

New Northville Library Plans Ready for Unveiling

Pumping hard for the passage of the half-mill township millage ballot proposal, the Northville Library Commission will divert its attention to related library business tomorrow when it meets with members of the city council and the township board.

The joint meeting of the board and council will get underway at 8 p.m. in the township hall.

Purpose of the meeting will be to examine preliminary plans for the new library building and to hear recommendations for its location.

According to Commission Chairman Mrs. Charles Ayers, the library architect Gordon Merritt will disclose interior and exterior designs for the library.

And the commission, she added, will recommend a specific site for the new library near the school board's central administration building. She declined to disclose the exact location prior to its presentation to city and township officials.

"We think the architect's proposal is a very exciting one, and we're confident it will meet with the support of the school board," she said, pointing out that the plans and recommendations will be presented to the school board later in the month if they are found acceptable by the township board and city council.

Although President Ford has vetoed the public works bill that the library commission hoped would provide construction monies for the new library, Mrs. Ayers noted that Congress is expected to override the veto.

If indeed the bill becomes law, the commission is optimistic that application for 100 percent of the construction monies would be approved.

The commission bases its optimism on these factors:

Wayne County has one of the nation's highest unemployment figures... and the public works bill is aimed at putting people to work; plans for construction of the new library will be completed... a requirement of the bill; and the Northville application will be endorsed by three Wayne County governmental agencies... the city and township of Northville and the Wayne County Federated Library system.

Even if the library application is approved, however, Northville would not have the new facility completed prior to next June's expiration of the lease

Gucken Elected Board President

Sylvia Gucken was elected president of the Northville Board of Education Monday — the first woman in Northville history ever to hold the post.

Her election by fellow board members, together with the election of other officers, took place without dispute.

(Coincidentally, Novi also elected its first woman school board president Monday. See story on Novi Page 1).

Mrs. Gucken assumes the role previously held by Dr. Orlo Robinson, who retired from the board.

Others elected unanimously were John Hobart, vice president; Dr. Robert Mandell, secretary; and Karen Wilkinson, treasurer.

Mrs. Gucken previously served as the board vice president, Mrs. Wilkinson as secretary, and P. Roger Nieuwkoop as treasurer.

Earlier, the two newly elected board members, Mrs. Marjorie Sliger and Christopher Johnson were sworn into office. They attended their first official board meeting on Monday.

Mrs. Gucken, who will be 35 next week, was first elected to the board four years ago. Born in Butler, Pennsylvania, she received a BS degree in education from Pennsylvania State University in 1962, taught for Pennsbury Schools in Fallsington, Pennsylvania, and Livonia Public Schools.

A former substitute teacher in the Northville system, she has served as president of the Amerman PTA, legislative chairman of Amerman PTA, vice president of the Northville PTA Area Council, and was a member of the VIP committee, DARTE steering committee, and the Year Round School Steering Committee.

She lives at 307 Sherrie Lane.

As president, Mrs. Gucken plans to appoint board members to six board subcommittees within a week. The subcommittees include finance, facility, personnel, curriculum, policy and negotiations. As has been board policy, however, any board member may attend any meeting of these subcommittees.

In other business Monday, the reorganized board re-established the second Monday of each month as its official regular board meeting. In addition, the

Principals Get New Positions

Michael Janchick, presently a principal at Meads Mill Middle School, is being shifted to the newly created post of administrative assistant for operations.

The school board made the reassignment Monday by unanimous vote.

At the same time, it was announced that Ronald Horwath, who has resigned as personnel director, is being made principal at Meads Mill Middle School and that David Longridge is being shifted from Meads Mill to Cooke Middle School as principal.

In addition, Eddy McLoud, an assistant principal at the high school, has been named assistant principal for Affirmation of grade restructuring and continuation of year-round school in the high school was voiced by the Northville Board of Education on Monday.

The board's position means that the shifting of the ninth grade to the middle school and the sixth grade to the elementary school planned for this coming school year will stand. It also means year-round school will continue at all grade levels.

Discussion of the matter had been prompted by citizen protests, especially concerning the grade restructuring.

Although the board took no votes on either matter, polling of members by the board president indicated that all members, including the two newly elected trustees, support the planned grade restructuring as well as continuation of voluntary year-round school (ESY) through the high school.

Trustee Christopher Johnson, however, questioned the wisdom of continuing ESY at the high school level in view of dropping ESY enrollment and an apparent lack of interest by a majority of students there.

He noted that only 10 percent of the high school enrollment next fall is expected to be in the year-round program.

To get a better handle on the popularity or lack of popularity and economics of the high school ESY program, Trustee Marjorie Sliger requested that ESY enrollment figures be provided in February for board review. Others, however, suggested that it may be a year or more before such figures can fairly gauge high school popularity for ESY.

The fact that the ninth grade has been removed from the high school attributes in large measure for the declining ESY enrollment at the high school, Superintendent Raymond Spear said.

Strongest supportive board positioning concerned grade restructuring. The central theme of the board's support of the ninth grade and sixth grade shifts was that a change at this late date would seriously disrupt planning by both teachers and students.

All school administrators also support the shift, Spear told the board.

In recent weeks, opposition to the shift has been mounting, especially by high school students who dislike the shift of some of their teachers to the middle school level and the elimination or revision of some of the elective courses offered in the high school.

Speaking as a concerned parent, James Lewis addressed the board Monday and urged that the restructuring be restudied in hopes that a better solution might be reached.

Board members, on the other hand, emphasized that the matter already had been intensively studied and that the decision to make the shifts were motivated primarily by welfare of student education.

Township Salaries To Remain Fixed

Northville Township trustees in a surprise move voted last Thursday to continue current salaries for supervisor, clerk and treasurer for the next term.

They also voted to continue to pay no salaries to trustees.

The vote was unanimous to pay the supervisor $14,000, the clerk, $11,500 and the treasurer, $2,000.

The action came about as a result of an item on the new business agenda seeking a resolution that the treasurer's post be continued as a part-time position for the next two years.

Trustee John MacDonald objected, stating that the board "sets the salary and it is up to the elected official how much time he takes to carry out his responsibilities."

He then proposed that all salaries be set for elected paid officials' terms starting in November.

In continuing the same salaries as now being paid, he said, the public, which is being asked to vote increased millage earmarked for recreation, library and police needs, knows that it is the board's intent to hold the line on other expenses.

He added, however, "you can change it next month if you want."

In the action that obviously surprised Supervisor Betty Lennox and Clerk Clarice

Sass it was stressed that "the salary vote reflects no increase in pay to anyone."

Dr. John Swienkowski in voting for the status quo salaries also voiced the observation that "they can be adjusted later" should township income warrant.

In other action the board continued to table the possibility of a police commission to be created as a liaison with the police department until the regular August meeting.

Supervisor Lennox reported she had contacted DeWitt Township, a community north of Lansing which has a population of about 1,200, and that it has formed a successful commission by resolution with a member from each precinct.

It prepares the police budget with the chief, concurs and makes recommendations on new hirings and on problems, Mrs. Lennox explained, adding that commissioners' attendance at monthly meetings is good as they are asked to resign after three unexcused absences.

The board instructed the supervisor to discuss with the fire chief the request of volunteer fireman Ronald Cousineau for a radio monitor. He had explained to the board in June that he often does not hear calls because of where he lives.

Analyze ESY Continuation

In recommending the continuation of the year-round program at all grade levels, Superintendent Raymond Spear this week provided school board members with a five-page memorandum on the subject.

In it, he discussed ESY from its inception, noted alternatives, and reviewed factors that the board would have to consider if it chose to modify the program by eliminating ESY at the high school.

The major problems of ESY at this point, said Spear, result from these factors:

1. Voluntary program which gives parents the freedom to drop in or out at will.

2. Some parents using the two calendars for 'picking' their child's teacher.

3. Misinformation continually being disseminated by some people.

4. Community growth has slowed and as a result we are not picking up 'new' students as occurred earlier.

5. In conjunction with the foregoing points, the district has reached the 33-percent level of the population that expresses a need for something different. The remaining 66-percent consists of half of who would participate if mandated, and the other half who would resist forever.

6. Until such time as the district has a larger enrollment numbers, particularly at the high school, the program offerings will remain limited, but basically solid. Expanded enrollment means expanded programs which in turn will mean further expanding enrollment.

7. Some resistance continues to come from various people on the staff and, as such, creates difficulties for program promotion and expansion from within.

In maintaining the program, the superintendent advised the board to consider:

1. Most parents and students currently enrolled in the ESY program have made their 1976-77 school year plans and at this late date it is unfair to cancel their program.

2. There will be unhappy and critical citizens if the program is maintained with the present projected teacher-pupil ratio, but there will be most likely an equal number of unhappy people if you take away the options.

3. The program is very strong at the K-6 level. This 'younger' segment of the school population has the right to expect program availability as they progress through the grades.

4. Operation of the ESY demonstration site (for which the district is receiving

Wedemeyers At Seminar

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wedemeyer of Nine Mile Road, Northville, recently attended a laymen's seminar on the campus of Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Nearly 3,000 persons from across the United States and Canada were guests of the University for the four-day event.

Featured speaker for the seminar was ORU founder and president, Oral Roberts. Richard and Patti Roberts, the World Action Signers, and Reflection, regulars on the Oral Roberts half-hour weekly programs and one-hour prime-time quarterly television specials, performed for seminar guests.

In addition to the 19 major campus buildings, the guests had an opportunity to visit University Village, a complete retirement center for 400 residents, established by the Oral Roberts Association and located adjacent to the campus.

Oral Roberts University, in its 11th year of operation, has an enrollment of some 3,500 students.

Green Auction

Bids and laughter are evoked by Mary Ware who brought out her straw auctioneer's hat Monday to sell plants donated by members of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association at their annual picnic-plant auction in the old library building in the Mill Race Village. ## Births

Paul Candela Sets Record

"He's a beautiful big boy," commented the proud mother Paul Jay Candela, who arrived last Saturday, July 10, at Providence Hospital with a birth weight of 12 pounds, 4-and-a-half ounces.

He was born to Nancy and Vincent Candela, residents of Bedford Road in Northville since April. He was 21-and-a-half inches long.

Mrs. Candela isn't certain that her new son broke hospital records for weight, but he is the largest her physician, Dr. Paul Muske of Brighton has delivered. He was named for the doctor.

She adds that all her children were "good-sized babies." The new arrival joins three brothers and a sister, Maria, 15 months old, at home. Maria weighed 10 pounds, 2-and-a-half ounces and a nine year old brother Dino weighed 11-and-a-half pounds. Other brothers are Vincent, 12, and Darren, 6.

A grandmother, Mrs. Irene Pearson, lives in Wixom.

The baby's paternal grandfather, Emanuele Candela, of Detroit, is currently vacationing in Italy. The baby also has an 89-year-old great-grandmother, Mrs. Julie Norwalk, living in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chedrick, Jr., of South Lyon announce the birth of their first child, Lynn Marie, June 24 at Garden City Hospital. Their daughter's birth weight was eight pounds, four ounces.

Mrs. Chedrick is the former Mandy Schroder of Northville.

Their new daughter is part of a five generation family with maternal grandparents being Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Schroder of Ridge Road in Northville. Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Del Campbell of Tower Road in Salem Township. They are former Northville residents.

Great-great grandmother is Mrs. Otha Cole of Tower Road.

Mrs. Meta Schroder of Norton Street in Northville is a great grandmother.

On the paternal side of the family are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chedrick, Sr., of Scott Avenue in Northville, grandparents, and Paul Petrosky of Seven Mile Road in Northville, great-grandfather.

The baby's parents both are Northville High School graduates.

In Our Town They 'Camped' In Swiss Luxury

By JEANDAY

LA MOUBRA, a top Swiss mountainside camp overlooking the Rhone Valley, has to be a camp in name only, according to the report of the B. William Secord who stayed at the beautiful site in Montana-Cranz on their tour with the University of Michigan Alumni in June.

"It was one of the nicest trips we've been on," says Terry Secord as she describes their blue-sky days. With the charter group they also spent three days in Lucerne and two in Geneva after flying to Zurich.

Many years ago, Mrs. Secord explains, La Moubra's buildings were constructed to be a sanitarium. They now are used for an international children's camp during the summer. When U-M Alumni officials were seeking to expand their alumni family vacation program, she adds, they were able to obtain the facility for the once-a-year Swiss trip.

AN ARCHEOLOGICAL study trip will take Jennifer McLaren to Israel this Saturday for a month. With 10-15 other students and two professors from Alma College she is flying to Tel-Aviv and will go to near-by Tel-Aphek to work on excavations.

Jennifer is the daughter of the Wayne McLaren of 42243 Nottingham. She will be a junior and a resident advisor at Alma in the fall. She was a member of the college's well-known Highland Dancers until recently. As an archeology-religion major, she explains, she just didn't have time for the Scottish dancing, too.

After three weeks at the archeological site, the group will spend a week touring before coming home.

THE WILLIAM Bingleys' trip to Hawaii this month was an early silver anniversary celebration for the couple, who will be married 25 years on November 20.

Mrs. Bingley, the former Martha Chappell, is a registered x-ray technician at Northville State Hospital. Their trip was a convention of the x-ray technicians' organization. The charter group returned last Saturday after 10 days on the islands that included touring by bicycle.

PACHYSANDRA cuttings were distributed to all 40 women attending the July meeting of the Northville Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association Monday in the old library building in the Mill Race Historical Village.

Mary Ware, a member of the group's civic improvement committee, guarantees that the cuttings would root in either water or soil but warns that "nothing is free." Each recipient, she says, is to return two or more plants next May to her or chairman Barbara Yoder to create a parking lot planter in Northville.

Members walked up the brick path to the white restored building carrying picnic baskets for the annual potluck. It was followed by a plant auction with Mrs. Ware serving as auctioneer. Coaxing bids ranging from 25 cents upward, she raised $94 for club projects. A bargain of the afternoon was the flourishing hanging basket donated by Mrs. Yoder and purchased by Verna Wall for $2.50.

Barbara O'Brien, presiding as the new president of the garden club, announced that tickets for a fall tea and flower show on September 16 would be $1.50 and were being distributed to members.

The event will be a scholarship benefit for which Veronica Daraban is opening her Edenderry home. Theme of the flower show is "Horizons," which, Mrs. O'Brien relates, is taken from the third phase of the Bicentennial with the focus on the future.

Members will be making floral arrangements for the tea under the direction of Ruth Whitmyer.

FOURTH RECAP—Northville Historical Society, which worked with the Northville Jaycees for months to insure that the Bicentennial Fourth of July in Northville would be memorable, reported this week that Mill Race activities also proved profitable for the society.

About $1,500 was realized for work at the restoration, Nancy Bohn tallied, adding that it is "practically a clear profit" as members donated lemonade for the stand which sold $275 worth as well as items for the white elephant booth which raised $450.

The "kissing booth" run by Valerie Smith yielded a sweet $28 with other monies coming from the raffle, for which items were donated.

Lucky winners were Martin Rinehart, rocking chair; Coleen Deibert, brass rubbing; P. LaFevre, Plymouth Hilton Inn weekend for two; Pat Stringer, necklace and ring; Mrs. D. C. Laramie, hanging plant; Roland Bonamici, hand woven pillow; Robert Horner, gift certificate from Sunflower Shop; AnnMarie Stockhausen, Barn Door Antiques certificate; Mrs. Buell, hand woven basket; Mrs. H. J. Bergum, Moonkin's toy.

While names were being drawn, Mrs. Bohn notes, Gee Bee Sales offered a necklace, making an 11th prize, which was won by Mary Coleman.

Carol Butske with Mrs. Bohn coordinated events with the Jaycees. Lorraine Thrush was in charge of the white elephant booth while Elizabeth Joslin arranged for the lemonade stand. JoAnn Harris headed the society's educational booth. Bob Reed made arrangements for the militia unit at the 2 p.m. ceremony.

The dramatic presentation depicting "early Northville" given throughout the day in the old library building was enacted by members of the Northville Bicentennial Players (NBC Players) under Cheryl Gazlay.

For many July 4 visitors, it was a first-time trip into the Mill Race Village. Northville Quester members were in costume in both the Hunter House, which is in the last stages of restoration, and the Victorian Yerkes House, on which work is commencing. The antique society volunteers were recruited by Virginia Hayward to provide background information to the visitors.

Displays of costumes and quilts in Hunter House were arranged by Rose Marie Smith and her daughter, Valerie.

Signatures also were gathered for the historical society's "name" quilt, a project begun by Barbara Scantlin and taken over by Shirley Millard when she moved.

Only about 39 more names (at $5 each) are needed for the blue-and-white quilt which will be a keepsake displayed in one of the village houses.

In place of a July meeting, Northville Historical Society members are planning a family picnic for 1 p.m. Sunday, July 25, at the Mill Race.

FROLICKING little figures in old-fashioned costumes replaced the grand marshal of other years in the Bicentennial Fourth of July parade as any children with colonial costumes were invited to "wear them and march."

One young marcher was garbed as Betsy Ross in full skirted-dress and cap. Ti Morrison's costume was made especially for the parade by her mother, Mrs. James Morrison of Six Mile Road, who also made outfits for Brandi, Amberly, James and Ryan.

Not only did she sew for all five children, but every stitch was done by hand as she does not have a sewing machine.

Wed in Sebewaing

Ensign Jeffrey R. Pearce of Athens, Georgia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pearce of 22905 Talford in Novi, claimed Martha Beth Irion of Howard City as his bride June 12 in Sebewaing.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clemens Irion of Sebewaing.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's bridal gown of ivory satin with fitted bodice fastened from round collar to waistline with tiny covered buttons. It's train and the imported French silk tulle veil edged with Chantilly lace were both chapel length.

Her colonial bouquet was of white roses with dark and light blue star flowers.

Barbara Irion of East Lansing was maid of honor for her sister in a floor-length light blue gauze gown. In Empire styling, it featured ivory lace cap sleeves.

Leslie Pearce of Novi, sister of the bridegroom, and Dana Schultz of Holland were bridesmaids in gowns styled like the honor maid's. All wore ivory picture hats and carried colonial bouquets of white roses and blue star flowers.

Larry Zimble of Kalamazoo was best man, assisted by groomsmen Tim Irion, brother of the bride, and Ron Bos of Farmington Hills.

A buffet dinner-reception for 400 guests was held at the American Legion Hall, Unionville, following the ceremony.

Couple to Live in Arizona

When Claire R. DeBrule became the bride of William F. Everson in a 3 p.m. ceremony June 26 at Our Lady of Victory Church, the bridal bouquet she carried had been made by her bridegroom.

It was a cascade arrangement containing orchids, Eucharist lilies and white roses with ivy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. DeBrule of 23034 Ennshore Drive in Novi. Her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Everson of Taylor.

Ninth Symphony for the processional and Bach's "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring" for the recessional.

As she was given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory Qiana gown with v-neckline and brief, capped sleeves of embroidered lace. Her sheer, floor-length veil was edged with matching lace.

Her gown and those of the bridal attendants were made by her sister, Denise Collins, who was a bridesmaid as was another sister, Aline DeBrule, and Denise Waddell of Southgate. Anne Padgett of Novi was honor maid.

Their halter-type gowns of Qiana had chiffon print capeslets. The honor maid's was rose with the bridesmaids' dresses in shades of pink. All wore a bridal pink rose and baby's breath tucked in their hair on one side and carried arm bouquets on pink asters, roses and majestic daisies.

'Police Base Station'

The two man control panel which will be installed in the Novi Police Department as part of the new West Oakland County Radio System is just one part of a complicated communications system which will be servicing Novi, Milford, Walled Lake, Wixom, White Lake, Wolverine, South Lyon, Kensington Park and Camp Dearborn Police. The system, paid for basically by a $300,000 grant, comprises four separate low band frequencies and includes channels for emergency use, data channel, car-to-car channel and a channel for detective bureau use. Repeater stations are located throughout the county. A 120 foot tower will be located at the Novi Police Department for the system. The system may be operative by September 1.

School Meetings Change

Beginning July 22, the Novi School Board will be holding school board meetings the second and fourth Thursdays, a change from the first and third Thursdays on which board meetings were held for the last year. In addition, the board meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. Meetings will be held on a rotating basis with sessions both at the administration building and at the schools within the system. For a complete list of meetings and their locations, see page 5-C.

Auto Dealerships Eyed Near Twelve Oaks

Potential sites for up to three automobile dealerships and a hotel would be provided across Novi Road from the Twelve Oaks Mall if a rezoning request is approved by the Novi City Council.

The planning board went on record last week in favor of the joint request by Novi Associates, Thompson-Brown Company and Redford Sales and Service for a rezoning of 26 acres of property west of Novi Road and south of 12 Mile from R-1 F (single family residential) to B-3 (business).

The city council will hear the request Monday,

July 26 at the High School Commons in an 8 p.m. meeting.

Owner of the property, according to Project Manager Richard Yetke, is Novi Associates, which is a partnership of Dayton Hudson Properties, the Homart Development Company, and the Taubman Company.

The property, he said, is open to Redford Auto Service and Sales, a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership on an option contingent on the rezoning of the property.

According to a letter from John P. Weber, regional Manager of Real Estate sales for Dayton Hudson, "our petition for rezoning of this 26 acre parcel is being proposed with the idea of providing a Chrysler Plymouth automobile dealership, as well as potential sites for two other automobile dealerships and a possible hotel."

Weber was on vacation and could not be contacted by The Novi News. Also unavailable was William Bowman who represented Thompson-Brown at the planning board meeting.

Hugh McVeigh, president of Redford Sales and Service, said that Weber's letter was incorrect and that there are no definite plans to put a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership on the property.

"I don't have any specific plans," said McVeigh. He explained that before an auto dealership can be established, it must get a franchise from the company.

"It would be very presumptuous to say there will be a Chrysler dealership," he added. "We have to take one step at a time."

In addition, McVeigh said that the company, as owner of the property, may sell off parcels to other dealerships.

Yetke added that while the property will be sold to other concerns including possibly a hotel, any negotiations would be very preliminary.

Yetke also said that there will be some strings attached to the sale although "I'm not sure exactly what they would be."

"The kinds of restrictions we're talking about are design," he added.

Chuck Cairns, planning consultant for the city, told the planning board that the rezoning and planned development "is a logical expansion of a non-residential district in this area in this district because the nature of this area will change." He noted that the zoning to the south is commercial and called the plan an "orderly progression" when considered in relation to nearby property.

The planning board, in discussing the dealership idea, learned that a bump shop is permitted as an accessory use in the B-3 district.

The recommendation for rezoning was approved unanimously by the planning board.

At the same planning board meeting last week, the board recommended approval of construction of an access road into the 26 acre parcel with the entrance immediately opposite the southernmost entrance to the shopping center on Novi Road.

The access road will allow an entrance to property landlocked behind the highway department's right-of-way along Novi Road near the freeway. The access

Probe Regional Fire Plan

Everyone agrees that it's only in a talking stage, but several Oakland County communities are eyeing the possibility of what could ultimately become a regional fire system.

At this moment the fire chiefs in the 144 square miles of the original townships of West Bloomfield, Novi, Commerce and Farmington are awaiting a decision from the city managers as to whether a study will be funded to determine the feasibility of such a regional system.

A meeting was set for yesterday (Tuesday) at which the city managers were to hear a presentation from Public Administration Services, an administrative consulting firm from Chicago and were expected to report back to their respective councils with some price figures.

The communities, if they decide to proceed, will probably be expected to fund the study on an SEV (state equalized valuation) basis, according to Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall. It may be discussed at Novi's Monday council meeting.

The whole thing began when Farmington Hills contacted Novi when it learned of the possibility that a fire station would be constructed in southeast Novi, only a short distance from the Farmington Hills station in the Industrial Park on 10 Mile at Grand River.

"Farmington Hills seemed concerned that we are studying a new fire station in southeastern Novi in close proximity to their existing station and therefore deemed it necessary to explore a regional concept as soon as possible," according to Novi City Manager Edward Kriewall. He added that he still expects Novi will need a fire station in the southeast area.

The original talks ballooned to include the four township areas.

"There are a lot of problems to be worked out," says Novi Fire Chief Duane Bell. He cited problems of combining volunteer departments with paid departments and coming up with uniform pay rates. In addition, he noted the necessity of changes in

Mrs. Pelchat President

Novi School Board members Monday named Sharon Pelchat, a four year veteran, as president of the board for the next year.

The rules requiring a secret ballot were suspended as the board unanimously named Mrs. Pelchat president. She abstained from voting.

Joel Colliau was name vice president. John Milam, a new school board member, was elected treasurer while

The proposed use plan for the Wixom Municipal Park was unveiled and on public display for the first time following the parkland dedication ceremonies held in the city July 4.

The large colored map was closely scrutinized by many throughout the day and appeared to be well accepted by the public, commented Parks and Recreation Director William Abrams.

The plan was also well accepted by members of the commission at its meeting last week, although planned priorities for the park will not be discussed until the August meeting.

Before proceeding with plans, the commission has called for a joint meeting with the city council and planning commission. That meeting is scheduled for July 20.

Although the meeting is "open", the commission is also calling for a public hearing to gain even further resident input in the project.

The plan was drawn up by Kent Smith, a landscape architect with the Oakland County Planning Department. Smith incorporated many ideas of the Wixom parks group along with several new and innovative ideas.

The city provided the topographical and aerial survey maps to the planning department. Abrams pointed out there was no charge for the architectural service.

The department will also work further with the city in the actual development of the park along with filing for federal grants available for certain projects.

Incorporated in the approximately 45 acre parcel is a five hole "par three" or "pitch and putt golf course". That facility will also act as a "buffer zone" to those homes bordering the park. The course could be increased to a nine hole facility.

Three windmills are spotted on the acreage which could provide both energy and a possible water pumping source. Plans also call for a solar powered pavilion in the center of the park.

Making use of a natural bowl in the landscape, planners have included an amphitheatre with permanent seating. Two little league ball diamonds along with play areas for the children dot the area as well as picnic areas and "quiet, restful zones."

A nature study area and arboretum lie to the west side of the grounds with a natural sledding area for winter sports planned for the east side.

From the northern boundary of the park to Glangary Road lies the proposed county-wide Sydney-Waldon bikeway. That portion of land is under the control of the Huron-Clinton Authority.

From the entrance to the park, which lies off Hillcrest in a direct line with Chickasaw Street, a long "S" curve would bring people to the parking area and central facilities of the park.

Taft Bond Resolution Okayed

Though the city of Novi cannot special assess residents for the paving of Taft Road at least until a decision is reached on that issue in Oakland County Circuit Court, a special assessment bonding resolution has been approved by the council.

The bonding resolution would allow the city to immediately sell $103,000 in bonds if Judge William J. Beer should find in favor of the city.

Homeowners along Taft

Road from Grand River to 10 Mile are contesting the special assessment of $10 a front foot on the grounds they are not receiving special benefits from the paving. If the homeowners should win the lawsuit, the Novi School District may also drop its funding of $28,000 over the next 10 years as it agreed to pay only as much as homeowners. The school is not in the special assessment district.

The city had planned on collecting $7,500 from Taft residents with the July tax bills, but was enjoined from doing so until the case is heard. At the request of attorneys for the homeowners, City Attorney David Fried has agreed to hold off the hearing date until a traffic study of Taft Road is done while school is in session.

If the city should lose the suit, it would have to seek another method of funding the share currently sought from the homeowners or it could appeal the decision.

Local Student Starring In Musical 'I Do, I Do'

Cindy Todd, a 1974 graduate of Northville High School, is playing a starring role in "I Do, I Do," at the Points North Repertory Dinner Theater at Northern Michigan University.

The musical play opened June 24 as one of six summer offerings which will run through August 7.

Miss Todd, an accounting major, will begin her junior year at the university this fall. She appeared in several musicals at Northville High School while a student there, and has been in the chorus of two other Northern Michigan University productions — Man of La Mancha and Kiss Me Kate.

During the summer of 1974 she toured Australia as a member of Musical Youth International.

Miss Todd's current role as Agnes is her first lead. She and co-star James Hall, of the Utica-Rochester area, are the only two characters in the play.

A review of their opening night by The Mining Journal of Marquette, gave the two performers high marks for both acting and musical ability.

CINDY TODD

Miss Todd is the daughter of Isabel and Beecher Todd of 488 Welch in Northville.

Mrs. Todd says she credits Northville High School drama teacher Kurt Kinde and music instructor Anita Kaloussdian with arousing Cindy's interest in the theater.

In addition to "I Do, I Do," Miss Todd sings with the chorus of "Two Gentlemen of Verona," another of the Points North repertoire.

The university theater company also tours through the Upper Peninsula.

Five-year class reunions are scheduled by both Northville and Novi alumni of the Class of 1971. Sponsors of both reunions slated for August are anxious to contact class members with parents and classmates asked to "spread the word."

Northville High's reunion picnic will begin at noon Saturday, August 14, at Maybury State Park in the picnic area located off Eight Mile Road.

Beer, pop and charcoal grills will be provided for the

America, The Ludicrous

O ludicrous is he who cries
"America's gone nuts, and as for all them Commie spies
I'd like to kick their butts!"
O ludicrous! How ludicrous!
to shed thy scorn with glee—
"She ain't no good, he's just a hood them freaks should not be free!"

O ludicrous are they who care for "Freedom", yet profess they'd rather see a thoroughfare instead of wilderness!
O ludicrous! How ludicrous!
God knows our nerves are raw, but if our goal be self-control
there oughta be a law!

O ludicrous inglorious jail,
it keeps creating strife;
men struggle but to no avail, there's surely more to life!
O ludicrous! How ludicrous!
to grovel and to whine, man has the key to unity—
it's knowing he's divine!

O ludicrous are all who think we can't transcend our tears; humanity is on the brink give us a few more years!
America! America!
look through thine inner eyes;
love ALL mankind and then you'll find
I've ceased to satirize!

Home Decorating with

Lois & Howard Green
Lots of space and not much furniture? There are a number of ways to make your furniture fill more space. A butterfly table, for example, can be opened to its full oval and covered with a large piece of felt fitted to hang to the floor. This makes a substantial wall piece, instead of a light piece of rather leggy furniture. A nest of tables can also be used against the wall, with a fairly large picture hung low over it — a beautiful way to take up space.

Why not try to re-do that piece of furniture to get a new outlook on it! At GREEN'S CREATIVE HOME CENTER, 107 N. ## Laurie Day Attends Science Seminar

Laurie Day, Northville High School senior, was one of seventy-five students participating in the first annual "Women in Science" seminar held recently at Tri-State University, Angola, Indiana.

The five day seminar, designed to give high school students and recent graduates information about careers in science for women, featured lectures and presentations by successful women in the fields of biology, forestry, mathematics, chemistry, microbiology, nursing, dietetics, veterinary medicine, pharmacy and computer science. Students also gained experience in solving laboratory problems in biology, chemistry, physics and computer use.

In between their busy schedule of labs, lectures and discussions the girls used their free time for recreation including swimming, tennis, volleyball and softball.

Peter Hippensteel, associate professor and professor in charge of Biological Sciences at Tri-State, served as seminar coordinator.

Miss Day is the daughter of Jean Day, 20359 Woodhill Road.

Donations Sought For July Auction

Donations for the upcoming Knights of Columbus auction to be held in the Our Lady of Victory church parking lot are being sought.

"We'll take anything that is saleable," says project chairman Ronald Metty. Arrangements may be made for pick-up or delivery by calling any of the following persons:

Metty, 348-2655; Jim Cole, 348-9217; Jay Surgue, 349-3350; Walt Zabinski, 349-0413;

Dick Formella, 349-6343; or Paul Folino, 349-1473.

Prior to the auction, to be held on Saturday, July 24, a preview of the materials to be sold will be held from 9 a.m. to noon when the auction begins.

Proceeds from the sale will be used to help beef up Council 6762's building fund. Members of the Knights of Columbus council are hopeful to one day construct a lodge for its activities.

Recreation Group Maps Millage Campaign Here

Despite a small turnout for an organizational meeting last week, township and city residents are mobilizing their forces in an effort to pass a millage that would insure a continuing city-township recreation program.

If passed on August 3, the one-half mill increase would not only maintain this year's 12-month long recreation program, but would increase next year's offerings, according to Charles Froberger, Northville Parks and Recreation director who oversees the joint city-township recreation program.

"And it would mean reduced fees for township residents, too," adds Marcie Colling, an organizer of a group called Citizens for Township Recreation (CTR).

Directors of CTR include Dave Mitchell, chairman; Marty Rinehart, information committee; Jim Armstrong, treasurer; Mrs. Colling, publicity; and Jim Nowka, voter contact.

The millage would raise $45,000 a year over the next five years, according to Mrs. Colling. Currently, the township's share of the recreation department's total $68,900 budget is $38,600, including a tractor and Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds, says Froberger.

Mrs. Colling says she was disappointed that only eight people attended last week's, Wednesday's, meeting held at the township office.

"It's not that there's opposition to the millage increase, it's just voter apathy," she insists. Mrs. Colling adds that there are a lot of people willing to work to pass the millage.

"We're contacting baseball coaches and recreation supervisors to help us pass out broad sheets door-to-door that urge voters to support the millage," Mrs. Colling says.

An intensive, precinct-by-precinct voter identification drive, also is underway to insure that people supporting the millage vote on primary day in Michigan.

Money for printing the broadsheets is coming from CTR supporters, Mrs. Colling says, who notes that her group has approached people at baseball games asking for donations.

"We want to raise $100 for the broadsheets and if we raise $200 we'll be able to advertise," she says.

CTR contends that a millage increase would have a minimal impact on the taxes of the homeowners.

A home with "a fair market value" of $20,000 would mean that a homeowner would pay $5.00 a year over five years, according to CTR.

A home valued at $30,000 would result in a tax of $7.50 over five years; a $40,000 home would mean taxes over five years of $10; a home appraised at $50,000 would be taxed at $12.50 over five years; and a $60,000 home would raise taxes $15 per year for five years.

"This would actually result in a savings for a township resident who took part in the recreation programs because the fees of these programs would be reduced once the millage is passed," claims Mrs. Colling.

CTR will hold another meeting 8 p.m. Monday, July 19 at the township offices.

Crafts Projects Boosted

With a little imagination, effort, and free time, young artists in the community will have an opportunity to create some interesting craft projects by enrolling in one of the craft workshops at the Northville Public Library.

In Corps

Chris Hodson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Hodson of 404 West Main Street, Northville, has been selected for the Peace Corps. She left Monday and will be stationed in Santiago, Chile, for two years. A graduate of Eastern Michigan University with a BA degree in Foods in Business, she was most recently food production supervisor at Win Schuler's in Ann Arbor.

On Thursday, July 22, students in grades one through four will be provided with supplies and instructions for making paper mosaics and a type of picture known as "Sgraffito."

Students in grades five through eight may attend the second session on Thursday, July 29. With all necessary supplies provided, the youngsters can experiment with "hodgepodge collage" and magazine mobiles.

Both sessions will be held in the library from 10 to 11:30 a.m. with no admission

High School ESY Continuation Analyzed

$50,000 of funding) is directly related to the operational program and program continuation is needed to maintain the operating image as well as the model for implementation. Remember that operating an ESY program has problems as well as merits and both must be considered by districts using Northville's model. 5. The program is meeting the educational and life style needs of many of the district's families, as well as 33-percent of the student body.

6. Some limitation to class options as opposed to the past two years may exist. If the program were to be discontinued at the secondary level, he advised the board to consider these factors.

1. Considerable unrest would again be created with staff in that some 20 teachers or more would have to be reassigned.

2. Rescheduling of high school ESY students will create some problems, particularly to those who are not available now to consider a new schedule.

3. Some (undetermined at this time) improved efficiency in the utilization of teaching staff.

4. More equalization of the teacher-pupil ratio between ESY and traditional classes (but don't forget, there will still be pupil-teacher inequities, re-regenesis, industrial arts, foreign languages and other programs).

5. Possible availability of more classes in established areas, such as four typing instead of three, five English literature instead of three, etc. This cannot be guaranteed, but it is a possibility.

6. Availability of some program offerings to some students which otherwise would not be available because of teacher expertise from a different calendar.

7. Discontinuation could have the effect of making it impossible to re-implement the program at that level; thus, a decision to discontinue must be made with considerable forethought and with long-range vision. Time does not allow for this for the 1976-77 school year.

8. Discontinuation at the high school level will most certainly have a devastating impact on the 7-9 enrollment which would most likely force discontinuation there as well. This in turn could (but not necessarily) cause enrollment shifts at the elementary level which will cause more staff adjustment and even classroom shifting of students, which again becomes most disruptive to all concerned.

9. There will be no significant (if any) direct economic benefits to the taxpayer or budgeting for 1976-77. The only tie between money and the ESY program cancellation would be in relationship to staff utilization and then really only indirectly

Restructuring To Stand Pat

The system's new director of instruction, Nancy Soper, also observed that there is no national, state or local data to suggest that any one grade structure is better educationally than another. It is the structure that best suits the local school system that counts, she said.

Ms. Soper added that had she had any reservations about the new grade structure here she would not have made the switch from the Wayne-Westland school district. She is satisfied that the 6-3-3 structure is a workable, educationally sound arrangement, she said.

Other board members took the position that the attention of the board should now be in seeing that the program is implemented and modified as may become necessary upon implementation — rather than spending more time in debating the pros and cons of the program or considering alternatives.

Trustee Johnson, a 1973 Northville High School graduate now studying at the University of Michigan, said he had examined the planned shift closely and had found that the advantages of the 6-3-3 structure outweigh the disadvantages.

Sixth graders, he observed, should receive about the same kind of program as they previously had at the middle school, the ninth grade program should be improved, and that the reduction of the high school population resulting in elimination of overcrowded conditions far outweighs any disadvantages that may occur.

A related factor persuading him to favor the 6-3-3 plan, he said, is that it minimizes costly busing that would be inherent with alternative structuring proposals.

"The decision has been made," said the other new member, Mrs. Sliger, who observed that a change at this point — after plans have been made by students and teachers — would result in a chaotic condition that would adversely affect the children's education. She, too, cited minimized busing as did other board members.

Actually, the reaffirmation of the planned grade restructuring represents the second time that the board has taken this position. In June the board also affirmed the structuring in the face of public opposition.

Gucken Elected

fourth Monday of each month was established as the date of special regular meetings. All meetings are to begin at 7:30 p.m.

The board cancelled the fourth Monday meeting of this month, but reserved the date as an open study meeting to hear the recommendations of the Northville Library Commission relative to new library plans.

At the modified suggestion of Mrs. Sliger, the board decided to require roll call votes whenever a vote is not unanimous. She originally suggested a roll call vote on every issue — a position shared by Johnson and Nieuwkoop, but other members saw such a procedure as an unnecessary, time-consuming process.

An executive session of the board is planned tonight to establish board position on economic matters related to teacher contract negotiations.

Concerning negotiations, the board's attorney on negotiations, Thomas Schwarze, expressed optimism relative to negotiation progress. He pointed out that roadblock toward settlement of non-economic matters had been broken and that consideration of economic matters could now begin in optimistic earnest.

The board also readopted its bylaws, established Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit as the official depository of funds, authorized the treasurer to make deposits, and authorized the administrative assistant to sign activity account checks.

Township Salaries To Remain Fixed

Clerk Sass reported that she has contacted Dearborn and notified the city that the township will want to rent up to 10 voting machines at $50 each per election plus cartage for the August primary and the November election.

She stated she has asked the man in charge of setting up Northville Township's machines to check them over and let her know exactly how many will have to be replaced with rented units. She is continuing to check into computerized election systems, she said, for later use.

Trustee James Nowka questioned whether it might be possible to have a back-up machine available in event of election-day trouble with any of the present machines. Only if an added machine is rented from Dearborn, Mrs. Sass stated.

"At the last election we were repairing the machines with rubber bands and paper clips," observed Clerk Sass.

At the request of Trustee Richard Mitchell the allocation for library study funds approved previously was transferred to show it as a library expenditure. It had been voted from contingency money.

Frank Martin officially was confirmed as township building official. He previously had been approved by telephone poll.

Regional Fire Unit

chief and district chiefs?" questioned Bell.

He also questioned regarding how the ordering of equipment would be determined.

However, Bell said that he considers the idea to be good.

"It is important to note that the regional concept could mean simply an improvement of the mutual aid pact that now exists between the surrounding communities on one extreme to a governmental authority on the other extreme that would be funded by a millage applied to the respective SEV (state equalized valuation) of each member community," said Kriewall.

Hopes appear to be for skeleton full time crews in each fire station.

Both Kriewall and Bell agreed that any regional plan is a long way off.

"Five years is the earliest unless something can be done a lot faster," said Bell.

"There are a lot of things to be straightened out."

Access road plans also indicate the possibility of an extension of the access road north if necessary.

The planning board unanimously approved the concept of the access road and recommended approval by the state highway department and Oakland County. The council will be addressing the question in the future.

In a related matter, Novi City Council will soon be presented with resolution one, the first step toward establishment of a Sewer Service District to service property west of Novi Road.

The request came from Dayton Hudson to provide sewer for the 26 acres for which rezoning is sought, but City Manager Edward Kriewall said at the last Novi council meeting that he recommended a service district be established for a much larger area.

Obituaries

Tennis-Playing Indian Dies

DAVID MILTON

David Milton, Northville's tennis-playing Cherokee-Apache Indian, was buried Friday morning following a simple graveside service.

The 94-year-old Northville Township resident, who lived with his daughter, Marie, in a mobile home behind Jan Reef's factory on Seven Mile Road, died Wednesday at Pontiac State Hospital.

Mr. Milton had been rushed to Wayne County General Hospital a week earlier and subsequently transferred to the Pontiac Hospital for medical treatment after first being transferred to Northville State Hospital.

His daughter is being housed at Northville State Hospital and is expected to be transferred to a nursing home soon.

Mr. Milton was born near Columbus, Ohio, where he was married, and moved to the Detroit area many years ago. He became a resident of Northville in 1951.

His wife, Gladys, died here on February 8, 1966.

Three years ago when the Miltons were evicted from their Gerald Avenue trailer site, a sympathetic public responded with contributions of nearly $3,000. With the money, a large, modern mobile home was purchased to replace the dilapidated trailer in which they had been living.

Reef permitted the mobile home to be placed on a secluded, tree-lined plot of land behind his factory, and there the Miltons had lived until Mr. Milton became so ill his daughter was no longer able to care for him.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Milton continued to play tennis regularly with his daughter in nearby Cass Benton Park. The couple, walking side by side carrying their tennis racquets, had become familiar to Northville residents.

It was while he was living and working (at Ford Motor) in the Detroit area that he acquired his great love for tennis. Oldtimers remembered that he played with men and women, back in the Thirties, who later became nationally famous tennis players. In those days he rode a bicycle from River Rouge to Detroit Edison's downtown courts and to Belle Isle to play the game.

He also was an accomplished oil painter as is his daughter. And years ago he was a photographer, using his skill in this field to help support himself and his family. In recent years, he and his daughter had been living on a small social security stipend.

There were no survivors other than Marie, who attended the funeral service held at Casterline Funeral Home together with a few friends and representatives of two Detroit Indian organizations.

Officiating at the funeral services was the Reverend George Jerome of Novi, chaplain at Northville State Hospital. Burial was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

RUTHERWIN

Mrs. Ruth Martha Erwin, 80, of 61890 Silver Lake Road in South Lyon, an area resident for more than 50 years, died July 10 in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor, after an illness of several months.

Services were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Casterline Funeral Home, Incorporated, with the Reverend Norman A. Riedel of First Presbyterian Church in South Lyon officiating.

Interment was in Rural Hill Cemetery in Northville with Mrs. Erwin's grandsons serving as pallbearers.

Mrs. Erwin was born November 26, 1895, in Alexander, New York, to Earl and Jessie (Blood) Kidder. She was married to James Erwin. A housewife, she moved to the area in 1925.

road would go southerly from the entrance and would be almost parallel to Novi Road.

Yetke indicated that some of the property where the access road would be constructed is still owned by a private owner.

He said that after the city and Oakland County Road Commission send letters to the state highway department with their approval, The Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation will then study "whether this is something necessary".

If the access road is necessary to provide ingress and egress, Yetke said the highway department would then take steps to acquire right-of-way, pay property owners, and build the road. He added that the Oakland County Road Commission has already said it has no objection. A road commission engineer confirmed to The Novi News that the department has no major objections as long as the entrance to the access road is opposite the shopping center entrance. A traffic signal is expected to be placed there.

Access road plans also indicate the possibility of an extension of the access road north if necessary.

The planning board unanimously approved the concept of the access road and recommended approval by the state highway department and Oakland County. The council will be addressing the question in the future.

Use Plan Unveiled

Besides the centrally located solar pavilion and other park buildings, wheel-spoke paths would cross at a gazebo structure, which could be used for band concerts. The paths then lead on to various activity areas.

A proposed lake would create both a hockey rink and free skating space during the winter months. Both could occur at the same time without interfering with each other due to the planned shape of the waterway.

Walking trails and a possible ski area in the far north section complete the artists rendition of the park.

The Parks and Recreation Commission has allocated $30,000 in this year's budget to begin work on the facility. Realizing that "$30,000 doesn't go far nowadays," Abrams said the commission will "proceed with those things necessary to make the park usable as quickly as possible."

Picnic Set

Western Wayne Alumnae of Delta Zeta Sorority will hold their annual picnic for members and their children next Tuesday, July 20, at Murray Lake.

All area Delta Zetas are invited to attend the day's activities which will begin at 9:30 a.m. They will include swimming and games for the children.

Mrs. Barb Schnarr at 425-4537 may be contacted for more information.

Robert Wilkins was named secretary.

In the organizational meeting for the year, the board also named Frederick Knauer, legal advisor to the board for seven years to another year in that capacity. Retainer was raised from $4,800 plus $600 expenses last year to $5,400 plus $600 expenses for 1976-77.

Retained as auditors was the firm of Janz & Knight, Certified Public Accountants of Birmingham. That firm has been the school district's auditors for 19 years. They will be paid not more $5,300 at a rate of approximately $20 an hour.

Milam, Ray Murphy, and Ruth Waldenmayer, victors in the recent school board election, took the oath of office administered by Superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz.

Speaking for Myself

Bird Mania?

TOM YOUNG

DYNAMITE . . .

The Bird (Mark Fidrych) is the Tigers' hero and now the American League's best pitcher. He has drawn sellout crowds for the last four weeks and is known nationwide. He excites the crowd by talking to the ball and padding the mound. The crowd reacts by making bumper stickers, posters, shirts, signs and rousing applause.

The Tigers are a young team and improving steadily. They are improving because of the confidence they have in The Bird and because of the confidence he shows in them. He praises his teammates for doing a good job and doesn't take all the credit for winning the game.

The things he does on the mound may seem silly to some, but to him they are important. That is how he psyches out the batters from the other team. They are so busy watching him they can't concentrate on their batting.

All in all, the people enjoy enthusiasm and winning and The Bird has brought both to the Detroit Tigers.

Ron Keech

FOR BIRDS . . .

At the risk of sounding 'unAmerican, I say no to Birdmania even though I like Fidrych. Because he is a nice guy, I hate to see him exploited by the news media, management, and trinket dealers.

He's at the mercy of exploiters and fickle fans and I can't remember them ever being kind to a "fallen star." Remember McClain, Score, and Bolinsky? I remember a ballplayer at the plate with tears on his cheeks after being worked over by the "boo birds." This modern gladiator has to deal with loss of dignity, self-esteem and, worse, cynicism.

Nice guys like Fidrych who rise so far so fast can't have a mediocre season and be accepted by exploiters, fans or himself. His antics wouldn't be tolerated; he would be a flake — not an eccentric.

Fans and sportscasters say he should be given a substantially higher new contract. I say no for two reasons. First, I don't believe a "star" system is conducive to the morale of any unit working as a team. Good steady teammates make the Bird possible. Secondly, he and the management signed a contract for better or worse. You wouldn't expect that contract to be torn up if he were having a poor season.

Tom Young

Politically speaking, the township's request for earmarked millage to support police, library and recreation services may be the most practical approach to the problem.

No one can argue with the need for more money if such services are to be continued.

The theory that Northville Township could continue expanding its services without increasing its one mill tax levy was a convenient tool to fight annexation. But it was neither honest nor believable to those persons knowledgeable in affairs of local government.

Personally, I find great difficulty bringing myself to assign great quantities of money directly to agencies, regardless of their worthiness.

As a voter who elects representatives to a political body, I would prefer that the responsibility for all expenditures was placed in the hands of the elected representatives.

In a sense earmarked monies bypass the governing body and go directly to the services.

It may be that next year one mill will produce $80,000, which may, by chance, be adequate for the service for which it is earmarked.

But the amount of money one mill produces varies from year to year depending upon the tax base against which it is levied.

Another year one mill could produce $100,000. Maybe that is more money than the service requires. Maybe the service will decline to use that amount. Maybe.

Or perhaps another service will find its half-mill less than adequate.

At any rate, I firmly believe members are elected to governing bodies to govern. If they fail to perform, they can be replaced.

But if the responsibility for performance is removed from their hands, where does control rest?

In rebuttal to this belief is the fact that not all voters place that much faith in their elected officials. They want to know exactly how and where their tax dollars are going to be spent.

Presumably, they would rather trust a service agency to use the money — whatever amount it might turn out to be.

Surprisingly, the elected township boardmembers must feel that way themselves. They chose to place earmarked tax requests totaling 2½ mills rather than ask for the same amount at-large and assume responsibility for the distribution of its use where it is needed.

One thing is clearly apparent in Northville Township. Regardless of how any money is spent, whether it be additional tax dollars or those already available, stronger budgetary controls and understandable accounting is needed. The looseness which now reigns in departmental accounting must come under close scrutiny of the board.

And boardmembers must understand where and why the dollars are spent well enough to explain and defend the expenditures to the public.

Hugh Lockhart, a Northville resident who has taken an active role in school matters, expressed the opinion there was considerable significance to be noted in the recent Northville school board election.

He wondered, as I do, whether the existing board and the administration had considered the results and weighed what the public is saying.

The election balloting was not close. The two successful candidates far outran their five opponents. Neither followed the "board line" in their campaign statements.

This week (Monday night) these two members were scheduled to take their place on the board.

It might be helpful at the outset of the new term to remind the candidates, as well as the board, what they had to say in their campaign promises that won for them the right to represent the public on the board of education.

One candidate promised: "to hear all sides of an issue rather than rubber stamp administration recommendations"; "input from public, students and teachers should be given fair hearing rather than be squelched"; "to ask the 'hard' questions"; "ESY must be mandated or dropped".

The other candidate promised: "to stabilize, organize, upgrade present services to gain most for dollars spent"; "to tell it like it really is in the schools, eliminate mistakes which get repeated"; "demand more of administrators, particularly in teacher evaluation".

Communications Needed At High School

To the Editor:

I have recently finished the class Personal Communication I and feel it is a crime that I will not be able to continue next year with Personal Communication II. It is a shame to exclude these classes from next year's curriculum; classes that so many people have profited from. P.C. is not a class where we sit and listen to lectures, instead we learn through experiencing things ourselves. We grow as an individual in perhaps a very unique way, we learn and grow from the inside out. We learn just what life is and how to live it to the fullest. No, we can't do it on our own; we do need help growing. We have an example; an example of a very dear and concerned person, our friend and teacher Mrs. Freydl. Mrs. Freydl has taught as more in one semester than any book or other person could teach us in a lifetime. It certainly was a rewarding experience.

I personally feel that Northville's Board of Education is making a great mistake in sending Mrs. Freydl down to the Junior High. We, the students of the Senior High, need Mrs. Freydl. In a recent article, Mr. Tarpinian said she was being transferred to the Junior High to teach humanitarian classes there. Don't we up at the High School need humanitarian classes, too? I know Northville has trouble with their finances, but do the students of Northville really care about our wants and needs? Mr. Spear, Mr. Tarpinian, and all else involved, if you can honestly answer these questions 'yes', then why are you doing us this great disservice? We the students of Northville High School need Mrs. Freydl and both Personal Communications classes.

If it weren't for Personal Communication I, I'm sure I wouldn't be writing this. P.C. has shown me that I'm an individual and that I count. It helped me learn to consider other's rights and at the same time speak up for what I feel is right. I have benefited greatly from Personal Communication I and I'm confident it will do the same for others.

Pioneer Wire Fence

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

He had lived in Northville for nearly a quarter of a century, and even though many residents knew of him and his daughter, few knew much about the man who died Wednesday at the age of 94.

That's the way David Milton wanted it. The Cherokee-Apache Indian was a loner who eschewed contact with the "outside world."

Living as he did in an urban society, he nevertheless clung to age-old customs that set him apart from the people who shared his town of Northville.

His one concession to the world about him was his love for the game of tennis, which he played regularly at nearby Cass Benton Park with his 49-year-old daughter, Marie. Instead of moccasins, he wore tennis shoes . . . constantly.

Mr. Milton reportedly was born on an Indian reservation on the outskirts of Columbus, Ohio where he was later married. Columbus historians, however, told me that while Cherokee Indians lived in the Columbus area — and still do — they were simply part of a collection of Indians who had been absorbed into the community. There have been no Indian reservations in the region for 150 years.

By the time he moved to Northville in 1951, Mr. Milton had built an imaginary fence between himself and those around him. He rarely talked to anyone, and he was suspicious of anyone's offer of help.

When the loss of a home shoved him into the public limelight three years ago, he accepted, though reluctantly, the gift of a new home from sympathetic citizens of Northville.

For awhile it appeared the imaginary fence was coming down. He even enthusiastically assisted my wife and me in erecting a porch on his new mobile home, but after two weeks of regular contact and after the porch was up, his smile dissolved and he ordered us off of the premises.

"Don't come back," were his parting words.

Shortly thereafter he pasted newspapers over all of the windows of his home to assure him the privacy that he demanded.

Even when dying, he refused assistance, and he fought like a tiger when ambulance attendants and township police officers sent him on his way to the hospital where, he knew, contact with the "outside world" would be thrust upon him.

And yet, despite his abhorrence of the society in which he lived and despite the belligerence he wore on his sleeve, David Milton was a gentle caught off guard, displayed an inner peace that few of us achieve.

After having been presented his new home and after walking through it for the first time three years ago, he was asked if he was happy.

Hiding a whisper of a tear, the old man smiled haltingly and said, "Yes, yes. Thank you. Listen. Can't you hear the turtle doves singing?"

When they buried him Friday beneath the locust in Rural Hill Cemetery, the birds were singing yet.

Milton's Death, Land Use, Schools Prompt Letters

Open letter to Northville Citizens:

On behalf of the Michigan Indian Affairs Commission, our state Indian organizations, leaders and individuals, may I take this opportunity to thank one and all for their help in the recent David Milton crisis and his subsequent passing.

I would further like to give special thanks to Mr. Jan Reef, his fine daughter "Marge" and her family, Mrs. A. Hudson of State of Michigan Department of Social Services, the Northville Township Police Department, and Mr. Jack Hoffman of the Northville Record.

Also the Detroit News, Detroit Free Press, Mr. Ray Casterline of the Casterline Funeral Home, the Manuel Perez family, and to say nothing of the dedicated staff at the Northville State Hospital, particularly Reverend George Jerome.

The compassion and community spirit of this city shown towards the Milton family speaks clearly of what an all-American city should be like, and also suggesting what Christianity is all about. As per Reverend G. Hadad of Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church,

"May the great spirit continue to guide you in your endeavors."

I remain sincerely,

Principal of North American Strategic Services

To the Editor:

David Milton, a proud Indian, was laid to rest last Friday — under trees, and among the birds he loved.

I, personally, would like to thank the very nice people who made it all possible: To Frederick Boyd, of North American Strategic Services — thank you dear friend, for making the arrangements, and being so helpful.

To Ray Casterline — for a beautiful and dignified funeral, as well as your kindness and help.

To Reverend George Jerome, Chaplain at Northville State Hospital, for the kind and gentle words — it was a comforting service.

To Jack Hoffman — for his story, his support, and his acting as pallbearer — thank you, Jack.

To Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Perez — for always being so helpful whenever we needed them — our sincere thanks.

And last, but not least, to my Dad, Jan Reef, for always being there, and caring about his fellow man.

Thank you all for your kindness and compassion — it is a good feeling to have friends like this in our community. Northville can be proud of you all.

To the Editor:

Land use planning has been designated a "high priority" item by the eight Leagues of Women Voters in Oakland County as they direct citizen attention to "Issues Not Images" this election year.

In reaffirming land use as it's number one legislative priority this year, the League of Women Voters of Michigan advocates support of a State Land Use Planning Act, Substitute House Bill 4234. This bill preserves essential land areas while maintaining local governmental control over land use planning.

The Land Use Planning Act, Sub. H.B. 4234, according to the League, protects essential lands such as prime agricultural, mineral, forest and fragile lands and designates lands suitable for development.

Local government involvement is ensured because the bill provides for a carefully constructed pyramid of local and county plans to be the basis of the emerging state land use plan. In addition to ensuring participation of local units of government in land use planning, the bill gives citizens access to the land use planning process through public hearings and membership on advisory commissions and boards.

The Land Use Bill is currently in the House Appropriations Committee and has yet to be considered by the full Michigan legislature.

The League states that steady depletion of agricultural lands, which presently produce 50 percent of the food and fiber consumed in Michigan and constitute the state's third largest industry, must be halted and measures must be taken to adequately protect the essential resources of the people of Michigan.

The Leagues of Women Voters of Oakland County urge citizen and legislative attention to this bill. Local, county and state candidates should address themselves to the issue of Land Use.

For all of the beautiful words about how this "progressive" school system offers equal educational opportunities, female students are not getting an equal shake in sports. Girls' sports are limited and often they must fight to retain the ones they have.

One student involved in High School gymnastics told us, "Whenever we tried to get the gym (for practice), basketball always came first. Girls' sports always get the lousy times."

Now we hear that female coaches are not getting equal pay and that the school board knew about this discrimination and refused to do anything about it.

Simply stated: The female coaches need equal pay for equal work.

Girls' sports need equal opportunities. If these two things are not done then the board is, in fact, saying that boys' education is more important than girls' education, in these areas, and by implication, all areas. (After all, we have been told that sports are necessary to a well rounded child.)

This can not be tolerated. Women of Northville, Unite!

To the Editor:

It is truly unfortunate that when a single person's opinion is given public attention it can perform such a disservice.

I'm in reference to a recently published Letter to the Editor regarding the conduct of the Novi Jaycees Men's Softball Team. I have also been in attendance at numerous games this season and can honestly say that the Jaycees newly found critic is to say the least "off base".

Specifically this person attacked the team for extensive use of profanity. The League rules prohibit the use of profanity and its use is grounds for automatic ejection. Did this person indicate if any Jaycee team member has been thrown out of a game this season, or how many other team players had been thrown out of games?

I won't attempt to say that the Jaycees haven't questioned an umpire's call or been upset by the results of one but haven't other teams? All of the members of the League are intent on having a good time and a good season. The two sometimes conflict and tempers will flare. Sports activities are in and of themselves emotionally charged and to condemn one team drastically misrepresents the facts.

The Jaycees are one of the finest community organizations in Novi and their softball team members are human and capable of human error. I only ask that the public make up its own mind by attending some games.

In response to another accusation, the reason the Jaycee team has few spectators at their games is that while some Jaycees are playing softball others are raising money for underprivileged children, Youth Assistance and burn victims or presenting Distinguished Service Awards or cleaning up Novi's parks and roadways or hosting 25,000 people at Gala Days.

Cheap shots should come from a discount doctor — not a Letter to the Editor.

It was our 200th birthday — homeowners on the Northville parade route mowed their lawns, trimmed their hedges, and hoisted their flags. But where was Ray Spear's 'Spirit of '76' in respect to the Main Street Elementary School playground? Wouldn't you think that with the millage having been passed our superintendent of schools could have found a few friends to clean up the weeds and debris?

Approximately five years ago I recall part of the millage having been passed to improve conditions of that very playground. What happened? How much fun is a broken slide or swing, and sand full of glass. Whether the school is in use or not a playground still attracts children during recreational hours. Since the Main Street facilities have gone to seed, we have been forced to seek other areas where our children can play.

When the superintendent was approached on July 3

about the appearance of the grounds which were on the parade route he said, "I sent a man down to clean it." It's not as if this complaint was a new one, for each year the Cady Street residents have asked that it please be groomed for the occasion. However, this year was our Bicentennial, and yet this school property still was a disgrace to the fine efforts of parade participants, taxpayers, and property owners along the parade route.

I would like to ask Mr. Spear, "What happened to your Spirit of '76'?"

To the Editor:

The shore runs along the edge of water. It is rock or sand or moss. Whatever, we can be sure it is a shore. It has, ontologically, a life of its own without the tension of a dialectic. It has made its peace with water, not caring how hot or cold that water is...or if it's warm. The two can face the storm together: symbiotically.

Symbiosis is a natural within nature. Just as symbolism is innately part of human nature, that is ... Us

There is nothing polemical there. No need for diction, for arty fiction; it is the imagery that counts: the natural portrait of each life rests solidly upon that shore and separates us barely from the other yet not so very much we aren't connected by the symbols.

One can't go then to a book and look them up: they're in the paintings of our minds and memories; they are the mystery unspoken carefully connected by a bracelet of synapses or ellipses which make each life a poem (which does not rhyme with home, or to me, or anything for that matter). A poem is not simply idle chatter nor can it be compared to man-made birds, unbecomingly nor is it just a block of words, inscrutable.

A poem often is the vision of a man ironic, or didactically Miltonic. Either way it is sublime and need not be a rhyme.

A poem is a container full of life discerned by symbols we have learned to recognize not through our eyes alone but through understanding, a process not demanding university degrees. Rather it is through thought one sees the fine quintessence the metaphoric essence of the DNA of each symbolic life and expresses it with Language: that sweet technique of man, which, if blown beyond its nadir becomes corrupted by a creator different than God (Who never once has given us the nod to make a sure a shore). We should, instead, abhor such absence of felicity to the simplicity of our words: each one of which is pregnant with man's symbols, and has naught to do with birds.

News From Lansing

By R. Robert Geake
State Representative

It took slightly more than four years to accomplish, but Michigan voters are going to get a chance to decide whether they want a legislature that can spend and tax as much as it wants or one that is limited in both areas.

Going before the people in November will be a proposal to limit state spending to 8.3 per cent of the total income of Michigan residents. In other words, the total income would be computed from the income tax returns and the legislature could not spend more than 8.3 per cent of the total. It puts the state on a budget tied to the economy. When times are good and people are working and earning money, state revenues would go up and more services could be provided. When times are bad and many people are out of work, the state government would have to tighten its belt just as every citizen and family must do.

A group called Taxpayers United, whose membership included many Michigan legislators from both political parties, last week filed over 330,000 signatures on petitions, well over the 265,000 required to place the issue on the general election ballot.

Presently the Michigan budget calls for spending that exceeds the 8.3 per cent figure, so if voters approve the measure there will be a slight reduction in taxes the first year. Any time revenue from taxes exceeds the 8.3 per cent level, refunds to taxpayers would be required.

This proposal was first introduced in 1972 by Representative Thomas Sharpe of Howell, one of my Republican colleagues. Representative Sharpe again introduced the measure in 1974. Supporters of the measure, while pleased at the success of the petition drive, caution that the battle is only half won. In order to take effect, the spending limitation proposal must be approved by a majority of the voters this November.

The deadline for ordering personalized license plates has been extended and they now can be ordered through the end of July at any Secretary of State branch office.

So far, over 6,000 applications have been received for the special plates. Due to the fact that regular license plates will just get tabs in 1977, the license plate factory will be able to concentrate on the special order plates.

They cost $25 above the price of regular plates and are available for the first time this year for pick-up trucks and motorcycles. The money made on the sale of the special plates goes to help clean up Michigan's highways. If you order plates now, they will be mailed to you in mid-November when regular plates go on sale.

New Library Plans Ready Get New Positions

with the Northville Square shopping center where the library is presently housed, admitted Mrs. Ayers.

And there is no guarantee that Northville Square, now under new ownership, will extend the lease and, if so, retain the present annual lease price of $14,000.

Thus, alternative plans for temporary location of the library must be prepared, she said.

Meanwhile, the library commission is mounting a campaign to win passage of the one-half mill proposal that will appear on the August primary ballot together with two other propositions — one for the police department and the other for the recreation department.

The $42,000 that the half-mill will generate for the library "is an absolute necessity, if the library is to operate as a full-functioning library service," the commission chairman said.

Lifetime of the half-mill levy, if approved, will be for five years. It is expected that during the first couple years of the millage, a financial cushion should be generated to help cover the "leaner" last three years of the levy when service expenditures climb upward with inflation, she explained.

Even so, however, almost all of the $42,000, together with an appropriation of $21,000 from the township's general fund budget will be needed the first year. Later, increasing state equalized values should produce needed additional revenues, she said.

The half-mill, Mrs. Ayers said, will provide sufficient revenues to continue the $14,000 annual lease of the Square facility on a temporary basis. It will not provide construction money for the proposed new library.

With the half-mill, the library will be able to continue all of its current services, including professional staffers hired by the Wayne County Federated Library System, open use of all Federated libraries in the metropolitan area by Northville residents, and the interloan of books and films.

It also will mean the continuation of the community service librarian, Miss Ann Vargo, and the services that she provides. Presently, this librarian is being financed through December on an extension of CETA funds.

Services provided by Miss Vargo include: home-bound book service for shut-ins and elderly, coordination of film series, a special monthly program for senior citizens, book study groups and poetry workshops, summer program for senior citizens, book study groups and poetry workshops, summer program for children, and coordination of the Friends of the Library activities.

With the earmarked millage, the library will continue the employment of two pages (shelvers), who also serve as janitors.

During the five-year lifetime of the millage, the library will be able to provide these improvements:

- Operation of an expanding facility to accommodate growing patronage.
- Additional librarians as they become necessary.
- Increasing the hours of the library, which presently is open 44 hours a week during winter months and fewer hours during the summer.
- Increase the circulation of books and periodicals.
- Expand out-reach and other community service programs.
- Increase the audio visual service.

All of these expanded services, together with the continuation of the existing services, means it will be necessary to secure an annual appropriation from the township's general fund, as has been done in the past, and to levy the full one-half mill during each of the five years of its existence, Mrs. Ayers emphasized.

Elimination of general fund appropriations would destroy the effectiveness of the earmarked millage, she said. An estimated $21,000 of annual general fund monies are planned in the library five-year projections to supplement the half-mill.

In addition to the township monies, of course, a corresponding proportionate share of monies will be necessary from the city, she added.

Library financing is jointly shared by the city and township on a formula based on patronage. This year, for the first time in history, there have been more township residents using the library than city residents.

The library's current total budget approximates $60,000, with $30,280 being contributed by the township and $28,900 by the city. The total current budget is some $20,000 less than the commission's recommended outlay for the current fiscal year.

Book circulation, which has hit an all-time high of 86,567, indicates that 51 percent of the book use is by township residents, 49 percent by city residents.

Although the increasing ratio of township users of the library is attributed to the township's more rapidly growing population, Mrs. Ayers pointed out that the move to larger and more attractive quarters is responsible for much of the overall increase useage of the library.

Since the library was moved from the city hall to Northville Square, book circulation has climbed dramatically, from 64,513 to 86,567.

The commission's projected 1978 budget needs approximate $120,000 — a figure that does not include construction monies, Mrs. Ayers noted.

Should the millage be defeated and the township is only able to provide $21,000 from its general fund for its share of the library expenditures, library services will have to be drastically trimmed, she said.

"Personally, I don't see how the library can continue to function adequately in that event," she said. "At some point it becomes a question of whether or not limited services warrant continuation of the library. As a library commission, however, our primary aim is to provide as much as we can with the money that is available to us."

A millage defeat, she said, would necessarily mean:

- Reduction of library hours to 18 hours a week.
- Reduction of the staff to one non-professional librarian.
- Drastic reductions of in-library services, such as assistance in locating books or information for patrons.
- Elimination of the community service librarian and thus, the services she provides.
- Discontinuation of purchase of books except for replacement volumes, and elimination of periodicals.

These kind of reductions and less than minimal library services will affect city residents as well as township residents, she pointed out. Just what the city would do in such an event is unknown.

"Quite frankly, without township patronage a city-operated only library would be difficult to justify economically at the current level of service. To be an efficient, functional library, the city needs the township just as much as the township needs the city," she said.

Another related problem, she noted, is that if services fall to a less than minimal level, the Wayne County federated system may be forced to withdraw its sponsorship in fairness to its other libraries and thus Northville residents — city and township — would have no libraries available to them in the federated system that includes Plymouth and Novi.

Get New Positions

athletics for grades 7 through 12. In effect, he will be serving both as an assistant principal and as athletic director.

Janchick's appointment together with McCloud's reassignment means that all traditional school administrative posts planned by the board, except for curriculum coordinator, now have been filled. Also still open, however, are the positions of director of special education and two supervisors — all for the ISEP program.

Earlier, the board named Burton Knighton as the new director of personnel and Nancy Soper as the director of instruction. Ms. Soper attended her first board meeting Monday. Dr. Knighton is expected to assume his new role later this month.

In naming Janchick to the new post, the matter of salary was tabled pending settlement of administrative salary negotiations. Meanwhile, his salary, according to Superintendent Raymond Spear, is to remain the same as he is now receiving.

The lone dispute concerning this appointment was over whether or not the position of buildings supervisor should continue unchanged.

Trustee Marjorie Sliger, supported by Trustee Christopher Johnson took the position that the supervisor's post should be waived pending completion of a study of operation procedure by a professional firm as contracted by the board for $3,000.

Mrs. Sliger said she feared a "double layer" of administration, pointing out that she was jealous of money outlays that might better be put into the classrooms.

Spear, however, argued that pending completion of the study, the status quo — so far as the buildings supervisor is concerned — is advisable. It could be, he said, that the recommendation coming out of this study may or may not call for the elimination of this post and others.

In view of the problems experienced by the school system over the past year relative to school property maintenance, it is essential that positive steps toward that correction be taken immediately, other board members argued in support of Spear's position.

In effect, the majority of members supported the status quo pending completion of the study — and the other members went along with this position.

UP Rivers Offer Scenic Adventure

The rivers of the Upper Peninsula offer avenues for exploring some of Michigan's most scenic and wild terrain, which can be seen only by canoe, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Three of those rivers, the Tahquamenon, Fox and Manistique, offer spectacular trips ranging from a few hours to several days. These are not "white water" rivers and are safe for family canoeing.

Whichever of these three spectacular Upper Peninsula rivers canoeists may choose, they will see facets of Michigan's water wonderland viewed by few tourists.

The Fox River is a top-notch trout stream and the Tahquamenon and the Manistique rivers offer good fishing for trout, bass, walleye, pike and perch.

A canoe trip on the 90-mile Tahquamenon takes from one to two weeks, depending on how many stops are made, and if sightseeing and fishing are included.

Westernmost Tahquamenon River launch point is near McMillan, off County Road 415. The first five-mile segment is through an extensive willow marsh that lacks campsites. Below that marsh, campsites are numerous. Shorter trips start at the Dollarville Dam, just west of Newberry, or from the Lower Tahquamenon Falls campground to the river's terminus at Rivermouth Campground on Whitefish Bay.

There is a canoe livery and supplies are available on the river at Lower Tahquamenon State Park.

Nature Walks

Guided Tours Growing in Popularity at Kensington Park

The sun was still low in the sky but already it was warm as Robert Hotaling knealt at the side of the shaded path and lifted the broad leaves.

"There, that's a May Apple," he said, pointing to a green golf-ball size fruit. "It's not ripe yet and therefore it's still poisonous. Some people also call the plant a 'Perry Umbrella' because of its leaf. I've tasted the apple in preserves but the taste, for me, wasn't very pleasing."

A naturalist at Kensington Metro Park, Hotaling was describing just one of the hundreds of wild plants that inhabit the area along the two-mile Wildwing Trail.

It was Sunday, shortly after 8 a.m., and the naturalist, wearing the wide brimmed 'ranger' hat, was hosting some 15 people on one of the park's guided tours along one of Kensington's four nature trails.

This Sunday the turnout was considerably larger than expected, and Hotaling was taking his group on a "general" walk while another naturalist hosted a group of 20 or more persons on a walk to inspect wildflowers.

Guided tours are rapidly gaining popularity at Kensington — so much so that the park has begun to schedule specialized walks to better fit the desires of citizens who enjoy the outdoors.

Besides the free Sunday morning walks of general interest, Kensington has expanded the program to include occasional specific study of wildflowers, birds and animal life. It has scheduled history walks to examine areas of the park that once were part of farms and of the now gone tiny village of Kensington, guided nightlife study tours, nature study cruises on water, and it also is planning a water life inspection tours of marshlands.

What's more, two night astronomy cruises also have been scheduled.

And, of course, all of the nature trails are open during park hours for persons wishing to explore wildlife by themselves. To assist them, park naturalists have labeled plant life that occurs along the trails.

Fall and spring are the best time to look for birds and animals, "because that is when they are most active," Hotaling informed his group as he pointed out specific areas where activity most often occurs.

Some 400 different kinds of birds nest in the park, and it has a large number of animals, including deer, he said, stopping on Wildwing Trail to point out fresh tracks of a young whitetail.

Hub of activities in the wildlife sanctuary is the Nature Center Building, which serves as the starting point for all of the trails.

Displayed in the Nature Center are exhibits to assist visitors in understanding the natural environment. During the school year, teachers may make appointments for school visits.

Besides Wildwing, trails beginning at the Nature Center include:

Tamarack Trail — a one-half mile long trail which explores a tamarack bog and several of the ecological communities bordering the bog.

Aspen Trail — a 1¼ mile trail that wanders along the edges of several different habitats, with special places for observing birdlife.

Deer Run Trail — a 1¼ mile trail where wildflowers grow in profusion along a woodland path that winds past a bog and glacial ridge, and through a oak woods and old fields.

Kensington naturalists conduct guided nature hikes along these trails by advance appointment for groups during all months except May, early June and October. "Most of the wildflowers we find in this area," explained Hotaling, "are not natural to Michigan: They were brought in by the pioneers when seeds clung to their clothing or their belongings. For them and most other people today they are looked upon as weeds. But these weeds are often very pretty."

On this particular hike, for example, he pointed out among others, forget-me-nots, golden ragwort, wild roses, red and white clover, Queen Anne's Lace, St. John's-Wort, yellow lily, Black-eyed Susan ("I call them Brown-eyed Susans"), chicory, water lily, early goldenrod, and black snake-root.

For those who wondered about the specks of white clinging to plants, he explained the work of the spittle bug in laying its eggs in this protective foam, and he noted the "galls" occurring particularly on the stems of goldenrod — the plant's harmless cancerous like growth around an insects eggs.

In pointing to a black-eyed Susan, he noted a mosquito drawing nectar from the flower and said, "It's obviously a male because they get their food from plants, while it is the female who bites humans. She does it to draw blood for her young."

Along the way, he pointed out poison ivy, comparing it to the similar but non-poisonous Virginia creeper; poison the volunteers who would follow-up with personal contacts.

Plans Ready For New Novi Church

The drive was formally opened after the 5:45 p.m. Liturgy on Saturday, June 19. That evening the workers themselves pledged over $41,000.

"The money is needed and all of us know it," said Father O'Brien. "What is most satisfying to me, and I am sure I speak for most of our 'family' members, is the fact that so many have participated in the drive. Of those contacted, 81.6 percent have chosen to be a part of the project. "One little seven-year-old even gave us $3 he found in a field. His spirit must be contagious and we are extremely happy that it is."

The average gift, Father O'Brien noted, was more than $300, payable over a two-year period.

Groundbreaking for the new church is expected in September. The building will have a seating capacity of 800.

Around the perimeter of the church will be areas to serve as cry rooms, library, meeting rooms, counseling rooms, pastor's office, religious education workroom, director's office, kitchen and storage.

According to the committee's brochure, "Almost every room has a dual purpose. Even the counseling room is so designed that it will be a confessional and sacristy."

Plans for the new church are the work of the R.J. Hapley architectural firm, assisted by a "family" building commission.

Additional financing for the church will be made available through the Archdiocese.

Members of the Church of the Holy Family in Novi think of themselves as a "family" according to their pastor, Father Kevin P. O'Brien.

Like every family, they want a home of their own. To build that "home," members began a fund-raising drive June 19 which had collected $47,756 in contributions and pledges as of July 1.

The campaign was conducted by a committee of members with the help of 162 volunteer workers. Their goal was $125,000.

Father O'Brien said, "The committee, the workers and the membership themselves are astonished at the results. They are also very proud of the whole project."

The money will be applied to the $575,000 cost of a new church to be built on an 11 acre parcel on the west side of Meadowbrook Road between Ten Mile Road and Grand River.

During its 22 months of existence, the Church of the Holy Family has worshipped at a makeshift altar in Orchard Hill Elementary School.

The parish rejected the idea of employing professional fund-raisers because they believed they had the necessary talents within the congregation to make the project a success.

Leading the campaign were Richard and Mary Collins, general chairpersons; Richard and Helen Hunt, general co-chairpersons; John Roethel, special gifts committee chairman; James and Gwynne Cherfoli, program materials development and training chairpersons; Richard and Kathleen McGuffin, finance and records chairpersons; Don Burch, worker assignment chairman; Pete and Joan Pirog and James and Mary Riley, follow-up committee chairpersons.

The drive was begun the weekend of June 5, with the core committee working late into the night for the next ten evenings, according to Father O'Brien. A brochure was developed for mailing to all members.

Two training sessions were held June 15 and 16, for 'FAMILY' FUND-RAISERS—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hunt, John Roethel, Mr. and Mrs.

James Cherfoli, Mr. and Mrs. Richard McGuffin and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Collins.

New Priest Comes To St. John's Parish

His job is the same, says Father Thomas Thompson, because "there's always the Gospel to be preached." But he admits his surroundings have changed dramatically in the last two weeks.

On July 1, Father Thompson became the new priest at St. John's Catholic Church on M-59, just west of Hartland. For eight years before relocating, he was a member of a pastoral team ministering to two ethnic churches in Flint, one a Slavik church, the other an all black parish.

Sitting last week in St. John's Center overlooking open fields around Hartland, he says his new home is very different.

But he says the responsibilities of a fast-growing church and diverse membership will be challenging in another way.

"I think there's a real need to build a sense of community in a growing area like this," he said. "Many of the members uprooted themselves from neighborhood churches when they came here, and it's important to develop a new sense of belonging."

Born in Owosso, Father Thompson attended seminary for four years in Grand Rapids and Detroit, before studying theology for four years at St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth.

He pastored churches in Battle Creek and Lansing for over three years before moving to Flint.

While in Flint, he was active in the area inter-faith planning group and director of pre-marriage programs for Genesee County. He will continue as a leader of marriage encounter experiences in the area.

He succeeded Father Allan Theis, who was the first resident priest at St. John's.

State Beans—A Cure for Baldness?

By ELMER E. WHITE

LANSING—Beans cure baldness. Or so folks thought in the 17th Century.

The jewelers' "carat" owes its origin to a pea-like bean on the east coast of Africa.

And boiled beans laced with garlic provided a sure cure for coughs and colds in the Middle Ages.

Such is the lore of the bean offered readers in a special cookbook produced under the sponsorship of Michigan's Bean Commission and Bean Shippers Association.

"BOSTON MAY HAVE MADE them famous . . . but Michigan grows them!"

The state Department of Agriculture in its publication "1976 Michigan Food Facts" reports that dry edible Navy beans were planted in about 500,000 acres of state land during 1975. The crop totaled some 450 million pounds, valued at more than $131.8 million.

And those totals — while still higher than those of any other state — were down about 35 percent from 1974. The 1975 yield represented the smallest crop since 1957.

FARMING MAINTAINS its place as second largest industry in Michigan, according to Agriculture Director B. Dale Ball.

He reports that in 1975, Michigan farmers received $1.7 billion for their products, a 4 percent decline from 1974's record year. Add on processing, marketing and transportation, and the value of Michigan's agricultural industry is some $5 billion.

TORNADO . . . A SAVAGE creation of nature that can flatten barns, whisk away automobiles, demolish buildings, kill people and animals.

But if you're like some people, you might not know when you should worry about a tornado in your territory. You get "watch" and "warning" confused.

A "tornado watch" means weather conditions are right for a tornado to develop. A "tornado warning" means one of the funnels has been sighted in a specific area.

PEDAL POWER is on the increase, with bicycling ever more popular a pastime for adults and youngsters alike.

And with that popularity, it's sad to say, injuries to bike riders also increase, especially while they're required to share the road with automobiles.

Statistics show that 68 bicyclists were killed in 1974 and another 4,173 were injured.

ONE ANSWER is bike paths — giving the rider a place to do his thing, out of reach of the automobiles and pedestrians too.

Governor William Milliken recently signed a bill that's designed to encourage townships to build bicycle paths and sidewalks parallel to state highways and county roads. The measure sets up procedures for special assessments for bike paths and walkways, and allows townships to write a hardship exemption for senior citizens on fixed incomes.

MORE THAN TWO dozen bicycle path projects already have been completed by the state, and another half dozen are under construction now. The largest is a 40-mile path paralleling I-275 between Monroe and Novi.

Michigan's Department of Highways and Transportation has spent about $1 million on bicycle path development.

YOU STUDY HARD to learn a job — mechanics, nurse's aide work, maintenance of electrical appliances. Then what?

If you happened to be one of a lion's share of Michigan's 1975 high school graduates in vocational education, you're working full time in your chosen field, and pretty well satisfied with it.

A survey conducted by the state Board of Education shows that:

—slightly more than 8 out of 10 respondents available for employment have found jobs.

—70 percent of those employed are working full time.

—80 percent of the employed graduates are somewhat or very satisfied with their jobs.

The Sin of I.K.

He has smitten you unjustly without contrition or guilt. He feigns no fear, yet his eyes are cast downward.

Anger, cold and black, rises from the depths of your soul with visions of patient vengeance.

Heed me! He shall be consumed at the nearing of a winter's sleep, a dying leaf falling from aloft. His own will shall cause all who knew him to sneer at his memory.

Touch not your loved ones with an unclean hand. Allow your ill desires to die; for his sin is as old as mankind — to be punished by the Gods of torment and evil.

Out of Horse's Mouth

This column is open to news of all breeds of horses and ponies. Send your questions, comments, and show news to: "Sally Saddle," care of The South Lyon Herald, 101 N. Lafayette, South Lyon, Michigan 48178.

The Old Kid Horse

Two years ago I turned him out. He got too old to ride. He wasn't with the bunch today. That's how I know he died. I rode up on the highest hill. Today was cold and raw. From there I saw him laying dead Down in the biggest draw.

The kids had learned to ride on him. Together they had fun. He always brought them back from school. Through snow or rain or sun. If they fell off he'd wait for them.

He didn't seem to care How much they thumped him in the ribs Or hung on by his hair.

I rode up close to say good-bye. A horse like him is rare. And something seemed to fill by throat To see him lying there. I wish now I had kept him in. He'd wintered out enough. His teeth were gone, he was too old, The winter was too rough.

And as I sat there looking down On those old legs so trim, I thought of all the miles they went. Of how we trusted him. A horse to me is like a man, They're both the same inside.

The qualities we like in men Within the horse abide.

I knew I'd have to tell the boys Their friend had passed away To where he'd be a colt again With other kids to play. And so I thought as I rode on With eyes a little dim A boy would make a better man, Who had a pal like him.

sumac and the similar but non-poisonous staghorn sumac; and poison hemlock and stinging nettles. "Actually, of all the wildlife there are relatively few poisonous plants we must look out for."

Into his talk, he weaved interesting facts about plants found along Wildwing. For example, in pointing out the lace-like bedstraw plant Hotaling said, "The pioneers used this plant to stuff into their beds when they came to this region."

Hotaling's guided tour lasted about 1½ hours — hardly time enough to learn about all of the hundreds of plants and animal life along the trail. But some of these same visitors, along with others, will be back another time.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

TARGET GOLF, described by owner Hal Koven as a complete golf practice facility, is doing brisk business at 7900 Challis Road, Brighton, across from the Brighton Mall.

"We're different from a driving range in that our facility is designed for golfers who want to practice every phase of their game," Koven said.

In addition to 31 tees to practice drives, fairway woods and irons, Koven has installed a sand trap and plans to build a putting green.

From the tees, players can hit to five different greens, ranging from a minimum of 30 yards away to a maximum of 220 yards. Signs at each tee tell the exact distance to each green.

Target Golf offers a complete line of professional equipment and accessories, all at discount prices, Koven said. Golf lessons also are offered from a four-person staff, headed by Dick Couturier.

An 18-hole miniature golf course should be open soon, and Koven plans to install baseball batting cages by next spring.

"We felt the area needed a facility for family-type recreation," Koven said. "We think Target Golf is the answer."

Target Golf is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

FOUR NEW stores have opened in Northville Plaza shopping center on Seven Mile Road. They are: The Corral, Tri-State Unclaimed Furniture, Arnoldi Music Company, and the Book Stop.

The latter is owned and managed by Alice M. Gorgas. It features hardbound and paperback books, quality magazines, posters and children's notes.

Book Stop, open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, provides special order and gift wrapping. Bank Americard and Master Charge are accepted.

Owners and managers Tod Arnoldi and Dennis Marcos, and Roberta Nix and Eileen Moore of Arnoldi Music Company are featuring Gulbransen organs, Alvarez and Gibson guitars, pianos, lessons, music and accessories.

Repairs and service are provided on all instruments, according to the owners, and all work is completely guaranteed. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Tri-State Unclaimed Furniture is owned by Robert and Sally Parsell.

The business, open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and on Sunday from noon until 5 p.m., features a complete line of furniture, including bedroom and living room furniture, tables, lamps, dinettes, mattress and box springs, recliners, trees and pictures.

"Our policy is all new quality brands, no seconds, with special truck load purchases, factory surplus and numerous other unclaimed buys. We also carry regular run merchandise and special orders."

The Corral, owned by Pat and Mike Testa, features ladies' and men's sport and casual wear. It features Wrangler Jeans and Dingo Denim Boots. Hours of the store are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

GERALD HAYNES, owner of Gerald's Salon, 41012 Five Mile Road, Northville, has returned from London, England, where he has taken an extensive refresher course at the famous Vidal Sassoon Academy.

Haynes, an alumnus of English schooling in previous years, had his normal methods and techniques of cutting completely replaced, his staff reports. The Northville salon now is not only using tiny new scissors instead of "the traditional sheep shearing size," but the whole business is being done from front to back.

The updated view of styling features intricate layered cutting. He says, "The fall styles push the hair off the face and emphasize a weighted, heavier look at the back of the head. The autumn clothes will feature cowl and low draperies at the back of the neck and hair fashions follow."

After spending as much as five hours per model learning the intricacies of layering a la Sassoon, Gerald Haynes has added the dimension of a permanent wave layered only very close to the head. Top shells of hair, left plain, will then be lifted away from the skull in a new design.

"The best filling key in the chain," he explains, "is the idea that a client's hair should look absolutely great when just cut and still wet. That is when the design is most sensitive. We will no longer send her out of the shop with bone dry hair. It will be finished with natural humidity as part of the finished package."

TWO 24-YEAR EMPLOYEES at Ford Motor Company's Wixom Assembly Plant have won maximum awards in the company's Suggestion Program, thanks to their "Better Ideas" for increasing efficiency and lowering production costs.

In presenting the awards, Plant Manager Owen C. Zidar said it was the first time the Wixom Assembly Plant had announced two top-award winners at one time. He also said plant employees earned more than $44,000 in cash and merchandise for their ideas in 1975.

John Butcher, an assembler in the cushion department, received the highest award given to hourly employees — the Maximum Suggestion Award of $6,000 and a new two-door Mercury Monarch. His idea improved the installation and operation of seat-back latches in Thunderbirds and Continental Mark IV's.

Butcher, 51, lives at 6210 Marlowe Drive, Brighton, with his wife, Shirley, and their four children.

CONSTRUCTION IS continuing on the new Big Boy Restaurant to be located in Novi on Novi Road just south of the I-96 expressway. The building, which is expected to be completed by the middle of September, will service up to 150 patrons with full breakfast, lunch and dinner menus, according to owner Vic Cassas.

Cassas, who also owns Big Boy restaurants in Farmington and Walled Lake foresees the Novi location to be the best location in Novi for a family restaurant such as the Big Boy. Initially it will face out onto Novi Road but when Novi Road is widened, the restaurant will open onto Fonda Street.

Congress 2nd District

Patterson . . .

Michael D. Patterson, AIP candidate for Congress in the 2nd District, took a swing recently at proponents of gun control — particularly those in the judicial branch — who ignore the wishes of the people.

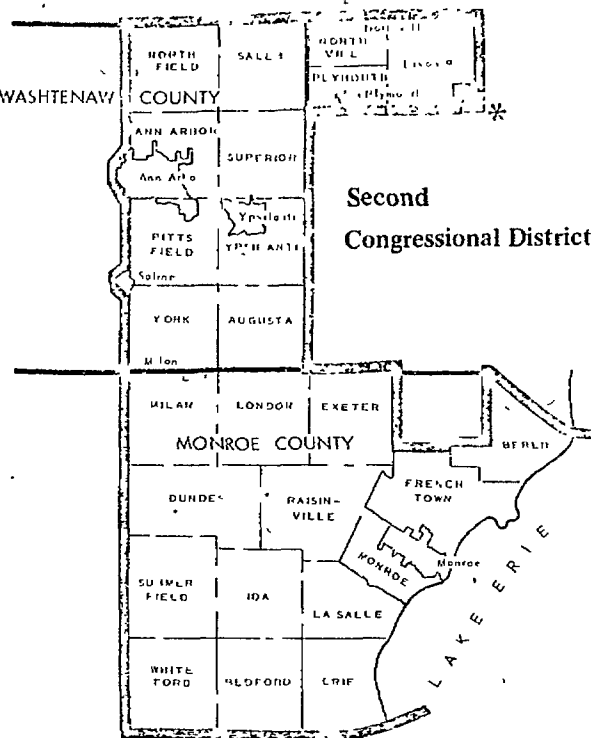

"It is apparent to anyone that the real cause of crime," he said, "is a judicial system obsessed more with the rights of the criminal than with that of the victim."

Solution of the problem, he said, "is much too simple for the administrators of justice in this country. Either they are too dull to understand or they deliberately ignore the facts. I submit that the latter is the case. Instead, they continue to spend vast sums of our money on 'so-called' crime studies."

"Meanwhile, the President and members of Congress stand back and do nothing. While they decry the court rulings, they act as if there is nothing that they can do."

According to Patterson, the solution requires the legislative and executive branches of government "to assert their authority and check the judicial branch, instead of disarming honest citizens."

"It has been said that, 'When guns are outlawed, only outlaws will have guns.'"

But, perhaps more important, the government will remain armed also. I wonder from which we face the greatest danger?"

Pierce . . .

Dr. Ed Pierce, Democratic candidate of U.S. Congress, sharply criticized President Ford last Thursday for vetoing a $3.9 billion public works bill which would have created or preserved roughly 350,000 jobs.

Pierce, a family physician who operates the Summit Medical Center for low-income patients, made the statements at a gathering in the home of Tom Curran, 1911 Schoolhouse Road in Northville.

"President Ford continues to make perfectly clear his lack of understanding and lack of sensitivity to the problems of people who want to work for a living and can't find jobs," Pierce said.

"Weeks and months pass by with the unemployment rate remaining intolerably high, yet President Ford continues to veto any measure which would help to alleviate the situation, despite the fact that this bill passed by an overwhelming margin in both the House and the Senate."

The vetoed bill would have funneled money to state and local governments for public works projects, and to help those governments avoid laying off vital workers because of the recession.

"The policy of the Nixon-Ford Administration has been to pay people unemployment and eventually welfare rather than trying to put them back to work," Pierce continued. "I strongly disagree with that policy. I want to see people at work, taking more pride in themselves, and strengthening our economy in general by producing something and adding their tax payments to our government revenue."

"I believe it should be federal policy to take a countercyclical role in boosting the employment situation. In other words, when the economy is rolling well, the government will stay out. But in recessionary times, the government would attempt to create or preserve jobs, thus easing the effects the up-and-down economic cycle has on many people who would otherwise be put out of work."

Pierce concluded by urging the Congress to maintain its strong stand behind the jobs bill and override Ford's veto.

"A story on the television news last night impressed on me again how important this bill is," he said. "The Emergency Medical Service in Detroit was forced to lay off ambulance drivers, and when a seven-months pregnant woman became sick, there was no driver available to take her immediately. Quite possibly because of the delay in getting to the hospital, the woman lost the baby."

"To me, it is absolutely senseless that when we have vital jobs such as driving that ambulance to be done, and people who want desperately to do them, a bill which would provide the necessary money is vetoed. We need to override this veto, to restore the vital services to the people and jobs to the workers."

Pursell . . .

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has selected State Senator Carl Pursell to receive a 1976 Environmental Quality Award.

The federal agency makes awards throughout the nation for significant individual contributions to environmental quality. Pursell was selected in Michigan for making the most important contribution among elected officials.

The Michigan Senator was nominated for the award by the State Department of Natural Resources. Selection of Senator Pursell was announced by E.P.A. Regional Administrator George Alexander, Jr. The award was presented at a special luncheon Friday, July 9, at Alex's Restaurant in Lansing.

The primary achievement which earned Pursell the federal award was his Resource Recovery law, considered a nationally pace-setting attempt to turn junk heaps into jobs and marketable products.

The Pursell law is currently being implemented by the Resource Recovery Commission, charged under the law with developing a statewide plan for solid waste management. The primary concept of the law is to stimulate a major new industry in Michigan based on the recovery and reuse of discarded materials. Pursell designed the law to accomplish that through cooperative efforts by local governments and private enterprise.

Fred Kellow, D.N.R. administrator of the Resource Recovery Program, said he considers it one of the most important new laws the department is implementing today.

"The simultaneous stimulation of employment and environmental quality is one of government's greatest challenges," Pursell said. "The mistake has often been made of assuming these goals had to be pursued separately. In fact, some people still cling to the notion that they are conflicting and incompatible targets."

"I start with the assumption that cleaning up our environment will mean new jobs for our people and new stimulation for our industries. The Resource Recovery Law is one product of that philosophy. Another is the state bid for the Solar Energy Research Institute, which I have led in the Senate," Pursell added.

Senator Pursell has initiated a number of other environmental and recreational efforts, such as funding for lake and river clean-up in southeastern Michigan.

One project, involving Wilcox, Phoenix and Newburg lakes in Pursell's 14th Senate District, is scheduled for a new surge of activity this summer. That program is aimed at improving water quality, and stimulating recreation through fish stocking, dock construction, and related improvements. A new bicycle path along Edward Hines Drive in the lake area, sponsored by Pursell, is also due for a new 2.8 mile extension this year.

Trowbridge . . .

Ron Trowbridge, Republican candidate for Congress, today recommended that the federal government allow private firms to carry first-class mail. A day earlier, the Postal Service had taken the first steps toward obtaining yet another rate increase.

Trowbridge, an articulate city councilman from Ann Arbor, is running for the Second Congressional District seat. He faces Carl Pursell in the August 3 Republican primary.

"It's a funny thing,"

Trowbridge said, "that the Postal Service must first request that the 13-cent stamp be made 'permanent' before it can apply for another increase. In the language of the bureaucrats, 'permanent' really seems to mean temporary."

Trowbridge referred to recent predictions that a first-class stamp would cost 17 cents by early 1977. "A four-cent increase on a 13-cent stamp works out to be 24 percent in one year," he said, "far higher than current inflation."

To counter soaring postal rates, Trowbridge proposed that private carriers compete with the Postal Service on an equal footing. He said, "More subsidies aren't the answer. They only encourage waste. Like most people, I never worried about the government monopoly on delivering mail, until the recent spate of price increases. Now I wonder: we can choose between several car manufacturers, so why can't we have a choice of mail carriers, too? The answer is that we can, of course. If I'm elected to Congress, I won't stop trying until we get it."

Senate

Baker . . .

University of Michigan Regent Deane Baker, a Republican candidate for United States Senator, has finished his 910-mile bicycle campaign tour of Michigan.

Since his mid-May start in Sault Ste. Marie, Baker has bicycled to the Ohio border south of Monroe, and from Muskegon on Lake Michigan across the state to Detroit.

Baker said the most frequently-voiced concerns among the people he met on his bike tour included:

a. economic issues: jobs, the cost of living, and the cost of education.

b. crime: fear of violent criminals, and a feeling that criminals aren't being punished.

c. the lack of respect for the political process.

d. busing, and the fear of government intrusion into people's lives.

Riegle . . .

Citizens of the Seventh District will turn out in a grand display of appreciation for Congressman Donald Riegle's ten years of district service and representation in Congress on July 17, at the Seventh District "Thanks Don" Testimonial Dinner.

The dinner, which offers citizen support for Riegle to represent the district as a U.S. Senator, will be held at the IMA Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. in Flint.

Prior to the dinner, district citizens are invited to a champagne cocktail party to greet the Washington guests

FLOWER FLAG—Jim Meiers, owner of the Clark Service Station in Brighton, wanted to get into the swing of the Bicentennial. So he conceived an American flag made of begonias. The flower idea was a natural for Meiers, who also happens to own a nursery in Brighton. He grew the plants himself.

Iris Rhizomes

It's Time to Transplant

By KATHY COPLEY

Once a valuable crop for use in the perfume industry, the iris is now grown for its dramatic and colorful flowers which bloom after spring bulbs and before summer perennials, at a time when the garden has few other perennials blooming.

With colors ranging from pink and white through purple, orange, maroon, and bi-colors, and ranging in size from 4" to 4', there is a color and size to compliment any garden scheme.

This is the time of year to transplant iris rhizomes. Every third year a clump needs separation to keep the plants producing flowers; crowded plants produce an abundance of sword-shaped leaves and few flowers. Dig a clump without cutting the rhizome, and remove all dirt.

With a sharp knife, cut a rhizome clump apart, being sure that each rhizome has some roots and at least one set of leaves. Soak each rhizome in a weak solution of household bleach (like chlorox) or treat with a combination fungicide and insecticide. This treatment is designed to kill the pests and bacteria which might otherwise attach the rhizome through the cut surfaces.

Cure the iris rhizomes by allowing them to dry in the sun for several days. This further eliminates potential pests like iris borer and goes a long way toward killing Erwinia Carotovora, the bacterium which causes soft rot.

Replant iris by digging a deep, wide hole and enriching the soil as you would for any plant. (Use no manure where it would touch the rhizome.) Build a cone in the center of the hole so that the roots may be spread out in a fan shape, slanting downward, and so that the rhizome is at or slightly above ground level. (Planting too deeply leads to many leaves and few flowers.)

Iris which have been divided and cured should not be expected to bloom the following year.

Iris should be fertilized in early spring with superphosphate or a low nitrogen fertilizer. Because the rhizome is on the soil surface, it is quite susceptible to burning, so any fertilizer should be applied as a side-dressing.

This is the time of year to apply bone meal. Its slowly released nutrients will carry the plant through to next spring.

Iris are among the most drought-resistant of plants; they need to be watered only in prolonged droughts.

While iris are a distinctive flower when at their best, there are several problems — which are showing up at this time of year — which detract from their year-round attractiveness. The leaves are a good accent to the softer look of most flowering plants, but they are bothered by leaf blight, leaf spot, and rust.

None of these problems need to be controlled since they don't hurt the plant, just detract from its appearance. Leaf spot can be treated with a fungicide (Maneb or Zineb). Overhead watering is the chief cause.

The two biggest iris problems are iris borer and soft rot. Borers are the large pink larvae of the cutworm moth. The larvae eat cavities in the rhizome, sapping its strength and, through the cut, introducing soft rot. There are several ways to go about treating for borers.

When dividing, cut away and discard any rhizomes which have the tell-tale cavity. Cut and discard all leaves in the fall since it is there that the eggs have been laid.

In the spring, spray every two weeks with an all-purpose insecticide like malathion. The eggs hatch in April through June and feed for 10 days to two weeks on the leaves before entering the rhizome. Punctured or ragged leaves are a sign of their presence. Cut off affected leaves below the ragged area and discard. This early spraying and removal of affected leaves should prevent the borer from entering the rhizome.

Soft rot develops in wounds caused by careless cultivation, iris borers, etc. Affected rhizomes are brown and mushy — almost to the point of being liquid — and having a distinctive, foul odor. Pitch them immediately and cut any marginal rhizome away. Treat with chlorox, cure, and replant.

The cause and cure of scorch remains a mystery. Recognize it by withered leaves and nearly no feeding roots. Affected plants can be easily lifted from the soil. Discard them immediately. Though there are several types of iris — those with bulbs, those with rhizomes, those with beards, those without, their care and potential problems are similar.

Area Coaches Analyze U.S. Chances in Olympics

By STEVE RAPHAEL

There is something magical about the summer Olympics.

The World Series, the Super Bowl, the World Cup for Soccer, sports that transfix millions of fans, can't match the two-week spectacle held every four years.

The Olympics combine beauty and grace, strength with stamina. It is a 16-year-old girl winning a gold medal in swimming and then retiring, or an obscure runner emerging from an equally obscure African country to capture a race. It is a 35-year-old man winning the 26-mile marathon, or a Finn being paraded through the streets of his homeland after winning the 10,000 meter race.

It is the much-heralded Mark Spitz winning seven gold medals or the much-heralded John Thomas perennially failing to win just one.

Even the horrors of Munich, the annual politics or the cost over-runs in Montreal can't diminish the Games.

And next week they start again in Montreal.

For America, a country that is used to dominating the Games in the past, the present is both good and bad. Other countries have copied our techniques and training regimens. They are catching up.

How far other countries have come is still unknown, but interviews with local coaches indicate that this should be another banner year for American athletes.

All eyes are on the U.S. basketball team. Basketball is 100 per cent American and the U.S. holds a special kind of monopoly on the gold medal — or at least we did until some strange things happened in the final seconds of the U.S.-Soviet basketball game in Munich.

Then, with the U.S. leading by a point, the Russians took the ball in bounds but failed to score, thus wrapping up another gold for the U.S.A. Or so America thought.

Incredibly, officials claimed foul and gave the Soviets another chance to score. They didn't. But they were given still another chance to take the ball in.

On the second try the Russians scored — on a play that looked like an offensive foul by the Soviet cager who scored what proved to be the winning bucket.

"None of the officials are from the U.S. this year," moans Pat Montagano, pondering the U.S. chances

The Northville Record

THE NOVI NEWS

C-1 SPORTS

this time around.

The Livonia Churchill coach isn't so much questioning the impartiality of this year's officials as much as he's wondering just how our players will react to international rules determined by foreign officials.

"We'll be all right though," Montagano emphasizes. "Either a first or second place is attainable. We'll have to beat the Russians and the Czechs."

But the U.S. chances for a gold medal were diminished even before the first ball was dribbled at the Olympic trials held in early June.

Some of the nation's top collegians, including two big centers, bowed out of the trials, either to turn pro or heal nagging injuries.

Then U.S. Olympic coach Dean Smith raised a wild controversy — that will only end if he wins — by picking four players from his University of North Carolina team that went absolutely nowhere in the national championships last March.

Smith's team is highlighted by quick, agile forwards, including University of Michigan's Phil Hubbard. Hubbard, like his colleagues, can run, jump and shoot.

"The team has quickness and speed," noted Montagano. "And they have real good outside shooting. Quickness and speed will have to offset the size of the Russians and Czechs."

The thing that worries Montagano the most is the experience of the Russians. The Soviets boast seven players who were on the 1972 Olympic team.

Women's basketball is relatively new but the finals should be the same old story, according to Chris Hayward, who coaches basketball and formerly track at Novi High School.

She says it'll be the U.S. versus the Soviet Union and it'll be speed and quickness versus height.

"The Russians have a center who's 7'2" tall," says an exasperated Ms. Hayward.

"The U.S. team averages about 5'10", is fast and can shoot," she says.

Northville High School track coach Ralph Redmond sees a productive Olympics for the U.S. runners and jumpers.

"We'll do fairly well, especially in the field events," says the former Hillsdale track and football star.

Redmond says Frank Shorter, the defending gold medalist in the marathon, is an excellent bet to repeat, but it's in the field events where the U.S. should be the strongest.

"We're talented and deep in the high jump, pole vault, shot-put and long jump. I'm looking forward to seeing Dwight Stones high jump."

Redmond expects a solid but not stunning performance by the cindermen in the relays and sprints, where young, talented but inexperienced men are competing.

"I can't be sure of us dominating the middle distances. The Europeans have training and a tradition of excellence here but the U.S. always has a surprise come out of the events," Redmond thinks.

"But look for Rick Wohlhuter to star in the 800 meter race."

The women, too, should excel in track.

"We have an excellent blend of youth and experience," according to Ms. Hayward.

The best of the lot may be 16-year-old Rhonda Brady from Griffin, Indiana. "She is an outstanding talent," says Ms. Hayward who notes that the girl's 100 meter hurdles time beat the standing U.S. record, although it was wind aided.

Another woman to watch is Belleville's Deby LaPlante, who finished second to Rhonda.

"We have a world record holder in the javelin competing and we should be especially strong in the sprints," prophesizes Ms. Hayward, who adds that women's track and field in this country is getting stronger every year.

In swimming, the American men should get their strongest competition from American men. The U.S. team looks as strong as ever, according to former Northville High School swimming coach, Ben Lauber.

"I'm not really familiar with all of the names, many of the swimmers are newcomers but look for John Naber to excel."

Naber is a backstroke who holds the world record in the 200 meter. He'll also swim the 100-meter backstroke as well as the 200-meter freestyle and a leg of the medley relay.

Even with all of the newcomers, including 17-year-old Brian Goodell, who holds the world record in the 400-meter freestyle, the 27-man team boasts a lot of experience, Lauber says.

Some of that experience comes in the person of Tim Shaw, the 1975 winner of the Sullivan award; given out to the amateur athlete of the year.

Shaw has been slowed by anemia but is supposed to be back in peak health by next week.

"There is no Mark Spitz in this year's crew, but it still is a very good team," according to Lauber.

The women's team faces a different situation. "The East German team is favored next week," claims Lauber. "They've borrowed U.S. conditioning programs, and techniques and have built great facilities over there."

Recently, the East German women broke all 13 world swim records.

"They've put all of their resources into winning big in women's swimming, and if they succeed it could be an omen of things to come with their men's team in the 1980 Olympics," Lauber believes.

But the U.S. isn't giving up.

SHOWDOWN TIME—As we move into the dog days of summer, the area baseball teams are winding up league play and moving into playoff action. Last week Northville "H" League powers, the Braves and Cubs, squared off for the title. Here Brett Lewelyn, number 3 for the Cubs, runs to first base where Braves first baseman Greg Wendel, number 4, gets the ball and tags the base and Brett's foot too late to get the out. For results of this game and others, see page 2-C for the Novi Little League, and page 3-C for the Northville Junior League.

Joe Devereaux hopes to make a big splash in competitive diving

Cupertino, Ann Arbor, Moscow Call Devereaux

A funny thing happened to Joe Devereaux on the way to the University of Michigan.

The 18-year-old township resident, headed to the Ann Arbor campus this fall for four years of studying and diving, qualified last weekend for the national Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) diving championships.

Devereaux, who finished fourth in the state swimming and diving championships in March for Northville High School, placed third in the three meter board and fifth on the one meter board in the regional AAU swimming and diving championships held last weekend at Clarion State College in Clarion, Pennsylvania.

"Joe was very happy but he expressed some regrets," according to his mother, Jan Devereaux, recalling Joe's telephone call to his home after his accomplishments. "He felt miserable. He has a cold and the flu and his legs were hurting. He just felt he could have done better."

Devereaux will have to dive better when he goes against the nation's finest amateur swimmers in the 17-18-year-old age group diving championships set for Cupertino, California at the end of the month.

Although the Michigan athletic department announced that Devereaux would be attending the University, Devereaux says he's not on scholarship.

"I'm paying my own way. I decided on Michigan because of academics as well as diving."

As it turns out, Devereaux is an outstanding student who got accepted to Michigan because of his grades. He's a National Honor Society student who says he plans to start out in physical education and then transfer to the School of Business.

Although recruited by other schools, Devereaux's decision to attend Michigan was an easy one.

"I met Dick Kimball (Michigan's diving coach) when I attended his summer diving camp and I really liked him."

Kimball was impressed with the youngster and began writing him letters in October about attending Michigan. Devereaux says he has never met Michigan's swimming coach Gus Stager, but friendship is still a reason why he's attending Michigan.

"I know a lot of the divers at Michigan and we're all friends. I'm going to have a good time there. Besides, I may get a scholarship eventually."

Devereaux shouldn't have to wait long, according to his high school coach Ben Lauber.

"He can be an excellent Big Ten diver. He's coachable, devoted, hard-working and self-motivated."

Lauber goes one step further. "I think the way he works, and with his talent, he might even have a shot at the 1980 Olympics."

Devereaux admits that the Moscow Olympics are a goal. Not a bad dream for a young man who was dragged to diving lessons four years ago by his mother because, "I was bumming around that summer and had nothing to do."

Devereaux says he's now glad his mother did it.

Eight Run Inning Paces Girl's Win

SENIOR DIVISION

League-leading Typewriter Shop opened up some ground between themselves and second place Jamaican Pools with a narrow 13-12 win over last place Goat Farm. The victors scored eight runs in the first inning and managed to hang on for the win.

Bobby Wilkins hit a round-tripper for Typewriter Shop and Lori Giorgio swung the big bat for the losers, with a home run and double. Cheryl Shankel added a triple for Goat Farm.

WOMEN'S DIVISION

Rexall Drugs learned you can only pull on Superman's cape once. The second place team stunned perennial power Lorraine Tool & Die two weeks ago, only the second loss in three years for the Novi juggernaut.

But it was LT&D's turn last week. Led by three-run homers by Betty Kemp and Rosy Fraczek, LT&D bombed Rexall, 15-5 and moved back into first place. Jennifer Sibole had four RBI's for the winners while Kathy Ortwine had a double for the losers. LT&D then slaughtered A-Train, 32-2 thanks to a 13-run first inning. The hitting stars were legion. Ricci Mulligan had four hits and three RBI's. Rosy Fraczek had four hits, including two triples, and two RBI's. Jennifer Sibole chipped in with five RBI's. Judy Depollo had four hits, four RBI's and was the winning pitcher to boot.

Rexall came up with three runs in the sixth inning to knock off upstart Typewriter Shop, 14-13. Debbie Turner had a home run for the winners while Ginger Gillick for Rexall, and Anette Ambros and Mary Kovar for Typewriter Shop, had three RBI's. In other games, Fisher's Sporting Goods pounded Typewriter Shop, 13-1 and Michigan National Bank outslugged A-Train, 20-12.

JUNIOR DIVISION—The Panthers scored eight times in the bottom half of the fifth inning to the Stingers, 13-13. A time limit ended the game. Michelle Ball of the Panthers had three hits.

Junior and Senior division games rained out June 30 will be replayed Friday, July 23 at their regularly scheduled time.

Boys Hockey Registration Scheduled

The Northville Hockey Association will hold pre-registration for the 1976-77 season noon to 2 p.m. Saturday, July 17 at the Presbyterian Church.

Checks covering the $20 fee can be made out to the Northville Hockey Association, according to David Creedon, league president.

This year, the league will move its games to District 5 and the new Adray Community League. The league is comprised of teams closer to home, with Northville's home ice at the Novi Ice Arena and Centaur Farms in Farmington, Creedon says.

The Northville Hockey Association will field a full complement of teams in the mites division, age 7-8; squirts, age 9-10; pee wees, age 11-12; bantams, age 13-14; and midgets, age 15-16.

Depending on the ability of the youngsters, some teams will play in an in-house league, while others will play in a higher-quality travel league.

Winless Last Year, Braves Pull Upset Of Unbeaten Cubs For 'G' League Title

Championship games and playoffs highlighted last week's Junior League action. Final playoffs in the boys' leagues are set for Saturday, June 17 at Thomson Field. Games will be played at 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

"G" LEAGUE—Last year the Braves won only one game so it was quite a feat when they came back to win the Western Division title, this year with a 14-3 record.

But the best was yet to come for the 10-and-11-year-old boys. The Braves took on the previously unbeaten Cubs and whipped them 5-1 to win the "G" League crown.

"H" LEAGUE—The West champion Cubs and East champs Braves squared off last week to determine the titlist. The winner was the Braves, 9-6.

"F" LEAGUE—The Dodgers wrapped up first place on the strength of a no-hit, 6-2 victory over the Phillies. The Cubs bombed the Mets, 21-5 knocking them out of contention for second place. Runner-up spot is now a battle between the Astros and Cards, with one game remaining for the Astros. If the Astros lose to the Cubs, a playoff game will be necessary. The Astros nipped the Yanks, 9-8, and the Reds edged the Cubs, 6-5.

"E" LEAGUE—This is the only league where first place is still up for grabs. The Dodgers hold a slim lead over the Reds with the final games to be played this week.

Last week the red-hot Colts won their third straight game, stunning the first place Dodgers, 15-14 and second place Reds, 16-2. The double wins shot the Colts into contention for first place.

In the Colts' first win, pitcher Bob Heckerl got credit for the victory. In the win over the Reds, Todd Nadeau hit a grand slam home run and double, while pitcher Jeff Norton scattered seven hits and added two safeties.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL—Only the Seniors have a clear cut winner in the Travelers who won all three of their games last week.

The Intermediates race remained deadlocked as the Phillies and Super-chics met twice in an attempt to break their first place tie. Instead, the Phillies clipped the Super-chics, 11-8 and then were edged by them, 7-6.

In the Primaries, the Blues have a one game lead over the Sluggers. The Sluggers slew the Green Giants, 11-3, while the Blues were nipping the Cavaliers, 12-10.

In other games last week, the Green Giants blanked the Cavaliers, 15-0, the Travelers edged the Bionics twice, 13-12, and 14-13 and then got by the Rookies, 6-1.

American League Outslugs Foes

They took a break in the Northville Men's Slo-pitch League to play two all-star games last week.

And the American League left no doubt that it has the top talent in the league, whipping the National League twice, 19-4 and 24-4.

In the first game, Bud Daniels of Hamlet socked a home run for manager Dick O'Hare's American League crew. Jerry Imsland of Winner's Circle added three hits while Mike Pittman of C.D.S. played flawless defense.

In the 24-4 rout, Bud Daniels continued his lusty hitting with another home run while Jeff Moon and John Boland of Village Blues also had four-baggers. Moon also had two additional safeties.

Other American League all-stars were: Doug Crisan and Gary Winemaster of Village Blues; Stan Nirider, Brian Smith and Steve Utley of Winner's Circle; Terry Mills and Stan Salady of C.D.S.; Tom Alberts and Don Phillip of Old Timers; Al Cox of Hamlet; Joe Watson and Steve Pauli of Ross Northrop; Jack Murtha and Rick Bingley of Zayti; Bill Beason and Dick Stanford of Presbyterian; Bill White of Spagys; and Greg Phillips of Exotic.

National League all-stars were: Dave Palmer of Foundry Flak; Bill Fitzpatrick of Our Lady of Victory; Cal Luibrand of St. Pauls; Pete Talbot of Moonkin-John Mach; Harold Wilhelm, Bob Hubbard and Bill Berner of Casterline; Gary Callender and Jim Kohl of Joe's Party Pantry; Tony Rizzo, Jim C. LaPlante, Bruce Griggs, Mark Lisowski and Gary Lisowski of Rizzo Belanger; Tom Lang of Jay Cees; Dennis Belleperche, and Joel Goler of Township Merchants; Don Halleck and Ron Yitalo of Eagles; Stan Tarnowski and Bob Martin of Little Caesars; and Bill Prevost of Elys.

Jim F. LaPlante of Rizzo Belanger was manager and Dennis Rocsoe of Township

Merchants was coach.

Novi City Park

Eye Activity Center Plan

The drawing of detailed building plans is the next step toward construction of an activity center-bathhouse to be located in the Novi city park near Walled Lake.

The activity center is being funded through $37,500 provided under the Housing and Community Development (HCD) grant of 1976.

Council got its first look last week at a proposed layout of the building and indicated no particular criticism of the structure. The HCD committee, with the help of building inspector Pat Murphy who volunteered his own time, presented a drawing of an 1100 foot structure which has a community room, office, kitchen, mechanical room and restrooms. It also has outside showers.

Murphy estimated the cost at $35,000 to $40,000 with the lower cost if separate bid contracts were awarded and the higher figure if a general contractor took over the project. The figure includes cost of tapping into the sewer at the road although City Manager Edward Kriewall said that a line does exist from the road which used to service the old bathhouse.

Currently there is no exact location in the park set for the structure, according to committee members, although it may be constructed near the old bathhouse which was torn down.

Council repeatedly questioned concerning cost overruns.

"I remember what happened with the costs of the city hall," said Councilman Romaine Roethel. "It started out being $30,000 and ended up being $60,000."

However, HCD committee members emphasized that the building could be constructed within the $37,500 grant amount.

To the question of vandalism, committee members said usage of the structure will be controlled and scheduled. "This would be controlled—not the mob rule approach," said Committee member Donald Grevengood.

Next step is for Murphy to draw up building plans from which the council could bid specific items.

Activity center-bathhouse located at Novi City Park in north end will be one story structure

Novi Council Rips Plan To Improve Twelve Mile

A proposal by Oakland County Road Commission for minor improvements to 12 Mile Road in Novi near the Twelve Oaks Mall met criticism last week from the Novi Council.

The Road Commission had proposed that 12 Mile be widened on both sides of Novi Road about 150 feet plus tapers and that a bituminous overlay on 12 Mile Road from Novi Road east for about 1,250 feet, which would tie into improvements being done by Dayton Hudson.

The Road Commission proposal called for Dayton Hudson to pay two-thirds of the cost, Oakland County one-sixth and the city of Novi, one-sixth. City share would have been $7,000. Reason for the proposal, according to county highway engineer Paul Van Roekel, was lower than anticipated bids for the improving of Novi Road, which will probably take place later this summer. No plans for 12 Mile improvements had been made by the county previously.

Council members appeared agitated over the request to pick up a share of the cost since both Novi Road and 12 Mile Road are county streets.

"With all the tax dollars we poured into the county and haven't received anything, why should we participate in a county intersection?" asked Councilman Martha Hoyer.

Council members concluded that the improvements were less than minimal, and Councilman James Shaw stated, "I think it will be ripped up and added to in the very near future."

The motion to deny the request and to send a letter explaining why was approved unanimously.

Van Roekel told The Novi News last week that the letters sent to the city of Novi were really intended to keep them up to date and had not been an actual request for a vote on the funding. He added that the road commission will contact the council to give it additional information and to explain better the proposal.

Responding to specific criticisms, Van Roekel said that asking the city to participate in any widening of county road is standard procedure.

"It's a policy and procedure followed for over 20 years in any county in the area we're familiar with. The county doesn't have to have any roads in the city. They could just take over the roads, but we're helping them out by taking care of the main roads."

Van Roekel added that there are no plans within the next five years to make major improvements to the intersection and 12 Mile Road, so the proposed improvements would not have to be ripped out in the near future.

Van Roekel said it was unknown if after council denial of the proposal the Oakland County Road Commission would reapproach Dayton Hudson to contribute additional funds to get the improvements done. He indicated the road commission would not proceed if it had to pay more than the one-sixth share.

"If the congestion actually begins to occur, and it's frequent, it's entirely possible that in two or three years the city and county will find themselves attempting to do the same project without any participation from Dayton Hudson," summed up Van Roekel.

Novi Council OK's Grant To Catalog Traffic Signs

Approval has been given by Novi Council to spend approximately $2,000 as its share of a grant program which would allow for sign inventory throughout the city.

The Department of State Police, Office of Highway Safety Planning approved the grant which provides for photographic records of traffic signs throughout the city. Seventy percent of the cost will be picked up by the federal government.

Council indicated its willingness to go along with the grant because a follow-up grant will be offered which includes the federal government paying 90 percent of the cost of bringing signing within the city up to state and federal codes.

The photographing of all signs in the city is intended to act as the basis for changing signs to bring them up to standards. Council members noted that City Attorney David Fried has continually emphasized the possible liability the city could face if sued after an accident to which signing contributed.

The vote by council was unanimous to provide $2,000 city share.

Toth Named Novi Liaison

Joseph Toth has been named the liaison to the Oakland County Cultural Council by the city of Novi. Intention of the Oakland County Cultural Council is to promote the arts in the area. Topics currently being researched in order to establish procedures to assist various communities include a county schedule of activities, centralized printing and mailing, liaison with all news media, availability of facilities, development of a talent register and models for programs.

Chairman Ronald Sesvold of the Oakland County Cultural Council will soon meet with Toth to describe the goals of the new organization. The organization was created earlier this year by the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

BURTON DeRUSHA

DeRusha Re-elected

Three Northville Planning Commission officers won new terms in an election at the July 6 meeting.

They are Burton DeRusha, chairman; Charles Fredyl, Jr., vice chairman; and Lesa Buckland, secretary.

The commission also discussed a replacement for member Francis Gazlay, who recently resigned. A recommendation on a new appointment will be made to council in the near future.

Gazlay has also resigned his seat on the board of appeals, but remains on the Northville Historical District Commission.

In other business, the commission gave conditional approval to Stone's Unfinished Furniture at 215 East Main to make and sell items in addition to their warehousing operation.

The Commission set a public hearing for 8 p.m. July 20 on a request by Mr. and Mrs. Follmer to operate a T.V. Sales and Service facility on Seven Mile and River Street.

The regular meeting scheduled for August 3 was postponed until August 10 because of the general primary election.

Other members of the planning commission are Lyn Bourne, James Cutler, John Genitti, Bruce Turnbull and Tom Wheaton. Their consultant is Ron Nino.

Boundary Commission Case

Novi at Supreme Court

Novi has received the "honor" of being selected by the Michigan Supreme Court to argue in favor of the Boundaries Commission in a case that could have far reaching effects.

Though no date has been set for the hearing, Novi's case was chosen from several briefs submitted, including one by the attorney general's office, concerning constitutional questions regarding the boundary commission.

So far a circuit court twice and a two state appeals courts have ruled in different cases that the boundary unit is unconstitutional.

The courts have basically held that improper legislative procedure was followed when the boundary commission was established. Specifically, while the title of the act in question said there would be an amendment to the Home Rule Act, the title did not specify that authority to rule in annexation cases was being taken from the counties and given to the Boundary Commission.

Novi is seeking to annex all of Novi Township except Brookland Farms. Originally the State Boundaries Commission ruled in favor of the annexation. An appeal to the Ingham County Circuit Court brought an opinion that the State Boundaries Commission was unconstitutional because a group of less than 100 is not entitled to an election when an annexation request takes place. Different panels of the Court of Appeals in a Midland case and the Novi case upheld the lower court ruling.

According to Fried, "I think the Supreme Court will reverse the Court of Appeals." He said he expects the decision to be nine months away.

Liberal Arts Theater

Cellist Appears Monday

Cellist Debra Fayroian, a string trio and a woodwind octet will be featured in the third faculty chamber music concert at 8 p.m. Monday, July 19, in Schoolcraft's Liberal Arts theater.

This is the concert which has been moved ahead one day to avoid conflict for faculty members who also perform with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

The program includes "Sonata for Cello and Piano" by Samuel Barber, "Serenade, Op. 8" by Beethoven and "Eine Vergnugliche Musik" (1943) by Alfred Uhl.

Also to be performed is "Some Music for the Two of Us" written in 1974 by Robert W. Jones, Schoolcraft's composer-in-residence. The composer said he wrote it for his wife and himself in order to fulfill their need for music from other than the 17th and 18th Centuries.

Debra Fayroian is a native Livonian. She began playing the cello at age 10, attended Stevenson High and trained at the National Music Camp at Interlochen. She later studied with Oliver Edel on a scholarship at the University of Michigan. She was a solo performer during the 1975-76 Cultural & Public Affairs series at the College.

The string trio includes Ms. Fayroian, Derek Francis, violin, and Meyer Shapiro, viola. All are members of the Detroit Symphony.

The performance is the last of three concerts featuring the faculty of Schoolcraft's 10th annual summer music school and festival. Student recitals remain scheduled for July 21 and July 23.

Novi El's Name Eyed by Board

Will the new Novi elementary school be called Novi Elementary, carrying on the tradition of its predecessor?

A contingent of school board members, professional staff and citizens will be addressing that question and a recommendation is expected back by the August 12 school board session. That was the decision of the Novi School Board Monday as it once again wrestled with the question of naming the school. The administration noted that staff members favored the name Woodland Elementary while the Parent Teacher Association sought to continue the name of Novi Elementary.

Citizens at large and board members for the committee are to be selected by President Sharon Pelchat with staff members selected by Superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz, as per board policy.

Voting Machines Sought

By Novi City Council

Novi needs more voting machines for the fall election, and city council decided Monday to seek bids for four used machines.

Geraldine Stipp, city clerk, estimated the machines would cost between $1400 and $1600 used, versus approximately $2600 new.

State law requires three machines in any precinct of over 1200 registered voters. Ms. Stipp said that three precincts will exceed that number by the November election.

Additional machines will be needed in the future when precinct lines are re-drawn.

This year's budget allocated $12,000 for new voting machines. Funds come from Federal revenue sharing.

For Rest Area

Sewer Contract OK'd by Council

Novi City Council has approved the signing of a contract with the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation for a sewer line to service the 1-50 rest area west of Novi Road.

The contract ends a long dispute in which the highway department had originally wanted to build its own line, a line which eventually would have had to be paralleled by a city of Novi line.

The contract allows for construction of a 12 inch line from 1450 feet east of Taft Road to Taft Road plus construction of an eight inch line from that point to the rest area.

The city will pay $80,500 of the cost of the 12 inch line with the highway department paying $64,400. The highway department will pick up the full $55,000 cost of the eight inch line.

The sewer construction is to be done in conjunction with upcoming improvements to the rest area. The highway department will bid the sewer construction work.

The 12-inch Novi line is expected to eventually service all of the Taft Road-Grand River area. The 12-inch line runs into the Huron Rouge sewage system.

The highway department will be paying for 19 taps, according to City Manager Edward Kriewall. Referring to the city's over-commitment on paper for sewer taps, Kriewall cited environmental interest in justifying allowing the highway department to purchase that many taps. He noted that the current septic tank at the rest area must be carrying a heavy load.

DAVID SPARLING

U-F Names Local Man

David M. Sparling, general manager of Ford Motor Company's glass division, has been named Metropolitan Unit chairman in the United Foundation's 1976 Torch Drive.

Sparling, who held the same volunteer post last year, will coordinate the Torch Drive campaign among 25,000 small metropolitan businesses; all federal, state, county and local government elements; and all tax-supported colleges, universities and schools in the tri-county area.

The Metropolitan Unit is one of the six chapter campaign units that together raise more than 90 percent of the Torch Drive's total goal.

A Northville resident, Sparling is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received his MBA degree from Harvard University.

This year's Torch Drive, which runs from October 12 through November 4, will raise operating funds for nearly 140 health and community service agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

M and B Bid Best For Novi Road Line

Faced with what City Engineer Harry D. Mosher called a "very tight deadline," Novi City Council held a special meeting Monday to award a contract for a new water line to serve the Twelve Oaks Mall.

M&B Equipment Company of Novi was the lowest of nine bidders, at $1,284,445.50. The bid came in under the city's estimate of $1,410,000 on which the bond issue was based.

The water line extension will run from 14 Mile Road to 12 Mile Road.

Mosher said the absolute last date for water service at the shopping complex is March 1 of next year. He estimated delivery time on

Under the terms of the contract, M&B will have 10 days to arrange insurance and bond, with work to begin in another 10 days. Mosher recommended that council accept the low bid. He pointed out that M&B was the contractor on the Taft Road project, and that he believed them to be a reliable firm.

Bond payments, according to City Manager Edward F. Kriewall, will be $250,000 a year on this project. He said that $165,000 from Dayton-Hudson, the developer, for on-site work, and 450 new taps at $500 each would give the city the ability to pay the first year's charges immediately.

Meadowbrook Manor Line

Ductile Pipe Sought

About a dozen Meadowbrook Manor property owners attended Monday's City Council meeting in Novi to discuss a contract award for a water main through their subdivision, deciding on a ductile iron pipe to be installed by A&P Construction Company of Canton, Michigan.

Council opened bids from 14 firms who quoted prices on asbestos cement pipe as well as the ductile iron.

The water line will be financed by a special assessment on the subdivision.

Property owners in attendance expressed a unanimous preference for the more expensive ductile iron pipe. Adjusted total cost of the work will be $63,322.

Special assessment of $84,366.00 was spread on the tax roll, over a 15-year period based on estimated costs. The lower bid will result in a reduction of 3.75 years from the owners' obligation.

City Engineer Harry D. Mosher recommended the higher quality ductile iron pipe because of its superior beam strength, and possible tap-in problems with the asbestos cement pipe.

A property owner said he feared the asbestos lining of the cheaper pipe would deteriorate, get into the water and pose a possible threat of cancer.

The Imperial Construction

Company of East Detroit was the low bidder on the asbestos cement construction with a cost to property owners of $53,607.

A&P Construction is the same contractor who built the sewer through the subdivision. Work is scheduled to begin on the water line August 1.

Mosher said that a road resurfacing necessitated by the sewer and water projects should be completed by fall.

It's Fair Time

livestock, food and nutrition, crafts, crops and flowers.

Novi Council OK's Assessment Unit

Novi City Council has approved creation of a City Needs and Priority Assessment Committee.

The committee, which will consist of 12 residents of the city, as well as the city finance director, will "study, research and recommend to the Novi City Council the needs, priorities and funding recommendations of all physical plant and operational programs that should be pursued at this time", according to the resolution.

The resolution notes that the committee is to be provided any staff support necessary to accomplish the goals of the committee "and is herein encouraged to seek technical, financial and practical input from employees, consultants, the Citizens Research Council, committees, commissions, civic groups, and citizens to enable sound recommendations to emanate in the pursuit of community planning."

Set as items to be studied and priorities for possible implementation or expansion are: City-wide trash collection; municipal facilities including city hall, police station and community building; and parks and recreation programs.

The resolution was passed unanimously by council with little discussion. Absent were Mayor Gilbert Henderson and Councilman Philip Goodman.

Radio Operators Report Freeway Accident

In Wixom

A 46-year-old Detroit man who told Wixom Police he was en route to Brighton Hospital found himself at Botsford Hospital instead. He was transported there by ambulance following a spectacular car crash Wednesday afternoon.

Walter Simard's erratic driving on the I-96 expressway ended shortly after he passed the Wixom Road overpass Thursday. His exit took him from the road, through 400 feet of ditches, thick brush and heavily wooded area before he finally crashed into a large, sturdy tree.

Simard was thrown from the car on impact but received almost instant aid from a passing motorist who saw the accident. His full-sized car, which police said looked something like a subcompact following the crash, was totally destroyed.

According to witnesses, Simard was having trouble controlling his car on the expressway and was hitting speeds in excess of 80 m.p.h. Motorists along the route with C.B. radios were alerting other C.B.ers to watch for the car which, according to them, was weaving from shoulder to median and points in between.

One C.B. operator had contacted a base unit in the Wixom area who in turn contacted the Wixom police and advised them of the accident.

Simard suffered only minor injuries. He was released from the hospital the next day.

A Farmington youth who apparently jumped from a moving vehicle ran into the path of a second car, was thrown backwards by that impact and then run over by a third car.

Several witnesses to the accident on the Wixom Road overpass at I-96 told police a man driving a rust-colored Nova ran over 16-year-old Thomas Torgers. That driver sped from the scene of the accident which occurred at 10:50 p.m. July 1.

Rogers was taken to Botsford Hospital by ambulance and later transferred to Mt. Carmel Hospital. Doctors there listed his condition as fair.

Mounted Wixom police officers who had previously been deputized by the Oakland County Sheriff, apprehended a 16-year-old Birmingham driver who attempted to leave the scene of an accident July 4.

The attempted hit and run occurred following the conclusion of fire works at the Wixom Municipal Park. Since the park is located outside city limits, Wixom police were deputized to allow them jurisdiction in the area.

The incident occurred when the youth, backing out of a parking space, pinned a pedestrian between his vehicle and the rear of another car. That person received injuries to his legs.

Police on horseback were able to apprehend the youth... something which would have been "next to impossible," the department reported, if regular police vehicles had been used due to congested traffic conditions.

Buildings materials valued at $658 were reported stolen from a building site in the Highgate-on-the-Lake subdivision last week.

A spokesman for the contractor said he felt a truck larger than a pick-up was used in the theft due to the size of the lumber and other materials that were taken.

In an apparent breaking and entering to an apartment in the Indian Lodge complex on Pontiac Trail, the occupant reported to police the theft of three long guns, a portable T.V., a tape deck and an antique Tiffany Lamp.

The theft apparently occurred sometime during the week of July 1 through July 6.

In another breaking and entering on West Maple Road, a 23-channel citizen band radio was taken. The owner reported he was not sure if the dwelling was locked.

Police investigated two counts of malicious destruction of property in an incident at the Village Apartments Wednesday.

A resident of the complex awoke to a banging noise and saw a man running from his car in the parking area. He said he saw two large holes punched in the windshield of his car.

The man told police he pursued the fleeing suspect and on returning to his residence found the glass picture window in his apartment smashed with a large rock.

Marine equipment valued at $118 was reported stolen from a boat docked on Loon Lake. The owner of the boat noticed the missing equipment on July 7.

In Novi

A 20-year-old Novi girl riding her bicycle in an open field south of Nine Mile Road at Cranbrook was the victim of an attempted rape at 7 p.m. Monday.

According to Lieutenant Richard Faulkner, the girl was riding on a "dirt road" where cars can travel and a blue compact car approached the girl. The driver got out of the car and asked the girl if she knew the way out and when she said no, he attacked her, pushing her to the ground.

The girl reportedly pleaded with the man who finally let her up, apologized and left in his car. He was described as 20 years old, six feet tall, 150 pounds with blond hair. He was driving a blue compact car.

A seven-year-old girl was the victim of an indecent exposure last Friday when a man pulled his car beside the girl on South Lake drive near Bernstadt. He lured her to his car by asking her if she wanted to see his sick bunny rabbit. Instead, he indecently exposed himself.

He was described as 27 years old with brown short hair driving a red, maroon or brown four door vehicle with red interior.

Police are investigating a breaking and entering in the 41000 area of Borchart which was discovered Tuesday morning. Two small brown cases containing change were taken. They were valued at $100. Bedrooms of the home were ransacked.

A sliding window was broken to gain access.

A breaking and entering in the 45000 area of Mayo Drive on July 4 netted burglars an estimated $3,500 in items.

Taken in the B&E were six rings including a diamond wedding ring, two watches, seven guns, miscellaneous jewelry, several proof sets and miscellaneous coins. Police are investigating.

A malicious destruction of property occurred July 6 at Orchard Hills Elementary when a 40-inch by 82-inch window toward the center of the building was found broken.

There were no signs of entry to the building or other damage.

A boat valued at $125 was stolen July 7 from in front of a home in the 1700 area of East Lake Drive.

In Township

Northville Township Police are investigating two separate cases of malicious destruction of property occurring at the same construction site within days of each other.

Damage to the unoccupied home being constructed on Tiverton Court seems to be confined to kicking in doors and splintering door frames. Over $125 in damage has been reported to police thus far.

A two-man inflatable kayak and paddles was taken from a patio behind a residence on Lagoon Court. The raft was taken sometime between 6 p.m. Saturday and 2 a.m. Sunday.

A second raft was reported stolen from another patio behind a home on Lehigh. The two-man Navy rubber raft was also reported missing between 7 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday.

A township woman who was flagged down by two women on Six Mile Road reported the incident to the police. She said she thought the two women may have been escapees from the Detroit House of Correction.

Township police and officers from DeHoCo searched the area and found the women hiding in a nearby residence. Both were found to be escapees from the facility.

Michigan State Police report seven escapes from the Northville State Hospital from July 6 through July 9.

One male, who walked away from the hospital July 8, is still at large. He is not considered dangerous.

Other escapees were all male and all walk-aways. Four were returned by the Detroit Crisis Center, one by Detroit Police and another by Detroit General Hospital.

Two women escaped from the Detroit House of Corrections July 7, according to Michigan State Police reports. They were picked up the same day by Northville Township Police.

In City

A 25-year-old Pinckney man was the source of a great deal of police activity Friday night. James Weatherbee later reportedly told police "he was letting off steam."

Weatherbee, driving a battered 1976 Chrysler, was described in a police bulletin as a possible drunk driver on Seven Mile Road. Northville Police spotted the car weaving and swerving down the road and began pursuing the vehicle.

Weatherbee increased his speed to avoid the officers and in so doing, began driving down the wrong side of the road running another car off the road at Seven Mile and Main Street.

At that point Northville officers were able to stop the Weatherbee vehicle. As the two officers were requesting him to leave his car he floored the accelerator and sped off, knocking both officers to the ground.

The policemen were able to get back in their unit and again pursue the vehicle. For no apparent reason, Weatherbee pulled to the side of the road and took off on foot with the police right behind him.

Flying tackles in the middle of a creek bed finally brought the elusive Weatherbee to a halt. He was lodged and later released on a $100 cash bond.

One officer suffered cuts and abrasions with the other sustaining an injured elbow and a gash on the forearm in the incident.

A window in the school area of the First Presbyterian Church on Main Street was broken to gain entry to the building late Thursday night.

A public address system and two cassette tape players were taken from the church offices. A box containing a small amount of change was also reported missing.

The PA system and one cassette player were found on church grounds Friday.

During a routine patrol of the area, police found four windows broken out at Our Lady of Victory Church on Thayer Boulevard early Sunday morning.

Northville City Police investigated a total of eleven reports of larcenies or attempted larcenies from automobiles last Tuesday and Wednesday.

In most cases the cars had been entered, with the glove boxes ransacked. Seven of the incidents took place behind the Wagon Wheel Lounge with the other four occurring behind the Foundry Flask.

In most of the cases, nothing of great value was taken although one man did report a set of $95 cymbals taken.

Police have a suspect in the incidents and investigation is continuing.

Police also found a window smashed out in the northwest corner of the Northville High School. That incident is thought to have occurred between 3:30 a.m. and 6:00 a.m. Saturday.

Boron Provides Reward Money

Two Boron Gas Station burglaries within a month in which over $10,000 in merchandise and tools were taken, have led officials of the Boron Oil Company to offer a $4,000 reward for information relating to the cases.

As a part of the "Boron Shield" program, the reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the burglaries.

The similarity of the cases lead both Boron officials and local police to believe the thefts are the work of the same individuals.

On June 3, the Boron Station at Eight Mile and Taft Road was broken into with thieves taking over $5,000 in premium tires, batteries, oil and specialized tools.

During the early hours Thursday morning, the second station at Six Mile and Haggerty Roads was entered with the same technique employed as in the first case. Again, only premium merchandise and tools were taken.

A stereo tape deck and speakers from a car parked at the station for repairs was a slight variation from the first robbery.

It was pointed out that tools taken in the latest burglary carried the trade name "Snap-On" and were engraved with the initials "SRH" or "SRHJ."

A pillow case found lying on the ground outside an entrance to the station in the latest incident contained the tape player, speakers and some miscellaneous tools.

According to Jack Burdett, Retail Sales Manager of Boron, the merchandise is insured by the company but the tools are not. He said that the tools are the personal property of the managers and are usually not insured since the insurance costs are prohibitive.

Burdett further commented, "We've got a problem brewing out there... they've bit us twice and we'd like to put a stop to it. Therefore the company has instituted the reward program."

Both Northville Township and City Police are currently investigating the cases. Any information relating to the burglaries should be forwarded to those local police departments. The reward will then be determined on the basis of the information supplied.

Officer Leaves Novi Force

Novi officer Gary Appleton has resigned from the police force as he has purchased Northwood Resort at Otsego Lake and will be managing the resort.

Appleton's final day with the Novi police was July 9. He had served on the force for six years and marks the first officer to leave the force in nine years, according to Police Chief Lee BeGole.

Replacing Appleton is William S. Charles, II. He was previously in the Crime Prevention Bureau in Southfield. He is a four year Air Force veteran and has completed three years of college study.

Orientation Set By Schoolcraft

Schoolcraft College will hold special orientation sessions for older returning students on July 27, 28 and August 3.

Participants will meet in small groups with admissions counselor Bob Burnside to receive assistance and information on courses and programs available at Schoolcraft which can help individuals toward life goals. Admission and registration procedures, financial aid and special services for mature students will be discussed. A brief slide presentation will also be shown. All sessions are free and the public is invited to attend.

The session on July 27 will meet from 9 to 11 a.m. and on August 3 from 8 to 10 p.m. in Room 210 of the Liberal Arts Building. On July 28, it will meet from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Garden City Harrison Center.

May Brings Rise In Bicycle Thefts

A summary of police activities for May, 1976, shows that bicycle thefts and vandalism in Northville jumped sharply with the coming of spring and that reported crimes in these categories are up compared to a year ago.

Ten bicycles were reported stolen in Northville during May compared with only one in May, 1975. May thefts made up over half of the 18 bikes stolen this year to date.

Police also responded to 21 complaints of vandalism in May, compared to eight the same month a year ago. No arrests for vandalism were made. Total vandalism reports for the year come to 87, compared to 69 for the same period last year.

In more serious crimes — homicides, rapes, robberies and aggravated assaults, the May report shows no incidence.

Northville Shares

Federal Funds Get Approval

John Barr, Chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, has announced final approval of a $2 million federally funded community development block grant to be shared by 24 outcounty communities — including the city and township of Northville.

The grant more than doubles the amount received last year under the same program when the funds were applied toward projects such as parks and neighborhood playgrounds, senior citizen service, and improvements on storm drainage and water mains, said Barr.

This year, the second year of application, the funds are significantly more because the program is better organized in the county and more communities are participants in the coalition, Barr explained.

Under the block grant program, said Barr, the county organizes willing communities with less than 50,000 population and asks the federal government for funds in behalf of the entire group.

Last year, 18 members in the coalition received $637,000; this year 24 in the group were given $2,065,100, which Barr said is "a terrific indication of what we can achieve with cooperation and coordination."

In a letter to the mayors and other chief officials of each community involved, Barr pointed out that "This program provides an opportunity for Wayne County and local units of government to form another constructive partnership and I want to extend thanks for the cooperation received."

He said that the county Office of Program Development and Coordination will soon call a meeting for all participating communities to arrange details in implementing the grant.

Blue Cars on the Way

State Police Complex Opening in September

EDITOR'S NOTE — Following is an update on what the Northville area can expect in police services when the new Michigan State Police complex opens in two months. Comments were also received from Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas regarding local road patrol services by the county.

Within two months the new Michigan State Police complex on Seven Mile Road in Northville Township will be open for operations.

The new facility includes headquarters offices for the state's largest State Police district (District II), a crime laboratory to serve the district area, and the Northville Post.

Post Commander Lt. William Tomczyk noted that August 23 is scheduled as completion date, but that it will be early September before personnel occupy the new building.

Dedication ceremonies, he said, will be held in October.

What can Northville Township residents expect in terms of police service from the State Police?

"You name it, we'll handle it," says Lt. Tomczyk, himself a township resident.

The post commander explained that one car will be assigned at all times to the Northville area. "A phone call gets you a car," he added.

In addition to responding directly to citizen calls, Lt. Tomczyk emphasized cooperation with local police.

"Actually, we'll cooperate with any department requesting our assistance, including the city and township departments," Lt. Tomczyk stated. He pointed out that in Northville Township the Wayne County Sheriff Patrol is also available, in addition to the township's own force and the State Police.

Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas confirmed the availability of patrol cars in the Northville area this week by stating that "at least one car" patrols the area at all times. Sheriff Lucas also added that helicopter service has been restored and will be helpful in controlling areas such as "Beer Hill".

Lt. Tomczyk placed strong emphasis on the greater exposure of State Police cars in the area once the new facility opens. The district headquarters will employ about 30 to 35 people, for example, while the post will have 35 and the crime lab 25 uniformed officers. These numbers do not include civilian employees.

Lt. Tomczyk noted that many more blue cars will visit the Northville complex on business matters from the eight-post district area. Some are unmarked vehicles, however.

The facilities of the crime laboratory, he noted, are available to all area law enforcement agencies — city, township, etc., — for assistance in crime activities.

Lt. Tomczyk noted that the cooperation between the State Police and the Northville Township force had been very good in the past and he anticipates the relationship to remain strong now that the new complex is actually located in Northville Township.

Wins Swim Honors

Kathy White captured the 50-yard breast stroke recently at the second annual Buffalo Bill Invitational swimming meet held in Cody, Wyoming.

The 10-year-old Northville girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George White.

Kathy, who has been swimming competitively for three years, is a member of the Bulldog Aquatic Club and holds the club record in that event. Her coach is Marie Santo.

Competing against swimmers from eight other states Kathy, competing in the 9-10 age group, also placed fifth in the 50-yard back stroke, and sixth in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle, and the 100-yard individual medley.

Area Women Were Voting Here Before Suffrage Law Took Effect

By PATRICIA BERNARDO

Northville women didn't have to wait for ratification of the 19th amendment to vote. By the time the amendment was added to the U.S. Constitution in 1920, Northville women had cast ballots in several elections and had held public office.

During World War I, the Northville Record contained stories about women driving street cars and serving as post mistresses. Women were taking active roles in the American war effort, and suffragettes across the country were demanding the right to get involved in political life as well.

In the Northville area, there were several active suffragettes. One was Hazel K. Furman of Wixom, a 1907 graduate of Northville High School. She wrote an article for The Record, which appeared October 25, 1918, encouraging men to support a state-wide referendum granting Michigan women the vote.

Ms. Furman wrote, "It is not because of this war work that women are asking for a greater share of our government — are asking for the greatest privilege that America can give to her children, the right to vote. They are asking because it is a Principal of Right and America stands for fair play."

"Shall our women be classed with the only men who are not allowed to vote — the idiots, insane, imbeciles and criminals?"

In that same issue, the editor, noting that "182,000 of the brightest women of Michigan have asked for suffrage by signing the largest petition ever circulated in the state," added his endorsement of women's suffrage.

Northville men must have found the arguments convincing. On November 5, 1918, they voted 280 to 98 in favor of the women's suffrage amendment. The referendum carried throughout the state, making Michigan women qualified voters almost two full years before suffrage became the law of the nation. Once women were eligible to vote, clerks in the Village of Northville, Northville Township, and Novi Township put notices in The Record telling women how to register. One of these notices advised, "It is not necessary to state your exact age. Past twenty-one is sufficient."

The first opportunity Northville women had to vote was a primary election on March 5, 1919, in which nominations for county offices were at stake.

The Record reported that "of 318 women registrants so far listed, 34 took advantage of their opportunity to 'practice up.'"

The names of those first women voters did not appear, but a check around town finds some women who are sure they were a part of this pioneering group.

Mrs. James Congo, who was then Marie Stark, is positive that she voted that first time. She also feels that her mother, Estella Stark and her aunt, Emma Stark, must have voted because they were very much interested in the suffrage movement.

Ruth Burkman was not old enough to vote in 1919, but her mother and older sister were, and they cast their ballots in what was then Novi Township. Margaret Yerkes Holden is her sister, who clearly remembers voting with her mother, Mrs. Donald Purdy Yerkes, Sr.

And in Wixom, Hazel Furman, who had written that plea for suffrage earlier, was certainly a voter the first time she had the chance. Ms. Furman died at the age of 26, but her sister, Hilda Furman, still lives in Wixom. "I don't know how many Wixom women voted," said Hilda, "but I sure know the three Furman women did."

Other area women think they may have voted that historic first time, but the intervening years have dulled their memories of the event.

Mary Alexander said, "I imagine I voted. My husband told me if the law passed, the women should vote."

Mrs. E. A. Chapman thinks her mother was among the first Northville women to vote. "I'm sure my mother voted. But I was really too young to care," she said.

Lydella Ely was the daughter of the Village Clerk, Thomas Murdock. "I must have voted, but I really don't remember. It didn't make that much impression on me," she said.

Other possibilities for that first time list are Lena Hunt Bogart, Bertha White Peters, Mae Babbitt and Ruth Starkweather, none of whom could say with certainty that they went to the polls at the first opportunity.

A village election followed on March 10, 1919, in which women not only voted, but ran for office.

Mary Litsenberger was nominated for treasurer by both the People's Caucus and Workingmen's Caucus, the two political parties of the day in the village.

The Northville Record

THE NOVI NEWS

Wednesday, July 14, 1976

The Record took note of this event, by running one of its rare photographs. Under Miss Litsenberger's picture, the Record said she was a "popular young Northville lady, who will be the first woman to be elected to any village office in Northville. Miss Litsenberger has been in the employ of the Northville State Savings Bank for some years and will take hold of the office of village treasurer with considerable experience gained as assistant upon numerous occasions to former officials."

Miss Litsenberger is now Mrs. Elmore Whipple of Plymouth. She recalls, "Just all of sudden I was treasurer."

She was not a suffragette, and can't remember whether or not she even voted in the election that put her in office.

Did anyone object to a woman running for treasurer? "I was friends with everybody, so I guess they didn't care," she said.

Miss Litsenberger held her post only a short time. In October of 1919 she married and moved to a farm on Haggerty Road, outside the village limits. "You couldn't be treasurer in the village if you didn't live there," she said.

Another woman, Della Harmon, was nominated for village assessor by the People's Caucus, but withdrew. The Record reported, "Della Harmon has said while she appreciates the compliment paid her, she does not feel she can accept the nomination for assessor at this time."

A township election the same year proved that Northville women were in politics to stay. Emma Knapp ran for treasurer on the Republican ticket, against Ruth Gilles for the Democrats. The Democrats also had a women candidate, Eva Bonee, for clerk.

In its election coverage, the April 11 issue of The Record said, "Today's election drew out the largest voter ever, but that was to have been expected because there are now as many women voters as there are men."

Ms. Knapp defeated Ms. Gilles and Ms. Bonee lost to a man.

Along with the results, The Record reported that very few ballots were invalidated and concluded, "Women have learned to vote much more quickly than men did."

CETA Funds OK'd For Three Jobs

Approval of three positions, including a dispatcher for the Northville State Police Post under construction, using Comprehensive Employment Training Act funding was given by Northville Township board Thursday.

The board considered personnel needs after Supervisor Betty Lennox reported that $27,592 had been received in the CETA grant to be used through January, 1977. She also stated that $3,500 was available in carry-over CETA funds.

The carry-over funds have been used, she explained, to hire a clerk-telephone operator at the township hall and to place a full-time summer janitor on the staff until September 1.

In considering uses for the new funding the board received a letter from Lieutenant William Tomczyk, who will head the new Northville State Police Post, asking for one or two clerk-dispatchers to replace those he felt would be lost from Redford and Plymouth Township CETA funds when the post is opened in Northville.

In addition to the state police clerk, the board voted to use the funds for a township police dispatcher needed to cover vacations and for a clerk to assist Clerk Clarice Sass for six weeks in indexing board minutes.

Mrs. Sass stressed that this help is "desperately needed as we have had very poor record keeping and have to rely on the memory of members of the staff when we need background information."

Decision on the hiring was not unanimous with Trustee Richard Mitchell voting against the motion made by Trustee James Nowka. Mitchell stated he is "opposed to giving back to the state of Michigan any funds" and said he felt they could be used to advantage in funding a student police cadet program instead.

Supervisor Lennox pointed out that the funds would not be available until August when summer programs for students would be almost ended.

The board indicated it felt that the state police post would be filled with a township resident under CETA regulations and thus still would be creating a local job.

ALECCIA'S

ALECCIA'S—Artist rendering shows unique exterior plans for the $1 million Aleccia's to be located on the southwest corner of Nine Mile and Novi roads if all goes according to plans. Aleccia's received a conditional class

"C" liquor license which will be received if the establishment is successful in getting a zoning change from R-3 (residential) to B-3 (business). The planning board has recommended approval.

Novi Road and Nine Mile

Plan Italian Restaurant

Conditioned upon approval of a zoning change, Novi city council has approved issuance of a liquor license to Aleccia's, a 600 patron restaurant scheduled to open in September, 1977.

The restaurant, a $1 million venture, is planned for the southwest corner of Nine Mile and Novi roads. The council approved the liquor license Tuesday, July 6 subject to construction of a facility in accordance with artists renderings. In addition, the property must be rezoned from R-3 (residential) to B-3 (business).

The planning board the following day recommended approval to the council of the zoning change following a stormy session in which arguments went back and forth over the proposal. Petitions were submitted opposing the structure by residents along Nine Mile and in Brookland Farms Subdivision.

Don Young, speaking for the residents gave five reasons for opposing the restaurant.

Those included: 1. request not in accordance with the master plan; 2. character of the area is residential; 3. rejection of stereotyping the commercial zoning as necessary because Novi Road is a major highway; 4. Denying the request not be detrimental to the city of Novi; 5. non-consistency with previous zoning actions in the area.

Few of the arguments appeared to hold weight with the planning board as Aleccia fielded the criticisms, noting that the area on Novi Road will never be residential and that the county has plans to expand Novi Road to five lanes.

In addition, Aleccia said that a berm will be placed around the periphery of the property so that "if you live on Nine Mile Road you will be unable to see a parked car in our parking lot unless you stand on the roof of your house."

The planning board approved unanimously a motion that the planning board recommend acceptance "for final approval of a site plan and the issuance of a building permit for a restaurant and catering facility, according to the plan submitted, having a minimum of 12,000 square feet ground area and utilizing all of the site for the main building and permitted uses accessory thereto."

The motion added that the zoning would be null and void in the event the building permit is not issued or if it is issued but expires without construction having been started.

The restaurant, according to owner Michael Aleccia, will be 11,000 square feet and will feature a lounge area, public eating area, banquet facilities and an entertainment area. An outside eating area will also be included.

Land Split Goes Back to Planners

Northville Township trustees last Thursday, remembering problems resulting from a recent lot split they okayed, referred Frank Bauss, a Northville resident and builder requesting a land split for property on Valencia and Pickford, to its planning commission.

Attorney John Thomas, representing Bauss, said his client was coming directly to the board as "time is short in the building season."

Bauss was seeking to divide the property totaling 3.7 acres into four building lots.

As all utilities are not available on the property, township zoning restrictions require an acre lot, about seven and a half percent less than is available.

Rejection of the request was not unanimous with Trustees John MacDonald and James Nowka voting against. Nowka pointed out the "deviation is very slight" and that Bauss is proposing to tear down a 37-year old home now on the property that is much less in value than those he plans to build.

Bauss said he has short option on the property owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Keegan and was coming to the board for an informal approval, realizing he also would have to go before the board of appeals.

He presented signatures of neighbors he had contacted regarding the split.

In moving the request go through the planning commission, Dr. John Swienkowski pointed out there are channels set up by the township ordinance which should be used.

By unanimous vote the board passed Resolution No. 76, amending Resolution 73-48 regarding lot splits to include notification of a proposed split for neighbors.

The addition reads: "And that before the Northville Township Planning Commission, or the Northville Township Board of Trustees, make a determination on each application, that the owners of property within 300 feet, be so notified by first class mail."

Fee Schedule OK'd

A new fee schedule has been approved by the Novi City Council for use of water from

Class of 1971

Plans Reunion

A five-year class reunion of Novi High School Class of 1971 is scheduled for August 8, beginning at 10 a.m., at Kensington Park on Hickory Ridge South.

Sponsors are hoping to contact most of the 108 members of the class and ask that the "word be passed along." The reunion will be a picnic with those attending bringing their own lunches.

The new schedule requires: Deposit of $200 permit fee of $5 a month; $10 on fee at the end of use; and charge for water at prevailing water rates.

In addition, the council stipulated that no permits will be issued to individuals living outside the community except those working within the city.

Previously there was a $20 permit fee and a $3 per day charge for each hydrant used.

The change was stimulated when the owner of Jackson's Landscaping in Novi questioned the $3 per day charge which had been instituted late last year. He also questioned some of the other charges.

Puppy Finds Its Way Home Finally

A Fourth of July "heart-break" was turned into an explosion of joy last week Tuesday morning with a tiny dog's whimper. The one-year-old puppy came home to his owner, Kimberly Goldi of 632 Reed Court, after a harrowing 44-hour experience that began along the Main Street parade route on the Fourth. Kimberly, a 1976 graduate, had received the mongrel puppy as a gift less than a year ago. "Brandi loves people, so Kimberly took her (the pup) along to watch the parade. They arrived early, waiting near the Presbyterian Church," Mrs. Goldi said. "Then, just as the parade began, a siren from one of the police cars frightened her and she took off running, dragging her short leash behind her." Kimberly and her friends chased after the shaggy-haired puppy, soon losing her in the crowd.

The search continued throughout the day. People in the Seven Mile Road area reported seeing her earlier, but the puppy could not be found. Assistance by city and township police also failed to uncover the animal's whereabouts. "We were just sick. Our last dog had died after 10 1/2 years, and everyone was so heart-broken I vowed we wouldn't have any more animals. But along came Brandi and we all fell in love again." Monday passed, and still no puppy. "We had just about given up, although we hoped an ad we planned to place in the paper would turn up our puppy. None of us slept well. At about 5 a.m. I thought I

Friends of the Library This year's summer reading program is a huge success with over 125 children signing up in one week and so far have read well over 400 books. Although this is not a competitive program, there are a few who have read 20 books and one boy who has read more than 40 books.

Novi Lions Club The regular meetings are not being held through the summer months. However, the Lions will be hosting 18 clubs at their first meeting in September on the 8th at the Holiday Inn. The Board of Directors is meeting throughout the summer and plans are being made for a joint Lions and Auxiliary family picnic on July 25 to be held at Kensington Park.

Novi Jaycees At the meeting last Tuesday, president John Bagna again ran a swift and efficient meeting. More plans were made regarding this year's Haunted House and there is a possibility that Sir Graves Ghastly may be present through the efforts of Bob Hartson. There are plans being made for entertaining the Senior Citizens in August.

Novi Senior Citizens The Novi Senior Citizens met today at the United Methodist Church for a covered dish luncheon. Everyone present was able to ask Mr. Ed Smidak, head of the Novi DPW questions regarding the condition of the roads in Novi. Plans were also made for a trip to Paw Paw, Michigan. A reminder there will not be a business meeting in July.

heard something outside. It was a whimper and pawing at the door.

"It was Brandi, dusty and dirty and her paws rubbed red. She was still wearing the leash, although it was all knotted. Obviously, she had had a hard time of it. But she was home and safe, and that's all any of us cared about."

Mrs. Lasko said she had read of the "Lassie Come Home" stories, "but we really didn't pay much attention to them. Now that it's happened to us, keeping in mind Brandi is just a little puppy, we are amazed how an animal can find his way home."

Colleges Slate Registrations

Students who plan to register by mail for the fall semester at Schoolcraft College are reminded that their materials must be postmarked no later than July 23.

That's the word from Registrar Russell Bogarin who recommends the convenient mail method be used by as many as possible. "It saves standing in lines to register," he said, "and it offers good assurance that students will be able to enroll in the classes they want at the times they prefer."

The registrar noted that mail registration is open to most students on a self-advancing basis. Certain students, however, must consult a counselor before they may register. These include fall semester graduates, new students, former students who have not taken classes within two years, and veterans receiving V.A. benefits.

Regular registration will be held August 24-25 on campus. An earlier date, August 18, has been set for students registering for classes at the Garden City Harrison Center.

Persons wishing general information about the college or its programs should call the Admissions Office at 591-6400, ext. 228. Questions or problems in regard to registration will be taken by the Registrar's Office at ext. 225.

In Uniform

Army Second Lieutenant Thomas M. Pirog of Novi, Michigan, recently participated in Sold Shield 76, a joint-service training exercise in the eastern part of North Carolina.

The month-long training exercise, involving Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, and Coast Guard, as well as Reserve and National Guard units, was under the control of the U.S. Atlantic Command, headquartered in Norfolk, Virginia.

The exercise, designed to improve the command's joint operations and its ability to react in an emergency, provided peacetime training in a realistic simulated combat environment.

Lieutenant Pirog, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pirog, 24403 Bashian Drive, Novi, is a forward observer with Battery C, 1st Battalion of the 82nd Airborne Division's 319th Field Artillery at Ft. Bragg, North Carolina.

The lieutenant is a 1971 graduate of Redford St. Mary High School and he received a B.S. degree in 1975 from the U.S. Military Academy.

Experience in Experimentation

Northville Girl Youngest To Take MIT Course

Sharing a class with 17 professionals representing such diverse fields as psychiatry, mathematics, electrical engineering and chemistry, a 17-year-old Northville high school senior recently was the youngest person ever to enroll in a Special Summer Program at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She is Carolyn Calmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Calmes of 45795 Clement Court. Her summer plans were "up in the air" until she noticed an ad for MIT's special Summer Programs in a professional journal.

Encouraged to apply to MIT for summer studies by John Edwards, her science teacher at Northville High School, she traveled to the Institute for the two-week course, little realizing how unusual it was for someone so young to enroll in the program.

The course she took is "Design and Analysis of Scientific Experiments," one of 55 short, intensive courses designed to foster closer collaboration between technical education and industry and taken this summer by some 1,600 students.

When her application was reviewed, Dr. Paul Berger, one of the professors for the course, spoke with Ms. Calmes to be certain she was sufficiently prepared for course work.

Ms. Calmes' in-depth experience with scientific experimentation dates to last January when she took a high school science seminar.

Her particular project, working with 20 mice to determine the relation between dietary choline and brain choline, was inspired by an article she read in Science magazine by Richard J. Wurtman, professor of endocrinology and metabolism in the MIT

Department of Nutrition and Food Science. She also examined behavioral and physiological aspects of choline, a vitamin found, for example, in egg yolks. Her practical lab experience put her on sound footing with her classmates.

While Ms. Calmes was at MIT, the mice were cared for by her mother.

Ms. Calmes plans to continue her research this fall with independent study and believes her summer studies at MIT "will definitely help my school work." Career plans include college — possibly MIT — medical school, and becoming a physician.

"Design and Analysis of Scientific Experiments" is taught by Harold A. Freeman, MIT professor of statistics, emeritus, and senior lecturer in the MIT Department of Economics, and Paul Berger, associate professor of management science at Boston University.

According to Professor Freeman, the course has been taken in the form of a summer course, conference, or seminar by about 1,000 people, representing "a remarkable array of professional interests," in the 30 summers it has been offered at MIT.

"There are both good and lousy ways of conducting experiments in virtually every field where experimentation is done," Professor Freeman said in describing the course. He and Professor Berger try to describe the good ways — those rooted in mathematical statistics and probability.

"Luckily, advances in experimentation have little to do with separate fields, and the methods of experimentation developed by mathematical statisticians seem to apply equally well to all fields," Professor Freeman said. "Good experimentation in sociology is good experimentation in metallurgy."

Chamber Concert

Gets Earlier Date

The third chamber music concert which had been scheduled for July 20 at Schoolcraft College has been moved a day earlier to Monday, July 19.

Director Richard Saunders said the change in dates was necessary because a number of the Schoolcraft performers are also members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and have a conflict with the original date.

Saunders said the same time, 8 p.m., and place, Liberal Arts Theater, are in effect for the now July 19 concert.

Richters Enter Engine Show

Novi residents John and Mary Richter will be entering several displays in the seventh annual Tractor and Engine Show held by the Central Michigan Antique Tractor and Engine Club.

The event will be held July 17-18 at the fairgrounds on M-36 east of Mason. It starts at 9 a.m. and will also feature such things as tractor pulling races and old time fiddlers. For information, contact Ron Smith at 517-676-9391.

Citizens Stay Away

Schoolcraft College OK's Its 1976-1977 Budget

A general operating budget of $9,862,847 has been adopted by the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

No citizens attended the public hearing on the budget. The new budget is $615,000 above the adjusted operating budget for 1975-76.

Expenditures for operations and special maintenance and equipment funds will utilize all income from the college's 1.77 mill property tax. This necessitates a continued levy beyond voted millage for debt service funds, a spokesman said.

Income for the new fiscal year shows a 6.65 percent increase. The amount derived from local property taxes is down, however, due to losses attributed to imposition of the recently enacted single business tax. Instead of the usual eight-percent increase in state equalized valuation, the district SEV is $77 million below a year ago.

Income from student tuition and fees is projected at $2,625,137, for a 7.4 percent increase.

The "greatest unknown in the budget picture," according to Fred Petersen, manager of business services, is the state appropriation which is estimated at $4,115,748. It should be noted that the college continues to operate on a July 1 through June 30 fiscal year, while the state has extended its fiscal year by three months or through September.

On the expenditure side the new budget complies with board guidelines concerning expenditures for personal services which reflect 84.9 percent of projected expenditures. The remaining 15.1 percent is earmarked for services and supplies, other operating costs, capital outlay, transfers, contingency and reserves.

Largest expenditure by function is the nearly $6 million for instruction, representing more than 60-percent of the budget. The next largest allocation is $1.4 million (10.5-percent) for physical plant. Student affairs (nine-percent), general administration (7.5-percent), and business affairs (6.5-percent) complete the major functional allocations, with 1½-percent set aside for contingency.

Expenditures reflect increase for general and personal insurance costs and for utilities. Significant savings have been realized by not budgeting for 10 new full-time faculty members which enrollments justify, and by reducing allocations for overtime and part-time pay, for off-campus facility rental, promotion and capital expense.

Here's a breakdown of projected expenditures: Instruction, $5,983,699; student affairs, $913,041; general administration, $746,978; business affairs, $629,301; physical plant, $1,409,667; athletics, $32,161; contingency, $148,000.

The income breakdown: Local tax, $2,914,744; tuition and fees, $2,625,137; state appropriation, $4,115,748; federal grants, $83,718; other income, $53,500; and prior year balance, $70,000.

Cited for Perfect Grades

Frida Thorley-Waara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Waara of Wixom, is one of the students at Northern Michigan University at Marquette cited for attaining a perfect 4.0 grade average.

She is one of 277 students among the 1,350 on the dean's list for spring who had perfect averages. To be named to the dean's list it is necessary to have a 3.25 average on a 4.0 scale.

Married to Ron Thorley of Troy last year, she and her husband both are students. She will be a senior in the fall with a major in foreign languages and a minor in physical education.

Disposal Plant Isn't Planned Says Novi

Sewer 'Controversy' Is Blamed on Rumors

Charges by the City of Northville that Novi is uncomfortably near or at its maximum allotted sewer capacity and is planning to build a new sewage treatment plant have been labeled false by Novi.

At a Northville City Council meeting July 1, council members discussed ways to stop Novi's construction of a treatment plant.

Mayor A.M. Allen, having attended a meeting in Wayne County of concerned area communities, told council members that the Novi city manager had said at the meeting that Novi is in immediate need of additional capacity. Furthermore, he noted that Novi is actively seeking a site for a new plant.

Novi City Manager Edward F. Kriewall later denied these statements.

Allen told this newspaper last week that he had received a call from Roger Christensen, who owns a parcel of land on Nine Mile Road near Novi's sewage holding tank. According to Allen, Christensen said that the City of Novi approached him (Christensen) about selling his property for use as a sewage treatment plant site.

When contacted by this newspaper, Christensen said that he had talked to Duane Bell, Novi fire chief, about the Nine Mile Road property. Bell told Christensen the City of Novi wanted the land to build a new fire station.

The Nine Mile Road location was one of several recommended by Bell and a citizen committee for two proposed new fire stations.

Christensen said, "I read between the lines and called Mayor Allen." Christensen explained that because his land is near the sewage holding tank, and because he knew Novi needed sewer capacity, he (Christensen) "put two and two together." Christensen said that at no time was a sewage treatment plant actually discussed with Bell or any other representative of the City of Novi.

The present controversy began when the Michigan Water Resources Commission (WRC) decided to allow Washtenaw County communities to treat sewage locally rather than force them to join in a regional inceptor plan, popularly known as "super sewer."

Novi, which is rapidly developing, had been coming on the super sewer to handle its future sewage disposal needs.

At a subsequent meeting of Wayne and Oakland County communities, Allen said Kriewall told the Wayne County Road Commission

(the operating agency for Wayne County sewage facilities) that Novi was using its maximum four cubic feet per second (cfs) of sewer capacity, 24 hours a day, now.

Betty Lennox, Northville Township supervisor, also was present at that meeting. She said she had not taken notes on the informal discussion, during which Kriewall's remarks were made, and she could not verify Allen's account of Kriewall's statement. But, said Mrs. Lennox, "I got the definite impression that they (Novi) were desperate for capacity."

In response to Allen's report of the meeting, Kriewall said he had been misunderstood. Kriewall said that while the City of Novi has sold all its sewer capacity "on paper" it would be several years before all that capacity will be physically in use.

Records of the Oakland County Department of Public Works (DPW) support Kriewall's contention. The DPW meters Novi's 42-inch sewer pipeline through Northville, and Jim Porter, a DPW engineer, reports that Novi currently releases a peak load flow of 2.5 cfs, which is well below their maximum 4.0 cfs capacity. DPW records also show an average flow of 2.1 cfs during a recent three-week period.

Despite Oakland County's report of Novi's use of the line, Wayne County Road Commission, which has jurisdiction over the interceptor through Northville, told this newspaper last week that it would install its own metering device immediately to determine for itself Novi's use of the line.

Meanwhile, also, the City of Novi is having tests made of the pollution content of the Rouge River water that originates in Novi. Officials of Northville and citizens living along the stream in Northville contend the River is already polluted by effluent from Novi, and they fear that construction of a Novi disposal plant, real or imaginary, would further pollute the stream.

Porter said that Novi's holding tank is not used on a daily basis, because it is not needed. (Earlier, Kriewall told this newspaper the tank has never been used). Porter said that even after the Twelve Oaks Mall is opened, "they (Novi) definitely will not be pushing the four cfs."

Porter said that Northville's complaints that Novi is sending too much sewage through the 42-inch line and clogging up the Rouge River sewer at Seven Mile Road, result from a few severe storms when runoff accidentally found its way into the sanitary sewer.

Harold Penn, engineer for the City of Northville, verified Porter's statements. "As far as I know," said Penn, "Novi has never exceeded its capacity."

He said that problems with infiltration of storm water into the sanitary sewer system were being reduced by use of better pipe joints, and other means.

Officials of both Wayne and Oakland County stated that Novi could not build a new sewage treatment plant without first filing an environmental impact statement with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Northville, Northville Township, or any other community downstream from Novi would have the right to challenge that environmental impact statement, if they felt a sewage plant would cause too much pollution of the stream within their boundaries.

Meanwhile, the Wayne County Road Commission is working to revive the super sewer plan. They are challenging Washtenaw County's environmental impact statement on sewage treatment plants in Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti, which will discharge treated sewage into the Huron River.

"We are in the process of what lawyers call 'exhausting our administrative remedies,'" said George Bingham of the Wayne County Road Commission. After those steps, Bingham says the Road Commission is prepared to go to court to block Washtenaw County sewage treatment plans and force construction of the super sewer.

Here's Some Leftovers From Our Big 'Fourth'

By NANCY-DINGELDEY
Leftovers from the fourth of July...

Posterior pains suffered by local "Paul Reveres" as they galloped through the city during the twilight hours on Saturday night proclaiming the big Bicentennial celebration planned for Sunday.

A local "Paul" not used to the saddle swore he raised some blisters as a result of the activity. In most areas of the city, residents turned out to welcome the riders decked out in the "costume of the day."

Another "Paul" looking somewhat like a cross between Ben Franklin, what with his bushy beard, was challenged as he attempted to enter an apartment complex.

You could almost imagine "Paul Revere" not wanted here" as he was told to leave by one man "or he'd call the cops." To save time, we might add, this "Paul" was riding bare-back. So as he reached for his wallet to indeed prove he was a member of the local constabulary, he slipped from the horse's back.

Asked by an on-looker if he had injured himself in the fall, "Paul" answered graciously, "No, no...I always get off this way."

Satisfied that "Paul" was up to no evil deed, he was finally allowed to finish that portion of his now famous ride to the cheers and smiles of those lining the street along the way.

Sunday bloomed bright and glorious with a celebration that seemed to please everyone. Speeches and a special tribute to the city from the governor added to the occasion that was said to remind our older citizens of the "fourths" years back.

The ribbon cutting ceremonies and dedication of the parkland were marked by speeches from two former mayors, with the ribbon "snipped" by the current mayor, Val Vangieson.

State Representative Dick Fessler was on hand to present two state flags to the city in honor of the occasion. One is to be flown at the park, the other at city hall.

In case you haven't noticed, three new flag poles now grace the front lawn of City Hall. Those poles are a Bicentennial gift to the city from the members of the city council.

All in all, the day was a huge success from beginning to end topped off with what had to be the most spectacular fireworks display in the territory.

And then there were the hanger-oners who decided to end the day in grand fashion by attending the finale dance at the Finn Camp. The music was absolutely great with the dance hall decorated as a river boat...just great!

and fire departments...because the day would have been nothing without them!

And I for one think our mounted police units are really terrific!

Other good things that have happened recently...Sandy and Fred Evans coached their girls softball team to first place and the championship of the "shags" division in the Lakes Athletic League.

The shags' division is for girls 14 to 18. Included on the Wixom team were Linda Brown, Terri Robinson, Dorie and Laurie Evans and Linda Lentz.

Success came to the younger kids, too, as Arlene and Stuart Colyer coached their nine and ten-year-old "braids" to the championship.

Almost a totally Wixom team, it included Sandi Craigie, Lynette Dulek, Lori Larsen, Dawn Hulme, Lisa Doria and Amy Colyer. Other hustlers on the fast-moving team included Nola Houtz, Lisa Higgins, Cathy Ballmer and Melissa Schenck.

Novi Considers A Traffic Grant

Novi City Council is currently weighing the pros and cons of applying for a traffic grant that would, if approved, pay a portion of the wages of seven officers and a clerk for three years.

The council, in holding off making a decision at the last council meeting, indicated it needed information on where funding of the city's share would come from and how many officers on the force will be needed after the Twelve Oaks Mall becomes a reality. According to Corporal Frank Barabas, head of the traffic bureau, if the grant is received it would allow the city a traffic vehicle on the streets every hour of the day, seven days a week — with periods of overlapping. Currently traffic cars are on the streets only 88 hours a week.

The eight additional employees would be in addition to the current staffing of three traffic officers, the corporal heading the division, and a clerk.

The traffic bureau was actually established four years ago thanks to a traffic grant, but those funds will end in September. The city will have to pick up the complete cost of those men — an additional $24,000.

Funding of the new grant would be on a 70-30 basis with the federal government paying 70 percent the first year and the city 30 percent. Second year it would be 50-50 and the third year 30-70.

In the first year, Barabas estimated the federal government would pay $98,000 and the city $43,000.

According to Barabas, the additional men would allow "stricter enforcement of drunk drivers", more patrols in the subdivisions and greater coverage on main roads.

Barabas added that with the shopping center coming in, Novi would soon have to compare itself to Southfield, though on a smaller basis. He explained that Southfield currently has a 17-man traffic bureau, although it also has a larger population.

Council members questioned extensively whether the manpower could be better put to use in the patrol division although Police Chief Lee BeGole said there are currently no grants for patrol officers.

"I would like to see more uniformed officers on the streets," added BeGole. "This (proposal) does. These are not traffic officers. They are policemen assigned to traffic."

Commented City Manager Edward Kriewall, "This proposal warrants a special look. We are talking about uniformed patrolmen who can be put on the streets."

A report will come back to the council Monday, July 19th from the administration on the financial impact of the proposal.

Barabas said the department would stand about a 50-50 chance of getting the grant if it is allowed to apply.
