

Northville's fun-packed community fair opens today

There'll be colorful fruit pies...strawberry, blueberry, apple and peach...that are hot and tangy and absolutely mouth-watering.

There'll be vegetables, crisp and fresh and pretty in reds, greens and yellows.

There'll be sweet, gooey candy, plus homemade bread with its indescribable taste and smell.

There'll be needlepoint work, quilting and knitting, plus paintings done in water colors, oils and acrylics.

There'll be horses, bold and majestic, and antique cars with shiny chrome and classic lines.

There'll be the wonderful carnival rides, with the swirl of colors, and the 19th century nickelodeon-sounding music competing with the sounds of youngsters giggling and screaming as the rides tip and dip, bend and bounce and rise and fall.

And there'll be goats, lots of goats at this year's Northville Community Fair.

The seventh annual fair opens at noon today at the Northville Downs and runs through 11 p.m. Saturday. Admission and parking is free.

Like all fairs state and local, the Northville fair offers a multitude of sights, sounds and smells, plus a mixture of urban and country life.

Part of that urban life will be manifested in an antique car show and Demolition Derby, not to mention the fine arts exhibits.

"This is more an urban fair now," acknowledged Marjory Cinader, a member of the Northville Fair Committee.

"People don't seem to be as interested in the rural things anymore, like livestock exhibits or horse-pulling. They like things mechanical," Mrs. Cinader said.

But some fair-type events, like canning, baking and needlepoint remain popular, according to Mrs. Cinader.

Last year more than 1,000 people entered in one of the numerous exhibits at the Northville Fair with over 40,000 people attending, and Mrs. Cinader expects another equally large, if no larger, number of entrants and visitors this year.

"We had people come from nearby Livonia and Plymouth and as far away as Broken Arrow, Oklahoma," added Mrs. Cinader.

There won't be any out-of-state entrants in the goat show, set for 10 a.m. Saturday at the east parking lot, but there'll be lots of goats.

"The dairy goat industry is growing by leaps and bounds," said Mrs. Doris Sleeth, superintendent of the goat show.

"We're now using goat milk more and more for human consumption. It's more easily digested, it's better for people with ulcers and babies with digestive problems," explained Mrs. Sleeth.

Mrs. Sleeth said that the best goat breeding in the nation is in California, Ohio, Texas and Wisconsin.

"We have only a one-day show, so it's not worthwhile for people to ship their goats here," she explained.

But there will be some La

Manchas on hand at the fair, pure American-bred goats that are almost earless but give great milk, according to Mrs. Sleeth.

The fair opens at noon today with the judging of exhibits set for noon until 5 p.m. The exhibit area will then open at 6 p.m. and close at 11 p.m.

The fair will run from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

The Demolition Derby is set for the Grandstand at 8 p.m. Friday. The exhibit area will be closed while the Derby is on.

The horse show will begin at 9 a.m. at the east end of the grandstand.

Antique car judging will be held at 5:30 p.m. at the grandstand.

Solar lab plan sparks optimism

A proposal to locate the federal government's planned Solar Energy Research Institute (SERI) in Michigan is one of 20 now being evaluated in Washington.

Included in the proposal, prepared by Michigan Energy Resource Research Association (MERRA), are five possible permanent sites for the institute, one of which is in Northville Township.

Deadline for submitting proposals to the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) was July 15. Bidders from Maine to California are competing for SERI, but a MERRA spokesman said last week Michigan had a good chance to land the institute.

MERRA proposed that SERI settle temporarily in the American Center office complex in Southfield.

After three to five years, SERI would build its own facility on one of five available sites in the Detroit metropolitan area.

The Bendix Corporation would act as operator-manager of a Michigan-based SERI.

The MERRA proposal makes a strong pitch for Michigan, citing the state's "industrial ingenuity, manufacturing capability and scientific know-how."

According to MERRA, Michigan is part of the Great Lakes manufacturing region—the largest energy-consuming sector of the country.

"This is where our energy problem is. This is where the problem must—and can most effectively—be solved," said John E. Mogk, MERRA president.

Among Michigan's other assets, the MERRA proposal lists its central location, excellent transportation systems, diverse industry, and prestigious universities.

If MERRA is successful in bringing SERI to Michigan, the institute would be built on one of five available sites in the Detroit metropolitan area.

A 300-acre parcel of land on Beck Road between Five Mile and Six Mile roads is one of those being offered. The others are in Detroit's Rouge Park, Willow Run Airport, the City of Romulus and Superior Township, near Ann Arbor.

The MERRA proposal does not recommend any one of these locations over the others. But sources in Wayne County government and MERRA have said in the past that the Northville Township

Leases appear standard

Leases being acquired in this area for mineral rights by the Arbuckle Corporation appear to be "standard documents" used by exploratory drilling companies.

That's the information supplied by the Department of Natural Resources when it was informed of the language in one of the lease forms being used here.

However, the length of the leases appears longer than normal, DNR said.

The leases are ranging from five to 10 years.

"We're not supposed to give advice, but I wouldn't personally tie up my land that long," a DNR spokesman said when pressed for an opinion. "Two, three or five years is more reasonable."

Property owners approached by Arbuckle or its representatives are advised to contact their attorneys before signing any lease.

Generally, the leases inspected by this newspaper are offering first-year bonuses of up to $10 per acre (in some cases up to $10 per lot), with subsequent yearly payments of only $1 per acre.

According to DNR, it is general practice to offer $1 for second, third and additional years. It is the first year "bonus" that generally is negotiated between the lessee and the lessor, DNR said. There is no "standard" first-year bonus figure. "It can be just about anything the property owner is able to get or the drilling company is willing to give," DNR said.

One such lease reads in part:

"It is agreed that this lease shall remain in force for a primary term of Ten (10) years from this date and if lessee shall commence to drill within said primary term or any extension thereof, lessee shall have the right to continue drilling to completion with reasonable diligence; said term shall extend as long thereafter as oil and gas, or either of them is or can be produced by lessee from said land or from a communitized unit as hereinafter provided."

The leases agree to pay the property owners royalties of one-eighth interest in the event gas is discovered and produced.

The leases also provide: "For the purpose of oil and/or gas development under this lease, lessor (property owner) does hereby grant to

860 buns baked for German meal

Starting with 75 pounds of flour Friday, women from St. Paul's Lutheran Church whipped up 860 knackwurst buns for this weekend's German dinner at the Northville fair.

All the food to be served by the fellowship circle will be made from scratch.

The German menu includes knackwurst on a bun, sauerkraut, spaetzle, German potato salad and German chocolate cake.

The complete dinner, served from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Northville Downs kitchen, will cost $3. A knackwurst sandwich, a la carte, is $1.

The buns were baked from a cloverleaf bread roll recipe belonging to Ettie Ann Hirth. "My grandmother taught me how to make this roll recipe when I was a teenager," Mrs. Hirth said.

Cakes will be donated by church members, and Mrs. Hirth supplied a topping recipe guaranteed to give dessert a genuine Bavarian flavor.

CLOVERLEAF BREAD ROLLS

Dissolve 2 squares of yeast in 1 lukewarm water and set aside.

Stir together 1/2 C sugar and 2 tsp. salt.

Mix 1/4 C instant potatoes in 2 C hot water. Add to sugar and salt. Stir.

Add yeast mixture. Add 2 1/2 C flour. Beat well by hand. Let set 10 minutes. Add 1/2 C oil and 1 egg. Stir until mixed.

Add 2 1/2 C flour and beat. Add another 2 1/2 C flour and mix.

Turn out on board and knead (if large bowl is used, kneading may be done in bowl.)

Let rise until double. Punch down and make 1-inch balls (or larger for larger rolls).

Place in pan about 1/2 inch apart. Bake at 400 degrees until brown (about 20 minutes).

Mrs. Hirth said the above recipe will make about 3 dozen rolls. To make the knackwurst buns, the dough was formed into a 3-inch sausage shape.

GERMAN CHOCOLATE CAKE TOPPING

1 large can Pet milk

1 C nutmeats

1 C coconut

2 Tbsp. butter

1 C sugar (white)

3 egg yolks, beaten

Mix above in saucepan and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thick. Cool and spread on cake.

Marathon bridge: 'an easy treat'

By JEANDAY

OVER THE YEARS rules for play in the annual Northville Mothers' Club marathon bridge tournament have proved quite problem-free and the mechanics of keeping a dozen leagues in play from September to May have been worked out well by the club.

There are daytime and evening groups for women to play with a partner as well as evening leagues for couples. The sponsoring club places participants in leagues according to ability and, if possible, compatibility.

Each team in a league plays each other team in it with the team designated as hostess for the month contacting the other players for a convenient time. Scores are sent in to club scorekeepers by the hostess each month, and tallies are announced at mid-point as well as at the conclusion of play.

This year's chairmen, Mrs. P. Roger Nieuwkoop and Mrs. I. M. McLeod, now are signing up participants for the new season.

In announcing the sign-up time, Mrs. Nieuwkoop points out that fees are being raised $1 a season for the first time since marathon began in the 1960's. Payable in advance, they are $10 each for women playing and $20 a couple for the season. The increase, she adds, is to cover higher postage charges.

"We like to see new faces," comments Carolyn Nieuwkoop, mentioning that this is a good way for newcomers to become acquainted with other bridge players.

"You shouldn't get uptight about the entertaining at all," she stresses, mentioning that some first-year participants have worried about the hosting duties.

"Be informal and entertain just as you want," she urges newcomers. Mrs. Nieuwkoop and her husband have played in a couples' league every year and have found that many couples "bring their own bottle" with them for the evening. "It doesn't have to cost a lot of money," she says, noting that in some of the women's groups, especially, only coffee and perhaps lemonade or pop are served if women are dieting.

Ardis McLeod echoes Mrs. Nieuwkoop's advice, saying she likes to serve sandwiches with coffee when she entertains. She also cited one of Mrs. Nieuwkoop's popular and easy treats, an English muffin served hot with pizza mix.

Both urge new players to do as Mrs. David Sparling did when she first played marathon—call and ask the other partners.

"She called me and asked what was customary," Mrs. Nieuwkoop recalls, "and I told her, 'do what you want and it will be fine' and it was."

Mrs. John Crotteau, who with her husband, has played the marathon ever since moving to Northville, observes that her entertaining has become "less and less elaborate."

"Those who are playing for the first time seem to go all out, but then the bridge becomes more important, and I like it that way," she explains.

"I remember when I got out my best tablecloth, my best silver and whipped up a fancy dessert, but I find I'm enjoying it more now as we're starting Year Number Seven and lots of times I just put out mugs of coffee with cheese and crackers or little sandwiches.

"I don't think," adds Mrs. Crotteau, "that we could ever give it up. We've met so many people and quite a few couples have become firm and fast friends."

Sponsors appreciate the feelings of players like Mrs. Crotteau. Mrs. Nieuwkoop points out also that the tournament is a "nice moneymaker for the club." Last year $1,107 was raised (after cash prizes were awarded) with the money going toward restoration of the schoolhouse in the Mill Race Village, as it will this season.

In prior years, funds have been used for school projects, including equipment for the library and drama department at the high school.

"I'm playing in three leagues this fall," confesses Mrs. Martin Rinehart, immediate past president of Northville Mothers' Club. She and her husband will be in a couples' league and with Mrs. Don Williams she will be playing in two women's leagues.

"Bev Williams talked me into the two women's leagues," Bonnie Rinehart explains, "because it's a good way to play serious bridge. Instead of getting in four or five hands, like some club groups, you have to play the 20 hands."

"I remember when we joined a couples' group as newcomers not knowing a soul in Northville, and I really didn't know what to do, but it's always been great. Sometimes now I just get frozen eclairs."

If all this has interested you in marathon, Mrs. Nieuwkoop, 349-0933, or Mrs. McLeod, 455-2436, are taking reservations now.

The I. M. McLeods are back in town this week after a four-day outing with four Northville families at Mitchell State Park near Cadillac. With the Donald Willoughbys, Norman Postmas and Thomas Curlys they set up tents and shared a motor home at the park.

The 17 all ate together and enjoyed sailboating, canoeing and fishing. "Then we finished off the long weekend by stopping in Frankenmuth for dinner," says Mrs. McLeod, who is enthusiastic about her first camping experience.

DR. AND MRS. JAMES Tsoucaris, who live on Donegal Court in Edenderry, have new neighbors who also are relatives. His brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Sellas and their three children moved last Wednesday to a new home facing theirs. Dr. Sellas is chief pathologist at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

The Sellas youngsters, Spencer, 11, Laraine, 9, and Steven, 7, started school on the ESY program this week. The family moved here from Plymouth.

In a short time the two related families will become even closer neighbors, as Dr. Tsoucaris, a dentist, is having Tony Bauss build a home right next door to the Sellas', which he also built.

NEWCOMERS' luau set for this Saturday at the home of the Craig Parkers at 20290 Rippling Lane in Highland Lakes will be attended by a group of 34 couples, Mrs. John Berry, president, reports this week.

She's especially pleased that the event is drawing some very recent arrivals to the community, who will be attending their first social event of the club.

Mrs. Parker is one of the Newcomers' two social chairmen who will be arranging get-togethers throughout the year. The Parkers live in one of the new, separate homes being constructed in Highland Lakes near the Eight Mile Road entrance.

FROM WASHINGTON, D.C., comes news of former Northville resident, Mrs. Fred E. VanAtta, who last week had a surprise visit from Cynthia Baker of Seven Mile Road.

Mrs. VanAtta has been enjoying entertainment at the Kennedy Center and reports seeing "Fiddler on the Roof" and "The Mikado," with the latter recalling for her "songs my parents used to sing and hum."

Lieutenant and Mrs. John R. Cast

Mary Krause wed in July ceremony

Mementos of major events in Mary Krause's life were sewn into her wedding gown by her mother for her marriage July 24 to Lieutenant John R. Cast.

They exchanged vows and rings in an 11 a.m. ceremony at the altar of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, which was decorated with blue and white floral arrangements to carry out the wedding color theme.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Krause of 46065 Ponner Road.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Cast of Hamilton, Ohio.

The bride's gown of white polyester crepe featured a pin-tucked bodice trimmed with lace. The only button on the gown, at the back of the scoop neck, was the tiny one from the bride's baptismal dress. A self-ruffle edged the hemline of the gown which was sashed with a blue satin ribbon.

All the lace on the hem of the gown's petticoat was from the bride's confirmation dress. A pocket sewn into the petticoat at the hem held an embroidered handkerchief carried by her maternal grandmother 55 years ago and then by her mother 24 years ago.

The bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Glick, attended the wedding from Havana, Illinois.

The bride's nosegay of white daisy mums and blue baby's breath was tied with blue and white satin ribbons.

Both the bride and her maid of honor, Kay Carpenter, wore wide-brim hats in material matching their gowns and adorned with miniature nosegays at the back.

The honor maid's gown was of blue polyester crepe with white lace trim. It was fashioned with a scoop neckline, puff sleeves and was sashed in white. It also had been made by the bride's mother.

The honor maid's bouquet was of blue bachelor's buttons and white daisy mums tied with white ribbon.

The Reverend Charles F. Boerger officiated at the service, giving the benediction in German for the couple.

The bride, a 1972 graduate of Northville High School, is a 1976 graduate of Michigan State University where she majored in German and had a minor in history.

Her husband, whom she met on campus, is a 1975 graduate of MSU.

Three classmates were his attendants with Philip Spencer serving as best man and Greg Proudfoot and John Geiger as ushers.

A champagne brunch reception followed at the Mayflower Meeting House where decorations repeated the blue and white theme and included cages containing live white doves.

The 150 guests included out-of-towners from Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

For their wedding trip the couple left for Georgia where Lieutenant Cast is stationed at Fort Stewart. They will live at Hinesville, Georgia, where the bride will be teaching.

Gas exploration may keep planners busy

Secretary Ella McMillan joins Ron Wiktor (left) and Ted Dorr in reviewing new bus routes

Administrative interns on the job in Novi

By WAYNE LODER

For seven weeks, Ted Dorr and Ron Wiktor were part of the Novi School District administrative team.

But it wasn't a permanent job. And to be truthful about it, neither received a dime for his services. What they did receive was credit toward an Educational Specialist Degree at Eastern Michigan University.

Dorr and Wiktor were two of 18 administrative interns assigned to different school districts throughout Michigan. And thanks to various factors including Novi's Title One summer program for Novi Elementary youngsters, Novi was selected as one of the sites for the administrative interns to be sent.

The rules were fairly simple. The interns were to do whatever needed doing. According to Superintendent Dr. Gerald Kratz there were plenty of "low priority" items which were on the list to do, but were very time consuming and had perhaps been put on the back burner.

One of the more important tasks, assigned to Dorr who was under the wing of assistant superintendent Dr. William Barr, was to construct bus routes in Novi. That, perhaps, was a harder task this year than in the past as students are now being assigned to bus stops. Dorr had to not only locate the routes, but also to locate the stops taking into account that no more than 18 students were to be at a stop.

"It took me double as long because Dr. Barr wanted theoretical routes because he wanted someone to look at it with a fresh outlook," said Dorr.

He noted that about half his recommendations coincided with what was eventually accepted, although none of his new ideas for routes were adopted.

Dorr noted the project was also a lot of work because there were no up-to-date maps of the district with all roads which needed servicing. He also had to locate the number of students at each home and then correlate that to the stops. He added that his work was helped along by previously prepared recommendations of the transportation committee.

Wiktor's big project was to prepare an administrative handbook. It sounds easy, but Wiktor had to research policies which had been

With disclosure this week that exploratory gas drilling operations are planned here, Novi planners indicate they will probably be forced to take a look at the zoning ordinance as it relates to construction of gas or oil wells.

Novi planners made their comments when told of the activities of the Arbuckle Corporation of Warren, which is buying up mineral rights leases throughout Novi, the Oakland County section of Northville and Lyon Township.

(See related stories on Record, Page 1).

Coming to light this week is that the Arbuckle Corporation, subsidiary of Wenner Petroleum Corporation in Frazer, has a purported $1 million allocated to purchase mineral leases throughout the area and has already acquired them for about 200 acres of property.

The Arbuckle Corporation, according to a letter received by a property owner in Novi, "has been formed for the sole purpose of buying and developing the oil and gas leases we are now seeking in your area. All gas found from this development will be offered to local industry for local use. This is the sole purpose of our project."

While the primary purpose is to find natural gas, a representative of the Arbuckle Corporation indicated it would not be unhappy if oil was discovered.

The Arbuckle Corporation is hopeful of eventually gaining mineral rights to every parcel in Novi, the Oakland County portion of Northville and Lyon Township, including eventually municipally owned property.

In this area, only one well per 40 acres of land is permitted under state law. Blocks of leases assembled by drilling companies could allow not only more wells, but would also protect the interest of the discovering company in the event oil or gas is found, according to the State Department of Natural Resources.

According to Charles Cairns, the city planner from Vilcan-Leman, wells would be allowed in general industrial areas only. But, he noted, the company would "have to go where the product is" and that might not necessarily be in industrially zoned property.

But Cairns indicated that inclusion of wells in areas not industrially zoned might not necessarily be injurious to the city.

"In areas like the west coast, they have oil derricks near residential areas, but they've been built architecturally so they're not abrasive."

But, he noted, there still could be problems if the wells should be established in residential areas.

Planning Board Chairman John Roethel said that his body would have to take a look at specific pieces of property involved before determining whether or not an oil well could be allowed. A non-industrially zoned area could be a suitable site, he indicated.

"We'd ask for an environmental impact study to find out what it would affect," said Roethel. "If it's in an ecologically sensitive area like a black walnut forest, I'd leave that up to the DNR."

But, noted Roethel, the city might just find itself in a similar situation which came up just a couple of years ago. "If they wanted it in a residential area, we wouldn't want to put an oil or gas well in there," said Roethel. "They'd go to the Board of Appeals and from there it's Sullivan Oil all over."

Roethel was referring to a lawsuit in which Sullivan and Company of Tulsa, Oklahoma went to court unsuccessfully after the Novi Zoning Board of Appeals failed to give the

Mayor gives final report on cause of loan to library

Little of the emotional furor created earlier by a loan to the Novi Library Board was evident in a report issued by Mayor Gilbert Henderson last week.

The written report was issued in response to council demands for an administrative report on what caused the problem which resulted in the library board levying an additional half mill and requesting a loan from the city to pay contractors for construction of the second phase of the library. The city loaned the library board up to $43,000.

While council members had strongly criticized the library board at earlier meetings, the strongest part of the mayor's report said that "The library board - approached the construction of the new library with an air of financial optimism. Their optimistic revenue projections exhibited poor judgement and has caused them to have short term cash flow problems."

The report was issued at last week's council meeting with little fanfare and no comment from council. However, the council had discussed privately the report just prior to the council meeting in executive session.

The mayor's report, a two page "memo" to the city council, basically was a restatement of information received from the library board in previous meetings.

It noted that bid cost of $846,000 for both phases of the library was $175,000 more than the library had on hand. The $175,000 was originally expected from: 1976 millage of $70,000; 1977 millage of $70,000; contributions of $15,000 and Revenue Sharing of $20,000.

As of today the library board has not received $165,000 of $175,000," stated the report.

Temporary Novi Road-I-96 bridge construction to start

Before the end of the year, Novi residents could be detouring over a temporary bridge on Novi Road as work commences on the I-96 Novi Road interchange.

Bids are being taken Wednesday, August 18 by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation for a temporary bridge estimated to cost $550,000.

A. Van Kampen, engineer of bridge design for the highway department, told this newspaper that the temporary bridge will be a two lane structure located 200 feet west of the existing bridge and is designed to maintain Novi Road traffic. The bridge will be in service two to three years while another bridge is constructed where the current bridge now stands.

"This is strictly a temporary move until we build the new structure," he said.

The permanent bridge, when finished, will carry seven lanes of traffic. That will include two lanes each way, a turning lane, and one lane each way for freeway ramps. Cost of the structure will be $1.1 million.

"We'll start building it sometime next year with no idea of the completion date," said Van Kampen.

Additional funds will be spent later for further work on the interchange and that cost could approach $.75 million.

Intent of the improved interchange is to better service traffic which will be increased as the Dayton-Hudson Twelve Oaks Mall opens in 1977. Hearings were held in Novi before a decision was made on the final interchange improvements.

Renovation to close rest area

Before the end of the year, travelers along the I-96 expressway will have to go further than Novi if they want to use the rest area.

The rest area is scheduled to be closed for about six months as the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation will be renovating the entire rest area which is located on I-96 between Beck and Novi roads.

According to Jay Bastian, Assistant Supervisor of Roadside Development for the state highway department, the current restrooms will be replaced by a modern building with flushing toilets able to service 16 people at one time.

In addition, said Bastian, there will be a lobby with drinking water. The building will cost about $90,000 to construct and will be "far superior to what we have there now."

Besides the building, an information board will be erected to give travelers

Novi Township records two upsets in primary

Write-in votes netted two upsets in Novi Township primary races last week.

Incumbent Republican clerk Boyd Armstrong who has held that position eight years was eliminated by Republican Shirley Sager 102-28 while incumbent Trustee Ralph Luckett fell 97-12 to Thomas Roth in the four-year race.

Meanwhile, Supervisor Leo Kalota was re-elected with 81 votes while two other residents received one write-in vote each.

Donald Hackman, formerly a trustee, was successful in the treasurer race with 81 votes while Mrs. Sager received one.

In the two-year trustee race, Ernest Bacanyi won with 75 votes against four votes for Roth, the four-year term victor.

No one was elected to the constable post as single write-in votes were cast for Eleanor Kratz and John Zimmer. Three votes are required for election.

All Novi Township victors will be unopposed on the printed ballot in the November general election.

Ballots were also cast in county, state and national primary races. Here are the results in Novi, Wixom and the Oakland County portion of the City of Northville:

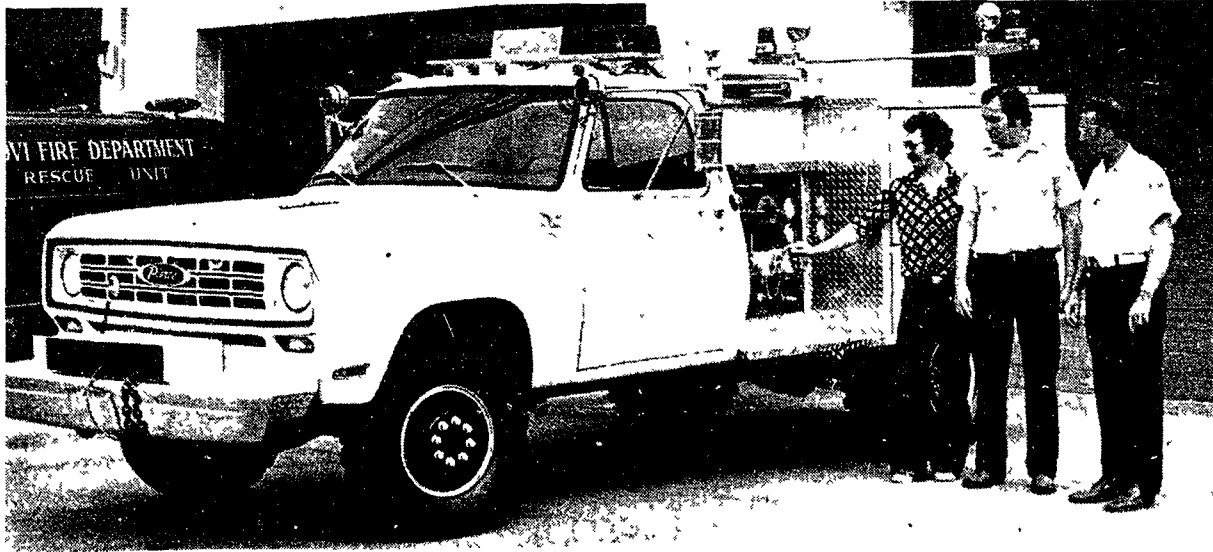

U.S. Senate

Democrats — Donald Riegle, 323,641; 518 in Novi; 139 in Wixom; and 87 in Northville; Austin, 212,046;

Attack pumper

Fireman Blake Smith, Sergeant Gerald Race and Fire Chief Duane Bell take a first look at the new Novi attack pumper after it arrived at the station last week. A lime green color, the new truck carries 250 gallons of water and cost $23,000, less than half the cost of a full-size pumper. The vehicle, according to Bell, will be used for smaller fires and fires where quick response is a must. Purchased with general fund monies allocated to the fire department last year, the truck can spray out 250 gallons of water per minute and often will be hooked up to fire hydrants to increase water pressure from the hydrants.

Fourth generation family opens home for annual tour

By JEAN DAY

"I'm the fourth generation of my family and my kids are the fifth to live in this home," says Martha Lyon of the three-story stonework house at 710 West Main Street.

She, her husband, Richard, and their two sons, Gordie, 16, and Douglas, 12, moved into the home previously occupied by her parents, the C. Harold Blooms, six years ago.

Since then they have wallpapered a great deal, remodeled a little and blended antiques from both sides of their families as well as their own to create an extremely comfortable, attractive home.

What they have done will be on view September 30 as the Victorian home will be open on Northville's 10th annual home tour.

Ten years ago, on the community's first home tour, visitors climbed the rolling lawns to the wide veranda when the Blooms opened the home for the benefit of the women's association of First Presbyterian Church in Northville.

Now the tour is co-sponsored by the Northville Historical Society. Like the first, the 10th tour will have five private homes open. The historic buildings in Mill Race Village also will be open the Thursday of the tour.

Those who visited on the first tour will discover changes made in the towering home by present occupants. They have finished the third floor into a game room and guest quarters.

As they enter the home built in 1890 by James A. Beatie, a Northville mason and great-grandfather of Mrs. Lyon, visitors will see changes made by the family immediately.

The floral wallpaper is new, as is the shag carpeting that continues into the library-television room on the right. Still dominating the high-ceilinged area, however, is the gilt pier mirror facing the door.

Mrs. Lyon explains that the mirror was used by aunts of her grandmother Beatie in Detroit, who had come from Ireland and were dress-makers who had as clients such old Detroit first families as the McMillans and Algiers.

From Dick Lyon's family came the cranberry lantern (once was used on a ship) that hangs in the entry. The antique chair with needle-point seat was left by Martha's mother.

Over the corner fireplace in the library hangs another antique from the Lyon family. It is a large "thread" picture about 140 years old of a ship, the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, in original frame.

The Lyons use a large blue glass bottle as a reading lamp base in this informal room.

Behind, the living room extends the full width of the home and features large, half-moon windows at each side. One is filled with plants while the other boasts a stained glass top.

A previous owner had eliminated a dining room to create the long room and had added a fireplace.

In this room the Lyons have used a white background green floral paper that gives a stencil look. The antique davenport were contributed by both sides of the family with one on the rear wall fronted by two matching foot-stools.

Arranged behind it are scenes done by Dick's aunts, including an early view of Trenton.

"The Lyons converted a rear sewing room into a yellow dining room with stencil-print wallpaper and new picture windows.

In the hallway by the kitchen is an early cabinet that Mrs. Lyon points out was one of the first things the couple bought as newlyweds. On another wall is an antique clock they acquired more recently.

The kitchen has been papered in a stylized block floral print and has been carpeted. Flowered paper was also used in the half-bath in this area.

When they moved into the home, the Lyons discovered architectural renderings of it in the attic and have had five framed. They hang on a stair wall.

On the second floor, Martha Lyon gave up what she agrees was a pleasant sitting room off the master bedroom to use the space instead for a walk-in closet and bath.

Pointing out the new bath with blue-stripe paper, Mrs. Lyon declares, "There was no way I wasn't going to have our own after living those years on Ely."

The other bath on this floor now is for their sons and is decorated with mod silver and rust contemporary paper.

Focal point of son Gordie's room is the large brass bed brought down from the attic.

Done in a ship motif the room is in reds and blues with white woodwork contrasting with deep blue shutters and desk. Fishermen's netting hangs across one wall while a reproduction ship's masthead adorns another.

Brother Douglas' room carries out a soldier theme. A wash stand and cane rocker are on view at the top of the stairs to the third floor.

The Lyons have finished the former attic into a guest room with red medallion wallpaper and carpeting. Here Mrs. Lyon has hung Godey prints as well as family photographs.

This room and the adjacent sitting room with built-in bench and shelves will be used by her parents, Mrs. Lyon notes, when they visit between stays at their cottage in Canada and home in Florida.

The game room with ping pong table now has distinctive horizontal paneling done by the new owners.

Ten years ago when the third floor was only a maid's room and big attic, Mrs. Bloom explained the high roof was important when the house was built, as a water tank was stored there. The tank maintained pressure for water piped from a nearby spring.

Such details will be pointed out again on the tour this September.

Other homes to be open include a Gothic cottage in town, two distinctive homes in Edenderry and a new contemporary at the edge of town.

Tickets will be $3 and may be obtained in advance from Mrs. Martin Rinehart, ticket chairman, 349-1468.

Brass bed found in attic is used in son Gordie's red-and-blue nautical room.

The word Colonial has been used to mean any kind of furniture made in this country before the 19th century, but actually it is correct to use it only for the period ending with the establishment of the United States. Early furniture was simple, unsophisticated, and purely functional, until appearance gradually became more important. Provincial furniture made of local woods, whatever was at hand, was mostly of pine, oak and maple. If there was any style it was a crude copy of what had been brought from England or remembered.

SPEAKING for The Record

By BILL SLIGER

It's fair time in Northville and months of planning and hard work for the Chamber of Commerce committee headed by Marge Cinader are on the line today through Saturday.

The financial success of the annual Northville Fair depends, of course, upon the response of the public.

The big attraction that could put the fair over the top is the grandstand show Friday night, the demolition derby.

But the traditional standbys that make fall fairs fun events for the family are well in evidence at Northville Downs this week.

There are the rides and games; homemaking contests and exhibits; a goat show and a horse show, antique cars and arts and crafts.

The Northville Fair is a community undertaking promoted and sponsored by the Northville Chamber of Commerce to provide fun and entertainment for the family.

It also endeavors to make a profit so that future fairs may be improved and a variety of community projects supported.

So why not lend your support, and have fun, too?

Drop by the fair at Northville Downs today through Saturday.

An intriguing story dug out by The Record's Jack Hoffman appears in our Northville Record-Now News and South Lyon Herald editions this week.

It involves the efforts of a Michigan petroleum corporation to obtain oil and gas leases for all properties throughout the Oakland county areas of South Lyon and Novi — including the Oakland county portion of the city of Northville.

The painstaking door-to-door procedure is reportedly a necessary forerunner to widespread exploratory drilling.

Representatives seeking the leases have emphasized that their goal is to discover natural gas and to offer it for sale to local industry.

There's the suggestion that the project may have the blessing — and financial support — of major area industry squeezed by the shortage of natural gas supply.

Hoffman has thoroughly researched his exclusive story, double-checking through private and state sources. He even sat though a 2½-hour private presentation between a company representative and a local property owner.

Unaware of Hoffman's identity, the company representative freely answered questions concerning the project.

The search for gas and oil could have a major economic impact on the area.

Longtime residents will remember the early fifties when Northville became one of the hottest oil drilling areas in the state. The LeMaster well, still producing on Napier near Seven Mile road, was the biggest find.

Subsequently, Northville fields have become underground storage spaces for natural gas.

Thus far, those seeking the lease rights have confined their efforts to private properties. Ultimately properties owned by governmental agencies and school districts will be sought. This procedure must be accomplished by bidding.

The proposed search for natural resources is certain to present some interesting problems for area officials, particularly where public welfare becomes a question.

Can drilling take place without disturbing private rights? Can compromises be reached to serve both needs — that for more gas and oil on the one hand and the well-being of the individual on the other?

It was about seven years ago that Northville Attorney Cliff Hill was shot through the neck and robbed in a parking lot near Olympia Stadium. The two thugs were apprehended and convicted and are now serving 30-year terms.

Last week (Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock) in a parking lot at a doctor's clinic near Six Mile and Greenfield the same Cliff Hill was robbed of nearly $300 by a lone thug holding a knife to Hill's throat.

The terrifying experiences might make the average individual weigh carefully future journeys into Detroit.

But the crusty Hill says he'll continue going to court and attending to whatever other business takes him to the big city.

He's given Detroit police a description of his latest assailant and hopes that he will soon join his fellow thugs behind bars.

Incidentally, the armed thief was considerate enough to take the money and leave Hill his wallet.

GEORGE PURCELL

YES . . .

Do your children know the value of the dollar? When they want to buy something for themselves, or purchase a gift for a friend or relative, or pursue a particular interest or hobby do you give them the money, deny their request, or let them earn it? If you give them the money or deny their request they may not be learning the value of the dollar.

At the age of eighteen, youngsters become legal adults and can enter into contracts to purchase motorcycles, cars and many other expensive items. A good way for them to understand the personal obligation these financial commitments mean, and to start early in their adult lives to budget and plan ahead, is to let them experience the relationship between earning and spending when they are younger.

Many people get into financial binds early in their adult lives because they find it is easy to spend money through credit card purchases and other financing arrangements without realizing the obligations they are making or the amount of work time they are committing themselves to in order to pay back these debts.

A good way to help children learn the worth of material things is to pay them for chores and running errands, then let them buy their own treats and luxury items.

Pay Kids For Chores?

JOHN BROWN

NO . . .

There are many things that have to be done around the house that parents often don't have time for, such as mowing the lawn, sweeping the garage, making the beds, etc., etc. This is where the children can help.

No one pays the father to fix a broken window, no one pays the mother to clean the house, so likewise, the children shouldn't be paid for their chores.

You don't get something for nothing. Parents house, clothe, and feed their kids. The kids have to do something in return.

I'm not saying parents shouldn't help their kids financially. There are exceptions to the rules. If a kid needs money and he works hard around the house, give him a few bucks.

But, generally speaking, if a family unit is going to work well, everyone has to put forth some effort toward the upkeep of the household, and kids shouldn't be paid for their share just because they're kids.

In our household, we all pitch in. I mow and weed, clean out the fireplace and try to make my bed. Saturday is cleaning day for all of us.

Also, it's not just doing chores, it's doing them without being asked that makes you part of a family.

JACK W. HOFFMAN'S COLUMN

He still speaks with an accent and he speaks with glowing affection for his mother country, but Jan Reef, the immigrant machinist who criticizes American work decadence, squares his shoulder and says proudly, "the United States, it is the best country in the world."

It was 55 years ago last Friday that Jan and his young wife, Nelly, sailed into the Hudson River aboard the New Amsterdam to claim this country as their home.

From that day to this, the Reefs have had a love affair with the United States.

"It's hard to explain in words," says Jan in trying to describe what it is that endears this country to him. "It's more of a feeling than it is a physical thing. I guess it's mostly the freedom of choice, the freedom of movement."

The Reefs had just $40 and a determination to work when they arrived here from Holland. "Work," he says, "is a blessing, and without it we have nothing."

And back in 1921, most other Americans shared the Reefs' willingness to work. "People worked then because they wanted to. Today, it's all different. All people do is look for ways they don't have to work. It used to be that work was an honor, but today the honorable thing is to get as much as you can without work."

America's penchant for laziness "is our biggest problem," he says. It is the root cause of crime, of social injustice, of moral decay, he suggests.

"You see it everywhere, especially in the government. It is making us a country of red tape. Jobs are created and people get them, not because the jobs are needed or because people have earned them." And this, he adds, has made government a gigantic referral agency, staffed by self-perpetuating incompetency whose chief reason for being is to tell us, "that's not my job, you'll have to go to the other guy."

Whether it is in government or in private industry, too few people take pride in their work and in the services they perform or the products they create, he says.

The fact that Jan is a modestly wealthy inventor-industrialist is the result of a lifetime of hard work by himself and by Nelly. And even though he could have retired long ago and lived very comfortably, it is not unusual to find him yet today in his Northville plant, the sleeves of his dress shirt rolled up to his elbows, operating a machine alongside his employees.

He is the most active, working 80-year-old man I know.

There is a bit of irony in Jan's love of the United States and in his work philosophy. And that is the fact that America's freedom of choice, which he so cherishes, is also the freedom that allows many to choose not to work.

Thus, looking back over the past 55 years and seeing a steady decline in respect for work, Jan Reef's chief fear is that the offspring of freedom may one day destroy freedom itself.

Death penalty finds support in Bible verses

To the Editor:

We just had to respond to the article by Rev. Henderson concerning the death penalty. He seemed to feel that the purpose of the death penalty was for revenge, and he questioned whether it could be accepted by Christians.

First of all, let's go back to the Ten Commandments as they are written in Exodus, Chapter 20. We read, "Thou shalt not kill," and we find that in the original Hebrew this portion is written, "thou shalt do no murder." Now there's a great difference between murder and capital punishment.

Moving along to Exodus, Chapter 21, we read that a person who commits murder should be put to death. (This law also applies for kidnappers.)

The responsibility for carrying out this commandment rests with the authorities, and it is the duty of the citizen to obey these same authorities. If a state fails to carry out these commands, then they are the ones who are failing in their responsibility. Now I can just hear somebody saying, but this was the "age of the Law" and today we are living in the "Age of Grace", and things are different now. Well, then, let's look at the 13th chapter of Romans. The first four verses relate the same principle, that the powers that be are allowed by God to exist, and that one of the functions of these powers is to punish evildoers. There's just no other way to interpret the words "execute wrath."

For a further understanding of this matter, consider the two criminals on either side of the Lord at the Crucifixion. To the one who recognized Christ and repented, the promise of eternal Paradise was given, but there is no record that he escaped the sentence of crucifixion that he had been justly given.

In closing, we would like to ask the question, in the light of God's Word on how to deal with kidnappers, how do you think the parents and families of those 26 children kidnapped in California would vote on this matter?

News From Lansing

By R. Robert Geake
State Representative

Eight weeks ago I reported to you in this column some of the debate over Senate Bill 4, the bill to provide financial compensation for victims of serious crimes. The proposal became a reality recently with Governor Milliken's signature on the legislation.

The crime victims fund will help persons who lose at least $100 because of medical costs or treatment, or who lose at least two weeks wages. They will be eligible to apply to the state for financial reimbursement.

Generally, a crime victim who is eligible for assistance can receive up to $100 a week for medical expenses and loss of wages. The maximum amount of state reimbursement cannot exceed $15,000 per crime to any person.

Among those who will be eligible are victims of a direct attack or those who try to help a crime victim and are injured, the surviving family members of a person killed in a crime, and a woman who becomes pregnant as the result of a rape.

The law takes effect Oct. 1, 1977 and will cost the state an estimated $1.5 million the first year. Michigan will become the 13th state to adopt such legislation.

The number of Michigan hunters is increasing faster than the state's population, according to the Department of Natural Resources. With the increase in the number of hunters comes an increase in their financial contributions to wildlife restoration work.

The DNR says that the state's estimated one million hunters have expanded their ranks by nearly 10.3 percent since 1970, while Michigan's population rose only 4.5 percent during the same period. The same trend is being noticed nationwide. The Wildlife Management Institute estimates that almost 16 million Americans hunted in 1975, over 200,000 more than in 1974.

Since 1923, hunters have contributed more than $3 billion to wildlife restoration over and above what they provide in taxes as members of the general public.

Township police aid draws his thanks

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in support of the Northville Township Police and the fine job they do. I live in the Highland Lakes Subdivision and recently suffered the misfortune of having my twelve foot aluminum rowboat stolen. Thanks to the fine work of the Northville Township patrolmen I got it back in ten days time.

On the night my boat was taken a township officer was making his rounds on the midnight shift. He spotted a truck leaving with my boat and questioned the occupants. Having no reason to disbelieve their story, he nevertheless took down their truck license number when they were unable to produce a registration for the boat. When the officer saw a boat with the same registration numbers as the one he had seen in the truck had been reported stolen, he followed it up by tracking down the truck owner and recovered the boat for me.

While I was at the police office collecting my boat, I was further impressed with both the open friendliness and the efficiency with which the police handled calls while I was there. It seems that for the first time I am the grateful recipient of the benefits of good police work and it's nice to know they're there.

Sincerely,
Robert E. Cartwright

Final report given on Novi Library

had intended to build only phase I with the second phase coming in about 10 years. But very low construction bids persuaded the library board to go ahead with the second phase. At the time, board members indicated the added construction could be done without benefit of additional millage.

Henderson told The Novi News that the Federal Revenue Sharing funds were expected by the library board as the result of monies which had flowed to the city from the federal government based upon property tax rates.

"I think the library board assumed some would be shared with the library board, but it never was," said Henderson. City Manager Edward Kriewall noted that the city was in such bad financial shape at the time, it needed the money to help it over the hump.

Henderson's report also noted that contributions have been minimal.

How could the cash flow problem have been prevented?

"First of all, the library board could have sought council approval to levy the additional 1/2 mill up to five years ago," said the report. "Secondly, would have been to only build phase I (phase two cost $181,000)."

The mayor's report failed to address the intent, possibly as a stop-gap measure by the library board to rent phase II space for up front, monies which would have allowed completion of the second phase and could have paid some of the library's construction bills.

Henderson told this newspaper that it would be hard to chastise the library board for the financial problems when the city administration in the past has had a hard time keeping the council informed on its own current financial situation.

"They never have had annual problems with overruns," said the mayor.

Added to the mayor's report was a note from Finance Director Fred Todd who recommended that the accounting system be reviewed annually to determine if it suits the needs of the library board.

"Long-term financing of projects utilizing bonding capacity of the city should be fully reviewed with the finance department," added Todd's memo. "Preparation of future bond applications shall be made with the cooperation of the library board."

Responding to the problem of the city not receiving minutes of library board meetings, a memo from Kriewall attached to the report said that the board's secretary had reassured him that minutes would be distributed to the city at the same time they are mailed to the library board members.

Leases sought on thousands of acres gas leases we are now seeking in your area. All gas found from this development will be offered to local industry for local use. This is the sole purpose of our project."

A spokesman for Arbuckle has stated that "silent partners" in the venture are attempting to develop alternative sources for gas in direct competition with Consumers Power Company

Consumers spokesmen said they are unfamiliar with Arbuckle or its purpose. Arbuckle and Wenner, according to the form letter, are committed to "acquire these leases, and drill and develop them, at once, to establish local gas reserves for local use. This is a firm commitment of both the Wenner Company, and its partners in this project. All partners are Michigan residents. Only the acquisition of the lease blocks delays the commencement of the initial wells. As a residential, business, or industrial user of gas and electricity you, too, have ample reasons for assisting us with this project and by leasing now encourage early drilling."

When asked to explain who the "silent partners" are, Michael Short, son of W. M. Short, indicated they are "local industries" who do not want their names disclosed out of fear that their current utility sources might be jeopardized.

The letter continues: "In anticipation of your natural concern as to possible visual, audible, and odoriferous effects of explorations and developments on, or close to your property, I can only offer the assurance that your present zoning, planning departments, and city, county, and state laws, rules and regulations pertaining to the location, drilling, and operations of oil and gas wells in areas such as yours preclude any actions that would cause you, or your property harm, or result in an undesirable situation of any nature."

"As example of the foregoing, no well can be drilled within 200 feet of a dwelling, or structure, and must not be less than 50 feet off any road. A well must, I believe, not be less than 200 feet from the shore of any lake, stream or river. These are state laws, augmented by local regulations.

"The drilling rig is never brought onto the drill site selected without the prior knowledge of the landowner, and along a route acceptable to him. Without fail, the actual location is selected to cause the least possible damage since the lessee must pay for any and all damages done, and must restore the land so used after completion of drilling. The drilling rig occupies approximately one to two acres during the drilling of a test well, and is usually on the land less than 30 days in this area. Small parcels with structures, or improvements are never used for drill sites because of their size. But the small parcels do share in the royalty income from any production found in their particular area."

According to DNR, which regulates and controls all drilling in the state, applications for permits to drill exploratory wells are submitted to it only after leases are acquired. No application has been submitted thus far for this area either by Arbuckle or Wenner, DNR said.

Under state law, only one well per 40 acres of land is permitted in this area, a DNR spokesman said. Generally, blocks of leases involving 160 acres are assembled prior to application and drilling, and it is general procedure for exploratory companies to acquire lease rights on more land than where wells might be located "to protect their interest in the event oil or gas is discovered," according to DNR.

If an application is submitted for drilling on private land and it meets all state requirements, "we (DNR) must grant it" even though local regulations might prohibit it, this newspaper was told.

Short said sophisticated "soundings" to detect potential underground deposits have been or are about to be made in both Lyon and Novi.

Novi City Manager Ed Kriewall confirmed that "quite a few months ago" someone made some of these kinds of tests above Novi road.

Among the leases already acquired by Arbuckle are those from at least two property owners on the west side of Novi Road, south of 10 Mile Road. Both sales have been confirmed, and the sellers voiced confidence that the leases and Arbuckle are legitimate.

The leases or potential leases in Northville Estates thus far involve mostly undeveloped lands but also one lot with a home on it.

No drilling, however, is expected to take place in the Northville subdivision, a property owner was told.

Eventually, Arbuckle intends to approach all homeowners in the Oakland County section of Northville, including those in Northville Heights and Village Green, as well as all homeowners in Novi and Lyon Township.

Owners of individual lots, however, and municipally owned lands "are last on the list" to be contacted. In the case of municipally owned land, including school property, leases can be acquired only through a bidding process.

Novi school-owned land at 10 Mile and Taft roads is specifically targeted for inclusion in Arbuckle's plans. Presumably, Northville High School and Cooke Middle School properties also are targeted because they are located in Oakland County.

Although Arbuckle's primary search is for gas, it "would be delighted" if oil were discovered upon drilling.

company the necessary majority vote for a variance necessary for drilling operations.

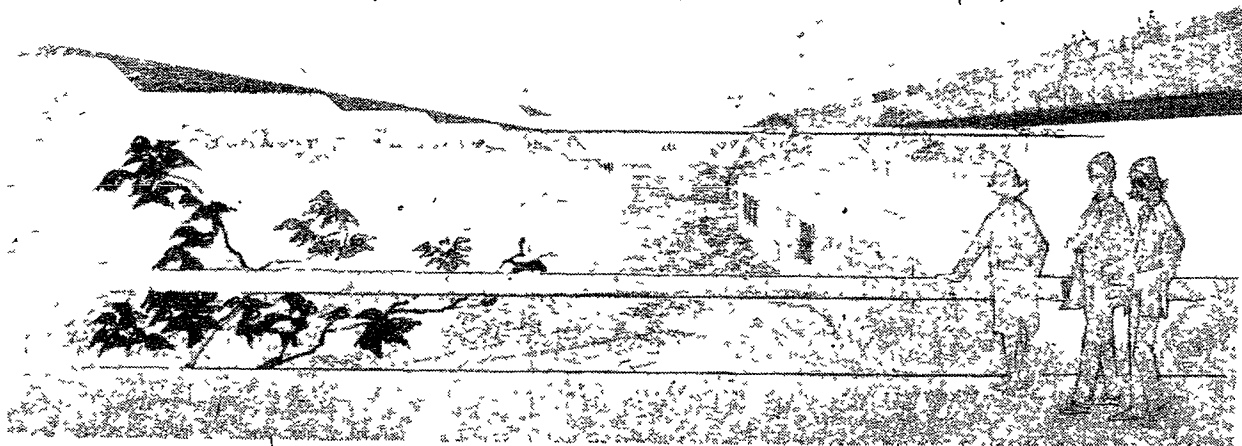

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of the company and the owners of about 1,000 acres from whom Sullivan had leased mineral rights for the property near Haggerty Road and 14 Mile. The property was zoned residential.

The company challenged the constitutionality of the Novi zoning ordinance because it lacked provision "for or against" oil drilling. The company eventually gave up after losing a circuit court battle and did not appeal, according to City Attorney

David Fried.

The charge that the Novi zoning ordinance was unconstitutional because it lacked provisions for or against oil drilling was answered in the new zoning ordinance passed within the last year when the definition for the I-2 general industrial property was defined to include "petroleum or other inflammable liquid, production, refining or storage".

Of approximately 19,000 acres in Novi, less than 1,000 are zoned I-2. Much of that lies between Grand River and the I-96 expressway both west of Novi Road and east of Meadowbrook. Other I-2 property lies near the C&O railroad tracks.

site is the best in Michigan. John Dziurman, an architect working with MERRA on the project, said last week, "Northville has a very definite plus in the community itself. It's an attractive residential community where people who staff the institute will want to live."

Dziurman's firm, Straub, Van Dine, Dziurman, drew up preliminary site plans and models for submission to ERDA. Under their concept, the 300 acres of the SERI site would be connected by a "spine." This spine would run through buildings, parking lots, and outdoor experiment areas. It would contain some sort of "people mover," — a moving sidewalk or perhaps a monorail. The spine would also act as a "utility core" carrying electricity and communications such as computer readouts.

The spine's above-ground design would have the minimum impact on the environment. This would be especially important in Northville, said Dziurman, where the site has such a rolling terrain.

The MERRA proposal named Bendix as operator-manager for "its wealth of experience in the aerospace and industrial energy fields and in managing ERDA contracts."

Advising Bendix would be the newly formed Solar Energy Corporation of Michigan (SERCOM). Governor William G. Milliken announced the creation of the non-profit corporation July 14. SERCOM is chaired by Dr. Chilton Wharton, president of Michigan State University. Its board of trustees includes representatives of business, energy, labor and education. SERI's purpose will be to develop economical and efficient solar energy conversion systems. Budget for its first year of operation will be between $4 million and $6 million. SERI may eventually become a $50 million annual program.

MERRA spent about $200,000 in state-appropriated year, with start-up operations in temporary quarters as early as January, 1977.

Other states trying to win SERI include Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey and Utah. New Mexico and Pennsylvania submitted two proposals each. A group of New England states (Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont) presented a single bid as a joint effort. The District of Columbia is also in the running.

Many of the bidders can offer more sunshine than Michigan, but MERRA points out that amount of sunshine will be less important than research and technological capabilities in selection of a SERI site.

Because of the national and international implications of SERI's work, Michigan's relative lack of sunshine may even be to its advantage.

"Michigan is where new solar energy systems will receive their most strenuous test," said Mogk.

Novi publishes council minutes

A budget amendment providing for the publication of a summary of Novi council minutes in a newspaper of local circulation was approved by council last week.

Funds for the publication, approximately $1,000 for the next year, were transferred from the general fund contingency account to the clerk's budget for publication.

According to City Clerk Geraldine Stipp, the summary of minutes will be published only in The Novi News, the official newspaper of the city.

First publication of the summary appeared in the August 4 Novi News.

A contract with architects Winebrenner and Ebejer for plans for two new fire stations in Novi was approved by city council last week.

The contract was approved pending final review and approval by City Attorney David Fried.

As of this moment, no parcels of property as sites for the two fire stations have been purchased. However, negotiations are reportedly in progress.

'City' of roads and people has your safety in mind

By ROLLY PETERSON

Prior to 1924, American automotive companies conducted their vehicle tests on public roads.

This method presented many problems, among them, inability to control road conditions, so that comparative testing was difficult, and the always present danger of accidents and company liability.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., then president of General Motors, hit on an idea in 1923 to solve these problems. The search was begun for a private controlled location for test work.

William J. Davidson, then assistant secretary of the General Technical Committee, was commissioned to find a location for a long, narrow strip of pavement "with sufficient land at one end for a very modest garage."

The Real Estate Department of General Motors located a site it thought Davidson should see. He visited the site, liked the land, and the wheels were set in motion to purchase acreage which is now part of the world-famous General Motors Proving Ground near Milford.

It was the first private road test facility developed by an automotive company.

Actually, the Proving Ground is located in both Milford and Brighton, with over two sections, or about half of the current acreage of test roads, a clubhouse and a garage measuring 200 by 60 feet, are a distant cry from the General Motors Proving Ground of today.

Now, the facility covers 4,009 acres. It has 123 miles of roads, 79 of which are test roads. There is 1,089,061 square feet of building area and about 2,500 employees, many of them living in the Brighton area.

Alonzo Kelly, director of vehicle Test Engineering, says that 15 to 20 G. M. divisions use the facilities at the Proving Ground. But there also is an engineering staff which claims the facility as its "home".

There is an essential difference between the division personnel at the Proving Ground and the engineering staff, Kelly said.

The divisions, such as Chevrolet, Buick and Oldsmobile, are responsible for design and development, but there also is emphasis on manufacture, sales and service.

Engineering staff, on the other hand, concerns itself with future product design and development.

As Kelly phrased it, "They (the divisions) don't have the time to work on vehicles way down the line. That's where the engineering staff fits in. They are concerned with vehicle development, say, from the years 1978 through 1983."

Most of the tests performed on G. M. vehicles are conducted at the Milford facility, which is the Proving Grounds headquarters, such as fuel economy, noise and vibration, brake effectiveness, handling, acceleration, ride, safety and emissions.

But General Motors has other sites to test its vehicles. They are located in Mesa, Arizona; Denver, Colorado; Pikes Peak, Colorado; Van Nuys, California and Kapus Kasing, Ontario.

All of the test sites together are referred to as the Proving Grounds, whereas the Milford testing headquarters is called the General Motors Proving Ground (singular).

Just as the physical layout, through acquisition and construction, is changing at the Proving Ground, so is the nature of company responsibility.

Only recently, Charles Brady, a Brighton native who was director of the Proving Grounds (all G.M. test sites) for many years, was named director of current product engineering. Trevor Jones, a native of England, was named director of the Proving Grounds.

The Michigan test facility is likely to keep changing over the years to meet the rising needs of the corporation.

Nancy Dickerson, prominent national correspondent, reports for Detroit Edison:

"Here are some air-conditioning tips that will keep you from getting hot under the collar this summer"

Detroit Edison is a concerned participant in America's crusade for conservation. The wise use of energy plays one of the most important roles in that effort. But it requires a working partnership between those who supply energy and those who use it. Here are some ways you can help conserve energy and save yourself some money the rest of this summer.

You can dial up and hold your costs down.

Don't overcool your home. That's a wasteful use of energy. And expensive. For the most comfort and the most efficiency, set your thermostat no lower than about 10 degrees below the outside temperature. If it's 85 degrees outside, then set your thermostat at about 75 degrees. Otherwise your air conditioner has to work extra hard and your costs go up and up. In a typical house, you can save about 5 percent in operating costs for every degree you move the thermostat up. So, if your house is going to be empty for a few hours, move your thermostat up 5 more degrees and pocket the savings.

Staying comfortable this summer can be a breeze.

When the sun beats down, the heat in your attic builds up and it can be like living under an oven. An attic exhaust fan will get the hot air out and let the cooler night air in, and take the strain off your air conditioner. Good attic insulation works wonders at keeping your home cooler in summer and it will pay off again by saving on heating costs next winter. And don't forget light-colored shingles reflect heat. Whatever you do to keep heat out of your house saves money in air conditioning. Window fans work, too.

Shades of the past.

Before you had air conditioning, there were things you did to keep comfortable, like pulling down the window shades and closing the draperies on the sunny side of the house. That's smart. Because a bare window lets in as much as 35 times more heat than an insulated wall.

So do the same now and you can reduce your air-conditioning costs by as much as 12 percent. Shade your windows from the outside with ventilated awnings or trees and save even more—up to 22 percent of your air-conditioning operating costs.

Maintain your cool.

If you want your air conditioner to take good care of you, keep it clean. This means changing or washing the air filters often. Also, vacuum the inside coils and keep outside coils free of debris. Clean registers and return ducts regularly on central air-conditioning systems, and keep the cooling drain open for free condensate flow. And don't block air flow with furniture or draperies. Your owner's manual lists other maintenance tips. Follow them and keep cool all summer.

Buying a new air conditioner? Maybe the most important numbers aren't on the price tag.

First of all, it's important that you get the right size unit (BTU's). Your salesman can help on this if you tell him the length and width of the area you want to cool. Another number that's important is the EER number. This stands for Energy Efficiency Rating.

MODEL NUMBER ACR20B 74F
VOLTS	CYCLE	PHASE
115	60	1
COOLING BTU/HR	AMPS	WATTS
6400	7.5	800
BTUs		WATTS

You can figure this out yourself. Just divide the BTU number by the number of watts. For example, a unit that delivers 6400 BTU's with 800 watts has an EER rating of 8 (800 goes into 6400 8 times.) The recommended EER number for any air conditioner is 8 or more. You may pay a little more, but you'll save on energy costs in the long run.

Detroit Edison has a folder, "How to stretch your air-conditioning operating dollar." Pick one up at any customer office and start saving, or write to: Customer Relations, Detroit Edison 2000 Second, Detroit, Michigan 48226

Save energy for all it's worth.

Burroughs executive plans next career as minister

When Burroughs executive Michael John Bedford of Northville is eligible for retirement in seven years, he should be well into a new and rewarding career.

If he completes his long-range plan as scheduled, he then will serve as a non-stipendiary clergyman of the Episcopal church.

A big first step toward this goal was achieved June 26 when he was one of six new deacons ordained in the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan.

With the ordination ceremonies in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul in Detroit before a congregation of 500 people he officially gained the right to the title The Reverend. Bishop H. Coleman McGehee conducted the ordination service.

The Reverend Bedford, who has been active as a lay reader and in other capacities of his church, St. John's Episcopal at 574 South Sheldon Road in Plymouth, will continue to work in his home parish under direct authority of the bishop.

He is in the middle of a unique work and study program that eventually will make him a full priest in the Episcopal church.

When he decided about four years ago that this is what he wanted to do, he began studies at the Detroit School of Theology located at St. Paul's Cathedral on Woodward Avenue.

His basic theology courses have included three on the Old Testament, church history, liturgy and pastoral counseling. The latter course included work with patients at Harper Hospital.

To complete the courses he has been going one or two evenings a week while devoting weekends to activities at his church.

This has been juggled with his Burroughs position as director of Communications and Security Systems in product management in the corporate program. He

The Reverend Rudy Schuermann, director of Victorious Life Missions, Inc., will be guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Sunday (August 15) at the First Baptist Church of Wixom.

Young missionaries home

Fourteen young people from Northville's First Presbyterian Church recently experienced what singer John Denver would call a "Rocky Mountain high."

The desire to share their time and energy led the church's senior high school group to Leadville, Colorado, on what Reverend Richard Henderson described as a "work mission."

This is the fourth year the group has made such a trip, but it was their first visit to Colorado. Just being in the Rockies, living and working surrounded by the majestic mountains, was the most exciting part of the trip, said Henderson.

The teens left Northville July 23 in a rented van and a borrowed camper.

Henderson, his wife, Sheila, his brother, Tom, and a church elder, Peggy Meyer, accompanied them. The Henderson's two small children, Jennifer and Jonathan, also made the journey.

During their stay, the young people, ages 15 through 18, did a variety of jobs to make the Leadville First Presbyterian Church more pleasant for its 200-member congregation.

They sunk posts in the ground to form the basis of a fence around the church parking lot. They worked on the volleyball and basketball courts. They fixed up the church youth center, and they planted a total of 53 trees.

Routine shopping and cooking chores were shared. The group ate and slept in the church, spending each night in sleeping bags on the floor.

Henderson said it is very tiring to work at the 10,000-foot altitude, because there is less oxygen in the air.

But once the work was done, the group still had pep enough for mountain climbing and exploring.

They scaled the highest peak in the Rockies, Mount Albert. They dug around in a turquoise mine, finding some souvenir chips of the blue stones.

Leadville, says Henderson, was once a booming silver mining town — the second largest city in Colorado. Many of the abandoned mines which are still standing, gave the teens a historical perspective on the "Old West."

The return home was completed August 3. The young people spent nights along the route at Presbyterian churches.

A fertilizer sale last February provided $2,000, part of which was used to finance the Leadville trip.

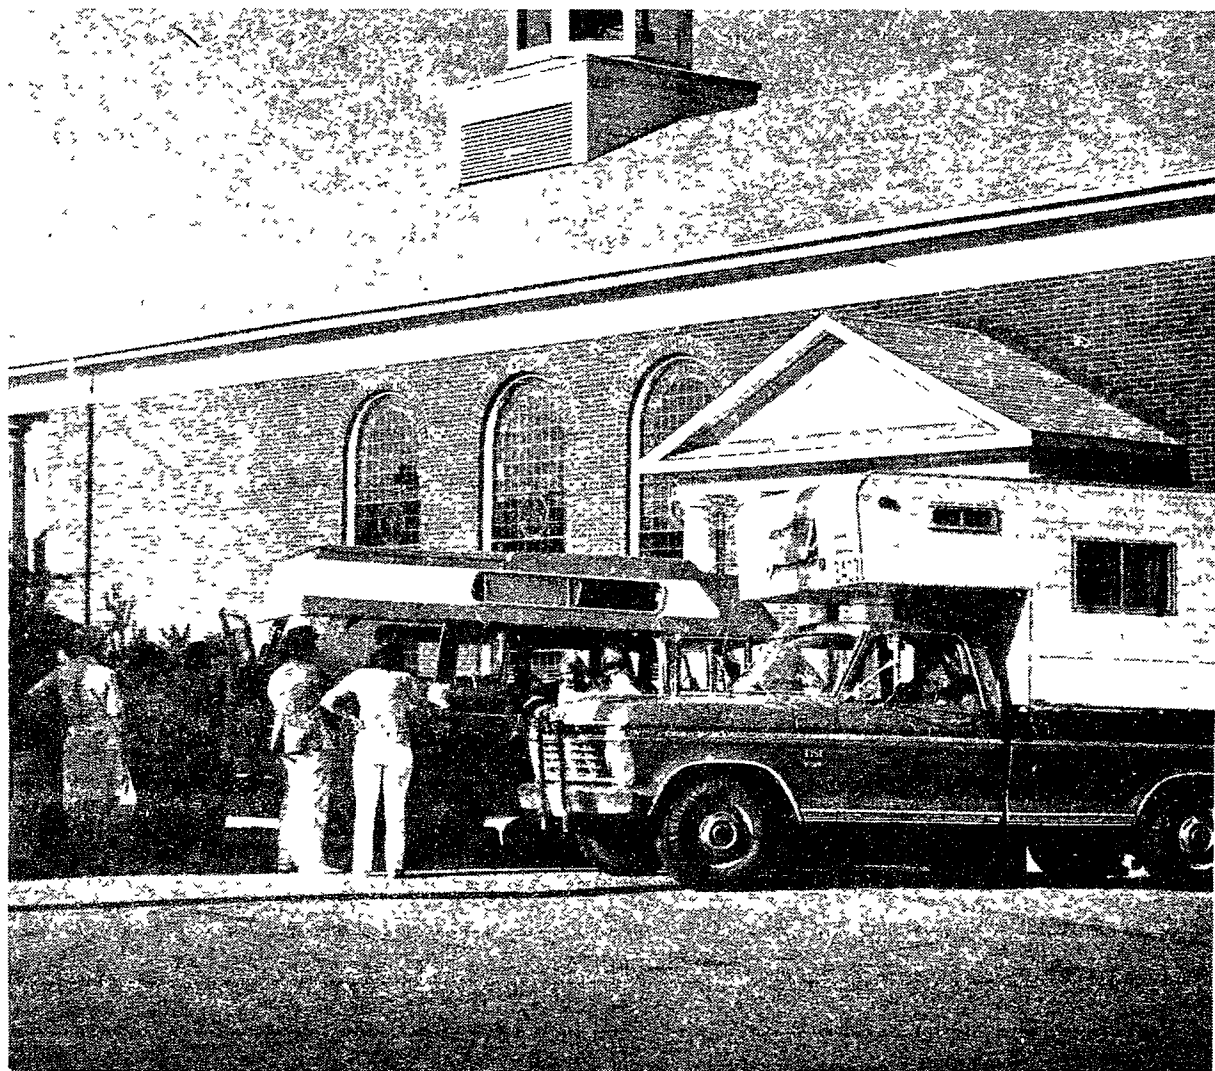

The Northville group chose Leadville from a list of Presbyterian churches across the country who needed help with various projects.

Past years have taken them to Oklahoma, West Virginia, and Ohio.

Planning for next summer will get under way soon.

Business

ELAINE MCINTYRE is welcomed by Earl Keim (left) and Don Hart, marketing director, as new owner of Earl Keim Realty, Brighton, Inc. Prior to purchasing the Brighton business, Elaine was employed there as sales manager. She has been active in the real estate industry since 1969, both in Michigan and Indiana. Mrs. McIntyre is on the board of directors of Livingston County Board of Realtors and a director of the Michigan Association of Realtors. She resides with her husband, Duncan, and two children at 7932 Holly, Brighton.

JAMES F. McFADDEN has established a regional office of Provident Mutual life insurance company of Philadelphia in Northville at 192 East Main Street.

As regional director, McFadden supervises 13 agency offices located in more than 10 states and employing some 400 people.

Home office of Provident Mutual, a 111-year-old company, is located in Philadelphia. With assets of $1.3 billion, the company sells life, disability income, mutual funds, pensions and group insurance coverage.

McFadden, who was transferred from Philadelphia to Detroit two years ago, supervises 20 percent of the company's service area. He purchased a home in Northville's Lexington Commons subdivision, and initially he established the regional office in Farmington where it remained until this month when it was moved to the Long building.

McFadden's wife, Jessie, is employed part-time in a doctor's office in Northville.

They have four children — Sharon, a Meads Mill Middle School student; Gregory, a Northville High School student; David, who is a research assistant at Indiana University where he is working on his master of science degree in biology; and James, an engineer who lives with his family in Indianapolis.

Ministrelli Construction Company of Novi is to reconstruct an eight-tenths mile section of gravel-surfaced Haggerty Road in Canton Township to a two-lane paved facility at a cost of $447,649.

THOMAS MCINTYRE of Brighton, an agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, was cited August 2 for outstanding life insurance sales among the company's more than 3,500 agents nationally during the 1975-76 agents' honor year which ended May 31.

He is associated with the Gary Holvick district agency, Brighton, and the Steve T. Mellinger, Jr., general agency, Flint.

LUCKY WINNER—Brigit Pilat of Hartland received a McCulloch chain saw from Chuck Curtis of Curtis Lawnmower last week, because hers was the lucky entry at the Fair Days drawing, held by Curtis at the recent Fowlerville Fair.

PROFIT IMPROVEMENTS, by hydraulic dredging and precast concrete subsidiaries were primarily responsible for an over-all 12.8 percent gain in the consolidated net earnings of American Aggregates Corporation during fiscal 1976, according to President William E. Hole, Jr.

Hole told shareholders at the annual shareholders meeting of the company in Greenville, Ohio, on July 13, that tonnage volumes from the primary business of processing and sale of sand, gravel, limestone, and slag aggregates had decreased 15 percent from the previous fiscal year.

Eighty-six percent of the outstanding shares were represented in person or by proxy at the meeting. Votes were cast approving the election of directors and appointment of Alexander Grant and Company as independent public accountants.

Hole told the shareholders that capital expenditures had been curtailed in the preceding fiscal year. In particular, expenditures for new plants declined substantially and it was pointed out that most aggregate plant facilities had operated well below their capacity throughout the past year.

W. I. Thieme, chairman of the board, reviewed the financial results for the first two months of the current fiscal year, indicating that earnings before taxes were $204,000 compared with $813,000 during the same period a year ago and $301,000 two years ago.

He stated that earnings recorded in the early months are subject to wide variations and do not necessarily represent trends that will continue throughout the year.

Thieme also stated that this year's decline in earnings is primarily the result of four factors: a further six percent reduction in sales volume; labor disputes which have shut down operations of some of the major customers; increased expenses in starting plant operations earlier this year in anticipation of increased business; and the fact that dredging work by Grant Contracting Company has not yet generated any income.

Construction activity historically trails the general economy and, although the over-all economy has been improving, American Aggregates has not yet felt the increase in demand that is anticipated, Thieme continued.

Thieme told the shareholders that the corporation will continue to investigate opportunities for acquisitions. He stated that corporation officials were looking beyond the boundaries of Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana for potential operations and will continue to consider such possibilities in the future.

Covered bridges featured

Covered bridges, paddlewheel showboats, a restored village and state wildlife refuges are featured attractions along West Michigan's Grand, Thornapple, Flat and Maple rivers, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The Grand River — famous for showboats — is ideal for experienced paddlers who can compete with powerboaters and is also excellent for riverside trips by car.

The Thornapple features historic attractions, the Flat boasts two covered bridges and the Maple passes through a large state game area. These tributaries of the Grand River have stretches for novice canoeists seeking short trips but still provide two- to three-day journeys for the hardy.

The Grand, Michigan's longest river, is noted for its outstanding scenery between Lansing and Lake Michigan. In West Michigan, the river is bordered by high bluffs, wooded areas and greenery from Portland to Grand Haven.

Motorists wishing to follow the river by car can take M-21 — the Blue Water Road — from Muir to Ada and also pass through the riverside towns of Ionia and Lowell.

Canoeists traveling the Grand River will portage many dams, including the Portland, Webber, Waggar and Lyons in Ionia County. The many dams in Grand Rapids make ground transportation from North Park to Grandville advisable. At Ionia, the Ionia State Park and fairgrounds border the Grand River. This year the Ionia Free Fair, the largest of its kind in the world, will be held August 6-15.

Further west, Lowell attracts thousands to its showboat extravaganza each July. The boat is docked year-round by the town's amphitheater.

For a ride on a paddlewheel riverboat, stop at Grand Rapids' North Park Street where the Grand River Queen departs on two-hour cruises Tuesday through Sunday. Afternoon excursions include a narrated history and Friday through Sunday evening cruises offer Dixieland band entertainment.

Of special interest in the heart of Grand Rapids is a unique sculptured fish ladder at the Sixth Street Dam where the public can "salmon watch" in the fall.

From Grandville to Lake Michigan, the river is especially suited for motorboating. There are many boat clubs and marinas near the resort community of Grand Haven.

The board of directors voted to pay a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per common share on August 26 to all shareholders of record on August 6.

BOUTIQUE TRIMS, 21200 Pontiac Trail, South Lyon, will host TV personality Carol Duvall next Wednesday, August 18, at an open house from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The open house will feature, in addition to Miss Duvall, a preview of ten fall classes and six workshops slated to begin in September.

Miss Duvall will be available for consultation on classes. Actual completed designs in the crafts to be taught will be available for viewing for those who come in to browse.

Classes in vue d'optique and porcelain, tole and decorative painting, egg artistry, macrame, repousse, and techniques under glass open September 13 and continue through October. One-day workshops will be offered in quilling, sun shadows, contemporary jewelry, decal plates, wood fibre flowers and straw-ribbon wreaths.

"With your imagination and our supplies, you can create exciting crafts," promise co-owners Freda Van Buren and Lois Heerema.

Gram's Ride

Gram's mind had settled on that old idle bike, since the spring wind had started to blow She figured she'd slip away with it and ride as she used to long, long ago.

Gram was not old — yet not quite young, and she had this urge to ride. So she borrowed that idle bike one day, and started out with pride.

The day was bright and warmed by the sun, as she entered the highway's edge, And Gram was doing fine until she ran into the hidden hedge.

Now the way Gram was riding, sure anyone'd swear, She'd get where she was going for — She seemed without a care.

Until she lost that old loose shoe, and tumbled to the ground, Ah! Gram was proud and foolish for she quickly looked around.

On not for any help, dear no, although her knees were scarred. Gram felt it was her dignity that was really being marred.

Now it must have been quite clear to all that skill, Gram now, did lack. Or was it only due to her poor, old arthritic back?

But if her knees were stiff and sore Gram's gas must have been leaded, For she quickly mounted her steed once more, and into the wind she headed.

P.S. Perhaps those old bones Grams should chance no more yet how sweet the swish of the breeze. How good the feeling of deep content when she rides again with ease.

Gram
(Ruth Brinkerhoff)

Summer Rain

The rain poured down... each drop representing a drop thrown from the sky. Falling to the ground and nourishing plants. And yet, sadness, for no one was around. The sun had disappeared. And the people. No one wanted to get wet, but I did. Alone.

Patricia Kotlarczyk

My Purse

I cleaned out my purse this morning You wouldn't believe what I found I cleaned out my purse this morning Already there's a mound

There's lipsticks, pencils, combs and the like Matches, car keys, some parts for a bike A checkbook, earrings, an old letter Some Dristan, to make my head feel better

Two broken pencils, a comb without teeth A notebook, some gum down beneath A used piece of kleenex, An address from Phoenix

Half a candy bar A part for the car Two new Trout Flies Eye shadow, for my eyes

An apple core, some paper clips A piece of wire, some bank slips A hair brush, A top from a bottle of Orange Crush?

Where is my money, It's not really funny, I only need a dollar So the paper boy won't holler

I think I'll throw everything away And start all over again today With my billfold and checkbook My comb and my trout hook

I can't forget matches, keys and kleenex I better save that address from Phoenix I'll need that pen and paper clips My eye shadow and maybe those bank slips

All in all I'm sure to put back That half of a candy bar for my snack Even though my Purse is no lighter It makes my day a little bit brighter.

By Fran McCasey

By CLIFF HILL

I recall sometime early last year when a retired colonel of the U.S. Air Force wrote me from Hawaii belaboring me for being somewhat critical of the hydrofoil service inaugurated between Honolulu and the outer islands of Maui and Kauai. It seems this gentleman felt tourists shouldn't be in a hurry to fly to these outer islands, but rather enjoy dawdling over the "bouncing main".

So I am amused (and vindicated) by a recent report in the Wall Street Journal of July 22. The article spells out the tendencies of these boats to break down and leave the passengers to roll about in rough seas while the craft limps back to port. Reports of seasickness are frequent when this happens.

I would suggest to tourists that if you must take a hydrofoil from Honolulu to the outer islands, try to choose your vacation time in Hawaii during the spring and summer when the sea is calmer, the waves more gentle, and you don't need a seasickness bag for a traveling companion.

A new idea in Hawaiian travel is to take a luxury liner from Los Angeles or San Francisco for a five-day cruise to Honolulu or one of the outer islands and then fly back to your home on the mainland after a fling in Hawaii. Be prepared to pay for the privilege of sailing on the beautiful ship, however. The cost is about $1,200 each for sharing an average good stateroom for the five-day trip. Don't whistle in apprehension—I must write for the rich as well as for all the rest of us poor tourists.

I wish there were some way American tourists could forget their artificial U.S. etiquette when they dine at very fine restaurants throughout the world.

Most Asians, Australians and Europeans make it a habit when dining out to exchange portions of their entrees or salads with others at the same table. Thus, everyone gets a chance to taste and savor all different kinds of delicate flavors and the results of the finesse used in preparing these fine foods. It is a shame that because we receive a different type of table training, we miss the many taste experiences of other peoples.

Waiting

It was evening And he waited For her call. The phone Finally rang And he jumped. But, It wasn't her. It was A salesman Wanting him to Buy a car. He slammed The receiver— Cursing car salesmen And telephones. Then, He sat down, Again, And waited— Waited for Her call.

The new deacon also is the father of seven children, six of whom still live at home. The Bedfords have been Northville residents for 12 years and live at 19450 Beck Road.

"He has the full support of all of us," says Mrs. Bedford, adding that she's happy to think that when her husband retires he will have something he really wants to do.

The Bedfords' oldest son, Paul, is married. Peter has just graduated from Eastern Michigan University where daughter, Muriel, is going into her junior year.

Another son, John, has just graduated from Northville High and will be attending Schoolcraft College. James is a sophomore at Northville High, and Christopher will be in the seventh grade. Youngest son, Charles, is in special education classes in Livonia.

Before becoming a deacon, the Reverend Bedford had to pass written, oral, physical and psychological examinations and go before a committee on the ministry to convince the church he had fulfilled his requirements.

Usually, Mrs. Bedford explains, a person becomes a priest shortly after passing his or her work for deaconship. Her husband's case was handled individually. He was ordained a deacon, even though it may be three or four years before he becomes a priest, in order that he might serve his church more now.

From now on he hopes, she adds, to take only one evening course at a time.

Then, when he retires, he should be qualified for the Episcopal priesthood and will be available to work in a parish that is not able to afford a priest.

In the meantime, he will be doing what the Very Reverend Harvey H. Guthrie, Jr., dean of the Episcopal Divinity School, reminded the new deacons to do at the ordination.

He pointed out that "service ranks better than being served... The diaconate is to be a sign of the Biblical statement and reality that Christ relinquished divine status to lose his life on the Cross.

"God is the proper servant," the dean said, "and Christians are, therefore, called not to do something, not to be heroes but to accept the gracious service God offers."

He cautioned the ordinands "not to take yourselves too seriously... go about your diaconate in such a way that the church where you are will remember that service is what it's all about."

Are state agencies worthwhile?

By ELMER E. WHITE

LANSING—It's possible the myriad of agencies and programs funded by Michigan taxpayers will have periodically to prove their worth in order to stay in business.

That's what "sunset" legislation is all about, and more and more state officials, including Gov. William Milliken, are praising the concept.

Sunset legislation provides that an agency, board or program be given a terminable life of specific duration—two years, for instance. Before that time is up, the Legislature would conduct a comprehensive review and evaluation of that agency, board or program, and decide if it is worth the cost. If so, the agency, board or program would be renewed for another specified period of time.

THE GOVERNOR, in a letter to House Republican Leader Dennis Cawthorne of Manistee, said:

"There obviously is some duplication of governmental programs and agencies.... It is also apparent that, after a period of time, many programs become redundant and in some cases totally ineffective.... I am interested in a mechanism which would create an incentive for periodic and comprehensive legislative evaluation of existing programs and agencies."

Cawthorne had recommended a study of the feasibility of writing sunset provisions in the 1977-78 executive budget. Milliken directed his staff to work on the idea.

House Speaker Bobby Crim, D-Davison, also supports the idea.

READY WITH SPECIFICS of a sunset provision is the Michigan Citizens Lobby. Their proposal calls for review of each state program on the books every four years.

"I don't think anybody can say definitely there is tremendous waste in government," says Doug Ross, co-director of the group. "Our research has shown nobody knows. I don't believe we'll really know until we really look."

THE CITIZENS LOBBY proposal recommends that:

—No state program, except pension programs and others to which individuals contribute, be authorized for more than four years. Reviews would be held before any program was extended for another four years.

—Programs would be reviewed by function, meaning, for instance, that all education programs would come up for scrutiny at the same time. That way, reviewers could more easily discover any overlapping of duties.

CHALK UP 400,000 miles of pheasant-counting to Michigan's rural mail carriers over the years. And they're adding to that total this month.

Cooperating carriers—about 850 in all—help the Department of Natural Resources measure the number of game birds available to hunters later in the fall. During late July and early August, the carriers tally the number and size of young birds they see while carrying on with their regular jobs.

NO ONE COUNTS every bird in his territory, of course. But the department weighs the carriers' counts with results of the previous year's census and other DNR surveys. That provides an accurate score on whether the pheasant populations are up, down or the same as compared with the year before.

That information then is used by the DNR to draw up regulations covering the upland birds. It also has given department game experts a long-range guide to pheasant management.

AN 1866 GRADUATE of the University of Michigan medical school, Robert W. O'Dell, presided over "sick call" at Fort Wilkins a century ago.

Today, visitors to the fort, located at the tip of Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula, can see what the garrison hospital looked like at that time. It's recently been refurbished by the Department of State's Historical Museum staff, which followed accounts of an inspecting officer of the day.

"GARRISON LIFE, another Fort Wilkins attraction, uses artifacts and graphic art to show the daily routine, duties and leisure time activities of the common soldiers who manned this Lake Superior outpost between 1844 and 1846, and again from 1867 to 1870.

The fort will be open to the public through summer and fall, until the close of the color season.

Holiday cacti coaxed to bloom

By KATHY COPLEY

Persuading a Christmas Cactus to bloom at Christmas is no easy task, especially since it is a job which must be begun now.

Holiday cacti are variously called Thanksgiving Cactus, Christmas Cactus, and Crab Cactus. While these are all slightly different plants, they all have flat, fleshy, jointed stems and no leaves. The colorful and dramatic flowers develop at the tip of the jointed stems.

Technically, Christmas Cactus (Zygocactus truncatus or Epiphyllum truncatus) has jointed stems with rounded teeth. Thanksgiving Cactus has jointed stems with sharp teeth. For purposes of getting them to bloom during the holidays, there is no difference.

If these plants, fairly nondescript without their flowers, are so tricky to get to bloom on schedule, why bother? Because the pendulous, lantern-shaped flowers are truly beautiful, singly or when they decorate the entire plant for several weeks. The purple-red fruits, which last up to 2 years, are also decorative.

(The fruits result only when the flowers are pollinated by a completely different cactus. Cuttings from a plant cannot be pollinated by that plant.)

The plants have another desirable feature: they are long-lived, even to the extent of being passed to the next generation. They are also easy to propagate.

These cacti are native to the tropics where they grow in organic material in three notches. They experience a rainy and a dry season each year, with sun in fall and winter, bright light in spring and summer. They flower best if potbound. All of these cultural needs are easy to meet indoors.

Both cacti set buds during periods of short days—long nights, and cool night temperatures. Regardless of day length, they will set buds when night temperatures reach 50–55 degrees, something more easily reached outside in late summer and early fall than inside at any time.

If these temperatures are not practical, give the plants total darkness (not even light from a street lamp) and 60–65 degree night temperatures for 6 weeks. Above 70 degrees, at night, buds won't set no matter how long the dark period.

In conjunction with this period of controlled light and temperature, keep the plants on the dry side with 50–60 percent humidity. Reduced watering and stepped up misting is usually the answer.

Once the buds have set, they will bloom in any average temperatures. (Too hot and the buds will drop.) While in bloom, these holiday plants need strong light, freedom from cold drafts, and weekly watering.

After blooming, they need a period of fairly dry soil for 5–6 weeks, and then additional water to begin the period of active growth. This is the only period during which they need much fertilizer.

These cacti are easily rooted from cuttings. Roots quickly develop at the base of the joint and at the point where the two joints connect. Put a 3-jointed segment in moist sand (or sand and peat) so the entire lower joint and one-third to one-half of the second joint is buried.

If following these tips doesn't result in Christmas flowers, convince yourself that your holiday cactus is actually a Rhipsalidopsis gaertneri—an Easter Cactus.

Northville's David Heinzman prepares for recital

Northville youth to give recital

David L. Heinzman Jr. of Northville will present an organ recital at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, August 15, in the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

Heinzman's program will include pieces by Bach, Brahms, Franck and others, performed on the outstanding Zimmer Organ, an instrument of 28 ranks and 1,510 pipes.

A June graduate of Northville High School, Heinzman will enter the University of Michigan this fall as a student in organ performance. He has studied privately with Steven Egler, former organist at the Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church. A doctoral candidate at the U of M, Egler has just accepted appointment to the Central Michigan University music faculty.

Heinzman has been interim organist this summer at the Methodist Church. He is a substitute organist for St. Paul's Lutheran in Northville, and has also served Cross of Christ Lutheran, South Lyon. He begins duties as organist and choir director at St. Andrew Lutheran, Bloomfield, in September.

The Methodist Church is located at 45201 North Territorial, west of Sheldon, in Plymouth.

S. Farmington romps to Novi tourney win

South Farmington rode the big bats of Linda Bache, Marilyn Goyette and Shelly Still to the championship of the second annual Novi Invitational Slo-Pitch Tournament for Girls, age 14 to 16.

The team went unbeaten through five tournament games.

Linda had three hits, including a home run and four RBI's, while Shelly added four hits to lead the winners to an easy 16-6 romp over Walled Lake in the title game Sunday afternoon before a full house at Novi High School.

Marilyn, who had one hit in the championship game, was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player. She hit .412, had nine RBI's and won the home run championship with three round trippers.

Other teams in the three-day tournament in addition to the two finalists and host Novi were Milford, North Farmington, South Lyon and Northville, which finished third.

It was the second straight year that the Walled Lake team has been a bridesmaid.

In the championship game, South Farmington scored three runs in the top half of the first inning but saw the lead disappear as Walled Lake scored four times in their first at-bats. Lisa McNutt hit a two-run home run for Walled Lake.

But the Farmington team came right back in the top of the second, thanks to a three-run blast over the fence by Linda Bache to put Farmington on top for good, 6-4. Shelly Still singled in that inning and eventually scored what proved to be the winning run.

Walled Lake scored twice more in the third inning to make the game close at 7-6, but a big seven-run fifth inning for S. Farmington iced the victory. The team scored single runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

The tournament opened Friday night at Novi High School with City Clerk Gerry Stipp throwing out the first ball.

Other dignitaries on hand were Novi Mayor Gilbert Henderson, City Manager Ed Kreiwall and School Board President Bob Wilkins.

Host Novi won one of three games, clubbing Milford Saturday afternoon, 13-6. Sue Beall and Mary Ann Wizinsky had two hits and Betty Banks added three. Mary Ann also had three RBI's.

Earlier in the day, Northville scored two runs in the top half of the seventh to edge the hosts, 11-9. Mo Farras had a four-bagger for Novi, while Nancy Porter added three RBI's. Kim Kurzawa had four RBI's for Northville.

Novi was eliminated by Walled Lake, 11-7, Saturday evening.

The eventual runner-up broke a seven-seven deadlock in the top of the seventh with four runs to send Novi to the sidelines.

Northville fared better, handing Walled Lake one of their two losses, 9-5.

Kim Kurzawa led Northville's 13-hit attack in that game, with a single, triple, home run and four RBI's. Annette Isom added three safeties.

The two teams met again Sunday afternoon, with the winner advancing to the finals Sunday against South Farmington.

Northville scored three times in the last half of the last inning but it wasn't enough as they fell, 7-6.

Again, Kim Kurzawa was the star for Northville, rapping a triple and single and knocking across three runs.

Julie Abraham and Kathy Phillips also had two hits for Northville.

On Saturday afternoon, Northville out hit South Farmington, 17-16 but were outscored, 13-7 for the local team's first loss.

Marilyn Goyette had two home runs for South Farmington in the game.

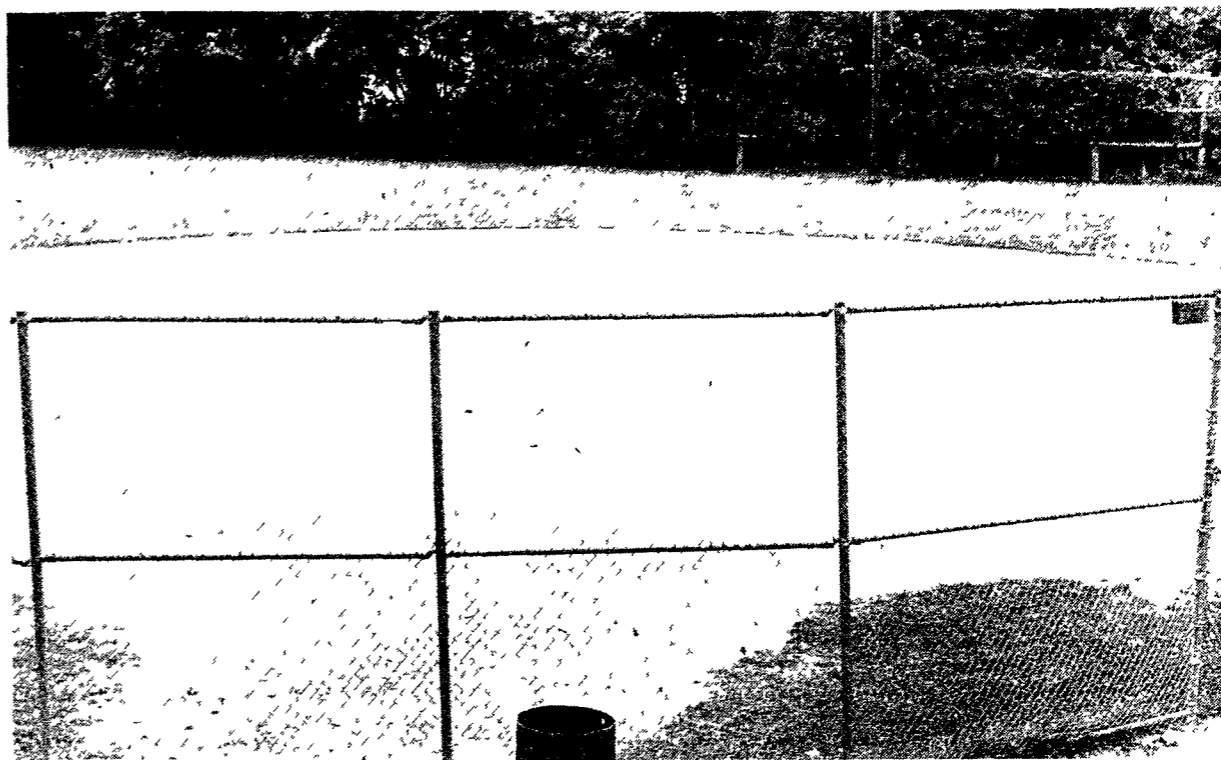

South Lyon made a quick exit in the tournament. The team fell to Milford 15-8 Friday night and then were ousted Saturday morning by North Farmington, 22-12.

The hitting heroine for South Lyon was Helen Tester who had six hits in eight at-bats, and scored four runs. She was named to the all-tournament team.

Novi all-stars who made the special team were pitcher Sue Beall who hit .417, Betty Banks, a shortstop, who hit .462, and outfielder Mary Ann Wizinsky who also hit .462.

Northville all-stars were two infielders, Kim Kurzawa who hit .500 and had 16 RBI's, and Nancy Schlacter, who batted .436.

Novi won the trophy for Best Dressed Team while North Farmington was honored, winning the Best Sportsmanship Award.

Will the Recreation Department's offerings be as barren as this ball field was on a cloudy, cool day last week?

Rec heads take wait, see view after millage defeat

Recreation Department officials have taken a wait-and-see attitude following last week's voter rejection of a half mill tax increase for township homeowners. If passed, the millage would have covered the increasing costs of the recreation program.

The rejection means higher recreation fees for township residents.

"We're budgeted through March 31 of next year, so we're not hurting yet," said Charles Froberger, Northville Parks and Recreation Department director who oversees the joint city-township recreation program.

"I'm waiting to see what the attitude of the new board members will be towards recreation."

Wilson Grier, Richard Henningsen, Clarice Sass,

John Swienkowski and Michael Wilson all won Republican primary victories in the August 3 election and are virtually certain of winning seats on the township board in November.

Martin Rinehart, a township resident and member of the seven-man Recreation Commission agreed with Froberger.

"We do have time to work out our budget problems. Generally, we finish our budget by December but it may be a little earlier this year," said Rinehart who admitted he's concerned about the future of recreation in the township.

"We're going to have to find out the attitude of the new board members regarding support for next year's budget."

One of the incumbent board members, Dr. John Swienkowski, said there definitely will be a recreation program, but, "it depends on what's available in terms of funding."

Swienkowski, a former football player himself and now an orthopedic surgeon, who has athletes for patients, said he's trying to figure out what the voters said in the election.

"I'm reflecting on the fact that the 600 vote defeat was the most dramatic of the two defeats (the library millage request lost by 413 votes)."

"I can't believe it reflects increase costs because the police won a 1.5 mill increase. Another half mill isn't that much more," said the young, tall doctor.

Swienkowski guessed that parents in the township may think that their children already have enough organized things to do, like baseball and basketball.

"I would dare say, though, that the vast majority of people aren't fully aware of the numbers of programs available, like archery or yoga."

"But recreation is one department that can always raise its fees," he added.

Indeed, that's already the immediate answer to the problem.

Even through the end of March, with a solid budget, the Recreation Department is charging more money to township residents than city residents for the same programs.

For example, handicapped township youngsters participating in sports this fall will pay $20 while city

Connie Mack team finishes in 3rd place

Northville High School's entry in the Connie Mack League rode the strong arm of Dave Heckerl to a third place finish in the tough summer league.

Two Livonia schools, Stevenson and Bentley, took first and second place respectively.

The 17-year-old high school senior hurled back-to-back two hitters and allowed no earned runs as coach Bob Kucher's team won two of its final three games to finish the season with nine wins against nine defeats.

The 14-man team, including 11 players who'll comprise the Northville varsity nine next year, split their two playoff games.

"I'm really happy with the way our kids finished the year," said an enthused Kucher.

"Instead of the kids getting tired they played the best ball of the season in the stretch." Based on the showing of his team, Kucher predicted that Northville, along with Livonia Churchill and Plymouth Canton, will be the prime contenders for the Suburban Six baseball crown next spring.

"The Suburban Six is a good baseball league, but we've got players coming back at every position, plus we have Dave," Kucher said.

Heckerl first blanked

Plymouth Salem, 1-0, as he allowed just two hits, struck out seven and walked three.

Then in a playoff game against perennial power Thurston High School, Heckerl pitched all 10 innings, allowed one unearned run as his team pushed across the winning run in the 10th to win, 2-1.

Heckerl fanned 10 batters in that battle.

Kucher said the summer league affords an excellent opportunity for boys to improve. "It's a casual sort of program but it gives them a chance to continue their spring play into the summer. They can work on new things."

"And it gives me a chance to look at kids who didn't play much in the spring and to work with promising players."

Kucher noted that Heckerl added a couple of pitches to go with his fastball while gaining a lot of confidence.

Kucher singled out his two assistants, Stan Nirider and Jim Newman, for the special help they gave Kucher and the team this summer.

Bill Piccolo, one of only three high school graduates on the team, led Northville in hitting, averaging two hits a ball game. He'll attend Miami of Ohio this fall.

Other seniors were Jim LaPlante and Jim Niemi.

Swim club champs

The Northville Swim Club successfully defended its Summer Independent League swimming championship last weekend with an exciting come-from-behind victory in the meet's closing event.

Co-coach Mark McDaniel swam the anchor leg of the 4 by 50-meter mixed freestyle. The former Northville High School swimmer came on strong and then held off his opponent to sew up the meet championship.

However, Northville had to settle for an overall co-championship this year with Burton Hollow as the Livonia team captured more dual meets than Northville, six to five, to earn a title tie.

The meet championship was held at Plymouth Colony Swim Club in Plymouth.

Susie Evans, 19, shared coaching duties with her 18-year-old counterpart as the two combined to guide Northville to its fourth consecutive Independent League championship.

"We were down by 40 points entering the closing freestyle events and relays," said McDaniel, whose closing freestyle relay victory enabled Northville to squeak by Burton Hollow by five and one-half points.

McDaniel and Ms. Evans coached 50 boys and girls, age six to 19.

Kathy White grabbed three first place wins in assorted girls' 9- to 10-year-old division events.

She took the 25-meter backstroke and breaststroke and swam a leg on the victorious 4 by 25-meter freestyle relay.

Vikki Grysiwicz also took three first place victories in the same age division as Kathy. In addition to swimming a leg on the 4 by 25-meter freestyle relay, Vikki won the 25-meter fly and 25-meter freestyle.

Other Northville winners were Duane Sherry and Doug Iverson, who finished one and two respectively in the boys' 11- to 12-year-old individual medley; and Sara Johnson who finished second to Kathy White in the 25-meter backstroke.

Area slo-pitch round-up

One Northville title still up for grabs

One league championship was settled but another one is very much up for grabs in the Northville Mens' Slo-pitch League.

Rizzo-Belanger clinched first place in the National League last week with two victories.

The champs had to score seven runs in the sixth inning to overcome the stubborn Eagles, 12-9. Don Funk clubbed a inside-the-park home run for the winners.

Earlier in the week, Rizzo-Belanger had a laugh at the expense of Casterline, 12-0. Mark Lisowski had three RBI's, while Jim Niemi, Steve Baluha and Steve Griggs rapped out three hits apiece.

Village Blues moved into a first place tie with Old Timers in the American League with an easy 15-2 decision over Zayti's.

Jeff Moon had three hits, including a round-tripper and five RBI's to lead the Blues 16-11 assault. Doug Crisan and Todd Eis had three RBI's while Toby Roggenbuck batted out three safeties.

Village Blues and Old Timers have three games left in the regular season, including a showdown match this week at Thomson Field.

In other games last week, Presbyterian pulled off a minor upset, surprising C.D.S., 13-11 on the strength of a seven-run rally in the seventh inning. Bill Barnes socked a home run for C.D.S. while Scott Parsons had an inside-the-park home run for the winners.

Two inside-the-park home runs were hit in Joe's Party Pantry's close 13-9 win over Our Lady of Victory. Gary Callendar hit one for the winners while Mike Price added one for the losers.

Bob Lulek's home run paced Township Merchants to a 11-4 win over Moonkin-Mach. Merchants then got an inside-the-park home run from Dennis Belleperche as they handily defeated Our Lady of Victory, 13-3.

Merchants then won for the fifth straight time last week, blasting Little Caesars, 16-0. Ron Nisun cleared the fences for Merchants.

That win allowed Merchants to jump from fourth to third place in the National League.

Moonkin-Mach upset Little Caesars, 17-16. St. Paul's upended Ely's 12-2, but then fell to Joe's Party Pantry, 12-7.

Barring inclement weather, the slo-pitch league playoffs will begin next Monday with the top six teams in each league, excluding league champs who'll play in the state tournaments.

East winner is J.P. Realty and in the West it's Willowbrook Merchants.

In games last week in the American League, Action rebounded from their first league loss this year at the hands of Fisher's to rip Novi Inn, 19-5.

Northville Women

Front runner Cast-Your-Line and second place Northville Record met in a showdown in the Northville Women's Slo-Pitch League last week.

But it was strictly no contest as Cast-Your-Line humbled the Record, 14-4. The winners scored 10 times in the first two innings to secure the win.

Earlier in the week, Northville Record had outslugged Dave's Trim Shop, 18-12 to set up the showdown with Cast-Your-Line. Wendy Dehane had three hits for the winners.

Trim Shop was trimmed a second time last week, getting bombed by K-Matic 17-1. Pam Bowers was the hitting star for K-Matic.

K-Matic then played an 11-11 tie with Vecello Electric, and Paul Johnson Insurance won a game when Earl Keim-Stones forfeited.

Griffin's Sports Shop spotted Realtron Corporation an early 5-3 lead but came roaring back to knock off the upstart, 10-6.

Jim LaPlante hit a four-bagger for Griffin's, while Dick Meyer had a round tripper for Realtron.

Griffin's then blanked K-G, 19-0 thanks to two home runs by pitcher Jim LaPlante. Others to clear the fence for the league leaders were Denise McDermaid and Mark Lisowski.

Goat's Farm spotted K-G Electric seven runs in the first inning but then came storming back with a 19-hit attack to upend K-G, 15-8.

Ed Gabrys had three hits for the victors.

Gabrys socked a home run as Goat's Farm mauled Realtron, 23-9. The team, which is on a hot streak, banged out 23 hits in the game.

residents will pay $5.00 per child.

Township youngsters will be charged $9.00 to play soccer while city children will pay $7.00.

The cost of archery for a township resident will be $10 compared to $4.00 for a city resident.

And township children will have to pay $4.00 more for junior league baseball than their city counterparts.

Proberger emphasized that these specific costs may change, but township residents will be paying more money now and, barring the unforeseen, more in the future.

In fact, according to figures released by Citizens for Township Recreation (CRT), an ad hoc group formed hastily last month to pass the millage, the fees will increase by nearly 45 percent after March 31.

CRT said, in a flyer passed out to township voters, that a family with two youngsters participating in baseball, basketball and soccer this year will pay fees totaling $74.

If the millage isn't passed, those fees will jump to $107.30 for the three sports.

Proberger isn't panicking, and he doesn't think anyone else should. "I don't think the city or township is ready to give up the recreation program," he said.

Undoubtedly, though, it'll cost more for fun and games next summer.

Northville High School and Plymouth Salem High School alumni will tangle again this year in a benefit football game at the Plymouth school 8 p.m. Saturday, September 11.

The two schools will split the proceeds from the event. Northville's take will go to support the high school athletic program.

Kip Andrige won the free-throw championship in the boys' grades five to seven summer basketball clinic sponsored by the Northville Parks and Recreation Department. Terry Nadeau was runner-up.

In grades eight to 10, Mike McLaughlin won the free throw championship and Jeff Allen was second.

Michel Cain won the girls' grades five to 10 free throw championship. Cindy Martin was runner-up.

All Northville High School boys interested in trying out for the cross-country team should meet at the high school, 6:30 p.m. August 17 with cross-country coach Ralph Redmond.

Janet Cook makes all-state

Novi High School's Janet Cook was named recently to the Michigan High School Athletic Association all-state girls' track team. Ms. Cook, an honor roll student, set a state record in the 110-yard low hurdles at the girls' Class B track championships last spring. Her time was 15.1 seconds. She also finished fifth in the long jump, leaping 17 feet, 2 inches to set a school record.

Octathlon ends summer track season for youths

Northville Parks and Recreation Department's eight-week summer track program came to a grueling end last week with a three-day octathlon at the high school track.

High school track coaches Ralph Redmond and Ed Gabrys welcomed 65 boys and girls in three age divisions to participate in the 60-yard low hurdles, 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, mile run, high jump, long jump, triple jump and shot-put.

The coaches devised a point scale ranging from 25 to 100 points. The maximum number of points were awarded to youngsters who achieved the season's best time or distance in a particular event. The minimum number went to kids who participated, regardless of their performance.

If a youngster exceeded the season's best, he or she was awarded more than 100 points.

Ray Coram, 15, won the Junior Division for Boys, age 15-16 with 820 points. The sophomore letterman for Redmond and Gabrys received 125 points when he leaped 18 feet in the long jump. He equaled or surpassed 100 points in four other events.

Tony Armada, 16, finished behind Coram with 750 points. He went over the 100 point barrier in three events.

Scot Robins, 13, took first place in the Intermediate Division for Boys, age 13-14. The 13-year-old scored 705 points and topped the 100 point mark twice.

He was followed by Chris Allen, 14, who tallied 665 points.

The Pee Wee Division for Boys, age 11-12, was captured by 12-year-old Steve Wynn who scored 545 points. Steve Denhof, also 12 years old, was runner-up with 510 points.

The girls' intermediate winner was Leslie Nadeau with 560 points. The curly-headed 13-year-old finished with 560 points.

Two weeks ago Leslie took first place in the long jump at the Metropolitan Youth Fitness meet at Wayne State University.

She was followed by Sandra Flanigan, 13, who totaled 505 points.

Sheri Robins, 12, took the Pee Wee Division for Girls. She tallied 490 points, 110 more than second place finisher Julie Sullivan, 12.

There was no octathlon for Junior Division Girls.

Baseball playoffs

Area baseball and softball championship teams will be busy in the coming weeks playing in two state tournaments.

The Michigan Recreation and Parks Association (MRPA) state championships begin district play next Monday with championship games set for the following week.

Simultaneously, the Inter-City Tournament will be played. A suborganization of the MRPA, Inter-City Tournament hosts teams which finished second in their respective leagues.

Northville will have one girls' softball team, two boys' baseball teams and one men's and one women's softball team competing in both tournaments.

The Travelers, a softball team for girls 15-years-old and under, coached by Bernard Kurzawa, will represent Northville in MRPA play in Wyandotte starting next Monday.

Dick Brewer is coach of the Dodgers, the Class E baseball team for boys 15-years-old and under. Because Northville is hosting MRPA Class E district play at Thomson Field next week, the Dodgers will automatically advance to the finals to be played in East Detroit the week of August 26.

While Class E boys are playing in the championships August 26 in East Detroit, Northville will play host to the MRPA Class F championships that same week.

The city's representative in that tournament will be the Dodgers, coached by Jim Robins. Ages for Class F is 13-years-old and under.

Village Blues, coached by Ed Krietz, and Old Timers, coached by Joe Lineman are information about southeastern Michigan.

Other modernizing of the rest area — includes landscaping, which will cost $150,000 and the placing of greater lighting, an expected deterrent to criminal activity which has been prevalent at the rest area at night.

"Where we upgrade our facilities, believe it or not, we have less vandalism," added Bastian.

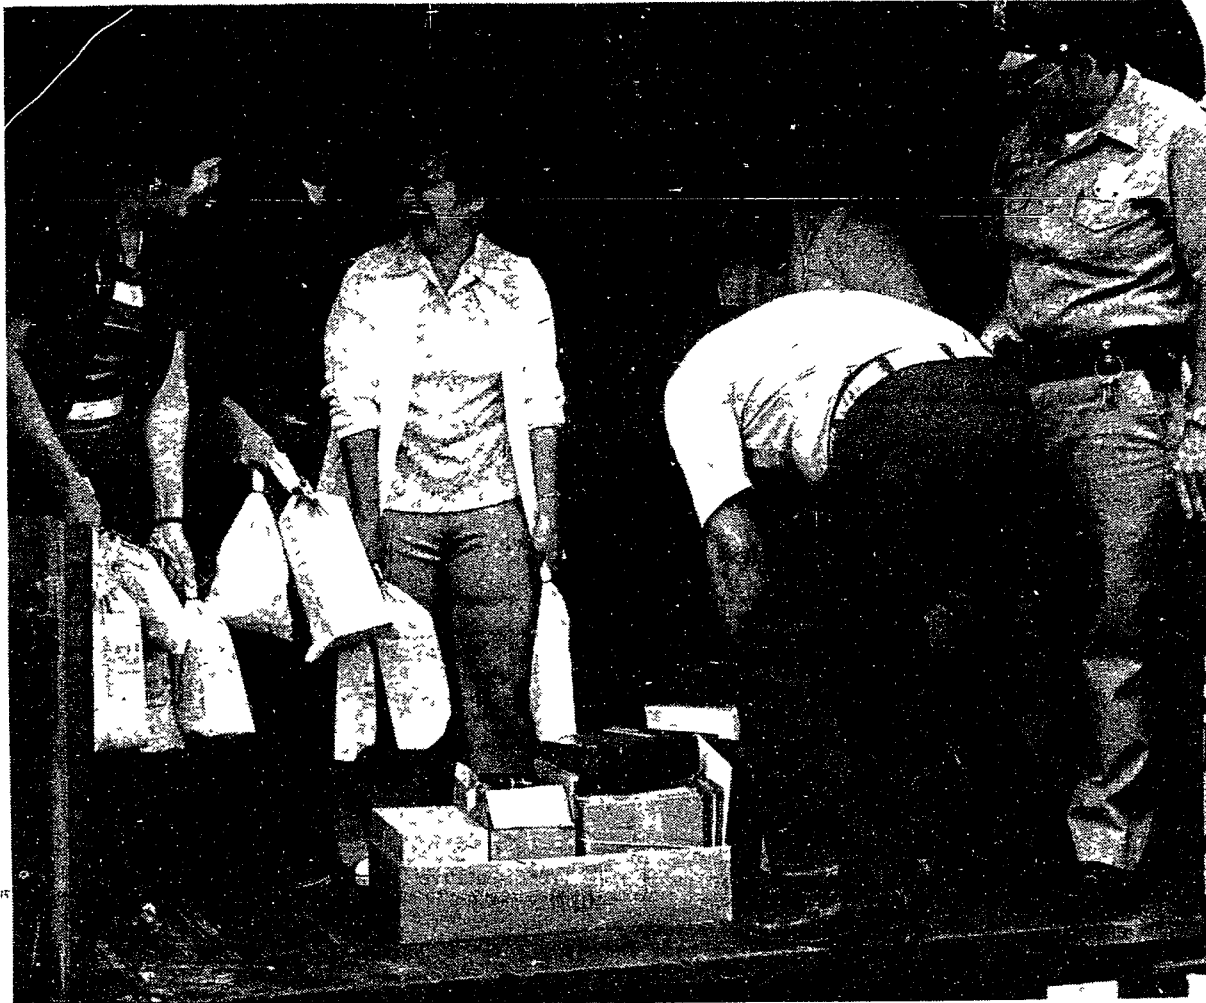

Speaking of people involved in other criminal activity at the rest area, Bastian said "We'll probably only move them somewhere else."

In addition, the parking area will be resurfaced and "we're going to flatten the curve going into the parking area slightly because of some accidents in that area."

Work on the renovation is expected this fall in September with the building being constructed in October. The building is expected to be completed in about a year.

Bastian said the rest area will be completely closed for at least six months to create better working conditions for the contractors. Bastian added that in similar situations at other rest areas, port-a-johns have been brought in, but "a million people a year use this rest area and we couldn't handle them."

Total cost of the renovation is $410,000.

Cash and carry

It's not often that you get a chance to carry $80,000 in cash. But that is exactly what Security Bank of Novi personnel did last Saturday as they moved funds on hand from the old facility at 10 Mile and Meadowbrook next door to the new modern Security Bank of Novi building. Helping in the exchange of funds were (from left) Aldona Chew, Joyce Thomson, Rita Veselenak, Donald J. Greengood (president), and Janice Ashbrook. Novi student patrolman William Charles looks on. At least seven Novi police and two Oakland County sheriff's deputies kept an eye on the situation.

Security Bank of Novi moves into new quarters

A new 5800-square-foot facility at 10 Mile and Meadowbrook is now being used by Security Bank of Novi patrons after the bank spent the weekend moving from its temporary offices next door.

The new structure eclipses the temporary facility which was 750-square-feet and had been used since the bank opened in Novi a year ago.

According to bank president Donald Greengood, the new building was designed by Rogvo Associates of Southfield and constructed over the last eight months by Cronk and Tocco Builders.

A full service bank, the new facility will feature four drive-in windows and parking for 50 cars in the area where the temporary facility was located.

The drive-in facilities will open at 8 a.m. Monday through Friday and the lobby will open at 9:30 a.m. From Monday to Thursday, the bank will be open to 5 p.m., but on Friday will remain open to 7 p.m. Saturday the bank is open from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

A new feature of the bank is safety deposit boxes which will be kept at the structure. Security Bank of Novi has assets of $2.3 million and is a subsidiary of Security Bancorp which has assets of $474 million and is located in Southgate.

The Novi City Council is currently considering purchase of the temporary offices to be moved to the city hall and used as drive-in windows for payment of taxes.

Speaking of commitments the bank made to eliminate an old gas station at the corner and to eventually construct a building in place of the temporary structure, Greengood said, "I think we've done our job in keeping the faith of the community. I hope the new building appeals to the people who want to do business with us."

Paving transfer key

Stating simply that the "transfer of a liquor license can be used as a lever to get something done", Wixom Mayor Val Vangieson cast the tie-breaking vote in favor of tabling the request of current Continental Bar owner Kevork Altinok.

The mayor's attitude on holding up the liquor license transfer "to get something done" was looked upon unfavorably by some councilmen.

Vangieson said he felt holding up the license transfer was the only way the city would ever get the Continental Bar parking lot paved. Councilman Melvin Green said in voting against the measure to table, "Something is wrong in the building department if the official can't enforce the rules."

The rules, in this case, refer to a variance granted to former bar owner Donald Burley. He was granted a one-year extension for parking lot paving three years ago.

That variance, Councilman Fred Morehead pointed out, was never met or enforced, before the property was sold to the current owners, Kevork Altinok and Marion Zuzow. Those owners have not paved the parking lot either although Altinok, who was present at the meeting, told the council he was trying very hard to get the job done.

Two Novi youngsters charged in August 2 arson

In Novi

Two Novi youths have been petitioned into Oakland County Juvenile Court on a charge of arson stemming from a fire which destroyed a vacant two-story structure on Grand River just east of Novi Road Monday, August 2.

According to detective Gordon Nelson, the youths were identified by witnesses as being in the building 3-5 minutes before the fire broke out and were also seen at the fire after the fire department arrived to battle the blaze.

The youngsters, age 13 and 14, reportedly told police they were playing with matches and a book of lit matches was thrown into paper on the floor causing the blaze.

Two North Hills model homes were broken into last Wednesday night and approximately $1,500 in items taken.

Stolen items included the marble top from a dresser, kitchen table, chairs, mirrors, lamps and other items.

Two drivers were injured at 7:52 a.m. Wednesday, August 4, in a collision caused by a third driver.

According to traffic officer Thomas Hesse, a car driven by Francis Soucy, 23, of Highland was eastbound on Grand River when a car driven by Michael Gleeson, 52, of Birmingham pulled from a private drive into eastbound traffic. Soucy swerved into the westbound lane to avoid Gleeson and struck head-on a car driven by Sam Chelian, 39, of Plymouth.

Chelian received internal injuries, as well as a possible fractured skull and was in severe shock. Soucy received non-incapacitating injuries. Both Chelian and Soucy were taken to Botsford Hospital where Soucy was released. Gleeson was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Twenty-six C&O Railroad ties valued at $304 were recovered from a home in the area of 1000 South Lake Drive. Owner of the home said that he bought the ties for $7.50 each from a man at a Novi bar. The ties, which were marked C&O on the end, had been loaded on a stake truck and cash had been paid, said the suspect.

No one has been charged. The ties were returned to the C&O railroad.

A $450 Radarange was stolen Sunday, August 1 from a home in the 23700 area of Forest Park between 1:30 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Six golf flags with a value of $90 were stolen August 1 from Bob-O-Link Golf Course on Grand River.

A burglar made off with $1,000 worth of money, as well as some credit cards Thursday, August 5, from I-96 Sunoco.

According to reports, the burglar got into the men's bathroom and then used part of a U-Haul hitch to smash through the wall into the office. A watch dog in the garage was unable to get into the office.

Michael P. Harris, formerly of Novi, has been charged by the Oakland County prosecutor with larceny by conversion over $100.

Harris allegedly entered into a contractual agreement with a 65-year-old woman from Detroit who hired Harris to build a home on her property to be finished by January, 1976. She gave him $4,000 to start last August, but no work has since been done.

The charge is a felony and carries a penalty of up to five years and/or $2,500 fine.

According to detectives, the police department also has a warrant against Harris for uttering and publishing, contending that Harris gave a check for $550 to Tom Roe of Westland, which was written on a closed account. That charge is also a felony and carries a one year or $500 fine.

A 1949 Ford industrial tractor valued at $1,200 was noticed missing August 2 from Stonehenge.

In Township

Holes the size of an adult shoe were kicked into the dry wall of a home under construction on Rippling Street last week. A suspected crowbar was also used to damage the walls.

An estimated $380 in damage to the house was done by the vandals which included breaking nine thermopane windows by BB pellets.

A golfer who left his bag, clubs and cart at the lounge entrance to the Dun Rovin Golf Course returned one-half hour later to find them gone.

The owner told police he was inside the building between 8:30 and 9:00 p.m. Wednesday after finishing a round of golf. Value of the clubs and equipment was said to be $200.

The front storm door of a residence on Scenic Lane was caved-in early Saturday morning. According to the owner, loud noises were heard at 1 a.m. but the owner said she was afraid to investigate. Besides the banging, she reportedly heard the sounds of children laughing.

A driver, southbound on Griswold Street told police an unknown vehicle came across the road in front of him from Baseline Road causing him to lose control of his vehicle.

In the accident which occurred at 5:25 a.m. Sunday, the driver swerved off the road into the gravel, skidded back across the roadway into the median and rolled over. There were no reported injuries.

Michigan State Police were advised of the escape of a male inmate from Northville State Hospital Friday. The patient reportedly walked away from the hospital mess hall at approximately 5:30 p.m.

Hospital officials said the court-committed patient was considered dangerous if provoked.

Three female prisoners at the Detroit House of Correction escaped from the facility during the past week. According to Michigan State Police, the three women are still being sought.

One inmate, who was given an eight hour furlough to attend a funeral, failed to return to the compound. She has been missing since Thursday.

Two other prisoners who were last seen at 8:30 p.m. Saturday slipped away from the facility. Authorities at DeHoCo said the method of escape was not known.

In Northville

Northville City Police recovered approximately $4,200 worth of stolen stereo equipment last week from an apartment in Northville. Charges are pending against the 19-year-old Northville resident involved.

The equipment was a part of a lengthy list of items stolen over the past eight months from United Parcel Service in Detroit.

When confronted with information on the stolen property gathered by Sergeant David DeLauder, the suspect voluntarily turned over the equipment and himself to the police.

Three business checks written on the National Bank of Detroit from the R & A Furniture Store on South Main Street were taken during a breaking and entering to the business early Sunday evening.

One owner's signature was already on the checks but both owners have to sign in order to validate the checks. Besides the checks, $20 in cash was taken in the incident.

Police also believe the same people who broke into the furniture store attempted to enter the Village Pump next door. Those attempts were unsuccessful.

Two Northville men were arrested early Monday morning after they attempted to enter the Captain's Table Restaurant.

Warrants were issued by the prosecutor's office for the arrest of Timothy Funke, age 19 and Jack Gardner, 18. Arraignment was held Tuesday morning in the 35th District Court, Northville, before Judge Dunbar Davis.

In yet another breaking and entering, the Burger Chef Restaurant netted nothing more than a 10-speed bicycle kept inside the building.

The incident occurred sometime after 11 p.m. Sunday night with the thieves using a ladder to reach the roof and enter through an opening.

Police said the thieves wore gloves and further stated they felt those involved had some knowledge of Burger Chef operations.

A 1976 Honda motorcycle valued at $2,600 was taken from a front yard on Lake Street. The incident occurred between 2 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. August 4.

Owner of the cycle told police the vehicle was locked and that he had the key in his possession in the house.

A citizens band radio was taken from a car parked in a driveway on East Cady Street. The unit was thought to have been taken sometime between 9 p.m. August 3 and 8 a.m. August 4.

Entry to the locked vehicle was gained through the left door with the radio taken from under the seat.

In Wixom

It may have been a vain attempt at safe-cracking but thieves still managed to make off with $600 in cash and miscellaneous merchandise in a breaking and entering at the Bounty Restaurant on Wixom Road near I-96 last week.

Restaurant owner Adam Gasior notified Wixom Police of the incident at 5 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Thieves had managed to remove the dial and locking mechanism as well as drilling two holes in the office safe before giving up on the job.

In what appeared to be a further search for money and other valuables, desk drawers and file cabinets had been rifled and two food lockers were tampered with but unopened.

Money was taken from the cash register and by breaking into the cigarette machine. The thieves also made off with a .38 caliber revolver and a microwave oven. Merchandise was taken from a smashed display case.

Although total damage done to the restaurant is not yet known, repairs to the safe alone are estimated to be between $200 and $300.

A fight which reportedly erupted over a broken pop bottle ended with one subject knifed and several other victims suffering the effects of a tire iron, car jack, hammer and steel pipe.

The fight began in the Indian Lodge Apartment complex at 3 a.m. August 1. Two groups of people were involved in the loud fracas with one group jumping the other and striking them with the tools.

The knifing victim suffered a cut hand when he shielded his midsection from the knife blade. One person was later arrested on drunk and disorderly charges.

An apartment manager who entered a vacant apartment to clean it told police she heard a noise coming from a closet area and noticed a pair of tennis shoes sticking out from under the door.

She further told police she found a 13-year-old boy crouched in the closet and grabbed his arm. He managed to escape her grasp by biting her in the forearm.

In the incident which occurred at 1 p.m. August 1, the boy apparently made entry to the Indian Lodge apartment by cutting the screen on a window.

A CB radio valued at $250 was taken from a van parked in the employees parking lot at the Ford Motor Company.

The rear door window was broken out with damage also done to the dashboard and sun roof of the vehicle. The larceny occurred between 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. August 2.

In another incident which may have occurred during the same time period, a Polaroid camera valued at $100 was reported stolen. The second vehicle was parked in the same area at Ford's.

A breaking and entering at the Village Apartments August 2 netted thieves with $4800 in cash and valuables. The incident occurred sometime between 8 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The owner reported two Sony cassette players, two typewriters, two suits, a pair of binoculars and a large amount of cash missing from the apartment.

119 arrested at Beer Hill

Sixty-nine police officers from four departments arrested 48 adults and two juveniles for sale and possession of drugs on Beer Hill, a week ago Wednesday.

In addition, police from Dearborn Heights, Detroit, Redford Union and the Wayne County Sheriff's Department arrested 10 people for drunk and disorderly and 59 juveniles for being in an area where there is known drug-trafficking. Another person was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon.

The juveniles were released in the custody of their parents.

Warrants will not be sought against those arrested for sales and possession until analyses are made of the drugs confiscated, police said.

But police said preliminary tests show that 15 people were arrested for selling PCP, an animal tranquilizer, and 22 for selling amphetamines.

Ten people were arrested for selling hash or hash oil, two for selling valium and one for selling marijuana.

One person was taken to Wayne County General Hospital for a drug overdose.

Police made a sweep of the hill one day after undercover agents made the buys from the sellers.

"There were no big sellers here," said Wayne County Sheriff Sgt. Edward Glomb, "but people were making a lot of money."

"What concerns us is that a lot of juveniles are coming here to buy drugs, that's why we made the sweep."

Since May 1 police said they have made 263 narcotics arrests.

There were 250 to 300 people on Beer Hill when the bust was made and police said they made the arrests without incident.

Police said the 50 people arrested for possession, mostly in their early 20's, were from throughout the area.

Tough battle shapes up between Pursell and Dr. Pierce

One of the toughest, if not the toughest Michigan congressional battle in the upcoming Presidential election on November 2 will pit State Senator Carl Pursell of Plymouth against Dr. Edward Pierce, an Ann Arbor physician.

Both men won their party nomination in Tuesday's primary in their bid for the seat in the Second Congressional District that includes Northville.

The Second District, where Congressman Marvin Esch currently holds office, stretches from Livonia all the way to the Ohio border south of Monroe.

Greatest strength of Pursell, a Republican moderate, lies in the Wayne County portion of the district, while Dr. Pierce, liberal Democrat claims solid backing in the university area of Ann Arbor.

Congressman Esch, meanwhile, carries the Republican banner into a stiff contest with Donald Riegle, Jr., a Flint Democrat who surprised most prognosticators with his surprising primary victory over Secretary of State Richard Austin.

Esch has been labeled a Republican moderate, while Riegle, who also currently is a congressman, is called a liberal Democrat who earlier in his political career was a Republican.

With the backing of city and township voters of Northville, Pursell captured the GOP nomination with a heavy vote in the Wayne County portion of the district and a 42-percent showing in the Ann Arbor area where his Republican opponent Ron Trowbridge lives.

Pursell captured 14,350 votes district wide to 10,670 for Trowbridge.

Dr. Pierce easily swept to victory, defeating his closest Democratic opponent, Marvin Stempien — a former city attorney in Northville, by a 2-1 margin. Pierce piled up 19,072 votes to Stempien's 9,460.

Other Democratic candidates in the Second Congressional primary race: Delbert Hoffman, 3,974; Mary Robek, 2,523; and John Spillson, 1,435.

Here's how city and township electors voted in the United States Senatorial race: Democrat — Riegle, 181 in the city and 261 in the township; Austin, 56 and 104; O'Hara, 37 and 116; and Elsmann, 15 and 24.

Republican — Esch, 276 and 1117; Huber, 35 and 122; Brennan, 32 and 232; Baker, 14 and 99.

Following are the results of Wayne County, state and

Novi officers win suit

Novi officers Thomas Hesse and John Zimmer were successful in receiving a verdict of "no cause of action" in a civil lawsuit charging them with the false arrest of a Novi man.

The lawsuit was brought against the officers by Richard Athey, Sr. of 41071 McMahon Circle. It concerned the February, 1974 arrest of Athey at Dave's Hamburger Stand at Novi Road and Grand River.

He was arrested for impersonating a police officer and drunk in public. A carrying a concealed weapon charge was not prosecuted.

Athey was subsequently found innocent on both charges of impersonating a police officer and drunk in public. He later sued the officers charging that his civil rights were violated through a false arrest.

Athey sought $2 million in damages charging that he had suffered irreparable damage to his standing in the community and earning power. About a year and a half after the arrests he lost his position as District Security Supervisor with a supermarket chain.

A jury of 11 men and women found the officers not guilty of the charge and brought back the verdict of "no cause of action" on the part of Athey. Presiding was District court Judge Ralph Freeman.

"I think Mr. Michael Hathaway, our attorney, deserves much of the credit for the verdict," said Zimmer after the trial. "His presentation of the case was brilliant."

Lee BeGole, chief of the Novi police, said "the verdict didn't surprise me. I know Tom Hesse and John Zimmer are professional law enforcement officers because of the high level of training we require."

developed but had never been put in a handbook. That meant researching minutes to determine policies.

Both worked on a tabloid section which will be included in The Novi News back-to-school issue and distributed throughout the district.

Both also worked with the Title One program. Dorr also worked out a rough draft of the procedure for collecting the census of the district next year.

Wiktor admits that the experience has helped him, largely because of the people he has been working with.

"They're very capable administrative people and I learned a lot in interviewing techniques, writing different types of report and learning to work with people," he said.

Added Dorr, "I have a deeper understanding of what the central office does and what team management is. It's not so much what I learned, but the attitude of people here. They're committed to doing a job rather than just putting in hours."

"Novi will be an exciting place with the new elementary and high school. I regret I won't be a part of it."

Dorr, an elementary teacher in the Ann Arbor School District for 10 years, said that he hopes to go on to an elementary principalship.

"I don't want to give up working with kids. If you don't work with kids, you're not an educator."

Wiktor, a junior high teacher with the Farmington School District agreed that "working this summer has convinced me I'd like to do administrative work." His hope is for a junior high principalship in the Farmington School District.

Dr. Kratz said that he has been pleased with the summer intern program, a first for the district this summer, and hopes the district will be able to continue with it in the future.

Agenda set

At its regular August meeting at 8 p.m. this Thursday Northville Township Board of Trustees will have on its agenda the possibility of establishing a township police commission.

The proposal by Richard Mitchell was tabled until this meeting on July 8 in order to give trustees time to study it.

Other old business tabled includes an auditor's report and a land split requested by Tony Bauss.

Female salesmen

John Mach Ford has a better idea

Wandering from car to car, the customer at John Mach Ford pauses to inspect the used, blue pickup.

The former librarian hurries out, sticks out a hand of friendship and says, "Hello, I'm Kris Deibert, may I help you?"

As nearly always happens, a look of surprise spreads across the face of the customer followed quickly by a wan smile.

And just as predictably, the smile gives way to the question, "You're the salesman?"

"I sure am, I'm a salesperson and I'd like to help you."

But no fast-talking, high pressure used-car salesman, this. Kris is a pretty, 28-year-old single salesperson — a charmer whose intelligence soon wins over the customer's confidence.

She is one of fewer than a dozen female car and truck salespersons in the entire metropolitan Detroit area. Still another female joined the John Mach sales force Friday morning. She is Deborah Hylund, 22, of South Lyon.

"We're really pleased with Kris and we're confident Deborah will work out just as well," said Mach's sales manager, Ray Taulbee.

Why pick a woman for a position that traditionally has been reserved for males?

"Mainly, because they work well, are steady and conscientious, follow instructions and they don't go off the deep end like some male salesmen," explained Taulbee.

Kris has a master's degree in library science and until a few months ago was a technical service librarian in Washington, D.C. Earlier, for two years, she was a member of the Peace Corps.

"I like to meet people, but my work in Washington did not give me the kinds of opportunity to deal with the public as I would have liked."

Returning to her hometown of Northville, she began looking for a job — and not in the car sales field. But an advertisement in The Record by John Mach Ford caught her eye and she applied.

"At first I thought of it as a temporary kind of employment. But not anymore. I like my work, and I may never go back to a library," she said.

To prepare herself for the sales position, Kris spent hours poring over technical books and brochures about cars and trucks. For her, however, it wasn't a chore. She likes to read and, more importantly, she likes Ford products. "I'm a dyed in the wool Ford fan; I come from a Ford family (her father, Glenn, a former Northville school board trustee, is an executive with Ford), so the product I'm selling is a favorite to begin with."

Selling is a learning process, and Kris admits she still has not learned all of the technical data about cars that some customers seek.

Although her office is in the used-car section of Mach, she sells used cars and new ones in equal numbers.

Most people are surprised to find that she, a female, is the salesperson. Most women customers seem to be "a little grateful" to find a female seller, while males generally are surprised but nonplused.

She's experienced only one adverse reaction, and that came from a male customer who purposely tried to put her on the spot by asking all kinds of technical questions about a vehicle in which he was interested.

Nevertheless, she ended up selling him a car.

"My technique is just to be nice and considerate," she said.

Some males, of course, are attracted more by her appearance than by her sales ability. One young man called back to ask her out. "I told him I was terribly flattered, but that I was sure he wouldn't want to date an older, 28-year-old woman."

Although this day she was dressed in smart slacks, she frequently wears dresses — but not too short. "I'm really a conservative dresser...I learned quite some time ago that short skirts can attract as many problems as attention."

He wins $15,000 in lottery

By NANCY DINGLEDEY

Although Howard Croft didn't quite make it to the top prize of $200,000, he did leave the lottery drawing last Thursday night $15,000 richer. That, combined with $5,000 Howard "made" at the lottery drawing last week is a pretty nice return on an investment.

Looking just great and not appearing the least bit nervous, Howard was the one to lead off the program. Apparently there was a drawing back stage and Howard won the honors of selecting the first envelope for slot placement.

Making the remark that an automobile dealership was pleased to accept the first $5,000 Howard won, he didn't make any remarks as to his plans for the second check.

Whatever those plans are, it was nice to see the money go to Howard and his family. Can we also say "better luck next time?"

Many times throughout my married life I have often thought a woman should have some type of household "shower" every ten years or so, if for nothing more than to replace worn out items.

Apparently Joan Hollister quipped a quaint "shower" remark just once too often and some of her very "dear" friends thought it would be a good idea to fete her with a bridal shower.

On the guise of a Thursday morning bridge session at Margaret Ladd's, Joan walked into a surprise party. The gals assembled were all of clever mind and the gifts that Joan received were, without a doubt, just as clever.

Some I shall refrain from mentioning — others were hilarious. Among the "litter" that Joan was forced into taking home with her, was a matched coffee can cannister set and a lovely flight bag. Unfortunately the bottom was somehow missing.

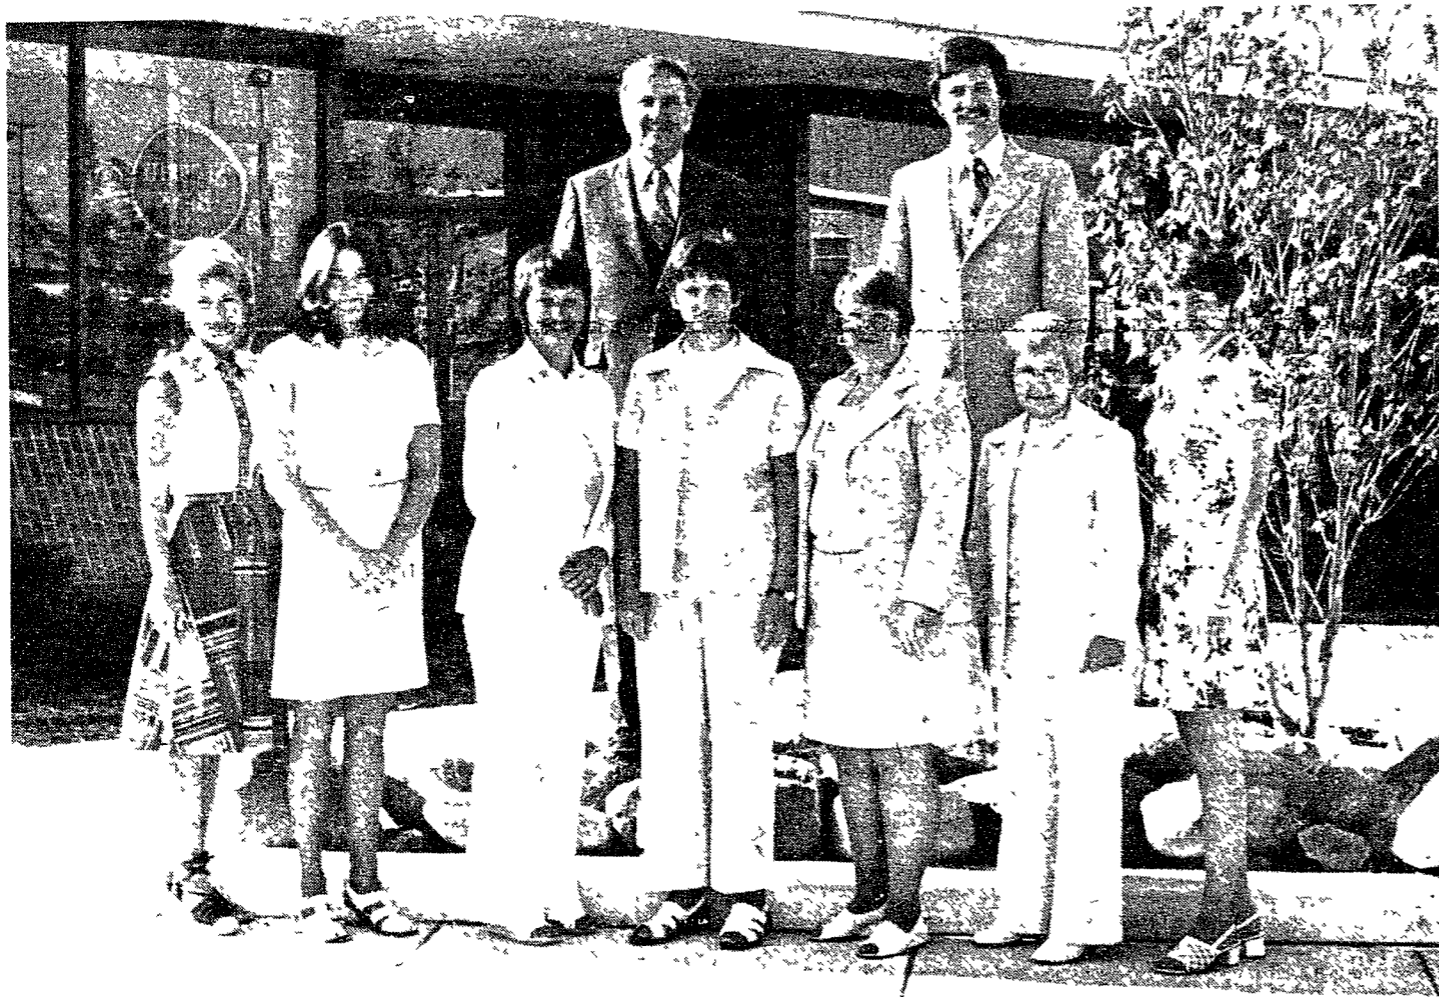

Other gifts included a set of holey sheets along with some equally tattered towels. Then there was a ghastly purple slip and someone's nightie — that had seen better days.

There were games and refreshments — after all, it was a "shower" and, of course, the party area was all decked out in suitable decor.

Refreshments consisted of a peanut butter sandwich carefully cut in 14 sections. It was served on an elegant silver platter complete with a Three Novi residents, Mrs. Dolly Alegnani, her sister Wilma Wagonis and Mrs. Hildred Hunt have returned from spending five days in the Springfield, Illinois area. While there, they visited Fay Alegnani at Mattoon, and toured Lincoln's home, the restored Courthouse, Old Salem and other interesting sights in the area.

Mrs. Les Mitchell assisted in hosting a 25th wedding anniversary last Saturday afternoon at the United Methodist Church for Mr. and Mrs. John Rowan of Livonia. Mrs. Rowan was a former employee of the National Bank in Novi. There was an open house in the afternoon with a dinner at the Hillside Inn for the immediate family. Anne, Karen, Ricky and Frankie Sulla, children of Mrs. Pat Sulla of 13 Mile Road, have returned from spending a week and a half with their aunt, Mrs. Elayne Belanger of Rose City. While there they visited the Forestry Exposition and the zoo.

Digging for fun

Gary Reinwand (from left), crew chief Michael Deaton and Joe Bell of the Novi DPW use a digger to dig holes for a swing set to be located at the park on 11 Mile Road in Novi next to the Novi School District Administration Building. Work is expected to be completed later this week on placement of several different pieces of playground equipment which were purchased by the city with federal revenue sharing. The property is owned by the school district which agreed to allow its use as a park if the city would furnish it.

50 lights, sirens purchased by Novi

Purchase of 50 lights and sirens at a cost of $10,250 was approved by Novi City Council at its last session.

The lights and sirens, to be used by fire department volunteers, are being purchased from Winder Police Equipment, Dearborn Heights.

The new lights and sirens were purchased as the result of recently passed state legislation requiring volunteer vehicles to have lights visible 360 degrees and sirens meeting a certain audible rating.

Council approved purchase of 50 of both units which will "withstand the amount of additional use foreseen for the next five to 10 years," according to Fire Chief Duane Bell. The fire department currently has less than 40 active men.

The council is currently investigating the subject of insurance on the lights and whether self insurance by the city might be the best route to go.

Funds for the purchase are to come from federal revenue sharing and a budget amendment to that effect was approved later in the evening.

Future quality of life tied to our parks

Patricia Eising Carlson has an important message to deliver, but harbors doubts about the willingness of people to listen.

As the chief naturalist at Kensington Metropark, she is concerned about the effects that development is having — and will have — on the quality of life.

"Considering the population projections for this area, we simply do not have enough parks to provide for our future needs," comments the New Hudson resident emphatically, "and there is no better time to act on the problem than right now."

"By parks, I mean all kinds of parks," she continues. "We need local parks in which children can play after school; we need parks for recreational activities such as skiing, snowmobiling, and camping; and we need parks that can be set aside for nothing more than nature and conservation."

The problem, as Mrs. Carlson sees it, is not so much to make people aware of it, but to convince them that now is the time to do something about it.

"The thing that people have to realize is that the quality of life in the future will not be what it is today unless we are willing to back up our expressed interest in parks and ecology with tax dollars," she states. "There will be important changes, not only in the lifetime of our children, but in our own lifetime as well."

"Unfortunately, parks and conservation are still considered by many people to be a frill and not a necessity. Whenever governmental units feel that cuts must be made, the parks budget is one of the first areas to be affected."

"We face a dual problem," she adds. "To educate the people as to what is really happening in our environment and then convince them to financially back the departments which are attempting to reverse the potentially dangerous trends."

Mrs. Carlson defines her position with the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority as an "interpretive naturalist" — someone with a background in nature who is interested in passing that knowledge on to other people.

"It goes a step beyond being an ecologist," she says. "An ecologist is principally concerned with knowing what makes things work. An interpretive naturalist wants to know what makes things work and also to educate others. A big part of my job is to explain the interdependence of our ecological system to other people."

Mrs. Carlson reports that her interest in nature stems from childhood.

She earned a BS Degree in Forestry from Michigan State University in 1959 and went to work for the City of Detroit where she worked in the nature center on Belle Isle.

She joined the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority in 1968, shortly before receiving her Master of Science degree from Michigan State in the field of Conservation Education.

As chief naturalist at Kensington Metropark, she supervises the operations of 700 acres of nature area which includes 10 miles of nature trails and a nature center building.

Her job includes setting up lectures for school groups, workshops for science teachers, and field trips through the park on various subjects ranging from wildflowers to birds to astronomy.

"We try to make our park relate directly to the natural phenomena of southeastern Michigan," says Mrs. Carlson. "As a result of television, people are exposed to many of the greater glories in the realm of nature throughout the world. The problem that develops is that they don't have a true appreciation for the glories of nature in their own backyards."

As an interpretive naturalist, Mrs. Carlson believes that many of today's environmental problems are a consequence of the separation of man from his natural world.

"We really don't comprehend the workings of the system anymore," she says. "And when people don't understand how everything is interrelated, they are not able to see how their actions can upset the whole system."

Joseph Binz, a young visitor to Northville from Switzerland wandered into the dealership lot "to look at cars." It was a repeat visit.

"Sure would be nice if we had someone like her back in Zurich," he smiled. "We'd buy lots of cars."

"She's single," the reporter said. "Yes, I know," he said as his smile widened and he took a chair in her office.

Other Wixomites have, at one time or another, had parties that were equally strange.

Vi and Gunnar Mettala once had a "sink warming" shindig. It seems after all the struggle of putting in the sink, the Mettalas felt the least they could do was christen it with a party.

But the best one I've heard of in a long time was Susie Weeks' sweet 16 birthday party. The last time Susie had a party was on her fifth birthday. The tenth was missed because of illness.

Aila and Louise weeks planned the party — complete with special invitations to their friends. There was cake and ice cream and a stirring rendition of "happy birthday".

There's only one thing that made this party a little out of the ordinary — Susie's a feline type critter!

Akira Tokuhiro took part in science program

Novi HS student studies at MSU

Akira Tokuhiro of Novi was among 37 high school juniors who took part in the 1976 High School Honors Science Program at Michigan State University.

The program, co-sponsored by the National Science Foundation, provides high school students with a unique opportunity to live, work and study in a university environment. They also get a chance to interact with other students like them who share an interest in science.

Participants spent mornings in classroom activities, including an introductory computer science course group discussion and occasional tours of places of scientific and nonscientific interest on campus and off. Guest lectures also were often part of the morning activity. Students spent afternoons working on research projects in biology, biochemistry, physics, engineering or computer science.

Tokuhiro, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tadashi Tokuhiro of 25865 Sierra Drive, attends Novi High School.

His research project took him to MSU's nuclear reactor. He worked on a project that tries to reduce the normal background radiation caused by the diffusion of radiation from isotopes into the air.

He is a member of the Industrial Arts Club and the marching band at school.

Charles R. Peebles, associate professor of natural science at MSU, has been involved with the program for 11 years and is its director for the eighth consecutive year. "It's a lot of fun," Peebles said. "This seemed to be one of the better groups."

"Of course, I guess I say that about every group every year," he reflected. "And if I didn't mean it, I guess I wouldn't keep doing it."

The program ran from June 20 to July 29.

Together with appointees from Novi, Walled Lake and Wolverine Lake Village, the group will look into the location of an acute care hospital in the four community area.
