program.

Copies of the application may be obtained from the Secretary of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913, or from Consumers Power Company, 212 West Michigan Avenue, Jackson, Michigan 49201, Attention Mr. Paul A. Perry, Secretary.

A public hearing will be held commencing at 9:30 AM on June 18, 1976 in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913, for the purpose of determining what action by the Commission would be appropriate with respect to the relief sought by Applicant. Interested persons may attend the hearings and participate subject to the provisions of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 1954 Administrative Code, Supplement No. 54, R 460.11, et seq.

Jurisdiction in this matter is pursuant to Act 106, PA 1909, as amended, MCLA 460.551, et seq; Act 300, PA 1909, as amended, MCLA 462.2, et seq; Act 3, PA 1939, as amended, MCLA 460.1, et seq; Chapter 4 of Act 306, PA 1969, as amended, MCLA 24.201, et seq; and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, 1954 Administrative Code, Supplement No. 54, R 460.11, et seq.

Northville Grads Named Scholars

Seven Northville High School graduates, who plan to enter the University of Michigan this year, have been named by the university as Regents-Alumni Scholars.

Each year the U-M selects Regents-Alumni Scholars for their "superior academic achievement and their potential contribution to the scholarly community of the University of Michigan."

A certificate for each Regents-Alumni Scholar has been sent to the local high school for the seven schools, and each of the Scholars will receive a $50 honorarium when they enroll in the U-M in September. Financial need is not a consideration in the selection of Regents-Alumni Scholars.

The local recipients are:

Lloyd Wayne Brasure, 542 West Main Street; James Constantin Carson, 16528 Winchester Drive; James Ronald Echols, 10268 Seven Mile Road; Sarah Louise Kunst, 568 Langfield; Mark Alan McDaniel, 212 Ely Drive; Margaret Jean Webber, 44880 Thornapple Lane; and Charles Cana

Wheatley, 44875 Thornapple Lane.

This year there were more than 1,800 candidates for the honor, according to Ivan W. Parker, chairman of the U-M Regents-Alumni Selection Committee. Of these 1,149 were selected.

U-M alumni play an active part in the selection procedure. Finalists, chosen from all applicants for freshman admission, are referred to local U-M alumni for interviews and recommendations. Some 200 alumni participated this year.

'76 Grads To Party

Gwen Marburger, chairwoman of the entertainment committee, along with Mae Sapp, Ruth Whitmyer and Bill Eaton, are nearing completion of plans for the upcoming Northville High School graduation party. Graduates will find the action starting at 10:30 p.m. June 8 and continuing on until 3 a.m. the next morning at which time breakfast will be served.

"We'll have a real super dance band, which has proved to be very popular in the area, and there will be a good M.C.," promises Gil Lahr, head of the publicity committee.

Swimming with lifeguards on duty from 1-3 a.m. is also on the agenda.

Additional help is needed to take pictures, paint, decorate, set up booths, etc.

If interested, call Gwen Marburger at 349-0524.

PTSO to Hear Board Candidates

All school board candidates have been invited to the PTSO general meeting, Wednesday, June 9, in the Northville High School cafeteria to present their goals for the high school, as well as their solutions for present high school problems.

An informal discussion will follow the individual presentations.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 with the election of next year's PTSO executive board.

Parent candidates for the PTSO board are Al Geisler, Florence Hinman, Bill Hooth, Mary Kelly and Doug Whitaker.

Student nominees are Carolyn Calmes, Michelle Rotta, Mary Wertheimer and Julie Weyburne. Teachers are represented by Sharon

Bucklin, Joanne Cook and Cathy Lilley

Students Enjoy Trip to Toronto

Two Saturdays ago, third, fourth and fifth graders from Amerman Elementary School visited the Toronto Science Center.

The outing, which had been planned since January, required the students to leave Amerman at 6 a.m. They arrived at the Science Center four and a half hours later.

Some of the experiences the children enjoyed were live demonstrations of the laser beam, electro spark and chemistry demonstration. In addition to this, one of the groups planned and participated in producing a TV program.

The children experienced 550 exhibits. Among them were the Hall of Communications, Hall of Life, Science Arcade, Hall of Transportation, Exploring Space, World of the Atom and the Hall of Engineering.

At 4:30 p.m. the group boarded the bus and drove to the Organ Grinder Restaurant for dinner. They returned home at 10:30 p.m.

The group was chaperoned by teachers Pam Grove, Gale Barula, Ron Van Horn, and Jeff Lightfoot. Also accompanying the students were Debbie Leavenworth and Susie Tuckfield.
